SYRA (anc. Syros), an isl. of the Archipelago, belonging to Greece, and included in the N Cyclades, 11 m. S. Andros, lat. (E. side) 37° 28' 54" N; lon. 24° 55' 45" E. (a); length, N to S, 10 m.; greatest breadth, nearly 7 m. The coast is bold and rugged, with numerous indentations, one of which, on the E., where the capital of same name stands, furnishes an excellent harbour; the interior is intersected by hills and narrow valleys, and though in some parts almost sterile, partly from a deficiency of water, is generally covered with a soil of great fertility, producing in abundance wheat, barley, cotton, wine, and figs. The climate, cooler and more humid than that of the surrounding islands, has the reputation of being very salubrious.—SYRA, the town near the site of the ancient Syros, consists of a number of tolerably spacious streets, and well-built houses. It is the see of a bishop, and the residence of a British consul, and has several churches, and a considerable trade greatly favoured by its port, and the visits of the Austrian and French steamers, which call regularly here. During the war of independence, Syra became the centre of the Greek commerce, and made very rapid progress, increasing in population from 5000 to nearly 30,000. The peace, by restoring the freedom of other ports, deprived it of the prosperity which it owed to adventurous circumstances, but its natural advantages are still great enough to make it of considerable importance. F (1853), about 20,000.

SYRACUSE (Latin, Syracusae), a town and seaport on S.E. coast, isl Sicily (cap. gov. of its name lat. 37° 5' N lon. 16° 18' 30" E. (a). It stands on the island of Ortygia, a tongue of land projecting S. from the mainland, and separated from it by a canal or fosse. To the W of the island is the great harbour, so capacious, so easy of access, and so secure, as to make it one of the best ports in the Mediterranean to the E. is the little harbour. It is rather strongly fortified being inclosed by walls flanked with bastions, and defended by other works. The town is very indifferently built, and the streets, though tolerably regular, are narrow and dirty. The principal edifices are the cathedral, partly on the site, and partly actually composed of an ancient temple of Minerva; the church of St. Philip, and numerous other churches, several rel caravans, a collage, picture-gallery, concert-house, library, and bazaar. The celebrated fountain of Arethusa (which is now only a small pool of not very pure water, and is used for the most ordinary domestic purposes. Trade, once so important, has gradually dwindled away and is now almost confined to insignificant exports of oil, corn, fruit, wine, hemp, and salt-petre. Modern Syracuse, both in extent and appearance, is a mere shadow of what it was in ancient times. The island to which its site is now confined was only one of four quarters, other three stretching far on the mainland, Acorus to the E., Tyche to the N., and Neapolis to the N. W., crowned by the strong fortress of Epipoli, including a space the extent of which, including Otygia, was at least 26 m. and containing a population which has been extravagantly estimated at a million, and may possibly have reached a fourth of it. There are many remains which attest the former magnitude and magnificence of the city, but the work of devastation has been rapid and complete, and the remains are far fewer than might have been anticipated. The best preserved and most interesting are those which, though the work of human hands, could scarcely be destroyed. They are called locos, or prisons, and consist of immense and deep excavations cut in the solid rock, with steep slanting sides, which made egress impossible and must have admir-

THE BAR OF DIONYSIUS AT SYRACUSE.—From Light's Modern Sicily

bly served the purposes of the inhuman tyrants into whose hands the city repeatedly fell. In connection with the locos of Neapolis, is the famous cavern known by the name of the Bar of Dionysius, along which, by means of grooves carefully cut and polished, the slightest whisper of the prisoners is supposed to have been suitably conveyed. Among the distinguished persons to whom Syracuse gave birth may be mentioned the poets Theocritus and Moschus, and above all the celebrated mathematician and mechanist, Archimedes. Pop. 18,806.—THE PROVINCE, occupying the S.E. portion of the island, length and breadth 63 m.; is mountainous but includes the once fertile, but now neglected and partially marshy plains of Catania. Pop. 178,700

SYRACUSE, a town, U. States, New York, at the junction of the Oswego and the Erie canals, and on a branch railway connected with the trunk line between Buffalo and the Hudson, about 140 m. W. Albany. In 1850 it consisted of a few scattered and indifferent wooden houses, and has since sprung up, as if by magic into a large and handsome town, with spacious and well-built streets, churches with glittering spires, elegant hotels, large and lofty stone warehouses and canal-basins crowded with boats. In addition to the extensive traffic for which its railroads and canals afford it unrivalled facilities it has large salt-works, supplied with brine from the pits of Saline, in the vicinity, and manufacturing chiefly coarse salt, by solar evaporation, to the extent of nearly 800,000 bushels annually. Pop. (1850) 22,371

SYRIA (Turkish Jabal-ul-Oman) a country, Asiatic Turkey, between lat. 31 and 37 N. and lon. 35° 30' and 39° E. and bounded, N. by the Taurus range, separating it from Asia Minor N.E. the Euphrates E. the Syrian desert S.E. and S. Arabia S.W. Egypt and W. the Mediterranean Sea. Its greatest length, N. to S. about 420 m. greatest breadth, about 190 m.; area, nearly 50,000 sq. m. The coast has some low sandy tracts but is in general though not deeply indented lofty and precipitous, rising, particularly in Mount Carmel, to the height of 3000 ft. It has few good harbours, and is often lined with shoals, which make its navigation dangerous. The most remarkable feature of the interior is a mountain-chain, which, continued from the Sinai peninsula in the S., stretches over the whole length of the country, till it becomes linked with the Taurus in the N. The S. part of this chain, where it enters Palestine, consists of two parallel ranges. The W. range, lowering as it proceeds N., assumes the form of a plateau, which has an average height of about 2500 ft. in the vicinity of Jerusalem, but afterwards sinking rapidly, has at the N. extremity of the plain of Edessa, near the foot of Mount Tabor, a height of rather less than 480 ft. At this point, however, it assumes a new elevation, and, taking the name of Lebanon or Libanus attains in its culminating point the height of 9000 ft. The E. range forms a continuation of the great chain of W. Arabia, pursues the same direction as the W. range, and though it also rests on a plateau which towards Damascus has a height of above 2000 ft., is in general of moderate elevation. On approaching Libanus it takes the name of Anti Libanus, the only space between them being occupied by a longitudinal valley known by the name of Coles Syria. Notwithstanding its much lower average elevation, the culminating point of the whole chain occurs in Anti Libanus, which in Jebel-el-Shak about 30 m. W. of Damascus attains a height variously estimated by some at 10,000 ft. and by others at more than 12,000 ft. This mountain, visible from almost all parts of Syria, forms an important landmark for the guidance of its caravans. The mountain chain now described divides Syria into three regions—a W. consisting of a narrow belt of lowland, extending between the sea and the mountains sometimes sandy but generally fertile; a central, occupied by the principal mountains of the chain, and an E., consisting for the most part of a bare, arid, sandy plain occasionally relieved by a few oases. The principal rivers are the Euphrates, confined to a part of the N.E. frontier and the Jordan or Ghor which, rising on the N. of Jebel el-Shak, contains its course almost due S. through a valley remarkable particularly in its S. part, for its great depth beneath the level of the sea. In the course of the Jordan are the lakes of Merom and Tiberias, the latter justly celebrated as the scene of some of our Saviour's miracles; and at its mouth is the far larger lake of the Dead Sea, which also occupies a memorable place in Scripture history and still attests, in the volcanic rocks lining its shores, and the mineral ingredients of its waters, the fearful catastrophe which overthrew and buried the cities of the plain. The climate of Syria is salubrious among the mountains, but excessively hot, unhealthy and often pestilential, along the seashores. Much of the soil, more especially in the valleys of Lebanon, is remarkable for its fertility, and if its natural advantages were not more than counteracted by its wretched political condition, it might easily at least in its cultivable parts, be rendered one of the richest regions of the world. Among its principal products are corn, cotton, fruit in almost endless variety, indigo, sugar-cane, grapes, mulberries, olives, and tobacco. Its forests also are extensive, and include among their trees, though now only to a limited extent, the famous cedars of Lebanon. The chief domestic animals are camels, oxen, goats, sheep, mules, asses, and horses. Grapes are abundant, and the bees yield honey in such abundance, and of such excellent quality, as to form an important branch of rural economy. The minerals, as well as the general geology of the country, have been imperfectly explored; the only metal of any consequence appears to be iron. Both manubetween and trade are in a very languishing condition. The former, once celebrated, are now confined to a few of the principal towns, among which may be mentioned Damascus, which is still in some repute for its silks and sword-blades; the other leading articles are cotton goods, soap, glass, and confectionery. The trade is chiefly confined to Alexandria, Tripoli, and Beyrout, especially the last, which is the only commercial port of Syria that has made much progress in recent times. The inhabitants, roughly estimated at about 3,000,000, consist chiefly of Greek, stationary Arabs, and tribes among the mountains; the most celebrated tribes are the Druses, Maronites and Ansari. There are also several nomadic tribes, as Turcomans in the N. Kurds on the banks of the Euphrates, and Bedouins in the Syrian desert. The Turks and Arabs are Mahomedans; the Greeks generally belong to the Greek church; the Maronites form a peculiar Christian sect. For administrative purposes Syria, formerly composed the four pashaliks of Acre, Aleppo, Damascus, and Tripoli, is now divided into three governments or vilayets—Haleb, subdivided into four provinces or livas, of which Haleb, or Aleppo is the capital. Sidon, subdivided into eight livas, cap. Sidon or Saida, and Syria proper subdivided into four livas, cap. Damascus. Syria, at an early period, became part of the Assyrian Empire, and afterwards passed to the Persians under Cyrus, and the Greeks under Alexander. It afterwards became the centre of the empire of the Seleucids, from whom it was conquered by the Romans, during whose domination (Antioch and his celebrated queen Zenobia, established a short-lived kingdom at Palmyra. On the division of the Roman Empire into a W. and E. Syria fell to the latter but was taken by the Arabs in 636. It was governed by caliphs till 868, and then passed under various masters, till it was conquered by the Seljuk Turks in 1073. It was partly wrested from them by the Crusaders, who founded in it the kingdom of Jerusalem which lasted till 1268, when it was taken by the Mamelukes, who united it with Egypt, and retained possession of it till 1517 when the Ottoman Turks added it to their empire. The most important events in the modern history of Syria are its conquest by Mahomet Ali in 1833 and its restoration to Turkey, in 1840, by the intervention of the great European powers.

SYRIAN VINTAGES after Gault.
1, Staff of Mount Lebanon. 2, Woman of Hama. 3, Man of Hama.

SYRIA or SYRIANA, a co. Austria, in the E. of Belovis, bounded N. by Hungary, E. the Danube, and S. and W. the Black sea, 600 sq. m. It is traversed throughout its whole length by the Euphrates Mountains, and is at once among the most beautiful and romantic, as well as the most fertile spots of the Austrian dominions. It is alike productive of corn, wine, fruit, and oil, and is particularly celebrated for its grapes and wine-making, which the warmth of the climate brings to great perfection. Its capital is Vukovar. Pop. 168,400.

SYRTIS (SIRYAN and LUTYAN). See MEDA, and CANA. SYRUSA, a river, Russia, rises in the N. E. of gov. Viatka, enters gov. Novgorod flows easterly N.N.W., and joins L. Iank. Witebsk, after a course of about 360 m.

SYRSELE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 40 m. E. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, a brewery, two oil-mills, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1754.

SYTCHFWRK, or SITCHWKA, a tn. Russia, gov. and 98 m. N.E. Smolensk; with two churches several sawmills and breweries, and com. transit trade. Pop. (1850) 3908.

SYZHAN, a tn. Russia, gov. and 78 m. S. Simbirsk, cap. circle, on a height above the Syzran and Krymsa, both of which here join r. Iank. Volga. Though, after Simbirsk, the last town in the government, it is poorly built, and has unpaved streets. It contains two wooden and eight stone churches, and a monastery; and has manufactures of soap and leather a fishery, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 7400.

SZARAR, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Szabolcs, 1 m. from Hlisko, with a church and a trade in grain. Pop. 1184.

SZABAD SZALLAS, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, Little Kumania, 84 m. N.W. Hlisko with a Protestant church, a courthouse, and a trade in wine. Pop. 4220.

SZABADHELY, a vil. Hungary, Thither Theiss, co. and 8 m. from Arod, on the Maros with a Greek church, and a trade in corn, cattle, sheep, and swine. Pop. 1440.

SZAHADI (FUS), a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. and 12 m. from Vasmir with two churches, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1310.

SZABADJA (SZENT KIRALY), a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. and 8 m. from Vasmir with two churches, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1484.

SZABOLCS, a co. Hungary, bounded E. by Kompan N. E. Ungvar and Beregh, E. Szabolcs, S. Bihar S. W. Great Kumania, and W. Heves and Borsod area, 2186 sq. m. It may be described as an extensive sandy plain, intersected by extensive moraines. The principal river is the Theiss, which makes a large loop round the N. and W. part of the county and reaches the Danube. Some parts of the county are fertile alluvium, and even many of the sandy districts have such an admixture of fertile soil, that the corn raised more than satisfies the home consumption. Besides cereals, fruit, tobacco, and melons thrive well. Great numbers of cattle and sheep are fed on the rich meadows. Both game and fish abound. This county is divided into the four districts of Kleinsandorf, Dada, Nedvez, and Bator. The cap. is Nagy Kello. Pop. 236,990.

SZAKAL, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. and about 70 m. from Telen, on the small of the Kapos with a church, and a trade in wine and wool. Pop. 1634.

SZAKALEHAZ, a vil. Hungary, Thither Theiss, co. and 3 m. from Temesvar on the Borogiano. It contains a E. Catholic parish church. Pop. 3222.

SZAKALOVACZ, a vil. Hungary, 7 m. from Weiskirchen, with a Greek church. The inhabitants belong chiefly to an Magyar frontier regiment. Pop. 1144.

SZAKOS (MAGYAR and TUDOS), two adjacent places, Hungary Thither Theiss, co. and about 55 m. S.W. Temesvar, with a Greek church. Pop. (Hakos-Magyar), 2677, (Hakos-Tudos), 1606.

SZAKTS, a market in Hungary Thither Danube, co. Tolna; with a church, and some trade in cattle, wood, and wine. Pop. 7771.

SZALAD a co. Hungary, bounded N.E. by Vasmir; S.E. Semreh from which it is partly separated by Lake Balaton; S. Civil Croatia, from which it is separated by the Drava W. Styria and N.W. Eisenburg, area, 1605 sq. m. a ramification of the Balkan proceeding from Styria into co. Eisenburg, entering co. Szabol, divides into two branches, and proceeding N. makes the districts in that direction fifty. The rest of the county is fairly undulated, except towards the Balaton Lake, where it becomes flat and marshy. The principal rivers are the Drava, the Mur, and the Sank. The soil, which is well cultivated, is fertile in all kinds of cereals, particularly wheat. Considerable attention is paid to the rearing of stock. The forests are extensive, and both game and fish abound. This county is divided into six districts—Székesség (the capital), Topolna, Tamás Kapornak, Léva, and Ménfő. Pop. 257,686.

SZALATNA (MAOY) or YSEKA SLATINA, a market in Hungary, co. Solik, r. bank Szekes, 6 m. E N E Almás with two churches and a mineral spring. Pop. 1491.

SZALATZ, a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Bihar with two churches. Pop. 4578.

SZALKA, several places, Hungary—1, A market in Hither Danube, co. Honch, on the Ipoly, 6 m. from Gran with a church, and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. P. 1178—2, A vil. Thither Danube, co. Tolna, in a well-wooded district, 20 m. from Szekes. It has a Lutheran church. P. 1469.

SZALOK, several places, Hungary—1 (Alas) A vil. co. Baros, 80 m. from Egeres; with a church.—2, (Eger), A vil., co. Heves 2 m. from Eger; with a church, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1635.—3, (Tine) A vil. Hither Thesse, co. Heves; with two churches, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1900.—4, (Nagy, or Gros-Schlagendorf), A vil. Hither Thesse, co. Eger, at the foot of the Carpathians, 9 m. S W Kismark with two churches, manufactures of linen several distilleries, a trade in corn, fat, and cattle, and mineral-springs, with a bathing establishment. Pop. 1004.

SZALONAK, a vil. Hungary. See SZALONIA.
SZALONIA, a market in Hungary Thither Thesse co. Bihar, 50 m. S W Margitta with a church, and a considerable trade in cattle. Pop. 7210.

SZALT, a vil. Syria, pash. Damascus, 45 m. N E Jeru salom. The houses are usually small, with flat roofs reeling upon an arch; the streets are narrow and dirty, and form successive terraces. Number of houses altogether about 500 of which 200 are Turkish, and 200 Christian.

SZAMOBOR, or Szombor, a market in Austria Croatia, co. Agazin 23 m. N E E Carlsbad with a church Franciscan monastery a castle, and several schools and a copper-mill. Pop. 2265.

SZAMOS, a river, Austrian dominions formed in Transylvania by the Great and the Little Szamos, the former coming from the S Carpathians on the E and the latter from the S W., and forming a junction near the town of Dasa. The united stream proceeds very circuitously in a N W direction, enters Hungary, and joins L. bank Theiss, where it is joined by the Krassa, after a course of about 220 m. It has no effect of any consequence.

SZAMOS-URVAH, in Transylvania. See ADRES-REPERTA.

SZANAD, a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Torontal, 2 m. from Stein-am-Anger. Pop. 2874.

SZANISZLO a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Szekes 4 m. from Nagy Karoly, with a Greek church, and a trade in corn. Pop. 2169.

SZANTO a market in Hungary, Hither Thesse, co. Abonyar, near the N shore of a lake at the foot of the Tokaj Hills with two churches. Good wine and tobacco are raised in the vicinity. Pop. 4995.

SZANTO—1, A vil. Hungary co. and 12 m. from Pesth; with a church. Pop. 1199.—2, A vil. co. Tolna, 30 m. from Szombor, with a chapel, a mill, and a trade in corn, cattle, timber and wine. Pop. 1208.

SZANTOVA, a vil. Hungary, co. Becs L. bank Danube, 8 m. N E Bowdan. It contains a R. Catholic church and has some trade in cattle, corn, and wood. Pop. 2887.

SZANY a market in Hungary Thither Danube, co. and 87 m. S E Oedenburg; with a church chateau, and the ruins of an old castle. Tobacco is extensively grown in the district. Pop. 2150.

SZARAYOLA, or SARAYOLA, a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Torontal, on the Maros, with a Greek church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2629.

SZARFULD a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. and about 20 m. from Oedenburg, with a parish church, and a trade in corn, cattle, and timber. Pop. 1024.

SZARKAD a market in Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Bihar, on the Gyepes, 80 m. S W Groswarden, with a Protestant church and a trade in corn. Pop. 3524.

SZARNOHOR, a vil. Hungary, co. and 60 m. N N E Fodol, on the Maros, with a R. Catholic and several Greek churches, a Dominican monastery and school a considerable trade, and several annual fairs. The inhabitants are chiefly Jews. Pop. 6744.

SZARTSLA, a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Torontal, 8 m. from Betskerak, with a Greek parish church, and a trade in corn, cattle, and timber. Pop. 1853.

SZARVAS, a market in Hungary, co. and 89 m. W N W Bekes, in a plain on the Körö, with two churches, an economical institute and industrial school and a considerable trade in corn and cattle. Pop. (1846), 17,500.

SZARVKEO or YOSURAY, a market in Hungary Thither Danube, co. Oedenburg 4 m. from Gros-Heden, with a parish church. Pop. 1704.

SZASZ-DAVLA, or DEMOZ, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, 12 m. from Schlaberg, with two churches. Pop. 1114.
SZASZ-REGEN a market in Austria, Transylvania, co. and N E Thorda, r. bank Maros, here navigable. It contains two Protestant, and several other churches, a normal and other schools, a civil and military hospital a casino, and orphan asylum is the seat of a superior civil and criminal court and has manufactures of woollens and leather, and an important trade in iron, wood, honey wax and wine. Szasz-Regen is supposed to occupy the site of the Roman Rhodunum, and near it are the remains of the Roman salt-mines, Salinae Minorae, where a bathing establishment has been erected and is much frequented. Pop. 5000.

SZASZFALU, or SZASZFALA, a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Ugocsa, 3 m. from Nagy-Szollos, with a Greek church, and a trade in tobacco. Pop. 1289.

SZASZKA NOGYH or SEANKA BANYA, a vil. Hungary Thither Thesse, co. Krasova, m. a plain on the Mera, 14 m. S W Oravica. It is the seat of a mining directory, and contains a R. Catholic parish church. In the neighbourhood are mines of iron, copper and lead. Pop. 2026.

SZASZVAROS a market in Austria. See DAPOS.

SZATHMAR or SZATHMAR-VEHETES, a vil. Hungary, cap. co. of its name, in a marshy plain on the Szamos, 69 m. N N E Groswarden. It is divided by the river into two distinct market towns, Szathmar on the left, and Nemethi which was once fortified and has some of its fortifications still remaining, on the r. bank. It is very indifferently built, and has only its principal street paved. It is the see of a bishop contains a cathedral, two Protestant and two Greek churches, a seminary lyceum, gymnasium normal school, and Franciscan monastery and has a considerable trade in corn wine, honey, fish, and wool. There are salt-mines in the neighbourhood. Pop. 15,800.—The court for Szathmar-Vermeget area, 1705 sq. m. is in the E and S E mountains, being traversed by lofty ridges, the highest of which are the Biholdal and Feketehegy in other directions it is flat and partly marshy particularly along the course of the Krassa, where the morass of Bied extends without interruption for about 18 m. from Gros-Karoly to the banks of the Theiss. The principal rivers are the Theiss, which forms part of the N boundary, and its tributaries the Szamos, Krassa, and Tur. The plains, where sufficiently elevated above the waters, are of great fertility producing abundance of wheat, maize, fruit, fax, hemp, and tobacco. The greater part of the lower slopes are occupied by vineyards, and above them are extensive plantations of chestnuts. The loftier ridges are well covered with wood and the intervening valleys afford excellent pastures, on which great numbers of cattle, sheep and swine are reared. The rearing of bees also is an important branch of rural economy and the honey and wax obtained from them form considerable articles of export. Both game and fish are in the greatest abundance. The minerals are of considerable importance, and include gold, silver, copper, antimony, and particularly salt. Szathmar is divided into four districts—Nagy-Banya, Kraszskak, Szathmar, and Nyir. Pop. 344,300.

SZATSAL, a vil. Hungary, co. Marmaros, 80 m. from Balgheth; with a Greek church and a synagogue. Pop. 1373.

SECELCEIN, a vil. Russian Poland, 80 m. S W Angers-towo, on a small affluent of the Bober. It has a large market-place, spacious and paved streets two churches, a Flarist college, with a scholastic establishment a convent of the Sisters of Mercy, a large synagogue, and several trade, and annual fairs. Pop. 1845.

SEI-CHEW a prov. China. See SEIKOWEN.

SEBELLEH or SUSANIM, a market in Hungary, co. Honch, 16 m. S S E Schenau with a church, and a trade in corn wine, and wood. Pop. 1057.

SZESEN (Kis) or KANNA, a tn. Hungary co. Bars, on the Tarna, with a Plurin college and a gymnasium. P 3790.

SZESENY a market in Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Neograd, on the Ipoly, 2 m. from Balacs-Gyurath; with a church, Franciscan monastery and old ruined castle, a magnificent estate, and some general trade. Pop. 3380.

SZESENY, a market in Hungary. See Gaz-Szamos.

SZESENY a tn. in Hungary Thither Thais, esp. co. Csenger, is a marsh, 7 bank Thais, 80 m. W Arad. It is divided into the town proper, the fortress, the upper and under suburbs and the dock-market. The town proper has no walls, but is tolerably well built, containing many handsome houses, and spacious but unimproved streets. The parish church here, surmounted by a tower, is in possession of the Prince, who have also a college, with gardens. The fortress, close on the Thais, is surrounded with walls and ditches, and entered by two bridges. It is regularly garrisoned, and has its own church, and a house of correction. In the upper suburb there is a Minorite church and cloister, and a large salt-magazine; in the lower suburb, a Franciscan church and monastery, and an hospital. The area-market consists of a row of houses, with wheat are called the wine-gardens behind, and in its vicinity the terraces, large barracks, and some industrial establishments among others, extensive cloth and tobacco factories. The trade, which is important, is chiefly in tobacco, salt, wool, coal, cotton, corn, and cattle. A great many barges are built here. Pop. (1846) 25,900.

SZEGHALOM a vil. Hungary Thither Thais, co. Bekes, 50 m. S.W. Margits with a church, a quarry, and four mills. Pop. 5479.

SZEGHAR, a vil. Hungary Thither Thais, co. Csenger, 80 m. S.E. Pesth with a church, handsome country buildings, and a considerable trade in corn, cattle, and fish. Pop. 4207.

SZEGHAR, a vil. Hungary 1-1 Thither Thais, co. Temesvár, 24 m. from Lappa, with a Greek parish church. Pop. 1614 — 2, (or Szeng) Thither Thais, co. Krasova, near the Karva, 15 m. S. Bokan, with a handsome church. Pop. 3004.

SZEKELY-Kisvass, a market to Hungary Transylvania, still Udvachely in a somewhat sterile district on the Great Kolos. Its staple manufacture is wool, which have an extensive sale. Pop. 4600.

SZEKELY a vil. Hungary 2-2 Thither Thais, co. Neograd, 16 m. from Tolna, with two churches, and a trade in corn, timber and tobacco. Pop. 2395.

SZEKELYHID a market in Hungary, co. Bihar, 26 m. S.E. Debrezin with two churches, and the remains of an old fortress. Pop. 5720.

SZEKERES, or SZERES, a vil. Hungary, Transylvania, co. Hunyad, 53 m. W N.W. Hermannstadt with two churches, and the most important gold and silver mines in Transylvania. Tollman is also found here. Pop. 1643.

SZEKESAT, a vil. Hungary Thither Thais, co. Temesvár, 17 m. from Arad, in a fertile district, with a Greek church. Pop. 2222.

SZEKESZAD, a tn. Hungary. See SZEKESZAD.

SZEKESZAD a market to Hungary co. Bars, on an arm of the Danube, 9 m. N. Mohacs with a church, a handsome chateau, and some trade in corn, wine, and wool. P 3247.

SZEKESZVAR, or SZEKESZVAR, a vil. Hungary co. and 25 m. N. Arad, with a Greek church the ruins of an old castle, and some trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2798.

SZEKESZVAR, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. and 39 m. S.E. Pesth, on the Tugos with a R. Catholic church and a synagogue. Pop. 2653.

SZEKESZVAR, a vil. Hungary 1-1, a market to See Farnson — 2, a vil. Hither Danube, co. Freiburg, 6 m. from Malacska with a handsome church. Pop. 1484.

SZEKESZVAR a vil. Austria, Transylvania, in the land of the Szamos, 16 m. W Hermannstadt. It has several mills, and a trade in cattle and cheese. Pop. 1800.

SZEKESZVAR, two places, Hungary 1-1, (Alto). A vil. on Pesth with two churches, and a trade in cattle and cheese. Pop. 1508 — 2 (Alto). A vil. on Freiburg, 9 m. from Szeres, with a fishery and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1879.

SZEKESZVAR or SZEKESZVAR, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, 9 m. W Hermannstadt, in a deep valley, covered with orchards and vineyards. It has a Protestant and two Greek churches, the remains of an old castle, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 3004.

SZEKELY, or SZEKELY (Alto and Fraco) two nearly-contiguous vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Freiburg, 30 m. from Tyrna, with a church. Pop. 5180.

SZEKELY, or SZEKELY a market to Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Lipava, 6 m. N.W. Szent-Miklos; with a church and manufactures of salt-petre. Pop. 1183.

SZEMERK, several places, Hungary, particularly 1-1, (Szogy). A vil. Thither Danube, co. Beah, 2 m. from Teth, with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1879 — 3, (Szogy). A vil. Thither Danube co. and 30 m. from Oedenburg, with a church. Pop. 1922.

SZEMIAK a vil. Hungary Thither Thais, co. and 10 m. from Arad, with two churches, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1904.

SZENI a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Komorn, 6 m. from Teth, with two churches, a flour-mill and a fishery and a trade in wine. Pop. 1126.

SZENIO, or St. ANTON, a market to Hungary Hither Thais, co. Bekes, 1 bank Arva, 80 m. N. Mohacs. It has two castles, one in ruins and the other still habitable. A R. Catholic church, synagogue, Franciscan monastery and sulphur-bath. The district is fertile, and produces much wine and tobacco. Pop. 2620.

SZENICZ, a market in Hungary, co. and 44 m. N.W. Neutra with two churches, a handsome chateau, and bathing establishment, several mills, important markets, and a considerable trade in corn, hemp, flax, and wine. Pop. 3000.

SZENOGRAD, or SZENOGRAD, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Honth on the frontier of co. Soli and Neograd, with a church, a flour-mill and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1188.

SZENT, the Hungarian for Saint, and the prefix of numerous places, Hungary.

SZENT AGOTHA, or St. AGOTHA, a market in Austria Transylvania, co. Pogras, on a small stream 30 m. from Alto-Uta, with three churches. Pop. 2450.

SZENT ANDREA, or St. ANDREA, several places, Hungary particularly 1-1, a vil., co. Bekes, on the Kis-Ra, near the frontier of Great Kumania, with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church. The ground in the vicinity is fertile, but often suffers from inundation of the river. Pop. 8740 — 3.

A market in co. Temes, about 6 m. S. Bekebach, with a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2390.

SZENT ANNA (O and U), two nearly-contiguous market tns. Hungary co. Arad, with two churches. P 7020.

SZENT BAKKEX several places, Hungary particularly 1-1, a market in co. Bars, 1 bank Gran, 8 m. from Lava with an ancient Gothic church, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1240 — 2, a vil. co. Pesth 1 bank Danube, over which there is here a ferry 5 m. from Kalocsa. It has a trade in corn and timber. Pop. 1131 — 3, a market in Transylvania, co. Lower Wessenberg, near Nagy-Boyd, with three churches. Pop. 919.

SZENT GALL, a vil. Hungary co. and 5 m. from Veszprim with a Protestant church, a saw and three other mills, and a trade in cattle and timber. Pop. 3203.

SZENT-GOTARD a market in Hungary Thither Danube, co. Eisenburg, in the valley of the Beah, 2 m. from Rale-Kerestur, with a church, an abbey, and a trade in wine. Montes defeated the Turks here in 1644. Pop. 850.

SZENTA, or SZENTA a market in Hungary, co. Bars, 1 bank Thais, 10 m. S. Kis-Kamie, in a beautiful plain. It has two churches, and is famous for the victory which Prince Eugene gained over the Turks in 1698. Pop. (1846) 14,800.

SZENTES a tn. Hungary Thither Thais, co. Csenger, 29 m. N.N.E. Szeged, with a considerable number of well-built houses, a Protestant church with a handsome tower three other churches, and a townhouse, and a considerable trade in corn, cattle, and wool. Pop. (1846) 20,600.

SZEPETNEK, a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Beah, 8 m. from Nagy-Kandis, with a church, and a trade in wood and cattle. Pop. 1461.

SZEPFALU, Szentes or Szentes a vil. Hungary, Thither Thais, co. Temesvár, 4 m. from Gabbanburg, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1764.

SZERDAHELY (Yagm), a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube co. Freiburg, 6 m. from Tyrna with a church. P 2451.

SZERED, a market in Hungary, Hither Danube, co. and 20 m. S. N. E. Pressburg, near the Wang, here crossed by a bridge. It has a church and handsome chateau, and a trade in wood. Pop. 3900.

SZEREDNYE, a market in Hungary Hither Theiss, co. and 11 m. S. E. Ungvár, with a church and two chateaux, several mills, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1780.

SZEREMLO, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Pesth, about 9 m. from Baja with a church. Pop. 1478.

SZERENCS, or SEKESZARAS, a market in Hungary, Hither Theiss, co. and 38 m. S. W. Komló with a Protestant and a Greek church, a porchouse, the ruins of an ancient castle, and a considerable trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 2198.

SZESZUPPE, a river, Europe, rises in the N. E. of Russia Poland, wolded Angustow, forms part of the boundary between Russia and Prussia, enters prov. E. Prussia, and after a course of about 150 m. N. W., joins the bank Memel or Neman.

SZETSANY two places, Hungary:—1, A vil. co. Temes, about 4 m. from Guttenbrunn, with a church. Pop. 2294.—2, A vil. Thither Theiss, co. Torontal 5 m. from Nagy-Béskerek, with a R. Catholic and a Greek church, a mill, and a trade in corn and wood. Pop. 1547.

SZEXARAD, or SEKESZARAS, a market in Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Tolna, 81 m. S. W. Pesth, on the Barva, and not far from the Danube, from whose inundations it is guarded by large dykes. It is for the most part well built; contains a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, a county-building, and high-school; and has an extensive silk mill, and a considerable general trade. Pop. (1848), 10,500.

SZIGETH several places, Hungary, particularly:—1 (Sziget, Sigeth, or Sigeth) A to Thither Theiss, co. Maros, at the confluence of the Isz with the Theiss 321 m. S. N. E. Pesth. It contains a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, a synagogue, and county-building, and has a trade in salt, obtained from mines in the neighbourhood. Pop. 7000.—2 (or Szigetvár) [anc. Scoroburum] A to Thither Danube, co. Győr, in a marshy but fertile district, r. bank Alma, 20 m. W. Flitzkirchen. It is walled and defended by a castle, contains two churches one of which was formerly a mosque; a Franciscan monastery, townhouse, and magnificent chateau. Szigeth repeatedly distinguished itself by a valiant defence in the Turkish wars. Pop. 3620.—3 (Szigetvár) A vil., co. and 5 m. S. W. Baja. Pop. 555.—4 (Sziget) A to, co. and hard by Baja. It has a church and synagogue and raises vegetables and fruit for the supply of the market of Baja. Pop. 2700.

SZIHALOM, a tn. Hungary co. Borsod, on the Eger 18 m. S. E. Eger, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. (agricultural), 2174.

SZIKSZO, a market in Hungary, Hither Theiss, co. Abaujvár, in a plain, 10 m. N. E. Mikolcs, with a church and a synagogue. Pop. (agricultural), 8689.

SZILLAS several places, Hungary:—1 A vil. Thither Theiss, co. Torontal, 8 m. from Komló with a Greek church. Pop. 1296.—2, A vil. Hither Theiss, co. Torontal, on the Boldva, 20 m. from Komló with a R. Catholic church, a mill, and a trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 1906.

SZILBAR, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Bacs, 8 m. from Palanka, in a fertile plain with a considerable trade in grain and cattle. Pop. 1878.

SZILL, two places, Hungary:—1, A market to Thither Danube, co. and 28 m. from Oedenburg, with a R. Catholic church, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1785.—2, A market to, co. Győr, 10 m. from Kaposvár, with a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1511.

SZILVAS, or PFALLENWALD, a vil. Hungary, Hither Theiss, co. Borsod, about 22 m. from Eger, with a Protestant church, a flour and a paper mill, and a trade in wine and wood. Pop. 1101.

SZINA, or SZEKA, two places, Hungary:—1, A vil. Hither Theiss, co. Abaujvár, 8 m. from Komló, with a church, a synagogue, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1822.—2, A market to, co. Komló, 18 m. N. E. Nagy-Mihály, with a R. Catholic church, a castle, with fine gardens and breeding-stock, several mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1081.

SZINTY a vil. Hungary, Thither Theiss, co. Arad 5 m. from Sibin, with a Greek church, and a trade in corn, cattle, and timber. Pop. 1492.

SZINTER-VARALJA, a tn. Hungary, Thither Theiss, co. Szathmar, 31 m. S. W. Seged with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, a synagogue, castle, and extensive manufactures of earthenware. Pop. 3890.

SZIRMA BAKSÓ, a vil. Hungary, co. Borsod, in a plain, 5 m. from Mikolcs with a church, a castle with fine gardens, and a trade in cattle and excellent white wine. P. 1205.

SZIVACZ (O) a tn. Hungary Hither Danube, co. and 20 m. N. E. Bacs, in a plain, on the Tisza with a R. Catholic and a Greek church, a synagogue, and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 6665.

SZKALITE a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Trentschin, 8 m. from Lacs with a church, and some trade in wood. Pop. 2180.

SZLATINA several places, Hungary particularly:—1 A vil. Thither Theiss co. Maros on the Theiss, 2 m. from Belgeth with a R. Catholic church, extensive salt-mines, and a remarkable stream of natural gas, which issues from the ground, and has kept burning for many years. Pop. 1002.—2 A vil. Thither Theiss, co. Krasova, 3 m. from Szasza with a handsome church, and several distilleries. Pop. 1084.

SZOBUSZLO, or HATVOSKARVAT, a tn. Hungary Thither Theiss, co. Szabolcs, in a plain r. bank Keszely, 11 m. S. W. Debrecen, with two churches, and a trade in cattle. P. 16,000.

SZOBOTISZ, a market in Hungary Hither Danube, co. Nitra, 48 m. N. N. E. Pressburg, with an old ruined castle, two churches, a synagogue, and manufactures of cutlery and earthenware. Pop. 3180.

SZOLLÖS (Nagy) a market in Hungary Thither Theiss, co. Ugocsa, near r. bank Theiss, 41 m. W. N. W. Seged with a Protestant, Greek, and two R. Catholic churches a chateau Franciscan monastery, county buildings and some trade in corn cattle wood, and wine. Pop. 2662.

SZOLNOK, a market in Hungary Hither Theiss, co. and 29 m. S. by W. Havas in a marshy district, r. bank Theiss, at the junction of the Puth canal, and a little below the confluence of the Zagyva. It was once defended by a citadel, which is now in ruins, contains a Franciscan monastery now used as the church and a Turkish mosque, converted into a chapel and has a trade in fruit, wool, salt, and fish. A number of remarkable fossil-bones, among others those of the mammoth have been found here. Pop. (1846) 10,900.

SZOLNOK, or ZALNA a vil. Hungary Thither Danube co. and 27 m. S. W. Weissenburg with a church and a school. Pop. 1576.

SZOMBATHELY:—1, (Mogyor and Nemeth) two ad. jacent vils. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Vasvár, on the frontier of co. Komorn and Stuhlweiszenburg, with a church, a chateau, and a trade in corn and wood. Pop. 1671.—2, A tn. Hungary See GEORGENNESS.

SZOMOLYAN, or SZOMOLITZ, a market in Hungary co. Pressburg 9 m. from Moders, with a elegant castle, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1818.

SZONTA a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Bacs, near the Veroc, about 10 m. from Zombor, with a handsome church, and a trade in corn, fax, wine, cattle, and fish. P. 3109.

SZONY (O) a market to Hungary, Hither Danube, co. and hard by Komorn, r. bank Danube. It has two churches, a handsome chateau, and a trade in cattle. It is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient Bagratum. It has repeatedly been visited with violent shocks of earthquakes. Pop. 1702.

SZOPOR (Alao and Fresco) two nearly contiguous vils. Hungary, co. Havas, on the K-rassa, 50 m. from Ailah with a Greek church. Pop. 2067.

SZUREZ, or SORNA, a vil. Hungary co. Torontal, on the Theiss, 4 m. S. E. Segedin, in a fertile wine, tobacco, and cattle and swine raising district. Pop. 2200.

SZOVATH a vil. Hungary, Thither Theiss, co. Szabolcs, 11 m. S. W. Debrecen, with a Protestant church. Pop. 2497.

SZREDISTIL (Nagy), a vil. Hungary Thither Theiss, co. Tamasvár, 6 m. from Veroc with a church, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1768.

SZTANICHICH, a market in Hungary, co. Bacs, 50 m. S. W. Segedin. It has a R. Catholic and a Greek church a trade in corn and cattle, and no unusual fax. Pop. 4672.

SZETAPAR (O) or ALT-SZETAPAR, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Bacs, 60 m. S. W. Segedin with a Greek church, and a trade in corn, cattle, fax and wine. Pop. 2040.

SETARA a market tn. Hungary, Hither Thesia, co. and 26 m. N by E. Zemplin with a R. Catholic church, a hand some chateau, and two flour-mills. Pop. 1081.

SETAREKOV a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Solas, about 6 m. from Coma with a church. Pop. 1616.

SETHOPKO, or SETHOPROVI, a market tn. Hungary Hither Thesia, co. Zemplin, 25 m. N.E. Epurias; with a church, Franciscan cloister and old castle. Pop. 2680.

SEUCS (also and FEZAC), two nearly-contiguous vila. Hungary Hither Danube, co. and 8 m. from Treutschin with a church and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. (also-) 1867 (Felsa-), 2171.

SEUCSAN — 1 A market to. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Thores, near 1 bank Wang, here crossed by a wooden bridge, 4 m. N.E. St. Marton; with a Protestant and R. Catholic church, a synagogue, and two chateaux. Pop. 1435. — 2, A vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Neutra, 9 m. from Bajmecs with a church, and a trade in wine, beer, and oil. Pop. 1011.

SEUDOS, a vil. Hungary, Thither Thesia, co. Mar-mara, 10 m. from Seged, with a Greek church. P. 1905.

SEUTSA (also and FEZAC) two nearly-contiguous vila. Hungary co. and 6 m. from Treutschin, in a well-wooded district, near the frontier of Moravia. They have a R. Catholic church and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 3753.

SEYDLOWIEC, a tn. Russian Poland, 30 m. S.W. Radom, with a trade in articles of steel and iron timber, mill and grind stones, lime, corn, and hides. Pop. 8000.

SEYLOW, a tn. Russian Poland, gov. Radom, S.E. Kielce. Pop. 1510.

T.

TA KIANG, or HONG-CHU-KIANG, a river China, rises in the E. of prov. Yunnan, traverses prov. Quinghai W. to E. enters Quinghai, and a little above Canton, unites with the Pe-king in forming the Candor river. Total course, about 700 m.

TA KIEN-KOU a fortified in China prov. Sechoen, on the Tsung-po-ho 150 m. W.S.W. Tching-tou.

TAAL, a lake, Luzon. See BATANGAS.

TAAO or TAB is to Arabia. See TAEZ.

TAAISINGE, or THOMERHON (Latin Tandolonia, or Insula Tasanopia), an isl. Denmark, S.E. of Funen, from which it is separated by the Strait of Svendborg 8 m. long N. to S.; 4 m. broad, area 70 sq. ge. in. It is well wooded, very fertile, and abounds in game. Its N. end rises about 240 ft. but the rest of the island and especially the S.W., is a plain very little raised above the level of the sea. Pop. 4300.

TAB (see Arum), a river Persia, rises in the Bakhtiari Mountains, flows first S.E. then W.N.W., separating in the lower part of its course Persia from Khuzistan, and after a course of 160 m. falls into the N. part of the Persian Gulf. It is navigable by barges of 20 tons.

TABAGO (Bar Misouri) a vil and par. Spain, Galicia, prov. and 36 m. from Pontevedra, 1 bank Minho with a church a school, an oil and several flour mills. Pop. 1152.

TABARCA a small isl. Mediterranean Sea, off E. coast, Algeria; lat. 36° 58' N. lon. 8° 45' 30" E. (r.)

TABARCA NUOVA TABARCA, or ISLA FLARA, a small isl. Mediterranean Sea, coast of Spain, prov. and 5 m. S. All caste lat. 38° 9' N. lon. 0° 50' W. about 1½ m. in length and 5 furlongs in breadth. Pop. 500.

TABARIA a tn. and lake, Palestine. See TIBERIAS.

TABASCO, or GUAYALDA, a river, S. America, rises in Guatemala flows N.W. into Mexico, crosses dep. Chiapas, turns N.E. and crosses dep. Tabasco, and after a course of about 280 m., falls into the Gulf of Mexico at Porto-Victoria or Tabasco. Its chief affluent is the Comitan.

TABASCO, a dep. Mexico bounded N. by the Gulf of Mexico, E. dep. Yucatan, S. Chiapas, S.W. Oajaca, and N.W. Vera-Cruz. It is one of the smallest dep. of the Confederation, lat. 17° to 18° 40' N. lon. 91° 50' to 94° 40' W. length, W. to E., measured on the parallel of 18° N., about 200 m. mean breadth, about 60 m., area, 15,609 sq. m. In proportion to its extent it has a long stretch of coast-line, containing among other remarkable indentations that of the large lagoon of Tuxtepec on the N.E. with its beautiful islands of Lagunas, Carmen, and Puerto-Real. The surface consists almost entirely of a great flat, sloping gradually to the sea, but in many parts so low that it is subject to inundations, which often isolate the villages, and leave no means of communication except by canoe. The streams, though numerous are short and shallow and being too sluggish to form an open passage to the sea, are generally obstructed at their mouths by bars and flats. The more important are the Usumacinta and Tabasco, which, entering from opposite sides of Chiapas, gradually converge and have a common outlet, the Chinipee, Das Booca, Tupilco, Santa Anna, remarkable for the size of its estuary the Tonala, Uxapapan and the Guechapa or Eze, forming part of the boundary between Tabasco and Vera-Cruz. The climate is exceedingly hot, particularly along the coast, and owing to the flatness and swampiness of the surface, very unhealthy. A large portion of the state is still covered with primeval forests of oak, cedar mahogany and ironwood, with occasional open spaces in which indigo and vanilla are found growing spontaneously. The principal cultivated crops are cacao, coffee pepper, sugar, palmetto, and some tobacco. The streams abound with fish, and the bees of the forests yield large supplies of honey and wax. The inhabitants are chiefly Indians of the Mije, Zoque and Cendele tribes. Pop. (1859), 53,550.

TABASCO sometimes called VILLA-DE-SAN-JUAN-BAU-TIETA, and VILLA HERMOSEA DE TABASCO, a tn. Mexico, cap above dep. 1 bank Tabasco, on the frontiers of Chiapas. It is one of the oldest towns of the Confederation, and figures in the early proceedings of Cortes, who gained one of his earliest and greatest victories here and though not large, is well built. Being accessible from the sea by vessels of light draught, it has some direct foreign trade, but has a much more important inland trade carried on with Guatemala and the adjoining states. Pop. 4000.

TABERNAS, a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 16 m. N.E. Almeria, on the E. side of an eminence crowded by a ruined castle. It has a parish church a courthouse, a primary school, and some trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 4700.

TABERNES-DE-VALENCIA, a tn and com. Spain, prov. and about 22 m. from Valencia, S. slope of Mount Croco. It has a parish church, a courthouse and prison, three schools, the remains of an ancient castle, manufactures of thread and woollen cloth, and several rice and flour mills. Pop. 5104.

TABIENTINGIE, a considerable vil. isl. Sumatra, in the Mesanghale table-land, 67 m. E. by N. Benecool with a large old temple, and some mosques.

TABLAS, one of the Philippine isls., S.E. Mindoro and N.W. Pansay, of an oval shape, 50 m. long, by 9 m. broad with three small villages, a fort garrisoned by a small garrison, and a valuable fishery.

TABLAT, or ST. FIDES a vil and par. Switzerland, can. and within 1 m. of St. Gall. It is well built and contains a handsome parish church and two schools. Pop. 4160.

TABLE BAY an inlet of the Atlantic, R. Africa, Cape Colony, on which lies Cape Town lat. (N.W. point) 33° 58' 15" E., lon. 18° 34' 50" E. (m.) It is about 6 m. wide at its entrance, and capable of sheltering the largest fleet. It enters from the N., and is well protected towards the S.E. and E., whence comes the prevailing wind. — TABLE MOUNT, from which the bay is named, lies to the S. Its highest part being right over Cape Town. It is about 3500 ft. high, level on the top, and falls down nearly perpendicularly at the E. and till it joins the Devil's Mount, a rugged peaked mountain, nearly as high as the former, and separated from it by a small gap. The W. end of Table Mount is also nearly perpendicular a considerable distance downward, and then has an abrupt declivity, till it joins the base of another mount called the Sugar Loaf or Lion's Head, which is about 2100 ft. high. The mountain is of primitive formation, and owes its name to its peculiar shape and flattened summit.

TABOIA (CAFE), Van Diemen's Land, N coast, 40 m. W by N Port Sarah; lat. 40° 58' S. lon. 145° 45' E. It has a flat aspect with steep cliffs, which may be seen 36 m. off.

TABOIA, a tn. and par Portugal, prov Beira-Baixa, 1 bank Mondego, about 19 m. S S E. Viseu. Pop. 1920.

TABOIAÇO, a tn and par Portugal, prov Beira-Alta, 15 m. E Lamego. Pop. 840.

TABOGA, an isl. Central America in the bay and immediately opposite to the town of Panama, from which it is about 9 m. S, length, N W to S E, about 2 m. The village upon it has a handsome church. The excellent mahogany afforded by the harbour of Taboga has given it great importance since the establishment of ocean-steamers to ply between Panama and San Francisco. They have their station here, and several commercial houses have erected large establishments. There is now a regular steam-ferry between Panama and Taboga.

TABOGUILLA, an isl. Bay of Panama, 1½ m. N E. of Taboga, from which it is separated by a channel, from 16 to 20 fathoms deep. It is about 1 m. long, very fertile, and along with Taboga, is considered the garden of Panama, which it supplies plentifully with fruit and vegetables.

TABO, an isl. Chul of N E coast, Isl. Chilo, about lat. 42° S, lon. 78° 10' W. It consists of a number of detached hummocks, connected by low shingly banks, partly overflowed at high water. Its highest summit does not exceed 160 ft.

TABOR, a tn. Bohemia, cap. circle, on an eminence above the Luschnitz, 46 m. S S E. Prague. It is walled, has a handsome Gothic church, a deanery church, and a castle, built by the celebrated Hussite chief Ziska, on the site of a castle which bore the name of Hrubata. The Hussites gave to both the Scripture name of Tabor, and supplied them with water from a brook which they called Jordan. Tabor thus became a stronghold of the Hussites, and makes a conspicuous figure in their history. Pop. 4398.

TABOR, an isolated mountain, Asiatic Turkey, Syria, peak and 62 m. S S E. Acra, and 6 m. E Samari, to the W of the Sea of Tiberias. It rises about 1800 ft. above sea-level, and when viewed from the N W has the appearance of a truncated cone, given it by the summit, which is flat, forming a plateau about 700 yards long by about 300 broad. It is composed of limestones. It is repeatedly mentioned in the Old Testament, and though not named in the New Testament, has been generally supposed to have been the scene of the Transfiguration. This tradition, however, is not earlier than the 4th century, and appears to have originated in the appearance of the mountain, which is described in the record of that wonderful event, as a "high mountain apart." Other mountains of Galilee might justly be described in similar terms, and some collateral circumstances strongly militate against the tradition.

TABREEZ, TANNIS, or TABRIZ, a city, Persia, cap. prov Azerbajan, 1 bank Agh, 26 m. above its entrance into Lake Urmia. lat. 38° 10' N, lon. 46° 57' E. It lies at the inner extremity of an amphitheatre with hills on three sides, and an extensive plain on the fourth. It is surrounded by a wall of sun-dried brick, with bastions, and entered by seven or eight gates. A large portion of the population resides outside the walls, and the plain around is covered with gardens, producing the finest fruits in the greatest abundance, particularly grapes. The citadel is the most conspicuous building in the city. It was originally a mosque, and is 600 years old. It consists of a lofty edifice of brick, and though much damaged by earthquakes, is still a noble structure. Within the walls of the citadel there are a cannon-foundry and barracks. The amount of European goods imported into Tabreez, by way of Constantinople, in 1846-7, was £708 204, consisting mostly of cotton and woollen manufactures, principally British; also articles, sugar, rum, tea, paper, iron, hardware, &c. The exports from the city to Turkey, for the same year, amounted to £269,067 and consisted of tobacco, safflower, gull-mint, woolens, chiefly shawls, wax, printed and dyed cottons, and plain silks, raw silk, beans, &c. Though still an important city, Tabreez has greatly degenerated from what it was in ancient times; the glowing descriptions of old travellers, who speak of its splendid castle, and its hundreds of extraordinary and mosques, being no longer applicable while its immense population of 550,000, according to ancient writers, has dwindled down to 80,000, the highest credible estimate of the present population.

THE GATES OF TABREEZ.—After Pons.

TABRIA, a tn, W Africa, N Y B, 80 m. N by K. Kungu. It consists of two towns one on each bank of the May Yarrow connected together by a wooden bridge. Pop. about 15,000. —(Lander's Records).

TACAMES, a seaport Ecuador. See ATACAMA. TACARIGUA, a large and beautiful lake, Venezuela, about 6 m. S W. Valencia. It is upwards of 80 m. long and 8 m. to 4 m. broad, 1470 ft. above sea-level and full of small islands, which, as the loss of water by evaporation exceeds the influx, are increasing in size. The banks in some parts are thickly clothed with plantains, mimosa and trip-laris, "surpassing," says Humboldt, in picturesque beauty the vineyards of the Pays-de-Yaud.

TACARONTE, a vil and com. Camaroe, Isl Tenerife, 3 m. from Laguna, in a beautiful and fertile plain. It has a handsome church, a courthouse, prison, and two primary schools, some manufactures of domestic linen, and a considerable trade in fruit and fish. Pop. 3011.

TACAZZE, or TONKAZ. See AYBARA.

TACHAU, a tn. Bohemia, circle and 61 m. W by N Pilsen, with a castle, situated on an eminence above the market-place a deanery church, townhouse, monastery infirmary, and hospital and an antedated spring. Pop. 2982.

TACHBROOK-BUMER's par Eng Warwick, 8446 ac. Pop. 658.

TACKLEY, par Eng, Oxford, 3850 ac. Pop. 658. TACLAGUE, a tn. China, on the R bank Gogra lat. 30° 34' N lon. 111° 5' E. 14,500 ft. above sea-level. It is a permanent mart for wax and borax. To the fairs held in October and November the principal articles brought from Tartary are wool, woollen cloths, gold, and some tea.

TACLOBAN, a tn. Philippines, cap. prov, and on the N E coast, Isl Leyte, at the S E. entrance of the Straits of San Juanico. It has a governor's house but as on the whole a poor wretched place, with some cotton manufactures, a fishery, and a trade in coconuts and tobacco. Pop. 2505.

TACONA, a tn. Peru, dep. Arequipa, 1 bank of the small river of the same name, about 20 m. from the sea, and 1700 ft. above its level. lat. 18° 0' S. lon. 72° 10' W. It is a commercial place, being the depot of European merchandises for the S. mountain-districts and the greater part of Bolivia. Arica, 25 m. S. W., is the port of Tuma. Pop. 8000.

TACO an establishment of the Hudson's Bay Company, at the mouth of a river of same name in Port Beaulieu, on the coast of Russian America, opposite to Adakum Island, lat. 57° 54' N lon. 138° 37' W. It consists of a fort with good houses, lofty pickets, and strong bastions, and has a little harbor, almost land locked by lofty mountains. The clawed sometimes weighing 150 lbs., is very numerous in the vicinity and furnishes the chief subsistence of the natives of the establishment, consisting of a head-manager with an assistant, and 25 men. It is visited by seven tribes of Indians, three living on islands, and four on the mainland, and numbering about 4000 souls. The river is navigated by canoes for 100 m., and presents a serpentine course between lofty mountains rising abruptly from the water's edge.

TACAOARY a river, Brazil. See TAGAOARY.

TACILNESTONE, par Eng. Norfolk, 1580 ac. P. 601.

TACORA —1 (see Chaponea). A volcano, Bolivian Andes, W Cordillera, 18 m. N.E. Tacna, 19 740 ft. high.—3 An Indian vil. at the foot of the volcano, 12,990 ft. above sea-level.—4 A pass named from the volcano.

TACOUTOME Tacna, a river, British N. America. See FRANCE.

TACUBA, or TACUBAYA [Junc. Tulucan] a tn. Mexican Confederation, dep. and 9 m. W W Mexico with a number of beautiful residences, and an archbishop's palace. It was to this place Cortes retired when driven out of the capital in 1520. An image in the church, called the Virgin of Remedios, has often been carried to the capital to give relief in seasons of difficulty or distress. Pop. about 2500.

TACUMSHIN par Rel. Westford 8154 ac. P. 873.

TACUNGA (LA), a tn. Ecuador often visited by earthquakes, on an extensive plain, watered by the San Felipe, at the foot of the Andes 50 m. S Quito. It is a large well-built place, with straight and spacious streets has several churches and convents, manufactures of woollen stuffs, and a considerable trade in mules. Pop. about 12 000.

TACUTU, a river S America, rises in the Sierra Yanina, in the N.E. of Brazilian Guiana flows first N, then S.W. and after a course of about 150 m. joins I bank Parana at Fort St. Joseph. Its chief affluents are the Mabu, Manacaras, and Xuruma, all of which it receives on the right.

TADLASTER, a market in par England, York (W Riding). The town, in a beautiful valley on the Wharfe, here crosses by a handsome bridge on the Harrogate and Ribblesdale railway, 9 m. S. York has 11 streets, well built, and well kept streets a beautiful old Gothic church with a tower several dissenting chapels, a grammar and several other schools and vestiges of an old castle demolished by Oliver Cromwell. Tadcaster occupies the site of a Roman station called Calcaria, and is mentioned by Bede under the name of Calca-caster Area of par 6010 ac. Pop. 2973.

TADJURAH a seaport, Africa. See TADJOURA.

TADLEY par Eng. Hunts 1047 ac. Pop. 876.

TADLOW par Eng. Cambridge 1717 ac. Pop. 169.

TADMARTON par Eng. Oxford, 2500 ac. Pop. 450.

TADNOR, a inland city Syria. See PALESTINA.

TAE-CROW-ROK, a city China, prov. Chekiang 1 bank river of same name, about 55 m. from its junction with the sea. There are several islands adjacent to the entrance to the river which is in lat. 28° 42' N. lon. 121° 28' E.

TAE-MAN, an isl. China, Chusan Archipelago. The centre is an extensive plain, with many villages. Near the E. extreme, also, the hills separate, leaving a level plain across the island. It is densely peopled.

TAEK, TAEK, or TAEK, a tn. Arabia, Yemen, once the capital of the country on N. side of Mount Saba 55 m. E.N.E. Mecca. Saba is a group of mountains attaining a height of perhaps 7000 ft., covered with plantations of coffee and khadi and with villages clustering at every point difficult of access. So populous and productive a district might be naturally supposed to insure the prosperity of the adjacent town, but wars and dissensions have ruined Taek. On a rock 400 ft. high, projecting from Saba, stands the citadel called Kahrah, whose below lies the town, encompassed by a wall of brick, faced with stone, and so broad that six or eight horsemen can ride abreast on it. There walls once inclosed a population of 10,000. In the present disorder and depopulation of the place, it is difficult to estimate the number of its inhabitants.

Of its five great mosques, two remain, and are said to be still very handsome. The place is abundantly supplied with water by an aqueduct from Saba.

TAF a river S. Wales, rises in Brecknockshire, at the foot of Brecon Pass flows S.W., then S.E. to its mouth in Carmarthen Bay at Loughor, where it forms a considerable estuary, total course, about 52 m.

TAFALLA, a tn. Spain prov. Navarra, 21 m. S. Pamplona; with a townhouse, an hospital, a mint, palace, where the kings of Navarra once resided, and which, with the city walls, are the only remains of Tafalla's ancient splendor, two churches, two convents, one of them used as schools, a nursery, several hospitals, a prison, and two foundries, five steamers, four oil and three flour mills, and several brandy-distilleries. In 1815 the French, after a vigorous defence, surrendered this place to Mina. Pop. 4830.

TAFELNEH —1 A fortified maritime tn. Morocco, 45 m. S.W. Mogador Pop. 3000 —2, A lofty headland, about 5 m. N. the town.

TAFPOERI, an isl. Indian Archipelago, between Celebes and Gilolo lat. 1° N.; lon. 128° 10' E. On its N. coast is a reef, and also a bay with 20 to 30 fathoms water, and good holding ground.

TAFILLET, a principality, Morocco, E. of the Atlas range. Its capital of same name, near lat. 31° 45' N. lon. 4° 5' W. is formed of several villages or oases. The inhabitants, chiefly composed of Berbers, are noted for their skill in the preparation of leather. They also manufacture silk stuffs, carpets, and woollen coverings and carry on a considerable trade with the tribes of Soudan, especially with the town of Timbuctoo. Excellent figs are sent in considerable quantities to Europe. Pop. 10 000.

TAFIT a tn. Spanish prov. Zamora, in a beautiful plain watered by the Delvado, 21 m. S.W. Zamora; famous for its manufactures of carpets, which are considered the finest in Persia. Near it is a lead-mine. Pop. about 6000.

TAFYLE, a tn. Arabia, near the S. frontiers of Syria, 75 m. S.S.E. Jerusalem in a well watered and wooded district. It furnishes provisions to the pilgrims from Syria.

TAGAI, a tn. Russia, gov. and 88 m. W Kambirsk, on the Taganka. It is built chiefly of wood, but has a church of stone, several taverns, four mills and a trade in corn. P. 1248.

TAGAL, or BOGOWOR a small group of uninhabited isles, N. Pacific Caroline Archipelago near lat. 11° 41' N. lon. 180° 50' E. It consists of a number of islets, thickly covered with trees, and connected by coral-reefs, with apparently deep water in the centre.

TAGAL, or TAGAL, a prov. I. Java, bounded, N. by the Java Sea, E. prov. Pekalongan, S. Banjarmasin, and W Cheribon 45 m. E. to W. by 25 m. N. to S. To the S it is mountainous culminating in the volcano of Slamet, rising 11 417 ft. above sea-level. From these hills it lowers down N. towards the sea, spreading out into a wide plain, intersected by 45 streams of various magnitudes, all flowing N. to the Java Sea. In general the hills slopes are covered with woods and shrubs, and with a black fertile soil excellently adapted for coffee. Indigo, sugar cane, and snails are likewise cultivated, and many cattle and a few horses are reared. Tigers are numerous, and sea and river fish abundant. Pop. 240 000.

—Tagal, the CAPITAL, is a small town and seaport, 166 m. E. by S. Batavia lat. 6° 56' S. lon. 109° 12' E. with a neat townhouse, a tasteful governor's house a government school, a roomy market-place, and several dock-building yards. The harbour is small and shallow. Inhabitants engaged as smiths, carpenters, masons, fishermen, and in re-dyeing which is better understood here than elsewhere in Java. Pop. 7000.

TAGANROG a tn. Russia, gov. Ekaterinodar on a lofty and rocky tongue of land which projects into the Sea of Azov, opposite the mouth of the Don, 28 m. W W N Azov; lat. (church of St. Michael) 47° 19' 19" N. lon. 38° 57' E. (n.) It is a place of considerable strength, being both surrounded by walls, and defended by a citadel and other works. Though built chiefly of wood it has an imposing appearance. It is the seat of an admiralty a court of commerce, and several other courts and public offices contains 10 churches, of which three are of stone; a Greek monastery a gymnasium, normal school, exchange, barracks, and quarantine; and has nearly 2000 of out-houses and cowsheds, a full-fledged brick-works, tailoring, weaving establishments, numerous distilleries and building yards, at which a considerable number of vessels are constructed. The harbour though the deepest in the Sea of Azov, is shallow, not admitting vessels which draw more than 10 ft.; but its situation secures to it a considerable trade, which has, however, in late years much fallen off. The principal exports are iron, wine, honey, salt, hides, furs, earthenware, and grain, particularly wheat; the imports, wine, fruit, linseed, woolen, cotton, and silk tissues; olive-oil, perfumes, drugs, &c. Tagarog was a thorough rascaldom of the late Emperor Alexander, who built a small palace here, and died in it in 1865. Pop. (1848) 22,473.

TAGEWEILEN, a vil. and par Switzerland, cant. Thurgau, 1½ m. W.S.W. Constance, with a church P 1020. TAGGIA, a tu France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 4 m. N.N.E. St. Remo, near a stream of same name. It is an ancient place, supposed by some to be the Roman Tabus. The houses are generally mean in appearance, but there are several imposing palaces or mansions, no fewer than nine churches, several monasteries and nunneries, a seminary, college, and hospital. Taggia and the vicinity suffered much by an earthquake in 1861. Pop. 3880.

TAGHADOK, par Irel. Kildare, 4136 ac. Pop. 377. TAGHBOY, par Irel. Galway and Roscommon 18,096 ac. Pop. 2792.

TAGHEEN par Irel. Mayo 6887 ac. Pop. 2051. TAGHKANIC or TADOWN—1 A mountain range, L. States, on the frontiers of New York, Massachusetts, and Connecticut. It forms a continuation of the Green Mountains, is about 50 m. long, separates the waters of the Hudson from those which enter Long Island Sound, and in its highest summits attains the height of about 8000 ft.—2 A vil. New York 40 m. S. Albany, with a woolen factory, and several saw and flour mills. Pop. 1540.

TAGHMACONNELL, par Irel. Roscommon 18,327 ac. Pop. 5043.

TAGHMON—1 A nn. art. and par Ireland, co. and 7 m. W. Wexford. The N.E. part of the town is composed of stone and slated houses, generally well built. The remainder consists of mud cabins, thatched. It has a neat church, 2 Catholic chapel, and two schools. Pop. (1841) 1082. Area of par, 10,125 ac. Pop. 3119.—2, A par Irel. Westmeath, 3438 ac. Pop. 798.

TAGHSEENOD, par Irel. Longford, 5713 ac. P 1517. TAGHSHINNY, par Irel. Longford 4861 ac. P 1576.

TAGIL, a river, Russia, rises on the E. slope of the Ural Mountains 86 m. N.W. Ekaterinburg flows first N. through a valley where it expands into several lakes then E.N.E. and after a very rapid course of nearly 200 m. joins the bank Tura.

TAGILAK, a vil. Russia, gov. and E. Perm, on a river of its name, with extensive mines and smelting-furnaces both of iron and copper. Platinum and gold are likewise obtained in the vicinity. The laquering of iron-plates with a composition capable of resisting the action of boiling water, forms an important branch of business here.—(Erman's Siberia.)

TAGLIAMENITO, a river Italy Venetia, rises in Mount Mauro on the frontiers of provi Udine and Belluno 4000 ft. above the sea, pursues a very rapid and precipitous course almost due E. past the town of Tolmezzo then turns S., dividing into several arms, and at the harbour of its own name falls into the Adriatic total course, about 180 m. In dry seasons the water becomes so shallow that waggons pass through in many parts; but at other times it becomes suddenly flooded, and spreads itself over a width of from 1500 to 2000 yards. It is navigable for about 10 m.

TAGLIOCOZZO a tu. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Ulter II 10 m. W.N.W. Avezzano. It has four parishes and several other churches, a ducal palace, and two hospitals. It was founded by the Goths; became the capital of a duchy and in its vicinity in 1293, Charles of Anjou defeated Conrad, son of the Emperor Conrad IV. Pop. 8890.

TAGLTUNO a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 12 m. S.E. Bergamo, r. bank Olto. It is well built and has a trade in corn, silk, and wine. Pop. 1918.

TAGODASI, a tu. Morocco, on the summit of a mountain, 98 m. N.E. Marrakech only. Pop. 7000.

TAGOLANDA, a small Isl. Indian Archipelago, off N.E. end, Isl. Celebes, lat. 2° 23' N. lon. 126° 56' E. about 20 m. in circumference. It is populous.

TAGUE, the principal river in Spain, and which divides the peninsula into two nearly equal parts. It takes its rise in the mountains which separate New Castile from Aragon, between Albarmin and Ornelas-de-Aragon (prov. Teruel) for about 24 m. it flows N.W., then nearly W. for 20 m., during which it receives the waters of the Molina or Gallo, then S.W. for about 70 m., augmented by the waters of the Guadalea and other streams. It next bends W. between Balmonte and Calatayud, and while it preserves generally that direction until it passes Alcantara, in Portugal, it receives successively the waters of the Jarama, united with those of the Henares and Tagus, the Guadarrama, the Albarde, the Tietar, the Alagor, whose volume is nearly equal to that of the Jarama, and numerous other streams both in Spain and Portugal. A few miles W. of Abrantes it turns S.W., and falls into the Atlantic at Lisbon after having washed in its course which extends about 450 m. exclusive of windings, Aranjuez, Toledo, which is embosomed in the form of a horse-shoe; Talavera, Almoraz, Alcantara, and Santarem. Its banks are generally rugged precipitous and destitute of vegetation, and the plains through which it flows are and uncultivated, it being difficult to make its waters available for the fertilisation of the soil. Notwithstanding its volume, the Tagus is not navigable to any considerable distance from the sea. Ancient writers give glowing accounts of the Tagus, which contrast strangely with its present aspect; they expatiate on its golden sands its exquisite fish, its wooded and fertile banks, its ships freighted with merchandise, and the flourishing and populous cities which it washed. Grains of gold are indeed still found, but scarcely sufficient to afford a miserable subsistence to the few poor persons engaged in collecting and washing the sands, and there is good trout-fishing, especially near its source.

TAHAL, a tu. Spain Andalusia, prov. and N.E. Almaria, indifferently built with a church, courthouses, school hospital, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1607.

TAHATE a tu. Arabia, Yemen is a beautiful valley, 9 m. from Zaid. It was once a place of importance, and is still well built of stone, and contains several mosques. Indigo is cultivated in the vicinity.

TAHITI or TAHITI, the principal of the Society Islands lat. 17° 29' 19" S. lon. 149° 29' W. (N.) This beautiful island is about 12 m. long N.W. to S.E., and is an elongated range of highland which being interrupted in one part, forms an isthmus about 3 m. broad, which connects the two peninsulas, the larger Tahiti proper and the smaller named Tavaroo. From a low margin of sea-coast, the land rises to a very considerable height on both extremities of the island while some highly fertile plains or valleys intersect the ranges in different parts. The highest summit in the island is 8500 ft. above sea-level, another attains 6979 ft. From these two peaks, ridges diverge to all parts of the coast, throwing off spurs as they descend. The fertile portion of Tahiti lies in the valleys, which are of small extent, and in the plain which stretches from the sea-shore to the spurs of the mountains. These produce tropical plants in great abundance and luxuriance. The climate is warm, but not overpowering. The cottages of the natives, who seem fully to appreciate the beautiful scenes around them, are found in pleasant and lovely spots, and are usually surrounded by neatly-wooded Inocencio. In these are to be seen growing the bread-fruit, yucca, and orange and sometimes extensive groves of tall tobacco trees.

A TAHITIAN FANCY.—after H. A. Olin.

The cottages are of an oval form, usually about 30 ft. or 40 ft. long and 20 ft. broad; the walls formed of bamboo; the floor of natural earth. There are no partitions, but tape or matting is employed as an occasional screen. The natives are a good-humoured, gay, happy, and cheerful people, and are further described as honest, well-behaved, and obliging. They have been converted to Christianity by the labours of missionaries; and there are now few of them who cannot both read and write. The island forms part of a native sovereignty, is divided into seven districts, and is the seat of a supreme court. Several vessels of about 150 tons have been built here; these have been employed in the trade to New S. Wales, whether they carry sugar, coconut oil, and arrow-root, the principal productions of the island, and whence they bring back in return hardware, cloths, calicoes, &c. Most of the vessels that visit Tahiti are whalers, averaging under 100 annually. Tahiti was discovered in 1806, by the Spanish Quirós, and was afterwards visited by Wallis, Bougainville, and Cook. Estimated pop. 5000.

TAHOORA TAHERA, or KADLA, the most W. of the Sandwich Islands of which anything is known. Lat. 21° 59' N. lon. 160° 25' E. It is small, elevated and uninhabited, but frequented by flocks of birds.

TAHOORUWA, TAHOORA, or KADOLAWA, one of the Sandwich Islands, off the W. point of Maui; lat. 20° 25' N. lon. 156° 50' E. Length 14 m., breadth, 5 m. It is low, almost destitute of verdure and looks as if it had been once a part of Maui. It is used as a kind of penal settlement.

TAHRAH a tn. and fortress, Hindustan, prov. Cutch 20 m. S.E. Luckpet-Dawder lat. 25° 30' N. lon. 68° 20' E. The fort is an irregular building, defended by round-towers, flanked by a large tank on each side the town on the S., and the suburbs on the W.

TAHRAH a tn. Central Egypt, prov. and 36 m. S.E. Sout. 1 bank Nile.

TAHRAH, Marquise isle. See CHARTIER (SAVAT)

TAHUNA a populous city China, prov. Shansee, cap. dep. near the Great Wall, 180 m. W. Pekin. It is situated in a mountainous country exposed to the incursions of the Tartars, but is well fortified and has a numerous garrison. It has a considerable trade in prepared skins. Near it various sorts of medicinal plants grow, and marble, porphyry, lapis-lazuli and jasper are obtained.

TAIWAN, or TAIWAN a tn. China, cap. tel. Formosa, on the S.W. side lat. 25° 5' N. lon. 120° 22' E. It is of great extent, and was formerly the seat of a considerable trade, but its harbour, though protected from all winds, is now so much silted up, that it only admits small vessels.

TAIYUEN a large and populous city China, cap. prov. Shansee, 1 bank Fuen-ho, 270 m. S.W. Pekin, with considerable manufactures of felt-carpets.

TATABANA, a vil and par. Brazil prov. and 50 m. W. Parahiba, r. bank Parahiba with a church and school. Excellent cotton is raised in the environs. Pop. 1400.

TAIUMU—, a cape, Hebrides, in the N. of gov. Yon-seak, forming the W. side of bay of same name, the E. side being formed by Cape Barrow. It stretches the most N. extremity of Ad. Is.—, a line to the S.E. of the Bay of Taium, into which it discharges itself by a stream of same name.

TAIN (see Tigne), a tn. France, dep. Drôme, 10 m. N. W. Valence, 1 bank Rhone, over which there is a wire suspension-bridge, connecting it with the town of Tournon. It is agreeably situated at the foot of a steep hill called the Hermitage; is tolerably well built, has a church, a cotton-mill, a granite-quarry, and a trade in wine, particularly that named Hermitage. Pop. 2180.

TAI⁴, a royal rook, export, and par. Scotland, co. Ross, S. shore, Dornoch Firth, 96 m. N. W. Aberdeen. It has two principal streets, somewhat irregular, but very well kept, a parish church, a Free and a U. Free-school church, courts, schools, and other free schools; an industrial school for girls, a mechanics' institute, and some retail trade. Pop. (in 1836) Area of par., 19 m. by 5 m. Pop. 3575.—(Local Correspondent).

TAINTIGNES, a vil and cotn. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 5 m. E. by W. Tournay with four breweries, a salt-refinery brick-kiln, and three flour-mills. Pop. 2151.

TAIRO, TAIRA, or KIRO'S ISLAND, S. Pacific, Low Archipelago; lat. 15° 4' 25' S. lon. 148° 56' 45' W. It is nearly of a circular form, surrounded by a narrow reef, above which no part of the surface rises more than 5 ft.; has a deep and apparently productive soil, much husbandry is practised, and supplied with the pearl-oyster. Though not regularly inhabited, it appears to be occasionally visited by pearl-fishers.

TAJOORA, TAJURAH, or TAJURAH, a seaport in, E. Africa, Adal, cap. dist. and on an extensive bay of same name, lat. 10° 46' 25' N. lon. 43° 0' 30' E. It consists of about 300 houses, framed with wood and covered with matting; and has two stone-mosques, an excellent wall, with a plentiful supply of good water; a considerable trade in slaves and salt, and a spacious harbour with a roadstead not well sheltered, but deep enough for the largest vessels. Tajoora is governed by a sultan, who is chief of the Adal tribes, and subject to the Pasha of Egypt. Pop. about 1500.

TAJUNA a river Spain, rises in prov. Guadalajara, and derives its waters from the sierras of Marazonen, Clares, and Cienelos; flows about 94 m., exclusive of windings, and discharges into the Jarama, about 7 m. N. by E. Aranjuez.

TAJURAH a seaport, Adal. See TAJOORA

TAK or TUX, a tn. Afghanistan, 26 m. W. of the Indus lat. 33° 14' N. lon. 70° 50' E. It is surrounded by a high, strong mud-wall, surmounted by towers; within is a citadel of burned brick, having a lofty tower at each of the four corners, equipped with cannon. It has some transit trade.

TAKA, a tn. Central Asia, Khanate and 65 m. N. Khiva, consisting of 500 houses.

TAKELLY par. Eng. Essex, 8154 ac. Pop. 691.

TAKHTI-SOLEMAN (Throne of Solomon), and Shah, a remarkable hill and collection of ruins in Persia, prov. Azerbijan 125 m. S.E. Tabriz; lat. 38° 30' N. lon. 47° 10' E. The hill appears at first as if isolated, but this is not strictly the case. On the S.W. and N. faces, it presents a steep acclivity to the valley, but at the N.E. and S.E. corners, the ground rises gradually and on the S.W. side it is but slightly elevated above the country. The lower of the hill is crossed by a wall about 3 m. in circuit, and having 37 bastions; the whole, where entire, of excellent masonry. Within the walls are the ruins of an ancient city, of a temple, and some other buildings, of the history of which nothing is certainly known.

TAKINOB, a lake, European Turkey, Macedonia, near the head of the Gulf of Constantine, with which it communicates by a short channel. It is 18 m. long, 3 m. broad and receives the river Struma, and several smaller streams.

TAL, a river in the N. of Afghanistan rises in the Laspiner Mountains; lat. 36° 14' N. lon. 73° 5' E.; flows S.W., and after a course of 120 m., joins the Tadjik or Lundy.

TALABAN, a vil Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 22 m. N.E. Cáceres, on a rising ground surrounded by hills. It has a tow-house, prison, granary, primary school for both sexes, a church and in the vicinity two hermitages. P. 1832

TALACHDOD, par. Wales, Brecon; 1816 ac. P. 187

TALAK a vil India-beyond-the-Ganges, prov. and 28 m. S. by E. Arrah, lat. 26° 20' N. lon. 95° 35' E. It consists of a number of huts, occupied chiefly by Burmese traders, who obtain from the people on the E. side of the Aracan Hills, cotton, thread, bone-wax, elephant-teeth, and Burmese silk, in exchange for beads, nut-telam, British goods, &c.

TALAMONA, a vil and cotn. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Sondrio 2 m. E. Morbegno, 1 bank Adia. Pop. 2168.

TALANDA, TALANTI, or ATALANTI—, (anc. Argos), a channel, Greece, separating the N.W. part of Negropont from the N.E. of Livadia, and communicating, by comparatively narrow passages, with the channel of Negropont on the S.E., and that of Telikeri on the N.W. length, about 45 m., breadth, 3 m. to 15 m.—, a small isl. in the above channel—, a tn. to [see Opus], dist. and 15 m. N.N.E. Livadia, at the foot of a mountain of same name. It is the seat of a bishop, is defended by a castle, and carries on some trade. Pop. 5603.

TALANTI, Greece. See TALANDA.

TALAVERA-SAN-DE-RENA, a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. Toledo, 64 m. S.E. Madrid, on the Tago. It had formerly three walls, dividing it into different sections; two of these are still preserved. This ancient but decayed town is straggling, dirty, ill paved, and inconvenient; but the walls, towering among the houses, give it a picturesque appearance. It has a handsome tow-house, a prison, granary theatre, vs from primary and advanced schools, several hospitals, various recreatories and universities, a Jewish college, and four parish churches. There is also a fine but dilapidated bridge and a pleasant almshouse. Near it is the hermitage of Santa Anna del Prado, which is built on a pagan temple, and where pagan rites, called Las Momias de Sclerosa, continued to be celebrated until 1867. Talavera is famous for its silk cloth, but this branch of industry has greatly fallen off; the number of persons now employed in spinning and weaving in the royal factory not exceeding 400. The other manufactures consist of ceramics, leather, and soap; and there are flour, oil, and chocolate mills, and a fulling-mill. In the vicinity, on the 27th and 28th of July 1809, Sir Arthur Wellesley, with 16,000 British, defeated 84,000 French under Jourdan Victor and Joseph Bonaparte. Pop. 6883.

TALAVEIRA-LA-REAL, a poor vil. Spain, Estramadura, prov. and 10 m. E. Badajoz, 1 bank Guadiana; rendered very unhealthy chiefly by the putrid exhalations from the pigsties, dunghills, and stagnant pools with which the town and neighbourhood abound. It has a townhouse, several schools, a nursery, a church and several oil and flour mills. P. 2289.

TALBENNY par Wales, Pembrokeshire; 1425 ac. P. 235.

TALBOT, an isl., U. States, off N.E. coast Florida between the mouths of the St. Johns and the Nassau. It is about 9 m. long by 2 m. broad; and produces much cotton. TALCAGUA, a vil. and small settlement, on the N. side of Chil, on the peninsula which forms the S.W. side of Conception Bay. Near it are the remains of fortifications in a very dilapidated state. The anchorage is the best on the coast; and coal has been discovered, and worked to some extent, in the surrounding district, though the quality is said to be inferior.

TALCAN an isl. B. America, off W. coast, Patagonia, and between it and the isl. of Chilo, lat. 43° 45' S. lon. 73° 58' W. It is the largest of the group known by the name of Desventuradas, being about 2 m. long, by 1/2 m. broad, and has a deep inlet on its E. side affording good anchorage.

TALIENT, a fortified town in Morocco, prov. Sus, on the coast, 100 m. S.W. Toudout.

TALGARTH, par Wales, Brecon, 16,900 ac. P. 1328. Tali a large and populous town in China, prov. and 180 m. W. N. Yunnan W. bank Lake Tai-hai. Near it excellent tea is grown and fine marble is found.

TALIABO (Kozak) an isl. Indian Archipelago 130 m. N. W. Boorne, lat. 3° 50' S. lon. 124° 30' E. 27 m. long E. to W. by about 17 m. broad. Its hills on the N. side are steep cliffs, but the S. side is free of them on the W. are some reefs. Sago grows freely and is the chief food of the islanders, who are reputed to be cunning, faithless, cowardly and murderous in disposition. The females are used as slaves. Fish is superabundant.

TALICOTI is a Hindoostan, dist. Darwar, on an of. of the Kistna, 160 m. S.W. Hyderabad. It is surrounded by walls, and defended by a fort situated near its centre, and has a trade in printed calicoes, brassware, and sundries. Pop. 5500.

TALISHI, TALASHI, or TALASHI, a Russian dist. or khabuz, forming the most E. part of Transcaucasia, and bounded N. by the Black sea, E. by the Caspian Sea, S. by the Persian prov. Gilan and W. prov. Azerbijan from which it is separated by a lofty mountain range, which may be considered as a ramification of the Caucasus, and a connecting link between it and the Elbrus. It is well watered by numerous small streams, which send their waters to the Caspian, and has a climate whose excessive heat is tempered by the mountain and sea-breezes, and a soil generally remarkable for its fertility, and productive in grain, tobacco, wine, cotton, and silk. The inhabitants are brave and hardy, are more nominally than really subject to Russia. The capital is Astara, a fort situated on its S. frontier and not far from the Caspian.

TALISSE, a small isl. 7 m. off N. coast Celebes.

TALK-O'-THE-HILL, a vil. and chapel, England, co. Stafford on elevated ground commanding a view of nine counties, near the Trent and Mersey canal, 5 m. N. W. Newcastle-under-Lyme. It has, besides the chapel, which is a small brick-building, a place of worship for the Wesleyans, a national school, a stone-croft in the centre of the village, where a market used to be held, extensive cultivation and quarries, and a sulphurous spring, much used in outrageous rheumatism.

VOL. XL

It is said to have derived its singular name from a fall or council of war held here by Charles I., during the civil commotions. Pop. 1978.

TALLA a vil. and com. Tasmanian compact, and 15 m. N. W. W. Ararat, 1 bank Salento near its confluence with the Arno. It has a parish church, and some trade in cattle, timber and charcoal. Gray or Guido of Ararat the inventor of unsewn shoes is said to have been born here. Pop. 2301.

TALLAGHT, par Irel. Dublin; 21,898 ac. Pop. 4567.

TALLAHASSEE, a vil., U. States, cap. Florida, on a commanding height washed by a small stream about 26 m. from Port Leon in Apalachicola Bay with which it is connected by railway and 194 m. E. Mobile. It is of recent origin, having only been commenced in 1824, after it was selected to be the capital. It deals with great regularity in spacious streets and public squares, and contains among its principal edifices, Episcopal Presbyterian, and Methodist churches, an academy, a state-house, courthouses, and jail.

TALLAND par Eng. Cornwall 2665 ac. Pop. 1605. TALLANETOWN, par Irel. Louth, 5210 ac. P. 1687. TALI APOOSA a river U. States, rises in Georgia flows S.W. into Alabama and unites with the Coosa, at Fort Jackson, in forming the Alabama. total course, about 120 m., for 86 m. of which it is navigable, except in the dry season.

TALLARHUBIAH, a vil. Spain, Estramadura prov. and 8 Badajoz, with a courthouse, prison, hospital endowed primary school church and several chapels. linen weaving, an oil-press and three flour-mills. Pop. 2122.

TALI LATON, par Eng. Devon, 2565 ac. Pop. 445.

TALLEY par Wales, Carmarthen, 7167 ac. P. 1005.

TAL LINGION par Eng. Lincoln; 680 ac. Pop. 287.

TALLOW a small town, and par. Ireland, on sand 884 m. W. by S. Waterford, with a fine old church, a St. Catharine chapel, several schools six almshouses, fever hospital, parsonage and a parochial library. Many of the females are employed in lace-work. Area of par. 5615 ac. Pop. 8001.

TALLYA a town in Hungary. Either Thales, or 80 m. S.W. Zempin, at the foot of the Tokay Hills with two churches a synagogue, and a considerable trade in the fine wines grown in the district. Pop. 5710.

TALPAS, a vil. Hungary, either Thassa en. and 44 m. N. E. Arad on the Black Koros with a Greek church. Pop. 1862.

TALVIG a small seaport and par. Norway, prov. Fin mark, on a circular bay in the fiord of Alten, 43 m. E. N. E. Tromsø. It has a church, in which the service is conducted alternately in the Norwegian and the Lapland tongues, an elementary school and a trade in dried fish and render and fox skins. Pop. (par) 3166.

TALYLIYN par Wales Monmouth, 15182 ac. P. 1128.

TAMAMES, a vil. Spain Leon prov. and 32 m. S.W. Salamanca. In 1808 the Spaniards, under the Duke of Pargne, here defeated the French under General Marchand. P. 915.

TAMAR or TRUTAKARAK, a vil. in Russia, territory Cosack of the Black Sea, on the extremity of a peninsula or island of same name formed by the mouths of the Kuban and at the S.E. entrance of the Strait of Kaffa. It occupies the site of the ancient Phanagoria, the walls of which still enclose it, though the interior is interesting only from its ruins. The few houses actually occupied are miserable huts, partly sunk in the ground, and covered with turf. On August 6 1855, after a silence of 35 years, an eruption took place of Mount Karsakof, about 2 m. from the town of Tamar. It threw up smoke and smoke, and caused utter confusion.

TAMARBAHIA, a bay Brazil and one of the best harbours on the coast of Pernambuco, 40 m. S.W. Capa Santo Agostinho lak. S° 43' E. lon. 26° 5' W. An opening in the reef which makes the coast forms the entrance to the bay which never has less than 4 to 5 fathoms of water. As the reef is low the waves break over it in high winds, and leave vessels without shelter from the S. and N.E.

TAMANDUA, a vil. Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, 85 m. W. Ouro-Preto; with four churches, and a considerable trade in hides and cattle sent to Rio-de-Janeiro. Pop. (dist.) 5009.

TAMAR—I. A river, England, rises near the N. extremity of Cornwall, soon after which it becomes the boundary between Cornwall and Devon, for a distance of about 40 m. The Tamar becomes a wide estuary near Beer-Alston, and further on below Baltha, forms the harbour of Hamoaze, 129 and ultimately terminates in Plymouth Sound. The country of the Tama is remarkable for its picturesque beauty.—2. A river Van Diemen's Land, district of Launceston, falls into Port Dalrymple, and is navigable for vessels of 800 tons to the town of Launceston, a distance of 25 m. or 80 m.

TAMARA, the largest of the Isles de Los, off the coast of Sierra-Leone. lat. $8^{\circ} 28' N$. lon. $12^{\circ} 42' W$ (n).

TAMARIDA, a serpent m., beautifully coloured on a lay of same name. N above, lat. Ecuador. It was once a Portuguese station of some importance, and defended by forts, still partly existing; but is now composed of about 150 struggling houses, surrounded with date-trees and gardens.

TAMARITE, an ancient town, Spain, Aragon, prov. Huesca, 64 m. E. Saragossa. It has a townhouse, two churches, a theatre, hospital, college, mechanical and other schools; a promenade, and several hermitages. Pop. 1877

TAMARU ariver, Naples, rises near San Gaglianone, prov. Salerno. S. and S.E., enters the Pagani prov. of Benevento, and within it, joins r. bank Calore; total course, 50 m.

TAMAR (Szász), two places, Hungary.—1. (or Tamasz) a market t., properly forming a suburb of Gran. l. op. 1828.—2. A tn. Either Danube, co. Bacs, on a navigable canal, 5 m. from Lj. Verhas; with two churches, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 5658.

TAMASY a market t., Hungary Thutser Danube, co. Tolna, 17 m. S.W. Sincseonyia with a R. Catholic church, a castle, and a trade in wine. Pop. 2039.

TAMATAM a group of three low coral-islands, N. Pacific, connected by reefs, with a lagoon inside, and well inhabited. lat. $7^{\circ} 32' N$. lon. $149^{\circ} 39' E$.

TAMATAVE, or TAKATAVE, a maritime t. E. coast, Madagascar. lat. $18^{\circ} 10' S$. lon. $49^{\circ} 28' 30' E$ (n). The harbour is approached by narrow channels formed by coral reefs, and the town consists of about 60 habitable dwellings, surrounded by palm-trees. Pop. about 2000.

TAMALULIPS [formerly NEW SAN JUAN] a dep. Mexican Confederation, founded by Texas, from which it is separated by the Rio-Brazo-del-Norte. N.W. dep. Coahuila. N. Nuevo-Léon and San-Luis-Potosí. S. San-Luis-Potosí and Vera-Cruz and E. the Gulf of Mexico, greatest length, N.W. to S.E., 400 m. medium breadth about 130 m. area, 30,334 sq. m. The coast is low and fringed with lagoons varying from 4 to 16 m. in width, and separated from the sea by belts of sand, and the mouths of almost all the rivers are so encumbered with bars, as to make their navigation difficult and dangerous.

In the N. part of the state the flat sea of the coast is continued to some distance inland, and thence rises into elevated steep still compact clayey level plains. To the S. the surface becomes finely diversified by mountains, hill, and valley. The most remarkable mountains are the cerros of Martinez, Xerco, and Coronel, and the sierras of Palma and Carco. Many fine valleys extend in the intervals between the mountains. The most important streams are the Rio-del-Norte or Grande, already mentioned the Fernando or Tigra which besides reaching the coast, also communicates by a branch with the lagoon Madre the Barbon, which falls into the N. of the same lagoon the Sastander, and the Tampoco, which forms the chief boundary between the state and the U. of San-Luis-Potosí. The climate of the interior is temperate and healthy, but on the coast, especially in the hot season is almost pestilential. The soil is generally fertile and the vegetable products include most of the most esteemed grains, woods, fruits, and flowers, both of the temperate and the torrid zones. Cattle in vast numbers—horses, mules, sheep, and goats, to a less extent—are reared on the pastures and a considerable trade, both in them and in other articles, is carried on chiefly with the states of San-Luis-Potosí, Zacatecas, and Querétaro. The foreign trade is carried on chiefly at the ports of Tampico-de-Tamululips and Mazamoras and includes in its imports large quantities of manufactures both from Europe and the American Union. Its capital is Victoria. Pop. (1858), 100,064.

TAMRACH a tn. Saxo-Coburg, princip. and 9 m. S.E.W. Gotha, with a church, manufactures of iron, tin and glass ware, and several mills. Pop. 1851

TAMBELAN ISLANDS, an island group, Olden Sea, between Borneo and Singapore, they lie N.W. and S.E., and are moderately elevated Great Tambelan, the largest in the group, is lat. $1^{\circ} N$. lon. $107^{\circ} 35' E$, on its W. side is a good anchorage, and good shelter from west winds. A few goats, poultry, &c., may be had here; but natives very poor.

TAMBOV, a gov. Russia, bounded, N. by Nijni-Novgorod and Vladimir W. Riazan and Tula, E. Orel and Voronez, and S. Saratov and Penza, lat. $51^{\circ} 30'$ to $55^{\circ} N$; lon. $38^{\circ} 40'$ to $48^{\circ} 50' E$.; greatest breadth, N. to S. 870 m.; greatest breadth, 196 m., area, 19,398 sq. m. It forms an extensive plain occasionally broken by low hills. In the S. it assumes the appearance of a steppe, and is so thinly wooded, that large tracts are absolutely without a tree. In the N. the surface consists generally of a light fertile sand, contains numerous marshes, and has several extensive forests, yielding good ship-timber. The government is well watered, and is nearly equally divided between the banks of the Volga and the Don. The former receives the drainage of the N. portion chiefly by the Moksha, and its affluents the Tima and the Vied; the latter receives the drainage of the S. portion, directly in the W. and indirectly in the E. by its principal affluent the Verona. About one-half of the whole surface is arable, one-fourth under permanent meadows and pastures, and one-fifth in wood. The corn raised leaves a large surplus for export. After corn, the principal crop is hemp, which is grown very extensively and of excellent quality. On the meadows and pastures vast numbers of excellent horses, cattle, and sheep are reared. The last are particularly esteemed to; and the Spanish and Silesian varieties are common throughout the government. The only mineral of any consequence is iron, which supplies several blast-furnaces. The staple manufactures are woollen and linen cloth. After these, the most important is soap. The trade, greatly facilitated by the Tima and the Moksha, is important, and consists in corn, cattle, honey, soap, butter, cheese, wool, hemp and iron. The government is divided into 12 circles, of which Tambov is the capital. Pop. (1850), 1,785,600.

TAMBOV a tn. Russia, cap. above gov., 1 mile Tura, at the confluence of the Sineidzka, 263 m. S.E. Moscow. It is an ancient place, surrounded by a dilapidated rampart, and is built chiefly of wood. It contains 18 churches, of which seven are of stone a monastery with wooden towers a gymnasium, military school, seminary, and infirmary, is the residence of a governor, the seat of a bishop, and the seat of several important courts and public offices and has manufactures of woollens and silicoths, an alum-works, a considerable trade with Moscow and St. Petersburg in tallow, leather, wool and provisions. Pop. (1851) 19,411

TAMBIRE [see Tamara], a river Spain rises in Gallizia, on the W. slope of the sierra which separates provs. Lago and Coruña, flows W. S.W. and falls into the Atlantic a little below Noya, in the bay of that name. Total course, 60 m.

TAME two rivers, England.—1. Coe Stafford and Warwick rises near Watnall, flows E. and N. and after a course of 28 m., falls into the Trent 7 m. N. Tamworth.—2. (or Thame), Coe Bucks and Oxford after a S.W. course of 40 m., falls into the Isis below Oxfordshire giving to the former the name of Thames

TAME, a market t. England. See THAMES

TAMEGA, a river which rises in Spain, Galicia; flows S.E.W., enters Portugal and traverses the N.W. part of prov. Trás-os-Montes, and joins r. bank Douro about 25 m. E. Oporto, total course, 100 m., of which about 25 m. are in Spain and 64 m. in Portugal.

TAMERTON FULFORD a vil. and par. England, co. Devon, on a creek of the Tamar 5 m. N. by W. Plymouth. It contains a number of fine mansions, and has a church and a richly-endowed free school. Area of par. $\frac{1}{2}$ 5150 ac. Pop. 1147

TAMERTON (Nunns), par. Eng. Cornwall, 5261 ac. Pop. 516

TAMIAGUA a small seaport in Mexican Confederation, dep. and 70 m. S.E. Tampico, E. side lake or lagoon of the same name, lat. $21^{\circ} 16' N$. lon. $97^{\circ} 17' E$. The houses are built of adobe, and in a straggling manner close to the lake. Some years since it was celebrated for its fishery which has now greatly declined. The town, being on low land, is very unhealthy.—THE LAKE is about 55 m. long, by 20 m. broad, divided from the Laguna-de-Tampico by a neck of land, and on the E. from the Gulf of Mexico by a narrow strip of mudbanks, $\frac{1}{2}$ m. to 2 m. broad, covered mostly with low brush-wood, but in many places with lofty trees. The water of the lake is quite fresh and clear, and abounds in fish and alligators.

TAMIR, a river Central Asia, Mongolia, country of the Kaliks, flows E.N.E., and joins L. bank Orkhon, total course, 90 m.

TAMISE (Flemish, Temsche; ana. Temesse) a. tn. and new Belgium, prov. F. Flanders, L. bank Scheldt, 25 m. E.N.E. Ghent, with a pretty church, chapel commercial house, hospital, a fine chateau, several schools, and a mixed textile-manufacture of salicots, cotton goods, hats, pottery, tobacco, leather, chimney oil, mustard seed, candles, cordage, and cloths; also breweries, distilleries, salt-refineries, a bleachfield, and dye-works with a trade in corn, flax, linen, leather, &c. Pop. 7658.

TAMI AGHT three pers. Ireland:—1, Londonderry and Tyrone, 4865 ac. Pop. 2489—2 (Finagha) Londonderry, 16,080 ac. P. 5647—3, (O'Crilly), Londonderry, 23,713 ac. Pop. 83,021.

TAMINGTAR, a tn. Nepal between the Arun and Soorya; lat. 37° 18' N., lon. 85° 53' E. Pop. about 6000.

TAMMERFORS, or TAMMERFORS, a tn. Russia, Finland, circle and 45 m. N.W. Tavastehus, beautifully situated on a river of same name, which connects Lake Näsäjärv with Lake Pyhäjärvi. It is the principal centre of manufactures in Finland, having several dye-works, fulling-mills, a paper and a cotton-spinning mill, and a considerable foundry. Its annual fair held in February, is much frequented. Pop. (1841) 2806.—(See Finland and Finland).

TAMOOK one of the smaller Sooloo Islands lat. 6° 28' N., lon. 121° 56' E.

TAMPA a bay Gulf of Mexico. See San Petri (Havto). TAMPICO, or SANTA ANA DE TAMAUCAPIPA, a seaport in Mexican Confederation dep. Tamaulipas, 128 m. S.E. Victoria, on the Tampoco, which, 5 m. below, enters the Gulf of Mexico; lat. 21° 50' N., lon. 96° W. It is built on a rising slope of ground. The streets are wide, and are laid out at right angles to each other, and have a respectable appearance, possessing some very fine houses, both of brick and stone, many of them in the old Spanish style, with flat roofs. It has two churches, a tower built to commemorate the defeat of the Spanish invasion in 1838, a prison, a monument in honour of the president Santa Ana, a custom-house, two hospitals and a Protestant burying ground. It carries on a considerable trade with Great Britain and the U. States. The town being situated among marshes, large vessels cannot approach it. Its bar is dangerous, and its harbour is considered unsafe. Pop. about 7000.—THE LAKE OF TAMPOCO is a shallow lagoon at the N. extremity of dep. Vera-Cruz, 20 m. long, by 10 m. broad. It communicates N. with the united mouth of the Tula and Tampoco rivers, and E. with the Lake of Tamaulipas. It is celebrated for its prawns, which are very large. Immense quantities of them are caught, and besides supplying the vicinity, a large quantity is salted and dried, and sent to the interior for sale.—THE RIVER TAMPOCO, after an E. course, enters the Gulf of Mexico near Tampico, its bar being m. lat. 23° 15' N. (lon. 97° 46' W. Total length, 200 m. (See MEXICO).

TAMWEG, a market in Upper Austria, circle and 69 m. S.E. Salzburg, at the confluence of the Turold and Muir in the valley of Isère. It is well built, and has a church, a school, a lunger-hospital and several mills. Pop. 2380.

TAMWORTH a bor. market in and par. England, co. Stafford and Warwick. The town, 32 m. N.E. Stafford at the confluence of the Tame and Anker is partly in both the above-named counties. It is a large and well built, and surrounded by rich and luxuriant meadows. It has a handsome town hall, situated in the market-place a large and ancient church, places of worship for Wesleyans, Baptists, Independents, and K. Catholics, a free grammar-school, Mr. Robert Peel's school, national and infant schools, and numerous churches, including an almshouse endowed by Thomas Guy founder of Guy's hospital, London, a library and reading-room. Tape and paper are manufactured here to some extent. Tanning, calico-printing and brewing are also carried on. Tamworth sends two members to Parliament. Area of par., 12,450 ac. Pop. 6555.

TANA ELV, a river, Europe, rises on the frontiers of Finland and Norway; flows N.E., forming part of the boundary between the Russian and the Norwegian territories, finally enters Norway, and flowing almost due N. falls into the Fennoscandian, in the Arctic Ocean, after a course of about 160 m. It abounds with salmon.

TANAGA, one of the Aleutian isls.; lat. 51° 59' N.; lon. 178° 10' W. (a.); about 53 m. long E. to W., and 4 m. broad. At its S.W. point is a volcano, and close by, a bay, about 4 m. broad, and 8 m. long. Water is abundant.

TANAH, a tn. Lower Egypt, near the centre of the delta of the Nile, celebrated for its festivals, held twice a-year, in honour of a famous Moslem saint called Sayd Ahmed al-Bedawee, who is buried in it.

TANAH FIMAR a tn. lat. Sumatra, state and 30 m. from Jambi. The environs yield dragon's-blood benzoin, and resins. Pop. 4000.

TANAKEKE, a small Isl. Java Sea, 17 m. off S.W. extremity of Celebes lat. 5° 38' S., lon. 115° 17' E. (a.); about 13 m. in circumference, surrounded by a cluster of small islets.

TANANARIVO a tn. Madagascar cap. of Ankova and of all Madagascar about the centre of the island, lat. 18° 55' S., lon. 47° E. 4000 ft. above sea-level. Pop. about 35,000.

TANARO (Latin, Tanarus) a river, Sicily, rises in Mount Tunda, near the pass of that name, in the Maritime Alps flows easterly to N.E. passes Abbi, Atti, and Alessandria, and about 10 m. below, joins r. bank Po. Total course 160 m., of which 45 m. commencing at Atti, are navigable at least by barges. Its principal affluents are Belbo, Bormida, Elica, Pello, Stura, Borja, and Yera.

TANCOB, a tn. and par. Portugal, prov. Beira-Baixa, S.E.E. Thomar r. bank Tagus; with an hospital and almshouse. Pop. 530.

TANDAH a tn. Hindoostan, prov. Bengal; lat. 24° 49' N. Jan. 88 15 S. surrounded by swamps and stagnant water and consequently unhealthy.

TANDERAGEE a tn. Ireland, co. and 10 m. W. by 8 Armagh strikingly situated on an eminence. It has as established church two Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and a Presbyterian meeting-house several schools, and considerable manufactures of linen, but the chief employment is agricultural. Pop. 1405.

TANIL, a vil. Punjab on the Chenab princely Lahul lat. 32° 33' N. lon. 77° 3' E. about 8000 ft. above sea-level.

TANIRIDIG par. Eng. Surrey 8944 ac. Pop. 594.

TANIGA SAMA an Isl. Japan S. Kiuasu from which it is separated by the Strait of Van Diemen length 80 m. average breadth, about 15 m. It is high and mountainous, but well cultivated.

TANEY, par. Ire. Dublin 4568 ac. 3 op. 8929.

TANFIELD a vil. and chapelry, England co. Durham on a height above the Houghwall 7 m. S.W. Gateshead. It is irregularly built; and has a chapel, two parson's mills, and extensive collieries. Pop. 2480.

TANFIELD (Warr.) par. Eng. York 3129 ac. P. 636.

TANGFRMUNDP, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 32 m. N.E. Magdeburg, L. bank Elbe, at the confluence of the Tanger. It has several public offices, a church, and two hospitals manufactures of woollen cloth, shot, and slaves.

several oil-mills, some shipping, and a trade in corn and cattle. The first martyrdom of Brandenburg resided here. Pop. 4215.

TANGIER, or TANGORA (ana. Tangor or Tangora) a seaport in Morocco, near the W. entrance of the Strait of Gibraltar S.E. of Cape Spartel lat. (point of house) 35° 47' 13' N., lon. 5° 49' 30' W. (n). It stands on a height near a spacious bay, and rising in the form of an amphitheatre presents a very striking appearance when approached from the sea. It is surrounded by walls, and defended by a castle and several forts but with exception of the main strait, which traverses it E. to W. and is tolerably well built, it consists of wretched houses, huddled together in narrow dirty lanes. The only exceptions to the general wretchedness of the buildings are furnished by the residences of the European consuls, and those of a few wealthy merchants. The principal buildings are the castle, or alcazar, occupying a commanding height, but in a very dilapidated state several mosques, one of which is handsome several Jewish synagogues, and a K. Catholic church. The harbour which was once capacious, and protected by a mole, is excellently situated, and was formerly very much frequented by vessels from almost all the maritime countries of Europe but neglect has allowed it to fall into complete disrepair, and it is now both inconvenient and difficult of access. The trade, now chiefly confined to Gibraltar, and a few places on the Spanish coast, is very limited; the internal traffic is chiefly with Titane and Fez.

Tangier is said to have been founded by the Carthaginians, from whom it passed to the Romans, and afterwards successively to the Goths and Arabs. It was taken by the Portuguese in 1471 and ceded by them, in 1662, to the British, who erected a mole which gave protection to the largest 8900 sq. m. This is one of the most valuable parts of British India, and the granary of the Madras territories. Most part of the surface, forming the delta of the Coleroon and Cavery rivers, is a low level and highly cultivated plain, intersected by numerous rivers, and covered by rice-ground with coconut groves interspersed.

South of this tract the country is more elevated and undulating. Dry grass, some cotton, and coarse tobacco are here produced. Pulses, garden-plants, fruits, coriander, cummin, indigo, &c., are raised. Iron, wax, silver glass, &c. are received from the adjacent districts. Silks, muslins, and cottons are woven at Tanjore, Combacoona, and Negapatam ship-building and rope-making are carried on in the last-named place. Copper utensils and tiles are made elsewhere. The district is noted for good roads, productive salt-pans exist near Point Calymere. It is assessed under the village system. Hindoo institutions prevail here in great perfection; and the architecture of the pagodas is very uniform throughout Tanjore. This district became a British possession in 1799. Pop 1,125,736 TANJORE, a city, Hindoostan, presid. Madras, cap. above dist., in a fertile plain, about 45 m. from the sea, and 170 m. S. by W. Madras lat. 10° 45' N. lon. 79° 12' E.

This fortified town, about 4 m. in extent, contains the palace of the rajah, numerous pagodas, and irregular street. Out side of it are other quarters, an English church, the British residency and a remarkable pagoda, with a tower 200 ft. in height, and a sculptured bull, which is one of the triumphs vessels and kept possession of it for 22 years. It declined rapidly on falling into the hands of the Moors. Pop estimated at 10,000.

TANGIER ISLANDS, a small group of U States, Virgin, in Chesapeake Bay N. part of mouth of Potomac Bay. TANGIHAHO, a river, U States, rises in Mississippi flows S. into Louisiana, then S. by E. to Lake Pontchartrain, 16 m. W. S. W. Madisonville, total course about 80 m.

TANGIER per Eng. Islands 1561 sq. Pop. 278

TANGMERE, per Eng. Seas 774 sq. Pop. 221

TANGNOU, a mountain-range Chinese Empire, highest country lying nearly along the parallel of 50° N. and between lon. 90° and 100° E. It commences on the frontier of Siberia, where it detaches itself from the Altai stretches in a S. S. E. direction and separates the basins of the Yenisei from the streams that flow to the great central plateau of Asia.

TANINGE, TANNING, or TANNINGH, a town, France, dep. Haute Savoie, prov. Faucigny, 9 m. E. N. E. Homeville at the foot of a lofty rock, commanding a beautiful view. It has a court of justice, a school established in the buildings of an old convent, manufactures of silk, leather and rural implements, silks-quarries, extensively worked for exportation, and a seam of lignite. Pop. 3620

TANIS, or SAN, a town in Lower Egypt, on a branch of the Nile, 10 m. above its mouth in Lake Menzalah. It is now scarcely a village of ruins, but its ancient importance is attested by the height and magnitude of its remains, which extend 1 m. N. to S. and nearly 3 m. E. to W. The most celebrated of the ruins are those of the temple, which stood in an enclosure about 1500 ft. long, by 1250 ft. broad. They consist of fragments of walls, columns, and fallen obelisks. The last, to the number of 10, all of the time of Memnon the Great, are composed of granite, and when erect, must have varied from 50 ft. to 60 ft. in height. Twice in the Zoon of Scripture and in its field or plain, now a barren waste, were performed the miracles which compelled Pharaoh to let the children of Israel go.

TANJORE, a dist. Hindoostan, presid. Madras, extending along the E. or Coomandore coast; lat. 9° 50' to 11° 25' N.; lon. 78° 45' to 79° 25' E. bounded N. by the dist. of S. Arcot, and W. by those of Trichinopoly and Madras, area, of Hindoo art. In the rajah's palace is a group by Flaxman. The best residences at Tanjore are substantially built of brick and lime and often tastefully decorated, the interior dwellings, and those in the adjacent villages, are of mud and tiled or thatched. Many of the inhabitants are weavers. Tanjore is connected by good roads with the chief towns of its district, and with Trichinopoly. It was besieged and taken by the British in 1773. Pop. 69,000.—(Rep. on the Topography and Statistics of the Madras S. Dist. Trigon. Survey, &c., Madras Asiatic Soc.)

THE GREAT PAGODA TANJORE.—From Madras View in South.

TANKARDSTOWN, two parts, Ireln. —1, Kildare and Queen's co. —2, Limerick; 1710 sq. P. 544.

TANKERLEY, per Eng. York, 8404 sq. P. 1928

TANN, a town, Bavaria, Lower Franconia, r. bank Ulenz, here crossed by a bridge, 32 m. N. by E. Witzsburg. It is surrounded by walls, contains a Protestant church, three castles, and a porch, and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth; oil, saw, and other mills and a trade in fish. Pop. 1580.

TANNA, a town, Germany, Rhenish-Schlesien, on the Western, S. S. E. Schlesien, with a church. Pop. 1487

TANNA and S. Paule, New Hebrides lat. $19^{\circ} 50' 54''$ S, lon. $169^{\circ} 45' 45''$ E (a). It consists chiefly of a high range of mountains, with an active volcano. Excepting the latter, the whole island is well wooded and contains abundance of fine coco-palms. It is well cultivated, and produces breadfruit, plantains, coconuts, yams, taro, sugar-cane, and wild figs. The natives are a stout race, and were cannibals, but now have several missionary teachers resident among them.

TANNA is in Hindooism, on the E. shore of Isl. Salomé, 30 m. N. N. E. Bombay. It is a neat and flourishing place, surrounded by a small but regular fortress, and containing a considerable detachment of British troops. It is inhabited chiefly by Hindoes, and the descendants of Portuguese, who, both in habits and colour, greatly resemble Hindoes.

TANNADICE, par. Scot. Forfar; 88,000 ac. P. 1517

TANNINGTON, par. Eng. Suffolk 1802 ac. P. 248

TANROD, par. Eng. Northampton 2050 ac. P. 256.

TANTALEM, a large Isl. Gulf of Biam, about 1 m. from the coast of Lower Siem, v. extremely Point Leger lat. $8^{\circ} 40' N$ lon. $100^{\circ} 50' E$. It is 50 m. long and 13 m. broad at the widest part, average breadth about 12 m.

TANWORTH, a vil. and par. England, co. Warwick, near the canal from Birmingham to Stratford, 4 m. N. W. Arden with a church, independent chapel two endowed schools, and manufactures of wick yarn. Area, 9400 ac. Pop. 1892

TAEORMINA (anc. Tauromenon) a in Sicily prov. and 30 m. S. by W. Messina, on one of the summits of Mount Taormina. It is a place of some strength but though formerly an important town, has now a dull, deserted look. It contains several churches, particularly that of San Francesco, partly composed of an ancient Greek temple, and said to be the first church erected in Sicily, a Dominican convent, and old Baroque castle. Among earlier antiquities are a theatre, a necropolis, aqueduct, and supposed temple of Apollo. Home trade is carried on in wine and hemp, which are shipped at a small port in the adjoining bay. Pop. 4000

TAOS, a in Upper Texas, 60 m. N. Santa Fé lat. $37^{\circ} 5' N$ lon. $105^{\circ} 40' W$

TAQUM, or TAQ, a to Turkish Kurdistan 80 m. S. Kerkuk, on an affluent of the Tigris

TAPAGUE or TAPAGUE a vil. and par. Brazil about 10 m. N. of Bahia, on a peninsula in the Bay of All Saints with two churches, and a summer-residence of the archbishops of Brazil and extensive building-docks.

TAPAJOS, a river, Brazil, formed by the confluence of the Arinos and Jurumá, on the N. frontiers of prov. Mato Grosso; lat. $9^{\circ} 30' S$. The united stream, taking the name of Tapajos, enters prov. Para, flows N. E. at first in a narrow stream hemmed in by mountains, but afterwards in a broad and deep channel, receives the Preto and several important tributaries almost all on the right, and finally at Santarém joins r. bank Amazon, of which it is one of the main tributaries. Its navigation is impeded only by two cataracts, and though it is not so deep as the Madeira, it contains much fewer obstructions, and furnishes both a shorter and an easier channel for the traffic of the towns of Mato Grosso and Calaba.

TAPANILUACA YGA, a vil. Brazil, prov. Minas-Gerais, 20 m. S. W. Minas Novas, in a basin enclosed by verdant and wooded hills. It was a place of some importance while the mines were productive, but has since greatly decayed. It has a church, and about 100 white-washed houses covered with tiles. The inhabitants practice the ordinary handicrafts and are cabinet-makers, carpenters, masons, &c., but the employment being very limited, they live in very penurious circumstances, while they despise agriculture, and consequently leave the fertile land around them almost uncultivated.

TAPÉ, a vil. Hungary, Thibitz Theiss, co. Comrad, on the Theiss, 3 m. from Segesvár with a church, and an extensive trade in horses. Pop. 1879

TAPETANTANA, one of the Sooloo Is., s. Basilan lat. $6^{\circ} 14' N$ lon. $123^{\circ} 5' E$ l. (a), with a regular peaked high mountain on the W. part, and lowland stretching out to the E.

TAPERA, a vil. Brazil, prov. Minas-Gerais, in an extensive valley where there was once a mine of gold, now exhausted, 72 m. S. W. Serro. It has a church, and manufactures cotton-cloth, counterpane with a red and blue strip, towels and napkins, which are exported to Rio-de-Janeiro, and also hats of cotton in imitation of felt.

TAPIAU, a m. Prussia, prov. R. Prussia, gov. and 18 m. S. E. Königsberg r. bank Frangel, with a coast of justice a church, castle, and houses of correction, manufacture of carpets and hosiery, and some general trade. Pop. 2328.

TAPISI, or TAYCHE, a river, S. America, rises in the N. E. of Peru flows N. W. expanding into a lake of same name, enters Ecuador and after a course of above 300 m., joins r. bank Pato or Loxyle

TAPLOW par. Eng. Bucks 1900 ac. Pop. 704

TAPOLCSANY two places, Hungary — 1 (Kis- or Kise-) A market to. Hither Debrec, co. Hara, 6 m. W. Kécsburg, with a handsome church, elegant station and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop. 1061 — 2 (Nagy- or Gross-) A market to. co. and 18 m. N. N. E. Neutra, with a church a rammed castle, and large horse and cattle fairs. Pop. 2475.

TAPUOL, a small Isl. Sooloo Archipelago, S. W. of Isl. Sooloo lat. $5^{\circ} 40' N$ lon. $120^{\circ} 50' E$. It abounds in small cattle, goats, and yams, and has plenty of fresh water

TAPPANOLY BAY in Sumatra, S. W. coast lat. $1^{\circ} 45' 45'' N$ lon. $98^{\circ} 45' E$, in an extensive harbour, or rather series of coves and harbours formed by the different islands in it, whence ships may be sheltered from all winds. There is a village of the same name at the head of the bay

TAPPANTOWN, a vil. U. States, New York, 120 m. S. Albany, with two churches and a few stores. Major André was executed here as a spy Oct. 2, 1780

TAPTEL TUPTE or TAPTE a river, Hindoostan rises in prov. Gundwana flows first W. E. passing Boorhanpoor then nearly due W. across prov. Candahar and Gulerak, and after a course of about 400 m. falls, by several mouths, into the Gulf of Cambay 30 m. below Surat, and 30 m. S. of the mouth of the Verulvia. The principal objects of the Tapite are the Poorna, Ghien and Pannera, which all join it on the left.

TAQUARI, two rivers, Brazil — 1 (or Taquary) Rises in prov. Mato-Grosso flows N. W. then S. W. and receives numerous streams and finally joins r. bank Paraguay in lat. $19^{\circ} 15' S$. total course, above 200 m. It abounds with fish and in some places is interpermed with islands. About 120 m. from its mouth a cataract impedes the navigation — 2 (or Taquary) Rises in prov. São-Pedro-do-Nil-Grande, in the Serra-Geral lat. $18^{\circ} S$, flows S. E. and after a course of about 140 m. joins r. bank Jacuhy. It is navigated by small craft for about 80 m.

TAR, a river U. States, N. Carolina, flowing S. E. by E. and entering Pamlico Sound by a wide estuary, after a course of about 180 m. near Washington.

TARA — 1 A m. Ubersa, gov. and 280 m. E. S. E. Tobolsk, cap. circle, on a considerable height near the confluence of the Agara with the Irtysh here crossed by a bridge. It is surrounded by an earthen rampart, and defended by a fort and has five churches, a mosque, manufactures of ordinary and morocco leather hats, and velvet a fishery, and several annual fairs. An active trade is carried on with Bokhara and China. Pop. (1842) 5086 — 2 A river Ubersa, rises in the Bereshninka steppes gov. Tomsk flows W. S. W. into gov. Tobolsk, then N. W. and joins r. bank Irtysh near the town of same name, after a course of about 160 m.

TARA, par. Ind. Month. 1864 ac. Pop. 422

TARADELLI (SAN GIUSEPPE), a m. and com. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and about 35 m. from Barcelona. It has a public square adorned with a fountain, a church, courtyards, and school manufactures of homalines and corduroy and some trade in these articles, and in agricultural produce. P. 1798

TARAKAI or GULF OF TARTART, an arm of the Sea of Japan, which extends N. between Manchuria and the Isl. of Tarakai, having a length of about 400 m., with a breadth of 160 m. At the N. extremity where it becomes extremely shallow it communicates with the Gulf of Sagami, or estuary of the Amoor

TARAKAI, KAPATO, or BAHAGALAN, a large Isl. extending along the E. coast of Manchuria, from which it is separated by the Gulf of Tartary, the N. part tributary to China, the S. to Japan. Some have alleged it to be a peninsula, connected by a belt of sand with the coast of Amur, about 170 m. from the N. extremity. It is about 600 m. long and 26 m. to 120 m. broad lat. 40° to $54^{\circ} 20' N$, lon. 128° to $146^{\circ} E$. area, about 80,000 sq. m. The S. end of the island is separated from the Japanese island of Yezo by the Strait of La Pyrene and at its extremity is indented by a large bay, extending 50 m. from S. to N., called the Bay of Aniva. Two ranges of mountains commence respectively at capes Chillon and Aniva, the two most S. points of the island, stretching N.W. and N.E., and meeting in Bernial peak lat. 47° 23' N., lon 141° 40' E. The mountains on the W. side slope suddenly, and approach very near to the water's edge, leaving however in most cases a level strip, which is generally covered with lofty trees. The opposite shore, on the contrary is very low and sandy. N. of this mountainous region is a level tract low and swampy ground, but the west N. division is hilly and fertile. The climate appears to be colder than that of most other places under the same latitude, and the island is entirely covered all the year round with fogs of astonishing density. Fir, oak, birch, and maple abound in the forests, and large quantities of timber are exported to Japan for building purposes. Gooseberries, raspberries, and strawberries are the principal fruits. Salmon and herrings are very plentiful, they are cured and prepared for the foreign market. Whales are found in great numbers along the E. coast, and in the Straits of La Perouse, and their oil is bladders is largely exported. Beavers and martens are the only wild animals mentioned. The inhabitants are Ainu, of the same race as those which inhabit the island Yezo and are 5 ft. to 5 ft. 6 in. high. Their only manufacture is a kind of cloth, made from willow bark. Other articles of clothing being procured from Japan and Manchuria. Their food consists mainly of fish and roots, especially garlic and the root of a kind of lily.

TARAKLI, or TERKELI, a tn. Asiatic Turkey. Anatolia, on a stream of same name, 100 m. S.E. Constantinople. It consists of about 400 houses, and appears to be a wealthy place with manufactures of articles in bone and wood, dyewoods, and a trade in wine and silk, exclusively produced in the vicinity. Tarakli is supposed to be the ancient Hierapolis.

TARANCON a tn. Spain. New Castle, prov. Cuenca, 45 m. S.E. Madrid. It contains a palace, erected by the Duke of Rivas, which may vie with the best at Madrid. Two schools, several fountains, four hermitages, and a fine parish church and has numerous oil-mills, manufactures of linen and plain cloth, and a trade in wine. P. (approximate), 4575.

TARANTAY, or TARANTAY, an isl. Scotland, so. J. of the Outer Hebrides, 2 m. off W. coast, Harris, and at the entrance to West Loch Turbert. It is of broad low form, high rocky and conspicuous, with hardly any soil about 4 m. long, and 2 m. broad at the widest part. Inhabitants engaged in fishing and holly-burning.

TARANTA, a vil. Naples, prov. Avellino-Citra, S.E. W. Lucania near bank Averto with two churches. P. 1190.

TARANTASIE, or TARANTASIA a div. France dep. Savoie bounded N. by Tanogny N.W. Upper Savoy W. and S. Maurienne, and E. Piedmont. Length E. to W. about 30 m. mean breadth about 21 m. area 838 sq. m. Its surface is very mountainous throughout, being covered on the E. by the Cottian Alps, which here present the lofty summit of Mont Iserein and Little St. Bernard. The principal stream is the Isère. The rugged nature of the ground unfits it generally for regular agriculture, though there are some fertile valleys in which a good deal of corn is grown, but the chief dependence is on the pastures, which rear great numbers of sheep and cattle. The minerals also are of considerable value. Pop. (1852) 45,841.

TARANTASCA a vil. and com. Italy. Piedmont, div. and 4 m. N. Com. near bank Grana, with a church three convents, a townhouse, school, and charitable endowment. Pop. 1869.

TARANTO [anc. Tarentum], a tn. Naples, prov. Otranto, and at the N. extremity of the gulf of same name, 85 m. S.E. Matera. It stands on a lofty eminence, defended by a citadel, is the seat of an archbishop, and has a harbour, once deep and spacious, but now very much silted up. It is well built, and contains many handsome private residences and public edifices. Among the latter are a cathedral, and several other churches, 10 monasteries, one of which is particularly handsome; five nunneries, a diocesan seminary, a very large orphan and foundling, and two other hospitals. The manufactures include linen, cotton, velvet, muslin and gloves of the Straits of the Neapolitan of which great numbers are taken in the gulf. The earliest dye of Taranto, long famous, still enjoys some repute. The trade is of little importance. Taranto was at one time a large and powerful city, which had 14 neighbouring towns subject to it, could furnish an army of 8000 cavalry, and 3000 foot-soldiers, and secured the Adriatic with its fleets. It was taken by Fabius Maximus, during the second Punic war, and given up to pillage. The destruction was afterwards completed by the Saracens, and hence there are few remains of ancient buildings. Pop. 16,000.

TARANTO (Suez) a gulf formed in the S.E. extremity of the Italian peninsula, by the Ionian Sea. Its entrance, formed in the S.W. by Point Alice, and in the N.E. by Cape Santa Maria de Lucca, is about 70 m. wide, and the gulf is nearly 80 m. deep. It receives, among other streams the Ruvoletti Agri, Sarno, and Cosola.

TARAPACA, a tn. Peru, cap. prov. of same name, on a mountain-terrace, about 12 m. above its mouth in the Pacific lat. 19° 55' S. lon. 69° 30' W. It consists of houses of adobe and seldom more than one story high. Further up the ravine of the terrace, are the Indian settlements of Pachico, Laconima, and Puchucalla, near the last of which are old gold, silver, and lead mines of the Spaniards.

The province, lat. 19° to 21° 30' S. lon. 68° 15' to 70° 22' W. is bounded N. by prov. Arica, W. the Pacific, S. the desert of Atacama, and E. Bolivia; greatest length, N. to S., 150 m. breadth 180 m. The coast is arid and bold mountains of porphyry often rising abruptly from the sea, from 3000 ft. to 6000 ft. This maritime tract, about 80 m. wide, is very rugged, and owing to the prevalence of sand and salt, is in general almost destitute of vegetation. Behind it is the puna or great plain of Tamarugal, which has an average height of about 5000 ft. and stretches through the whole length of the province, with a breadth of 80 m. This plain reaches the base of the Andes, which have here several very lofty summits, including that of the Lirima or Chimura, supposed to be 24,000 ft. or 25,000 ft. high. Immediately beyond, terminating the province on the E. is an elevated undulating region with considerable depressions, some of them affording good pasture, and land on which some millet is raised and others occupied by lakes containing fish. The province yields much large quantities of silver that it has been designated the Potom of Peru. It also has rich copper-mines, from which the first cargo was sent to England in 1821 and immense deposits of nitrate of soda. It is divided into four curacas—Tarapaca, Pica, Bileya, and Camilla. Pop. 11,000.

TARARÉ [anc. Tarentum] a tn. France, dep. Rhone, 20 m. N. Lyons. Its prosperity is of very recent date, and is owing to the successful introduction of the manufacture of fine muslins, of which from 8,000,000 to 4,000,000 pieces are annually produced in the town and surrounding country, employing about 60,000 persons. The other manufactures are silk goods and woollens. Pop. 8800.

TARASCON [anc. Tarazona], a tn. France, dep. Bouches-du-Rhone advantageously situated 12 m. Rhone opposite

THE GATES OF TARASCON.—From Pierre Boncompagni di Tarascon.

Bouches-du-Rhone, with which it communicates by a suspension-bridge, 50 m. N. E. W. Marseilles. It is surrounded by walls, flanked with towers, and entered by three gates. The streets are wide and regular, and most of them are lined with arcades. The principal buildings are the old castle, seated on a height overlooking the river; the church, a handsome Gothic structure of the 11th century, with a finely sculptured portal; the townhouse, courthouse, theatre, general hospital, and public library. The manufactures consist of woollen cloth, serge, silk goods, hampers and cotton cloth, vermucelli, soap starch and cordage. There are also brandy-distilleries, wax-refineries, tanneries, brick-works, and building-yards for barges. The trade is in wine, brandy, oil, hemp, wool, wood, coal, medicinal plants, incense-resin and madder. Pop. 6180.

TARAP a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. Grisons. Lower Engadine, 8 bank Em, on a plateau about 4000 ft. above sea-level, 40 m. E. by S. Coler. It has an old castle still habitable, finely situated on a conical hill and has recently become a place of considerable resort, in consequence of the discovery of a mineral-spring, which has led to the erection of various hotels and lodging-houses. Tarap is the only E. Catholic village in the Engadine. Pop. 403.

TARAWA, or KORU in the Pacific, Gilbert Archipelago, lat. 1° 39' N. lon. 178° 5' E. It is 20 m. long, N.W. to S.E., of coral formation with a lagoon partially wooded, and inhabited by natives in a very savage state.

TARAZONA [anc. Turis] an episcopal city, Spain, Aragon, prov. and 57 m. W. N. W. Saragossa, on the Quales, here crossed by several bridges. The city proper forms a kind of amphitheatre, its streets resembling an irregular star, the whole producing a fine effect. Tarazona has various schools of elementary and advanced education, a seminary, an academy, an hospital, a house of refuge, a theatre, and the very ancient episcopal palace, once the residence of the kings of Aragon. There are also four parish churches, several convents, hermitages, fountains and a beautiful park. The cathedral, founded about the 13th century is externally a tasteless medley of Byzantine and Gothic architecture, but the interior is very grand and imposing and although many successive ages have contributed to its embellishment, there is no inhomogeneity observable. Tarazona formerly supplied a large proportion of the inhabitants of Spain with cloths and balms, now quite an insignificant branch of its industry. It still has manufactures of hampers and hats, 11 oil and 12 flour mills, and a tannery but the inhabitants are now chiefly engaged in agriculture and cattle-rearing. Here were celebrated, in 1170 the nuptials of Alonso VIII. of Castile, with Leonora, daughter of Henry I. of England. P. 6418.

TARAZONA, a tn. Spain, prov. Albacete, 118 m. S.E. Madrid. It has a townhouse, prison, hospital, two schools, a parish church and a hermitage. Pop. (agricultural) 5257.

TARBAQATAL, a dun. Chinese Tarbatach between Cobdo and the Kirghis steppes, and inhabited chiefly by emigrants from the latter. The chief town, called Tughechuk by the Kirghis, and Buzhing-ching by the Chinese, is situated in lat. 46° 5' N., lon. 82° 38' E.; near the S. base of the Tarbagatai Mountains, a lofty chain between the lakes Zassan and Halkach Nor; and contains about 800 houses, half of which belong to the garrison. It is one of the nine fortified towns under the control of the commandant at Kuldaba, and a place of some trade with the Kirghis. There are about 2500 Manchoo and Chinese troops stationed here, with two regiments invested with high powers to superintend the trade and intercourse across the frontier. (Middle Kingdom.)

TARBAT par. Scot. Ross; 6400 ac. Pop. 3151.

TARBENA, a tn. Spain, Valencia, prov. and about 36 m. N. E. Alicante, with a church, courthouse, primary school and the ruins of an old Moorish castle, manufactures of linen, several oil-mills, and a trade in corn, oil, and silk. P. 1978.

TARBERT a small town in Ireland, co. Kerry, 34 m. W. by S. Limerick, at the head of an inlet of the Shannon, called Tarbert Bay. It possesses a neat church, a R. Catholic chapel, and a small Methodist meeting-house. The Tarbert Bay affords the best anchorage on the S. side of the county. Pop. 995.

TARBERT (Karr), a small seaport tn. Scotland, co. Argyre, picturesquely situated on a very narrow isthmus, which unites the districts of Kintyre and Knapdale. It has an Established chapel, a Free church, and a good herring-fishery. Steamers from Glasgow ply regularly to Tarbert, where passengers and goods are taken across the isthmus, on their way to Islay, &c.—(WATER TARNET). A vil. about 1 m. from above, across the isthmus, with a good quay at the head of W. Tarbert Loch, an arm of the sea, 10 m. long, by about 1 m. broad. Steamers ply regularly from W. Tarbert to Islay.

TARBES [anc. Castrum Augustanum], a tn. France, dep. Hautes-Pyrenees, beautifully situated, 110 m. S. Bordeaux, in full view of the Pyrenees, 1 bank Adour, here crossed by a handsome bridge. It is a well-built cheerful-looking town, kept remarkably clean by means of canals supplied from the river; and possesses five promenades and three good squares. Its principal edifices are the cathedral a modern structure, erected on the site of the old castle of the counts of Bigorre, of which Tarbes was the capital, the church of St. John, the church of the Carmelites, with a remarkable spire the prefecture occupying the old episcopal palace; the civil hospital, college, and barracks. The manufactures consist of leather and paper and the trade, which is important, includes, besides these articles, white wine, iron, cattle and agricultural produce. Tarbes is the see of a bishop, the seat of a court of first resort and of commerce, and possesses a communal college, ducanary, and agricultural society. It is mentioned by Caesar under the name of Bigorra, and afterwards, under the Romans, became one of the principal cities of Aquitania. On the decline of the empire it was ravaged in succession by the Goths, Vandals, Alains, and Visigoths. It afterwards passed to the English monarchs as part of the dowry of Queen Eleanor, and remained in their possession for 800 years. The Black Prince held his court at Tarbes. Pop. 11,838.

TARBOLTON, a burgh of barony and par. Scotland, co. and 7 m. N. E. Ayr. The village covers a considerable space of ground, and contains many neat houses. It has a hand some Established, a Free, and a L. Presbyterian church, a subscription library a savings bank, and two or three schools. Weaving in the various departments of cotton, woollen, linen &c. chiefly for Glasgow houses, constitutes the principal occupation of the inhabitants. Area of par. 12,500 ac. P. 2894.

TARČAL a market to Hungary Hither Themas, co. Zemplin, dist. and 2 m. W. Tokay in a remarkably fertile country. It has two churches, and a trade in the excellent Tokay wine and in fruit, corn, and cattle. Pop. 6415.

TARDEBIGG par. Eng. Worcester and Warwick 6994 ac. Pop. 6413.

TARDENOIR, an ancient dist. France which depended on the Sussanais and the gov. of Ile-de-France. It is now included in the 8 part of department Aunis. Lo-France-Tardenois was its capital.

TARDES, a river France, dep. Creuse flows circuitously N. N. E. into dep. Allier and about 7 m. above Montluçon joins 1 bank Cher, total course 40 m.

TARDONNE, a river France, rises in S. of dep. Haute-Vienne, flows circuitously W. enters dep. Charente, turns N. N. W. passing Rochefort and a little below, is lost in the ground near Cognac; total course, nearly 50 m.

TARLM, or TAROUX a tn. France, prov. Languedoc, 200 m. S. E. Narbonne. It is surrounded by a deep ditch, and lofty and battled walls, flanked with towers; has very narrow streets, three mosques, a caravansary, an indifferently furnished bazaar and a considerable trade with Bender-Abas, to which it sends corn, in exchange for sugar coffee, and Indian produce. Pop. 3000.

TARFF a small stream, Scotland, co. Perth, dist. of Athole; rises in the mountains which form the N. boundary of the county and flows E. to Glenmore, where it joins the Tilt.

TARIFA a maritime to Spain prov. Andalusia, and 53 m. N. W. Cadix, W. of the Strait of Gibraltar being 16 m. W. by S. Point of Europa and 25 m. S. E. Cape Trafalgar, lat. 36° 3' N.; lon. 5° 36' W. and forming the most S. point of Spain. It has two large and six small squares, one of the former used as a vegetable-market and irregular narrow, and indifferently-kept but clean streets, an hospital for the poor, a granary, several schools, two parish churches, several hermitages, and a very ancient Moorish castle, the residence of the Granatins, now the abode of galleys-slaves. The fortifications enclosing Tarifa, which were built by the Moors, consist of 26 towers and the same number of curtains, forming an irregular quadrangle but the real strength of the place lies in the rocky island, 100 by 600 yards, which projects into the sea, and on which is a fortress and a light-house, 135 ft. high, visible for 50 m. It has manufactures of leather, vermucelli, northernmost; several flour-mills, and a limited shipping trade. Tarja derives its name from Tar (an alkali, who landed here when sent by Munt, the Muscovite ambassador, to reconnoitre, before the invasion from Africa. It afterwards became a frontier bay of great importance. Sancho IV took it in 1399. Alonso Pareda de Guzman held it against the Moors in 1504. In 1540 it was again besieged by the Moors of Tunis and Granada, but after five weeks, the siege was raised by the kings of Castile and Portugal, who defeated the Muscovites. In 1811 it was defended by Colonel (now Lord) Gough, with 1800 British and 600 Spaniards, against a French force of 10,000. The Duke of Wellington had disapproval of the defence, because we had no right to expect that temporarily a small number would be able to hold Tarja, commanded as it is at short distances, and enfiladed in every direction and unprovided with artillery and the walls scarcely cannon-proof. The enemy however retired with disgrace infinitely to the honour of the brave troops who defended Tarja. — (Dug. Feb. 1, 1812) p. 8118.

TARJA, a dep. Bolivia lat. 21° to 22° S. lon. 63 to 64° W. estimated area, 15,000 sq. m. drained by the Tarja and its tributaries. It chiefly consists of high mountains and fertile valleys, with extremely rich pastures, feeding vast numbers of cattle and sheep. The capital, Tarja, is on the l. bank of the stream of the same name, and not far from its source. It is small but well built and contains 2000 inhabitants. — The river rises in the Mountains of Tacora, in the S. of Bolivia flows E. & E., forms part of the boundary between Bolivia and La Plata, enters the latter, flows S., and joins the Yunguyo, after a course of about 150 m.

TAREHAN (Cape), the most W. point of the Crimea. Black Sea lat. 45° 30' N. lon. 32° 19' 43" E. (n.) There is a highness on the cape, exhibiting a bright light, which in clear weather may be seen at a distance of 17 m.

TARKI, TARKOUB or TORKHAGALOVA, a m. Transcaucasian district, prov. Daghestan, in a large and deep valley which opens outward towards the Caspian Sea, 71 m. S.E. of Kizlar. It stands among immense masses of rock, among which it rises partly in the form of an amphitheatre, and is commanded by a strong fort. The houses are built with flat roofs, and the streets are very irregular but all the houses are well supplied with excellent water by means of aqueducts. A considerable trade is carried on with Persia, and the district around is well cultivated. Considerable attention is paid to the raising of silk worms. Pop. about 10,000.

TARLAND, a burgh of burgh Scotland, co. and 29 m. W. Aberdeen. The houses are neatly built, and to each is attached a small portion of land, in the cultivation of which the inhabitants are partly employed. It has a neat plain Established church, a library and a savings bank. Close by the village is a large coal-mine.

TARLAND and Misvie, par Scot. Aberdeen; 5 m. by 4 m. Pop. 1197.

TARLÉON par Eng. Lancaster 5408 ac. P 1945 TARMA, city, Pers. cap. dep. Fumia, 120 m. N.E. Lams. It is a favorite resort of nomads from different parts of the country, especially Lams. Its inhabitants are all agriculturists and mostly all the resident families emigrate during harvest-time to little farms in the vicinity. Pashas or local chiefs are manifested here, of great bounty and generosity. Pop. 6000.

TARN (anc. Turnus), a river France, rises on S. slope of Mount Lozère, near Florac, dep. Lozère, flows W. & W. through dep. Aveyron and Tarn, passing Alby turns N.W. crosses Haute-Garonne into Tarn-et-Garonne, where it passes Montauban, and shortly after turning almost due W. passes Mounes, and joins r. bank Garonne about 3 m. below. Its general estimate, as to the left, the Dordogne, Dourdon, Enne, and Agout, and on the right, the Tooton and Aveyron. Its whole course is 250 m., of which about 100 m., beginning at Alby are navigable.

TARN a dep. France, bounded on the N and N.E. by dep. Aveyron S.E. Hernalt, S. Ande, S.W. Haute-Garonne, and N.W. Tarn-et-Garonne; lat. 42° 30' to 44° 15' N. lon. 1° 30' to 2° 55' E.; greatest length, E. to W., 52 m. average breadth, 50 m. area, 2185 sq. m. The surface is intersected by hills, which generally terminate in flat summits, on which, as well as their sides, cultivation is successfully carried on. Only a few of the hills are rocky and barren, or so high as to be beyond the reach of the plough. Among the trees is the celebrated pine called the Pin de Montauban, 4500 ft. above the sea-level. Between the hills are several plains of considerable extent, on which, as well as the lower slopes, all the ordinary cereals are grown, in quantities more than sufficient to meet the home consumption. In some of the higher districts, hemp of excellent quality is raised, but there the principal crops are rye, oats, buckwheat, chestnuts, and walnuts. A considerable extent of the surface is devoted to the culture of the vine, the produce of which, to the extent of a half, is consumed on the spot, or converted into brandy, while the remainder is exported. The domestic animals are generally of good breed. The sheep yield good wool, which is mostly consumed by the manufacturers of the department. The horses are in much request for light cavalry. The principal rivers are the Tarn, the Agout, the Aude, the Lot, the Vézère, and the Dordogne. The minerals include iron and coal, both of which are partially worked, and there is also a mine of manganese. Fine and common broad-cloth serge, casimere, flannel and other woollen stuffs, common and table linen, blanketings, molokine cotton cloths, hosiery, coats, liquors, and confectionary are manufactured; and there are cottons and silk mills, brass-drawers, paper-mills, tanneries, distilleries, and four glass-works. The trade is chiefly in corn, wine, fruit, dried prunes, honey, wax, indigo, pastel, cattle, iron, coal, and timber. Tarn is divided into four arrondissements—Alby (the capital), Castres, Gaillac and Lavaur; subdivided into 55 cantons, and 811 communes. Pop. (1855), 263,073.

TARN-ET-GARONNE, a dep. France, bounded N. by dep. Lot, E. Aveyron and Tarn, S. Haute-Garonne, and W. Gers and Lot-et-Garonne lat. 43° 47' to 44° 33' N. lon. 0° 15' to 1° 58' E. It is nearly in the form of a triangle, with its vertex in the E. and its base in the W. greatest length, E. to W. 42 m. breadth, 28 m. area, 1405 sq. m. The surface is generally flat, but somewhat undulating and has a gradual slope to the W. It is occasionally broken by low hills or narrow valleys, and attains its greatest height in the S. and E. where there is a range of hills, in which several streams take their rise. The whole department belongs to the basin of the Garonne, which traverses it E. to N.W. and receives within it the accumulated waters of the Tarn and Aveyron, which are both navigable. There is very little land which can be called absolutely waste. About two-thirds of the surface are arable, one-eighth is in wood and one-tenth in vineyards. Much of the arable land lies along the banks of the rivers and consists of a rich alluvium, on which heavy crops of wheat, maize, hemp, and tobacco are grown. The best vine-districts lie between the Tarn and the Garonne, and much of the wine produced is of excellent quality. Either more than one-third of the produce is consumed on the spot and the remainder is exported or converted into brandy. Fruit of all kinds abounds, and the mulberry is extensively cultivated for the rearing of silk-worms. The breeds of domestic animals are of an indifferent description, with exception of swine, which are reared with considerable care, are very numerous, and form a principal source of wealth to the inhabitants. Poultry also, particularly ducks, geese, and turkeys, are reared on a large scale. Game of all kinds is abundant, and the rivers are well supplied with excellent fish. The minerals include iron in considerable quantity, a little coal, and some marble. Building-stone is found in almost every district. The most important manufactures consist of common woollen cloth and serge, linen goods, silk hosiery, cutlery, quills, starch, leather, soap, paper, and earthenware. The trade is extensive in corn, flour, wine, brandy, produce, oil, cotton, and some of the above articles of manufacture. The department is divided into three arrondissements—Montauban (the capital), Castel Sarrazin, and Moissac; subdivided into 74 cantons, and 193 communes. Pop. (1855) 327,553.

TARNOGROD, a m. Russian Poland, 62 m. S. Lublin, with some general trade. Pop. 1750.

TARNOPOL, a m. Austrian Galicia, cap. circle, l. bank Sereth, 70 m. E.S.E. Lemberg. It contains a Russian Catholic and a Greek Catholic church, a Jesuit college, a philosophical department (institution), gymnasium, a high school for the clergy, and several other schools, and has numerous factories, but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. Pop. (1848), 16,988.

some remarkable remains, supposed to be those of a temple dedicated to Jupiter or the moon. Turan is said to have been founded by the Assyrian king Sardanapalus. It was taken by both Cyrus and Alexander and is famous as having been the native city of the apostle Paul. Pop. about 7000.

TARTARAGHAN, par Iran, Aragh; 8666 sq. P. 6744.

TARTARO a river Italy, Venetia, runs to the sea. Paron; flows S. and E. past Villafra, and enters with the Castagnaro in the Bianco canal, total course, 60 m.

TARTARY a name commonly but erroneously applied to all that wide band of country extending through Central Asia from the sea of Japan and Okhotsk in the E. to the Caspian on the W., and including Manchouria, Mongolia, with the country of the Kaliks, Soogiana, and E. Turkistan, all comprised within the Chinese Empire, Independent Turkistan (Bokhara, Khiva, the Kirghiz steppes, &c.) and all the E. part of the Russian dominions in Asia. It has been even held (Hist. Gen. Voy.) to include a large portion of European Russia, as far N. as the gords of Kases and Perm, and W. to the river Don, thus comprising most part of the gords. Orskburg, Astrakhan, Ekaterinoburg, the Cossack provinces, and the Crimea, which last has been called Little Tartary. A considerable portion of the population in this European division is of the Tartar or true Turkish race, and was formerly under the Turkish scepter; and a tribe of Tartars is also settled in Bulgaria, W. of the Black Sea. But the Manchous and Mongols are not true Tartars (or Turks), and that name was improperly annexed to them in Europe from their having been confounded with the latter who were conquered by the Mongol Genghis-Khan. In a more restricted and proper sense Tartary is identical with Turkistan (which see).

TARTARY (GULF OF) See TARAKAI.

TARTAS [anc. Tartarum] a N. France, dep. Landes, on the Melouze, here crossed by a bridge, 70 m. S. Bordeaux. It has a small manufactory, manufactures of dressed oil, vinegar, and leather, and carries on a considerable trade in corn, wine, bread, fruit, mutton wool, various southern, game, and Bayonne items. Pop. 1918.

TARTLAU or TARTILLON a market in Austria, Transylvania, E.N.E. Kreutzdorf, on a small stream. It has spacious streets, houses generally well built, a Protestant church surrounded with a castellated wall, containing cellars in which most of the merchandise of the town is deposited. Pop., chiefly German, 4000.

TARTULZ, a vil. Hungary Thither-Thomas, co Szathmar 13 m. from Aranyos-Medgyes, with a Greek church. P. 1914.

TARVEL, par Scot. Aberdeen 9 m. by 6 m. P. 3469.

TARVIN a vil. and par England, co. and S.W. E. Chester near the canal from Chester to Manchester, and the railway from Chester to Crewe, with an ancient church, three chapels of ease, several dissenting chapels, a grammar and a superior private school; smeltworks-quarries, and an annual cattle-fair, inhabitants chiefly employed in agriculture. Area of par, 10,571 ac. Pop. 3511.

TARVIS (Latin, Trevis) a market in Austria, Carinthia, circle and 10 m. S.W. Villach, near L. bank Gailitz. It has extensive iron-works and manufactures of shovels. Two battles were fought here, one in 1797 and another in 1809. Pop. 1290.

TASHBURGH, par Eng. Norfolk; 918 ac. Pop. 475.

TASHI ARJAK, a N. Central Asia khanate, so close to Khiva as to be almost its suburb. It is an old place, and was once of considerable importance, but a large part of it has been buried by shifting sands. It consists of 150 houses.

TASHI-HAYAT, a N. Central Asia khanate and 43 m. N.W. Khiva, on a canal led from the Amoo. It lies high has about 200 northern huts, a circle of the khans, with a garden; and a fortress in the form of a regular square, surrounded by an earthen wall of great thickness, and covered by two gates. Between the canal and the fortress stand a row of houses forming the bazaar. The articles exposed for sale are cotton and mixed silk goods, grain, fruit, furs, and some articles of handicraft. The inhabitants are Uzbeks, Turcomans, and Karakalpaiks.

TASCO, a N. Mexican Confederation, dep. and 65 m. S. by W. Mexico, on the frontier of the Sierra Madre, 5658 ft. above sea-level; though now comparatively insignificant, it became, soon after the Spanish conquest, the centre of a most important mineral region, at first worked only for tin, but afterwards found to be most productive of silver. Among its buildings is a very handsome parish church.

TASHI-JARAT, or KURAN, a N. Asiatic Turkey, Anatolia, 1 bank Gök Irmak, lat. 41° 28' N., lon. 34° 20' E.; has baths, khans, manufactures of leather and iron wares; and is said to consist of 1500 houses.

TASHKENT, or TASHKENT, a N. Independent Turkestan, co. khassate of same name, on the Tashkent, near the junction of the Sir-Darya or Jaxartes, in a fertile oasis covered with gardens, 90 m. N.W. Kokan. It is surrounded by a lofty wall of dried bricks, about 12 m. in circuit, and is entered by 15 gates. The streets are very narrow, but, however, in consequence of the crowding of the houses, but of the number of gardens and vineyards, whose walls approach so nearly as to leave only lanes between them. The water, led from the river by canals, furnishes a copious supply to numerous fountains, and almost every house has its fountains and its bath. Most of the houses are composed of mud, and have a very mean appearance. The principal buildings are the castle or residence of the khan, surrounded by walls and ditches, several large mosques, a very extensive bazaar, numerous colleges, and a number of old temples surmounted by cupolas. The manufactures of silk and cotton goods are said to employ about a half of the inhabitants. The only other manufacture of any consequence is gunpowder, which is made of tolerably good quality and appears to have been known from a very early period. The manufacture of iron is in a very primitive and imperfect state. The trade, carried on chiefly by caravans, is very extensive, and consists in imports of raw woolen and silk stuffs, indigo, and the precious metals, brought chiefly from Bokhara and Russia. Leather, other-dried linen, looking-glasses, razors and combs of European manufacture, Uralian iron and copper, obtained from the Russian possessions in Europe or Siberia. The chief returns for these imports are cattle, obtained from the Kirghiz, nitre, and large quantities of so-called sedary-seeds. Pop. estimated at 80,000.

The KHANATE is bounded N. and E. by a range of mountains, separating it from the Black Kirghiz, and at its highest part to be covered with perpetual snow. S.E. by Kokan, S.W. Bokhara; and W. the desert of Kara. It consists chiefly of a large and fertile oasis, watered by the Sir Darya, which traverses it in a N. direction and is augmented on its E. bank by numerous streams. The chief feature in the climate is the excessive heat of summer, during which not a drop of rain ever falls. In spring, however, and also in autumn, it falls copiously and induces a very luxuriant vegetation. In winter, the cold, though considerable, is not severe. Snow is frequent, but never lies long, and ice on the rivers is quite unknown. The principal crops, sown usually in March and September, are rye and wheat, often grown together, rice, barley, and spelt, and the produce is so abundant that twenty-fold is considered only as average. Artificial grasses are cultivated, often in gardens, for the horses and camels which are kept in the town, and form the chief domestic animals, and such is the scarcity of timber, that willows and aspens are regularly grown for fuel, and for this purpose occupy in gardens as much space as fruit-trees. Other plants cultivated to some extent are cotton and the mulberry for feeding silk-worms. Owing to the long summer-drought, all cultivation requires the aid of irrigation, the means of which are supplied by numerous small canals of them 12 m. long. Instead of raising cattle, the people trust to the Kirghiz for their supply. The principal minerals appear to be iron and copper, though it is alleged that gold was worked in ancient times, and may still be found.

The people of Tashkent closely resemble those of Kokan and Bokhara in person, language, manners, and religion. Their early history is involved in obscurity and the unsettled rights of rival dynasties still keep up an incessant political commotion. Towards the end of last century three chiefs claimed the dignity of Khan, and lived at the same time within the city, in fortified castles. At this time the Miran was so great that it was not said to walk the streets unattended. Yous Khodji, one of the chiefs, at last gained the ascendancy, and succeeded so well in restoring order, that the Sultan, in 1800, found the state in a flourishing condition. Since then various changes have taken place, and it is understood that the Khan of Kokan now rules Tashkent by a deputy.

TASHKENT, a N. European Turkey, Bouda, 66 m. A.E. Bouda; the site of a Greek bishop. Pop. 4000.

TATLEY, par Eng Salley; 1861 ac. Pop. 68.

TATMANIA, see Van Diemen's Land.

TATMAN'S HEAD, Van Diemen's Land, most S. point of Bruny Island; lat. 43° 35' S., lon. 147° 55' E.

TATMAN'S PENINSULA, Van Diemen's Land, S.E. coast of the island, forming the E. side of Storm Bay.

TATNAD, or TATNADZANO, a in Hungary, co. Szabolc, 12 m. from Nagy-Károly, with several churches, a synagogue, and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 3070.

TATNIN, a in W. Africa, on a circular height washed by a small but deep and rapid river, 30 m. N. E. Free Town. It is a large place, fenced with mud-walls about 2 ft. high, and pierced at intervals of 2 ft. or 3 ft. with holes for musketry. The houses are large, commodious, and in good repair surrounded by walls, and having yards behind them the only religious edifice is a mosque, which is merely a shed in ruins.

TATNISON the modern cap. of Bataan; lat. 27° 5' N., lon. 99° 40' E., about 380 m. N. N. E. Calcutta, a highly cultivated valley intersected by the Tehnibou. The castle or palace of Tatumson is situated near the centre of the valley and is a stone building of a quadrangular form. The island is a very lofty highland. Tasting of seven stones, each from 16 ft. to 30 ft. high. Near Tatumson many workmen are employed in forging brass goods, and various ornaments dispersed about their religious edifices and there is also a considerable manufactory of paper, fabricated from the bark of a tree which grows in great abundance near the city.

TATNITZ, a vil. Austria, Moravia, circle and 32 m. N. W. Enns with a church, a school, and a large mill P. 1148.

TATA, Torma, or Doris, a in Hungary. See Doris.

TATAY, a seaport in Philippines, cap. prov. Calabanga, N. E. shore, lat. Palawan. It is a poor place, defended by a small fort; has a church and a governor's house, and is never free from insubordinate fever. Pop. 2925.

TATENHILL, par Eng Stafford, 9408 ac. Pop. 2528.

TATHAM, par Eng Lancaster; 8501 ac. 1 pop. 654.

TATHWELL, par Eng Lincoln, 4814 ac. Pop. 429.

TATHON, an isl. France, off N. E. coast dep. Manche, strongly fortified, and forming one of the defences of the roadstead of La Hague.

TATBA a group of mountains, Europe belonging to the W. Carpathians (see see).

TATBANG, or TATBANGKUN, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, dist. and S. E. Kronstadt on a small stream of same name. It has two churches and an unincorporated spring P. 1961.

TATBEN LEO, a in China, prov. Schensi, on the Chinese military frontier, whence troops and caravans start for Tibet; lat. 30° 8' 24" N. lon. 108° N. It is surrounded by good walls, and otherwise fortified in the Chinese fashion, and has large annual fairs, at which all the imports and exports of Tibet are brought to market. Pop. about 50 000.

TATFIELD, par Eng Surrey; 1315 ac. Pop. 168.

TATTA, a in empire and 210 m. E. by E. Morocco, on the borders of the desert. It is a considerable caravan station, and the seat of a great annual fair. Pop. about 10 000.

TATTA, a in Brundis, at a variable distance W. of the India, near its divergence into the great eastern and western arms of its delta, and 48 m. S. S. W. Hyderabad. lat. 24° 44' N., lon. 68° E. It stands on a slight eminence, composed of the remains of former buildings, ruins of which extend around it to a distance of 10 m. on its S., and 3 m. on its N. W. side. Throughout this extent, over an area 80 m. in circuit an ancient town has succeeded each other on different sites, as the Indians has altered its character; during the inundation of the river the town is nearly inundated, and after its subsidence, all the vicinity is unhealthy owing to stagnant pools. The external appearance of the town is picturesque, its lofty flat-roofed houses being interspersed with fine trees but the dwellings are unsanitary and internally Tatta is mean and gloomy. All the houses are furnished with windmills on the roof, to procure ventilation in the intensely hot season. The town has some manufactures of cotton goods and kempas—fabrics of cotton and silk, with gold-thread interwoven, but its commerce is generally declined. It is supposed to be the Tatta of Alexander's historians. In 1555 it was pillaged by the Portuguese, and in 1625 destroyed during Akbar's invasion of W. India. A British factory was founded here in 1756.

TATTARAN, one of the Sooloo Is., between Basilan and Malacca Is.; lat. 6° 10' N., lon. 122° 0' E.

TATTENHALL, par Eng Chester; 4184 ac. P. 1204.

TATTENHOL, par Eng Shetland; 690 ac. Pop. 66.

TATTERFORD, par Eng Northall; 855 ac. Pop. 88.

TATTERSEET, par Eng Norfolk; 1799 ac. Pop. 183.

TATTERSHALL, a small market tn. and par. England, co. and 17 m. S. E. Lincoln, on the Bain. It has a marketplace in which is an octagonal column formerly surmounted by a cross; a handsome cruciform church a Wesleyan chapel, a national school, and a reading-school. Brewing is carried on here to some extent, and there is a considerable trade in malt. Area of par. 4590 ac. Pop. 997.

TATTINGSTON, par Eng Suffolk; 1697 ac. P. 597.

TATIAI one of the Sandwich Islands. See Atoua.

TAUBATE, a in Brazil, prov. and 100 m. E. N. E. São Paulo. It has a handsome parish and two other churches, a Franciscan monastery, a manufactory, and numerous sugar-works and distilleries. The inhabitants of the district are very industrious, and the Indians among them make numerous articles of sapato Tobacco, cotton, coffee, sugar, millet, and haricots are grown and many cattle are reared. (Pop. (dist.), 10 000.)

TAUBER a river, Germany, issues from a lake of some name in the Hunsgrwald, on the confines of Würtemberg and Bavaria, 9 m. S. S. W. Rottenburg, flows N. W. then W. S. W., enters Baden, flows N. W. past Hohenheim, where it becomes navigable, and joins L. bank Main, near Wertheim after a course of about 35 m.

TAUCHA, a in Saxony circle and 7 m. E. N. E. Leipzig r. bank Prussia with manufactures of cloth, a brewery, and three annual fairs. Pop. 3095.

TAUCZ, a vil. Hungary co. and 25 m. from Arad, at the foot of Mount Ezerova on the side of which are two large churches in ruins. It has several mills, and a trade in cattle, sheep, swine goats and honey. Pop. 1180.

TAUGHBOYNE, par Ir. Dubougl., 15,774 ac. P. 4651.

TAUGON LA ROCHER, a in France, dep. Charente-Inférieure on a height, 16 m. N. N. E. La Rochelle, and near L. bank Sèvre-Niortaise. Pop. 1400.

TAUGGAON, or TANGGAON a in Hindoostan, prov. Benares, 175 m. S. S. E. Bombay. It is fortified and has a celebrated temple of Gungpli, with a lofty pyramidal, pyramidal porch of seven stories, numerous images crowding its interior, and three black monoliths or spires.

TAUIGNAN, a in France dep. Drome, is a rich wine district, 16 m. S. E. Montelimart, with a square adorned with a fine fountain silk mills, tanneries, and life-works. P. 1218.

TAUNDA, two small tn. India.—1, Prov. Oude, r. bank Gogra, 35 m. S. E. Fyzabad, lat. 26° 33' N. lon. 82° 33' E.

—2, Prov. Malwah, r. bank Anas, about 15 m. W. Jabul, lat. 22° 58' N. lon. 74° 20' E.

TAUNTON, a market tn. and mun. and port for Eng., co. Somerset, in the centre of a beautiful and fertile vale on the Thone or Tone here crossed by a stone-bridge of two arches, on the Taunton and Bridgewater canal, and on the Bristol and Exeter branch of the Great Western railway 88 m. S. S. W. Bristol. It is surrounded by orchards, gardens, and rich meadows and consists of spacious and well paved streets, and houses mostly of brick, but generally commodious and handsome. It is lighted with gas and supplied with excellent water. The principal buildings and objects of note are the parish churches of St. James and St. Mary Magdalene, the former an elegant and commodious, the latter a magnificent structure, in the Decorated and late English styles, consisting of a chancel, nave, and four aisles, and a fine quadrangular tower, pinnacled and richly ornamented, and 165 ft. high a district church built of beautiful white limestone and surmounted by a neat tower two independent, two Wesleyan, two Baptist, and Quaker R. Catholics, Unitarian, Brethren and Bible Christian chapels; free grammar national British, infant, and other schools a Wesleyan college, a Taunton Institution, consisting of a library, and the museum of the Somersetshire Archaeological and Natural History Society, a mechanics institute, an old market-house, adorned in a spacious open area called the Parade, and consisting of a large brick building, in the lower arcades of which the corn-market is held, while the upper part contains a goldsmith and assembly-room, the castle, still in good preservation, and containing excellent accommodation for the militia and other troops; a theatre, hot and cold baths, an hospital, an eye-infirmary, a house of correction, and several almshouses. The written manuscript, for which the town was long celebrated, has given way to that of silk, which employs a considerable number of hands in making organs, perianths, ornaments, and mixed goods. Sewing has also been made, and the sale of the produce is celebrated. The trade consists chiefly in imports of Welsh coal, and exports of agricultural produce. The two weekly markets are well supplied with fish and other provisions; there are also monthly markets, chiefly for live stock; and two annual fairs. Taunton is of great antiquity and appears, from the discovery of urns with Roman coins, to have been a Roman station. About 700 A. D., Iud, king of the West Saxons, built a castle here. Near Taunton another castle was built by William the Conqueror. It figures in English history, and during the civil war, when held by the Parliamentarians, made a celebrated defense against the Royalists. The Duke of Monmouth was proclaimed king here in 1685, and the inhabitants, in consequence, suffered much from the cruelties of the notorious Jeffries during his 'bloody castle.' Taunton has returned two members to Parliament since 1285. P 14 178

TAUNTON, a m. U. States, Massachusetts, in a beautiful district, commanding some picturesque lake scenery at the junction of a river of same name with the Mill, and on the railway from Boston to New Bedford, 55 m. S. Boston. It is well built and contains a great number of handsome old houses, ranged around and in the vicinity of an inclosure called Taunton Green, which is adorned with fine trees, and gives the whole place a peculiar charm. At a short distance from the Green is Mount Pleasant cemetery beautifully laid out, and containing a chaste monument, erected by the ladies of Taunton to the memory of Miss Elizabeth Pool a lady of family who left Taunton in England, and settled here with the bold design of planting a church among the Indians in its wilderness. The public edifices include 10 churches, a court-house, adorned with an Ionic portico, two academies, a town-house, and jail. The manufactures consist of Britannia ware, which, in regard both to quality and beauty of polish is said to equal any that is imported. Cattle, made on a very extensive scale, various articles in leather, hats, stove-boilers, chairs, brooms, books, &c. Iron-works, established here as early as 1652, are still prosperous, and there is also a large number of cotton and paper mills, print works, foundries, &c. The Taunton being navigable for small vessels, enables the inhabitants to have soon coming trade, in addition to that furnished by the above manufactures. Pop. (1850), 10,481

TAUNUS, or Hartz, a mountain range in the W of Germany N. of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and S. of the Westerwald, stretching through the S. of Hesse in a W. S. W. direction, till it becomes linked with the Hunsrück, and separating the valley of the Main from that of the Lahn. Its culminating point, the Feldberg, situated N. W. of Frankfurt has a height of 2180 ft. Its rocks are composed chiefly of aluminous, greywacke, and clay-slate, basalt, long supposed not to be present, has recently been discovered, forming a kind of nucleus in the heart of other rocks. The mountains, particularly towards the E., are rich in minerals including iron, lead, copper, and silver. It is in general well wooded. The name of Taunus is sometimes confined to the N. part of the range, the W. part taking the name of Kinrick, or Hayzick.

TAUR, a vil. Tyrol, Austria, near Hall. It has a church, a school, and a feudal castle. Pop. 1850

TAURANGA a harbor, New Zealand, S. W. side of the Bay of Plenty, in the North Island, or New Ulster, lat. 37° 51' S. lon. 176° 11' E. Its S. headland is formed by the isolated, conical hill, Manganui, about 1500 ft. high, and connected with the mainland by a low isthmus. There are several islands near the entrance, and though there are four fathoms water on the bar, the channel is so narrow, and turns so sharply, that it could not easily be taken by a large vessel.

TAURANO, a vil. Naples, prov. Layore, E. S. E. Nola; with two churches and a convent. Pop. 1290.

TAURASI a m. Naples, prov. Principato-Ultra, N. W. San Angelo di Lombardi, near a bank Colore; with three churches and a Dominican convent.

TAURIDA (German, Taurien) a gov. in the S. of Russia, bounded N. by Ekaterinoslav N. W. Kherson, from which it is separated by the Dnieper, S. W. A., and S. E. by the Black Sea; and E. by the Sea of Azov; greatest length, N. to S., 220 m., breadth very various, but averaging about 170 m. ; area, 13,391 sq. m. It is very irregular in shape, and being united to the land only where it borders with the Black Sea for about 90 m., may be regarded as one large peninsula, subdivided again into two minor peninsulas, of which that in the S., now called the Crimea, and well known in ancient times as the Chersonesus, is the more fertile; the isthmus which connects it with the N. portion being in its narrowest not more than 8 m. The N. peninsula consists almost entirely of an extensive steppe, generally without a tree, and in many parts composed of parched and saline sands, where vegetation is almost extinct; but in other parts composed of fertile loams, capable of raising any kind of crop, and often covered with verdant pastures. This steppe continues across the isthmus into the Crimea, and stretches S. as far as the Salghir, which, though a small stream, is the largest properly within the government, but beyond this river a considerable change takes place, the surface becomes beautifully diversified, and gradually rises, till in the S. it forms a range of lofty hills running parallel with the coast, and known by the name of the Mountains of Elia, chiefly composed of limestone, and culminating in Tschir-Dagh, 4700 ft. The climate is on the whole temperate, but winter is often severe, and the streams are covered with ice. The warmest spots are to the S. of the Elia, but the lagoons along the coast make them unhealthy, and fevers are very frequent. The S. coast along the Sea of Azov is particularly pestiferous, and by a narrow belt induces a long expanse of stagnant water, known by the evocative name of the Putrid Sea. The natural fertility of considerable tracts in the Crimea made it at one time to be regarded as the granary of the Black Sea, and even in the N. peninsula there are many spots capable of yielding abundant crops of all kinds of grain; but owing partly to a scarcity of hands, and partly to the indolent habits of the population, the produce is comparatively insignificant. Agriculture is much less in favor than the rearing of cattle, and the people show a decided preference for animal food and dairy produce. Besides corn, considerable quantities of hay, hemp, flax and tobacco are grown, and in some parts cotton has been introduced. Fruit of all kinds is abundant. Many of the hills in the S. are clothed with fine timber. The principal mineral substances are salt, sulphate, and asphalt. Marbles of good quality is quarried, and fine agates and rock crystals are occasionally found. The extent of sea-coast furnishes ample scope for fisheries. That of the sturgeon is carried on to a considerable extent. Little progress has been made in manufactures and trade. The former are almost confined to leather and candles; the latter includes, in very limited quantities, corn and fruit, indigo, honey, and salt. The population is much mixed, and includes Russians, Germans, Greeks, and Armenians, in considerable numbers, but the great majority are Tatars. Taurida is divided into seven circles—Simferopol (the capital) Perekop, Eupatoria, Theodosia or Kaffa, Alusht, and Orskov. The chief seaport is the naval station of Sevastopol. P 594,000.

TAURIS, a m. Persia. See Taurus.

TAURISANO, a m. Naples, prov. Otranto, S. E. Gallipoli, with a church and two almshouses. Pop. 1300.

TAURUS, a mountain-chain, Asiatic Turkey, usually considered as commencing in the E. on the Zaghras, at the Mesopotamian pass, Marshy whence it stretches W., nearly parallel to the coast of the Mediterranean, for about 400 m., terminating to the N. of the Gulf of Aden. In the E. it takes the name of Jebel-Kurim, in the W. that of Hamadan Ogion Balahar. It sends off several branches, of which the most remarkable are Alma-Dagh, which proceeds S. into Syria, and becomes linked with the chain of Lebanon; and the Anti-Taurus, which proceeds N. E., sending out ramifications which become linked with Arrat, Ribnor, and Caucasus.

TALAN, DAWROV, or FURZA, a villet m. Bohemia, circle and 17 m. W. by N. Klattau; with a castle, three churches, high school, hospital, and Augustinian monastery; and important manufactures of ribbons. Pop. 6015.

TAUSTE, a m. Spain, Aragon, prov. and 27 m. N. W. of Saragossa, a bank Arba, near its confluence with the Ebro. It has a square, a church, two schools, an hospital, school, convent, numerous hermitages; and manufactures of liquors, salted, and coarse linens, and two flour-mills. P. 3661 TAVANNES (German, Dachtelöde), a vil. and par. Switzerland, em. and 22 m. N. W. Bern, at the foot of Pierre Pertuis; a well-built place, with an ancient church. P. 1066.

TAYASTHUUS, a m. Finland. See TAWASTHUS.
TAYDA, a river, Adiatia Esmia, gov. Tobolsk. It is formed by the junction of the Bova, Novia, and Palin, which have their sources on the E. side of the Ural Mountains; flows S.E., and after a course of about 200 m., joins I. bank Tobol, about 60 m. above Tobolsk.

TAYENNA, a m. Naples, prov. Salerno, N.W. Lucania. Near it is a sulphurous spring. Pop. 1500.

TAYENNA, a m. Naples, prov. Calabria-Ultra II. 11 m. N.W. N. Osmara, I. bank Alii, with five churches, adorned with fine pictures by Fredi, commonly known by the name of the Calabrus, a native of the town. Pop. 2280.

TAYEBE, or TAYBA, a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. and 3 m. E.N.E. Pilsbong, with one of the finest parish churches in the canton. Near it are the remains of the old castle of Muggenburgh, the ancient Montecassin. Pop. 2448.

TAYEBHAM, par. Eng. Norfolk. 2069 ac. Pop. 977.

TAVIANO, a m. Naples, prov. Otranto, 7 m. S.E. Gallipoli, not far from the Gulf of Taranto. It has two convents and an hospital. Pop. 1500.

TAVIGNANO, a river, Corsica, rises near the centre of the island, flows N.E., then S.E., and falls into the Mediterranean, after a very circuitous course of about 50 m.

TAVIRA, a m. and seaport, Portugal, prov. Algarve, at the mouth and on both sides of the Roca, which forms a small harbour and is crossed by a bridge of seven arches. It is well and regularly built and has several handsome squares adorned with fountains, an elegant governor's palace, and two parish churches, an hospital, orphan asylum, and house of retreat. The coasting trade is considerable, and a great number of the inhabitants are engaged in fishing. Pop. 8640.

TAVISTOCK, a market m. and par. England co. Devon in the picturesque valley of the Tavy which is here crossed by two bridges, and on the Plymouth canal 11 m. Plymouth. It stands partly on the rocky sides and partly at the bottom of the vale, is irregularly built and has an ancient and spacious church, with a tower rising on arches, beneath which a thoroughfare, independent, Walsley, Frieside, and Untarke chapels, a free school occupying a new and handsome building, national, British, and infant schools a literary and scientific institution, a library the remains of a celebrated monastery, a warehouse, manufacture of serge and woollen cloths, a large iron-foundry, a weekly market, chiefly for corn and several large cattle and general fairs there are copper-mines in the vicinity, and lead, tin, man ganes, and iron are abundant in the district. Sir Francis Drake was a native of Tavistock. It sends two members to Parliament. Pop. (n.), 5090. Area of par., 10,700 ac. Pop. 8147.

TAVOLARA [anc. Haracoe], an islet off N.E. coast, Isl. Sardinia, near the entrance of the Bay of Terranova; lat. (N. point) 40° 54' 48" N. lon. 9° 46' E. (s.) It is rather less than 3 m. long, by about 1 m. broad, and consists of a mass of compact limestone, which attains the height of nearly 1000 ft.

TAVOUB, or Umm Janin, a river, Asiatic Turkey, Anatolia, rises in Mount Dabnigh, flows S.W. and falls into the Mediterranean N.E. of the island of Rhodes at the harbour of Kalamoti, after a course of about 80 m.

TAVOY, or Tavay, a m. riven, prov. and lat. Further India, Tenasserim provinces. The river I. bank river about 35 m. above its mouth, lat. 14° 6' N. lon. 98° 10' E. (s.), occupies a low situation, which, during the rainy season, becomes almost a swamp, and is defended by a fort, and surrounded partly by an outer and wholly by an inner wall, the latter built of burned bricks, and about 2½ m. in circuit. The basins are well supplied, and the trade is considerable. Near the town a mass of native leadstone occurs, and at a short distance from it is a hill entirely composed of specular iron-ore.—The river has a very intricate navigation in the depth, which is many places varies from 5 to 8, 10, or 15 fathoms, becoming in places not more than 3 or 4 fathoms.—The provinces has a diversified and often elevated surface, but consists chiefly of low tracts, on which the great staple product is rice. The soil is generally fertile, and delicious fruits are abundant.—The island forms the largest and most N. of the extensive chain which fronts the Tenasserim coast, and is called the Mergui or Tenasserim Archipelago. It is a ridge and comparatively narrow belt, stretching about 18 m. N.W. to S.E., with an average breadth of not more than 2 m. The shoals and islands make the navigation dangerous, but on its N. side there is a good and well-sheltered harbour, which has received the name of Port Owen.

TAVY, a river, England, co. Devon, rises in Dartmoor, flows S.E.W., and enters the Tamar, 2 m. N.E. Saltsch.

TAW, a river, England, co. Devon, near the centre of the county; flows to Barnstaple, then turns W., and joins the Tordridge, at the mouth in the Bristol Channel.

TAWALLY an Isl. Indian Archipelago, opposite the S.W. end of Isl. Gilolo lat. 0° 50' S. lon. 137° 3' E. (s.) It is about 35 m. long, by 5 m. broad.

TAWASTHUUS, a m. Russia, Finland, co. or lio of its name, on the E. shore of a lake of same name, 80 m. N.E. Abo. It is almost entirely built of wood, but with considerable regularity; the houses being generally of two stories. It contains a church, finely seated on a height, and an arsenal, and has some general trade, and two annual fairs. Adjoining it is the large estate of Kronoberg, now converted into a prison where, in 1847 there were 700 prisoners. P. (1841), 2171.

TAWEE-TAWEE ISLANDS. See Sooloo.

TAWNASH par. Irel. Sligo 33½ ac. Pop. 313.

TAWROW, or TAWROWKALA, a m. Russia, gov. and 12 m. S. Voronez, on a river of same name. It was once fortified by Peter the Great, and provided with extensive docks, with the view of making it an important naval yard, but the extension of the Russian territories, and the acquisition of ports in the Black Sea caused the design to be abandoned and Tawrow has gone to decay. It still contains two churches. Pop. 1000.

TAWSTOCK, par. Eng. Devon 6263 ac. Pop. 1884.

TAWTON (Bishope), par. Eng. Devon; 4983 ac. Pop. 20,004.

TAWTON (Norns) a vil. and par. England co. Devon, near the Taw, 12 m. N.W. Crediton; with a church, a chapel of ease, an independent chapel, manufactures of woollen goods and a freestone-quarry. Area of par., 5814 ac. P. 1908.

TAWTON (Severn), par. Eng. Devon; 10,579 ac. P. 1768.

TAXALIJ a vil. and par. England co. Chester on the Peak Forest canal 4 m. W. Chapel en-le-Frith with a church a Wesleyan chapel a bleachery-mill, collieries and quarries of slate and pavement. Area of par. 5088 ac. Pop. 698.

TAY, a large river, Scotland, co. Perth formed by two head streams, the one issuing from the N.E. end of Loch Tay and the other from Loch Lys, a small lake on the borders of Argyleshire. The two streams unite about 2 m. N.E. Loch Tay, whence the river flows about 18 m. N.E., after which its course is generally S.E. past Dunkeld and Perth, below which it opens out into a broad flat, 1 m. to 3 m. broad having an E.N.E. direction, separating the Perth and Forfar on the N. from co. Fife on the S. and terminating below Dundee in the North Sea, between Buttintown and Ferry porton-Craig total course, 120 m. to 180 m. area of basin, 2250 sq. m. The tide flows up the river to a point about 1 m. above Perth, in spring-tides, and rises at the latter about 10 ft. above the bed of the stream. Vessels of 500 tons ascend to Newburgh, and those drawing 9 ft. to Perth. Its principal tributaries are the Garry and Erioch from the N., and the Bray, Isla, Almond, Burn, &c. from the W. During the upper part of its course, the Tay flows with a rapid current through a wild and highly romantic country and subsequently, from Perth downwards, through the richest and finest valley in Scotland.—LOCH TAY, co. and 25 m. N.W. Perth, is a picturesque sheet of water, 15 m. long, and about 1 m. broad, receiving at its S.W. end the Lochy and the Dochart, and discharging at its N.E. end at Kemore by the Tay. It is 100 ft. to 600 ft. deep, well supplied with fish, and on its N.W. shore rises Ben Lawers, 5946 ft.

TAYA, a m. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and about 7 m. from Barcelona; with a church, manufactures of cotton and linen goods, and a trade in wine and oranges. Pop. 1907.

TAYA,—1 A group of high barren islands, six or seven in number China Sea, 12 m. off N.E. coast, Isl. Hainan. They extend N.E. by N., and S.W. by S. about 15 m. the most N. being in lat. 19° 58' N., lon. 111° 14' E.—2, A small Isl. Indian Archipelago, E. of Lingae; lat. 0° 46' E.; lon. 104° 54' E.

TAYAHAS, a m. Philippines, near S. coast, Isl. Luzon, cap. prov. of same name, 63 m. S.E. Manila. It is a large place, with spacious regular, clean, and well-paved streets, and well built houses, many of them of stone, and scaling well-supplied shops; and has a governor's house, a church, a convent, and a collection of fine and scarce native goods. Pop. 21 418. — The province, bounded N by the Bay of Lagos or Luena, and provs. Cameroons; E. Cameroons; S. the Mindero Sea, and W. provs. Laguna and Benue; is traversed, N to S, by the central chain of the island, containing several extinct volcanoes; generally well wooded, but is composed for the most part of low and humid plain, often flooded by the rains which fall almost without intermission, and make intercultivation very prevalent. Manufactures, particularly of cotton textiles, have made considerable progress and there is a good trade in various kinds of timber, rice, wax, pitch, cowrie, and excellent honey. Pop. 33 049.

TAYF or TAYNA, a town, Arabia, at the foot of Mount Khazneh, in a fertile and well-cultivated district, 70 m. E. Mecca. It is large, handsome, and defended by several forts. It has a large mosque, held in great veneration by the Mahommedans, who attribute to the town and district a sanctity nearly as great as that of Mecca itself.

TAYGETUS, a peak, Morea. See ELIAS.

TAYNTON two towns, Eng. — 1 Gloucester; 2501 ac. Pop. 681. — 2, Oxford 1780 ac. Pop. 375.

TAYTAQ, or TAYTAQADJOURD, a cape, W. coast, Patagonia lat. 48° 58' 20" S. lon. 75° 5' 10" W. It forms the S.W. point of the land containing the Chonos Archipelago, and is one of the most remarkable promontories on the coast, rising rugged, barren, and steep to the height of nearly 8000 ft.

TAZ, a river Shinarump, rises on the frontiers of gov. Tabolsk and Yuzovsk flows N N E. through a marshy country intersected by the Ostiaka, and after a course of nearly 800 m., falls into the Bay of Tanovak, which communicates with the Gulf of Ob.

TAZEEN a vil. Afghanistan, E. foot of the pass of the Huk-Kotal, 26 m. from Cabool lat. 34° 31' N; lon. 69° 35' E. It was one of the scenes of the massacre of the British troops, in their attempted retreat from Cabool, in January 1842. Here, subsequently, the British actually defeated a greatly superior force of Afghans.

TCHABKAN, or DIABKAN, a river Chinese Empire, Kalkin country which after a W. course of about 500 m., enters the Lake Mts-Aral near lat. 46° N, lon. 90° E.

TCHABLIAN, or TCHABAK, a ca. European Turkey Albania, peak, and 18 m. N. Soutari, with about 250 houses.

TCHAD TRAD, or CHAD, a lake, Central Africa, between Borno on the W., Kano on the N.E. and Baghram on the S.E. Wadai on the E., lies at a considerable distance from the lake. The name Tad does not appear to be known on the shores of the lake itself, and the travellers who first brought it into use have questioned its title whence they derived it. There is reason for suspecting that it belongs to some dialect of the Hausa language (Hochmann learned to apply it to the Quorra) and means, probably a great river or piece of water. The lake was first distinctly pointed out by Leo Africanus (16th century) the name Sen, which he seems to give it, being a misreading of his unpointed Arabic for Shari; the name of the Arab tribe inhabiting the S.E. shores of the lake—the Shewy of Deubana, and Shewy of Dr. Barth.

The geographical position of Lake Tad depends on that of Kouka, the capital of Borno, which has been recently ascertained to be lat. 12° 55' N. lon. 12° 50' E. or about a degree W. of the place hitherto supposed to be it. The N.W. shore of the lake, where it reaches its greatest W. and not far from its N. limit, lies in about lat. 14° 15' N. lon. 12° 50' E. From N. to S. it has probably an extent of 150 m. or 160 m. Its width, from E. to W., was estimated by Major Denham to be 120 m., but Dr. Overweg, relying chiefly on native information, reduces this to 60 m. or 80 m. The last-named traveller embarked on the lake at Modam, a boat-harbour a little to the E. of Kouka. For seven hours he made his way through narrow channels between small islands covered with stately reeds, in which numerous hippopotami fed shelter and at last entered the initial or open water. Steering N.E. for two days—the boat being towed at night to a floating island of reeds illuminated by fire-flies—he reached a polyarchy of islands, the largest of which did not exceed 5 m. in length. On one of these islands (Nikurdi) he spent four days, being treated with the greatest kindness by the natives. He then sailed farther E., still among islands, with now and then a view of the open sea, but he does not appear to have seen the shore N., E., or S., but was discomfited by the hideous from attempting to land on the S. side of the lake, where war in which many were implicated were then raging. Having touched at several islands, he returned to Modam, after six weeks spent with the very interesting and hospitable native population.

The inhabitants of the islands in the middle, and on the N.E. side of the lake, are the Biddama, an independent and pagan nation, but by no means savage, as Nikurdi reported. They seem to be of mixed origin, their islands having afforded a refuge, probably in the course of ages, to the persecuted of all surrounding nations. They are well made, and active, with jet-black or dark-brown complexion, and regular features. At the present day there are many Hamaboo and Shunk (Shafar or Arab shepherds) living among them. The Biddama of both sexes are densely clothed in cotton, generally black. They wear sandals also, and a profusion of ornaments. Some of the islands are densely peopled, having a large village to nearly every square mile. Cattle and goats are abundant; corn and cotton are the chief objects of cultivation. In respect of their boats, too, the Biddama are comparatively well off; they know how to build boats with plank and Dr. Overweg saw one thus constructed which measured 48 ft. in length, and 6 ft. in breadth. The boats are propelled with long poles, the use of oars, as well as of sails, being unknown. The people also habitually swim from island to island, aided by small boards or hand-floats.

This great fresh-water lake is comparatively shallow, its depth being found, by Dr. Overweg, to vary from 8 ft. to 15 ft. These measures probably indicate its mean condition, for at different seasons and periods it undergoes great changes falling at times so low that the channels between the islands are laid dry while at other times it inundates all the lower grounds, and forces the people to retire to the hillsides. It is well stocked with fish and water-fowl which prefer, however, the vicinity of the reedy islands on the W. shore to the open water. Turle of numerous size, and even the duck, are said to be there associated with the hippopotamus, these birds and the crooks among them. Lake Tad receives besides many small streams, the Teeu, which flows into it from the hills of Hausa in the W., with a course of perhaps 400 m. It descends rapidly, and is dry at its mouth during five months of the year. But its chief tributary is the Shary, a great and navigable river descending from the S. through Baghram. The absolute elevation of Lake Tad would appear, from Dr. Vogel's observations, to be 850 ft. The country around it is everywhere low and, on its W. and S. shores at least, extremely fertile, and it is easy to foresee that whenever the arts of civilized society shall find their way into Central Africa, the banks of this great reservoir will become a most luxuriant garden, rendered doubly admirable by the close vicinity of the fabulous desert to the N. and E.—(Denham and Clapperton's Travels: Account of the Progress of the Expedition to Central Africa, by Ang. Petermann.)

TCHADDA, TRAD, CHAD, or CHADDA a great river Central Africa, which, flowing W., joins the Quorra below Nygbe, in lat. 7° 47' N., lon. 7° 3' E. With respect to the name, the remarks already made on the name of the lake are here applicable. Tad is certainly a general term, and not a proper name, and may be found, in native records, applied to the river of Kano as well as to the Quorra itself. The two great rivers, the Quorra and Tad, which unite just below Nygbe, are called by all the natives dwelling on them, respectively the White and Black Rivers, or, in Nygbe, Furode and Furoji; in Egghara, Ujmmal Fufa and Ujmmal Duda. The river commonly called the Tad is the Black River—the Furoji or Ujmmal Duda. Higher up it is known as the Zandri; that is, the Water, in the language of the Kordofani; and still farther up, in Fobbia, entitled by the Fallahs Adamsawa, it bears the name of Banda. The Black River was mentioned in 1653, by Oldfield and Lart, about 80 m. and stated to be a fine stream, with a more rapid current than the Quorra, but with little population on its banks. Its upper course was unknown to the natives near its mouth, but it has been recently discovered unexpectedly by Dr. Barth. The travel, proceeding S. from Kouka by Mandana (a route described so far by Denham with exaggeration), arrived, after a march of 270 m., at the Burnu (Mother of Waters), the chief river of Adamsawa, $\frac{1}{2}$ m. wide, and nearly 10 ft. deep. It is said to come from the E.E., a distance of nine days' journey. A little above this point, which is near Tola, the capital of Adama, the Bame is joined by the Fero, another great but inferior river, descending from the S.W. from the same heights, probably, which feed S. the waters of Calabar. The river Bame, a great and navigable stream, which overflows fertile plains and fertilizes rice-fields of boundless extent, is the head of our voyage, and is described by the natives of Adama, who seem, however, to be little versed in navigation, as few from danger or impediment. From the mouth of the Tied to Tola is in a straight line, about 490 m. A very slight elevation in the great plain of Adama separates the basin of the Bame from that of the Shery, so that a little advance in civilization might lead to the junction of these navigable waters and of Lake Tied with the ocean. The rulers of Adama are the warlike and enterprising Fulahs, whose political ascendancy and susceptibility of improvement entitle them to special attention. —[Lafit and Oldfield's Narrative, 1834. Allen and Thompson's Narrative, 1848; Barth, in Jour of Roy Geo Soc.]

TCHADIR-DAQU, or TERT, a mountain, Russia, in the S. of the Crimea. See TALIKDA.

TCHADOBETZ, a river, Siberia, rises in the E. of Gov. Yemtsk, not far from the N.W. frontiers of Irkutsk; flows very circuitously, first N.E., then S.W., describing almost a semicircle, and after a course of about 200 m., joins r bank Verkhne-Tunguska about 60 m. above Dognishansk.

TCHAGAN, or TCHAGAN-KOUMY in Chinese Empire, Mongolia, 200 m. N. N. E. Pekin. It is large, handsome, and recently erected, has broad, clean, and crowded streets, houses regularly built and several extensive squares adorned with magnificent trees. The shops are clean, and very well furnished with Chinese productions, and sometimes even with European merchandise, obtained through Russia.

TCHALATDERE, or SALAVENDI (anc. Gromule), a river, Asiatic Turkey, rises on the E. side of Mount Ida, flows N. E., and falls into the Bos of Marmora, after a course of about 45 m.

TCHALBAK, or TCHERBAK, a river, Russia, rises in W. of Gov. Caucasus, enters the country of the Cossacks of the Black Sea, flows W., expanding into several lakes, and falls into the E. side of the Sea of Azov, total course, 180 m.

TCHANG, a prefix to the names of cities and towns, China, the most important of which have been given under CHANG, (which see) TCHANG-KIANG, a city, China. See CHING-KIANG-POO.

TCHANG-KING, a city, China. See CHANG-KING.

TCHARYTUL, a river, Siberia, rises in the Altai Mountains, in the S. of Gov. Russia, flows first N.W., then N.E., and joins l. bank Ob near Nijak, after a very rapid and winding course of about 220 m.

TCHAUZI, a river, Russia. See CHAOCHY.

TCHEROKHARI, a river, Russia, gov. and 75 m. W. N. W. Kams, r. bank Volga, at the confluence of the Tschelcharka. It is built of wooden houses, huddled together very irregularly in unpaved streets. It has 16 churches, four monasteries, a townhouse, manufactures of leather and a considerable trade in wax, honey, tallow and corn. Pop. (1851) 4302.

TCHERCHMEH, or TCHERCH (anc. Cyren) a seaport in Asiatic Turkey, on a spacious bay of the Archipelago opposite to the island of Chios, 40 m. W. Smyrna. It is defended by a large citadel, built by the Genoese and is famous for the victory gained off its port by the Roman fleet over that of Antiochus. Near it are thermal-springs.

TCHILLABINSK, a river, Russia, gov. Orenburg 220 m. E. N. E. Ufa, on the Mijak. It is surrounded by a wooden wall flanked with towers, and defended by chevrons-de-bras and a fosse, and has two churches, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. (1849) 804.

TCHEN, or TCHEN-PIA, a river, Chinese Empire, rises in a mountainous district near the centre of Manchuria, flows N.E.E., then W., receives the Songpin, and shortly after joins r bank Amur, after a course of about 100 m.

TCHETPA, a river, Russia, rises in E. of Gov. Viatka flows S.W., then almost down W., and joins l. bank Viatka about 12 m. E. of the town of Viatka; total course 300 m.

TCHERCHIMBER, See CHAMBERS.

TCHERDIN, a river, Russia, gov. and 164 m. N. E. from r. bank Kama. It is one of the oldest towns in the government, and has six stone churches, one of them richly decorated; a monastery, a nunnery, several inns, and a trade in corn and fur. Pop. 3000.

TCHEREMSHIN, a river, Russia, rises in Gov. Orenburg flows N.W. into Gov. Kams, then S.W. into Gov. Simbirsk, and joins l. bank Volga, after a course of about 180 m.

TCHEREPOVETZ, a town, European Russia. See CHEREPOVETZ.

TCHERIKOV, a river, Russia. See CHERIKOV.

TCHERKASK, two towns, See CHERKASK.

TCHERKESIA, a country, S.E. Europe. See CHERKESIA.

TCHERNIGOV, a gov. and town, Russia. See CHERNIGOV.

TCHERNYAYAN, a walled and fortified town, Russia, gov. and 100 m. N.W. Astrakhan, r. bank Volga. It is entered by a single gate and has two stone churches, a school, two almshouses; extensive warehouses, an important traffic on the Volga, as well as a trade in cattle, and a valuable fishery. Pop. 1600.

TCHIGAIN, a town, Russia, gov. and 140 m. S.S.E. Kiev, r. bank Niemen. It is now an insignificant place, but was once the capital of the Cossacks of the Ukraine. It suffered much in 1678 during the wars with the Turks.

TCHIKIRI, a river, Manchuria. See CHIKIRI.

TCHIKOTAN, or SEAWATER, the most S. of the Kurile Isles; lat. (central) 43° 55' N. lon. 140° 43' 30" E. about 6 m. long by as much broad. A good harbour is said to exist on its S.W. part.

TCHIN, and TCHINE, prefixes to the names of cities and towns, China. See CHINE and CHINE.

TCHINAI, two small islands, China, Chean group, S.E. Chean about lat. 30° 20' N. lon. 124° 56' E.

TCHIN-ai, a town and lake, Mongolia. See BAIKOZ.

TCHING-GAN, a remarkable cape, N. L. coast, Siberia, in Behring's Sea; about lat. 64° 04' N. and lon. 178° 40' W. It rises almost vertically from the sea to a great height, and is rendered conspicuous by a red band intersecting it from its summit to its base.

TCHIRPROVATZ, a town, Turkey. See CHIRPROVATZ.

TCHIE, a river, Russia, rises in W. of Gov. Don Cossacks, flows S.E. and after a course of 160 m. during which it expands into a number of lakes, joins r. bank Don.

TCHIRKIS or TCHERKES, a walled in Asiatic Turkey, Anatolia 80 m. E. Bolu, near the source of the Berlin, which is here crossed by a bridge. Pop. 8000.

TCHIRMEN, a town, Turkey in Europe, on a height near an affluent of the Maritsa, 24 m. N. W. Adrianople. It has a castle, and a mosque crowned by a fine cupola. Pop. 2000.

TCHIRME, a town, Asiatic Turkey. See CHIRME.

TCHIRPOPOL, or TCHIRPOPOLIS, a town, Russia, gov. and 61 m. S.E. Kams, of very recent origin.

TCHIUSSOVA, a river, Russia, issues from a small lake on W. slope Ural Mountains, enters Eksternburg province, first very circuitously N. W., then turning W., joins l. bank Kama, 10 m. above Perm, after a course, partly navigable, of about 400 m.

TCHOUANG LONG or PIAO WING, a town, China, prov. Kanpo, 185 m. N. W. Lan-chow, with a considerable trade.

TCHOUA, or TCHOUA, a river, Chinese Empire, descends from the S. slope of the Hing-an Mountains in S.W. of Manchuria, enters Mongolia, flows S.E., and after a course of about 160 m. joins r. bank Nomi by several branches.

TCHORAK, a river, Asiatic Turkey. See CHORAK.

TCHORLOU, a town, Turkey in Europe, near l. bank river of same name, 65 m. W. N. W. Constantinople. It is surrounded by ruined walls; and has a mosque, a khan and an almshouse. Pop. about 4000. —The river rises in a branch of the Balkan, flows S.W., then nearly down S., and after a course of 45 m. falls into the Bos of Marmora 4 m. S. Rodosto.

TCHORUM, or CHORUM, in Asiatic Turkey. See CHORUM.

TCHOUOUNY, or TCHOUOUNY, a town, Russia, gov. and 30 m. S. N. Khar'kov, at the confluence of the Tschingavka with the Dnieper. It is surrounded by earthen ramparts and a fosse and has seven churches, all of wood; a school, numerous tanneries, manufactures of prepared sheep-skins, which are made into cloaks, saddles, and girdles; and a considerable general trade. The inhabitants are Cossacks, who have the head-quarters of one of their regiments here. Pop. 10,000.

TCHUI, or CHUI, a river, Asia, which issues from l. bank Tien-Shan, near the W. frontiers of the Chinese Empire; about lat. 42° 30' N; lon 77° E.; flows directly W N W through the country of the Kirghiz and Independent Tatars, and after a course of nearly 600 m., discharges itself into Lake Kaban-Kiak lat. 46° 30' N.; lon. 67° 30' E. Its chief affluents are, on the right, the Adji-Bukhara; and on the left the Karkhota, Akmeta-Salak, and the Little Tobol. In spring its current is very impetuous, and in the depth of autumn broad and stillish lakes are formed in its vicinity by the heavy rains.

TOBUKUCHI, or TOBUCHEVSKY, a people inhabiting a country of some extent, forming the N.E. extremity of Siberia, and extending from the mouth of the Kolyva R. to Behring's Strait, between lat. 63° and 73° N., and lon. 160° E. to 170° W., area, 314,740 sq. m. They bear a considerable resemblance to the native tribes of the opposite coast of America, subsist chiefly on fish, on the milk and flesh of the reindeer, and on the cham, and are said to be both independent and jealous of their freedom. Most of them live on the banks of the Anadyr the basin of which lies almost wholly within their country.

TOBULUM, a river, Asiatic Russia, rises in S.E. of gov. Tomsk, flows easterly N. lon. W N W, and after a course of 500 m. joins r. bank Obi above Magnitich.

TOULAY, par Eng. Lincoln; 2850 ac. Pop. 692.

TEALING, par Scot. Forfar, 7 m. by 2 m. 1 op. 844

TEAN (Urran), a vil. and dist. England co. Stafford, on the Teas, 3 m. S. of Chesley, with a number of manor and elegant villas, a handsome church Independent and Wesleyan chapels, a school, blacksmiths, and one of the most extensive manufactures of tape in Europe. Pop. 1800.

TEANA, a tn. Naples prov. Basilicata, 20 m. E.N.E. Lagoanico, r. bank Sarno. It is defended by a fort and has two almshouses. Pop. 1305.

TEANO (anc. Tuscan, cap. of the Soluntani) a tn. Naples, prov. Lavoro, dist. and 15 m. N.W. Caserta, S.E. side of the Bay of Naples, an extinct volcano. It is the residence of the bishop, consists of narrow streets and has a handsome cathedral, with 16 columns of granite supporting its roof, and other remains of ancient structures in its interior two colleges and three parish churches, two monasteries, a seminary a diocesan seminary an almshouse a Roman theatre and amphitheatre in ruins, and the massive and very extensive remains of a baronial castle of the Duke of Salaparuta, with stabling for 100 horses. Near it are chalybeate springs, said in high repute an ancient church dedicated to a Greek saint, Paridis, who is said to have been destroyed a dragon; and a monastery, famous for the miracles alleged to be performed in it by its patron saint, Anthony Pop. about 8000.

TEAPY ISLAND an isl. S. Pacific. See EASTER.

TEBALEH, a tn. Arabia, Yemen, about 170 m. S. E. Mecca. It is a large place, defended by a castle situated on a steep rock and has a weekly market.

TEBAE, a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. and 42 m. S. Chacón, with a church, convents, primary school, and a trade in corn, oil, tallow, and honey. Pop. 1482.

TEBESSA (anc. Theraps) a tn. Algeria, prov. and about 75 m. S.E. Constantine, beautifully situated at the foot of the N. slope of the Mountains of Beni-Rouman, not far from the source of the Chelouf. It has in front of it a large and well-watered plain, and around it many beautiful gardens is ordered by two gates, one of them in the form of a triumphal arch, and evidently of Roman construction. Its principal buildings consist of Roman remains, including a fortress, which is still nearly entire. In the lower part of the town is a small temple, which is perfect, but has been converted into a soap-work. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the cultivation of their fields and gardens, but have some trade in books and chess, tobacco, dates, carpets, leather, hardware, &c. Pop. 15,000 to 16,000.

TECH a river France, which descends from the N. slope of the Pyrenees, dep. Pyrénées-Orientales flows E.N.E., and near Carat falls into the Mediterranean; total course, 45 m.

TECHA, or TEYNA, a river, Russia, rises in S. of gov. Nijon-Novgorod, flows N., then W. to the frontiers of Vladimir and joins r. bank Obi above Irkutsk; total course, 110 m.

TECHER, a river, U. States, Louisiana, which rises near Red River, and after a whirling S.E. course of 130 m., enters the outlet of Chenouveau Lake. It has 8 ft. water on the bar and 20 ft. within, and is navigable for 160 m. to Thoria.

TECKLENBURG, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov.

and 18 m. N.E.E. Münster, on the Teuchelberg-Weid, with a court of law, a Protestant church, a parsonage, the ruins of an old castle; manufactures of linen, and a trade in coffee. Pop. 1346.

TECOLM, par Irel. Queen's co.; 1022 ac. Pop. 344.

TECSE, or TEYANOVA, a market in Hungary, co. Maros, r. bank Theiss, 14 m. W N W Balghat; with three churches, distilleries, and mill-motors. Pop. 1251.

TEDAVNET, par Irel. Monaghan; 26,508 ac. P. 2448

TEDSBURN (St. Marks), par. Eng. Devon; 4488 ac. Pop. 661.

TEDDINGTON, a vil. and par. England, co. Middlesex, on the Thames, 11 m. W S.W. London, with a parish church, a national and an endowed female school, and one of the largest manufactory of wax-candles in the kingdom. Area of par, 1120 ac. Pop. 1146.

TEDLA or THEKA, a tn. Morocco, cap. prov. of its name, in a beautiful valley on a branch of the Unnerbagh, not far from the foot of Mount Atlas, 135 m. N.E. Morocco city. It is a place of considerable importance; with manufactures of woollen cloths and shawls, which furnish a considerable export, chiefly to Italy. Pop. estimated at 16,500.

TEDNEST a tn. Morocco, about 75 m. W N W Morocco city; lat. 31° 45' N. lon. 9° W. on the lawns, an affluent of the Tensift. Pop. about 4000.

TEDSI a tn. Morocco, prov. Sus-el-Aam, about 25 m. E.N.E. Toudant; lat. 30° 15' N., lon. 8° 15' W.; with an extensive population, estimated at 12,000.

TEDESTONE-WAPPA, par Eng. Hereford, 668 ac. P. 69

TEDEEN or TEDEEN (anc. Oshai), a river, rises N.E. of Mekeed, in the Ferman prov. Khosrau, flows through the N.E. corner of that province, and is lost in the sands of the desert, after a course of nearly 350 m.

TEHEN river or TUEN-SHA, a tn. China, prov. Petchelie, advantageously situated in an angle formed by the junction of the Er-ho and Pei ho, 30 m. above the mouth of the latter, in the Gulf of Petchelie, and 58 m. S.E. Peking. It stretches several miles along the banks of the river, and consists of unpaved streets, and houses built of mud, many of the latter, though of mean exterior well furnished, with accommodations in the best Chinese style. The shops are generally filled with Chinese, but sometimes also with European manufacturers and the heads of the native population and the importers of the native trade, at least of those of Canton. More than 500 junks arrive annually from the southern parts of China, Cochin-China, and Siam, and according to Guttsch, the thronging of the river with vessels, and the amount of business going on, strongly remind one of Liverpool.

TEEB, a river England, rises near Cross Fell, in Cumberland, and flowing S.E., and latterly N.E., marks the limit of the county of Durham, to its mouth in the N. Sea, where it forms an estuary of considerable extent. Its whole course is between 70 m. and 90 m., the last 15 m. or 20 m. of which is extremely tortuous.

TEESTA, a river, Asia, rises in Tibet, on the N. side of the Himalayas, near the mountain Chumalari, lat. 28° 28' N. lon. 69° 0' E. It is formed by the junction of three head-streams, which unite at lat. 27° 30' N. lon. 68° 0' E., when it finds a passage through the Himalayas, and subsequently joins, by two separate branches, the Brahmapootra and the Ganges the confluence, which unites with the latter near Dacca, takes the name of the Atri.

TEFFONT two pars. Eng. Wilt. —1, (Zylis, or Ragat) 742 ac. Pop. 177.—2, (Magne) Pop. 251.

TEFLER, or TEFLER, a tn. Russian Empire, gov. of the same, cap. of the Transcaucasian province, lies in a narrow valley between r. bank Eux. here crossed by a wooden bridge and a lofty height crowned by the Citadel. When first seen its appearance is very imposing, but the impression thus produced is not confirmed by a nearer inspection. It is nearly of a triangular shape, is surrounded by a wall with six gates, and consists of three distinct parts.—Tefler proper, on the S. or 1 bank of the river; Kala, or the fortress, further up on the W. or r. bank; and the suburb of Isht or Alachar, with which communication is maintained by the bridge above-mentioned. The streets, with few exceptions, are narrow, irregular, and dirty in the extreme; and the houses present long ranges of dead walls, formed of large flat stones and alternate layers of stone, the windows in which, owing to the fear of glass, are for the most part filled with cotton or oiled paper. The general appearance of the city, and the dark barren hills in the vicinity, throw a kind of gloom over the place, though the streets are well filled with passengers who give indications of much commercial activity. The best part of the town is the Kale, where the Russians who occupy it have made considerable improvements. The most remarkable buildings are those of the citadel, which, though in ruins, still presents majestic heavy battlements and towers; the cathedral, a very ancient edifice, of large dimensions and fine architecture; numerous other Greek and Armenian churches, several of them handsome; a Persian mosque; a gymnasium and other schools; the governor's house, and other government buildings and offices; the palace of Verniol, a large and ostentatious structure, with good gardens; the arsenal; the Turkish and Persian caravanserais, forming double rows of piazzas, rising one above another, and only indifferently supplied with foreign goods; the bazars with a good display of fruit, and both TEGERHY, a walled town, 110 m. S.E. Mowrak with a citadel.

TEGERNSEE, a vil. Upper Bavaria, on the Aalbech and N. shore of lake of the same name, at the foot of the Alps, and at the entrance of the valley of Aach into the Rhine, 21 m. S. Munich. It contains a royal castle, once a Benedictine abbey; a church, and an infirmary, and has a trade in wood, cattle, and fruit; a marble-quarry, with sawing and polishing machines, and several mills. Pop. 580. — LARS TENERIS is about 5 m. long; radius less than 2 m. broad and 200 ft. deep.

TEGLAR, a market to. Hungary. Thither Thales, or Eschales, 2 m. from Hadras with a church, and a trade in case and fruit. Pop. 1463.

TEGLIO Tenzio or Tenzio a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. and B. Sondrio, r. bank Adda, with four churches a blast furnace, and numerous mills. Pop. 5475.

TEGUICGALPA a m. Central America Honduras, 40 m. S.W. Comayagua. Gold, silver, and copper mines exist in the vicinity.

TEGUERTE, a vil. Camerica, on N.W. of Isl. Tenerife, with a church, courthouse, manufactures of linen, and a trade in maize, fruit, and wine. Pop. 1162.

TEGUITE (SAN MARCOS) a m. Camerica, centre of Isl. Lanzarote, in a valley, consisting generally of small old houses, and ill-paved and irregular but clean streets. It has a townhouse, a foundling hospital, a prison, a parish church, and several hermitages, but the most remarkable object in the town is a large pond or reservoir called La Marota, in which rain-water is collected during the winter, for the use of the cattle, and sometimes the inhabitants of the whole island. There are no manufactures, and commerce is limited to exporting commodities and costly wares; and the baths, supplied from hot sulphurous-springs in the vicinity. For recreation there is a large public garden, laid out with fine shady walks and avenues; and there is also a botanic garden on the Kar about 2 m. below. The manufactures include carpets, silks, shawls, &c., and the trade, chiefly in the hands of the Armenians, is very extensive, Teflis forming a greatemporium for the trade between Russia, Persia, and Turkey. The staple articles of trade, in addition to the above manufactures, consist of immense quantities of Russian and German prints, handkerchiefs and similar goods. Wine also, grown in the neighbourhood is in great demand in the neighbouring districts, but from being conveyed not in casks but in skins besmeared with naphtha, acquires a disagreeable flavour, not relished except by those who have become imured to it, and hence not much esteemed by strangers. The foundation of Teflis, whose true name is said to be Tiphul or Tiphul-kalaki, meaning 'warm town,' is attributed to a powerful monarch of the name of Yaching, who, about A.D. 469, subdued all the countries between the Black Sea and the Caspian. It was afterwards much enlarged and embellished, and rose to great importance. It was destroyed by Aga Muhammad in 1795, and though afterwards rebuilt, has never attained its former dimensions. The Russians became its masters in 1801. It suffered dreadfully from cholera in 1880. Population (1848), 80,925.

The government, one of the four into which Transcaucasia was divided in 1846, is bounded, N. by the Caucasus, N.E. by the Persian Gulf, S. by the Persian Gulf, from which it is separated by the Araxes; S.W. by Persia; Turkey; and N.W. by the Kizil area, 24,484 sq. geo. sq. m. It consists of several Teflis, Gori, Tbilisi, Elizabetopol, Erzurum, Nakhichevan, and Alexanderopol, besides including the Ossetian territory, an early conquest made with the former division of Georgia, or Georgia, and Erivan.

TEFZA, a m. Morocco. See TEFZA.

TEGAL, Java. See TAGAL.

TEGAL-SAR, a m. Java, prov. Madras, with a school for catechists, where about 8000 youths are educated.

Vol. II.

TEFZA.—After M. Debelé de Montgomerie.

fruits, and importing the necessaries of life. In 1816 it was destroyed by pirates from Barbary, who carried off from the island 1000 captives. Pop. 5785.

TEHALLAN par Irak. Monaghan 5560 ac. P. 2906. TEHERRAN the modern cap. of Persia, prov. Irak Ajemi, 211 m. N. Isfahan, lat. 35° 40' N.; lon. 51° 22' 50' E. on a low site in an angle of the mountains. It presents outwardly little of the appearance of a royal city. The houses are mass in the extreme, even for an Eastern town; and tightly built, covering in some instances extensive areas frequently meet the eye. The streets are narrow and irregular, destitute of pavements, unnumbered with filth, and full of dangerous holes. The bazars are extensive, and are roofed with tile, but filth, being thronged with beasts as well as man. The principal building in the city is the Ark, or royal residence, consisting of a great number of buildings, courts, and gardens covering a large area, and enclosed within a high wall which separates it from the rest of the city. It is, however, destitute of all architectural pretensions, and the interior decorations are of a very indifferent kind. Just without the Ark is the royal boundary where the various operations of molting, castrating, tanning and polishing are carried on. The British residency is a neat edifice, and the palace of the Russian minister is composed of an extensive range of very plain buildings. Pop. estimated at 10,000 to 12,000.

TEHINTCHIEW a river Asia rises on the frontiers of Tibet and Boctan flows E. across the latter, passing Tsamdon, enters Bengal, when it takes the name of Ganges or Ganges, and after a course of about 160 m. joins the Brahmaputra, S.E. of Rangamati. In the upper part of its course it flows in a way through rocky channels, and is precipitated in tremendous cataracts.

TEHREZ, or TAREK, a m. Hindostan, on the frontier of Bundelkand 200 m. W.S.W. Allahabad.

TEHUACAN, a m. Mexico, dep. and 65 m. S.E. Puebla. Under the Aztecs, it was regarded as one of their most sacred spots, it still contains a number of well-built houses, and has a considerable trade in grain. Pop. nearly 8000.

III

TEHUANTEPEC, a town, river between, and gulf. Mexico. The town, pop. and 180 m. S.E. Oajaca, on the river of its name, and about 10 m. from the Pacific, is cap. of a department of same name. It has manufactures of silk, and of cotton fabrics; fisheries of pearls, and of a mollusk (Porphyra purpurina) that yields a purple dye. Pop. 14,900.—The seven rivers in a mountainous district near the centre of dep. Oajaca, flows S.E. for about 150 m. to Tehuantepec, where it is joined by several streams, and about 30 m. below the junction, falls into the Pacific near the small port of Yantones total course, 170 m.—The streams strike from the Gulf of Tehuantepec in the Pacific to the Bay of Guasmasillo or Guasmasillo in the Gulf of Mexico, and thus separates the Pacific from the Atlantic Ocean. It embraces parts of dep. Oajaca, Vera-Cruz, and Tabasco. The distance between the two coasts, where narrowest, is about 140 m., but a considerable part of it is traversed by streams, and this together with the comparatively low heights of the cordillera, at one time suggested it as one of the most practicable lines by which a navigable communication might be established between the coasts.—The Gulf is formed by an indentation on the Pacific coast of Mexico and Guatemala, extending from lat. 22° to 23° N. with a breadth near the centre of about 70 m.

TEICHWOLKRAMENDORF a vil. Saxo-Wesmar circle Neuburg with a parish church, and two mills. Pop. 1592.

TEIFY or TIFY a river N. Wales, rises in co. Cardigan flows S.W. and W., and enters Cardigan Bay, after a course of about 70 m. The tide runs perceptibly to the distance of about 1 m. above Newburgh.

TEIGH, par. Eng. Rutland; 1867 ac. Pop. 147.

TEIGN, a river, England, co. Devon. It consists of two branches, which run nearly in the centre of the county and after uniting, flow S.E. and fall into the English Channel at Teignmouth.

TEIGNMOUTH a seaport and market to. England, co. Devon, 12 m. S. Exeter lat. 50° 33' N.; lon. 1° 35' W., at the mouth of the Teign. It is divided into two parts by a small rivulet called the Tame. East Teignmouth, which is the more modern, is almost entirely appropriated to a water-supply has a church in the Roman style, and all the conveniences need to such places of resort—carriage-drives, promenades, public-rooms, bathing-establishments &c. West Teignmouth is the port and principal seat of business. It is irregularly built, but the principal streets are paved and lighted with gas. It has a spacious modern octagonal church, places of worship also for various dissenting bodies, and a safe and commodious harbour though somewhat difficult to enter on account of a shifting bar. There is a quay and a small dockyard. Some of the vessels belonging to this port are engaged in the Newfoundland fishery. Coal and iron are largely imported and the home fishery employs a considerable number of the inhabitants. Pop. 5018.

TEIGNMOUTH, two par. Eng. Devon.—1 (East), 745 ac. Pop. 1760.—2 (West) 468 ac. Pop. 2389.

TEINGRACE, par. Eng. Devon, 1339 ac. Pop. 187.

TEINITZ-ON-NEE-ELAS, a market in Bohemia, circle Carlsbad, r. bank Elbe, 17 m. W. Pardubitz with a parish church, school, and townhouse, saw and other mills and a trade in iron, wood, and fish. Pop. 1830.

TEISEWILZ, a market in Hungary co. Güns, on the Rine, 25 m. S.E. Munkacs; with paper and an iron mill, and an asphalted spring. Pop. 8170.

TEITH, a river Scotland, co. Forth, formed by the junction of two head-streams, the one from Loch Lubnaig, the other from Loch Venochair, which in its turn is supplied from Loch Katrine through Loch Achray. They unite a short distance from Callander whence the Teith flows S.E. and falls into the Forth, about 8 m. N.W. Stirling.

TEJA, or TEJAL, a m. Maricao, 65 m. E. Pto. on a stream of same name, an affluent of the San Juan. It has a handsome mansion, and numerous gardens. Pop. 11,504.

TEJEDA, a vil. Cantabria, lat. Gran Canaria, co. de Cap. de la tempestad the church has been several times torn up from its foundations. It has a townhouse and prison, primary school, church, hermages, cemetery, and manufactures of coarse linen and woollen fabrics. One of the mountains by which it is overlooked, is perforated to the depth of about 1 m. in the form of a tunnel, and produces an abundant supply of excellent water. Pop. (agitationally), 1865.

TEJEDA, a stream, Spain, Andalusia, separating prov. Granada from prov. Málaga. It supplies numerous towns with water, and abounds with mines.

TEK-MAAS, a river Arica, which rises on the W. slope of the Mountains of Chitangong; flows first S.W.W., then nearly due S., parallel and near to the coast, and falls into the Bay of Benggal, about lat. 30° 50' N. The lower part of its course is navigable.

TEKE, or TEKEDOR a market to. Austria, Transylvania, co. and 50 m. S.E. Klausenburg, r. bank Taja; with three churches, and a mill-lake, from which much salt is made. Pop. 1811.

TEKE-DAGH, a river Turkey in Europe, rises in the W. side of the Little Balkan Mountains, flows generally S., and joins r. bank Erkam, 82 m. S.E. Adrianople total course, about 70 m.

TEKIR-DAGH, or TEKIR-DAGH, a mountain range, Turkey in Europe. It stretches across the south of Gallipoli to a S.E. direction, from 1 hour Maritima to the shores of the Sea of Marmara, about 10 m. S.W. Rodosto, and has a length of about 75 m.

TEKRIT, or TEKRIT, a m. Asiatic Turkey, pers. and 95 m. N.W. Bagdad r. bank Tigris, on a cliff and on the side of a deep ravine. It occupies the E. side of an ancient city of the same name, the ruins of which are very extensive. The inhabitants are represented as extremely inhospitable.

TELAU, or TELAU, a m. Transcaucasian Russia, gov. and 33 m. E.N.E. Tiflis, in a beautiful valley, on a slope above the Terek, which has received the Alamo. It consists of three forts surrounded by walls, and separated from each other by deep ravines. contains a castle, and has several suburbs, chiefly occupied by Armenians, who carry on a considerable trade. Pop. (1848), 4000.

TELDE, a city, Cantabria, lat. Gran Canaria, E. from Las Palmas, in a beautiful plain called Vega Mayor, about 2 m. from the sea. It is divided into three large quarters, called Telde, Las Palmas, and San Francisco, with beautiful houses, the majority of which have gardens. The churches are broad and straight. There are three squares in one of which are the townhouse and prisons, the parish church, an elegant structure, and the almshouse, and a busy fair is held every Sunday in another. It has a second church, several hermages, four primary schools, an hospital for sick paupers, a cemetery and various fountains. On the sea-shore, to the E. of the town, there is a mineral spring, resorted to from all parts of the island. It has some manufactures of plain linen, and 11 flour-mills but agriculture is the chief occupation. Grain is exported to Las Palmas and the neighbouring islands, and cochineal to Cadix, Malaga, and London also a considerable quantity of blue paving-stone, 1 yard square, to Cadix and America. Pop. 19,057.

TELEGD-MESZ, a market to. Hungary co. Bihar 44 m. S.E. Debreczin, with a Protestant, r. Catholic, and a Greek church. Pop. 1575.

TELEK Km. a m. Hungary co. Geograd, 17 m. N.W. Naggedia, with a church. Pop. 2999.

TELEMBI, a river, Ecuador rises in W. slope of the Andes flows N., and joins l. bank Patia, on the confines of New Granada, a little above its mouth in the Pacific, after a course of about 80 m.

TELENS, a vil. Tyrol, circle Imst, l. bank Inn with a parish church a Franciscan hospital, a court-house, and cotton-mill. Pop. 5000.

TELGART, or TELGARTEN, a vil. Hungary either Thien, co. Güns 22 m. N.W. Rossum, with a Greek church, several saw-mills, and mineral-springs. Fine fountains are found in the vicinity. Pop. 1232.

TELOTE, a m. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 7 m. S.E. Münster, l. bank Rhine with three churches, a chapel, and poorhouse; manufactures of woollen and flax cloth and delivray, several mills, and a trade in cattle. P. 2138.

TELGULI, a river, Russia, rises on S. frontier of prov. Pskov, enters gov. Khovon; and flowing S.E., falls into a bay of the same name, 95 m. S.E. Odessa, after a course of about 90 m. Its stream is continuous only in the wet season.

TELOJMAN, a river, Turkey in Europe, Walchia, rises in a mountainous slope, 80 m. N.W. Bucharest; flows circuitously S.E.E., and after a course of 90 m., joins l. bank Vele, about 90 m. above its mouth in the Danube.

TELESCOP, or THESOP, a tn. Asiatic Turkey, peak, and 18 m. N N W Mosul, in a large and fertile plain, celebrated for the passage of Xerophon over it with the 10,000 Greeks, and the battle of Arbela fought upon it, and gained by Alex under the Great. Pop. about 4000.

TELKI BARRA, a vil. Hungary, Hither Themas, co. Aubutur, 14 m. S.E.E. Kasebach, with chalybeate-baths. Pop. 1180. Rich gold-mines once worked in the vicinity, but the shafts were deserted by the earthquake. New mines are now in operation. The Wild River Elbe, among which the village is situated, merge into the Tekny Hills.

TELLARNOUGHT, par. Irel. Wexford; 1664 ac. P. 823

TELLAHERRY, a seaport in Hindustan, Malabar coast; lat. 11 45' N lon 76° 33' E.; long the chief settlement on the coast of Malabar, but now considerably declined. Many rich natives, however still reside here. Tellaeherry is the mart for the best maul-wood brought from above the Ghats, and the cardamoms of Wynad, which are mostly exported from hence, are reckoned the best on the coast.

TELLSFORD, or TALSFORD, par. Eng. Somerset. 757 ac. Pop. 134.

TELMA, a tn. Siberia, gov. and N W Irkutsk, with considerable manufacture of cloth, linen, glass, and paper. The operatives are all convicts. Pop. 3000.

TELCOMBE, par. Eng. Sussex; 1849 ac. Pop. 176.

TELLOW a tn. Prussia, par. Brandenburg gov. Potsdam, 11 m. S.W. Berlin; with a church, and manufacture of linen. Pop. 1963.

TELTOWN, par. Irel. Meath 4366 ac. Pop. 1193.

TELTUCH, a tn. Asiatic, Moravia, circle and 14 m. S.S.W. Igau, with several churches, a normal school, distillery, and manufacture of woollen cloth and tobacco. Pop. 8640.

TELU-SAMARA, a haven, N coast, Sumatra, where a considerable trade is carried on.

TEMACIN, or EL-GUEZNA, a tn., N Africa, Algerian Sahara, cap. independent dist. of same name in the midst of well-watered gardens planted with date-trees, 12 m. S.S.W. Tuggurt, lat. 36° 20' N lon 6° 50' E. It is surrounded by a loopholed wall, and a ditch filled with water in winter but dry in summer, and has six mosques, several schools, manufacture, chiefly of articles of primary necessity as carpentry, smithwork, clothing arms, &c. and a considerable trade, chiefly with Tuggurt.

TEMASCALTEPEC, a tn. Mexico, dep. and 68 m. S.W. Mexico, in a deep valley. It formerly owed its prosperity to the rich mines of silver worked in its vicinity, but since these have been abandoned the inhabitants have found a new source of wealth in the manufacture of cotton-shawls and rebosas. Pop. 5600.

TEMBLEQUE, a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. and 23 m. S.E. Toledo. It is an ancient place, which, from the losses of its site, has repeatedly suffered from inundations. It has a handsome church, an elegant palace, a courthouse and prison, two primary schools, manufacture of chocolate, large snuff-works, several flour-mills, and a trade in corn. It was sacked and burned during the Peninsular war. P. 3995.

TEMBUCOO, tn. Africa. See TAMBOCOO.

TEMBY, a river, S.E. Africa, which falls into Delagoa Bay. It is navigable for small craft for 46 m.

TEME, a river, S. Wales, rises 6 m. S.E. Newton, in Montgomeryshire flows E. between the coes. Radnor and Salop, and joins the Severn, 8 m. S. Worcester; total course, 60 m.

TEMERIN, a market in Hungary co. Bacs, in the midst of marshes, 10 m. N. Peterwardein with a church, and some trade in cattle and fish. Pop. 6893.

TEMES, or TEMESAR, a river, Hungary rises in the Mountains of Karamanob, belonging to the E. Carpathians, on the confines of Walachia and the Banat, and pursues an E. to S.W. course which, from its rise to its mouth, I bank Danube, a little below Pincova, forms a segment of an ellipse or parabola. It has no affluents of any importance, except the Blazna and the Bega. The principal towns which it passes are Karkeneben, commanding the pass of the Transylvanian Mountains called the Iron Gate, Lugos, Oskowa, and Pannocza. Its course, about 500 m. is partly navigable.

TEMESVAB (anc. Thymabura), a tn. Hungary, Banat, cap. of its name, in an extensive marshy plain on the Bega coast, 75 m. N.E. Belgrade. It is well fortified by walls and outworks, and is entered by three gates, beyond each of which there is a suburb. The houses are of solid construction, the streets are quiet, and there are a number of regularly formed and handsome squares. The principal buildings are the cathedral, which is a handsome Gothic structure; the Greek church, also handsome, the R. Catholic parish church, synagogue, palace of the government, a very ornate edifice; two schools, theatre, two convents, Plazet college, gymnasium, high school, normal school, animal and military hospitals. The manufactures consist of woollens, oil, paper, tobacco, and wire. There are also several silk-mills. The transit trade, consisting chiefly of corn, is of great importance and is much facilitated by the Bega canal, which communicates with the Danube. Temesvar is the see of a Greek bishop, the residence of a R. Catholic bishop, and seat of a high court, with jurisdiction over three counties of the Banat. According to D'Anville, Temesvar is the ancient Thymbra to which the poet Ovid was banished. In 1552 it was taken and sacked by the Turks, in whose possession it remained till 1718, when it was taken from them by Prince Eugene. Since entirely rebuilt, and fortified so strongly as to be now one of the principal Austrian fortresses. In 1849 it stood a siege of 107 days by the insurgents, and was relieved by Haynau but not before nearly every house had been damaged by the bombardment, and fever and cholera had made fearful havoc among the garrison. Pop. (1846) 19,100.—The court area, 1864 aeq. sq. m. is for the most part an unbroken flat, extensively covered with lakes and morasses. The principal rivers are the Temes, which traverses it centrally, its affluents the Bega and Berzava the Maros, and the Krasso. The soil is fertile, and vegetation is very rank. When the ground is sufficiently dry, all kinds of grain, particularly wheat, are raised in abundance, and maize and clover are extensively cultivated. Fruit abounds, particularly apricots, peaches, apples and pears, and plums, of which a favourite spirituous liquor called akowin or belye is made. Other products are tobacco flax, hemp, milk, and wine. The domestic animals, though numerous, are generally of inferior breeds. It is divided into four districts—Temesvar (the capital), Andras, Leppa, and Vereshvina. Pop. 678,400.

TEMISCAMING a lake on the frontier between Lower and U. pr. Canada lat. 47° N lon 80° W; 97 m. long N to S, by 10 m. broad. It discharges itself by a narrow channel into the Ottawa. On its shores are Indians who bear its name.

TEMISCOUATA, a beautiful lake, Lower Canada, 130 m. N.E. Quebec, 22 m. long 1 m. to 2½ m. in breadth, and sufficiently deep for vessels of considerable burden. It is encompassed by lofty mountains covered with thick wood almost down to its margin, and abounds with fish.

TEMNIKOW, a tn. Russia, gov. and 143 m. N.N.E. Tambor, r. bank Mtschka. It is an ancient place with two wooden and four stone churches. Manufactures of sail cloth, and a considerable trade in corn. Pop. (1851) 5992.

TEMPER, a valley Turkey in Europe, in the N.E. of Thessaly between the mountains of Olympus on the N and Ossa on the S and watered by the Rasmia or Peneus, which a little below falls into the Gulf of Salonica. The beauties of its scenery are much celebrated by ancient writers.

TEMPELBURG, a tn. Prussia, par. Pomerania, gov. and 44 m. S. Koenig with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church. Manufactures of woollens and linen cloth, 1 factory tile-works, several mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3569.

TEMPESCA a river, Turkey, rises in the N slope of Mount Argemaro or Egriss, in the A.E. of Servia flows E. to the Danube, and after a course of about 60 m., joins r. bank Morava, about 6 m. below Frakop.

TEMPIO, a tn, in Sardinia, div. and 88 m. N.N.E. Sassari cap. prov. on an elevated plain near the source of the Liscia. It has a respectable appearance, though the general effect is somewhat gloomy, owing to the red granite of which the houses are built, and their heavy wooden balconies. The principal buildings are the collegiate church, a large but heavy unadorned building, a fine monastery, nearly if not wholly deserted, a palace, the residence of the Bishop of Agroparia, and a college with a church attached. The manufactures consist of fine linens and flossings, and the trade is in fruit, wine, cheese, hams, bacon, and other salt provisions. P. 6837.

TEMPLE, three parcs. Eng.—1, Cornwall; 845 ac. Pop. 24.—2, Gloucester, in city of Bristol. Pop. 4000.—3, (Combe and Abbe), Somerset, 1650 ac. Pop. 426.

Mineral Productions.—Iron is undoubtedly the most common mineral throughout these provinces especially between Ye and Tavoy. The best ore is found in the tertiary hills near Tavoy, not far from the sea-coast, where the ore yields 85 per cent. of the best melted iron; in fact, Haffer mentions the existence of a hill near Tavoy, 40 ft. high, 400 ft. broad, and 2000 ft. long, composed almost entirely of massive chondritic ore, so conveniently situated as to be easily wrought and exported to foreign countries. The ore is not of importance, and is generally diffused as iron in the S. districts. Gold, in limited quantity, is pretty generally diffused, and copper, blende, and antimony are found likewise in small quantities; and manganese-ore on a tributary of the Tenasserim river. Precious stones, chiefly rubies, garnets, and turquoises, are found in the territory E. of the Tenasserim river. Coal has been discovered in several separate basins in the lower part of the Margu province, and some of it is described as burning freely, evolving gas abundantly, and being completely free from sulphur and iron-pyrites.

Vegetable Products.—These provinces vie with any other tropical countries in fertility. Ambient provinces, in the N. wherever laid under culture for the purpose, is so exceedingly productive in rice, as to seem intended by nature to be the supplemental granary of India. The methods of cultivation and preparation are, however, so exceedingly rude, that very little of the rice produced finds its way into foreign markets. Margu gets its supply of the article from Moulmain. Cotton and sugar-cane are well adapted to the soil and, like miligo, coffee, and tobacco, might be made profitable crops. Wheat is little raised, sesamum extensively so, for its oil the hotel vma, gambier or gambier tree, and areca-out are articles universally cultivated in the S., where scarcely a garden is to be seen without an abundance of areca-trees, yet the supply of this is inadequate to the home consumption. Tobacco is smoked by both sexes of all classes of the population. The oil-palm (Nipa frutescens) occurs plentifully in the S., where its leaves furnish the exclusive covering of houses, and its sap is converted into wine and sugar. The durian mangoes, pine-apple, shaddock, and numerous other fruits abound, large quantities of the two first named are sent to Ava, for the royal table. Spices grow freely in the S. especially nutmegs, which almost equal in quality those of Penang and Singapore. Dyestuffs are in great abundance and variety and include the arsenic which derives luxuriantly Gum kino, storax, and gamboge of the finest quality are procurable the tree yielding the first is used extensively for fuel at Moulmain.

The damar, palms christi, and cajeput-tree supply oils and varnishes. Other products are sandal-wood, the dragon's blood plant, the sugar-cane, carianous, hemp, and numerous culinary vegetables. The Panus latens has been discovered in and near the valley of the Salween, growing to 50 ft. or 60 ft. in height. The tract districts do not extend farther S. than lat. 16°; but with respect to timber-trees in general, of which there are enumerated nearly 800 varieties, these provinces are, as already stated, an almost uninterrupted forest from the water's edge to the most elevated mountain-ranges.

Animals.—The tiger, leopard, panther and other feline animals abound in the wild, but the value of their skins seems to be quite unknown to the natives. Elephants are supposed to be more numerous than in any other part of the East, except Ceylon. They are most abundant in the S. the price of a full-grown male at Moulmain is estimated at £25. The rhinoceros, both single and double horned, abounds in the marshy districts. It is hunted almost exclusively by the Karens, who sell the horns and claws to the Chinese, for exportation into China. Buffalo are both large and numerous they are used as draught-oxen but the natives neither eat their flesh, nor use the milk or hides and the carcasses, like those of the elephant and rhinoceros, are allowed to rot in the open air, and are very offensive. The wild pig is hunted by the natives, who esteem its flesh as a great delicacy, deer, which are plentiful, they leave to be a prey to the tigers. Several kinds of bees, differing from the European species, yield wax and honey.

Population.—The native races include descendants of Burmese, Peguans, Shans or Shames, Karens, Soonges, a few Chakhs from the Coromandel coast, and half-castes between Malays and Portuguese. The Burmese are the most numerous. They devote themselves principally to agriculture, and are strict Buddhists. The Peguans physically considered, are almost identical with the Burmese; but they speak a different language. Like the Burmese, also, they are Buddhists, receiving their early training in the monasteries, and almost solely occupied in husbandry. Great numbers of them are settled in the neighbourhood of Moulmain, where 30 Peguans may be found to one Burmese. Great numbers of Shames settlers have been attracted by the security and good government introduced by the British. They are settled principally on the banks of the Tenasserim river, and being a hard industrious race, are partly employed in the cultivation of sugar acquired from the Chinese, but partly also as hunters and tappers of elephants, trappers of wild beasts &c. The Karens originally confined to the vicinity of the Isthmus of Kra, inhabit the country close to the mountains on the Burmese frontier and are seldom or never found close to the W. shore. They are an agricultural people, without any settled home, and seldom remain more than two or three years in the same spot, clearing the forest as they go, rearing temporary bamboo-huts, clothed with palm-leaves, and sowing crops profusely in the rich virgin soil. Their religion is a rude heathenism, but the American missionaries are said to have been successful in converting many of them to Christianity. N.E. of Moulmain live a tribe called the Red Karens, described as living by robbery and plunder. Lowest of all in the scale of civilization among the tribes of Tenasserim are the Soonges, frequenting the islands of the Margu Archipelago, a race of wandering savages, who build slight huts of bamboo during the monsoon and pass the rest of the year either in boats, or near the sea-beach under the shade of trees altogether ignorant of tillage, and content to live upon spontaneous products, as turtles, shell fish, wild fruit, and vegetables. They appear to entertain some vague notion of lovable beings, but they have no forms of religious worship, and are apparently ignorant of a future state. The Chinese, who live almost exclusively in the towns on the coast, follow the businesses of merchants, ship-owners and ship-builders, spirit-distillers, carpenters, blacksmiths, bankers and goldsmiths. There are a few American missionaries, also a few descendants of Portuguese who have intermarried with the natives, and some wealthy Armenians and Parsees living at the busy port of Moulmain.

Manufactures, Commerce, &c.—Here is little manufacturing industry beyond the weaving of cotton and silk goods, the formation of coarse pottery and iron cooking vessels, introduced by the Chinese from Bangkok, and ship-building pretty extensively carried on at Margu, Tavoy, and Moulmain. The weaving is conducted almost exclusively by women, and more or less in every house throughout the provinces a rude Indian loom is to be found at work. A pretty brisk trade is carried on by the natives with Rangoon, Penang, the Nicobar Islands, Acheen, Cantagong and Decca, rice, tobacco, gambier, ivory birds'-coats, and teak wood are exchanged for betel nut, raw and manufactured silks, woollen goods, white muslin, cutlery, earthenware, Chinese umbrellas, petroleum, ambergris, opium, &c. The merchants of Moulmain and Tavoy are richer than those of the S. and their imports consist of cotton, pimento, cutlery, barum, European and Bengali articles, sugar, rice, opium, &c. Besides sea-borne trade, however, Tenasserim has a great deal of internal petty traffic carried on along its numerous creeks and rivers, which form indeed the principal channels of intercourse throughout the provinces. During the dominion of the Burmese, Margu was considered the capital, and Moulmain only a minor port; but when the British took possession of the country, Amherst, at the mouth of the Marabar river, was founded, and this still continues to be the seat of the local government, and the residence of a commissioner from Pegu, to which these provinces are subordinate. Moulmain, however, is in point of trade by far the most important place. Tavoy is small, but trades pretty extensively with Moulmain and Margu, which last town has a good and well-sheltered harbour, and is excellently situated for overland trade across the Isthmus to Bangkok. The territory is now divided into the provinces Amherst, Tavoy, and Margu.

History.—These provinces appear to have been visited by the Portuguese early in the 17th century. In 1687 certain English settlers were massacred at Margu, at a time when, in all probability, Tenasserim formed a dependency of Pegu.

The country afterwards became connected with them, from which, after much previous contention, it was wrested by Alexander, the founder of the present Burman Empire, about the middle of the last century, and, notwithstanding repeated subsequent incursions of the Siamese, this country remained a portion of the Burman Empire until it passed into the hands of the British by the peace of Yandabo, which terminated the Burmese war, in 1826. British influence has since that time vastly improved the condition of the people, by extinguishing border-war, establishing security of life and property, providing for the proper administration of justice and the free exercise of religion, introducing improved implements for agriculture and manufactures, and furnishing a proper system of coinage, weights, and measures. It has been used as a penal colony from Hindostan; and 3000 Thugs transported to it have become, it is said, respectable settlers. The military force consists of two Anglo-Indian regiments. Pop. 115,481.—[Trigon. Survey of India, Haller's two Reports, Jour. Asiatic Soc. Bengal, 1838-40, Capt. Low's History of Tenasserim, Jour. Rep. Asiatic Soc., vols. II.-v., Jour. Ind. Archæol., vol. III. &c.; Asiatic Journal of Bengal.]

TENBUKY, a market to and par England, ca. and 17 m W by R. Worcester, r bank Teane. It has rather a mean appearance on the river side, but contains some good houses, and has an Established church and a Dissenting chapel. It trades chiefly in hops, cider, and petty commerce and tanning and mineral-springs of considerable repute. Area of par., 5680 ac. Pop. 1738.

TENBY, a seaport to and par Wales, co Pembrokeshire, W side, Carmarthen Bay on the point and N E margin of a rocky peninsula generally well built of limestone. It has a fine spacious old church, places of worship for Wesleyans, Independents, and Baptists assembly-rooms, a national and infant schools, several private societies, and some minor though useful charitable institutions; trade with Russia in fish of various kinds, and caviare and a pretty extensive general house trade, chiefly with London. It is, besides, a bathing-place of great and increasing resort, celebrated for its fine sands, beautiful scenery, and agreeable climate. Pop. (in) 1892. Area of par., 2343 ac. Pop. 8208.—[Local Correspondent.]

TENCE, a in France, dep. Haute-Loire, r bank Lignon 7 m. E. Ysaugreux, with manufactures of blue-lace and paper and a trade in deals. Pop. 1777.

TENDA, a in France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 34 m N E Nice. It is a very dull wretched place, with a coast of 1/2 m, a parish church, market-place, and an hospital. P. 2441.

TENDA-MAIR, a dut., W Africa, Senegambia, situated within a bend of the Rio-Grande intersected by the parallel of 11° 50' N., and by the meridian of 15° W. It is of small extent, generally level and sandy extremely fertile in Indian corn, millet, and rice, and producing abundantly fine timber-trees, and the oil-palm tree of fine quality and salt, are abundant in some localities. Cattle, deer, and wild oxen abound but there are very few herds of prey.—[Mémoires.]

TENDE (Cau-de), a pass in the Maritime Alps, a little W of the point where they become Italian, with the Apennines on the frontiers of the Savoyard state. Elev. and dist. height, 6190 ft. above sea-level. It is traversed by an excellent carriage-road, constructed by Victor Amédée III. The summit is hemmed by higher mountains on all sides except the E., in which direction the Mediterranean may be seen.

TENDRA, or TENDRA, an isl. Russia, in the N of the Black Sea, and off the N.W. coast of Taurida. lat. (N. end) 46° 21' 45" N. lon. 31° 25' E. (s.) It forms a very narrow belt of land, stretching N W to S.E. for above 80 m. A lighthouse, 93 ft. above the sea, has been erected upon it.

TENDRE (Haut-), a mountain, Switzerland, com. Vaud, S.E. side of Lake Foug, from which it rises with much irregularity, and presents a very imposing mass, 15 m. N W Lucerne, height, about 5730 ft.

TENDING, par Eng. Essex, 2267 ac. Pop. 653.

TENEDOR, an isl. Adriatic Turkey, W coast, Anatolia, 15 m. S.W. the Dardanelles; lat. 39° 50' 14" N.; lon. 26° 5' 45" E. about 6 m. long E to W., and 5 m. broad. The channel which separates it from the main is 3 m. broad and 10 to 15 fathoms deep. Tenedos is rocky bare, and desert towards the sea, but fertile inland and has always been remarkable for the number of its vines, which are said to retain colour and strength for 14 or 16 years. Corn, cotton, and fruits are also produced. On the E. side of the island, near the sea, is the town of Tenedos, consisting of about 500 miserable huts, defended by a white fortress mounting 41 pieces of cannon. A new fort has also been erected to the N.W. The port has a sort of pier, but is much exposed to all winds except the W. Several small islets are scattered about the island, and also some dangerous shoals, which lie off the W and N points.

TENERIFE, the largest of the seven principal islands of the Canary group, not far from its centre, between Grand Canary on the E., and Gomera on the W. 30 m. N W Cape Bojador on the African coast; lat. 28° to 35° 30' N.; lon. 16° 5' to 16° 55' W. It is of an irregularly triangular form, 80 m. long N E to S.W., and varying in breadth from 25 m. in the S.W., where widest, to 20 m. near the centre, and about 6 m. in the N.E.; area, about 1000 sq. m. It is wholly of volcanic formation, and is composed principally of enormous masses and cones of trachyte, lava, and basalt, which in their culminating point, the Peak of Teide, attain the height of 12,132 ft. above sea-level. The coast, which is very irregular, presents an almost uninterrupted extension of lofty cliffs, pierced by narrow precipitous fissures or ravines, with very few openings in which a vessel can find shelter. The Bay of Orotava, on the N.W., once the best and most frequented anchorage of the island, was sheltered and almost filled up by trachyte lava from an eruption in 1706 and the only good harbour now existing is that of Santa-Cruz, on the N.E. where two rocky arms, stretching round N.E. and S.E., inclose a beautiful semicircular bay. The most remarkable feature of the interior is in the broadest part of the island towards the N.W., where the enormous Peak of Teide is seen piercing the clouds, and surrounded by a girdle, which gives it the appearance of a fortified town encircled by its faces and bastions. The girdle or cone, properly so called, is not more than 550 ft. high, but in consequence of the loose particles of trachyte which cover its surface, is ascended with very great difficulty. The view from the summit is one of the most magnificent in the world. It extends over the whole of the Canary archipelago, while, from the transparency of the atmosphere, even remote objects are perceptible at the greatest distance. The crater which has its most elevated point on the N.E. and its lowest on the S.W., is about half a league in circuit, and slopes, by an easy descent, to a depth of not more than an average of 100 ft. Though it seems to have been the original vent of the whole volcanic archipelago, it appears to have been for ages only a volcano, all the eruptions of the last 3000 or 4000 years having been made by openings through its sides. Below this crater, and immediately W of it, is another of much larger dimensions, forming the summit of Mount Chahorra, which, though isolated from the Peak of Teide, is connected with it for a great part of its height and still farther on the W., at the foot of Chahorra, are other four cones, from which the last eruption took place in 1706. The only other eruption since the occupation of the island by the Spaniards in 1496, was that of 1706. At all times, however, the internal activity of the volcano is indicated by frequent streams of red vapour. Towards the base of a whole, there is a considerable resemblance to Mount Etna. Towns and villages, with their fields, gardens, and vineyards, stretch along its base, and for some way up its sides, next succeeds a woody region, composed of trees, chiefly olivaceous and oaks, with undergrowth of arbutus-like bushes at a lower and ferns at a higher elevation; beyond, and still higher, is a wide barren plain, covered with pumice-stone and blocks of lava, and inhabited only by a few rabbits and wild-guinea.

The portion of the surface available for cultivation has been estimated at about one-seventh of the whole. Very little of the occurs on the W. coast, which, with the exception of a belt and a few narrow valleys, is almost sterile. On the E., where the surface is many parts more hilly than mountains, both the valleys and adjacent hills are generally cultivated and the finest fruits of the island are produced. In point of fertility, however, and general adaptation to the purposes of agriculture, no district surpasses that of Laguna, situated towards the N.E., where a plain, nearly flat, and enclosed by hills, occupies a space of about 12 sq. m., on which heavy crops of grain are regularly raised. The principal productions of Tenerife are maize, wheat, potatoes, pulse, almonds, oranges, apples, grapes, honey, wax, silk, cochineal, and wine. The last, which forms the staple, furnishes an annual export of 25,000 to 30,000 pipes, which formerly found its principal outlet in the Spanish colonies of S. America, but is now sent chiefly to Great Britain and the U. States. The manufactures are very heterogeneous, but include, in addition to some coarse lines, woollens, and silk goods, some excellent specimens of furniture and cabinet-work. The Guanches, the original inhabitants of the island, almost all perished in vain endeavours to defend their freedom against the attacks of the Spaniards. The present inhabitants, consisting of a mixed race, in which Spanish features predominate, are estimated at about 85,000. Santa-Cruz is the capital.

TENERIFF (Isla, Cana da), in Tenerife See CANA DA (Isla).
TENSIS (anc. Carthago), a small seaport in Algiers, prov. and 102 m. S. W. W. Algiers, at the head of a bay, a bank stream of same name, which forms a small harbour with an insecure roadstead. It has a mean and dirty appearance; but has some trade, having become the port of Orleanville a new city, with which it communicates by a fine road constructed by the French soldiers. Before the time of Barharom, it was the capital of one of the petty kingdoms of the country, and formerly carried on a considerable trade in occ.

TENGHSTOUN a m. in Persia, prov. Fars about 3 m. from the Persian Gulf, on the road from Bushire to Ferous-Ahmad. It is Indian, a small place, and by walls backed with towers. Pop. about 3500.

TENGRI No. 2, the largest lake of Tibet, lying mostly between lat. 31° and 31° 30' N., and lon. 90° and 91° E., and reported to be nine days journey N. W. Lama (Stater Asiae Erasmia, iv. 238). It is upwards of 70 m. in length W. to E., by 85 m. in breadth, bordered N. by snowy mountains, elsewhere encompassed in summer by fine pasture-lands, which are resorted to by nomadic Mongols with their herds and flocks. On its W. side it receives the considerable river Tarku-dang, and on other sides several minor streams, but it appears to give origin to no river its surplus waters being disposed of wholly by evaporation.

TENIAN, one of the Ladrone isles. N. Pacific; lat. 16° 2' N., lon. 146° 47' E. It abounds with limes and lemons, and has some cattle.

TENINBERG ISLANDS, a group of isles, Indian Archipelago, of which the chief is Timor; the others are Moelo Mera, the Lema Islets, Rotang, Pungu, Majit, Tem, Malang, Labobar, Fresh-water Island, the Wauw Islets, the Serra Islets, Yordas, Laif, and Turis Islets. They extend from lat. 6° 40' to 8° 35' S., lon. 130° 40' to 132° E., and are mostly coral islands, surrounded by coral-reefs. On the larger islands are hills and low mountains, and some have plains covered with a vigorous vegetation, including palms and other useful trees. They are sometimes visited by whalers. The natives are distinguished from those of the surrounding islands by their language, and also by their form: they are tall well made, and have regular features. The men of the lower classes go entirely naked, and the women have only a small piece of cloth round the loins.

TENKEL or Tenk, a vil. Hungary, Thibber Theiss, on Bihar, on the Black E. 18 m. S. Grosswarden, with two churches, and a trade in wood and cattle. Pop. 1345.

TENNESSEE, a river, U. States, formed by the union of the Clinch and the Holston near Knoxville, in the E. part of the state of Tennessee flows S. W., takes a semi-circular sweep through the N. part of Alabama, then flows N. through the W. part of Tennessee and Kentucky, and enters the Ohio, of which it is the largest tributary about 10 m. below the confluence of the Cumberland. Length, about 1200 m.; total fall, about 2000 ft. It is variable 240 m. for steamers to Florence, at the foot of the Muscle-shoal Rapids, which are obviated by a canal 56 m. long; and above these rapids there is unobstructed navigation for boats for 250 m.

TENNESSEE, one of the U. States N. America; lat. 36° to 37° 45' N.; lon. 81° 30' to 90° 10' W., bounded, W. by Kentucky and Virginia, E. by N. Carolina, S. Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, and W. Arkansas and Missouri. extreme length, E. to W., 440 m.; extreme breadth, 118 m., area, 45,000 sq. m. A range called the Cumberland Mountains, crossing the state N. to S. W., divides it into E. and W. Tennessee. The former is intersected by ridges of hills, separated by intervening elevated valleys, which are very fertile; the latter, sloping from the central range N. towards the Mississippi, is more level. The principal rivers are the Mississippi, which waters the whole of the W. frontier; the Cumberland, which forms a long curve in the N. of the state, though it has both its source and its termination in Kentucky; and the Tennessee (which see). The climate is both temperate and healthy. Winter is seldom long nor severe snow, seldom a foot in depth, disappears in eight or ten days and cattle remain in the open field throughout the year. The staple products are cotton and tobacco, and the culture of hemp and flax, which has long been extensive, continues to increase. Indian corn, oats, and wheat are the principal grain-crops. The rearing and fattening of stock are carried on under peculiar advantages, and immense numbers of hogs grow up almost without requiring care, on the mast of the forests. The forests, moreover, yield much valuable timber, turpentine, &c. The minerals include a little lead, and abundance of coal, iron, sulphate, salt, freestone, and limestone. In the strata of the last, numerous caverns are often met with resembling those for which Kentucky is so celebrated and containing fossil remains and impressions of the mastodon, and many other animals now extinct. The manufactures consist chiefly of coarse woollen and cotton goods, leather, cordage, and earthenware. Direct foreign trade has scarcely any existence, but great quantities of live stock, grain, beef, pork, &c., are annually sent to the S. states, and the great staples are either sent down the rivers to the Ohio, or transported by the railroads which terminate at Chattanooga and Savannah. The principal religious sects are Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians. For the higher branches of education a number of colleges has been established, and for common educational purposes the funds are said to be complete, though as yet the schools in actual operation are comparatively few. By the constitution adopted in 1796, but thoroughly revised in 1854, the legislature is composed of a senate and a representative assembly elected annually by the suffrage of all the male whites 21 years of age. Nashville is the capital. Tennessee long formed part of N. Carolina, but was formally separated from it in 1790 erected into an independent territory and in 1796 admitted into the Union. Pop. (1850) 1,004,495, of whom 239,461 are slaves.

TENNINIS, a seaport in Algeria. See TENNA.

TENNISTADT a m. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 17 m. N. W. Erfurt, with three churches and an hospital a sulphur-spring with bath-houses manufactures of sulphate and paper an oil and several other mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2394.

TEARU, a river, Japan, lat. Nippon, which it traverses N. to S. and falls into the Pacific a little W. of the Bay of Totomizu total course, about 100 m.

TENSAS, or TENSAW, a river, U. States, issues from a lake in the S. E. of Arkansas, enters Louisiana flows S. W. not far from and nearly parallel to the Mississippi, and after a course of nearly 120 m. joins it back Washita.

TENSIFT, a river, Morocco, descends from a W. slope of the Atlas range flows W. W. and falls into the Atlantic, 46 m. N. N. E. Mogador total course, 240 m.

TENTERDEV, a market in and mun. bor. England, on Kent well situated on a height surrounded by hop-plantations, 25 m. S. W. Canterbury. It consists chiefly of one main street, well paved and lighted with gas, and has a spacious and handsome church, with a lofty tower, to which a beacon was once attached, Wesleyan Brynmor, Baptist, and Unitarian chapels, national, British, commercial, and other schools, an infirmary, an important corn-market, and an annual fair. Tenterden is a member of the Cinque-port of Rye, and the old popular saying that Tenterden always was the cradle of the Gwolin sands has been explained by alleging that the funds destined for the maintenance of Sandwich haven were expended in erecting Tenterden church. Pop. of bor., 3901.

TENTUGAL, a m. and par. Portugal, prov. Douro, 10 m. N. W. Coimbra, near a bank Mondego, with an almshouse. Pop. 1200.

TEOGH, a considerable river, S. Africa, an affluent from the N. of Lake Ngami.

TEOLO or Teorra, a m. Italy gov. Venetia, prov. and 10 m. S. W. Padua, near the Basiliciana, with a parish church and an osatory. Pop. 5700.

TEORA, a m. Naples, prov. Principato Ultra, 7 m. S. S. S. See Angelo-de-Lombardi, containing a palace of considerable construction, with an ancient round-tower. Pop. 3800.

TROTINHUACAN, a phalanx, Mexico, about 15 m. N N E. Tehuacan, surrounded on all sides except the E. by ridges and mountain-peaks, and celebrated for two remarkable pyramids which stand near its centre. The one, called Totemilhu-Tehuacan or House of the Sun, measures 622 ft. at its base, and terminates in a level platform 121 ft. high. The other, called Mastilhu-Tehuacan or House of the Moon is of less dimensions. Both are composed of stone pottery and cement, covered with remains of obelisks and terra-cotta images, and are in a very dilapidated state, tangled aloes and creepers having struck their roots deeply into their joints and crevices, and spread over them in all directions.

TEPELEHI (ana. Tepelehi), a ruined city of European Turkey, Albania, on the Vojutina, 66 m. N W Janina, for many years the residence of the famous Ali Pasha. It was formerly strongly fortified, and is still surrounded by a high wall, though there are few buildings within its inclosure. Outside the walls is a short street of miserable huts, and beyond are a khana, a bazaar, and a boy's house. The palace of Ali, in which Lord Byron was entertained is now a mass of ruins. (Lear's Journal in Albania and Thopia.)

TEPUCA, a tn. Mexico, dep. and 110 m. N W Guadalupe, on the slope of a steep hill. It is a large place, built with considerable regularity and rendered positively attractive by terraced gardens and pleasant promenades. Being much more healthy than the port of San Blas, about 50 m. to the W almost all the merchants connected with the port reside in it. The vegetable-market of San Blas is chiefly supplied from its gardens.

TEPIITAN a tn. Mexico, dep. Tehuacan, 1 bank river of its name, 60 m. N W Ciudad-Real. It stretches along the river for nearly 1 m., and is irregularly built of cane or bam boo, mud, and adobe. A considerable quantity of sugar-cane and maize is grown and rum is largely distilled in the district. The river an affluent of the Tehuacan, opposite the town is above 100 yards wide, is deep enough for any vessel that can cross Tehuacan but only small craft ascend so far. Pop. about 1200.

TEPLA, or TEPLA a tn. Bohemia, circle and 27 m. N W Pilsen, on a small stream of same name. It contains a deanery church, school hospital and a very extensive Franciscan monastery richly endowed, and possessing a good library picture-gallery philosophical cabinet, and museum. Pop. 1754.

TEPLICZ, two places, Hungary. — 1. A market tn. Habs. Theres, on Zips, 94 m. W N W Lendava with a R. Catholic church a brandy-distillery and a trade in wood. Pop. 1060. — 2. (Kup or Tepliczka) A rd. Habs. Dmub, on. Liptau, 20 m. from Viedova with a church. Pop. 1221.

TEPLITZ, or TEPLITZ, a tn. Bohemia, circle Leitmeritz, pleasantly situated in a valley between the Eragebirge and Mittelgebirge, 80 m. S. R. F. Dresden. It was once surrounded by a wall, of which only a small part now exists; and contains a studio, with the park and gardens, a deanery church, and several hospitals but even all in celebration to its thermal baths, which are the most renowned in Germany. The springs, 17 in number rise out of slatitic porphyry, of which the Tepliczky are chiefly composed, are of an alkali-sulphate nature, have a temperature varying from 60° to 190° and are very efficacious in cases of gout and rheumatism. The bathing-establishment is very complete, and during the season, which consists of the months of June and July, the whole town is filled with visitors, including many of the aristocracy and members of the royal families of Prussia, Russia, and Austria. Pop. 3743.

TEQUEENDAMA, a veteran, New Granada, prov. and a little W of Santa Fé. The river Bogotá, flowing through the valley of same name, becomes suddenly contracted from 140 ft. to 40 ft., and is precipitated over a precipice of 500 ft. into a rocky chasm, from which it descends to the banks of the Magdalena. The spectacle is described by Humboldt as one of the grandest in nature.

TER, a shallow river, Spain, Catalonia, prov. Gerone, rises in the Pyrenees near Lake Caracum; flows S. for about 95 m., then S. till it discharges into the Mediterranean, 68 m. N E Barcelona. total course, about 100 m.

TER-PORE a tn. Holland. See Boers.

TER-PORE, a tn. Holland. See Gorna.

TERA WAKA, or Tara Waka, a lake, New Zealand, ad. Ulster about 5 m. S. E. Lake Rotorua, and 20 m. S. Bay of Plenty. It is only about 5 m. long but is described as the gem of the lake-country of New Zealand, having its S. shore terminated by a lofty mountain in the form of a frustrum of a cone, and its other rocky shores richly covered with vegetation. It is connected by a narrow and rapid stream with two smaller lakes the waters of which have a temperature of 65°.

TERAMO (ana. Interamna Præstetina), a tn. Naples, cap. prov. Abruzzo-Ulter. I in an angle formed by the confluence of the Turidino and Vesuvio. 50 m. N N E. Aquila. It was once surrounded by walls, which have almost entirely disappeared; consists of some narrow streets, with many houses occupied by wealthy families, and a greater number of narrow dirty streets, of a very dull and dilapidated appearance. It is the see of a bishop, and has several important courts and offices connected with the administration of the province a cathedral of very early date, and originally a remarkable Gothic structure, but now sadly defaced by having been modernised, several convents, a royal college, a diocesan seminary, an ordinary and a founding hospital, and an orphan asylum. The manufactures consist of hats, paper-stitches, and creases of tartan and there are some trade in corn, wine, oil, and coal of which some pits have recently been opened in the valley of the Tordino. The ancient city stood in the vicinity and its site is indicated by the remains of temples, baths, aqueducts, and an amphitheatre. In the plain below Teramo is the ruined castle of San Flaviano, where a very bloody battle without any decided result, was fought in 1460, between the army of the Duke of Anjou and the Milanese allies of Ferdinand of Aragon. P. (1860), 15,609.

TERANEH, a tn. Lower Egypt, 1 bank Rosetta branch of the Nile, about 80 m. N W Cairo. It occupies the site of an ancient town, of which extensive remains still exist, and gives signs of considerable prosperity, owing to the general employment of the inhabitants in transporting nation from lakes about 12 hours journey to the W.

TERCEIRA, an Isl. Atlantic, one of the Azores, and near the centre of the group; lat. 26° 50' N; lon. 27° 10' W; about 70 m. N W St. Michael greatest length, 28 m., average breadth, 13 m.; circuit, 69 m. The coast almost everywhere presents bold and inaccessible cliffs. The interior rises by gentle slopes towards the centre, where it becomes mountainous, and then descends abruptly towards the N W. The whole surface bears the impress of volcanic agency; and many enormous masses, composing heights and precipices, look as if they had recently been under the influence of fire. Many of these masses are composed of soft gneiss and tuff, which seem ready to crumble away or descend in large blocks at the first heavy rain; and in fact many large landslides have occurred burying villages and cities in their fall. The soil, composed of decomposed lava and other volcanic matters, possesses the greatest natural fertility, so that though soil by a wall, of which only a small part now exists; and contains a studio, with the park and gardens, a deanery church, and several hospitals but even all in celebration to its thermal baths, which are the most renowned in Germany. The livestock is managed in the most skilful and unskilful manner, heavy crops of yams, grain, and pulses of all sorts are raised. There are also exquisite fowls in very abundance, and mangoes and lemons are now raised to such an extent as to furnish nearly a fifth of the whole of these fruits exported from the Amera. Some attention is paid to the rearing of cattle, of which rather a superior breed exists on the island. The sheep are wretched-looking animals, of little value in respect of carcass, but with fleeces of tolerable wool. Puma is the only mineral which seems capable of being turned to any account. There are no manufactures worthy of the name. Limonium prevails to a great extent among the island plants, and domestic cotton is in little vogue. One great cause of this was the number of monasteries and nunneries, the inmates of which were notorious for the shameless violation of their vows. The capital of the island is Angra, which gives its name to a department including the three islands of Terceira, St. George, and Graciosa. Pop. 40,000.

THE WINDMILLERS' (GARDEN SQUARE) VENEZIA—From Long, Audley and Co.

TERCERO, a considerable river La Plata Confederation, flows Cordova and Santa Fe, formed by several streams having their sources in the Mountains of Cordova, and uniting near Santa Cruz at about 53° S. lat. 64° W. From this point the river flows S.E. and E to Ensenada where it suddenly turns to the N.E., and ultimately falls into the Paraná, near Kapriña Santo, total course, about 300 m.

TERCHOUVA, a vil. Hungary, co. Trenčin, 13 m. from Sládko. It has a paper-mill, limestone-quarries, and a trade in wood. Pop. 3457.

TERDOPPIO a river Italy Piedmont, rises N of prov Novara a little S of Lake Maggiore; flows S 35 E and joins L bank Po, after a course of about 50 m. TERDÖS, several places, Hungary particularly—1 (Tó), A market in co. and 13 m. N W Zemplin with three churches, a synagogue, a Pauline monastery, a cavalry barracks, a riding-school, a handsome chateau, and the ruins of an old castle, which figures in the early Hungarian wars. Pop. 2906.—2 (Tó), A vil. Thälher Thes., co. Heusden, with two united churches. Pop. 1045.—3 (Tur), A vil. Thälher Thes., co. Ugeon on the Tur with a castle, two churches, and a trade in corn, cattle, and wood. P. 1676.

TEREB, a vil. in N. Bohemia prov Sarawak, 70 m. N Shawi, lat. 9° 51' N. lon. 66° 57' E. The environs abound in productive orchards and gardens.

TEREK, a river which descends from Mount Kasbek N side of the Caucasus in Circassia; flows first N W in a narrow valley then E past the town of Mosdok, to lon. 46° E, where it turns N.E., reaches Kudlar, where it divides into a number of branches, which fall into the Caspian; total course, about 500 m. Its most important affluents, which, as well as a vast number of mountain-streams, all join it on the right bank, are the Urush, Balasa, Rupa and Akrai. Its current is generally rapid, over a deep and rocky bed.

TERESA or CORAZON, a tn. Spain. See CORAZON. TERESILKA, a river Russia, rises on N frontiers of gov Saratov flows first S.E. then S.W., nearly parallel to the Volga, which it joins on the R bank, 30 m. N N E Saratov; total course, about 180 m.

TEREPOL, a tn. Russian Poland, 57 m. E S E. Siedlce, 1 bank Bug with some general trade. Pop. 1000.

TERETET, a tn. Naples prov Salerno, 48 m. Sora, on the summit of an almost inaccessible height. It has three churches. Pop. 1830.

TERGA, a tn. Marano, 70 m. N N E. Foa. Pop. 6000, chiefly employed as fishermen.

TERGOER, a tn. and port, Holland. See Gora.

TERGOVITZ or Tarnowitz, a tn. Walachia, on the Jalomita, 44 m. N W Bucharest. It is surrounded by old walls, contains a great number of ruinous houses, and has several churches and two convents. Pop. about 5000.

TERLING, a vil. Bay. Russia, 8000 ft. Pop. 900.

TERLIZZI, a tn. Naples, prov Bari, 19 m. S.E. Barletta. It contains a palace, with a good collection of pictures; two churches, one of them enriched by some pictures of Titian; two monasteries, and a nursery.

TERMINI [anc. Thermus Zimernensis] a tn. Sicily prov Agrigento, 23 m. S.E. Palermo on a height in a rich and well-cultivated district, near the mouth of a river of the same name, which falls into the Tyrrhenian Sea. It ranks as a city of the third class, being surrounded with walls, and 320 ft.

defended by a strong castle, and contains several churches, and richly-decorated convents, a college, two hospitals, and a female house of refuge. The harbour is good. The exports from it are corn, oil, olives, and other produce of the district. An active fishery also is carried on, chiefly for the supply of the markets of Palermo. It has thermal saline-baths, temperature 93° F.; in great repute. Pop. 3006.

TERMINOS (Laguna) a seaport in, and large inlet of the sea, Mexico, dep. Yucatan. The port is in lat. 18° 28' 34" N. lon. 91° 50' 48" W. (a). It is little more than a large village, about a third of it, including all the principal merchants' stores and houses, having been destroyed by fire in April, 1850. It has two small churches, but no other public buildings. Almost the only article exported is logwood of which upwards of 25,000 tons were exported in 1849. Pop. about 2000.—The LAGOON, or lagoon, is about 45 m. long and 30 m. broad is partly in bay Tabasco, and partly in Yucatan. Its N or seaward boundary is formed chiefly by the island of Carmen. Several rivers empty themselves into the lagoon, the principal of which is the Uxmalzo. The whole of the shores are low and swampy.

TERMOND, a tn. Naples, prov. Salerno, dist. 14 m. N N E. Luzzo, on a tongue of land which joins into the Adriatic. It is the see of a bishop, and has a cathedral and a convent. Pop. 3000.

TERMONAMONGAN, par Irel Tyrone, 46,599 sq. Pop. 6890.

TERMONHARRY par Irel Roscom 8540 sq. P. 8044.

TERMONDE (Flemish, Tendermonde, a tn. Belgium prov E. Fland. at the confluence of the Dender with the Scheldt here crossed by a large bridge, 12 m. N W Brussels, and a station on the railway from Malines to Ghent. It is strongly fortified and defended by a citadel surrounded by low marshy ground which can be laid under water. It contains four churches a townhouse, a courthouse, a lunatic and orphan asylum, a refuge for the aged, a prison, two arsenals, and barracks. It is also the seat of a court of first resort, of a chamber of commerce and a council-de-prov—house; possesses a college, several boarding and private schools, an academy of design and architecture, a municipal society, &c., and has manufactures of woollen stuffs cotton goods, tulle, hats, linen tobacco, soap, oil, chlorides of lime, salt, ropes, leather, and famed mustard dye-works, bleach-fields, breweries, and distilleries; and an important trade in oil corn hemp, flax, and linen. Termonde is not mentioned in any existing record before the 11th century. It afterwards became the capital of a lordship of same name, which extended N to Durne and W to near Ghent. In 1667 Louis XIV. besieged it with 60,000 men, but the garrison opposed the siege and he was forced to retire after being nearly drowned. When afterwards besieged by Marlborough, in 1706, a drought of seven weeks rendered the same defence unavailing and it was soon compelled to make an unconditional surrender. P. 7272.

TERMONEYN, par Irel London, 4773 sq. P. 1876.

TERMONFECKIN, par Irel. Louth 6804 sq. P. 3363.

TERMONMAGUIRK, par Irel Tyrone, 89,716 sq. Pop. 9228.

TERNATE, an island group, Indian Archipelago, in the Moluccas E of Celebes, and N of Ceylon comprising Gilolo, Morot, Koro or Koro, Ternate, Tidor, Machoe or Putebakker, Morier, Makien Kajo, and the Belau or Bataken group, and the Old and the Kealla islands. The group is named from Ternate, a small island on the W coast of Gilolo; lat. (approx.) 0° 48' N. lon. 127° 18' E. (a), the residence of the Sultan of Ternate, once the most powerful prince in the Moluccas, whose sway extended not only over the greater part of the group, but also over a large part of Celebes. The island of Ternate is nearly circular, about 16 m. in diameter, and composed almost exclusively of a central volcano, 4480 ft. high, slightly wooded to a considerable height, and of which frequent and destructive eruptions have taken place. One of the most recent occurred in 1846. Cocoa-nuts, sugar, and other tropical products are plentiful, and tobacco and cotton are grown to some extent. Sulphur, saltpetre, pumice-stone, and lime are the chief minerals. A trade is carried on with the Sooloo Islands, China, Java, Ambon, &c. The town of Ternate lies on the N. coast of the island. It is handsomely built, has broad, paved streets, a large, well-furnished market-place, a mosque, and a Protestant church; and here by, the Dutch fort of Oran, and the Sultan's palace.

TERRATE, a gov. or prov. of the Dutch possessions in the East, including the Sumatra Islands, part of Celebes, the N coast of Papua, and the adjoining islands of Waigoo, Salawatty, Mysia, &c.

TERRERRE, or Ten-Kunen in Holland. See HANSEN. TERRI (see Interword) a n. Italy, dist. Spoleto, on an island formed by the Nar 40 m N by E. Rome. It is the see of a bishop, and has a handsome cathedral, several other churches and convents, and some Roman antiquities, the principal of which are the remains of an amphitheatre. But the chief object of interest, which has made Terri familiar to Europe, is the celebrated falls which bear its name, though about 5 m. distant from it, and generally called in the locality the Caduta-della-Marmora. They are artificial, having been originally formed by the Romans to carry off the surplus waters which were constantly inundating the rich plains of Etruria. The head of the river immediately above the falls is about 50 ft., and the velocity of the stream is about 7 m an hour. The whole height, not less than 300 ft., properly forms three separate falls—the upper of 50 ft., the second or perpendicular fall of about 550 ft., and the third fall of 240 ft.—forming a long sheet of foam. Their magnificence is unrivalled in Europe. Terri is one of the most thriving and industrial towns of the country; and has important manufactures of woollens and silks. The historian Tacitus, and the emperor Trajan and Florian, were born here. Pop. 9245.

TERRADANT, or TARRADANT a n. Morocco, prov. Sus, 110 m. S.W. Marrakech, is a fertile and highly-cultivated tract. It is built of stone and surrounded with walls 25 ft. high, and of prodigious thickness. Its inhabitants are celebrated for their skill in dyeing and in tanning. Pop. 35,000.

TERROR, a n. Canada, Isl. Gran Canaria with a large and handsome church, six episcopal palaces, and a primary school; manufactures of woollens and linen cloth; flour-mills and a trade in corn, wine, and fruit. Pop. 5938.

TERRA-DE-CASCA, a n. Brazil, prov. Capitanzia, W. Bahia, on a coast hill. Pop. 1500.

TERRA DEL-FUOCO, see TIERRA DEL-FUOCO.

TERRA-DE-SOLIS, a n. and com. Tuscany 46 m. N.E. Florence, in a plain 1 bank Montem, with a court of justice, a church, a school, and mineral springs. Pop. 2543.

TERRA DE LAVORO, a prov. Naples. See LAVORO.

TERRA NUOVA, a n. and com. Tuscany comp. Arrezzo n. bank Chiusina, in the Upper Val-d'Arno, 80 m. S.E. Florence. It is surrounded by walls, has a court of justice, and a principal church, situated in a central square; four other churches, a convent, and superior school. Pop. 6833.

TERRA ROMA, a n. and com. Tuscany, comp. Pisa, 4 m. S. Viterbo, with a court of justice and a parish church. Pop. 1768.

TERRALINA (see Amari), a n. Italy doing, and 26 m. S.W. Francosco, on a gulf of same name, near the S.E. extremity of the Pontine marshes. It is the see of a bishop, and has a handsome episcopal palace, a cathedral, in a kind of Isola Brucina style, on the site of an ancient temple which has furnished several of the pillars; a harbour built by the Emperor Augustus in 100, but completely silted up, and a small port at the termination of the canal of Terracina, with about 8 ft. water, but the trade is very insignificant. The fishing, however, is active. On a height above the town are the ruins of the old castle of Theodorici. In 1798 the French took it by assault, and gave it up to pillage. F. 4145.

TERRALBA, a vill and com., Isl. San Marino, div. Capitanzia, is a very unhealthy plain near a lagoon, 12 m. S.E.E. Oristano. It has a bakery, salt-works, and a trade in wine. Pop. 2500.

TERRANOA, a convent n. N.E. coast, Isl. Sardinia, on a bay of same name, div. Sassari, prov. and 25 m. E. Tempio, with fishy, unpaved streets, a handsome church, a good harbour, and some trade. Pop. 1474.

TERRANOVA, see place. TERRA-DE-LI, a n., prov. Calabria-Città, dist. and 11 m. S.E.E. Cassaroforti, near 1 bank Crati with two parish churches and four convents. Pop. 2180.—2, a n. prov. Basilicata, 29 m. S.E.E. Ligonara 1 bank Marone, with a convent. Pop. 1100.—3, a n. Calabria-Ultra I, dist. and 9 m. S.E.E. Fiume. It was founded at a very early period, and had them to be one of the best places in the province, when it was in great part destroyed by the earthquake of 1783. It is now little more than an unhealthy village, though it still contains two churches.

—4, (Pescosta), a n. Principato-Ultra, N.W. Avellino, with three churches and an almshouse. Pop. 1130.

TERRANOVA (see Gila) a n. Sicily, prov. and 80 m. S.E.E. Caltanissetta, at the extremity of an arid plain, where the river of the same falls into the Mediterranean. It was founded in the 13th century by the Emperor Frederick II., on the site of the ancient Gela, is defended by a strong castle, and contains several handsome churches, eight convents, and an hospital. The harbour is indifferent, but has some export trade in corn, wine, fruit, and particularly sulphur and soda. Scythias, who had retired to Sicily to the court of King Hiere, is said to have died here. Pop. 9000.

TERRASSON (Latin, Turresanum), a n. France, dep. Dordogne, 1 bank Vézère, 80 m. E. Périgueux, with tanneries, brick and tile works, and a market for trifles. F. 1695.

TERRÉ-BONNE, a n. Lower Canada, on the river Des Prairies, 30 m. N. Montreal. It has a R. Catholic college, with nine professors and two masters; a large R. Catholic and an Episcopal church, a public and two private schools, manufactures of cloth, iron, and leather, and several grist and saw mills. Pop. (1853) 1129, (Jan. 1854), about 1400.

TERRÉ-HAUTE, a n. U. States, Indiana, on the Wabash, and Wabash and Erie canal, and at the junction of the Terre-Haute and Richmond and the Atlantic and Mississippi rail ways, 73 m. W. Indianapolis. It occupies a high bank about 60 ft. above the river, is well built, mostly of brick; and has 13 churches, numerous schools, a fine courthouse, townhall, and state-bank; manufactures of agricultural implements, carriages, and soap; two foundries, two breweries, two distilleries, a cooperage, an oil, a saw, and several flour mills and a considerable trade, partly in hops, of which about 50,000 are annually packed. There are rich beds of coal and iron in the vicinity. Pop. about 4900.

TERRÉGLÉE, par. Sec. Kirkcudbright; 5 m. by 5 m. l. op. 655.

TERRERA, one of the smaller isles, Indian Ocean, about 12 m. long N.W. and S.E. and 5 m. broad at the N.W. and but scarcely half so much at the S.E. end. When viewed from a considerable distance, it appears like two islands, the land towards each end, particularly the N. part, being much higher than in the middle.

TERRICCIUOLA, a n. and com. Tuscany comp. and 18 m. S.E. Pisa; with a court of justice, a large square, on the site of an ancient castle, and partly occupied by a vastness church of three naves with five arches and a trade in oil fruit, and cattle. Pop. 9125.

TERRINGTON, three par. Eng.—1, York (N. Riding) 5630 ac. Pop. 753.—2, (St. Clement) Norfolk, 34,326 ac. l. op. 2250.—3, (St. John), Norfolk. Pop. 784.

TERRYGLASS, par. Irel. Tipperary; 1763 ac. F. 566.

TERRSHELING, Isl. Holland. See ROTTERDAM (Tux).

TERTENIA, a vill and com. Isl. Sardinia div. Capitanzia, 15 m. S.E. Lanusei with a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. It is notorious for the number of murders perpetrated in it. Pop. 1130.

TERRUEL, a prov. Spain Aragon with cap. of same name, bounded by the provs. Saragossa and Huesca, E and S. Terrogasta, Castellón-de-la-Pina, and Valencia; and W. Cuenca and Guadalajara; area, 3263 sq. m. The principal mountain-range is that of Albarracín and its offshoots, intersecting the province E. to W. One of the loftiest portions of this mountainous region is the Monte-de-San-Juan, whose summits are clothed with snow two-thirds of the year, and in whose recesses the Tagus, Gader, Guadalquivir, and Júcar take their rise at a very short distance from one another, whence they direct their course in different directions to the Atlantic and Mediterranean. Besides the Allos and Guadalquivir, this province is fertilized by the waters of the Allos, Iba, Martín, Agüero, and other smaller streams. Between the nearest the extensive and fertile plains. The productions consist chiefly of grain, wheat, silk, wool, silk, hemp, wax, saffron, and exquisite brims, as well as numerous sheep, swine, and hunted cattle. Abundance of timber and charcoal is also supplied from the mountains; in which there is also plenty of game. Here copper-mining industry is still confined to coarse cloth, bolina, blankets, rapens, plain flannels, shoes, and other articles of hemp and aspartic, paper, soap, and leather, besides spinning-mills, copper-works, and potteries. Education is in a very backward state, but there is less crime here than in most of the other provinces of Spain. Pop. 350,000

TERUEL (anc. Turbia), a city, Spain, Aragon, esp. above prov., 148 m. N.E. Madrid, 1. bank Guadalquivir or Turia. It is surrounded by weak old walls, with nine gates, which, with their Aragonese towers, give the city an imposing look when viewed from a distance. The interior is solid and gloomy. For the most part the streets are narrow, crooked and ill paved; but kept very clean, and provided with sewers. It has 14 squares, the principal one provided with arcades beautifully paved, and an old fountain in the center; a cathedral, presenting a picture of the 11 000 virgins, by Antonio Buzquet, a rare Valencian altar, an episcopal palace, a parish church of St. Peter with its cloisters, where are preserved the remains of Juan Diego de Marcella and Isabel de Segura, the 'lovers of Teruel' so familiar to readers of Spanish plays, the church of Santiago, that of San Martin, with its Arabesque tower; and the Arco de Xumai, an aqueduct consisting of a double file of arches 160 ft. high. There are also a theatre, several convents, an hospital, an institution which is at the same time an asylum for the poor and a founding hospital, and several educational establishments for primary and advanced instruction. Outside the town is a bull ring capable of accommodating 9000 persons. Agriculture constitutes the chief employment of the inhabitants, and hemp in thread or wrought is the only article of export. The town and all the district were sacked in 1810, by Suchet. Pop. 7185 TERVUREN, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, 7 m. E. Brussels, with a magnificent royal chateau, having a walled park of 485 ac., a large church, in which several of the dukes of Brabant are buried. Here also is the breeding-stand belonging to the state. Pop. 1812.

TERWICK par Reg. Sussex, 716 sq. Pop. 97

TERWOLDE, a vil. Holland prov. Gelderland, 22 m. N.E. Arnhem, with a church. Pop. (agricultural) 1843.

TESCHEN, a to. Austria, Moravia, esp. circle, r. bank Olse, 68 m. N.E. Olmitz. It consists of the town proper, surrounded by walls with three gates, and of three suburbs, and contains an old castle with a small Gothic chapel of an oval form, a parish church, partly Gothic and partly modern, a Protestant church a large and majestic structure, a church of the Brothers of Charity remarkable alike for lightness and solidity of structure, an hospital with a church, an Elisabeth nursery, and a gymnasium with a library of 12 000 vols., and a cabinet of coins, minerals, and other natural curiosities. It has manufactures of woollens, comsumers, linen, and firearms; distilleries of rosegill, and a trade in wools and linen goods, wool, leather, wine, wax, and honey. The peace which terminated the war of the succession to Bavaria was signed here in 1779. Pop. 8400.

TESHUO-LOHBOO in Tibet. See CHAMPA to the-BOO.

TESOURA, a m. Brazil, prov. and 80 m. N.W. Goyas. It owes its existence to the great quantities of gold which were furnished for a time by the small stream of the same name, and attracted a considerable population, but since the washings ceased to be productive, many of the inhabitants have emigrated, and their houses have either been pulled down or left tenanted. — The river rises among mountains, about 70 m. N. E. Goyas, runs N. E., traversing the town of Tesoura, receives the Parna in its left, and joins r. back Araguaia, after a course of about 300 m.

TESSENDERLOO a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Limburg 14 m. W. N. Hasselt. It has manufactures of woollen stuffs, two tanneries, an oil-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 2070.

TESLIN, a m. Mecklenburg-Schwerin, on the Recknitz 15 m. S.E.E. Rostock. It is walled, and defended by two forts; has a parish church, a school, manufactories of linen and rials, and several breweries and distilleries. Pop. 3189

TESLIN (Haidan, Tselin) a river Switzerland, rises on the S. slope of Mount St. Gothard on the frontier of the canton of Leventina, till it approaches Bellinzona, when it changes its direction to S.W. and shortly after traverses Lake Maggiore, proceeds S.E. E., forming the boundary between Piedmont and Lombardy, and shortly after passing Pavia, joins i. Spok Eo; total course, extensive of the lake, about 120 m., of which 45 m. are above, and 75 m. below the lake. Head of the former, but all the latter, is navigable.

TESLIN (Haidan, Tselin), a m. in the S. of Switzerland, bounded N. by mts. Grisons and 104 N.W. small river of Valais, W. and S.W. Piedmont, and S. and E. Lombardy. It bears a considerable resemblance to a triangle, with its vertex on the S., and base resting on the N.; greatest length, N. to S. 29 m. central breadth, 28 m.; area, 1087 sq. m. This canton, in respect of climate and general physical features, is divided into two very unequal parts by Mount Ceneri, which stretches across it E. to W. towards the head of Lake Maggiore. Both parts are so interested in all directions by mountains of greater or less magnitude, that the whole canton may justly be regarded as one of the most mountainous in Switzerland. The N. and the larger part, however, is the more elevated, its N. frontier being formed by several of the loftiest of the Alps, the Splügen, St. Bernard, and Mount St. Gothard. From this frontier a considerable portion of which belongs to the glacier-region, the canton has a general slope towards the S., lofty mountain-ranges, which generally take a S. or S.E. direction, forming in the spaces which separate these lofty alpine valleys, each again traversed by an impetuous mountain stream. The smaller part of the canton lying on the S. side of Mount Ceneri, though by no means damp, is of a much less magnificent description, and exhibits in its scenery, elevations, and productions, the characteristic features of Italy. The whole canton, with exception of a very minute portion of the S. which sends its water to Lake Como, is drained by Lake Maggiore, and belongs through it to the basin of the Po. The principal stream by which the drainage is performed, is the Teslin, which gives its name to the canton, and is augmented within it by several affluents. Besides these streams there are numerous lakes. The most important of all, Lake Maggiore has only a small part of its area within the canton. The others deserving of notice, either because of their magnitude or the magnificent scenery in which they are embosomed, are lakes Lugano, Musso, Origo, Stetta, Lucrezio, and Botto. The elevated and rugged surface of the N. part of the canton necessarily limits it for agricultural operations and confines the attention of the inhabitants to the rearing of cattle and the preparation of dairy produce, which constitutes the great sources of their subsistence. In the S. part of the canton the scene completely alters and alpine pastures are succeeded by magnificent forests of oaks on the higher slopes, lower still, by olive-woods and vineyards and towards the plains by waving corn-fields and many of the more delicate Italian fruits—figs and almonds, oranges, citrons, and pomegranates. The myrtle grows almost without culture, and in ordinary winters requires no shelter. The minerals of the canton are not of much consequence. In some parts of the S. front is partially wrought, and even a little coal has been dug, but probably the most valuable mineral the canton contains is marble, which is found in great abundance, and of various colours, particularly red and green. Where the mountains lie within the limits of forest vegetation, they are the haunts of almost all kinds of game. The streams and lakes are full of fish. The manufactures consist almost entirely of a few articles of domestic use and though there is some transit trade over the mountain-passes between Switzerland and Italy, many of the inhabitants, unable to find employment at home usually migrate into other countries. Trade was not formally admitted to the Swiss Confederation till 1815. The government, at first oligarchical underwent considerable modification in 1830, and the grand council in which the legislative and all other power either actually or virtually centre, is chosen by all the citizens of 25 years of age possessing immovable property either in fee to the value of 25, or in life-rent to the value of 212. The inhabitants, like the country which they occupy, belong to the Italian type. They generally speak the language, profess the religion, and while sometimes indolent in the boat, are not unfrequently enterprising for some of the worst habits of the Italians. For administrative purposes Teslin is divided into 6 districts—Bellinzona, Locarno, Lugano (each of which, as afterwards the seat of government, may be regarded as a capital), Bienna, Leventina, Mendrisio, Riviera, and Val Maggia, subdivided into 38 circles. Its contingent to the Confederation is 1804 men, and an annual payment of 41100 Fr. Pop. (1840), 117,297; of whom only 60 are Protestants.

TESTACHIO, a vil. Naples, in a beautiful valley in the S. of Mt. Ischia. Pop. 1118.

TESTE-BOR-BOON (Telle, Bagin), a important Franconian dep. Ghrunde, 30 m. S.E.W. Nordheim, with which it is connected by railway. S. shore, Bay of Arundon, where it has a small harbor, much frequented by sailing vessels, and at which a considerable trade is carried on, particularly in rice, plank, tar, linseed, and oil. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in fishing against and other fish. The only manufacturing is porcelain. Pop. 3250.

TESTERTON, par. Eng. Norfolk, 613 m. Pop. 13.

TESTIGOE, a group of islets, Caribbean Sea about 50 m. from N.E. coast, Yucatan, and about the same distance N.E. the island of Mangrove; lat. 11° 32' N., lon. 53° 18' W.

TETON, par. Eng. Kent; 491 m. Pop. 208.

TET, a river, France, rises in Mount Froque, dep. E. Pyrénées flows into S.E. to Mont Louis, then N.E., past the towns of Fréjus and Puyricard, and 6 m. below the latter falls into the Mediterranean, after a course of 75 m., of which 45 m. are used for floating.

TET or TURT, a decayed m. Morocco, 8 m. S.W. Marrakech. Pop. 1000.

TETBURY, a market tn. and par. England, co. and 16 m. S.E.E. Gloucester, on a rising ground, near the source of the Lower Avon, with a spacious market-house a handsome church surrounded by a fine square, three Dissenting places of worship a grammar and a common school, an almshouse, and various minor charities. Yarn, cheese, and butter form the staple articles of sale. A cloth-manufacture is also carried on. N. of the town there is a petrifying spring. Area of par., 4583 ac. Pop. 3325.

TETCOTT, par. Eng. Devon 2181 m. Pop. 569.

TETE, or TETTE, a tn. E. Africa, cap. of a gov. of the Portuguese territory 110 m. N.W. Sena. It is situated on elevated ground, on the Zambesi, in the midst of a fertile district. It is large, well built, and healthy.

TETE-NOIRE, a pass leading from the valley of the Trent, in the S.W. of the Swiss can Valais, into the Val d'Aoste in Savoy. It leads across a densely wooded mountain ridge, the highest summit of which is about 7000 ft. though the pass nowhere much exceeds 4000 ft.

TETENY, a vil. Hungary. Hither Danube, co. and 7 m. S.W. Pesth near the Danube with a parish church, synagogue, and chateau. Pop. 1450.

TETEREW, a river Russia, rises on the confines of Poland, in the S.W. extremity of Volhynia flows N.E. through this government, past Jitomir, enters gov. Kiev, and joins the bank Dniester a little below the confluence of the Pripiat, after a course of about 150 m.

TETHEOW, a tn. Mecklenburg-Schwerin, on a lake 16 m. E. Güstrow. It is walled, and has a Gothic church, a post-office and some general trade. Pop. 3759.

TETFOUD par. Eng. Lincoln, 2710 m. Pop. 792.

TETH, a vil. Hungary. Thither Danube, co. and 14 m. S.W. Raab, with two churches, and a trade in wood and cattle. Pop. 2558.

TETIE, or VEGA-DE-TETIA (La) a tn. Canaries, Isl. Fuerteventura, in a fertile valley, with a church, a primary school, and some manufactures of linen. but the chief employment is agriculture. Pop. 1387.

TETNEY par. Eng. Lincoln 5325 m. Pop. 960.

TETSCHEEN, DORCHON, or WANTA a tn. Holstein, circle Lauenburg, pleasantly situated on bank Elbe, 30 m. S.E. Dresden. It stands at the foot of a lofty sandstone-rock crowned by the old castle of Tetschen, in which there are a fine library of 20,000 vols., an armory, &c.; consists of the town proper and the Elbe suburbs contains a n. church; and has breweries and distilleries, some shipping, and a considerable trade, particularly in corn and fruit. Pop. 1433.

TETSO, or TEYANOW, a market to Hungary, co. Maros, on the Theiss, over which there is here a ferry, 14 m. N.W. Seged. It has an enlightened-spring, salt-mines, and a trade in wood and cattle. Pop. 1391.

TETSWORTH par. Eng. Lincoln, 1178 m. Pop. 512.

TETTENBACH a tn. and par. England, co. Stafford on the Worcester and Staffordshire canal, about 3 m. N.W. Wolverhampton. It has an ancient parish church, a Wesleyan chapel and manufactures of iron, magnets, bells, spectacle-frames, &c. Area of par., 7600 ac. Pop. 5328.

TETTINANG, a tn. Württemberg, circle Donau, capital, on the Töbelsack, 52 m. S.E.W. Ulm; with a church, several chapels, two castles, an hospital, manufactures of stery-hammy, some mills, and a general trade. Pop. 1931.

TETUAN a support m. Morocco, prov. Fez, on a rugged hill above the shore of the Mediterranean, 53 m. S.E. Tangier; lat. (mean-time) 35° 17' N.; lon. 6° 18' W. (a.) It is walled, flanked with towers, and defended by a castle, which crowns the heights on which the town stands, and is partly occupied by the governor's residence. It has narrow, unpaved, and dirty streets, and the houses, which, with their projecting balconies, almost meet across them and exclude both air and light, are, with a few exceptions, little better than hovels.

A STREET IN TETUAN.—From Donce's Tourist in Spain and Morocco.

The only public buildings deserving of notice are the mosques, some of which are handsome. The harbour situated at some distance, at the mouth of the small river Martil, is altogether unfit for large vessels and the roadstead though affording sufficient depth of water, and well sheltered by a peninsula on the W., is completely exposed on the E. The trade with the interior is considerable, chiefly through the medium of Fez, from which it receives the goods brought by several caravans, and exports them chiefly to Italy, Spain, and France, in return for European manufactures. Pop. about 15,000.

TETWORTH, par. Eng. Huntingdon, 1446 m. P. 321.

TEUCHERN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 17 m. S. Merseburg on the Elbe, with a church. P. 1558.

TEUFEN or TOUFEN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, co. and 5 m. N.N.E. Appenzell, with a handsome church and an orphan asylum. The greater part of the inhabitants are employed in manufacturing and manufacturing wool. P. 807.

TEULADA a tn. Spain Valencia, prov. and 59 m. N.E. Alcala, at a short distance from the Mediterranean. It has several spacious streets, a parish church, endowed school, hospital, manufactures of linen, and some general trade. P. 1698.

TEULADA, a vil. and com., Isl. Madeira, div. and 26 m. S.W. Fagial, in an unhealthy valley, on a small stream, a little above its mouth in the Bay of Ribeira, and 5 m. N.N.E. of the Cape of Teulada. It has quarries of white marble, and a mine of magnetite-iron. Pop. 2299.—The garr. (see Teulada), forming the most S. point of the island, is a slightly bold headland, nearly 500 ft. high, and contains a long range of precipitous cliffs, with a breadth of flats more than 2 m. in length, partly occupied by a lake, which deposits fine soil.

TEUTOBURGERWALD, or BUNZ, a mountain-chain, Germany, which commences between Bielefeld and Steinhagen, to the W. S.W. of Osnabrück, and stretches N. across the district of Paderborn to the small town of Horn. Here it changes its direction to N.W., traverses part of Lippe-Deister, and Rhinisch Prussia, enters Hannover, and terminates near Osnabrück, where it becomes flanked with a chain of hills which stretch from W. to E., and are known by the name of the Mountains of Minden. The highest parts of the chain are the Falkenberg near Horn, where its height is nearly 2000 ft. and the Kalkberg, near Vörden. In these localities, and generally in the S.E., it is covered with fine hardwood-forest. It slopes gently on the W., and very rapidly on the E. The route Egge is generally restricted to the S. part of the chain, and the Teutoburgerwald to the N. The drainage is shared by the Weser, Ems, and Rhine.

TEVA = in Spain, Andalusia, prov and 87 m. N.W. Malaga, in a valley. It has a townhouse, abattoir, hospital, storeroom, several fountains, a small and measure prison, two primary schools, two academies for girls, a church, a convent with a church open for public worship, and several hermitages. Agriculture forms the main occupation, but some are employed as muleteers, in making superior ropes, dressing and exporting muleskins, and in various flour and oil mills. Pop. 8553.

TEVEL, several places. Hungary particularly:—1. A vil. Thither Danube co. and 12 m. from Tolna, with a church and some trade in wood and in tobacco. Pop. 2404.—2. (Adana), A vil. Thither Danube co. Vespriem 5 m. from Papa, with two churches, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1660.

TEVERE, a river Italy. See Tevere.

TEVERONE, (see Aso), a river, Italy, rises on the frontiers of Naples, at the extremity of deleg. Fruscone, flows S.E., then turns suddenly N.W., forming a circular bend, a ridge of the Apennines hill it reaches lat. 43° N., when it changes its direction to S.E.W. and keeps it till its junction with L. bank Tiber, about 5 m. N.N.E. Rome, total course, 65 m., almost wholly through a picturesque valley. On it are the celebrated artificial cascades of Tivoli.

TEVERSAI, L. par Eng Nottingham, 2820 ac. P. 573.

TEVERSHAM, par Eng Cambridge 1200 ac. I. 288.

TEVIGT, a river, Scotland, co. Roxburgh, rises among the heights which separate Dumfriesshire from Roxburghshire, and after flowing in a N.E. direction about 55 m., joins the Tweed near Kelso.

TEW, two par. England, Oxford — 1. (Great), 8140 ac. Pop. 541 — 2. (Little), 1600 ac. Pop. 237.

TEWIN, par Eng. Hereford 2615 ac. Pop. 572.

TEWKSBURY, a bur. market tn., and par England, co. and 10 m. N.E. Gloucester. 1. bank Avon, near its confluence with the Severn. It consists of three principal and several smaller streets, all kept clean. The houses are chiefly of brick, and are well built, with exception of a few ancient dwellings composed of timber and brick, which still remain. It has a fine old church principally in the Norman style, with a beautifully-ornamented tower rising from the centre. Another church, of modern erection, Wesleyan, Independent Baptist, Quaker and R. Catholic chapels, a grammar, national, infant, and Dissenter schools, a dispensary, several minor charities, and a mechanics institute. Stocking-weaving is the principal trade of the place, but it is not so flourishing now as formerly. There is also a silk factory. Area of par, 2285 ac. 1. par (par and bur), 6878. (Local Correspondent).

TEXAS, one of the U. States of N. America, lat. 26° to 36° 30' N., lon. 98° 30' to 107° W., bounded, N. by the Indian territories, N.W. New Mexico, S.W. and S. the Confederation of Mexico, S.E. the Gulf of Mexico, and E. Louisiana and a small corner of Arkansas; length, E. to W., 600 m., breadth, 400 m., area, 327,321 sq. m. The surface in the N.W. is covered with mountains, which, in proceeding S.E., subside into hills and undulating plateaus, succeeded, on approaching the Gulf of Mexico, by low alluvial plains. These extend inland from 30 m. to 50 m., are furrowed with deep ravines, and, except near to the coast, form extensive prairie, or are covered with dense forests. The hilly region behind it consists chiefly of sandstone and limestone ridges, separated by valleys of considerable fertility and presenting scenery of great beauty and grandeur, though few of the hills exceed 500 ft. in height. In the mountainous region, composed chiefly of the primitive and oldest sedimentary rocks, many of the mountains are very lofty, and are covered with snow during the greater part of the year. Few countries are better watered than Texas, though, in consequence of numerous obstructions, few of the rivers are navigable for more than 100 m. The general slope of the country gives all the rivers a direction more or less S. Among them, the most important is the Rio-Grande or Rio-Grande-del-Norte, which, proceeding from New Mexico, and skirting the base of a long range of mountains, forms the W. and S.W. boundary of the state. Another important frontier stream is the Red River, which, rising in the N.W., within the frontiers of Mexico, forms the far greater part of the N. boundary. The other large rivers taking their rise in their order from W. to E., are the Pecos or Puerco, a tributary of the Rio-Grande; the Nueces, with its affluent Frio and San Miguel the Guadalupe, the Rio-Colorado or Red River of Texas, which empties itself into Matagorda Bay and is the most important central stream of the state; the Brazos, the San Antonio and Trinity which both empty themselves into Galveston Bay and the Sabine, which, during the latter and greater part of its course, is the boundary between Texas and Louisiana. No lakes of any importance appear in contrast to the interior. But a long chain of lagoons, separated from the sea by a narrow belt of short stretches along the Gulf of Mexico. These lagoons, though encumbered at their entrance by bars have great depth of water within, and seem susceptible of being improved so as to become of great navigable importance. The soils of Texas include every possible variety but taken as a whole, are so fertile that the country, probably from some little exaggeration has been called the garden of America, and likened, in respect both of climate and productivity, to the fertile regions of N. Italy. The two great staples are cotton and sugar, both of which are largely cultivated on the coast, and for 100 m. up the principal rivers. In the same lower districts, maize and tobacco grow luxuriantly. The common cereals, wheat, rye, oats, and barley, thrive best in the hilly regions, and both there and at lower levels, fruits in almost endless variety are abundant. The mulberry thrives well, and silk might be obtained to an almost unlimited extent. The forests are magnificent, and contain large tracts of oak admirably adapted for naval purposes. The pastures also are often covered with the richest natural grasses, and the rearing of cattle is carried on to the greatest advantage. In the mountainous districts herds of buffaloes, Mustangs or wild horses, and deer are seen in thousands. The minerals have been repeatedly explored but identity of geological formation gives ground to presume that the gold and silver found in the ranges of Chihuahuas and New Mexico are not wanting in the N.W. of Texas. The hilly region contains large deposits of ironstone, copper is found on the banks of the Brazos, and both lignite and coal in various places. Manufactures cannot yet be said to have an existence, and though the coasting trade is of some importance, the foreign trade is very limited. By the constitution of Texas, adopted in 1845 the legislature consists of a general assembly, composed of a senate elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years and a house of representatives, elected for two years, both bodies chosen by the universal suffrage of male whites of 21 years of age. Austin is the capital. The population in 1850 was 319,599 of whom 28,161 were slaves. Besides these, the aboriginal Indians are estimated at 25,000. They belong to various tribes, but the Comanches, by far the largest, number about 15,000, and can number 2000 warriors. They have at times proved troublesome to the frontier settlements. The first settlement in Texas was made at Matagorda by the French who, in 1690 were expelled by the Spaniards, who extended their expeditions over the whole territory. It afterwards became one of the states of the Mexican Confederation. Several colonies of American citizens, invited by the Mexicans, settled in the E. section, and gradually increasing in numbers, Texas revolted from the federal government, and, in 1836, declared themselves independent. Santa Anna attempted to reduce them, but failed, and is said to have acknowledged their independence. This, however was never sanctioned by the senate, and accordingly wanted legal confirmation when the American senators, in 1845 offered to make the whole country one of the U. States Congress accepted the offer, and thus gave rise to the recent war which proved so disastrous to Mexico.

TEXEL, an isl. Holland, prov N. Holland, separated from the Halder by the channel called Mars-Diep, 2½ m. broadest lat. (W. point) 55° 5' N.; lon. 4° 42' E. It is about 14 m. long, and 6 m. in extreme breadth; its N. part being composed of the former island of Hitherland (about east). A good many sheep, which yield fine wool and a considerable quantity of cheese, and a number of hatted cattle and horses are reared. Many of the inhabitants are also engaged in fishing and weaving. It contains two parishes: St. (Burg), and the village. Pop. 4934 The Dutch Admiral Van Tromp was defeated and slain off Texel by the English under Monk, July 31, 1666.

TEY, three par. Eng. Essex.—1 (Green); 2608 ac. P. 785. —2, (Litch), 486 ac. P. 74—3, (Merch); 1314 ac. P. 473.

TEYNE, the west N. of the Solway Islands; lat. 55° 52' N., lon. 121° 45' E.; small, very low and covered with trees.

TEYNHAM, par. Eng. Kent; 2645 ac. Pop. 643

TESLA, or TESSA, a river, Russia, rises in the S. of gov. Kozlovsk, flows easterly to S. into gov. Vladimir, and joins the bank Kiziasa, after a course of about 100 m.

TEZUCO, or TEZUCO, a m. Mexican Confederation, dep. and about 18 m. E. N. E. Mexico. E. shore lake of same name. It is ancient times it was the second city in the kingdom, and though still a place of some importance, now derives its chief interest from historical associations and remains of antiquity. In the N. W. quarter, where a shapeless mass of pottery, bricks, and some large neatly-quared shafts of basalt are thickly overgrown with vines, one of the palaces of Montezuma is said to have stood; and in the S. quarter are the massive remains of three vast pyramids, each measuring 400 ft. along the base of their fronts. They appear to have been sanctuaries or temples devoted, like those of the capital, to human sacrifices and other heinous rites. The modern town contains many handsome edifices, both public and private, has considerable manufactures of woolen and cotton goods, and carries on an active trade chiefly with Mexico. Pop. about 5000.—THE LAKE, about 24 m. E. city of Mexico, with which it is connected by a canal, is the largest and lowest of the five lakes in the same vicinity. Its greatest length, N. to S., about 15 m. greatest breadth, 9 m. Its depth nowhere exceeds 10 ft., and in some parts is not more than 2 ft. or 3 ft., while its shores, little raised above its level, are swampy. Its waters are so strongly impregnated with salt as to leave a white deposit on its banks, and supply a number of salt-works which have been erected. The lake was once much more extensive than at present, and contained several islands, one of which the Mexicans of the Incae was built. (See MEXICO, city)

THAILFINGEN a vil. Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, 9 m. E. Rasthagen, with a church, and manufactures of leather. Pop. 1667

THAKHAM, par. Eng. Essex; 3980 ac. Pop. 631

THAL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. and E. N. E. St. Gall with an old church. Near it is a mineral-spring, over which a bath has been erected and a castle, belonging to the Prince Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen. Pop. 2665.

THALE, a m. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and S. W. Magdeburg, at the foot of the Harz Mountains, with a church, a manufactory of sheet-iron, linoleum and two mills. P. 1865.

THALHEIM.—1 A vil. Saxony, circle Zwettzen, bail. Stollberg with a church, manufactures of linen and cotton, and a cotton and three other mills. Pop. 1866.—2, A vil. Württemberg circle Neckar bail. Heilbronn with a church and an old castle on a rise. Pop. 1214.—3 A vil. Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, 7 m. N. W. Tübingen with a church. Pop. 1861.—4, A vil. Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, bail. Rottenberg with a church, and the ruins of an old fortified castle. Pop. 1083.

THALMÄSSING or THALMÄSSINGEN, a market in Bavaria, on the Thallach, 25 m. S. by E. Nürnberg; with a demesne, two churches, and three mills. Pop. 1169.

THALWEILL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. and 6 m. S. Zürich, on a height above W. shore, Lake of Zürich. It contains chiefly of a number of houses clustering round the church, whose twisted tower, rising up among the pines, presents a strange appearance. The inhabitants are much employed in weaving cotton, and in various other general trades. P. 1758.

THAME, a market tn. and par. England, co. and 12 m. E. Oxford, on a gentle activity I. bank Thame, across which is a bridge of considerable length. It has a large, handsome, cruciform church, a free grammar, and another free school for educating and apprenticing boys, but no manufactures of any consequence, the bulk of the labouring class being engaged in handicraft. Area of par., 5610 ac. Pop. 3256.

THAMES, the most important, though not the largest river of Great Britain, is usually said to rise about 8 m. S. W. Crummock in Gloucestershire, near a bridge over the Thames and Severn canal, called Thames-head Bridge, but is more properly derived by the hills, Churnock, Churn, and Lench, which have their sources on the E. side of the Cotswold Hills, and unite near Lechlade, where the counties of Gloucester, Wilts, Berks, and Oxford border on each other. Its direct course, E. by E. to the Nore, where its estuary is considered to terminate in the German Ocean, is 194 m. Its indirect course to the same point is estimated at 315 m. Proceeding from Lechlade, where it becomes navigable for barges, it flows first N. N. E. then S. S. E., past Oxford and Abingdon to Reading, then N. W. past Great Marlow, and S. E. past Windsor to Staines. During the part of its course now described, it separates the county of Berks on its right, from those of Oxford and Buckingham on its left bank. From Staines it pursues a circuitous course E. to London, passing the towns of Chertsey, Kingston, Richmond, and Brentford, and separating the counties of Middlesex and Surrey below London its course, E. to the Nore, between Kent and Essex, is 47 m. Its principal affluents below those by which it is formed near Lechlade, are, on the left, the Windrush, River-ode, Cherwell, which joins it immediately below Oxford the Thame, Colne, the New River, which joins it at London; the Lea, which joins it at Blackwall and the Roding; and on the right, the Kennet, which joins it immediately above Reading, the Loddon, Way, Mole, and perhaps the Moleway though one of the two broad rivers into which it divides has its mouth directly opposite to the Nore, and the other is considerably beyond it. Thames-head Bridge is 876 ft. above sea-level; at the junction of the Colne above Lechlade, this height has diminished to 248 ft., showing on the whole distance of 23 m., an average fall per mile of 6 ft. Below this the average fall nowhere exceeds 2 ft. 3 in. At London bridge, where the height above sea-level is 4 ft. 3 in., the average fall per mile is only 1 in. from London bridge to the Nore it does not exceed 1 in. At London bridge the width of the river is 290 yards at Woolwich 490 yards, at Greenwich, 800 yards and 3 m. below, 1990 yards. The basin of the Thames has an area of 5160 sq. m. It thus occupies nearly one-eighth of the whole area of England, but belonging entirely to the upper part of the secondary and to the tertiary formations, is destitute of coal, and hence possesses no manufactures of importance, except those of the metropolis itself. It comprehends, however some of the richest agricultural districts of the kingdom, and surpasses all others in point of wealth, derived partly from its containing the seat of government, and still more from its vast commercial importance. Its depth, in the fair way above Greenwich to London bridge, is 15 ft. to 18 ft., while its tides have a mean range of 17 ft., and an extreme rise of 22 ft. Up to St. Katherine's docks, adjoining the Tower it is navigable by vessels of 800 tons, and to Blackwall by vessels of 1400 tons. As far as Deptford it safely floats vessels of any burden, though mudbanks beyond its estuary and at the Nore make the navigation rather intricate.

At London and below, the accommodation provided for shipping is of the most extensive and magnificent description. Nor has the navigation of its upper channel and the importance of navigable feeders, been overlooked by means of numerous canals, as the Thames and Severn, the Oxford, the Wilts and Berks, the Kennet and Avon, the Way and Arun, the Buckingham, and the Regent and Fillingdon, communicating with the Grand Junction, immediately access is given from its basin to those of all the great rivers of the kingdom.

THAMES, a river Upper Canada, rises in the London dist.; flows directly W. S. W., and after a course of about 110 m. falls into the Lake of St. Clair. It is navigable for about 50 m. for vessels of considerable burden.

THAMES, or WATON, a river, New Zealand, Ulster, which rises in a mountainous district, about 18 m. W. Lake Rotomahana, flows mostly N. N. W. and falls into a broad but shallow estuary of same name, called also Hauraki Gulf. It has a depth at its mouth of about 8 ft., and by means of the tide, which runs up for nearly 50 m., is navigable for small craft. Banks and shores around as far as the falls of Mata-Mata, about 100 m. above its mouth.

THAMES-DITTON, par. Eng. Surrey; 2645 ac. P. 3251

THANA, a small tn., K. Farjah, on the route from La here to Cusumere; lat. 25° 28' N; lon. 74° 16' E; with a large well. The town is encompassed in groves of walnut and apple trees. Most of the inhabitants are sheri-wasurs.

THANET (Jaxa cor), an Isl. England, N.E. coast, so. limit, washed by the open sea on the N.E. and S.E., and separated from the mainland by branches of the Stour—the Stour-watstone on the S. the Mele-strum on the S.W., and the Metherg-watstone on the W., greatest length, 8 W to N 70° 20' N; greatest breadth, about 5 m. It has a gently undulating surface, consisting for the most part of rich arable land resting on outcrop of dry hard chalk, and has long been celebrated for its excellent culture. Within the historical period, it has undergone great geological changes, produced chiefly by the action of the waves. Its channel, which is now, particularly on the N.W. side, almost completely closed, was, during the Roman possession of Britain where narrowest, at least 14 m., and in other parts more than 4 m. wide, so that it was the main thoroughfare used by vessels proceeding northwards for London; nor did it cease to become passable for ships of some burden till the time of the Norman conquest. The tide itself, which was at that time nearly ebb-tide, has been gradually wasted away, so as to assume the form of an irregular oval, and the wasting process is no inconsiderably continued, that the average annual waste of the cliff between the N. Foreland and the Reculver, a distance of about 11 m., has been estimated at 2 ft. and that of the chalk-cliffs on the S., between Ramsgate and Pegwell Bay, at not less than 8 ft.

THANINGTON par Eng Kent 1213 ac. Pop. 885
THANN, a tn. France, dep. Haut-Rhin, on the Thur, and on the railway from Strasbourg to Basel 28 m. S.W. Colmar. It stands at the foot of a hill crowned by the ruins of the old castle of Engelshoven, contains a magnificent Gothic church, with a spire of open work, 238 ft. high, and has manufactures of printed goods, hosiery, starch, and chemical products and several cotton-mills. Pop. 6615

THANHACHSEN, a market tn. in Bavaria, circle Swabia, on the Mindel here crossed by a bridge, 20 m. W 8 W Augsburg. It contains a parish church and a castle. Pop. 1580

THANADT a tn. Saxony, circle and 9 m. S.W. Dresden, N. of the forest of its name. It is the seat of a royal forest conservator, and has a bathing-establishment and several mills. Pop. 1783.

THARSTON, par Eng Norfolk 1562 ac. Pop. 874

THARTHAN, a river, Asiatic Turkey pass Bagdad. Its general course is S.E. and S. by E., when it is lost in sands and marshes near to and N.W. Bagdad. Its waters are in some places intensely bitter and salt.

THAB an Isl. European Turkey, Aegean Sea, 105 m. W by N Gallipoli; lat. 40° 41' 42" N, lon. 24° 45' 45" E (45), of a circular form, about 16 m. diameter. It is traversed by high wooded hills, yielding large quantities of ship-timber, the loftiest summit attaining an elevation of 3428 ft. The soil is fertile, and where cultivated, produces corn, fruit, oil and wine. These also exports was, honey and fine marble. On the N.E. side there is a village, and a good roadstead with 12 to 5 fathoms water, called Panagia harbour.

THATCHAM, a chl. and par England, co. Berks, on the Kennet, which is here navigable, and the Kennet and Avon canal, 3 m. E. Newbury. It has a church, two chapels of ease, an Independent chapel, a national school and a paper-mill. Area of par. 12,259 ac. Pop. 4209.

THAU, a lagoon, France, dep. Herault, separated from the Gulf of Lyons by the narrow belt of land on which the town of Cette is situated, greatest length, 8 W to N.E., 13 m., greatest breadth, 4 m. It receives the canal du Midi at its S.W. extremity, is connected in the N.E. with the lagoon of Maguelonne, and communicates directly with the sea of Cette. It is of considerable navigable importance, and is both well stocked with fish, and frequented by innumerable water-fowl, which are shot in great numbers, above 300 boats of warlike nature cruise on the lagoon at one time.

THAUMACO (Thauma), a tn. European Turkey, prov. Thessaly, and 25 m. S.W. Larissa, on a steep declivity, the summit of which is crowned by an ancient castle.

THAXTED, a small tn. and par England, co. Essex, 14 m. N.W. Chelmsford, composed mostly of mean-looking houses. It has a handsome church in a conspicuous situation on the top of the hill on which the town is partly built. Various Dissenting places of worship, several schools, and two or three churches. There are two theatres, one for playing straw, half, &c. by hand, the other for making up hair. Area of par. 6219 ac. Pop. 3555.—(Local Correspondent.)

THAYA a river, Austria, rises in the mountains on the frontiers of Bohemia and Moravia flows E., nearly parallel with the Danube, and joins it bank March shortly after quitting the S. of Moravia, on the confines of Austria and Hungary after a course of 120 m. Its only important affluent is the Igawa, which joins it on the left. In the lower part of its course it spreads out into the plain, forming extensive swamps, which make the district through which it flows unhealthy.

THEBEN, or Diver, a market tn. Hungary co. and 5 m. from Presburg, at the confluence of the March with the Danube. It contains the ruins of an old castle and has some shipping. Pop. 1820.

THEBERTON, par Eng Suffolk 1954 ac. Pop. 501
THEBES, or Tiva, a tn. Greece Lavade, cap. dist. on an isolated hill, 30 m. N.W. Athens. Though one of the most celebrated cities of ancient Greece, nothing now remains to indicate its splendour or even existence, except a few dark columns, scattered over the ruins of a modern wall built chiefly of wood, and has four Greek churches and three khans. The plains in the vicinity once celebrated for their fertility are very imperfectly cultivated, but still produce considerable quantities of corn, wine, oil, tobacco, and cotton. Pop. about 5000

THEBES (Coptia, Tufi) a celebrated anc. city, Upper Egypt, 300 m. S.E. Cairo, on both sides, but chiefly on the S. bank of the Nile, along which the ruins extend for about 8 m. The original extent of the city is not well known. Diodorus gives it only a diameter of 140 stadia, or about 17 m. whereas Strabo nearly doubles this measurement by making the length alone 80 stadia, or 10 m. The accounts however are not necessarily contradictory and have been plausibly reconciled by assuming that the writers refer to different periods—Diodorus to a period anterior to Manes, and Strabo to a period subsequent to that sovereign in whose reign Thebes attained its greatest magnitude and magnificence. The spot that Hecataemphorus, or Herodotus applied to it by Homer has sometimes been interpreted literally and it has been supposed that the walls of the city were actually placed within 100 paces. More careful investigation has shown the existence of the walls themselves more than doubtful. Certain it is, that not the least trace of them can now be discovered and various circumstances concur to show that the city was not walled but open. In the absence of a better explanation the suggestion of Diodorus may be adopted, that Homer's epithet, if not a mere poetical license, referred to the propriety of temples rather than to cities properly so called.

A good idea of the power, wealth and splendour of Thebes is given by the fact that it could furnish 50,000 armed chariots. Its foundation is lost in antiquity, but it had long been one of the most distinguished cities of Egypt, and attained to almost unexampled prosperity at a period considered coeval with the reigns of David and Solomon in Judea, when it began to suffer by the rise of its rival Memphis, and lost much of its importance by the transference of the seat of government to the latter. It sustained a still severer blow during the invasion of the Persians under Cambyses, who captured and pillaged it, and its destruction was completed by Ptolemy Lathyrus, who, after a three years' siege, left it a heap of ruins. These ruins, however, bear ample testimony to its original grandeur and scope of them, considering their antiquity and the usage to which they have been subjected, are still in wondrous preservation. The most ancient and splendid of these ruins is the temple of Karnak, which covered an area of about 1½ m. in circuit, and received its embellishments from a succession of monarchs, who vied with each other in the lavishness of their expenditures upon it. Its principal front, forming the N.W. side, faces the river and is approached by an avenue of Colossal statues, which terminated at two colossal statues of granite standing like towers. One of these, though it has lost its summit and cornice, still retains a great part of its original height. Beyond the towers is a large open court, 329 ft. by 375 ft., with a double line of columns in its centre, and a covered corridor on either side; and beyond the court is the grand hall of assembly, 329 ft. by 170 ft., with 4 central avens of 12 smooth columns, 66 ft. in height, and 34 ft. in circumference, and seven side-rows of columns, 123 in number, less than those of the centre, but still of gigantic dimensions, their height being 41 ft. 9 in., and their circumference 27 ft. 6 in. Other courts and halls are continued toward for an additional length of 360 ft., containing numerous arcades and substantial buildings, one of which, still standing, is 92 ft. high by 8 ft. square and is surrounded by a wall of 10 ft. square.

THE RUINS OF KANNAK THERMID.—From Harrow, February 26 to 1 April.

Numerous historical sculptures are carved on various parts of the temple, and most especially on the interior of its great hall, and furnish vivid remembrances of the events which they refer to. Next in importance to the ruins of Kurwak are those of the palace of Laxar rather more than 1 m. above the temple, but connected with it by a drainage or stream, commencing at two obelisks of red granite, covered with a profusion of hieroglyphs admirably executed. One of these obelisks now forms the principal ornament of the Place du Commerce at Paris. The dimensions of the palace are less than those of the temple, but the style of architecture is considered superior and the state of preservation is more complete. Considering generally of the same succession of colturs and gigantic columns, as already described at Kurwak, it is unnecessary to enter into further detail. On the left bank of the river which divides the city from the Lohyan suburb, were situated the quarters called Mamoussa, of whose extensive necropolis, still containing many magnificent monuments and structures, the common name is called from combining the place with the word Mamoussian or Mamoussa, which, for symmetry of architecture and elegance of sculpture, is not surpassed by any monument of Egyptian art. One of its most remarkable objects, now completely reduced to fragments by the fury of the invader, was a stupendous obelisk statue, which, when entire, must have weighed 807 tons. Another remarkable column, once the wonder of the ancients, still exists in a dilapidated state. It is called the Yeml Monnon, from a sound which it emitted at sunrise, long variously explained, but now known to have been due to expansions resulting from the heat of the morning sun. The statue possesses great interest, both from the skill displayed in its formation, and the number of the hieroglyphs engraved on it. The necropolis, on the west side of the river, is rich in antiquities, and contains numerous tombs, some of which date from the reigns of Ramses III. and Ramses IV.

THEDDINGWORTH, per Eng. Leicester; 2220 sq.
Pgs. 379.

THEDDLETHORPE, two par. Eng. Lincoln—1, (All Saints); 2545 sq. P 354.—2, (St. Helen); 2580 sq. P 350.

THEDINGHAUSEN, a market to Brunswick, capital, on the Gysser, 4 m. S. Ashim, (in a district completely isolated by the territory of Hanover; with a church, a castle, and manufactures of linen and thread.

Pop. 1017

THAKHUR, or TAKH (Latin, Thaco), a river, Hungary, rises in the E. of the kingdom, on the southern slope of Gaisnia, in two sources, both of which descend from this mountain. The one flows from the N. and is called W slope of the Carpathians; the one from Mount Carpa, under the name of the Black, and the other from Mount Picta, under the name of the White Thakur. See their junction, in the middle stream. Under the western name of Thak, joins the Danube.

through a narrow mountain pass till it is joined by the Reno, when it begins to pursue a W. but winding course, passing the towns of Salmon, Toot, Haxah, and Uppah, and receiving a great number of mountain-streams from the Caribbeans on the N. A little above Nemoy, receiving the Snake, by which its volume is at least doubled, it proceeds almost due N to Bear-Mountain, turning round, it takes a W. course to Tokeah. Here it receives, on the right, its second important and affluent, the Bodrog; and beginning to take a decided easterly course, receives the Hornád on the right, and at Congrad, a considerable distance below, the Ilava on the left. From this its course is almost due S. past Enegetin, where it receives the Marra, and onwards till it reaches the l. bank of the Danube, about 20 m above Holeads. In point of magnitude, it is the second river in Hungary, being inferior only to the Danube, with which, for about 100 m.

the lower part of its course is almost parallel. Its direct course S.W. is only 280 m. but as

...are its windings, that its indirect course exceeds 800 m.

THELBIDGE, par Eng. Devon 2240 sq. Pop. 260.

THELNETHAM, par Esg Suffolk.
1773 ac. Pop. 553

THELVETON or THILTON par Esq
Norfolk, 1060 ac. Pap. 154.

TILMAR, a walled tn. Saxe-Meiningen r bank Werra, here crossed by a bridge, 9 m.

with two churches, several mills, and a co
a in wood Pop. 1411

LTHORPE, par Eng Norfolk; 662 ac. P 90
ORD, par Eng. Northampton, 890 ac. P 132

NGEN, a vil. Baden circle Upper Rhine, 8 mi. from Baden. It has a church, iron trade in hemp. Pop. 1826.

OSIA, a co. Russia. See KAPPA.

IN, a river, France rises near the E. frontier ciure, enters dep. Oise, flows S.E. past Beauvais

PIA a vil. European Turkey W shore of the

22. N N E. Constantinople. This is one of the black spots on the Bosphorus, and is thickly studded and country-houses. Here also are the residences of the French and British ambassadors. The Bay of Thour

UD a to Hindoostan, prov Gajarat, exp. dmt.

y S. Odeypoor In 1809 it was a place of some importance, containing 2700 houses.—The number considerable extent, but suffers much from the stickiness of the water, though it is remarkable and freshest water is in that part of the district alt-morons of the Ruon

It is regularly fortified, defended by a citadel.

Pop. 1802.

SIOPOLIS, THUNDERBOLT, or VINGA, a tract, Thither Thebes, co. and 17 m. N. Tomerwat church, a Franciscan monastery & townhouse.

 Not, and a trade in cattle and swine. Pop. 2891.

EH, or TASHUKH [anc. Thermodon], a small town in the district of Tashukh, 4761 ac. P 1835 the Thorneth in the Black Sea — The arctic

Kara-Blast, Dave W., (aka B.), total score,

LA, or CATHON, an Isl. Greek Archipelago ychalos, 7 m. S.S.E. Zaxi, lat. 37° 20' N., lon.

its coasts are much indented, but the its soil very fertile, producing a good deal of wheat, corn and rye. It contains three villages.

which, bearing the own name, is situated at the is, through novel methods in ancient times, on in them, and the Government has about 100,000

Capital, the state frequency. Pop. 2001: 600.

THERMIGNON or TERMIGNON, a tn France dep Savoy, prov Maurienne, 25 m E St. Jean-de-Maurienne. It is indifferent to both, but has iron-works, and a trade in cattle, cheese, and general merchandise, conveyed by way of Mount Cenis into Piedmont. Pop. 1334.

THERMOPTÆ, a celebrated pass, Greece, in the N E. of Livadia, S side, Gulf of Molo or Zancos, at the foot of the N slope of Mount Ossa, and near the mouth of the Ellada or Spercheus. The pass, about 5 m long, is hemmed in on one side by precipitous rocks of from 400 ft to 600 ft in height, and on the other side by the sea and an impassable morass. The width of the pass was anciently only 50 to 60 yards, but has since been nearly doubled by the retreat of the sea, and additional alluvial deposits. It was here that Leonidas and his 300 Spartans died in defending Greece against the invasion of Xerxes. The Polyandron, an ancient tumulus, with the remains of a square pedestal built of blocks of red marble breccia, marks the spot. The thermal or hot springs, to which the pass owes its name, are in the vicinity, about half way between Thermopylae and Volonitima. They have a temperature of 111, and are impregnated with carbonic acid, lime, salt, and sulphur.

THERSAOLONICA, European Turkey. See SALONICA.
THERSAU, a prov European Turkey bounded, N by Macedonia, W Albania, E Greece, and E the Gulf of Salonica about 96 m in extreme length N to S, and 70 m in breadth area, estimated at 5500 sq m. It is traversed by several mountain-ranges ramifications of Mount Pindus which separates it from Albania but contains numerous fertile plains and valleys, equally renowned in ancient times as now for pasture and tillage. Cultivation extends a considerable way along the acclivities of the mountains. The principal crops are maize, wheat, rice, vines, silk, cotton, and tobacco. The high-lying tracts depasture large flocks of sheep, and wool forms a considerable article of export. The province is drained by the Salambria, which traverses it nearly in the centre, E to W, resuming in its course, as tributaries, nearly every river in the province. Principal towns—Larissa, Trikala, Volo and Ambolela.

THETFORD, a bor and market in England, partly in co Suffolk, and partly in that of Norfolk, on both banks of the Ouse, here crossed by a handsome iron bridge, 79 m N E London, a station on the Norwich and Brandon rail way. It has a church with a square tower places of worship for Wesleyans, Independents R Catholics, and Friends, a free grammar and national infant schools the remains of a Cistercian priory, of a university and some other religious structures. The manufactures comprise an iron-foundry, a large paper-mill, two agricultural-machine factories, some breweries, melting-establishments a flour-mill, and a tan yard. Pop. 4075.

THETFORDE, three pars Eng. Norfolk.—1, (St. Mary 3960 ac. Pop. 1252.—2, (St. Oulph), 260 ac. P 1613 2, (St. Peter), 2240 ac. Pop. 1211.

THEUSING, THEUSING, or DEUSING, a tn Bohemia, shire and 15 m S.E. Elbogen, with a castle, deanery church, townhouse, and hospital manufactures of woollens, and near it alum and vitriol works. Pop. 1904.

THIEX [anc. Thetix], a tn and com Belgium prov Liège, 1 km N. Hange, 5 m N W Spa. It is a striking place with the old ruins castle of Franchimont seated on a steep rock. Thiex has manufactures of cloth and leather, two iron-refractories, and forges for making sheet-iron; a distillery, two breweries, quarries of freestone, limestone and black marble, and mines both of iron and calamine. It was once capital of a district called the margraviate of Frenchmont, and has ranked as a town since 1456. Pop. 4569.

THIAGUR, a tn Hindoostan, Carnatic, 55 m W S W Pondicherry; lat 11° 43' N, lon 79° 8' E. During the Carnatic wars of last century this was a strong place, and contained several ships.

THIAKA, one of the LIONIAN Islands. See IONIA.

THIAN-CHAI, or CHANGTAL MOUNTAINS, an extensive range of Central Asia, stretching from W to E along the W part of its plateau, between Scythia on the N and Chinese Turkistan on the S, from lon 80° to 95° E. Its length is estimated by Humboldt at eight times that of the Pyrenees, and many of its summits rise to 16,000 ft, or 12,000 ft, far beyond the limits of perpetual snow. They present numerous indications of volcanic origin. The Chinese records mention eruptions which occurred at least as late as the 17th century, one between the terms of Tse-tsun and Tsien about lat. 43° N. and lon. 91° E. is still active; and another called Urumai, situated in a coal-district, about lat. 45° 30' N. and lon. 88° E. is a volcano, from which large quantities of sulphur and salt acromelae are obtained.

THIAN-CHAI-HANZO, sometimes called Little Bactria. See TURKICAN (CHINESE).

THIBET a country Central Asia. See TIBET.
THIELE and THIME. See TIE.

THIELRODE, a vil and com. Belgium, prov E. Flanders, on the Scheldt, 19 m E Ghent. It has four breweries, an oil and a flour mill. Pop. 1880.

THIELT two places, Belgium.—1 [anc. Thietum] A tn. prov W Flanders, 14 m S S E Bruges. It has a townhouse, surrounded by a Gothic tower, a college, a school of design, a musical society several boarding and primary schools, and benevolent institutions manufactures of cotton and linen goods, hats leather lace, cards, tobacco, glue, oil, soap and Francon blue a distillery breweries, ropewalks, brick-works, dye-works and hosiery and an important trade in grain, and particularly in linen. Of the latter 80,000 pieces are annually sold in the weekly market Thielt, supposed to take its name from thila, a lime-tree, had attained a high degree of prosperity by its woollen and linen manufactures when, in 1388 it was almost destroyed by fire. It never recovered the shock. Oliver Le Dain barber to Louis XI of France, by whom he was ennobled, surnamed the Devil, and ultimately hung for his crimes, was born here. Pop. 12,500.—2 A vil and com. prov Brabant, on the Meuse, 24 m E N E Brussels. It has a brewery, a distillery, four flour mills and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. P 1636.

THIERACHE an ancient dist. France, which formed part of prov Picardy and is now included in the N of dep. Aisne. Guise was its capital.

THIERACHERN, a vil and par Switzerland, can. and 14 m S E E Bern, with a fine old church. Pop. 2826.

THIERS [anc. Castrum Thiernum] a tn France, dep Puy-de-Dôme, on the crest and side of a hill washed by the Dore, 31 m N E Clermont. It is situated close given a very striking appearance when viewed from a distance, but its houses, though solidly built, have low doors and narrow windows, which impart a mean and gloomy appearance and they are huddled together without any regularity, in steep, narrow winding streets. It has two ancient churches, and the remains of an old castle considerable manufactures of cutlery and ironmongery, woollen cloth, embroidery leather, and leather articles, ribbons, paper and playing cards, and a trade in millstones, left and earthen ware, and the above articles of manufacture. Pop. 8787.

THIULAIN, a vil and com. Belgium, prov Hainaut, 24 m N W Mons, with two flour-mills, and a trade in corn, seeds, cattle and flax. Pop. 1134.

THIEUSIES, a vil and com. Belgium prov Hainaut, 6 m N E Mons, with manufactures of calico, a brewery a distillery, a bark and two flour-mills. Pop. 1164.

THIMBLEBY, par Eng Lincoln 1770 ac. P 492.
THIMISTER, a tn, and com Belgium, prov and m. E Liège; with manufacture of cloth, worsted, bristles, a brewery and dye-works and a considerable trade in cheese. Pop. 3543.

THIONVILLE [anc. Theodonis Villa] a tn France, dep. Moselle, on the Moselle river, 19 m N Metz. It stands on an almost perfect flat, is walled, and otherwise fortified, so as to rank as a fortress of the third class. It is generally well built, with spacious but irregular streets. It has a parish church barracks corn market, theatre, riding-school, college, and hospital manufactures of battery cannon and chimney bristles, glass, and leather, a trade in corn, hemp and flax, and an annual fair of 15 days duration. Pop. 4026.

THIRKLEBY WINT-OSCONDER, par Eng York, 2697 ac. Pop. 564.

THIRNF, par Eng Norfolk, 660 ac. Pop. 206.

THIRSK, a bor, market tn., and par England, co York (N Riding), 28 m N W by N York city, on the York and Newcastle railway. It consists of the old and new towns, separated by a small stream called Cockbeck, over which are two substantial stone-bridges. It has a spacious market-place, a handsome church in the later English style, with a lofty octastellar tower; places of worship for Wesleyans, Independents, and Friends, several schools; and limited manufactures of coarse flannels and millinery and some maling and tanning. Think needs a member to Parliament. Pop. (1891), 5319. Area of par., 3856 ac. Pop. 4704.

THINER, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Liège, 18 m. N. W. Huy, with two breweries, a malt-don-quar, and a mill; and a trade in cattle, horses, and sheep. P. 1851.

THINSEL, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 143 m. S. Antwerp, with a church, townhouse, and primary school three breweries, a dyer's mill-reducing several flour-mills, and handlooms for the weaving of linen fabrics. Pop. 1741.

THISTED, or THISTAD, a tn. Denmark, N. Jutland, cap. hall on the S.W. of the Vilsbørd, a branch of the Limfjord, 180 m. W. N. W. Copenhagen. It first received municipal privileges in 1534 from Frederick I. Its harbour only a winter-haven, admits vessels drawing 8 ft. The inhabitants live chiefly by agriculture, trade, and seafaring. Pop. 2200.

THISTLETON, par. Eng. Rutland 1420 ac. Pop. 143.

THIVA, a tn. Greece. See TANZAN.

THIVIERZ, a tn. France, dep. Dordogne, 20 m. N. N. E. Périgueux. It is well situated but for the most part poorly built; has manufactures of stone-ware, leather paper and tiles and a trade in corn wine, iron trunks, and cheese, and several important cattle-breeds. Pop. 1400.

THIZY, a tn. France, dep. Rhone, 50 m. N. W. Lyons with considerable manufactures of linen cotton, and calicoes. Pop. 1690.

THOCKINGTON, par. Eng. Northumberland; 6243 ac. Pop. 173.

THOGI-CURIA, a salt-lake Ladak, among the W. Himalayas, 15,500 ft. above sea-level 60 m. S. E. Leh. It is about 3 m. long E. to W. and has swampy shores intensely saline, and covered with saline plants, especially Chenopodium. From a water-mark distinctly visible about 150 ft. above the present level of the water it appears to have covered a much larger space than at present, and to have been then fresh, as the whole of the surrounding plain consists of clay beds, containing prodigious numbers of fresh-water shells.

THOIRY, a vil. and com. France, dep. Savoie, 6 m. N. E. Chambéry on the side of Mount Margerie, above the Dora. It has a parish church. Pop. 1354.

THOLEN, a tn. Holland, prov. Zealand 29 m. S. S. W. Rotterdam, on the island of Tholen, which is separated from prov. N. Holland only by the Zeevliet, a narrow arm of the Scheldt. It is an old, and was at one time an important place and possesses a harbour small townhouse, a large Protestant and a R. Catholic church, an orphan hospital, a musical society and several schools. The inhabitants are mostly fishermen, though there are ironworks, rope-works, and madder and corn mills. Tholen was formerly fortified but in 1846-7 the ramparts were converted into public walks. Pop. 1938.

THOLLENBEEK, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Maros, about 19 m. S. W. Brussels with two breweries, a distillery, and numerous mills but the chief employment is weaving. Pop. 2523.

THOLLON, a vil. and com. France dep. Haute Savoie, prov. Chablais 39 m. N. E. E. Geneva, near S. shore of the Lake of Geneva. The inhabitants have a valuable fishery in the lake, and derive a considerable gain from the sale of rock crystals, many of which are found in the vicinity. P. 1316.

THOMAR, a tn. Portugal, prov. Beira-Alta, r. bank Nabes, 48 m. S. Coimbra. It is well built, and adorned with several fountains contains two parish churches, a college, hospital, and almshouse and has manufactures of silk, and a large cotton-mill driven by water. Near it are the ruins of Nabes, supposed to have been founded by the Goths. P. 3768.

THOMAS (St.), an isl. W. coast, Africa, belonging to the Portuguese, in the Gulf of Biafra. lat. (mean) 0° 14' 42" N., lon. 6° 55' E. length, N. N. E. to S. S. W., 25 m. It appears to be entirely of volcanic formation, and is very mountainous, attaining in one of its central peaks the height of 7020 ft. The climate, especially in the valleys, is excessively hot and unhealthy. Vegetation is rank; the higher districts are well wooded, and the lower produce considerable quantities of sugar, indigo, and cotton. Some small horned cattle and many sheep and goats are reared on the pastures, and wild swine are very abundant. The capital, which bears the same name, is situated on a tongue of land, and defended by a fort, and has a number of good houses, including three churches. The harbour is small but well sheltered. Pop. estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000, most of them negro slaves. THOMAS (St.), one of the Virgin Is., W. Indies, belonging to Denmark, 35 m. E. Porto-Rico lat. (S. entrance Fort Christian) 18° 20' 24" N.; lon. 64° 55' 45" W. (N.), greatest length, E. to W., 12 m. average breadth, about 8 m. area, 53 sq. m. It has a rugged and elevated surface, which attains its greatest height towards the centre, and descends sometimes gradually, but oftener abruptly to the shore. It was once well wooded, but the cutting down of the trees has laid it open to the full force of the sun's rays, and it now suffers much from a deficiency of water. The soil being sandy and by no means fertile, the far greater part of the produce is unmanufactured. The area under crop is only about 2500 ac., of which nearly a half are planted with sugarcane. The whole island enjoys the privilege of a free harbour, and the trade is very extensive, St. Thomas being a depot of goods for many of the neighbouring islands. It has its central locality at the capital, Charlotte Amalie, which is annually visited by about 8000 vessels from Europe, N. and S. America, and the other W. India islands. In Europe the trade is chiefly with London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Havre, Bordeaux, Marseilles, Genoa, Lyons, Hamburg, Bremen, and Amsterdam. St. Thomas is a principal station of the W. India mail-steamers from Southampton, for which a large steam-boat leaves it every fortnight. Pop. estimated at 12,900.

THOMAS (St.) the Azores, par. Eng. Cornwall; 1817 ac. Pop. 1005.

THOMASTOWN.—1 A market in co. Wick, Ireland, pop. and 10 m. S. S. W. Kilkenny 1 bank More, consisting of badly built brick and limestone houses, and a number of warehouses. It has an Established church, a R. Catholic chapel, a courthouse, a national and a church of England school. Friars and hankers were formerly manufactured here to some extent, but the branch of business has been of late discontinued. Pop. (in 1, 1798). Area of par., 9043 ac. Pop. 3180.

—(Local Government).—2 Par. Kildare, 555 ac. P. 97 THOMASWALDAU (Oxen and Nixton), two nearly contiguous vills. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Legnica, circle Dorsau, with a castle, two churches, innkeepers, and an oil saw and other mills. Pop. 1350.

THOME or THOMAS (St.) a tn. Hindoostan, Carnatic, near the sea-shore, which here forms a small haven, about 6 m. S. Madras. It is of considerable extent, and contains a great number of churches belonging to a mixed race of Portuguese and natives, who profess to be R. Catholics.

THOMASDORF, a vil. Bohemia, circle Chrudim; with a church school, and several mills. Pop. 1348.

THOMSON, par. Eng. Norfolk, 3980 ac. Pop. 406.

THONES, a tn. France dep. Haute Savoie, at the junction of three valleys, 30 m. N. W. Chambéry. It is built in the form of a triangle, and has a large public square, a handsome church, manufactures of agricultural implements and cherry-brandy a saw mill and several tanneries. P. 3480.

THONG (Urges), a vil. and township, England, co. York (W. Riding), on the Holm, and a branch of the Huddersfield and Sheffield railway, 6 m. S. Huddersfield. It is well built, has a handsome church with a tower, Independent and Methodist chapels, manufactures of woollen goods, and a mineral spring, the water of which resembles that of Harrogate. Pop. 2463.

THONIN (Fr.), a vil. Rheinland, Prussia, gov. and 23 m. W. Düsseldorf near the Rhine, with a church. P. 1538.

THONON a tu. France, dep. Haute Savoie, prov. Chambéry, S. shore lake, and 18 m. N.E. the town of Geneva. It is a very ancient place, consisting of an upper and a lower town, both irregularly built; has a court of justice, several churches, a handsome townhouse in the Italian style, manufactures of watchwork, and a trade in timber, corn, and wine. Amédée IV., Duke of Savoy, was born here. Pop. 4425.

THOR (anc. Thuri) a tu. France, dep. Yvelines, 10 m. E. Avignon, with an ancient church, and manufactures of saddle. Pop. 2027.

THORBA, or THORANSTRA (Latin, Schnepel), a tu. Austria, Transylvania, cap. co. of its name, 1 bank Aranyos, 55 m. N.W. Hermannstadt. It is poorly built, has a Protestant, E. Catholic and Greek non-united church, a Franciscan monastery, country buildings, townhouse, gymnasium and military school and near it are extensive salt-mines. On a hill in the vicinity are the ruins of the Roman fort Balnea, and near it was fought a great battle, in which Trajan vanquished the Dacians. Pop. 8112. — THE COUNTRY bounded N. by Klausenburg and Doboka, N.E. by Galitsa and Moldavia, E. by Crakow country, and S. by Koliberg and Lower Wassenburg, area, 1810 geo. sq. m. is traversed by lofty ridges of the Carpathians, belongs wholly to the basin of the Maros, which receives a considerable portion of its waters directly, and the remainder chiefly by the Görgény Lacus, and Aranyos. Much of the soil is of great fertility, produces all kinds of grain in abundance. The wine also is extremely cultivated, but the wine is only of indifferent quality. A considerable part of the surface is covered with forests, from which much valuable timber both for home use and export, is obtained. The principal mineral salt, which is worked in numerous mines and forms one of the principal sources of revenue. Pop. 67,400.

THORENS-SALES, a tu. France, dep. Haute Savoie, prov. Geneva, 15 m. S.E. Geneva, with a court of justice, a college, a seminary, an old castle, formerly occupied by St. François-de-Sales, a hospital, manufactures of cotton or sensitive glass-works, and several tanneries. Pop. 2447.

THORSEBY two pars. Eng. Lincoln — 1 (North) 2485 ac. Pop. 728 — 2, (South) 923 ac. Pop. 156.

THORSEWAY, par. Eng. Lincoln. 2790 ac. P. 135.

THORSTANBY two pars. Eng. — 1 York 8190 ac. Pop. 882 — 2, Lincoln 1658 ac. Pop. 130.

THORSTON par. Eng. Suffolk 1990 ac. P. 167.

THORLEY two pars. Eng. — 1, Hants 1574 ac. Pop. 154 — 2, Herts 1516 ac. Pop. 402.

THORMANBY, par. Eng. York 308 ac. Pop. 154.

THORV (Latin, Thurwag) a tu. Prussia, prov. E. Prussia, gov. and 51 m. S.W. Masuren, cap. circle, 7 bank Vistula, here crossed by a wooden bridge, divided into two parts by the island of Ratus and nearly 4 m. in length. It is a place of great strength, surrounded by walls and bastions, and defended by two forts. It is entered by four gates; consists of an old and a new town; has a court of law and several public offices, two Protestant and three E. Catholic churches, one of them containing a statue of Copernicus, who was born here, a Protestant gymnasium, a nursery, several schools, four hospitals, and a workhouse, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, hats, soap, and sausages, gingerbread, seal shipping, and a trade in corn, wood, linen, hides, bark, and ashes. Pop. (1845) 12,657. — THE CANALS area, 529 geo. sq. m. Pop. 51,438.

THORV, a vil. Holland, prov. Limburg, 7 m. S.W. Roermond, with a church. Pop. (agricultural) 1163.

THORNBURY, par. Eng. Norfolk, 1206 ac. Pop. 849.

THORNBOROUGH, par. Eng. Bucks 1890 ac. P. 754.

THORNBURY, a market tu. and par. Eng. and co. York, 24 m. S.W. Gloucester, houses generally old, with a spacious and handsome cruciform church, mostly in the later English style; places of worship for Independents, Wesleyans, Baptists, and Friends, and two free schools, and the ruins of Thornbury castle. Area of par. 15,729 ac. Pop. 4814.

THORNBURY, two pars. Eng. — 1, Devon; 2778 ac. P. 489 — 2, (with Netherwood) Hereford; 2188 ac. P. 126.

THORNBURY par. Eng. Northampton; 1212 ac. P. 220.

THORNBURGH, par. Eng. Devon; 4598 ac. P. 1577.

THORNDON (ALL SAINTS) par. Eng. Suffolk; 3580 ac. Pop. 725.

THORNE, a market tu. and par. Eng. and co. York (W. Riding), 29 m. S. by E. York city, 7 bank Don, generally well built. It has a church, principally in the later English style with a square tower; places of worship for Wesleyan and New Connexion Methodists, Independents, Friends, and Unitarians, three schools, of which two are charity ones, a mechanics institute, and considerable trade in grain, coal, and timber. A small number of hands is employed in making smoking and pipes and in weaving. On the E. bank of the Don, about 1 m. distant, is a quay where the merchandise is shipped and loaded vessels for the coasting trade are built, and on being launched at spring tides, are sent down the river to Hull, to be rigged &c. Area of par. 11,900 ac. Pop. 8484.

THORNE, three pars. Eng. Somerset. — 1 (Clyffe) 410 ac. Pop. 102 — 2, (Polson) 814 ac. Pop. 229 — 3, (St. Margaret) 305 ac. Pop. 143.

THORNEY, a vil. and par. Eng. and co. York (W. Riding), 7 m. N.E. Leeds, with a parish church, a Wesleyan chapel, an endowed school, limekilns, limestone, slate and pavement quarries and manufactures of bad-dicking. Area, 1820 ac. Pop. 1630.

THORNEY two pars. England — 1 North 4140 ac. Pop. 412 — 2 (West) Sussex; 3005 ac. Pop. 111.

THORNEY a market tu. and par. Eng. and co. Cambridge in the Isle of Ely, 7 m. E.N.E. Peterborough. It has a Norman parish church, originally only the nave of the church of a convent, of which some other fragments remain; a literary society, and a trade in cattle. Area, 17,590 ac. Pop. 2174.

THORNEYBURN, par. Eng. Northumb. 20 133 ac. P. 240.

THORNFORD par. Eng. Dorset, 1407 ac. Pop. 410.

THORNHAM four pars. Eng. — 1 Kent 8819 ac. Pop. 511 — 2 Norfolk 3584 ac. Pop. 723 — 3, (Magna) Suffolk 1324 ac. P. 222 — 4, (Purton) Suffolk 678 ac. P. 150.

THORNHAUGH par. Eng. Lincoln; 1708 ac. P. 286.

THORNHILL, — 1, a vil. and par. Eng. and co. York (W. Riding) 91 m. S.W. York city, on the Lancashire and York shire railway, with an ancient parish church in the early English style, Wesleyan and Baptist chapels, a grammar and a free school; manufactures of woollen cloth and steel, chemical and glass works, maltings, and collieries. Near it are the remains of an old castle, which was taken and demolished by the Parliamentary army. Area 7997 ac. Pop. 6856 — 2 a vil. Scotland, co. and 14 m. W. Dumfries houses mostly of red freestone, well built, many of them handsome. It has a very elegant parish church close by the village; and a handsome U. Presbyterian church, several schools, a literary institution, a library and reading room, all within the same building, a horticultural and a agricultural society. Pop. 1658. — (Local Correspondent) — 3 a vil. Scotland, co. Perth 10 m. W. N. Strirling — 4 a hamlet in Canada West, 12 m. from Toronto, near the Don, which affords excellent water-power, and drives numerous grist and saw mills. It has an Episcopal church and a public and two private schools. P. 650.

THORNHURST, a vil. Scotland, co. Renfrew, on a branch of the Glasgow and Barrow railway 4 m. S.W. Lochobol. It is mostly built, consisting chiefly of cottages occupied by persons employed in the extensive cotton-mills, bleaching and print works of the locality. Pop. 1830.

THORNTON, a vil. and chapelry, England, co. York, about 4 m. W. Bradford. It has a chapel of ease, chiefly in the later English style, Independent, Primitive, and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, a free grammar-school, a charitable endowment, several collieries, and freestone-quarries. Pop. 8051.

THORNTON, 11 pars. Eng. — 1, Bucks 1882 ac. Pop. 103 — 2, Lancashire 5590 ac. Pop. 1550 — 3, Lincoln; 1755 ac. Pop. 240 — 4, (Cotwick) Lincoln, 4510 ac. Pop. 407 — 5, (Dale) York; 1006 ac. Pop. 227 — 6, (St. Oswald) York, 6710 ac. Pop. 3203 — 7, (St. Leonard) York; 11,423 ac. Pop. 1130 — 8, (St. Mary), Cheshire, 4898 ac. Pop. 942 — 9, (St. Andrew), York 3750 ac. Pop. 324 — 10, (Howard) York 3079 ac. Pop. 804.—11 (Wadland), York 3783 ac. Pop. 431.

THORNTON, a vil. Scotland, on 7th, on the Edinburgh, Perth, and Dundee railway, 4 m. S.E. Edinburgh. It has a rich but not church, wheat-works, spinning-mills, black-slate, and collieries. Pop. 844.

THORNE, an isl. Denmark, off Isl. Funen, from which it is separated by a narrow and shallow channel. It is about 3 m. long, and 1 m. broad. It has a very fertile soil, and is richly wooded. Many vessels are built here. On the coast, in the Thorne Strait, is a winter-haven of the third class, admitting vessels which draw 17 ft. water.

THOMOLD, a tn. Canada West, on the Welland canal, 4 m. from St. Catharines. It has several very extensive sawing-mills, saw and planing mills, manufactories of leather and agricultural implements, two Protestant churches, a R. Catholic church, a public and two private schools. Pop. (1839) 1094 (Jan. 1854) about 1360.

THORNTON, par Eng. Norfolk 780 ac. Pop. 177.
THORP AUCH, par Eng. York 1697 ac. Pop. 315.
THORPACRE, con. Durham, par Eng. Leicester 890 ac. Pop. 260.

THORPE 23 para. Eng.—1 Derby 1400 ac. Pop. 188.—2 Notts, 690 ac. Pop. 115.—3, Surrey 1495 ac. Pop. 555.—4, (Alford), Norfolk 1183 ac. Pop. 258.—5, (Aldwark) Northampton, 1880 ac. Pop. 247.—6, (Arncliffe) Leicester 1148 ac. Pop. 122.—7, (Bassett) York 1799 ac. Pop. 807.—8, (Buckley) Notts, 990 ac. Pop. 83.—9, (Blyth) Bedford, 770 ac. Pop. 186.—10, (Constantine) Stafford, 983 ac. Pop. 66.—11, (Ears) Lincoln 963 ac. Pop. 95.—12, (Fleet) Lincoln 640 ac. Pop. 56.—13, (Lea) Essex 3203 ac. Pop. 1294.—14, (Melford) Northampton 680 ac. Pop. 287.—15, (Meadwell) Northampton 1230 ac. Pop. 151.—16, (Market) Norfolk, 1809 ac. Pop. 221.—17, (Mere) Bedford 2457 ac. Pop. 414.—18, (West) Hertfordshire, 824 ac. Pop. 94.—19, (Oke-Hill) Lincoln, 1820 ac. Pop. 379.—20, (Parson) Norfolk 349 ac. Pop. 9.—21, (Salmon) Notts 2180 ac. Pop. 312.—22, (St. Andrew) Norfolk, 3265 ac. Pop. 3000.—23, (St. Peter) Lincoln, 2880 ac. Pop. 626.

THORPE (Barnes), See BARNES.

THORPE-SKIRBY, a vil. and par. England, co. Norfolk, 2 m. E. Norwich, on a hill above the B. and Norwich and York and on the Norwich and Yarmouth railway. It has a handsome parish church, with a square embattled tower, and some good monuments. A dissenting chapel, a free school, and a county lunatic asylum. Area, 2528 ac. Pop. 3000.

THORSHALL, par Eng. Essex 1930 ac. P. 458.
THORSHALL, a tn. Sweden, 13½ N. of Stockholm, on the Fahlman, a little above its mouth on the S.W. shore of Lake Mälaren, 57 m. W. Stockholm with a church and some trade. Pop. about 500.

THORSHALL, a tn. France, in E. coast, in Normandy. It is the capital of the whole group and the residence of the principal authorities. It contains a church, a large school and an hospital. Its port, which is the most important in the group, is defended by a fort. Pop. 720.

THORSTON, par Eng. Devon, 4036 ac. P. 1511.

THOUANS (see Thouda) a tn. France, dep. Deux Seves, 48 m. N. Moulins, on the Thouet. It is walled, and flanked with large towers, which, though now four centuries old, are still in good preservation. It contains an old castle situated on a rock of granite, which is surrounded on three sides by the river and thus more than 100 ft. above it has manufactures of druggery, cutlery, iron bars, and leather and a trade in corn, brandy, horses, mules, and cattle. P. 2237.

THOUET, or Thoud, a river, France, rises in dep. Deux Seves, flows first N.E., then almost due N., passing Parthenay and Thouars, enters dep. Maine-et-Loire, and joins the bank Loire at St. Hilaire, total course, 90 m. of which 15 m., commencing at Montreuil-Bellay, are navigable.

THOUIN BAY, Van Diemen's Land, Freymant's Peninsula, lat. 45° 10' S.

THOUSOUT (see Thousout), a tn. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 11 m. S.W. Bruges. It has a handsome church, a central house, a musical society, boarding and other schools, and several important establishments, namely, distilleries of brandy, hats, leather, cordage, earthenware, salt, soap, tobacco, distillery and glass; a dye-works, and oil, flour and malt mills. Near it are the ruins of the old castle of Wyndesael, the residence of the counts of Flanders. In the middle ages its trade was very extensive. Pop. 2996.

THOUSAND ISLANDS, a cluster of isls. N. America, in the St. Lawrence, a little above Lake Ontario, belonging partly to Great Britain and partly to the U. States, supposed to exceed 1500 in number, and stretching almost continuously along the river for nearly 80 m. They are generally covered with cedar and hemlock trees to the water's edge, and in the passages between them present much grand and beautiful scenery. On the British side, the largest islands are Grand and Howe and on the U. States, Carlton, Oriskany, and Wells.

THOYDON, three para. Eng. Essex.—1 (Bois) 2176 ac. Pop. 651.—2, (Garsdon) 8161 ac. Pop. 1287.—3, (Almond) 1500 ac. Pop. 194.

THRACE, or THRAGIA, a name which appears in very ancient times to have been applied generally to the almost unexplored countries in the S.E. of Europe, was afterwards employed more definitely to designate that portion of Turkey in Europe bounded N. by the Danube, E. the Euxine or Black Sea; S. the Propontis or Sea of Marmora, and the Aegean Sea or Archipelago, and W. the mountains separating it from Macedonia and Thessaly. As a later period it was used in a still more restricted sense, as nearly identical with Rumania proper or that part of Turkey lying between Bulgaria on the N. and the Archipelago on the S.

THRAPSTON, par Eng. Suff. lat. 51° 35' N. P. 297. THRAPSTON, a market tn. and par. England, co. and 22 m. N.E. by E. Northampton, on the Nene, here crossed by a bridge. It has a cruciform church, with a tower and spire and places of worship for Wesleyans and Baptists, three or four schools, several small chapels, and two friendly societies. The principal manufactures are whips and bobbin lace. Area of par. 990 ac. Pop. 1183.

THRECKINGHAM, par Eng. Lincoln 2270 ac. P. 180.
THREE HILLS ISLAND, in the S. Pacific, New Hebrides, about 50 m. S.E. Sandwich lat. 17° 4' S., lon. 168° 19' E. It is about 12 m. in extent, and is remarkable for five mountains, to which it owes its name. A dangerous reef extends about 5 m. by N. from its W. point.

THREE ISLES, Australia, N.E. coast, S.E. Cape Flattery lat. 14° S. lon. 142° 30' E. The principal one of the group, situated to the westward of an extensive reef, is 2 m. long composed of coral-land, the highest part not more than 12 ft. above high-water mark, with several groves of low trees, and is over-run with tall sedge-like grass, the second is composed of a strip of heaped-up fragments of coral, separated from the reef by a belt of mangroves, the third is a mere clump of mangroves.—(Voyage of the Endeavour.)

THREE KINGS, or MANAWA TAWI, a group of isls. S. Pacific Ocean, N.W. of the N. island of New Zealand, lat. 34° 15' S. lon. 172° 10' E. They are high enough to become visible in clear weather at the distance of 25 m., but have a barren aspect, and do not altogether extend over a space of about 8 m. each way. The E. island, which is the largest, is scarcely 1 m. long.

THREE RIVERS, a tn. Canada East, cap. district of Three Rivers, at the confluence of the rivers St. Maurice and St. Lawrence, 90 m. from Quebec, with which it is connected by electric telegraph, and on the line of the proposed railway thence to Montreal. It is one of the oldest towns in Canada, and was long stationary as regarded enterprise or improvement, but recently it has become one of the most progressive and improving places in the province—a change produced principally by the commencement of an extensive trade in lumber on the river St. Maurice and its tributaries, which had heretofore been neglected, and also by increased energy in the manufacture of ironware, for which the St. Maurice forges, about 2 m. distant from the town, have been always celebrated in Canada. Three Rivers is the residence of a R. Catholic bishop, whose diocese bears the same name; and contains a R. Catholic cathedral, a church of England, a Scotch kirk, and a Wesleyan chapel, an Ursuline convent, with a school attached, where over 300 young females are educated; two public and several private schools, a mechanics' institute, a Canadian institute, and a young men's improvement, and several other societies. It sends a member to the provincial parliament. Pop. (1858) 4986 (Jan. 1863) 6506.

THREXTON, par Eng. Norfolk 1097 ac. Pop. 61

THRIBY par Eng Norfolk 378 ac. Pop. 49.
THRIFLOW par Eng Cambridge; 2459 ac. P 521.
THROAFHAM (St John), par Eng York 2710 ac. Pop. 286.

THROCKING par Eng Hartford; 908 ac. Pop. 85.
THROG'S POINT, U States, about 16 m. N E New York, projects nearly 3 m. into East River, and is partly occupied with a strong fortification, called Fort Schuyler, which defends the entrance to New York through Long Island Sound.
THROWLEIGH par Eng Devon; 1948 ac. P 585.
THROWLEY par Eng Kent 3180 ac. Pop. 514.
THRUMPTON par Eng. Wots 1960 ac. Pop. 139.
THRUHIELTON, or THRUHIELTON, par Eng Devon 3714 ac. Pop. 555.

THRUSSINGTON, par Eng Leicester 2200 ac. P 544.
THRUXTON, two pars. Eng. — 1 Hants 1855 ac. Pop. 267 — 2 Hereford, 437 ac. Pop. 71.

THUYBERGH, par Eng York; 1624 ac. Pop. 351.
THUYLLIERE, a vil and com Belgium, prov Hainaut, on the Meuse, 24 m. E.S.E. Mons, with manufactures of soap and leather, a brewery a flour-mill and limestone and sandstone quarries. Pop. 1834.

THUIN, a tn and com. Belgium, prov Hainaut, 9 m. N.W. Charleroi, r bank Sambre. It is well built and clean has a handsome church, an almshouse, mutual society Latin college, and several primary schools, manufactures of woolen fabrics, leather coats, and charcoal, breweries, dye-works, and blacksmiths, and an active trade in grain, cattle, wood, &c. Near it marble and iron are wrought, and for the smelting, &c., of the latter there are several blast-furnaces and other works. Pop. 5989.

THUIR, a tn France, dep. Pyrénées-Orientales, 9 m. S.W. Perpignan. It is surrounded by old walls, flanked with round-towers, is generally well built, and has a public square adorned with a fine marble-fountain, manufactures of leather paper and earthenware and a trade in wine, agricultural implements, and cattle. Pop. 2810.

THUIR in a vil and com Belgium prov Hamant, 10 m. W by S. Mons, on the railway thence to Valenciennes. The inhabitants are engaged in agriculture, rearing cattle, and in coal-mining. Pop. 2170.

THUM, a tn in Saxony Kreis Zwickau 9 m. S. Chemnitz with manufactures of leather, ribbons, and lace. Pop. 2095.

THUN a tn. Switzerland, can. and 16 m. S.E. Bern beautifully situated at the N.W. extremity of lake of its name, at the point where the Aar issues from it. It is surrounded with walls, and contains a number of handsome buildings, among others a townhouse, orphan hospital and a venerable

N.W., 2 m. broad, and about 720 ft. deep. As its S.E. extremity it receives the surplus waters of the Lake of Bielen by the Aar which again emerges from its N.W. extremity. Its other principal supply of water is received from the Kander which, after receiving the Simment, is conducted into the lake by an artificial channel, formed in 1714. The banks of the lake, near the town of Thun, are covered with villas and gardens. The N shore is precipitous, but not very interesting; the S.E. shore is magnificent, being terminated by two lofty mountains of remarkable appearance—the central Niesen, and the Stockhorn so called from its curiously projecting peak. There is a good deal of traffic on the lake. The navigation is safe, and a small steamer regularly plies upon it. It is well stocked with fish.

THUNDERSLEY, par Eng Essex 2498 ac. P 492.
THUNDRIDGE par Eng Herts 3200 ac. Pop. 573.

THÜNGERSHEIM a vil Bavaria, Lower Franconia, r bank Main, N.W. Würzburg, with a church manufactures of alcohol, liquors and vinegar, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1476.

THUNNINGEN a vil Württemberg, circle Schwab, near Tuttlingen with a church. Pop. 1844.

THUR, a river Switzerland, which rises in Mount Rente on the frontiers of cant. Appenzel and St Gall flows very circuitously W by N across cant. Thurgau and Zürich, and joins the bank Rhine 3 m. below Schaffhausen. Total course, about 70 m. Its principal affluents are the Aaben the Rittler, and the Marg.

THURGASTON par Eng Leicester, 2980 ac. P 1103.
THURDISH, or THURDISH, a market in Hungary co. Arva 124 m. N. Pesth with a saw and other mills, and a trade in salt. Pop. 1745.

THURGASTON two pars Eng — 1 Norfolk, 961 ac. Pop. 272 — 2 Wots 2770 ac. Pop. 385.

THURGAU (Valley of the Thur Latin, Thurgovia French Thurgovie Italian Turgovia) a can in the N.E. of Switzerland bounded, N by the Untere and Rhine, which separates it from Baden and cant. Schaffhausen, W. cant. Schaffhausen and Zürich, S. the Gall and E. and S. E. the Lake of Constance, separating it from Bavaria, W. Württemberg and Baden; its greatest length E. to W. 39 m., greatest breadth, 20 m., area, 270 sq. m. capital Frauenfeld. The surface differs very much from that of most other Swiss cantons. There are no high mountains in it. Numerous smaller ridges intersect it in all directions and give great variety and often much beauty to its scenery. But the loftiest summits nowhere rise more than 1000 ft. above the level of the Lake of Constance. The principal ridges, three in number stretch generally in a N.E. direction, and divide the canton into three corresponding valleys—the central and largest of all traversed by the Thur, the F. sloping down from the interior toward the shores of the lake and the W. forming the valley of the Mur. The whole surface belongs to the basin of the Rhine, to which its waters are conveyed chiefly by the Thur and its affluents, and partly also, by the Lake of Constance including the Untere. The climate in the S.W. near Hornü on the confines of Zürich, is severe, but with this exception, it is temperate. In geological structure, the canton belongs to the more recent gneiss-formations. The hills on both sides of the Thur and almost all their ramifications, consist for the most part of horizontal layers of boulders and gravel, fine-grained sandstone, and sandy clay. The sandstone is generally soft, and not well adapted for building purposes. In some districts a good limestone is found. Patches of coal occur in several places, but in none where solid coal existed a few inches in thickness, and, in consequence, cannot be profitably worked. There are no other minerals deserving of notice. The soil, which is usually of a clayey nature, is of very indifferent fertility. The principal crop is spelt. After it comes wheat, rye, barley common oats, and especially potatoes. But the culture for which the canton seems best adapted is that of fruit and accordingly, not only in the gardens attached almost to all the houses are fruit-trees planted but large orchards are spread over the open country, and give it, particularly at the seasons of spring and autumn, a romantic looking church which stands on a height approached by a long flight of steps, and rises conspicuous, with its octagonal tower above all the other houses. Near the church is the ancient feudal castle of the counts of Kyburg, which has stood for seven centuries. Thun possesses several good schools and a library, and carries on a considerable trade, particularly in linen and cheese. Pop. (1850), 3779.—The Lake (German, Thunersee) is about 1756 ft. above sea-level, 10 m. long S.E. to notices. The soil, which is usually of a clayey nature, is of very indifferent fertility. The principal crop is spelt. After it comes wheat, rye, barley common oats, and especially potatoes. But the culture for which the canton seems best adapted is that of fruit and accordingly, not only in the gardens attached almost to all the houses are fruit-trees planted but large orchards are spread over the open country, and give it, particularly at the seasons of spring and autumn, a romantic ably rich and pleasing appearance. In many places, also, the vine is successfully cultivated, and much wine of very good quality is produced. Wood, likewise, consisting of pine and hardwood, is abundant, and occupies about one-third of the whole surface; and grass, particularly meadow-grass, is extensively plentiful. Of the latter, including both permanent and migratory birds, 81 species have been counted. Fish abound in the Lake of Constance alone containing 21 species, and the Thur 14. The manufactures consist chiefly of linen and hampes cloth, hosiery, ribbons, lace, muslin, buttons, and articles of coarseness. Trade, greatly facilitated by the Rhine and the Lake of Constance, is extensive, and includes, in addition to the above articles of manufacture, corn, wine, dried fruit, and cattle. Rather more than three-fourths of the inhabitants are Protestants, and education is generally diffused. The electors, consisting of the citizens of 28 years of age who possess about £10 in property, choose the grand council or legislature, which consists of 100 members, and is wholly renewed every two years by the annual retirement of a half. The executive is vested in a council of six, who hold office for six years. Two Landstämme, chosen annually, preside alternately for six months over each council. P 66,519

THE TOWER, St. MATTHEW. From the tower, looking up to the lake.

THURINGERWALD, or FORST or THURINGER a mountain-chain in the centre of Germany, commencing at the sources of the Werra and Schwarz, and stretching along the N. bank of the Werra, E. to N. W. as far as the mouth of the Elster, near Eisenach, a distance of about 60 m. In the S.E. it is linked with the Frankenthal, and in the W. with a ramification of the Rhenishgebirge. Its culminating points, situated to the N. of Zell, are the Beberg and the Schönbühl, which have each a height of about 3265 ft. The mountains are composed chiefly of porphyry granite, and clay-slate and are well covered with wood, chiefly pine. The minerals include iron, copper, lead, cobalt, &c. The drainage is shared by tributaries of the Elbe, Main, and Weser.

THURINGIA (German Märkgrafschaf Thüringen) an anc. margraviate, Germany, situated between the Harz Mountains, the Elbe, the Thuringerwald, and the Werra. Its capital was Erfurt.

THURLESTON, par Eng. Lancaster 2980 ac. P 796.
THURLEIGH, par Eng. Somerset 949 ac. P 212.
THURLEY two pars. Eng. Lincoln—1 1802 ac. P 156—2 5070 ac. P 793.

THURLEIGH par Eng. Bedford; 3480 ac. P 698.
THURLES, a market tn. and par Ireland co and 20 m N E. Tipperary, r bank Seat on the Great South-Western railway. Its houses are mostly of stone, and some of them are well built, it has a small Episcopal chapel, a small Wesleyan and a large R. Catholic chapel called the cathedral of Castel a Baptist meeting-house, two convents with two schools for girls, a monastery, a R. Catholic school or college, a school of Christian Brothers, a courthouse, market-house, bride-well, fever hospital, infirmary-hospital, and dispensary, and a considerable trade in corn. Pop. (in 1850). Area of par., 2368 ac. P 10,546.—(Local Correspondent.)

THURLESTONE, a vil. and township, England, co. York (W. Riding), near the Don and the Sheffield and Manchester railway 5 m S W Barnsley. It is well built and has an Independent and a Wesleyan chapel, manufactures of woollen goods, and coal and iron mines. Nicholas Sanderson, who, notwithstanding the loss of sight in infancy, published excellent works on algebra and fractions, was born here. P 2018.
THURLOW, two pars. Eng. Suffolk—1 (Great), 3023 ac. P 481—2, (Little), 1470 ac. P 448.

THURLOXTON, par Eng. Somerset, 551 ac. P 192.
THURLTON, par Eng. Norfolk 1170 ac. P 445.
THURM, a vil. Saxony, circle Zwickau, ball and near Vordorfmühlbach; with a paper and several flour-mills. P 1118.
THURNAU, a tn. Bavaria, Upper Franconia, 9 m N W Bayreuth, with a castle, two Protestant churches, a trade in fruit, and two mills. P 1425.
THURNEY, par Eng. Leicester 2740 ac. P 274.
THURNE, par Eng. Norfolk; 660 ac. P 530.
THURKEN, a vil. and par Switzerland, can and 6 m S Bern, with a church. P 2646.

THURNING two pars. Eng. York—1 Norfolk 1584 ac. P 212—2, Northampton; 1000 ac. P 211.
THURNBOOE, par Eng. York (W. Riding); 1865 ac. P 208.

THUROCK, a co. Hungary, Riber Danube, bounded, N W by Transilvania, N E Arva, E Lipan, S E S. B. Bar, and S W Neutra area, 453 sq. m. It is generally mountainous, ramifications of the Carpathians traversing it in all directions. The principal stream is the Thurron, which flows through the county in a N. direction, and forms the Weep, forming part of its N. boundary. The principal grain-crop is bookwheat, but the far greater part of the land is fit only for pasture, or covered with wood. On the former great numbers of sheep and cattle are reared and from the latter much valuable timber is obtained. Considerable attention is paid to the dairy and to the rearing of bees. Game, both large and small, is abundant, and there are great numbers of wolves, bears, and foxes. The county is divided into four districts—Szent-Maryon (the capital), Bistolta, Mosson, and Tosi Procs. Pop. 45,918.
THURROCK, two pars. Eng. Essex—1 (Little) 1496 ac. P 308—2 (West), 5607 ac. P 754.

THURROCK (SAXY), a small ant. market tn. and par England, co. Essex, L. bank Thames, 4 m N W by W Gravesend, with a handsome cruciform church, in the Anglo-Norman style two Dissenting chapels, several Sunday-schools, and an endowed charity-school, a small creek or harbour which receives boys, and other vessels as large as 800 tons, and a wooden pier 400 ft. long at which the London and Gravesend steamers call several times a day. There is in the town a large brewery, and in the vicinity are extensive lime-works. Area of par. 1884 ac. P 1713.

THURSBY par Eng. Cumberland 2984 ac. P 591.
THURSFORD, par Eng. Norfolk 1250 ac. P 346.
THURLEY par Eng. Surrey 448 ac. P 766.

THURSO a burgh of burony, seaport, and par Scotland, co. Caithness, 20 m N W by W Wick; lat. 58° 35' N; lon. 3° 31' W (N). It is agreeably situated on the shores of the bay of the same name, irregularly built but contains, particularly in the suburbs, some neat freestone-houses. It has an elegant Established church with a tower and spire 140 ft. high, a Free church, and chapel for Original Seceders, Baptists, and Independents, several schools, two public libraries, a reading and news-room and manufactures of linen and woollen cloths, and fishing-boats a tannery, and rope-work. The fisheries in the bay are extensive, and consist chiefly of haddock, cod, and lobster; and the salmon-fisheries around it are also valuable. The chief trade of the port is the exportation of grain, cattle, sheep, and other agricultural produce, also paving-stones, in the dressing of which many of the inhabitants are employed. On the W side of Thurso Bay a pier is erected with a depth of 6 ft. at low water and 19 ft. at high-water spring-tides. Pop. (in 1850) 3908. Area of par., 22,040 ac. P 5006.

THURSTASTON, par Eng. Cheshire, 2762 ac. P 68.
THURSTON par Eng. Suffolk, 2800 ac. P 759.

THURSTONLAND a vil. and township, England, co. York, 5 m S. by E Huddersfield, with a neat plain church, a Wesleyan chapel, and so endowed parochial school. Many of the inhabitants are weavers. P 1320.

THURTON par Eng. Norfolk 771 ac. P 342.
THURZOFALVA, or TUZSUWAZ, a vil Hungary Riber Danube co. Transilvania, 8 m. from Cassa, with a parish church, a saw and several other mills, and a trade in wood. P 5599.

THUXTON par Eng. Norfolk 1102 ac. P 183.
THWAITE three pars. England—1, Norfolk; 676 ac. P 138—2, Suffolk; 823 ac. P 179—3, (St. Mary) Norfolk 676 ac. P 180.

THWING par Eng. York; 4080 ac. P 444.

TIAO-DE-CLACON (SAY) a tn. Portugal prov. Algarve, 36 m N W Ovarage, in a kind of bay formed by the Atlantic, and at the foot of a hill surmounted by a castle. It has a church, a Latin school, a Franciscan convent, an hospital, and a small harbour, with an active fishery. P 2100.

TIANACAO, a vil. Bolivia, dep. and 36 m N W La Paz, S. shore of Lake Titicaca. It is now greatly deserted, but is remarkable for the ruins and gigantic monuments that are found in great numbers in the vicinity.—(Cataluña.)

TIANA (SAN CEFALINO-DE-) a vil. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 5 m. from Barcelona, with a small townhouse, primary school for boys, and several for girls, a parish church, starch-works of cotton houses, and flour-mills. Near it stood the famous Carthusian monastery of Montalegre, said to have been the most ancient and perfect of its kind in Spain. It was sacked and burned at the revolution on the 25th and 26th of July, 1808. Pop. 1818.

TIAROTZ, or TIAROTZ v. l. Hungary co. Boreod, 14 m. from Mohács, with a Protestant and R. Catholic church, a synagogue, several churches, mineral springs, several mills, stone-quarries, and a trade in wool. Pop. 1769.

TIAS, a v. l. Courtes, lat. Llanorote. It has a primary school for both sexes, a hermitage which serves as a parish church, and a public oratory. Inhabitants engaged in agricultural culture and weaving some plain linen. Pop. 1769.

TIAMIN, a river, Russia, rises on the N. confines of Gov. Kherson, enters Gov. Kiev flows first N. E. then suddenly as it retracing its steps S. E., and forming part of the boundary between Kiev and Kherson, joins the back Dnieper at the town of Kiliy after a course of about 100 m.

TIBBERAGHNY, par. l. Kilkeny 1148 ac. P. 247.

TIBBERMORF par. Scotland, Perth 8 m. by 3 m. Pop. 1465.

TIBBFETON two parts Eng. — 1 Gloucester 1400 ac. Pop. 662 — 2 Worcester 1820 ac. Pop. 328.

TIBENHAM, par. Eng. Norfolk 3286 ac. Pop. 787.

TIBER [Italian, Tevere, and Tiberis] a river, Italy, rises in the Apennines, near Florence, Tuscany, flows first S. as a mountain stream, then turning S. E., enters the Papal States, flows S. E. traversing the city of Rome, shortly after quitting which, it flows S. W. and separating into two branches — the Fiumicino on the N. and the Fiumara on the S., forms the island called Insula Sacra, and falls into the Tyrrhenian Sea by two mouths. Its principal affluents are the Topino, Nera, and Tevere on the left and the Nestore, Clitana, Alano, and Galera on the right bank. Its whole course is about 240 m., of which about 90 m., commencing at the confluence of the Nera, are navigable, but only with considerable precaution. Its water, always surcharged with a yellowish mud, is unwholesome, and its fish also are said to be of very indifferent quality.

TIBERIAS, or TABARIA a Palestine, peak and 82 m. E. by S. Acres, on the S. W. shore of the Lake Thierias. It is enclosed landward by a strong wall, flanked with towers. It was partially ruined by an earthquake in 1837, and is now a dilapidated, filthy, and miserable place.

TIBERIAS, TABARIA, or GHETZARATH (LAKE OF SEA OF), called also in Scripture the Sea of Galilee, in the N. of Palestine, 10 m. N. of the Dead Sea, and 964 ft. above its level, length, N. to S., 14 m., central breadth 8 m. It is of an irregular oval or rather crescent form, with its convexity towards the W. It occupies a basin, apparently of volcanic origin, 630 ft. below the level of the Mediterranean, and is surrounded by rugged and precipitous heights composed of limestone or basalt, which on the S. and E. shores rise abruptly from 800 ft. to 1000 ft., forming the abutments of the table-land of Galilee, and the W. side terminates in the lofty plain N. of Mount Tabor. The water is deep and remarkable for its transparency, and the scenery, framed by many trevelling, is declared by those to be finer than that of the English lakes, though perhaps inferior to Loch Lomond. It receives numerous small streams, but is fed chiefly by the Upper, and discharges itself into the Lower Jordan. It is well supplied with fish, and in early times was covered with fishing-boats, which gave employment to the inhabitants of its shores, but scarcely a single boat is now seen upon it. The hills which enclose it shelter it from general and long-continued storms, but it is frequently agitated by sudden gusts and squalls, and it appears to have been during occurrences of these that our Saviour's miraculous power in calming and walking on the stormy waves was displayed. These and many other scriptural associations make this lake one of the most interesting spots in the world.

TIBERTON, par. Eng. Hereford 1111 ac. Pop. 141.

TIBET, or TYMUR [native, Fut-Loachin, Snowy Region of the North; Chinese, Tsang, Hindoo, Bhot the name Tibet or Tybet being of Mahomedan origin] an extensive region, occupying all the S. portion of the great table-land of Central Asia, in its widest sense, extending between lat. 27 and 36° N., and lon. 78° and 101° E. bounded on the N. by the Koonlun, Himmalaya, and their continuations, which separate it from Chinese Turkestan, the heart of Gold, and the Koko-Nor (Blue Sea) territory; E. the Chinese provinces of Szechuan and Yunnan, S. the latter, the N. provinces of Burma, and the Himalaya, which separate it from Assam, Bhotan, Sikkim, Nepal, and the N. W. territories of British India W. the Himalaya, separating it from Cashmere and the Punjab, Kashmir, &c. Most part of the region so bounded, about 1800 m. in length W. to E., belongs to the Chinese Empire, but its extreme W. portion, called Little Tibet or Bhotan, is included in the dominions of the Mahomedan of Cashmere; Ladak, adjoining this, is not under the Chinese rule its inhabitants recognizing only the spiritual authority of the Tald Lama and Bliao or Saka, bordering on China, is excluded by the Chinese from the jurisdiction of the Tibetan authorities. Tibet Proper thus limited, extends between lon. 78 and 96° E. and is divided into Wol-Tsang (interior or eastern), and Hon-Tsang (interior or western). Tibet: cap. of the former, Lassa, the residence of the Grand or Tald Lama, and the metropolis of the Buddhist religion; cap. of the latter, Chashe-lo-tun Buo, the seat of the Bonchhi-Bonchhi.

Physical Geography.—Tibet as a whole, is probably the most elevated country on the surface of the globe. Its plains average from 10 000 ft. to 11 000 ft. in height, and many of its mountains are more than twice that elevation. The latter generally extend in ranges parallel to those of the Himalaya, leaving between them numerous narrow valleys and deep ravines. In the E. however, the mountains run off to E. enclosing the upper courses of the rivers of Ultra-Gangetic India. Within the boundaries of Tibet rise nearly all the great rivers of S. and E. Asia, the Indus, Sutlej, Beas, Brahmaputra, Irrawadi, Salween, Mekong, Salween, Yang-tze-kiang, and Hoang-ho, besides the Gogra, and many other affluents of the Ganges. Lakes are numerous. The Tangri-Nor and Bonke-Nor are remarkable for their size, Lake Paila surrounds like a ring a large island of its own shape. Manasarovar and Havanshrada, near lat. 31° N. lon. 81° E., are regarded as sacred lakes, being situated nearly 15 000 ft. above the sea, in the great Kailas—the mythological Olympus of the Hindus, where the greatest rivers of India have their source. The principal passes connecting Tibet with India are the Ghatik Ghat (10,150 ft. in height) and the Niti Ghat (11,814 ft.), at both heads of the Ganges, the Dara Ghat (17,790 ft.), and the Mustang Pass from Nepal and a way at the head of the Konki or Nastoo river, between Nepal and Blikkin, to which ingress into Tibet from the S. is said to be easy.—Geology. Several of these routes are practicable for horses.

Climate.—The climate of Tibet is chiefly remarkable for its extreme dryness during most part of the year, and the clearness of the atmosphere. In the spring from March to May the weather is very variable, and thunder-storms, with occasional showers, are frequent. Near Lassa the trees bud in April. From June to September heavy rains are frequent, and swell the rivers which help to inundate the countries of S. Asia. But from October to March, so little moisture exists in the air that vegetation is at all but wholly dried up, and fish may be kept for all that period unharmed, and so tame as the cold, that the Red Fox, in travelling from the Koko-Nor to Lassa, over one of the loftiest portions of Central Asia, states that he found cakes of barley continually frozen, though kept close to his person under three garments of skins and one of woollen!—(Sousseur d'un Voyage, &c. 1846) Singular to say, however, the line of perpetual snow is considerably higher in Tibet than on the S. declivity of the Himalayan chain, a phenomenon supposed to be owing mainly to the radiation of the sun's heat from the lofty plains. About lat. 31° N. the snow-line on the N. side of the Himalaya has been found not to reach below 16,528 ft. while on the S. slope (the Indian side) it descended to less than 13 000 ft. above the ocean, and it has since been discovered that the difference varies elsewhere between 20,000 ft. and 15,000 ft. Accordingly one kind of barley (Ferodium hancei) is seen growing 14,700 ft. above the sea, and another species at a still greater elevation. Wheat succeeds well to 12 000 ft., herb-woods ascend to above 14,000 ft., and small bushes, which serve for fuel grow near lat. 31°, to 17 000 ft. above the sea, or nearly 1800 ft. higher than the limit of perpetual snow under the equator. Goats, pygmies, rhinoceros, opium, leopards, hydropic, and small-pox are amongst the most prevalent diseases. The doctor of the Tibetan Empire approach on the highlands of the Himalayas at Chinese garrisons, and proceeded from entering the Tibetan territory, and reported, who resided at Lassa for some years, was only able to penetrate it from the south by the circuitous route of Ladak, designated as a Mohammedan trade, and favoured by his distinct knowledge of the Persian language. Except with the connection with the W. and K.W. the foreign trade of Tibet is mostly monopolized by the Chinese officials. The Mongols, in return for skins, wool, and live stock take back idols, ornaments, and tea. The commerce with the Chinese is of a staple nature, but on a more extensive scale. The capital is thrown in high bustle during the summer months, and much business is transacted within a short time. — (Gustaf) The currency is rude; it consists of silver ingots, and counts about the size of a shilling, with Persian, Indian or Tibetan inscriptions, and which are often broken in pieces of different fractional values.

People and Customs.—The Tibetans belong to the widely spread Mongolian family, and have a flattened face, slender eyes, small black eyes, short nose, black hair, and little beard. They are of middle height, square built, and join much of the agility of the Chinese to the bodily vigour of the Tartars; gymnastic exercises and dancing are their favourite amusements. Their colour is in general somewhat swarthy, but amongst the upper classes are individuals as white as Europeans. In disposition they are reported to be mild, generous, and frigidly religious, but less credulous and bigoted in matters of faith than the Tartars. Want of cleanliness is a common failing. Their diet consists chiefly of kumiss or cake made of barley, tea, with butter or milk, mutton, horse-flesh, and yak beef. Wheat bread is used only by the wealthy. Pork is sold in the capital, but it is dear. The peasantry are mostly clothed in sheep goat or jackal skins, and boots of great thickness. In the towns, woollens, chiefly of a red or yellow colour, replace the garments of skins, a wide robe, fastened at the right side and bound around the loins with a red girdle, boots of red or violet cloth, a blue cap, with a large border of black velvet, and a red ribbon, a bag of yellow taffeta, for holding the perfume, and two purses, which, whether full or empty, are worn in the girdle, constitute the dress of the laity. The higher classes use silks and cloths lined with fur. They do not, like the Chinese, shave the head, and their hair is usually allowed to hang over the shoulders, but within the last few years Hun informs us that the darluis of Lassa have adopted the Chinese mode of wearing the hair in a queue, and adorning it with gold trinkets. In the left ear a gold ornament is often worn. The women use a costume very like that of the men, with a short tunic under the robe, and the hair divided into two braids. The lower classes adopt a yellow covering for the head, similar in shape to a cap of liberty for which females of the upper ranks substitute a kind of coronet, set off with pearls and jewellery. In accordance with a singular usage, most of them, when appearing in public, have the face smeared over with a black varnish, and those who most disfigure themselves in such a manner are held to be the most pious and correct in conduct. It is stated that this custom is the consequence of an order promulgated by a former ruler of Tibet, with the view of correcting public morals, and strange to say, it was immediately acquiesced in by the female population without a murmur. The women are not secluded as in Mohammedan countries, but, as in China, they engage actively in commercial life, and all the salt-keepers and small shopkeepers are females. The practice of polyandry by which one woman becomes the wife of several brothers, is common in Tibet, as in Nepal and Bhotan though it is said to have been suppressed by the Chinese in certain districts.

A remarkable custom (though not peculiar to Tibet, since it prevails in most other parts of the Chinese Empire), is universal—the presentation of the bride. The bride is an oblong white silk scarf of very fine texture, three or four as wide, and with a mystic sentence woven at both ends. One is invariably exchanged at every visit of ceremony, is sent with every present, and accompanies every letter passing between persons in any rank of life, with the hearty good will that characterizes the act of shaking hands in Europe. M. Hue remarks:—It is impossible to explain to what an extent the people estimate the importance of the shawl. Words or presents are deemed as nothing without it, the most insignificant objects are enhanced by it, and as the shawl being offered, a favour cannot be refused without a breach of etiquette. The mode of adorning it in Tibet is grotesque; it is combed in now waving the head, thrusting out the tongue, and something the right ear. The methods of adorning it are various; the bodies of the sovereign lamas are preserved, by being dried and then enshrined; those of inferior lamas are commonly buried, and the ashes or portions of the body, such as a nail, hair, or tooth, are carefully inclosed in idols, which are sold by the masses to the devout at a high price. Burial is unknown. The bodies of the lamas are exposed on heights, as is customary among the Persians or are committed to the rivers. Lastly is a mode said by Hue to be the most common of all, and certainly revolting enough to European notions, the corpse is cut into pieces, which are given to dogs, and in some lamaseries sacred dogs are reared for the express purpose. Some other customs, however evince much more elevated feelings. In the city of Lassa, as Hue relates when the sun is about to set, the inhabitants meet in the principal quarters and public places, and chant hymns, joining in a solemn religious concert of a very impressive character. The practice of public weeping at sunset also prevails amongst the Persians of India, and it may be incidentally mentioned, that it is common in some parts of Switzerland, where, likewise, it assumes a religious character.

Arts, Sciences, and Lassa.—The great scarcity of fuel and of timber has prevented the Tibetans from excelling in architecture, and in others of the useful arts. At Lassa and elsewhere are certainly some magnificent and richly-ornamented stone-temples and the houses there, built with terraces on the summit, are neatly whitened, and painted externally; but their interior is filthy as well as uncomfortable, the floors being only of stone or marble. In the W. the houses are built of pebbles cemented with clay or earth. Many of the dwellings of the peasantry consist merely of woven staves, piled on each other without cement, and are like brick kilns in shape and a large number of the population live in caverns hewn in the mountain-sides. Some suspension-bridges of iron and rope are laid across the rivers, but these are reported to be very liable to similar works in China, an iron-bridge of 18 spans over a branch of the Yarn Chang-ho near (Chash-lo-ma Buo, is the finest public work of its kind in Tibet, of which we have any account. The boats employed are commonly built of hides alone, and merchandise is conveyed by land wholly on the backs of domestic animals. Printing is an art in which the Tibetans make a more respectable figure than many other Asiatic nations most of the oldest libraries, or Buddhist monasteries have a printing-office attached, from which religious works are issued, and sold for the benefit of the establishment. Movable types are not employed, the books are printed with wooden blocks, and the leaves, which are separate, resembling a pack of cards, stamped on both sides, are held together between wooden covers. Manuscripts are well executed, the lamas write with hamp-oo-pens, on paper glazed with milk. The Tibetan sacred character bears a resemblance to the Sanscrit. It is read however, from left to right. The alphabetical figures in use are almost identical with the so-called Arabic numerals used by Europeans. They found them acquainted with the signs of the zodiac, the attributes of Jupiter, and the ring of Saturn. Their historical records are obscure in consequence of their indifference to precise dates, and a complicated chronology. Of their jurisprudence we have but an imperfect knowledge; their written laws are of high antiquity, their actual code is said to have been modified by the Chinese, since the political connection with China has existed in Tibet, as in Mongolia, robbery and murder are severely punished, but it would seem that restrictions for offences is by no means certain. According to M. Hue, the individual who has been injured, or his immediate relatives must cite the criminal before the judicial authorities, or he goes unpunished.

The Buddhist Religion.—Tibet may be called the Popedom of Asia, it being the head, seat, and centre of the Buddhist religion, which numbers amongst its votaries by far the greater portion of the inhabitants of all the great table-land of Central and Eastern Asia, India beyond the Brahmaputra, Ceylon, China, Japan, Corea, Manchuria, and the S. part of the Russian Empire in Asia, together with a portion of the mountains in Europe, the whole comprising certainly more than one-third of the entire human race. The country of Tibet is accordingly regarded as a sacred land by nearly all the Mongolian family of peoples, and it is revered in its pilgrimage by vast numbers of devotees, whose offerings to the numerous priest-hood compensates the Tibetans for the poverty of their land. It is believed that Buddhism and Brahminism, but two others from a primitive religion which once prevailed over the whole of Asia beyond the Indus, and the heights of Pamir, but which became debased in Hindostan by the introduction of monstrous allegories, a polytheistic worship, and institutions, such as those of caste and relative degrees of purity, which were foreign to the original faith. Buddha is considered in Tibet as the necessary independent Being of the universe, and the beginning and end of all things. Like Krishna, he is worshipped under a triple form, and the Buddhists join with the Brahmans in acknowledging the four earliest incarnations or avatars of the same deity. Sakya, when they consider his fifth incarnation, as regarded by the Brahmans as the ninth avatar of Vishnu, the intermediate manifestations of which divinity are rejected by the Buddhists. Sakya is said to have been born at Kapila, in Oude, in the 6th century before Christ, and appears to have been a reformer of Brahminism, whose doctrines, about a.c. 505, were actively spread by Asoka, a powerful king of Magadha in Hindostan in Hindostan, contemporary with Antiochus the Great. Gaya, the capital of Magadha, is accordingly viewed as holy by Buddhists, who occasionally resort to it in pilgrimages from across the Himalaya and in its vicinity is Buddha-Gaya, the supposed place of residence and apotheosis of Sakya, a gigantic image of whom, in the usual cross-legged sitting posture, is still extant there. From the time of Asoka, Buddhism extended rapidly in Hindostan. It appears to have reached Candiana about a.c. 241, Ceylon, quite early in the 2d century before Christ, and China about a.c. 65. Khosroes (Chosroes Turkistan) received it in the 1st century of the Christian era and Durand about a.c. 336. From Ceylon subsequently to the latter epoch, the faith of the new Buddha was conveyed into the other countries of Ultra-Gangara India, where Sakya, or one of his followers, is worshipped under the names of Gautama, Somanakou, &c., but the Buddhists of those countries is of a degraded kind, and exhibits none of the intellectual superiority that characterizes it in Tibet, in which country however, it is stated not to have been established till A.D. 567. In the 6th century A.D., a persecution of Buddhism began to be excited on by the Brahmins in Hindostan, and with such effect, that its extinction there is believed by some to have been complete by the end of the 7th century. It has even been asserted that there is now not a single native Buddhist in India, from the foot of the Himalaya to Cape Comorin, but a sect of Hindoos, termed the Raudhis-Vaishnavas, living in Gujarat, the Deccan, and the Carnatic, worship the much avater of Vishnu and the Jams, a pretty numerous section of the population in W India, entertain a faith and employ symbols closely allied to those of the Buddhists. The Buddhists, while they reject the multitudinous pantheon of the Hindoos, admit an indefinite number of incarnations of Buddha, who is supposed to incarnate in successive the bodies of their chief lamas or priests, and thus meet, the reproduction of some, the use of animal food, the practice of a contemplative life as the highest pursuit of humanity, and the belief of a final absorption into the deity constitute the chief points of difference between them and the followers of the Brahminical religion.

In the 16th century Buddhism in Central Asia was subjected to a new reformation. Tsong-Kaba, born in the Kokon Territory about a.c. 1357, and having been instructed by a lama from the West, not far from Lams, where he encountered his disciples, and now to which he furnished the great monastery of Kildan. The enormous, austere, and devotional exercises now prevailing in most of the monasteries of Tibet, the cross, mitre, delusion, cups, two shoes, palmistry, exorcisms, omens, benediction by laying the hand on the head, chapel, architectural edifice, married retirement, worship of saints, fasts, processions, stanzas, holy-water &c., bearing so great a similarity to those of the R. Catholic church, are believed to have been introduced into the ritual and discipline of Tibetan Buddhism by Tsong-Kaba. It has been conjectured that the instruction which he had received was from some one of the R. Catholic priests, whom the new influence between the W and E, after the conquest of Genghis-Khan and his successors, had induced to visit Central Asia. The lamas of the sect of Tsong-Kaba wear a yellow mitre; those adhering to the older ritual, &c., wear one of a red color, the latter prevail throughout the E.E. of Asia, while the reforms of Tsong-Kaba have triumphed in all the countries between the Himalaya, the Russian frontier, and the Wall of China. As respects the general character of the Buddhist religion, we shall here quote, without comment, the opinions of Mr. Malcolm, a Protestant missionary. 'It has no mythology of obscene and ferocious deities, no augury or impure observances; no self-inflicted tortures; no tyrannical preachment; no countenancing of right and wrong, by making certain misdeeds laudable in worship. In almost every respect it seems to be the best religion now ever invented.'—(Travels, 322)

The lamas of Tibet (lama, 'one who shows the way') form a very large proportion of the population, and reside in monasteries, many of which accommodate from 3000 to 4000 persons. In the single district of Lams, there are reported to be more than thirty great Buddhist establishments, each with nearly 15 000 lamas (7). They live there in separate apartments, and are supported partly from the revenues of the establishments to which they belong, and partly from private resources. Many of inferior degree are compelled by poverty to engage in secular and menial duties and some are even occupied in collecting opium or drug, and converting it into fuel for sale. The revenues of the monasteries are derived from lands, endowments of the Chinese sovereigns, and other eminent persons, and offerings of pilgrims, which last are formally annulled after the daily prayers, and the proceeds are divided amongst the inmates in proportions corresponding to their rank. The place of each lama in his monastery is fixed by the number of sacred books he has studied. The lamas are divided into four families—those of mysticism, liturgy, medicine, and prayer, which last has the largest number of members, and is also stated to be most esteemed. Those of the first-named family devote themselves to a life of contemplation, and are perpetually repeating the mystic sentence, Aum man padme, Aum, which is inscribed on all temples, banners, khatas, &c., and is believed to have a kind of talismanic power. The translation of this sentence is stated to be, 'O! the jewel in the lotus Aum' and the first word is an invocation to Brahma, Vishnu, and Shiva, the last of the initial letters of the Tibetan names of the three deities. Converts exist in Tibet for women as well as men and most families have some member belonging to the clergy.

The Grand or Tald Lama [improperly Dalai Lama] 'son of wisdom' who is at the head of the hierarchy, resides at the Buddha-La, a vast palace near Lams. He is deemed to be the principal living incarnation of Buddha and as such he receives actual worship. Like the Pope, in his temporal dominions, he is the sole religious and political head of the state, and he has nominally vested in him all the administrative and executive authority, with powers unaccounted for by any charter or law, except those handed on him by the institute of Tsong-Kaba. When he dies, or in the Buddhist language transmigrates he is sought for as animating some other living form, commonly the body of an infant who is an only child. Prayers and fasts are ordered in all the lamaseries; the lamas of the capital go in solemn procession around the Buddha-La, and the city of Lams, the same or mystic sentence is repeated night and day, perfumes are burned and meanwhile the chief authority devolves upon the ambassadors, or high colleges of lamas, whose collective sacerdotal dignity is not inferior to that of the Tald Lama himself. These families who assume to believe that the deity is incarnated in the person of their infant, send notice of the same to the convents; this body chooses from amongst the number three children, who are brought to the capital. After other ceremonies, the names of the candidates are written on slips of paper which are placed in an urn, when the name first drawn out indicates the future Grand Lama, who is then treated in pomp around the capital, and installed for the rest of his life in the palace of Buddha-La. Some few heretics attend the succession of the Durbale-Rambodah, or lama of Chashe-Jam-Bo. They are described by Capt. Turner, who, in 1838, visited that sovereign on a mission from Calcutta, and was accordingly introduced to an infant 16 months old.—(See TARNAK, Mission to Tibet. Timkovski, who, in the present century, went on an embassy from Russia to Peking, witnessed and describes the installation of a juvenile hontoukion in Mongolia, in whose case similar and other expedients were adopted for ascertaining the true object to be attained, and verifying its identity. All the hontoukions, or spiritual governors of provinces, who receive their investiture from the Tald Lama, are, like him, believed to be incarnations of the deity, and the lamas who are heads of monasteries are also deemed to be living Buddhas. The chief of the supposed incarnations, next to the Tald Lama, are the Bantchen-Bambontshi, the Gulsou-Tamba, the Tshang-kia-fu, or grand-master of the imperial court at Peking, and the Se-Duh-fu whose peculiar function it is, by continual prayer, to prevent the melting of the snows on the Himalaya, so as to avert a hostile invasion of Tibet from that quarter. The Bantchen-Bambontshi is scarcely inferior in sanctity to the Tald Lama, and it appears quite possible that a rivalry between his votaries and those of the latter may at some time produce serious religious convulsions in Tibet. According to M. Hue, a widely spread notion prevails in A. Asia, that the next incarnation of the Bantchen-Bambontshi will take place, not in Tibet, but in Thian-shan-Paloo, in Chinese Turkestan. Prophesies are rife, that after alternate successes and defeats, his spiritual power, instead of that of the Tald Lama, will successively extend over China, Tartary, and the Russian Empire! and M. Hue remarks, that at no very distant date for the present Bantchen-Bambontshi is upwards of 60 years old) an enterprising adventurer in Turkestan, backed by an adequate number of partisans, might have only to assert confidently that he is the new incarnation to create a vast revolution throughout the Buddhist world. For further information concerning Buddhism see the Asiatic Researches passim, the Asiatic Journal of Bengal, vols. vi and vii, and American Asiatic Journal vol. 2, the works of Turner, Klaproth, Timkovski, Hue, vol. II, and Gutzlaff in Geog. Journ. vol. x, and the Chinese Repository.

Government.—Although the supreme authority nominally rests with the Tald Lama, he is in reality supposed to be exercised wholly in divine contemplation and the civil government is exercised by the nobles or pomekhan, who is chosen from amongst the lamas and holds his office for life, or during the pleasure of the Chinese emperor. Under him are four kalons or ministers, not belonging to the sacerdotal tribe and who may retain their offices for an unlimited period, unless deposed by the Tald Lama. The two provinces of Tibet are subdivided into counties, each under the superintendence of a hontoukion. In each of the capitals is a Chinese governor with command over the military force. The total number of troops maintained by the Chinese government in Tibet has been stated at no more than 64,000, most of whom are cavalry, but in addition the Chinese authorities have power to call in troops, ammunition, and supplies from the adjacent provinces Sechuen, between which and Lassa several detached garrisons are stationed. Near Lassa a large body of Mongolian horse is maintained, but the armed force kept within that city, and at Chashu-mu-Boo, is insignificant. Other principal posts for Chinese troops are at Tarkapoon, toward the Lepo frontier. Phart, on the frontier of Sootan, a station of considerable strength, lately established at the head of the Kouki or Noutso river, opposite Sakkin, several posts to check the incursions of the Gorkhas of Nepal, a camp at Gortoo, and some strong garrisons in the W. bordering the Ladak territory. The Chinese troops and mandarins are paid by the government at Peking they commonly stay but three years in Tibet, unless on special permission from the emperor, and if they form matrimonial alliances there, on their return into China they almost uniformly leave their wives and families behind. In consequence of the rooted jealousy entertained of the Chinese by the Tibetans, they are prohibited from remaining in the country except in a military or official capacity. Hue says—The Tibetans dread the Chinese, the Kachis despise them, and the Po-houn (Bhotanese) mock at them. It appears pretty certain that above the authority of the Grand Lama and the somokhan in Tibet, the Chinese military governors maintain a general control; it is asserted, with much probability, that to every province, including the election of the chief lamas, the assent of the Emperor of China is necessary and the Narvokas of M. Hue makes it clear that in 1644, he and his fellow-traveller were compelled to leave Tibet by the Chinese governor Kasha, in spite of the wishes of the Tibetan regent, who appears to have entertained no objection to their stay. The Kachis or Muslims who have immigrated from Cashmere and Beludistan and include the richest merchants of Lassa, &c., are subordinate to their own governor there, who is recognized by the Tibetan and Chinese authorities.

History.—No conqueror from the S. ever yet possessed himself of Tibet proper; Shah Jehangir, in 1640, attempted the conquest of How-tang; but the advance to Lha was disastrous, and his troops retraced their steps. Gungki-Khan brought Tibet under his rule, but he afterwards established the Tald Lama in the sovereignty; Tsimor also conquered the country, but he interposed little in its internal regulations. The Tibetans remained, with few intermissions, subject to their own sovereigns till the time of the Chinese emperor Kang-he, whose supremacy they finally acknowledged in 1727. Keen lang, about 1790, after successfully repelling an invasion of the Gorkhas, who had plundered Chashu-lum-Boo further extended the imperial rule in Tibet, which the Chinese sovereigns have ever since with much solicitude preserved since their wielding the religious influence exercised by the Tald Lama over the Tartar and Mongolian tribes, is of much vital importance to them, that without it they could no longer hope to maintain their dominion in Central Asia.—(Humboldt, Asia Centrale, and Aspects of Nature, Goudal, Lloyd, and Moorcroft, Travels Gutzlaff and Hooker in Jour. Roy. Geo. Soc. Asiatic Journal of Bengal, Hwa, Swemid's Asia Voyages, &c. in 1846.)

TIBET (LITTLE) a state. See BUCHI
TIBET (MIDDLE), a region, Central Asia. See LADAW
TIBI a tn. Spain, Valencia, prov. and 18 m. N. W. All counts with a church, courthouse, and prison, two elementary schools, manufactures of linen and paper and several oil and flour. Pop. 1571.

TIBOHINE par Ind. Rescomcom 44,098 ac. P. 15,718.

TIBORE, a native state, Indian Archipelago, N. coast, 14 fangsene, cucs a famed robbernest.

TIRSHIELD, par Eng. Derby, 2280 ac. Pop. 806.

TIBURON—1 An Isl. Gulf California lat. 29° N.

lon 112° 28' W. length 30 m. greatest breadth, 30 m.—2,

A maritime in Hayti, 88 m. W. N. W. Cayes.

TIGAO, one of the Philippine Islands, off S. point, lat. Luzon between it and lat. Maghata lat. (N. point) 12° 41' N. lon. 123° 29' E. (n.) about 33 m. long, by 7 m. broad.

TICHERHUSE, a vil. and par England, co. Sussex, on the road from Tunbridge Wells to Hastings, 6 m. S. Lambeth. It has a parish church, two district churches Wesleyan and Baptist chapels, an agricultural association and a weekly corn-market. Area, 8903 ac. P. 9,285.

TICHAU, or Tracuvu a vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 80 m. S. b. Oppeln with a church and a mill P. 2314.

TICHHWA or TICHHVA a tn. Russia, gov. and 109 m.

N. E. Novgorod on the Tikhvin, which is here navigable.

It has three churches, a monastery, and a manufactory; tanneries tallow-melting establishments, and a considerable trade in corn salt, and brandy. In the vicinity is Stolbova, where peace was concluded between the Russians and Swedes in 1617. Pop. (1842) 5688.

TICLLO a canton and river of Switzerland. See TREMBY.

TICKENOOGE par Eng. Rutland, 1256 ac. Pop. 98.

TICKENHAM, par Eng. Somerset 1627 ac. Pop. 434.

TICKHILL a market to and par England, co. York

(W. Riding), 57 m. N. York city in a fertile valley close to the York, with a handsome church, two Dissenting chapels, some weaving and corn-mills, and a paper-manufactory. Near the town, to the S. E. are the remains of Tickhill castle, in which John of Gaunt resided. Area of par., 5614 ac. P. 3169.

TICKMACREAVAN, par Ire. Antrim, 30,507 ac. F. 5802.

TICKNALL, a vil. and par England, co. and 9 m. S.

Derby. It has a modern parish church in the early English style, with a tower and handsome spire, and a beautiful window of stained glass. Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, two endowed schools, an hospital, manufactory of earthenware, and extensive linen-works. Area, 1667 ac. Pop. 1241.

TICONDEROGA, a vil. and township, U. States, New York. The village lies at the outlet of Lake George, 57 m.

N. Albany. At the distance of 7 m., on the shores of Lake

Champlain, are the interesting ruins of Fort Ticonderoga, celebrated during the French and revolutionary wars. P 2189

TICOO ISLANDS, W coast, Sumatra, three in number, small and woody about 14 in apart outermost is in lat 0° 25' N. lon 95° 50' E

TIGUAL, a considerable vil Mexican Confederation, Yucatan 16 m S. by W 36 m. with a large and modern church, and connected with it by a spacious corridor, a gigantic convent, built entirely of stone, with massive walls, and 400 ft. in length. Tigual is distinguished amongst the villages of Yucatan by the number of the stone-houses by its superior society greater convenience of living, its built-fights, and the beauty of the Mexican women. Pop. about 5000

TID-AR a river Sweden, issues from the N extremity of a lake on the frontiers of the Jönköping about 15 m N W the town of that name flows N, then W expanding into Lake Osters then N N W and after a winding course of nearly 80 m flows into the E shore of Lake Wener near Mariestad

TIDCOMBEE, par Eng. Wils, 2831 ac. Pop. 918

TIDENHAM, a vil. and par England co. Gloucester, at the extremity of the peninsula formed by the Wye and Severn 2 m. N. E. Chepstow. It has a church with a square tower a district church a Wesleyan chapel and two national schools. Several Danish and Roman encampments are still visible within the parish Area 4927 ac. Pop. 1753

TIDESWELL, a small market tn. and par England, co. and 55 m N W Derby houses generally of mean appearance. It has a fine cruciform church a Dissenting and a R. Catholic chapel and a free grammar-school. The chief branches of trade are cloth-weaving and mining Area of par, 10,950 ac. Pop. 3411

TIDMAREH par Eng Dorset 779 ac Pop 165

TIDMINGTON par Eng Worcester 754 ac. P 53

TIDORE, or TIDORA, one of the Ternate Is Indian Archipelago W coast, Gilolo and S. from Ternate lat. 0° 40' N. lon 127° 35' E. (c.) It is about 31 m in circumference, of a round form, and composed entirely of a volcanic, the sides of which are well wooded. It is well watered and populous and yields sugar cane, rice, bananas, &c. goats, fowls, and some fish. The inhabitants are Mahometans, and have 25 mosques, all of very simple architecture. The sultan is tributary to the Dutch but at one time he was a powerful prince, holding under his sway all Gilolo and the islands to the coast of Tapan. The capital, also named Tidore lies on the E. coast, is surrounded by a wall and contains the sultan's residence, also walled and a large mosque

TIDWORTH, two par Eng Wils - 1 (North) 8069 ac. Pop. 385 - 2 (South), 2175 ac. Pop 230

TIERRA LA VIRGA a tn and com. Spain, Old Castile prov and about 24 m from Valladolid, on a lofty hill. It has a parish church an old priory a courthouse a primary school, a hospital the remains of an ancient castle manufactures of linen and a considerable trade, partly general and partly in agricultural produce. Pop. 3000

TIEPENHUT a vil Saxo Westmar circle and S W Bremen, on the Werra with a church, the works, and two mills. Near it are the ruins of the old castle of Kreyenberg. Pop. 1237

TIEFHARTMANNESDORF or HARTENDORF a vil Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and S W Silesia. It contains a castle and a R. Catholic church and has manufactures of damask linens, and a saw and several other mills P 1158

TIEGENHOF a market to W Prussia, gov and 34 m S. E. Danzig on the Tige, with a handsome church, manufactures of linen and dye-works Pop. 1747

TIFLA, or TIFLIS, a tn Holland prov Gelderland, 19 m S. W. Arnhem r bank Waal. It has a town-hall, weigh-house barracks, and storehouse a large open square called the Market, and five other market-places including pig, corn, cattle, and fish markets two Calvinistic churches, a Reformed and a R. Catholic church, town a charity-school and numerous other schools orphan hospital, deaf and dumb institution, natural history society, &c. It likewise possesses an outer and an inner harbour and carries on a considerable trade in grain, more especially cherries, in fowls grain, and potatoes. Pop. 4915

TIEL, TIELER, or TIEL, a river, Switzerland, which carries the waters of the Lake of Neuchâtel into Lake Biél or Bièvre and thence into the Aar total course, and into of Lake Biél, 19 m, navigable throughout The Oche is likewise sometimes comprehended under this name.

TIEMBLEO (It.) a tn. Spain, Castile, prov and 35 m from Avila with a church, a courthouse, a school, flour-mills, and some transit trade. Pop. 1508

TIEN-AN, or TIAN-AN a city and port, China, S. coast, prov Kwangtung, lat. (astronomical) 22° 24' N. lon. 111° 22' E. (c.) It is of considerable extent, and is walled round, but can be approached only in boats at high-water through creeks that intersect the extensive flat situated between it and the anchorage, which is rocky and secure. It is the principal place on the S. coast of China where salt is produced, and several hundred junks are employed in transporting it to Canton.

TIEN-AN, or TIAN-AN a city China. See TIAN-AN

TIENE or TUNNA, a market in kind of Italy, gov Venetia, prov and 18 m. N. N. W. Verona. with a court of justice, a church, numerous churches, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth and several silk-mills Pop. 8900

TIERRA BONIA an isl Caribbean Sea, N W coast, Venezuela, opposite the harbour of Carthagena

TIERRA DEL-FUEGO Land of Fire, Portuguese, Terra-do-Fogo French Terra-de-Fogo, German Feuerland a large group of isles, at the S extremity of S. America between lat. 52° 40' and 56° N. and lon. 53° 40' and 75° W. On the N it is separated from the mainland of America by the long and wide Strait of Magellan, while its other sides are washed by three great oceans—the Atlantic on the E. Pacific on the W. and Antarctic on the S. Besides numerous small islands, of which that of Cape Horn at its S extremity may be mentioned as one of the most remarkable it consists of one very large island Eastern Tierra-del-Fuego or King Charles South Land, measuring E. to W., near its S shore, 500 m., with a breadth N to S. of 300 m. and of four much smaller but still very considerable islands—Navarino and Hecate on the S separated from Eastern Tierra-del-Fuego by Beagle Channel and Clarence and Land of Desolation on the W. The whole of the islands are penetrated deeply by arms of the sea, which give them the most irregular shapes and are almost entirely composed of mountains of clay-salts, greenstone, and granite. These mountains are either covered with perpetual ice and snow—which has here its limit at about 4000 ft., while many of their summits exceed 5000 ft., and Mount Fitz-Rois in the E., supposed to be the culminating point, is estimated at 7000 ft. or are clothed with stunted forests, chiefly of beech, growing out of a swampy peat, apparently almost the only kind of soil here and which, beyond 1000 ft. to 1500 ft. where the trees cease to grow, becomes covered with minute alpine plants. The term Land of Desolation, which Cook applied to the large W. island, is strictly applicable to the whole group and yet the scenery when mountain is seen rising behind mountains with deep intervening valleys, all covered by one thick, dusky mass of forest, is not without a degree of mysterious grandeur. At times, too, magnificent glaciers of a berry like blue, in fine contrast with the white expanse of snow are seen descending from the mountain-sides to the water's-edge. The climate is one of the most wretched which it is possible to imagine—mist, rain, and snow accompanied either with continued storms or violent and sudden gusts of wind, following each other in constant succession. Dublin, in the N hemisphere, is nearly in the same latitude as Port Famine, near the centre of the Strait of Magellan in the S hemisphere the former being in lat. 52° 21' N. and the latter in lat. 52° 55' S. Their respective climates are as follows —

| | Summer Temperatures. | Winter Temperatures. | Influence of Snow and Wind. | Mean of Summer and Winter. |
|-------------|----------------------|----------------------|-----------------------------|----------------------------|
| Dublin | 55°-64° | 38°-48° | 50°-64° | 46°-57° |
| Port Famine | 50°-6° | 33°-43° | 16°-25° | 41°-51° |
| Difference | 5° 54' | 5° 18' | 34°-39' | 7°-50' |

This kind of climate, not more inhospitable to European feelings than ungenial to most European plants of warmer regions is far from being unfavourable to native vegetation; and hence in some places large woody-stemmed trees of fuchsia and urucilla, which in England are treated as tender plants, were seen in full flower not far from the base of a mountain with two-thirds of its height covered with snow, and with the temperature at 36° The only other vegetable production particularly deserving of notice is a globular fungus of a bright yellow colour and the size of a small apple. It adheres in vast numbers to the bark of the peach-trees. When young it is elastic and covered with incisions, but after fertilization shrinking and growing tough, acquires a smollaginous and slightly sweet taste. In this state it is eaten by the natives uncooked, and forms a staple article of food, being with the addition of a few berries of dwarf-arbutus, the only vegetable of which they partake. Another remarkable vegetable product is the sea-weed called Fucus goniatius, which though not confined to this group, is here particularly abundant, forming great aquatic forests, and furnishing the hounds of insatiable shell fish, but for which the race of Fuegians would scarcely continue to exist. The zoology of the group is very scanty. Besides octopuses and phoxes, the only mammals are a bat, three species of mice, the fox, sea-otter, guanaco and deer. Birds, however, particularly sea-fowl, are numerous; and even humming-birds have been seen sipping the sweets of flowers after two or three days of constant rain, snow, and frost during which the thermometer had been at the freezing-point. The natives of the N.E. part of Tierra-del-Fuego resemble the Patagonians in colour, stature, and clothing; those of the S.E. portion are low in stature, ill looking and badly-proportioned. Their colour is that of very old mahogany or rather between dark copper and bronze.

NATIVE OF TIERRA DEL FUEGO.—From Fitz-Roy's Voyage of the Beagle.

The trunk of the body is large in proportion to their cramp and rather crooked limbs. Their rough, coarse, and extremely dirty black hair half hides yet brightens a villanous expression of the worst description of savage features. The women are short, about 4 ft. some inches with bodies also largely out of proportion to their height, and their features especially those of the old, are most repulsive. Their only clothing is a scanty covering of guanaco or seal skin. Their habits are extremely filthy, and their feeding gross and uncleanly, the most offensive substances being eaten in a state of putridity. They are, like many other savages, extraordinary mimics, imitating all sorts of sounds and motions with a marvellous and most amazing fidelity. Their huts are generally found built close to the shore, at the head of some small bay in a secluded spot, and sheltered from the prevailing winds. They are built of boughs or small trees stuck in the earth, and brought together at the top, where they are firmly bound by bark, saddle, and twigs. The usual dimensions of these huts are 7 ft. or 8 ft. in diameter and about 4 ft. or 5 ft. in height. They have an oval hole to creep in at. The fire is built in a small excavation in the middle of the hut. The floor is of clay, which has the appearance of having been well kneaded.

Tierra-del-Fuego was discovered by Magalhães in 1520, and named 'Land of Fire' from the numerous fires he saw on his coast during the night.—(United States Exploring Expedition, Voyage of the Adventure and Beagle, Sumnerville's Physical Geography Jour. Voy. Geo. Soc. &c.)

TILTAR, a river, Spain, rises in New Castile, prov. Avila; flows S.W., enters Estremadura, and joins the Tago near Villaral-de-San-Christo. Total course, 90 m.

TIRTE, or ASTRUM, a river Brazil, rises in the Serra-de-Cubata, prov. São-Paulo, about 30 m. from the sea. Flows N.W. very circuitously in a channel chiefly composed of granite, the rocks of which fill its bed, making its navigation both difficult and dangerous. After a course of about 600 m., it joins 1 bank Parana. Its only effluents of any consequence on the left is the Borocaba. On the right it receives the Capibari, Piracaba, Jacareppira-Mirim, Jacareppira-Açu, or Pipira. Boats proceeding from prov. São-Paulo to Mato-Grosso have to encounter in this river no fewer than 86 cataraets, two of which have each a perpendicular height of about 30 ft.

TIEZI a vil. and com. Ital. Bardina, div. and 16 m. S.R.R. Sassari, in an unhealthy district. It has a trade in corn, cattle, and dairy produce. Pop. 2470.

TIERNO, or BAYRNO (Latin, Tyberna), a river Naples, rises near Bofano, flows first E., then N.W.E., and falls into the Adriatic at the village of Campomarino, total course, 60 m. nowhere navigable.

TIFFIELD par. Eng. Northampton, 2550 sq. P. 154.

TIFFINE, a river, U. States, issues from a lake in state Michigan enters Ohio, flows S., and joins the Maumee, 1 m. W. of Defiance. It is navigable 50 m. for small craft.

TIFLIS, the cap. of Georgia. See TAURUS.

TIGER, an all. E. India, lat. 1° 45' S. lon. 142° 30' E. 1 m. long. E. to W. inhabited by ferocious savages.

TIGLIOLE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Ales sandra, prov. and 7 m. W. W. Ash. Towards the end of last century it was a dependency of the Papal States, and still contains the palace in which the Papal governor used to reside. It has a parish church a communal school and a charitable endowment. Pop. 2468.

TIGUAI h. a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and N.E. Brescia, on the heights which rise to the W. of the Lake of Garda. It has a parish and four auxiliary churches, manufactures of hats and fire-brick, and several mills. P. 1163.

TIGNES, a vil. and com. Sardina, div. Sassari, prov. Terranova, about 12 m. S.E. St. Maria, 1 bank Isola. It is poorly built, but has a considerable trade in cattle, hides, and cheese. Pop. 1077.

TIGRÉ a diet. Abyssinia the limits of which are not well defined, in consequence of the changes of territory which are constantly taking place during the interminable wars of the petty chiefs who govern it and the adjoining district. At present it is understood to lie between lat. 12° and 15° 30' N., and lon. 37° 25' and 40° 15' E. It consists of an elevated plateau, forming the basis of mountain-chains, some of whose summits, rising beyond the snow line are estimated at about 16,000 ft., and intersected by deep ravines and valleys, the largest of which is the bed of the Tacazzu. This river which receives all the drainage—except a portion on the N. which is received by the Mareb—enters the district in the S., and traverses it centrally first in a N. and then in a W. direction. The principal subtributaries of Tigré, each of which appears to have its own chief, are Walaké and Walaké in the W. Wogara, Semien, and Solo in the S. Wodjrat, Adana, Agamia, and Seraw in the E. Siré in the N. and Tigré proper, Teshien, and Emirata towards the centre. The most powerful chief, who claims a kind of supremacy over the others, and partly exercises it, is the chief of Semien. The principal towns are Axum, Adowa, and Antalo.

TIGRÉ, or PIRECKA, a river Ecuador, rises in the E. slope of the Andes, flows S.E., and after a course of about 300 m. joins 1 bank Amazon about 40 m. above the confluence of the Ucayali.

TIGRIS, a river, W. Asia, having its two principal sources in Central Armenia, both of which spring from the S. slope of the Anti-Taurus, near those of the Araxes and Euphrates, being only 15 m. S. from the latter. The general course of the river, though interrupted by numerous flexures, is S.E., passing Diarbekir, Mosul, and Bagdad, and joining the Euphrates at Korna; lat. 32° N.; lon. 47° 15' E., about 100 m. from its embouchure in the Persian Gulf. As Bagdad the Tigris and Euphrates approach within 30 m. of each other, and hold a parallel course for about 80 m., when they diverge, and keep apart from 80 m. to 100 m., till they unite at Kurna. Below Diarbekir the river contains several islands. Its banks are thickly populated and the country about them is only partially cultivated; but the pasture-grounds are rich and well suited for the visits of the nomadic tribes which come occasionally to the river from the neighboring countries. From Mosul to Bagdad a distance of about 180 m., the Tigris may be considered as having an average width of 300 yards, with a current in March of 4½ m. per hour. For a portion of this distance, or about 24 m., the country is highly cultivated on both sides, but between that and Tektut all cultivation nearly ceases, and is but partially found between the latter place and Bagdad. Between Bagdad and Kurna the banks are steep, and overgrown for the most part with brushwood, the resort of lions and other wild animals. A considerable increase of the river takes place during the rains of November; subsequently it decreases, and flows irregularly at intervals. It attains its greatest height between the middle and the end of May when its velocity is 7.88 ft. per second, and the discharge at Bagdad, in the same time, is about 164,105 cubic ft. After this time the river falls, with more or less regularity and inequality till the middle of June. The Tigris is navigable for rafts, at certain seasons, from Diarbekir to Mosul, a distance of about 296 m. Below the latter place it is more or less so throughout the year and the descent to Bagdad is performed with great ease and speed. Large rafts, supported by 200 or even 300 inflated skins, are much in use for the transport of goods. During the flood-season the voyage is performed in three or four days, whereas at another time it requires fourteen days. (See Journal of the Royal Geographical Society, London, on the Geography of the Lower Tigris, Journal of the Royal Geographical Society.)

TIGRIS (LITTLE) a branch of the Tigris. See DIARBKIR. TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TIGRIS, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

bury fort, partly in this and partly in Chedwell parish, was converted into a regular fortification in 1687, and has since received important additions, which make it very formidable, particularly toward the river. Area, 2088 ac. Pop. 619.

TILGHURST, par. Eng. Bucks; 5164 ac. Pop. 5198. TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

TILGHURST, a vil. and town, on the Tigris, on a height in the W. of 30. Palms with a church, a school, some manufactures of coarse linen, and some trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 2246.

appearance, lat. 18° 4' N. lon. 1° 45' W. It is in the form of a triangle, is surrounded by a wall about 8 m. in perimeter, and consists of a post-up mass of closely-packed buildings, mostly of clay and stone, some two stories high and often with handsome decorated fronts. Kibara, a small town at the junction of the Ocuera with the Jilima or Niger, is considered as its port, and is provided with a large artificial beam for the accommodation of boats, though the stream itself is so shallow as to be navigable on an average for not more than four months. The trade however, not so much by water as by caravans, for which Timbuctoo is the African central station, is a very important one, though less than that of Kano, the merchandise is superior in quality and of greater value. The town and district are governed by a sheikh, but the inhabitant, among whom many factions exist, are very mixed, consisting of the Boura who form the great mass. Arabs of various tribes, Fellahs, and Tuarica, with a small number of Bambaras and Mandingoes.—(Dr Barth's Letters, 1863)

TIMERYOOTTA, a tn. Timbuctoo, N. Circars, 77 m. W by N Guntur, lat. 16° 55' N, lon. 79° 25' E

TIMIMOUN, a tn. N Africa, Sahara, cap. dist. Gornara, oasis of Touat, lat. 37° 50' N, lon. 1° 40' E. It occupies a large space, consisting of 500 to 600 houses, separated from each other by gardens. It is surrounded by a loopholed wall of mud and a ditch, and defended by a fortress seated on a height near its centre. It is one of the great centres of the traffic of the Sahara. Its principal offices are three mosques; it nominally belongs to the Emperor of Morocco, but has lately declared itself independent.

TIMOGUE, par Irel Queen's co 2401 ac Pop 243
TIMOK [anc. Timocia] a river European Turkey forms part of the boundary between Bulgaria and Serbia, and joins the Danube, 18 m. N N W Witten after a N E course of about 100 m.

TIMOLEAGUE, a small tn. and par Ireland, co. Wick, 21 m. S S W Cork, on the S side and near the head of the inlet running in from Courtmacsherry Bay. Sloops can approach the town, and lighters sail up the narrow tide river beyond it. Area of par 2873 ac. Pop 1000 TIMOLIN par and in Irel Killarney 2290 ac. P 1265.

TIMOOLE, par Irel. Meath 1083 ac. Pop 63

TIMOR, a large isl. Indian Archipelago separated on the W from Isl. Ombai by Ombai Strait washed N by the Banda Sea, and S by the Indian Ocean. lat. (S. point) 10° 24' S, lon. 125° 30' E (N). It lies N E and S W with a length of about 300 m., and a breadth of 40 m. It is tolerably regularly formed with several bays, and the N.E. and S.W. extremities are in promontories. It is surrounded by banks and rocks; but has two safe harbours—Coampang on the S. the head-quarters of the Dutch and Dellai on the N. the chief place of the small portion still held by the Portuguese. In the N is a lofty mountain (6000 ft) and high mountains traverse the whole island. These hills are chiefly formed of limestone, with red shale in the lower parts, also clay-slate, gneiss, mica, and porphyry; they are generally bare and rocky districts of timber and underwood, though in some places there are forests of considerable extent. Iron, gold and copper are found. Everywhere are traces of volcanic origin, and the whole island has frequently suffered from earthquakes. The streams are small they mostly dry up in summer and their water is unwholesome being apt to produce diarrhoea. Various kinds of bamboo, maize, toddy-palm, cotton, tobacco, sweet-potatoes, indigo, bread-fruits, pine-apples, melons, coconuts, eggs, mango, lemons, papaya, sandal-wood, &c. are among the most valuable vegetable products of this island but the vegetation generally is poorer and less vigorous than that of the other islands of the archipelago, and many places are valueless and sterile. The domestic animals are buffaloes, oxen, horses, sheep, pigs and fowls; and in the woods are deer and a great many apes. Among birds, the rhinoceros-bird, the lorikee, and the cockatoo are to be remarked. The animals found on the N W side of the central mountain-chain resemble those of the rest of the archipelago, but those on the S.E. are strongly allied to those of Australia. Near the river-mouths crocodiles abound, and on the shorter various kinds of turtles are found. Dangerous serpents and scorpions are numerous, and insects of the most various kind, and a sort of small bee are everywhere. Pearl-oysters are obtained on the coast, on the reefs trepang is caught, and they yield besides oil-copra, madrepore, &c. and above all a kind of coral called laka, much prized by the Japanese. The Timorese eat the young bees and the honey but prepare the wax very ably and export it thus obtained on the N coast being the best. Agriculture is little attended to. The females, as in other parts of the archipelago, weave what cloth is required, and the men engage in no sort of handicraft except the constructing of prows, the hammering of gold-plains, and the casting of rings and bells for decorating their houses. The natives are divided into the Timorese, inhabiting the W part of the island, originally from Occum and subject to the Dutch the Balones, inhabiting the E coast, originally from Gillofo, and subject to the Portuguese and the independent tribes of the interior. The natives are good marksmen and, armed with sword and pike, they hunt the wild buffaloes, horses, deer, and swine, but, though placed in the middle of the ocean, they neglect the fishing. Only princes are permitted to have more than one wife, for whom a price in gold or buffaloes is paid to the father. Small-pox visits the island every 10 or 12 years and depopulation is endemic. The trade, chiefly in the hands of Chinese, is carried on mostly through Coampang (see also) P 200,000.—(Van der Aa Timorboek, Coup-d'oeil)

TIMOR-LAUT one of the Timor Islands Indian Archipelago lat. (S. point) 8° 27' S, lon. 131° 7' E. It is about 65 m. long by 25 m. to 30 m. broad. The natives have an infamous notoriety for treachery and cruelty.

TIMSBURY, two parns Eng.—1 Harrow, 1411 ac. Pop. 184 —2 Somerset 1148 ac. Pop. 1689

TIMWORTH par Eng. Suffolk 1858 ac. Pop. 241

TINACORO or VOLICARO Islands an uninhabited isl. S. Pacific, lat. 10° 23' N, lon. 165° 49' E (N). It consists of a cone about 2000 ft. high falling towards the sea by a rapid slope. The lower portion about one-third, is covered with a luxuriant vegetation. The upper part is entirely barren. Smoke and flame have been seen issuing from its summit and on its S.W. side incandescent lava has been observed flowing down.

TINAJO, a tn. in Canaries, isl. Lanzarote. It consists chiefly of scattered houses, with a church and a primary school 1 op. 1884

TINCHERRAY [anc. Tenecherayen], a tn. in France, dep. Orne, 45 m. N W Alencon with a court of commerce, a consulting chamber of manufacturers and manufacturers of nails and ironware, kitchen-sinks, woollen and cotton stuffs, paper and leather. Under its walls, in 1116, Robert of Normandy was defeated by his brother Henry. 1 op. 1916.

TINCLETON, par Eng. Dorset 885 ac. Pop. 178

TINDARO, a promontory, N coast of Sicily 4 m. N E. Patti. A little S.E. of it is a church standing among the ruins of the ancient Tyndaris, the walls of which, as well as the theatre, can still be traced.

TINDELHILL, one of the mountain-groups of Norway between the hills Brattberg and Bukkord lat. 63° N, lon. 6° E, connected with the Hardanger field on the N W and stretching S E for above 40 m. The loftiest summits are the Gousta-field, 6675 ft, and the Hammer-field 5285 ft.

TINLO (anc. Tinnio) a tn. Spain, Asturias prov. and about 32 m. W S W Oviedo, on a mountain-slope above a bank Narcea with a church a handsome townhouse, many features of woollen and then goods, and flour-mills. P 1362

TING-CHAO, two cities, China.—1 Prov. Shantung cap. dep. on the Yellow Sea with a commodious harbour lat. 37° 48' N, lon. 120° 50' E. 2 Fokien cap. dep. 140 m. N W Amoy.

TING HAE, a tn. China, prov. Cheukung, cap. of ul. Chu men on the S side of the island about 3 m. from the beach, lat. (Joss-house Hill) 30° 0' 24" N, lon. 123° 6' 24" E. It is of an irregular pentagonal form with a surrounding wall 8 m. in circuit, having four gates. One-third of the space inclosed has no habitations. The wall is 18 ft. high, and 16 ft. thick surmounted by a parapet 14 ft. 6 in. high, and 2 ft. wide. A canal 32 ft. wide and 8 ft. deep nearly encloses the city, and enters it near the E gate. Several canals traverse the city, and are a real nuisance. The chief street runs direct between the N and S. gates, the others are more lateral. With exception of two temples, dedicated to ancestors and to the guardian god of the city, the buildings are of an inferior description those inhabited by the lower classes being mere hovels. Some carving and cabinet-making are carried on, and there is a considerable trade. The islands are bounded by a narrow peninsula by the British on the 5th July 1844, and a second time in September same year. Pop. (1840), 25,000 to 30,000, (1846), 35,000.

TINGAN, a tu. China, lat. Hainan, cap. dist., r bank Lamon-king, about 20 m. S. Kiong-chou. It is large, surrounded by walls, and has straight and well-paved streets.

TINGEWICK par Eng. Buckingham. 2290 ac. P. 377

TINGRETH, par Eng. Bedford 946 ac. Pop. 186.

TINGWALL, WENTZUMA, and WREDSALA, par Scot. Shetland 27 ac. Pop. 2374.

TINHOA, tu lat. China Sea, lat. 18° 40' N. lon. 110° 23' E. formed by two hills extending N and S, separated by a low gap, or narrow neck of land, overgrown at spring-tides with steep cliffs fringing the sea. Good shelter may be found on the W side against all winds, excepting the S. or S W about 15 m. N.N.E. is a small island of middling height, called Pala Tinhoa.

TINIAN or Donna Vista one of the Ladrone isle. lat. 14° 58' N. lon. 150° 37' E. (p. 1), 2 m. long and 4½ m. broad celebrated for its fertility, and the number of its cattle. When visited by Freycinet in 1819, it had only 20 inhabitants.

TINISCHT, or TINISCHT, a tu. Bohoma, circle and 17 m. R.S.E. Kianggrat, r bank Adior, with a church, townhouse, school some manufactures of linen, a saw and other mills. Pop. 1688

TINNEVELLY, a district, British India, S. extremity of the Indian peninsula, presid. Madras lat. 8° to 10° N. lon. 77° to 78° 30' E. bounded, N by the dist. Madras, E. and S. by the Gulf of Mannar and W by a wooded range of hills separating it from Travancore area 5700 sq. m. The surface is mostly level or interspersed with hills of no great elevation. On the banks of the Tattavin, Viperan, and other rivers, are many paddy fields, and other tracts well furnished with tanks, yield large quantities of rice. Cotton is produced to the lowlands, and dry grass in the uplands, which are pretty well cultivated. In the S. the country is more sandy and bare than elsewhere, and abounds with palm groves. In the E. are several waste tracts and salt marshes. The climate is more equable than might have been expected from the latitude, rain falls here during both seasons, and some remarkable passes in the W. hills admit cool breezes, while the rest of the E. coast of India is parched with heat. In the Arun gale Pass which presents highly picturesque scenery is a hospital, a sanatorium greatly resorted to by invalid Europeans of the presidency. Before Ceylon belonged to the British successful attempts were made to establish cinnamon and other spice plantations in the district, but these are now mostly abandoned. Nitre is exported and some cottons, muslin fabrics, silks and ironwares are manufactured, chiefly at Palanokota, the head military station. Tinnevely is assessed under the native village system, and its inhabitants appear to be more prosperous than in some of the neighbouring parts of India. Most of the people are Hindoos, who preserve their customs in great purity, Mahomedans are few. Along the coast, from Talloir to Cape Comorin, are numerous fishing-villages, inhabited by E. Catholics. Chief towns—Tinnevely Palanokota, Shermadev, and Manapur—

TINNEVELLY the capital, and residence of the district judge and collector 50 m. N.N.E. Cape Comorin and nearly adjoining Palanokota on the W. side, borders a branch of the Tattavin river on the E. It is large, populous, and surrounded on three sides by paddy-fields, and on the W by a dry and rocky height. Pop. (dist.) 1,065,423.—(Part. Reg., 1832, Madras New Almanac, 1839) &c.

TINNYE, a vil. Hungary, co. and N.W. 1 each with a Protestant and E. Catholic church. Pop. 1521

TINOS (san. Tinos) an isl. Lævan Archipelago one of the Cyclades, immediately S.E. Andros, from which it is separated by a narrow channel called the Bocea-Florea, greatest length, N.W. to S.E. about 15 m., mean breadth, 4 m. It is one of the most agreeable and fertile of the Cyclades, is well watered by springs, has an excellent climate, and produces much barley, silk, wine, figs, oranges, and honey. The domestic animals are numerous, and consist of cattle, mules, asses, sheep, and goats. The mountains furnish fine marble of various colours, and silver mines were once worked to some extent. The manufacture consists chiefly of silk stockings and gloves; and the trade in wine, oil, and brandy is extensive. The inhabitants are very industrious, but extremely superstitious. They have had a Greek metropolit, and a R. Catholic bishop; and since 1820, have held a metropolit to which numerous pilgrimages are made. Pop. 25,000.

TINTAGEL, par Eng. Cornwall; 4856 ac. Pop. 1684.

TINTERN, par Irel. Wexford; 6883 ac. Pop. 2123.

TINTERN-PARVA par Eng. Monmouth 337 ac. P. 370

TINTIGNY, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Luxembourg, 16 m. W. Arlon; with manufactures of earthenware, a flour-mill, and tinsmiths. Pop. 1363.

TINTO (san. Tinto) a river Spain, Andalusia, rises in prov. Huelva flows S.E. and S.W., and falls into the Atlantic between Enliva and Palos; total course, 65 m. It derives its name Tinto from the green colour imparted to one of its head-streams by the copper-mines which it drains.

TINTO, or BLACK a river Central America, which rises in a mountainous district, flows N.N.E. and falls into the Bay of Honduras. Its course, through regions almost entirely occupied by unrelieved Indians, has been very imperfectly explored, but is supposed to exceed 180 m.

TINTWISLE a vil and township, Bedford, co. Chester on an acclivity above the Elbow, r E.S.E. Manchester with a church in the early English style, surmounted by a tower. Independent and Calvinistic Methodist chapels, manufactures of cotton and woollen goods, stout-quarries, and two annual fairs. Pop. 3037

TINWALD and TRAILLALL par Scot. Dumfriess; 6 m. by 4 m. Pop. 1080.

TINWELL, par Eng. Rutland 1651 ac. Pop. 287

TIOBERN an isl. in the Lough, off W. coast, Dublin, lin. Gottenburg, S. of Orest, and about 4 m. N. Mostard, greatest length about 6 m. greatest breadth, 3 m. It is very irregular in shape, and deeply indented by numerous creeks, two of which nearly cut across it, and are only separated by a narrow isthmus. It has some good natural harbours.

TIOGA a river, U. States, rises in the Alleghany Mountains, on N. frontiers of Pennsylvania, enters the state of New York flows E.S.E. re-enters Pennsylvania, and after a course of 90 m. of which 60 m. of which is navigable by barges, joins r bank Susquehanna.

TIOBE, a vil. Tyrol, circle Bozendor, cap. Dist. on the Sarca with court of justice and a Roman church. P. 1000

TIOGNE an isl. off N.W. coast, Norway lat. 65° 50' N. lon. 13° 40' E. Unlike most of the islands in the vicinity its surface is almost unnumbered with rocks, and forms truly a plain in striking contrast with the lofty precipices which rise at a short distance from it. It has a fertile soil, a parish church, and a fine manor-house.

TIPPERAH (and BULDAH), a dist. or collectorate, Hindoostan, in the E. part of presid. Bengal, lat. 25° to 24° 30' N. lon. 90° to 95° E. bounded, W by the Brainspore, separating it from the dist. of Dinajpur, S. Chittagong, N. Bihul and Myrannagah and E. by a Khym hill-country formerly tributary to the Burmese area, 4850 sq. m. It is watered by the Goomtee and other streams, all of which have more or less a W. course. Forests are extensive, and are inhabited by elephants of very large size. Principal products are rice, cotton, and betel-nut. Cotton goods were formerly made here in large quantities for exportation, but the manufacture has declined. Salt is made in the S., where the district touches the Bay of Bengal. Principal towns—Comilla and Oudypore. This district was acquired by the British in 1785. Pop. 1,408,960.—(Bengal and Agra Gaz. 1841 Rep. Tyron. Ser. of India, 1841) &c.

TIPITAPA, a river Central America, state Nicaragua, connecting Lake Leon with the Lake of Nicaragua. A vil large of the same name lies on its r bank.

TIPPER, par Irel. Kildare; 3388 ac. Pop. 546

TIPPERARY an island co. Ireland, prov. Munster, bounded, N by Galway and King's co. E by King's, Queen's, and Kilkenny, S. by Wexford, W. Cork, Limerick, Clare, and Galway, greatest length, N. to S. 7½ m. breadth, 40 m. area, 1695 sq. m., or 1,061,781 ac., of which 843,897 ac. are arable. The principal mountain-groups are the Knockma-down, in the S.W. part of the county, the Galtee, a short range between the Suir and the borders of Limerick; and the Keppel and Devil's Bit Mountains, forming a continuous range in the N. part of the county, and extending completely across it from the Shannon to King's co. The Knockmalodown Mountains attain an elevation of 1700 ft. above sea-level, and the Galtees of 3000 ft., the latter are composed wholly of sandstone, and are in many parts, particularly on the N. side, extremely precipitous. The soil of the level country is a rich calcareous loam, of extraordinary fertility particularly in the tract called the Golden Vale, extending from Limerick to the confines of Kilkenny, and in another similar tract in the Ormond baronies. The soil is clay-slate in the mountain-districts, and limestone in the more level portions, which form part of the great central plain of Ireland, and include some branches of the Bogs of Allen. The mineral productions are coal, copper, and lead and slates of a good quality are extensively raised near Killoe. Grazing was formerly and still is, the principal employment. The native Irish breed of long-horned cattle attain to a large size, and are found in the greatest perfection in this county. Dairies are numerous, affording an export of large quantities of butter. In 1851, wheat occupied 55,110 ac. oats, 98,088 ac. barley, here, and rye, 22,764 ac., potatoes, 48,348 ac., and turnips, 80,303 ac. Flour and meal are extensively manufactured and exported. The woollen trade, which flourished in the S. part, is now in decay. Tipperary is the most demoralised county in Ireland, and has long been disgraced by every sort of violence and outrage. It contains 12 baronies, and 198 parishes and returns two members to Parliament for the county. Principal towns—Coomel, Carrick-on-Ham, Nenagh, Thurles, Cashel, Tipperary, and Roscrea. Pop. (1841), 485,553; (1851), 351,487.

TIPPERARY, a market in Ireland, cap. above co., on a gentle slope towards the small river Avon, 98 m. N W Dublin, with which it is connected by railway. It consists of one principal and several smaller streets, all dirty and ill kept, houses of stone, but with few exceptions badly built and inconvenient. It has a handsome parish church a R Catholic chapel, and two Dissenting places of worship, a neat market-house, a savings bank, and an endowed and other two schools. The chief trade of the town is in butter, of which large quantities are sold in the season. Area of par. 4363 ac. Pop. 7601 Pop. (1841) 485,553. (Local Correspondent)

TIPPERKERRY, par. Ireland 8769 ac. P. 519
TIPFON, or AMARFON, a vil. and par. England, co. Stafford, on the N. Paragon canal, 5 m. N Dudley in the centre of rich mining district. It has sprung up rapidly in recent times, and owes its prosperity to the numerous coal and iron works established in its vicinity. It has a parish and a dissenting church, and Independent, Baptist, Primitive Methodist, and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and several national schools. Area of par. 3020 ac. Pop. 34,873

TIPUAN, a vil. Bolivia, near La Paz, on a stream of its own name. It consists of 160 houses, formed of the trunks of palm-trees, and is a dirty, unhealthy place. It rose in consequence of important mines in its vicinity, which being wrought out, the place has sunk into obscurity.—(Bull. Soc. Geo., 1853)

TIFUINI a river, Ecuador, which rises about lat. 1° 30' S. lat. 78° 30' W. flows E., and joins the bank Napo after a course of about 80 m.

TIEAJANA (San Bartolomé de), or TUTTE, a m. Canarias, in Gran Canaria, with a primary school, a church, and in the vicinity two hermitages, six flour-mills, and many flocks of palm-trees, with olive and pine-trees, are sold in Las Palmas. Pop. 3405.

TIRAN, an isl. Red Sea, entrance to the Gulf of Akaba, the most W. of the Pirate Islands, surrounded with sandbanks.

TIRANA, or TERRAN, a m. European Turkey, Albania. 126 m. N W Janina, with a fort outside the walls.

TIRANASCRAIGH, par. Ireland Galway 5698 ac. P. 719

TIRANO an Italy Lombardy prov. and 18 m. E by N Sondrio, cap. dist. in the Valtellina, on the Adda. It is a handsome place with a number of elegant mansions, a superior court of justice, a magnificent park and an auxiliary church, a monastery of the Virgin which attracts numerous pilgrims, and a fair market. Pop. 4928.

TIRAPOL, or TIRAPOL, a m. Russia, gov. Kherson, cap. circle, l. bank Dniester, in which there are here several finely wooded islands, 55 m. N W Odessa. It consists of regularly-built houses and straight and spacious streets with two churches, and some general trade. Pop. (1850), 5378

Vol. II

TIREBOLI, a seaport in Asiatic Turkey, prob. and 45 m. W Trebizond l. bank and at the mouth of the Karshoot or Tirkaboli-an, in the Black Sea. lat. 41° 0' N., lon. 38° 50' E. It is embosomed in wooded hills overlooking the sea, and has a ruined castle, several mosques, a bath, and a Greek church.

TIREE, an isl. Scotland, co. Argyll, one of the Inner Hebrides, 15 m. W. of Mull lat. (28. and) 56° 36' N., lon. 6° 57' W., about 13 m. long, and 3 m. to 6 m. broad. It is generally low and even, coarse flat and sandy; soil various, for the greater part light and sandy in some places a tenacious clay in others a deep rich loam. Nearly in the centre of the island is a plain of upwards of 1500 ac., affording rich semi-marshy pastures. The rocks are generally of whinstone, granite, and primitive limestone. Marble, both white and of a variegated colour is found. There are two Established churches on the island a Free church, and several Dissenting places of worship. Pop. 5709

TIREE and Corra, par. Scot. Argyll, 12 m. by 4 m. Pop. 5683.

TIRGOCHIL, a m. Walachia, l. bank Schyl 145 m. W N W Bucharest, on the road to Transylvania by the Valcea.

TIRHOOT, a dist. Hindoostan, presid. Bengal, prov. Behar, lat. 25° to 26° 40' N. lon. 85° to 87° E. stretching from Nepal on the N. to the Ganges in the S., and bounded W. by the dist. Saran, E. by Patna and S.E. by Bhagalpur, great length, 126 m., breadth, 80 m. area, 7400 sq. m. The Ganges forms a part of the W. boundary, and like all the other rivers, has a E. course to the Ganges. The surface is undulating, beautifully wooded, and in many places very picturesque; the climate is comparatively cool, and much more healthy to Europeans than to natives except in the jungles and swampy tracts termed the terras, on the Nepal frontier. This is one of the principal districts in India for the culture of indigo, rice, sugar, tobacco, maize, wheat, and other grains, cotton, and numerous fruits and other vegetable products, are raised, soda and nitre effluoresce on the soil in great quantities. About one-eighth only of the inhabitants are Mahomedans, the rest being chiefly Hindoos. Cotton, hempen, and woollen fabrics, combs, and pottery are manufactured. Principal towns—Mouharroop (the capital) and Darbhanga. Pop. 2,400,000.—(Thames Survey of India, Bengal and Argyll, 1851, &c.)
TIRIOLO, a m. Naples, prov. Calabria Ultra I. dist. and N W Catanzaro, between the Cornali and the Lamata with two parish churches and a convent.

TIRLEMONT (Flemish, Thames, Latin, Thema) a m. Belgium, prov. Flanders on the Grande Gette, and the railway from Louvain to Liège 20 m. E. Brussels. It is surrounded by walls, which are above 4 m. in circuit, but a large part of the space enclosed by them is occupied by gardens. It is entered by six gates and has generally well laid out streets, several squares, particularly that of the market, near the centre of the town in which are the townhouse, a modern edifice and the Gothic church of Notre Dame, founded in the end of the 13th century and rebuilt in the 15th century. On the top of a little hill stands the parish church of St. Germain, with a Romanesque tower. There are also an hospital and asylum for the aged, and excellent cavalry-barracks. Tirlemont possesses a college, an academy of design, an annual and private schools, a reading and a musical society, an orphan school and several religious confraternities; has manufactures of woollen stuffs and blankets, flannel and hosiery, salt, best-rope, sugar, soap, leather; also malt oil and flour mills, gin distilleries, and breweries, in which an estimated white beer is made and a trade in corn, wool, horse-cattle, and swine, for which seven annual fairs are held. Pop. 8322

TIRLEY par. Eng. Gloucester 1850 ac. Pop. 538

TIRNOVA TIRNOVA, or TIRNOVA, a m. European Turkey Bulgaria, 76 m. W. by S. Shumla, on the Janna, enclosed by a wall. It has numerous mosques, churches, and synagogues, and is the see of a Greek bishop. Pop. 12,000
TIRSCHENREUTH, a m. Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, on the Rh. 34 m. E. Ebernach; with a court of justice, three churches, and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop. 3260.

TIRSI, or OMIRSI (ann. 2397), the largest river in Isl. Sardina. It rises in div. Sassari, prov. Ozieri, flows E. W., receiving numerous affluents, of which the largest is the Messeri, and after a course of about 70 m., falls into the gulf about 8 m. below the town of Orleans. It becomes formidable near its mouth in very dry seasons, but in winter often causes great damage by its inundations, from which large tracts are protected by means of expensive embankments.

125

TIBARAY par Irel. King's co. 7210 ac. Pop. 1570.
TIBAXON, par Irel. Cork; 1847 ac. Pop. 364.

TIBBURY, two par. Eng. Wilt. including Wotton, area 7835 ac.;—1, (East) P 945.—2, (West) P 980

TIBBURY, a vill. and township, U. States, Massachusetts, occupying the central part of Marble's Vineyard. P. 1180.

TIBSCHNOWITZ, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 13 m. N.W. Brünn, l. bank Schwarzw. with a court of justice, a parish church; manufactures of woollen cloth, and a trade in wool. Pop. 1699

TISCOFFIN, par Irel. Kilkenny, 4709 ac. P. 1122
TISARA par Irel. Roscommon; 8483 ac. Pop. 2081

TISBINGTON, par Eng. Derby, 2816 ac. Pop. 844.
TISTED two par. Eng. Hants;—1 (East) 2602 ac.

Pop. 228.—2, (West) P 368
TITCHBORN, par Eng. Hants 2060 ac. P. 878.

TITCHFIELD, a tn. and par. England, Hampshire, pleasantly situated in a valley on the A. line, about 1½ m. W. of the Gouport and Portsmouth branch of the Southampton railway, and 8 m. S.E. Southampton. It is well built and has a handsome parish church, with some fine monuments; an Independent chapel, national schools; manufactures of bricks and pavement, several breweries and corn-mills, and a weekly corn-market. On the site, and from the materials of an abbey which existed in its vicinity, a mansion-house was erected, in which Charles I. concealed himself after his flight from Hampton Court. The marriage of Henry VI with Margaret of Anjou is said to have been celebrated here Area of par. 17,518 ac. Pop. 8986.

TITCHMARESH, par Eng. Northamp.; 4480 ac. P. 806.
TITCHWELL, par Eng. Norfolk; 1037 ac. P. 468.

TITTEL, or TITTEL, a vill. Hungary, co. Bacs, at the confluence of the Tisza and the Danube, 22 m. S.E. Pest. warduin. It is the head-quarters of a Cuirassier battalion, and a steam-boat station; and has a R. Catholic and a Greek church, a German normal and a Greek school, an arsenal, and building-docks. Pop. 1840

TITTESKIN, par Irel. Cork, 1145 ac. Pop. 371
TITICACA, a lake, S. America, on the S. frontier of Peru, and the N.W. frontier of Bolivia, in the centre of an alpine valley between two great northwards of the Andes; lat. 15° 15' to 16° 32' S.; and lon. 68° 40' to 70° W. greatest length, N.W. to S.E. 170 m.; greatest breadth about 70 m. area roughly estimated at about 4000 sq. m.; height above sea-level, 12,850 ft. It is of very regular shape, projecting far into the land in various directions, so as to form large bays, inclosed by projecting peninsulas. Two of these, towards the S., stretch so far across the lake, from opposite directions, as to leave only a very narrow channel, and thus divide it into two unequal portions, of which the N. is by far the larger

THE LAKE OF TITICACA.—From a sketch by J. A. A. R.

It contains several islands, of which the largest bears its own name, and lies near the S.W. shore, almost close to a N. projection of one of the peninsulas now mentioned. It contains many ruins, and is celebrated in Peruvian history as the spot where Manco-Capac, the first Inca of the last Peruvian dynasty, miraculously appeared. The depth has not been accurately ascertained. No soundings deeper than 120 fathoms have been taken, but those were near the shore, it is believed that towards the centre the depth is much greater. The chief feeders of the lake are the Amargosa and Lagunillas, both of which enter it on its S. shore. The only outlet is the Desaguadero, which issues from its S. extremity and contains its course S.W. through the great alpine valley between the cordilleras.

TITLEY par Eng. Hereford 1876 ac. Pop. 376.

TITLIS, a mountain-range, Switzerland, con. of several des., on the frontiers of Uri and the Bernese Oberland. It is covered with glaciers, and attains the height of 11,414 ft. above sea-level.

TITO (It) a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, dist. and 7 m. S.W. Potenza, in a low and marshy situation with a very handsome church, and a convent. Pop. 4000.

TITSCHEIN (Wetz), a tn. Moravia, See KROUZECK

TITSEY par Eng. Surrey; 1936 ac. Pop. 154

TITTLESHALL-WITH-GOSWICK, par Eng. Norfolk, 5364 ac. Pop. 618

TITTMONING a tn. Upper Bavaria, cap. dist., on a height above l. bank Isar, 55 m. S. Munich; with two churches, a chapel, a castle, a townhouse, and an infirmary Pop. 1200

TIUMEN, a tn. Astrakhan Russia, gov. and 100 m. S.W. Tobolsk, cap. circle, at the confluence of the Tyumenka with the Tura. Though built almost entirely of wood, it is a handsome thriving place; and has extensive warehouses, several churches, a mosque, a Tartar school; a bazaar and market well supplied with tea, fish, clothing, and domestic utensils of all sorts. A little gold is obtained from the high banks of the river in the vicinity of the town. The inhabitants are chiefly Tatars. Pop. (1849), 14,837

TIVBERO, or TIWBERO (anc. Tiberus), a river Naples rises a little W. N.W. Benevento, prov. Benev. flows first S., then turns N. N.E., and falls, after a course of about 60 m., into the Adriatic, 3 m. S.E.E. Termoli.

TIVERTON, a market tn. and man. and par. bar. England, co. Devon, pleasantly situated, 12 m. N. by E. Exeter, on a height, in an angle formed by the Exe and Lorman, the former of which receives the latter a little below, and is crossed by a handsome stone bridge, leading to a large suburb, called Weston, and on a branch of the Bristol and Exeter railway It consists of several well-formed streets, and houses of respectable appearance; is well paved, lighted, and supplied with water, and has a large and handsome parish church, with a lofty tower, an elegant chapel of ease, in the Grecian style; Independent, Baptist, and Wesleyan chapels a free grammar, blue-coat, national British, and other schools; a spacious market-place, gaol, hall, assembly-rooms, theatre, and bridge, important manufactures of bobbin, forming the staple of the town; two weekly markets, five annual cattle and two general fairs. By the Tiverton branch of the Great Western canal, a good deal of coal and limestone, &c., is im-pered. The borough of Tiverton is governed by a mayor, six aldermen and 15 councillors, and sends two members to Parliament. In the vicinity, on an eminence near the Exe, are the remains of an old castle. Area of par., 17 680 ac. Pop. 11 144.

TIVERTON, a vil and township, U States, Rhode Island, on the E passage of Narragansett Bay, and connected with Rhode Island by a long stone-bridge, 18 m. S E by S Providence. It has extensive manufactures, chiefly of mill-cases, casements, tweeds, thread, and cotton yarn. Some vessels engaged in the fisheries, and a considerable coasting trade. Pop. 4899.

TIVERTHALL, two pars. Eng. Norfolk:—1 (St. Margaret), 1668 ac. P. 355 —3 (St. Mary) 1135 ac. P. 852.

TIVISSA, a tn. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 28 m. W Tarazona with a townhouse, prison, hospital, a parish church, and two families manufactures of oil, was-clothing linen brooms, panpipes and baskets of palm, capers, shoes, and olives, and flour-mills, distilleries, and brick and tile kilns. On September 30, and October 2 and 7 1845, repeated shocks of an earthquake were felt here. Pop. 3787.

TIVOLI [anc. Tivoli] a tn. Papal States, 18 m. E N E Rome, 1 bank Tevere, on a steep hill, about 850 ft. above the sea, commanding a fine view of Rome and its environs. It is the seat of a bishop, and residence of a governor; has steep, narrow, and ill-paved streets, and houses in general poorly built, with a masonry, and some cathedral and some other churches. It is rich in ancient remains among them may be mentioned the temple of the Tiburtina sybil, a beautiful circular building surrounded by Corinthian columns of stooped travertine, and adjoining it the temple of Vesta now converted into a church. One of the chief attractions of Tivoli is a series of fine artificial cascades formed by the Tevere. Neither the trade nor the manufactures are of any consequence. Both the climate and the inhabitants have a bad name. The former is described by a popular distich which says that at all times either rain is falling or wind blowing or the death-bell tolling, and among the latter crimes against the person are very common. Pop. 6323.

TIXALL, par. Eng. Stafford, 2352 ac. P. 531.

TIXOVER, par. Eng. Rutland, 1080 ac. P. 115.

TIZZANA, a tn. and com. Tuscan comp.

Florence, on a hill forming the N base of Mount Albano, about 7 m. from Fiesole. It has a public square of a rectangular form, occupied partly by a church and partly by a townhouse, and a trade in corn, silk, and particularly wine, some of which ranks as the best in Tuscany. Pop. 7714.

TIZZANO (Lat. Tivianum), a vil. and com. duchy and 25 m. S. Parma, near r bank torrent Parma, in a bleak and mountainous district with an old castle, a primary school and two annual cattle-fairs. Many of the inhabitants emigrate for employment. Pop. 2978.

TJANJOR, a tn. Java, cap. prov. Praangur,

55 m. S E Batavia. It is a most place, with straight broad streets, and suffered from an eruption of the volcano Gekok, and from an earthquake in 1834.

TJAYA, a tn. Tibet, 370 m. E by N Lassa lat. 31° 45' N. lon. 97° 45' E.

TJIDAN (Djé) a river Java, prov. Banteng rises at the foot of Mount Pangango, and falls into the Java Sea, after receiving numerous affluents.

TJILATJAP a tn. Java, prov. Banjoemas S. coast 111 m. S W Banteng, on the bay of its name, with a good haven presenting facilities for the shipping of produce. The nat. is formed by the island of Nosses Kambangan on which two forts are erected.

TJIMANOK (Djé) a river, Java, prov. Praangur flows N, and near Cape Indramajoe, joins the Java Sea by two arms. It is of great advantage to the inland navigation of the province, and for sending coffee, &c., to the coast for exportation.

TJIRINGIN a maritime vil. Java, prov. and 80 m. S W Banteng, on the Strait of Sunda. It is the most flourishing place in the province. Inhabitants engaged in fishing and in agriculture. Pop. 1850.

TJÖRN an isl. Sweden. See THORNS.

TLALPAM, or SAN AGUSTIN DE LAS CUYAS, a tn. Mexican Confederation, dep. and about 12 m. from Mexico, cap. dist. It contains a great number of beautiful villas, to which many of the inhabitants of the capital retire during the warm season, and is celebrated for its annual fair, which lasts three days, attracts numerous visitors, and furnishes scenes of gaiety and dissipation seldom equalled elsewhere.

TLALPACHUA (San Pedro y San Pablo), a tn. Mexican Confederation dep. Michoacan, cap. milt. dist. of same name, in a beautiful mountain-region at the foot of the Cerro-del Gallo, 5386 ft. above sea-level. The mines have been almost abandoned, but its inhabitants chiefly Indians and Castles, still exceed 3000.

TLAMATH, a river U States, has its source in a lake of same name in Oregon flows W for some distance across part of California, then N W., traversing a corner of Oregon, and falls into the Pacific.

TLASCALA, a tn. Mexican Confederation, between two mountains on the Atzac or Papagallo, 70 m. E. by S. Mexico. It is famous in Mexican history and was once a place of great importance and though stripped of its ancient grandeur and reduced to small dimensions, is still a handsome town with regular streets and numerous specimens of tasteful architecture, both in its private dwellings and public edifices. Among the latter are the principal church, the town hall bishop's palace, and a Franciscan convent, occupying the site of the chief temples of the ancient Tlascalans. In the town and its vicinity are numerous interesting remains. Pop. about 5000.

TIEMCEN TIEMCEN, or TIEMCEN (anc. Tlemcen, or Tremes Colonae) a tn. Algeria, prov. and 68 m. S W Oran in a commanding position. It is a place of considerable antiquity and has narrow streets, refreshed by numerous fountains. houses generally of one story, built of brick stone, or clay and, lime not being used externally, of a gloomy appearance. The Citadel is an extensive structure of rectangular form and in the neighbourhood are numerous interesting remarks of antiquity. It has manufactures of articles in iron Morocco-leather carpets, and various fabrics in woolen, cotton, and linen and is the seat of considerable trade, being from its vicinity to Morocco and the desert, the natural entrepot of the caravans coming from Fez, the desert furnishing ostrich-feathers, wool, and ivory, in exchange for groceries and manufactured articles. Tiemcen was occupied by the French in 1836 but was evacuated in 1837, in consequence of a treaty between General Bugeaud and Abdel Kader. It was again occupied by the French in 1842. Pop. (1850) 9445. — (Mogador Pittorogues.)

TIEMCEN — From Mouloud, View of the Province of Alger. Ac.

TLUMATECHAU, or TILMACOW, a market in Austria, Moravia, circle Hradisch, near l bank March 6 m. S E. Krasitz with a church and a mill. Pop. 1253.

TMUTARAKAN a tn. Russia. See TAMAN.

TNIALA, a river, Russia, rises in W of gov. Don. Cosacks flows very strongly S. S. E. and after a course of about 120 m., joins r bank Don.

TO-SSEH a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. Pesth, on the Thais, about 9 m. from Buda, with a R Catholic church, a fishery, a flour-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce and cattle. Pop. 1649.

TOBAGO an Isl. British West Indies, Windward group; lat. (N point) 11° 25' N lon. 60° 37' W (a-j) 24 m. N E. Trinidad, 32 m. long, by 12 m. broad. Area, 63,064 sq. m. It is one entire mass of rocks, rising with a steep ascent on the N E and descending gradually towards the S. W., with some small but picturesque valleys intervening. The highest part of the rock is towards the N E. extremely, where it attains an elevation of about 900 ft. The N W part is the least mountainous on the E. It terminates in broken plains and lowlands. It is well watered by rivulets and streams, ranging in the interior and passing over the lowlands to the sea. It has several good harbours along the N coast for vessels of 150 tons, and a few also on the S coast. Tobago is beyond the range of hurricanes, but is extremely unhealthy to Europeans. The produce of the island consists exclusively of sugar molasses, and rum.

Tobago has a local legislative council consisting of a lieutenant-governor a legislative council and a house of assembly of 15 elected members. There are three Episcopal churches and two chapels, five Wesleyan, and two Moravian places of worship, four free or public schools, and five private ones. Tobago was discovered by Columbus in 1496, and was ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763. Principal town, Scarborough, on the S W side of the island, along the sea-shore. P. 13,027

TOBAIRA a tn. Spain, Murcia, prov. and 88 m. S. S. E. Albacete. It has a townhouse an hospital, several primary schools, a parish church with a chapel of ease, a suppressed convent, and a fountain; manufactures of linen, serge, counterpanes and also flour five oil and two falling mills. Near it are a hermitage, and a tonic mineral-spring, with good stone-baths. Pop. 8818.

TOBERCURNY a tn. Ireland. See TOMBACURNY. TOBELI, a vil. and par. Switzerland, co. Thurgau S W. Cantonate, with a R. Catholic church and school, and a house of correction. Pop. 1279.

TOBER par. Irrel. Wicklow, 1428 ac. Pop. 352.

TOBERMORY, a seaport tn. Scotland, co. Argyll, cap. of Mull, at its N E. extremity, on the sound or strait of Mull, lat. 56° 38' N lon. 6° W. It is beautifully situated at the extremity of the inner recess of a deep bay protected from the winds and waves by a low island. The houses stretch along the shore, and are generally well built, and of a neat appearance. There are an Established and a Free church, a school supported by Government, and a school of industry, a distillery and some boat-building yards. The harbour is capacious and easy of access, and has two commodious quays. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in the coasting trade. Tobermory has of late years become a thriving seaport, and is frequented by numerous steamers, and by most of the vessels trading from the W ports of Britain to the N of Europe. It was commenced about 50 years ago, under the auspices of the Society for the Encouragement of the British Fisheries, to whom it still belongs. But its chief dependence is on the steaming of ships navigating the sound, or that have been driven into it by adverse weather. Pop. 1547.

TOBITSCHEAU, or TOBAGAW, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle Olmutz, on a height above r-bank March with two churches, a synagogue, and a castle. Pop. 1916.

TOBLAGEH, a vil. Tyrol, circle Brunnick, dioc. Welsburg; with a church and an almshouse. Pop. 1689.

TOBOL, a river, Siberia, rises in the W slope of the Ural Mountains, gov. Orenburg, on the frontier of Independent Turkey, flows easterly N N E into gov. Tobolsk, and joins I-bank Irish at the town of Tobolsk, after a course of about 550 m. Its chief affluents are the Abaga, on the right; and the Ul, Iset, Tura, and Tarda, on the left.

TOBOLSK a gov. of W Siberia lat. 54° to 73° N lon. 54° to 80° E and bounded N by the Arctic Ocean, E. gov. Yeniseisk and Tomsk, S. Omsk and W gov. Archangel, Perm and Orenburg; greatest length, N to S, about 1400 m. greatest breadth, 900 m. area, 425,460 geo. sq. m. The surface is generally flat, though broken in some places by mountains of granite. On the W frontier the Ural chain separates it from Archangel. From the extent of the government, and the many degrees of latitude over which it extends, the climate necessarily varies much in different localities, and the capabilities of the soil for cultivation present strong contrasts. The N regions are covered with extensive marshes, heath, and stunted trees. In the centre forests of great extent, and often containing magnificent timber, occur, further S, and more especially in the S E the land produces excellent natural pasture and becomes well adapted for cultivation. Even here however, the influence of a very sterile nature are not uncommon. The best tracts prevail along the banks of some of the streams, and yield corn in sufficient abundance not only to supply their own inhabitants, but also those of other less favoured districts of the government. The whole of the government, with a very minute exception, belongs to the basin of the Ob, which drains a greater part of it directly, and is augmented within it by numerous important tributaries, of which the Irish, Islen and Tobol are the most important. There are also many extensive lakes, which, as well as the rivers, are plentifully supplied with fish. Game in the forests abounds, and the hunting of it for the fur employs great numbers of the population. The minerals are understood to be of great value. Manufactures have not made much progress. The only articles deserving of notice are metals, glass, soap, and potash. Distilleries also are numerous. The transit trade carried on between China and the West is of great importance. The inhabitants consist of a mixture of Russians, many of them either exiles or descendants of exiles, Oulaks, Samoyedes, Tungusians, &c. The government is divided into nine circles—Tobolsk (the capital), Bereznik, Jaltorovsk, Islen, Kozgansk, Tark, Tumes, Tukalsk, and Turinsk. Pop. 600,000.

TOBOLSK a tn. W Siberia, cap. of above gov., I-bank Irish at the confluence of the Tobol; lat. 56° 13' N lon. 68° 20' E. It consists of the town proper, situated on an elevated flat, and surrounded by a strong brick wall flanked with towers and bastions and of an extensive suburb, situated on the banks of the river, in a position so low as to be often exposed to inundation. The houses, almost all of wood with the exception of the public edifices, substantially of brick or stone, are in general well built, and have a substantial and often a very handsome appearance. The streets, for the most part spacious, and laid out with much regularity, either parallel to the river or at right angles to it, have generally log-ways either in the middle or at the sides. The public buildings include a cathedral with five roundish cupolas, and a lofty belfry which, rising above the heights in the vicinity of the town, form a conspicuous object at a great distance. 17 other churches, most of them in the Byzantine style, with windowed domes, and a tower at their E extremity, and several of these attached to monastic buildings; the governor's residence, a handsome structure, remarkable alike for its simplicity and its grand elegance; the archbishop's palace, the post-office, on a colonial scale, rendered necessary by the very extensive correspondence of which it is the center in the south-west, situated, with some other public offices, in the large market-place; the bazaar in the same locality, not distant, like almost all the Russian Gasthof-Dvory, of a large quadrangular court, enclosed by rows of shops, standing under a common roof, and well supplied with all kinds of European and Chinese merchandise, the arsenal, barracks, hospital, and poorhouse theatre, ecologistical seminary, central Lencoisian, and other schools. The manufactures, not of much importance, and almost entirely domestic, consist chiefly of linen cloth, silk ribbons, caps lined with swan's-down, and covered with feathers, at once waterproof and ornamental, dresses of reindeer-skin, leather, soap, candles and glass. Tobolsk has a harbor in the Irtysh, which carries on a considerable trade, and presents a very busy scene, particularly in spring, when vast quantities of European merchandise are transported into it. The trade by land, carried on partly by the nomadic tribes, and partly by means of caravans from Bakhara and China, is still more important. It consists chiefly in furs, tea, Chinese silk, both Bohemian and Chinese cotton goods, shams, corn, melle, and fish extensively taken in the Tobol and the Ob. Pop. (1842) 14,248.

TOBOSO (El), a n New Castle prov. and about 50 n from Toledo; with a handsome and richly-decorated church tower, a courthouse, and primary school, manufactures of wool, and a trade in wine, wax, and chocolate. This place has been immortalized by Cervantes, who gives the heroine on whom Don Quixote fixes his affections the name of Dulcinea del Tobo. Pop. 1500.

TOBY'S CREEK, a river in U. States, which is named at Cooperstown, Pennsylvania, by the union of two streams, flows S.W., and joins a bank Allegheny at Foxburg, about 20 n below Franklin after a course of nearly 60 n during a large part of which it is navigated by boats.

TOCANTINS, a n Brazil, prov. and 210 n N.E. Goyas, a bank Bacalhão, here crossed by a handsome bridge. The mines to which it owes its existence were at first remarkably rich, but have long ceased to be productive, though many of the inhabitants still persist in working them; its confine four churches, and a primary school. Some of the inhabitants feed cattle, but they are much annoyed by a wild tribe of Indians called Calopou.

TOCANTINS, a river Brazil, prov. Goyas, formed by the union of the Almas and Maranhão nearly in lat. 14° S. It flows almost due N. receiving the Paranaíba, the Manoel Alves-Mahobre, the Bomma, and the Manoel Alves-Septentrional on the right, and the Taboca and numerous small streams on the left. On reaching the N. confines of Goyas, it makes a large and circuitous bend to the W. till it reaches the town of São-João-de-Ins-Bernis, in lat. 6° S. Here it is joined and doubled in volume by the Araguaya, and flowing almost due N. across prov. Para, and receiving in succession the Sande on the left, and the Mays and Guama on the right, falls into the Para about 70 n S.W. the town of Belém or Para. Its course, under its own proper name, is about 1000 n and at the town of Cometa, where the embouchure commences, its channel is about 8 n wide. The tide ascends to Fort Alcobaca, 800 n from the sea.

TOCAT a n Asiatic Turkey. See TOKAT.

TOKOQ two n N. Anglia—A, a n, prov. Abruzzo-Citra, 16 n W. S.W. Chieti, near a bank Pescara with five convents and a hospital. Pop. 8040—B, a n, prov. Principato-Ultra, N.W. Avellino, at the N. foot of Mount Taburno.

TOCE, TOCCIA, or TOSA a river kind of Italy rises in Mount Griles, in the Helvetic Alps, on the frontiers of the Swiss cant. Ticino; flows S.E. traversing the valleys of Forstmann, Antigorio, and Insoola, and after a course of about 48 n, falls into a small bay of same name on the W. shore of Lake Maggiore, opposite to the Borromean Isles.

TOGHA, a n Spain, Andalusia, prov. and about 20 n from Sevilla. It contains a handsome modern church, and a primary school; and has manufactures of woollens, several oil-mills, and a transit trade in corn. Pop. 1082.

TOGHENHAM, par Eng. Wilts.; 761 ac. Pop. 150.

TOCUTO, a n Venezuela, a bank near the source of river of same name, 85 n N.E. Truxillo, in a fertile and extensive valley in which much wheat is cultivated. It carries on an active trade in wheat and in salt from Coro and has some manufactures of woollen stuffs, the wool of the Tocuto sheep having a high reputation for blankets and bayonets. Pop. 6000.—The river rises in the N.W. declivities of the Paramo-de-Jas-Rosas, about 80 n E. Truxillo, lat. 8° 0' N., lon. 69° 55' W. flows N.N.W. for 90 n, when it somewhat abruptly bends round to the N.E., and finally falls into the Caribbean Sea about 90 n N.W. from the Gulf of Triste. Total course about 200 n, of which 100 n are navigable from its mouth.

TOBBERE, par Eng. Dorset. 284 ac. Pop. 119.

TODDINGTON, an ancient market n, and par Eng. land, co. Bedford. 3 n N. Dunstable houses mostly of antique appearance, and irregularly built. It has a church in the later English style; two Dissenting places of worship, and six almshouses. Scaw plant is made to a considerable extent chiefly by young persons. Area of par 6390 ac. P. 2438.

TODDINGTON, par Eng. Gloucester. 1857 ac. P. 189.

TODENHAM par Eng. Gloucester, 2477 ac. P. 462.

TODI [anc. Thudensis] a n Italy, Umbria, 54 n S. by E. Perugia. It is the seat of bishop, and contains a Gothic cathedral with some fine frescoes, two other churches, and numerous convents and monasteries. Part of the ancient Etruscan walls still remain, and furnish one of the most perfect specimens of the masonry of Etruria. Pope Martin I. was born here, and in the neighbourhood Nomas, general of the Emperor Justinian, defeated and slew Totila, king of the Goths. Pop. 2925.

TÖDIBERG a summit, Swab. Alps. See DÖRMERS.

TODMORDEEN a n England, Yorkshire (W. Riding) in a beautiful and romantic valley, on the Yorkshire and Lancashire railway 19 n N.F. Manchester. It consists of two principal streets, which are well built, well kept, and lighted with gas and has a handsome modern church with a square embattled tower, an ancient church, very ruinous, a Unitarian, an Independent, and two Methodist chapels, national and other schools, a benevolent society, a courthouse and public hall and extensive manufactures of cotton goods, both by hand and power looms. Pop. 7699.

TODMORDEEN, a vill Baden circle Upper Rhine, ball and near St. Gallen with a church. Pop. 1718.

TODTNAU a n Baden, circle 1 n from Rhine, ball and 7 n N.E. Schwanau, in the Schwabwald at the S. foot of the Feldberg, with a church, manufactures of brushes and matches, and a paper and a cotton mill. Pop. 1277.

TODWICK, par Eng. York. 1860 ac. Pop. 660.

TOEBAN, a maritime vill. Java, prov. and 55 n S.E. by R. Rembang. It is large and busy, lies on an excellent bay, and has an active trade in wood and some boat building.

TOEKOKEREMOU a small ill. Indian Archipelago, Carimate Passage, lat. 2° 51' S. lon. 108° 56' 30" E., with a high hill at each end.

TOEM, par Bel. Upperary. 12,278 ac. Pop. 3521.

TOFT, five n para. England—1 Cambridge 1243 ac. Pop. 880—2 (Monks) Norfolk 3288 ac. Pop. 421—3 (near Newton), Lincoln 1293 ac. Pop. 77—4 (Tress), Norfolk, 1184 ac. Pop. 68—5, (West), Norfolk; 2051 ac. P. 191.

TOGGEVBURG, the name given to the long and fertile valley of the Thur in the Swiss cant. St. Gall. It stretches for about 40 n, from Wyl up to the apex of the Thur, and is enclosed by lofty mountains on the N. by the Seina, and on the S. by the peaks of the Kuffner. It was once governed by its own counts and is now subdivided into two districts. It is well peopled by industrious inhabitants, who are chiefly employed in the cotton and muslin manufacture.

TOGYER, a vill Hungary, Hither Thess., co. 1 n corral about 13 n from Marghita, with a Greek church, and a trade in cattle and timber. Pop. 1542.

TOIRANO, a vill. and com. Italy Piedmont div. Genoa, prov. and 5 n V. Albenga, a bank Bascosone with a church and a remarkable scholastic prison. Pop. 1416.

TOIROS, a n and seaport, Brazil, prov. Rio Grande-do-Norte, at the mouth of a small river which falls into the bay of the same name, 15 n N. Natal. It is a well built thriving looking place with a general air of comfort. It contains a church, and a primary school, and carries on a considerable trade in silk, leather, hides, silk-park, and above all, cotton of excellent quality. The Bay of Tokel has an excellent roadstead, in which vessels come in to 4 to 5 fathoms, sheltered both from the S. and E.W. winds. P. (dist.), 4000.

TOKA, a vil Hungary Hither Danube, co. Fench, about 8 m. from Vornear with a Protestant church, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1327.

TOKA, a river, Russia, rises about 50 m. N.W. Orenburg, flows easterly W., and joins r. bank Samara a little above Buzuluk, after a course of 130 m.

TOKA, a to Hlatskootan, prov. Aurmangbad, lat. 19° 25' N. lon. 75° 10' E. on a tongue of land formed by the confluence of the Pura with the Godavary. Though of small extent, and containing only one Hindoo temple, it is a place of considerable religious resort. It has spacious and handsome ghats, descending to the water.

TOKAT, or TOCAT a to. Asiatic Turkey, pash. and 50 m. N.W. Sivas lat. 40° 7' N.; lon. 36° 30' E. It is surrounded on three sides by high limestone-hills, which render the town impregnable, and is commanded by two abrupt and almost perpendicular peaks, consisting of crystalline marble overlying beds of argillaceous schists, some of which are extremely hard and brittle, and break into large slabs, which are used as grave-stones by the Turks. The town itself is mean and dirty, the houses are mostly built of mud-bricks, dried in the sun, and which soon crumble to pieces the streets narrow and filthy and the bazars, with exception of the Rosette, which is a solid stone built edifice are mean and ill supplied. In the centre of the town is a large and handsome Armenian church. There are also several handsome old khans and 15 mosques. There are here an extensive dyeing-establishment, another for printing on cotton, and manufacture of woollen, linen silk, and cotton fabrics, carpets, and copper vessels and also a copper-foundry at which the copper from the mines is refined before being sent to Constantinople. As a commercial mart, the importance of Tokat has passed away, the numerous fine khans are empty and there is little traffic or animation in the streets. The missionary Henry Marten died here, October 18, 1812 on his journey home from India. Pop. about 100,000.

TOKAT — From the S. East Point's View in Spring and Summer.

TOKAY, or THOKA Tokay a to Hungary, Hither Theiss, co. and 27 m. S.W. Zemplin, on a lofty spur above r. bank Bodrog, near its confluence with the Theiss, which is here crossed by a large wooden bridge. It is surrounded by a chain of hills, covered with vineyards, which produce the famous wine bearing its name contains a Protestant, R. Catholic, Greek united, and Greek non-united church, and has several important annual fairs. Cereals and other fine pebbles are found in the neighbourhood. Pop. 6712.

TOKEN Bismarck on Tokelatan, a large group of Isl. Indian Archipelago, the most N.W.; in lat. 6° 15' 30" S. lon. 123° 25' E. They are of moderate elevation, extending nearly N.W. and S.E., their W. sides forming the E. boundary of the channel, on the outside of Isl. Broom. Most of them are uninhabited and cultivated, abounding in coconuts, but they are destitute of sugar-cane.

TOKO-LABO HAKODATE, New Zealand. See COOPER (FOOT)

TOKOLE a vil Hungary, Hither Danube, co. and 8. Pech, on Rindar in island of the Danube. It has a R. Catholic church, an old castle, and a considerable trade in wine and cattle. Pop. 1841.

TOLOSA (KAGY), a vil Hungary Hither Theiss, co. Zemplin, dist. and 24 m. N.W. Tokay, with a Protestant and a Greek church, a bathing-establishment, and several good manor houses. Pop. 8633.

TOLEDO a prov. Spain New Castle, bounded N. by provs. Madrid and Avila, E. Cuenca, S. Ciudad-Real, and W. Gaceros, area, 4215 geo. sq. m. It is encircled by chains of mountains, chiefly belonging to the Crystalline cordillera and the masses of Guadalupe, and for the most part arid, plain, and with but slight vegetation divided by deep gorges and sombre valleys, which are difficult of access and cultivation and have little communication with one another those, however on the S. called Montes-de-Toledo, have their slopes and skirts covered with trees and plants, forming immense groves and tangled thickets. In the centre of the province are extensive plains, with a sandy and calcareous soil, destitute of trees but fertile and capable of growing all sorts of plants. The province is divided into two nearly equal parts by the Tago, and is watered by many of its tributaries—the Jarama, Guadarrama, Alberche, and Tietar, on its right bank and the Algodor, Guajarray, Tormos, Zedena, Pusa, Sangrera, Gredos, and others on the left. The Gignala also, with its tributaries the Manzanares and Amarguillo flow through it towards the Guadalupe. Besides the cereals, its productions comprise lentils, peas, kidney beans, vetches, potatoes, chestnuts, barilla, melons, lemons, and oranges, amies, quinces, saffron, silk, flax, searbo, oil and wine it manufactures, however, but a small number of sheep and goats, and still fewer oxen and horses and there are no horned cattle except those employed in tillage. This province is particularly rich in metallic veins, producing gold, silver, lead, iron, copper, quicksilver, and tin, stanniferous alum, blamish, coal, ochre and graphite are also met with. It was once celebrated for its manufactures, which have now sunk to comparative insignificance and consist chiefly of the silk stuffs and galleons of Talavera and Toledo, ordinary woollen stuffs, cordwain, soap, salineta, swords, &c. Almost all the products of the soil are required for home consumption, so that the exports are limited to the manufactures of Talavera, and that too in small quantity. The number attending school in this province does not exceed five per cent. of the population. Pop. 330,000.

TOLEDO [anc. Toletum], a city Spain, cap. above prov., and once the cap. of the kingdom, 67 m. W. A.W. Madrid; on a high, rocky site, 2400 ft. above sea-level, surrounded E. S. and W. by the Tago, which unites it in the form of a horse-shoe. It is encompassed by two walls, originally Roman, but repeatedly repaired and enlarged by the Goths, Moors, and Spaniards. There are two bridges over the river at the extremities of the horse-shoe the height of both is about 100 ft. One of these leads to the gates of the city, which are defended by towers on each side and give entrance to a kind of esplanade, in which are two other gates, one leading to the Zocodero—a name familiar to the readers of Don Quixote and Lazarillo de Tormes—and the other to the slower. Altogether Toledo has nine gates, some of which are fine specimens of Moorish architecture. Nothing can be more imposing than the view of the city when seen from afar; but within, decay is everywhere visible. The streets are steep and tortuous and though the town is deficient in water, it is clean. The houses, generally three or four stories high, are massive and spacious structures in the Moorish style, and each family has its own separate dwelling. Among the grand structures of this most picturesque old city towers the cathedral, in its centre, with multitudinous churches and convents, many now silent as the tombs, clustering around it. What the foreign foe began, the domestic reformer completed, and by the appropriation of ecclesiastical revenues, the monks were taken away by which this priestly capital expired. Formerly it contained, besides the cathedral, 20 parish and six Muscular churches, nine chapels, three colleges, 14 convents, 25 universities, nine hospitals for males, and one for females, but its population was then 200,000. The cathedral, built on the site of an earlier one, which had been also a mosque, was founded in 1326 by St. Ferdinand, who himself laid the first stone and was completed in 1492. It is for the most part in the purest Gothic style. In its principal or W facade are three portals—the lowest and most highly enriched in the centre—and a tower 824 ft. in height, which rises in a thin spire, encircled as with crowns of thorns. Its painted windows are aspersed. The length of the building is 404 ft.; and it has five naves, supported by 84 piers the central one 160 ft. high. The library consists of 7000 vols., and has a good collection of Greek, Latin, and Arabic MSS. Cordova, Jaen, Carthage, Cuenca, Sigüenza, Segovia, Oama, and Valladolid are suffragans to the prince of Toledo. The chapter was truly imperial, and consisted of nearly 100 dignitaries and prebendaries. Some of the older archbishops were great in peace and war and among the most illustrious were Rodrigo, Fonseca, Mendoza, and Ximenes. Outside the town stands the basilica of Santa Leocadia, built in 1800, a church of great repute in ancient times, and in which were held many of the councils of Toledo. The parish churches now consist of two Musarabim and nine Latin, the former appellation being given to those in which the Gothic ritual was retained and which existed during the domination of the Arabs, one of whose capitans was called Miza. Among the parish churches the most remarkable is Nuestra Señora del Tránsito. The grand altar is in the Gothic style but the edifice itself is Saracenic, and the finest specimen of that architecture which Toledo the educational establishments the most important are the solitary school, which contains 600 students; an academy for the higher branches of education attended by 78 pupils; a Real-Marie-Consuelo, founded in consequence of the suppression of the university to supply the want of ecclesiastical instruction, containing 97 students; a college for young ladies of rank a school of fine arts, in which 120 to 180 pupils are taught gratuitously in mathematics and drawing. There are also various public and private schools for primary education. The principal library in Toledo is that called the Provincial, composed of the ancient archiepiscopal collection and about 40 000 vols. gathered from the suppressed convents the aggregate number being now 70 000 vols. Attached to this library is a cabinet of mineralogy and zoology. There are also a lyceum for lyre and dramatic entertainments, an oddif ferent theatre, and a museum containing 8000 pictures, collected from the convents, with exception of several by Spagnoletto and a few others, they possess little merit. Outside the town are three planted promenades, and within the city are several without trees on the banks of the river the most frequented, however, is that in the Plaza de Zocodover, which forms a sort of triangle. Zocodover in Arabic signifies 'place for cattle and here were formerly held the bull fights, the game of chess the cacoe-de-ya, and the marxas. Toledo has but few fountains, and the town is for the most part supplied from the river the water being carried up by donkeys. The Romans stannized the adla with a gigantic viaduct and aqueduct, which ran from the Puerto de Té hence, distant 26 m. but which has now almost entirely disappeared. When the Moors conquered Toledo, there was an enormous marra or water wheel, 90 cubits high, which forced up water by pipes, a work of the Jews, who introduced the hydraulics of the East. Charles V caused it to be repaired in 1563, and in 1568 it raised 600,000 buckets of water daily. It was afterwards damaged by an inundation, and never repaired, and the roofless engine-house now forms a picturesque ruin.

The celebrated manufactory of Toledoan swords is placed on the banks of the Tago, about 2 m. S.W. of the city. The huge building which Charles III. caused to be erected, is well provided with forges, &c., but life is now wanting. The few blades which are still made here are of a fine temper and polish, and so elastic that they are sometimes sold in boxes curled up like the mainspring of a watch. The manufacture of church and pontifical ornamented robes, unique in Spain perhaps in Europe, has also greatly decayed, in consequence of the diminution of the cathedral revenues. The other manufactures consist of silk lace and ribbons, serges, taffeta and silk handkerchiefs, stockings and caps, furs, leather, hats, earthenware bricks and tiles besides numerous oil and flour mills, nine chocolate-mills, three fulling mills, and seven silk dyes-works.

When Toledo was taken by Marcus Valerius, 193 a.c., it was, according to Livy a small town, built on a strong position. Leovigild under whom the Gothic monarchy was consolidated, removed his court from Seville, and made Toledo the capital of Spain. The Goths, who have been unjustly stigmatized as destructive barbarians, repaired and improved the city, bridges, and Roman walls. Toledo opened its gates in 1008 to the French, who signalled their entry by the burning of the sumptuous Franciscan convent, with its important archives and library, and on evacuating the city in 1613, they set on fire the alcázar. Pop. 18,580.

TOLEDO a tn, U. States, Ohio, on the Maumee, near its mouth in Maumee Bay 164 m. N.W. Columbus. It extends for nearly 1 m. along the river and has Presbyterians, Episcopal Methodists, Lutherans, and R. Catholics churches. Insignificant manufactures; but an important trade in course of rapid development. Pop. (1850), 8619.

TOLENTINO (anc. Placentia) a tn. Italy, The Marches, 11 m. S.W. Macerata, 1 bank Chienti. It is entered by a Gothic gateway which presents one of the most interesting and best preserved specimens of the cattedral architecture possesses. There still remain 19 monasteries, containing altogether about 160 nuns; and of the monasteries some are in ruins, and others converted to secular purposes. Growing as it were out of the rock, and commanding the W approach of the city rise the remains of the palace castle, built by King Wamba in 774, the masonry is truly Cyclopean. The alcázar or palace and fortress is the most striking feature of a city which it once defended and now adorns. This superb and gigantic edifice, placed in the most commanding site, was repeatedly altered and enlarged, until Charles V. introduced a considerable change in its plan, which was completed in 1551. The whole was burned, in the war of succession, by the Portuguese general, Alayda. Cardinal Lorenzana, who died in 1804, required the ruins, and converted them into a Casa-de-Cardenal, in which penitents were employed in silk weaving. These were ejected at the invasion by the French, who seized the funds and converted the asylum into a barracks, which was burned by Soult's troops when evacuating the half-ruined city. Beside the episcopal palace stands the town-house, built in 1618. Near the Zocodover is the Hospital-de-la-Cruz, now used as a forwarding hospital, founded by the great Mediana, Cardinal de Santa Croce. This building was one of the gems of the world nor on any chasing of Cellini surpasses the elegant portal. The general style of the edifice is the transition from Sord Gothic to the classical and Renaissance. There are also a Casa-de-Cardenal on Hospital-de-Minorjorda, and several other charitable foundations. Among of the middle ages and has a cathedral, originally a Gothic edifice, but very much altered. Tolosa has acquired some celebrity from the humiliating treaty which was dictated to Pope Pius VI in 1797 by the French, headed by Bonaparte. In 1815, a sanguinary battle, fought in the neighbourhood, sealed the fate of Murat, who, at the head of the Neapolitans, was defeated by the Austrians under Bianchi. Pop. 9427.

THE RUINS OF ALCÁZAR, TOLEDO.—From Chapoy, L. Engraver.

TOLFA, a tn. Papal States, deleg. and 11 m. S.W. E. Civita-Vesentia. A rich alum lake, belonging to the government, is extensively worked here, and furnishes the material of a considerable export. The alum-works are on a very large scale. Pop. 1069.

TOLKEMIT, a tn. Prussia, prov. W. Prussia, gov. and 85 m. E. Danzig, S. shore, Frische-Haff, with a R. Catholic church, an extensive fishery, and a mill. Pop. 2508.

TOLLAND, par. Eng. Somerset. 834 ac. Pop. 147. TOLLAND, a vil. and township, U. States, Connecticut, on the Williams and by the New London, Willimantic, and Falmer railway 18 m. N.E. by E. Hartford. It stands on an elevated plain; and has three churches, a courthouse, and a jail. Pop. 1410.

TOLLARD-ROYAL, par. Eng. Wilts. 2607 ac. P. 574. TOLLENS, a river Germany, rises in Mecklenburg-Strelitz crosses currently N.W. to Neu Brandenburg where it forms a lake of same name then almost due N. past Treptow forming the boundary between Mecklenburg-Strelitz and the Prussian prov. Pomerania then N.W. to Demmin, where it joins the Fenne, after a course of about 50 m.

TOLLER, two par. Eng. Dorset. — 1 (Strim) 500 ac. Pop. 54. 2 (Purton) 8143 ac. Pop. 527.

TOLLINGTON, par. Eng. North. 1240 ac. Pop. 157.

TOLLEBURY, par. Eng. Essex. 10,638 ac. P. 1193. TOLLESHUNT, three par. Eng. Essex. — 1 (D. Arcey) 3871 ac. Pop. 752. — 2 (Knappe) 2679 ac. Pop. 371. — 3 (Mayr) 2844 ac. Pop. 479.

TOLLO, a tn. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Citra, 7 m. E. Chieti, on a hill. It has two churches. Pop. 3160.

TOLMEZZO, a tn. kingdom of Italy gov. Venice, prov. Friuli, 25 m. N.W. Udine. It is surrounded by a wall and defended by a castle both in a dispirited state. has several courts and public offices, three parish churches, an hospital, manufactures of linen, and a cotton-mill. Pop. 2000.

TOLNA, a co. Hungary, bounded N. by Veszprém and Stuhlweisburg, E. Pesth, S. Banya, and W. and N.W. Munkacs, 1890 sq. m. With the exception of some hills, particularly in the S., it is generally flat, and in the E. is traversed throughout its whole length by the Danube, which, notwithstanding the numerous strong dykes built along its banks, often inundates extensive tracts, and has formed several morasses and islands. The chief river of the interior is the Sava. The soil is generally remarkable for its fertility, and grows large crops of corn, which after satisfying the home consumption, leave a considerable surplus for exportation. Wine also, both red and white, of good quality and tobacco, are extensively produced; and fruit abounds. Numerous fine cattle are fattened in the meadows, and the rivers are amply supplied with fish. Tolna is divided into four districts—Eszterházy (the capital), Földvár, Völgyes, and Dombóvár. Pop. 181,306.

TOLNA, a market tn. Hungary, Timber Danube, co. of same name, r. bank Danube 25 m. N.E. Fünfkirchen with a handsome castle, a potash-refinery and an important fishery in the Danube. Pop. 5771.

TOLNAR, or TOLNAR. See SOLTANAR.

TOLOCZEN, or TOLUCZEN, a tn. Russia, gov. and 42 m. S.W. Mohilev, l. bank Dvina, with a R. Catholic and a Greek church, a synagogue, a monastery, and a Jewish school.

TULOMETA [see Tolometa], a tn. regency Tripoli on the Mediterranean, 65 m. N.E. Benghazi with a small roadstead, and a magnificent reservoir of water the remains of a temple, theatres, an amphitheatre, a bazaar, and other interesting antiquities.

TULON NOUR, Mongolia. See CHAO-NAMAR-SOUM.

TULOSA, a city Spain, Biscay, cap. prov. Guipuzcoa, 85 m. S.W. Bayona, on the Oria, across which it is approached by two magnificent bridges. It consists of six parallel and three transverse streets, well paved, and provided with lamps; and the houses, which are built according to a regular plan are all of stone, and have iron-balconies. There are several squares, one appropriated to public diversions, and another paved as a market. Tolosa abounds in castles, castles, the family-houses of men of ancient pedigree. Among the public buildings and institutions are a spacious chamber, a hall-market, storehouse, custom-house, parish church, a sumptuous temple, with three naves, sanctuary with a church, used for public worship, suppressed convent, converted into a barracks, public chapel, two town-houses, various schools for primary and advanced education, a college, in which there are 11 professors, &c.; an academy of design and mathematics, and a benevolent institution with separate departments for paupers the sick poor, indigent children and orphans, and foundlings. The inhabitants of the suburbs are chiefly engaged in agriculture. In the town the principal branches of industry are the handicrafts of masons, brick layers, cabinet-makers, carpenters, smiths who work before the establishment of the manufactory of arms in the Asturias, to make bayonets and swords for the army, but are now engaged in manufacturing agricultural implements for America, as well as the home market, balconies, kitchen-ranges, locks, &c. There are also two cast-iron works, two machine-shops, three paper-mills, and a large and handsome factory of fine cloths, besides various flour-mills. Tolosa was held by the French from 1806 to 1813, when the allied army under General Graham, compelled the garrison to evacuate. P. 8000.

TULUTLAN, or TOLUTLAN, river Mexico (Méjico) see.

TULOX, a vil. Spain, Asturias, prov. and 30 m. W. Malaga, with a townhouse, two endowed schools, a church, and hermages four flour-mills, and three for oil. Pop. (agriculture), 1990.

TOLFUDDLE, par. Eng. Dorset. 3089 ac. Pop. 554. TOLFE, or CALMAR, a vil. Hungary, co. Pesth, about 9 m. from Kalocsa; with a trade in wine. Pop. 1307.

TOLU, a seaport tn. New Granada, prov. and 65 m. S. Cartagena, at the head of the Gulf of Morroquillo. It has a good harbour, and the adjoining country is fertile in corn, producing also dye-wood, and the aromatic balsam of Tolu. TOLUCA, a tn. Mexico, Confederal, dep. and 70 m. S.W. Mexico, beautifully situated in a valley of same name, 8008 ft. above sea-level. It is a well-built, handsome place, and is celebrated for its ham and mutton, its soap and candles. The lofty volcanic mountain called Nevado de Toluca is within the district.

TOLVÉ, a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, dist. and 12 m. S.E. E. Potenza, with two convents, and three almshouses. Pop. 3585.

TOLWL 16th, or TOLVEMAN, a tn. Russia, gov. Olenetz, not far from Lake Onega, and 90 m. from Petrusvodka. It has mines of copper, and slate-quarries. Pop. 1800.

TOLZ, a market tn. Upper Bavaria, cap. dist., r. bank Isar 25 m. S. Munich. It is well built, has four churches, three chapels a Latin school, Franciscan hospital and infirmary, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a wax refinery, saltpetre works, numerous breweries, three iron and many other mills, and a trade in wood, horses, and cattle. Pop. 8097.

TOM, a river Siberia, rises in the mountains on the frontiers of gov. Yeniseisk and Tomsk; flows directly N.W. and about 28 m. below the town of Tomsk, joins r. bank Ob, after a course of about 220 m. Its chief affluents are the Mreana and Kondoma, which join it in the early part of its course on the left.

TOM-RO, a river China, descends from the mountains near the S. frontiers of prov. Shensi, enters prov. Szechuen; flows S.E.W., and joins l. bank Kiating a little below Faoing after a course of about 100 m.

TOMANTOUL, a vil. Scotland, co. and 42 m. S.W. Raasay, on a tract of table-land overlooking the Ayr, with a spacious square, and a neat substantial church. Pop. 641.

TOMASZOW, two places, Russian Poland.—1, A. tn. and 70 m. S.E. Lublin with important manufactures of porcelain and stone ware, and a considerable trade in two beverages, called winska and winska, prepared from honey and fruit. Pop. 2580.—2, A. tn. in 62 m. S.W. Warsaw, on an elevated but healthy site, in the neighbourhood of immense forests, l. bank Pilica, which is here navigable, and receives the Wolborka. It was founded in 1823 contains a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, and a synagogue; and has extensive manufactures of fine woolen cloth, and plain and printed cottons; dye works, two worsted-mills, a blast-furnace, and other iron works, and being admirably adapted, carries on an extensive trade. Hour is an extensive iron-mines. Pop 5000

TOMBORO volcano. See BONAWEA

TOMBIGBEE, a river, U. States, rises in Mississippi; flows S. by E. through the N. E. of that state and the S. W. of Alabama, and after a course of about 500 m., joins the Alabama in forming the Mobile river. It is navigable for large vessels for nine months in the year and for steam-boats to Columbus in Mississippi. It has several adjacent, of which the Black Warrior is the largest.

TOMBS (GREAT and LITTLE), two isls. near the entrance of the Persian Gulf, 30 m. N. E. W. isl. Kishum. The one is 4 m. to 5 m., the other 3 m. to 3 m. in circuit. They are both low and flat, uncultivated, and uninhabited. The larger, at which Neerubus anchored during his celebrated voyage, is partly covered with grass, and abounds with antelopes.

TOMBUCTOO, a city, Africa. See TOMBUCTOO.

TOMBUKLEY, par Irel. Clare, 1334 ac. Pop 281

TOMMELLOSO, a tn. Spau, New Castle, prov and 43 m. N. E. Cindal Real, with a tow-house, prison, granaries, three schools, a church and a hermitage, some linen-weaving, and paper-manufacture. Pop (agricultural) 4705

TOMFINLOUGH, par Irel. Clare 6788 ac. P 5181

TOMGRANEY, par Irel. Clare, 14,158 ac. P 6673

TOMHAGGARU par Irel. Wexford, 2180 ac. P 335

TOMPKINSVILLE, a vil., U. States, New York, 6 m. S. New York city, on the N. E. part of Staten Island overlooking the Bay of New York. It is the quarantine station of New York, and has as extensive lunatic and several commodities hospitals.

TOMREGAN, par Irel. Cavan and Fermanagh, 10,678 ac. 1 op. 3405.

TOMSK, a gov. of W. Siberia lat. 49° to 61° N. lon 75° to 90° E. bounded N. and N. W. by gov. Tobolsk, W. Omsk, E. the Chinese Empire, and K. and N. E. gov. Yeniseisk greatest length, N. to S., about 750 m. greatest breadth, about 600 m. Its frontier is covered by the Altai Mts. which occupy considerable width in that direction but descending rapidly, give the whole government the form of a vast unrolled plain, descending towards the N., and giving the same direction to the numerous streams by which it is watered. These belong entirely to the basin of the Ob, which, rising in the S. of the government, traverses it circuitously but centrally and receives from it numerous tributaries, of which the most important are the Bie, Tchumsh, Tom, Tobolish, and Ket. There are also several large lakes, a chain of which, consisting chiefly of the Tichany and Irtysy, covers a large expanse in the W. The N. part of the government is generally wild and desolate, and is roamed over by nomadic tribes. Towards the S. the country improves in appearance, the climate becomes milder, good crops are raised, and in some parts even melons grow in the open air. The pastures also become luxuriant, and the cattle fed on them constitute the chief riches of the inhabitants. The mountains in the S. have a nucleus of granite, generally overlain by clay and other schists, in which a great number of valuable minerals, including gold, silver, lead, copper, and iron, have been found, and are worked to a considerable extent. The inhabitants are composed of Russians, Cossacks, Tartars, and Ostiaks. For administrative purposes the government is divided into six districts—Tomsk (the capital), Barnaul, Kaimak, Kuznatz, Kolyvan, and Tobolsk. Pop. 850,000

TOMSK, a to, W. Siberia, esp. of above gov. principally between r. bank Tom and the ridges of hills which accompanies its bed. It consists partly of an upper town, built upon a hill ground which has received the name of Yekaterinaya-Gora or Hill of Resurrection, and occupied by the Russians and better classes; and a lower town or suburb, inhabited by Tartars and Boshazaks. The great road leading to the frontiers of China passes through this part of the town. The lower town consists of low but regular wooden houses, from amid which the slender towers of several mosques are seen to rise; the houses of the upper town are larger and of more imposing appearance. The public buildings include nine churches, two of which are large and handsome structures; two synagogues, several mosques, a bazaar, a college and military school, two hospitals, and a workhouse for exiles.

Vol. II

The manufactures consist of coarse cloth, leather, and some the trade, both general and transit, is extensive. It is carried on chiefly by barter, and consists in furs, fish, and cattle, obtained in exchange for articles of European, Chinese, and Boshazak manufacture. Pop. (1859) 18,349.

TONA (SAN ANDRÉS-DE-) a vil. Spain, Orotuna, prov and about 35 m. from Barcelona; with a church, primary school, ancient castle, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1554.

TONAGHITY par Irel. Mayo 8007 ac. Pop. 884.

TONAKA a vil. and com. vil. Sardinia, div. Cagliari, 35 m. E. N. O. Orotuna; with a trade in corn. Pop. 2546

TONAWANDA, a vil. U. States, New York, 12 m. N. Buffalo, r. bank Niagara, at the junction of Tonawanda Creek with the Erie canal. It has a good harbour and carries on a considerable trade. Pop. 1000.

TONO a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. and 22 m. W. N. W. Alessandria, with a court of justice, and a hand some church. Pop. 1802

TONDANO, a tn. Indian Archipelago, off N. E. point of N. Celebes, prov. Manado, with a district of its name.

TONDEMI LA, a tn. and par. Portugal, prov. Bour-alto, about 12 m. S. W. Viana. Pop. 1280.

TONDERN (Danish, Tonder) a tn. Denmark, dushy and 43 m. N. W. Schleswig, esp. head, on the W. side. It was once famous for its lace, still manufactured to some extent and has a normal school, and the remains of an old castle, the wing of which is now used as a prison. Pop. (agricultural), 2850. About 8 m. W. is a vil. and par. called Kjøgel-Tonder (Great Tonder). It is still the central locality of the lace manufacture, in which from 8000 to 10,000 persons of the surrounding districts are engaged. In the immediate vicinity is the old castle of Solstenborg. Pop. 1500.

TONDI, a maritime tn. Hindoostan, S. Carnatic, near the entrance of Palk's Strait 70 m. S. by W. Tanjore. It was once a place of some importance, and the capital of Pondoman's country a large semiprincipal bounded on the N. by prov. Tanjore, still governed by its native prince, under British protection.

TONDIA or TONDINA, a river Turkey in Europe, rises on the S. slope of the Balkan on the frontiers of Bulgaria flows E., passing a little to the S. of Kozanlik, then S. E. traversing Adrianople, and joins I. bank Maritima, after a course of about 150 m.

TONDO, a tn. Philippines, in Luzon esp. prov. of same name, on the large newly opened to Manila. It consists chiefly of cane, bamboo, and nipa houses but has several good stone buildings, a governor's house, a handsome church, manufactures of silk and cotton goods, a valuable distillery, and a considerable trade, chiefly in the hands of Malays and Chinese. Pop. 17,430. — The TONDOVA, though one of the smallest in the island, having only a current of about 80 m., is one of the richest, most industrious, and best-peopled. It is bounded N. by prov. Balayan and Nueva-España, E. Nueva-España, S. Laguna and Lake Bay and W. Cavite and the Bay of Manila is surrounded except towards the sea, by well-wooded mountains, furnishing excellent timber and raising considerable quantities of rice, a small quantity of sugar, and numerous varieties of excellent fruit, including mangoes, bananas, pine-apples, and oranges, and carries on a considerable trade for which both the port of Manila and its principal stream, the Binondo or Tondo, navigable by canoes, afford good facilities. Pop. 215,640

TONÉ, a river, England, on Somerset, rises 6 m. N. W. Wivelacombe, passes by Taunton, and joins the Parret between Langford and Bridgewater

TONG a vil. and chapelry, England, on York, on a hilly but well-wooded district, 8 m. W. E. W. Leeds. It is nearly built, and has a chapel of ease, a Wesleyan chapel, a school, and manufactures of rope and twine. Many of the inhabitants are employed in wool-combing. Pop. 2797

TONG, two par. Eng. — 1, Kent, 1883 ac. Pop. 242 — 2, Essex 3404 ac. Pop. 611

TONGA ISLANDS, S. Pacific. See FIJISLANDS

TONGATABOO or TONGA TABU, one of the most S. of the Friendly Islands, Pacific Ocean; lat. (W. point) 31° 4' S. lon. 175° 25' W. (a) It is of coral-formation very level, highest point 60 ft. in the form of an irregular crescent, deeply indented by a lagoon 5 m. broad, and enter-TOPLITZA, or TOPLAZA, a vil Austria, Transylvania, co. Thornburg, is a mountainous district on a stream of same name, near its confluence with the Mureș, about 40 m. from Simeri-Hagoș. It has a Greek united and a Greek non-united church. Near it are mines of antimony. Pop. 1250.

TOPOLAZA, a lake, Greece. See COFAR.

TOPOLOVEZ, a vil. Croatia, generalship Warasdin, on several hills, about 12 m. from Bellovar. It is the head quarters of a frontier regiment, and has a B. Catholic church. Pop. 322.

TOPOLOVEZ (SAGT), a vil. Hungary, Thidher Tholis, Banat, co. Temesvar, near the canal of Boga, about 4 m. from Kikinda; with a Greek church. Pop. 1069.

TOPOLY, or TOPA, a river Hungary descends from the Carpathians co. Baro; flows S.E. past Barfeld and Varno and joins r. bank Oudava. total course, about 60 m.

TOPOLYA, a vil. Hungary. Hither Danube, co. Bacs, 40 m. N.W. Peterwardein. with a R. Catholic church a chateau and a trade in cattle. Pop. 5615.

TOFONAR, a market in Hungary, co. Blumegh 4 m. N.E. Kaposvar with a church, and several fairs. Pop. 1860.

TOFOVES, or TOFVANA, a vil. Hungary. Hither Tholis, co. Zips, at the foot of the Carpathians, 10 m. from Kikindar. It has a Lutheran, a Calvinistic, and a R. Catholic church, two castles, manufactures of linen, and a trade in flax. Pop. 1177.

TOFOZERO a lake Russia, W part of gov. Archangel lat. 65° 50' N lon. 81° 50' E. It is very irregular in shape, but gradually widens out towards the W, still attaining its greatest breadth, it has some resemblance to a triangle; length, N.W. to S.E., about 50 m. mean breadth about 9 m. It contains several islands, and discharges itself in the N.W. by a short channel into Lake Pija.

TOPPENFIELD, par. Eng. Essex. 5320 ac. Pop. 1061.

TOPSCHAU, a market in Hungary. See DOBOCHAU.

TOPEHAM, a market in, river-par. and par. England, co. Devon. The town is situated on the r. bank Exa, at its confluence with the Clyst, a few miles inland from the seacoast into which the former expands, S.E. in S.E. Exeter, the upper part occupying rather elevated ground, the lower part being on a level with the river. It has an Established church, and several dissenting meeting-houses, and a national, an infant and some other schools. The manufactures comprise rope-making anchor and chain cables carried on at Weir near the town some paper-making and ship-building. The shipping trade is chiefly in timber and hemp, with a coasting trade in coals. Many of the inhabitants are employed in fishing. Area of par. 1740 ac. Pop. 3877.—(Local Correspondent).

TOPEHAM a vil. and township, U. States, Maine, on the Androscoggin, here crossed by a handsome bridge connecting it with Brunswick, 28 m. S.W. Augusta. It has several churches, and a courthouse, numerous saw mills, and a large export of lumber. Pop. 2010.

TOR, or TOUR, a seaport in Arabian Gulf of Suco, opposite to the N. part of the highland of Zeltis, lat. 28° 16' N; lon. 38° 41' E. The town is situated at the N.E. part of the harbour and is inhabited principally by Greeks and Bedouin Arabs. The harbour is formed by a reef that projects from the N. extremity to the S., leaving a great gulf on it at times. During the violent N.W. winds, ships bound to Suco are often obliged to take shelter in this port, where the water is better than in any other place on the Red Sea, but provisions or other articles of refreshment are not to be obtained.

TOR-OMAZA, a tn. Naples, prov. Principato-Citra, 15 m. S.E. of N. Yallo, in an unhealthy situation. It contains a palace of the dukes of Pollastris, two churches, and a seminary. Pop. 2500.

TORÉ, a tn. Naples, prov. Lavara, N.E. Gaeta, on a hill, with a collegiate church and a convent. Pop. 1390.

TORAE (Kis and Nagy), two contiguous vils. Hungary, Banat, co. Torontal, on the Bega canal, near Nagy-Bacsakerek with a Greek non-united church, and a trade in cattle and oats. Pop. (Kis-Torak), 2986; (Nagy-Torak), 3816.

TORAL-UBA VILA, or TORAL-DE-LOS-GUERNAS, a tn. Spain, prov. and 32 m. S. Leon, r. bank Esla. It has two parish churches, primary school palace of the Duke de Frías, courthouses, and prison; manufactures of linen and a trade in corn. Pop. 5123.

TORANO, or TORANO two places, Naples—1, a tn., prov. Abruzzo-Ultra I. N.N.E. Teramo, in a low damp situation. Pop. 1185.—2, a tn., prov. Calabria-Clerici, N.N.E. Cosentino with a convent, hospital, and almshouse.

TORBAGY (Kis), or TORWALD, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danube, co. and about 8 m. from Pesth, with a trade in good wine. Pop. 1212.

TORBAY—1 A spacious bay, S. coast, England, co. Devon formed by two capes about 4 m. apart, which leave a secure recess between, forming an arch approaching to a semicircle, where there is a perfect shelter from W. winds. The Prince of Orange, King William III. landed in this bay in 1688.—2 A harbour, W. Australia, co. Flinders, lat. 35° 5' S.—3 A small bay, Newfoundland, 7 m. N. St. John. TORHISCON (anc. Turiclanis) a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov. and 48 m. S.E. Granada. It has two squares a courthouse and prison; a granary primary school, parish church a hermitage, and two cemeteries; six brandy-distilleries, five oil and three flour mills. Pop. 2303.

TORRHIAN, par. Eng. Devon; 3010 ac. Pop. 229.

TORRELLA or TORRELLA, a tn. Italy Veneto, on an is. of same name, in the lagoons N.E. Venice. It was once a place of great importance, but now has only a few splendid and singular fabrics rising out of green and marshy fields, with a few fishing-boats on the site on which the greater part of the ancient city stood.

TORDEUIMOR, a tn. Spain, Leon, prov. and 29 m. N.W. Valladolid, with three churches, a nursery, a hand some courthouses, two primary schools and the remains of an old castle, manufactures of serge, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1300.

TORDELA, a vil. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 37 m. N.E. Barcelona, 1 bank Tordera with a townhouse, parish church primary school, and three flour-mills. Pop. (parish town) 1858.

TORDESIILLAS a tn. Spain Leon, prov. and 19 m. S.W. Valladolid r. bank Duero here spanned by a handsome and solid old bridge of 10 arches. It has a townhouse, two primary schools, six churches, two sugar-cane works, two sumptuous and three hospitals. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in husbandry and there are various fulling and other mills, tanneries, and manufactures of woollen fabrics. Much red wine, strong and heady as port, is grown in these districts. Juana la Loca [crazy Jane] mother of Charles V. lived for many years in one of the convents of Tordesillas, watching the coffin of her handsome but ruthless husband. Pop. 3590.

TORDINELLE, a vil. Sicily, co. Syracuse, on the Vula with a R. Catholic parish church. Pop. 1373.

TORRELLA, two places, Naples—1, a tn. Principato-Citra N.W. San Angelo de Lombardi with a convent, hospital, and almshouse. Pop. 3800.—2, a tn., prov. Salerno, 8 m. N.W. Campobasso with three churches, and an almshouse. Pop. 1200.

TORRELLA (San Felice-Na), a vil. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 48 m. N.E. Barcelona, 1 bank Ter; with a primary school, a theatre, and a parish church, four-mills, manufactures of cotton twist and fabrics, coarse woollens, and paper and of articles of tinware and comba, both of iron wood and horn with which Torrella supplies through Barcelona all the markets in the peninsula as well as the island of Cuba. Pop. 1734.

TORRENO, a tn. Spain prov. Leon on both sides of the Sil, here crossed by a bridge, 21 m. N.E. Villafraña, with a parish church, courthouse, and primary school manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1341.

TORGAL, a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 45 m. E.N.E. Merseburg, cap. circle, 1 bank Elbe, here crossed by a wooden bridge nearly 2 m. long. It is surrounded by walls flanked with bastions, and otherwise fortified so as to be a place of considerable strength has a court of law, and several public offices, four churches a courthouse, lycæum two barge-schools, a poorhouse, orphan and ordinary hospital manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, some shipping, a fishery and a trade in yarn corn, and wood. In 1700 Frederick the Great here defeated the Austrians, and in 1814 the town was besieged by the Prussians, and taken. P. 6661.

TORGELLOW a tn. Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. and N.W. Stettin, in a well-wooded country, 1 bank Vistula. It has a church, a blast-furnace, and other iron-works. P. 1065.

TORGET, a small isl. Norway off S.W. coast, Nordland; about lat. 65° 30' N. Its most remarkable feature is the mountain of Torgtaket, which seems to rise almost perpendicularly from the water to a height estimated by Von Seeb at more than 3000 A., terminates in a deep cleft forming the basin of a small lake, and is completely perforated, not far from its centre, by an immense cavern 6000 ft. long, and 600 ft. high. It appears to have been formed by a series of convulsions.

TORGETATN MOUNTAIN AND CAVERN
From Voyages de la Commission Scientifique du Nord.

evidence of which is furnished by numerous fissures which have shattered the mountain, and cleft it in one place almost from top to bottom. According to a tradition common in the North, the ancient kings of Norway when crowned used to visit this cavern and prove the vigour of their arm by hurling a javelin through it. Torgtaket owes its name to the resemblance which it bears at a distance to a three-cornered hat.

TORIGNY (anc. Torguensis), a town in France, dep. Manche, 9 m. S.E. St. Lo, assembly situated and tolerably well built with an old chateau now used for the meetings of the commune and a trade in horses, sheep, swine, and grain. P. 2051.

TORINO, or TORINO, a town in Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Citra, 10 m. N.W. Ulivasto with three churches. P. 2180.

TORITTO a town in Naples, prov. Bari, 14 m. N.N.E. Alta mara with an almshouse. P. 2550.

TORJOK, or TORJONK, a town in Russia, gov. and 40 m. W.W. Tver, esp. circle, r. bank Tverna, which here receives the Siversona. It is built with considerable regularity the private houses of wood and the public edifices of stone and the streets are generally spacious though unpaved. It has 25 churches, one of them a cathedral, a monastery a nursery, a normal school orphan hospital and large stone-bazaar. The staple manufacture is embroidery of silk, and gold and silver thread on leather, chiefly argenteo or morocco. The principal articles are reticules, slippers, boots and shoes, belts, and caps. The situation of the town, on the road from St. Petersburg to Moscow and on a navigable river, gives it great facilities for trade, which is carried on to a large extent in the above articles of manufacture, and in hemp, flax, corn, tallow, horse-hair, linen, &c. P. 15,000.

TORKKEY par Eng Lincoln 8170 ac. P. 488.

TORMARTON par Eng Gloucester, 2645 ac. P. 468.

TORMER, a river Spain which rises in the sierra which divide Retrenadura from Old Castile, flows N.W. past Salamanca, and falls into the Duero between Villavieja and Ferrocalle, total course, 107 m. Its principal tributaries are the Arzuella, Corneja, Margalida, Valmusa, and Peña.

TORMOGHAM was Torgogham, par Eng Devon 1500 ac. P. 1144.

TORNA, or TUNTA, a market in Hungary esp. co. of its name, in a plain near the Tornavilla, 19 m. S.W. Eschen. It contains handsome county-buildings, an elegant chateau, an old castle, and a bathing-establishment and has a trade in wood, corn, and wine. P. 2190. The country, the smallest in Hungary, bounded, N. by Szep. E. by Apofjvar, S. by Ercs, and W. by Gicse, area, 175 sq. m., is traversed by mountain ridges, between which lie fertile valleys, yielding good crops of corn and much flax, wine, and tobacco. The pastures are excellent, and rear great numbers of cattle. The rearing of bees forms an important branch of rural economy and the forests, which are large, abound with game. The minerals include iron, which is worked and smelted to some extent. P. 81,900.

TORNACIO, a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Novara. It has a handsome church. P. 1829.

TORNAREUCIO, a town in Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Citra W.S.W. 11 Vasto with a church and three chapels. P. 1840.

TORNAYACAS, a town in Spain, Retrenadura, prov. and 88 m. N.N.E. Oviedo with a beautiful parish church, a handsome town house, primary school, and hospital; several flour-mills, and a considerable transit trade between Retrenadura and the Castilian. P. 1484.

TORNEA, a seaport in Russia, Finland, head of the Gulf of Bothnia, gov. and 64 m. N.W. Uleaborg, esp. circle, r. bank Tornea, by which it is separated from the Swedish town of Haparanda, on the peninsula of Sweden formed by the mouth of the river. It is built with considerable regularity but the streets being unpaved, are almost inaccessible to carriages the houses are all of wood covered with thatch and the whole place has a lifeless appearance. It contains two churches, one of wood and the other of stone; and has a considerable trade in deals, salted salmon and other fish, reindeer-skins, butter, tallow, &c. Steamers ply between Tornea and Stockholm. P. 668.

TORNIMARKA, a town in Naples prov. Abruzzo-Citra II, 7 m. W. by S. Aquila with four churches, and two almshouses. P. 1545.

TORNOLÒ a vil and com. duchy and 43 m. S.W. Parma, r. bank Taro with a primary school, and a trade in cattle. P. 3245.

TORNYA, a market in Hungary Thither Thien, co. Csanad, on the Szaraz Er an arm of the Maros, 13 m. N.W. Arad. It has two churches, a chateau, national school, and a trade in corn and cattle. P. 2650.

TORO (anc. Torone), a city, Spain Leon, prov. and 21 m. E. Zamora, on an eminence overlooking a beautiful and fertile plain watered by the Duero, over which there is here a fine bridge. This ancient and decaying city is surrounded with walls of earth, and is entered by six principal gates, besides various smaller entrances. It is a dull and backward place, with dirty and ill-repaired streets. It has a handsome but unfinished town-house, begun in 1772, in one of the principal squares, and in another called the market-square, a fine clock tower, also a chateau, tolling barracks, numerous fountains, a forwarding hospital, and two hospitals for the sick; various schools, 16 parish churches, six monasteries, and eight suppressed monasteries, almost all more or less ruined, brandy-distilleries, flour-mills, brick and tile kilns, and a trade in almonds, grain, and mill-stones. Toro was once a place of great importance, and its plains were the granary of the Goths. Near it was fought, in 1475, the battle between Alonso V. of Portugal, and Ferdinand the Catholic, which gave the crown of Castile to Isabella. Here again was held, in January 1558, the celebrated Cortes by which, after her death Ferdinand's authority was recognized. P. 6985.

TORO (anc. Torone), an island off S.W. coast, Isl. Sardinia, lat. 38° 51' 06" N. lon. 8° 27' 44" E. about 6 m. to the S. of St. Antonio, consisting of a bold rock, 500 ft. to 600 ft. in height.

TORO, a town in Naples, prov. Salerno, 6 m. E.N.E. Campobasso, with three churches, a convent, hospital, and five almshouses. P. 2880.

TOROCEKO, or TUROSCOCO, a market in Austria, Transylvania, on and 14 m. S.W. Tchernoburg, near the Aranyos with a church, and important iron-works. Pop 1900

TÖRÖK BACSA, or US-BACSA, a market in Hungary, co. Torontal, 1. bank Theiss 25 m. N.N.E. Peterwarden, in a somewhat marshy but fertile district, with a considerable trade in corn. Pop 4690

TORONTAL, a co. Hungary, bounded N by Congrad and Osnad, E. Temesvár, S. Deutsch-Benat regimental district, and W. Bacs, area, 1808 sq. m. It is flat throughout, consisting of extensive plains, interspersed with meadows, and intersected by large rivers, of which the most important are the Theiss, Maros Temes and Bega. The climate is hot, and far from healthy, but the soil is generally fertile, and produces much corn, maize, rice, flax, hemp, melons, fruit, and tobacco. The wallberry also thrives well, and a good deal of silk is obtained. Great numbers of horses and cattle are fed on the rich pastures, and considerable attention is paid to the rearing of bees. Torontal is divided into four districts—Gyros-Benachuk, Gyros-Szent-Killos, Ujpest, and Torok-Kunja. The capital is Nagy-Benachuk. Pop 848 800

TORONTO (formerly called Yonge) the cap. city of Canada West, co. York, about 815 m. W.S.W. Montreal. It occupies a rather low site on a beautiful and nearly circular bay on the N.W. shore of Lake Ontario, with which the bay communicates by a narrow entrance, and from which it is separated by a low sandy belt nearly 5 m. long, lat. 43° 39' N. lon. 79° 31' W. The town, which is in the form of a peninsula, is built with great regularity, the streets intersect at right angles, and are generally spacious, well paved, and lighted with gas. The houses are for the most part substantial, and in the principal thoroughfares have often an elegant appearance. The public buildings are numerous, and many of them are very handsome, the principal, in an architectural point of view, are the Episcopal cathedral, an excellent specimen of polished architecture, the R. Catholic cathedral also in the pointed style, Trinity college, a highly ornate building somewhat after the model of Trinity college, Cambridge. St. Law race-hall a stately pile, and the city hall, occupied as the city buildings. Osgoode or Lawry's hall, where the law-courts are accommodated, the normal school, the lunatic asylum the provincial, normal, and model schools, Toronto academy and a country grammar-school. The principal scientific or literary institutions are the observatory, the Canadian institute the Athenaeum and museum, and the mechanics' institute. The benevolent institutions are the lunatic asylum, a general and various other hospitals, a general and an eye dispensary, a female emigration society, &c. The principal market is a handsome structure, situated in the E. section of the town; the markets are well supplied, the surrounding district being one of the most populous, most fertile, and best cultivated in Canada. The principal industrial establishments are foundries, tanneries, breweries, distilleries, furnaces, saw-mills, glue, soap and candle factories, rope-walks, and paper and flour mills. The harbour which admits vessels of the largest size navigating the lakes, is remarkably well sheltered, and affords great facilities for its extensive trade consisting chiefly in flour, wheat, oats, wool, furs, and skins, planks, boards, and shingles. The total exports from the port of Toronto, for the year ending January 6, 1864, amounted to $281 490, for the year ending 1865 to $1 055 866 lbs. 44 m. in 1864 the former amounted to $274 289 and the latter to $214,848. It was founded in 1794 and at first made little progress its population in 1880 being 2660 but in 1842 it had increased to 15 838 and in 1862 to 20,763. By the census taken in 1861 it was ascertained to have increased to 44 281

TOROPA, a river, Russia, issues from a small lake among the Valdai Hills, in N.E. of gov. Pskov flows S.S.W. forming several lakes by its expansion, and joins r. bank. Divides on the frontier of gov. Viatka total course 70 m. the greater part navigable by barges.

TOROPETA, a tn. Russia, gov. and 148 m. S.E. Pskov cap. district, on N. shore of Lake Bolshaya, where the Toropa issues from it. It is a well built sharring place with a cathedral 13 other churches, and two monasteries extensive tanneries and other manufactures and a very important trade supplying all the surrounding districts with manufactured goods and colonial produce, and receiving in return corn, hemp, flax, and other produce which are sent by the Toropa into the Dvina, and by it to Riga. Pop (1849) 5746

TORRABAY per Bank Argyle 30 m. by 13 m. E 1381
TORPENHOW, per Eng. Cumberland 9670m. P 1176

TORPICHEN per Scot. Lin. 1400m. 9 m. by 3 m. Pop 1866.

TORQUAY, a seaport in and watering place, England, co. Devon, pleasantly situated on a series of heights and depressions on the N. side of Torbay and on a branch of the South Devon railway, 21 m. S. Easter. It consists principally of two streets, one of them about 1 m. long stretching through the vale towards Tor of several commanding terraces and of a great number of isolated cottages and villas, with gardens attached is substantially built of limestone, well lighted, well kept and tolerably well supplied with water and has two parochial churches, one of them a handsome structure with a lofty nave; two chapels of ease, a Wesleyan, Baptist, R. Catholic, two Independent, and some other Dissenting chapels, national infant, and other schools, a mechanics' institute, assembly-rooms, subscription and reading rooms, a town-hall with a square tower, a dispensary, museum, public gardens and baths, a long pier forming an excellent promenade, a harbour in which spring-tides rise 16 ft. and a little trade, consisting chiefly of imports of timber and coals, and exports of earthenware, cider, yellow ochre, and fish. The progress of Torquay has been and continues to be rapid, owing to its attractions as a watering-place. For invalids, its climate in winter is among the mildest and best in England. Pop 1903

TORQUEMADA, a vil. Spain, Leon prov. and 19 m. E.N.E. Palencia, r. bank Pisuerga, with a primary school and church. Near it is a fine bridge of 25 arches over the Pisuerga. Pop (agricultural), 2768

TORRALBA-DE-CALATRAYA, a tn. New Castle, Spain, prov. and 10 m. E. Ciudad-Real, with a townhouse, prison, about 1 m. from the city, and several of the churches. Besides the cathedrals already named there are 21 other churches including five churches of England, four Wesleyan, two R. Catholic, two Scotch Free church, one church of Scotland, and various others one each. Other important buildings and establishments are the university, the buildings of which are erected on a block of land of about 150 ac., and approached by well planted avenues, the Parliament-house, in which the provincial parliament meets for four successive years, alternately with Quebec, Trinity college, in connection with the church of England, the Upper Canada college, the Government-house, the lunatic asylum, and the jail. Besides the university, which has 10 professors, Trinity college, which has six professors of law and arts and seven of medicine, and Upper Canada college, which has a principal and 12 masters, there are various other educational establishments, among which may be mentioned St. Michael's college (R. Catholic), Knox's college, the Congregational institute the United Presbyterian divinity hall, several primary schools, a parish church, and a hermitage a town and 15 oil mills, and 1500 women employed in the manufacture of lace, in connection with the factory at Almagro. Pop. 2890.

THE NORMAL AND MODEL SCHOOLS, TORONTO.

TORREJO two places, Portugal:—1 A tn. and par. Alentejo, 31 m. S.W. Evora. Pop. 817.—2 A tn. and par. prov. Douro, 20 m. S.E. Oporto. Pop. 1190.

TORREAZZA-CORRA, a vil and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. Voghera, with a small square, two parish churches, and three convents. Pop. 1888.

TORRE, numerous places, Naples, particularly:—1 A tn. prov. Calabria Ultra II, S.W. Catanzaro, near bank Anisale. It suffered greatly by the earthquake of 1783 Pop. 1600.—2, (del Gran), A tn., prov. and 8 m. S.E. Naples, E. shore, Gulf of Naples, at the S.W. foot of Mount Vesuvius. It is surrounded with fine villas and gardens; and contains a handsome collegiate and a parish church, three convents, and a large hospital. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in fishing, and go as far as the coasts of Corsica and Sardinia to fish coral about 300 vessels of 7 to 14 tons and each carrying 8 to 12 hands, are engaged in this trade. The town suffered much by a terrible eruption of Vesuvius, in 1794. The soil of the district, formed of decomposed lava, is remarkable for its fertility, and produces exquisite fruits and wine. Pop. 18 000.—3, (dell' Annunziata), A tn. prov. and 13 m. S.E. Naples, on the E. coast of the Gulf of Naples, in a plain at the S. foot of Mount Vesuvius. It ranks as a for town of the fourth class, being surrounded with walls, and defended by a strong tower which is admirably situated on a commanding height, and gives the town its name. It contains two churches and a convent, and has manufactures of gunpowder, fireworks and paper. Pasture of all kinds is made here. The fishing in the bay is productive, and there is a considerable coasting trade. Pop. 4000.—4, (della Padula), A vil., prov. Otranto, S.E. Gallipoli with a convent. Pop. 570.—5, (della Nostra), A tn. prov. Principato-Ultra, dist. Avellino with a convent and almshouse. Pop. 1275.—6 (de Passeri), A tn. prov. Abruzzo-Ultra, 13 m. S. (Vivido-Fenno), 1 bank, Pescara, with three churches, manufactures of cutlery, and a dye-works. Pop. 1150.—7 (di Sanicola), A small port on the E. coast, Calabria-Citra, the place at which Hannibal embarked on finally quitting Italy.—8, (di Mare), A vil., prov. Basilicata, dist. and 24 m. S.E. Matera, near the mouth of the Basento in the Gulf of Taranto. It is supposed to be near the site of the ancient Metopontus, which was founded many centuries before the Christian era, and in which Pythagoras taught and died.—9 (Maggiore), A tn. prov. Capitanata, 6 m. W. San Severo with a fine ducal palace, two churches, and two convents Pop. 4550.—10 (Santa-Susanna), A tn. Naples, prov. Otranto, 12 m. S.W. Brindisi; with a convent, hospital, and almshouse. Pop. 1500.

TORRE, numerous places, Spain, particularly:—1 (de-Miguel), A vil. Spain, Extremadura prov. and 37 m. from Orense, with a townhouse, prison, school, and a church, wine-presses, flour-mills, and a soap-manufacture. Pop. 1972.—2, (de-Esteban-Andres), A tn. New Castile prov. and 30 m. N.W. Toledo with a handsome church, a courthouse with a fine colonnade, a palace prison, primary school, flour-mills, and a trade in wine and fruit. Pop. 1131.—3 (de-Juan-Alon), A tn. New Castile, prov. and 45 m. S.E. Ciudad-Real, with a handsome church, a courthouse, primary school, and bull-dog manufactures of woolen and linen cloth numerous distilleries and mills, and a trade in corn, wool wares and brandy. Pop. 1140.—4, (de-Miguel-Suarez), A tn. Extremadura, prov. and about 20 m. from Badajoz with a church, which originally belonged to the Templars, a courthouse, endowed school, manufactures of soap, and oil and flour mills Pop. 970.—5 (de-Santa-Maria), A vil. Extremadura, prov. and about 20 m. from Orense with a church, school, an oil mill and two flour mills and a trade in beef and hides. Pop. 1025.—6 (del-Cerro), A tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 4 m. W. Jaen. It has broad and paved streets, a square, in which stand a strong oil castle and a fountain; a townhouse and prison, several primary schools, and a parish church. Near it are two hermitages, the ruins of an ancient castle, several old watch-towers, and abundant quarries of gypsum. Pop. 5748.—7 (de-Fuente), A tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 31 m. N.E. Jaen; with rather well-built houses, and paved streets; a square, a good townhouse, a prison, two schools, two fountains, an hospital for the sick poor, and a parish church 17 oil-mills, and several brandy-distilleries. Pop. 3448.—8, (Don-Juan), A tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 8 m. W. Jaen, near the Guadalquivir; tolerably regularly built, with paved and generally broad streets, and several squares, a townhouse and prison, an ancient dilapidated castle, five primary schools, a fountain in the chief square, besides several outside the town; two hermitages, two convents, and two parish churches seven flour and 30 oil mills, an excellent and productive salt-work, five manufactures of soft soap, and more than 500 handlooms for fine linens worked by women. Pop. 5787.

TORRE-DE BUAZ, a vil and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Bergamo, 2 m. N.E. Caprino, in a well cultivated district, with two parish and five auxiliary churches. Pop. 1886.

TORRE-DE-MONCORTO, See Moncortio.

TORRE-DE-LUSANA, a tn. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin prov. and 12 m. S.W. Finerio, on a lofty conical hill, at the confluence of the Angoneva with the Felice. It has six small squares, one of which forms a planted public walk, a court of justice, a Waldensian Protestant, and a R. Catholic church a superior and an elementary school, an hospital, a charitable endowment and manufactures of silk and prepared chemicals skins. Pop. 3691.

TORRE-DE-MORNOVI, a vil and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Com. prov. and 4 m. S.E. E. Mondovì, a poorly built place with a parish church a charitable endowment, and the remains of an old castle. Pop. 1075.

TORRE-PALLAVICINA, a vil and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Bergamo 7 m. S.E. Romano, near bank Olho; with a church, tile-works, lime kilns and spinning-mills. P. 1384.

TORREBLANCA, a vil. Spain, Valencia, prov. and 24 m. N.E. Castellon-de-la-Plana, with primary schools, a church, and two hermitages. Pop. (agricultural), 1791.

TORRECAMPO, a vil. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 35 m. N.E. Cordova, at the meeting of four dales near the Guadalquivir. It has a townhouse and prison, two primary schools, church, and five hermitages several flour-mills, and small soap-manufactories two potteries, 14 looms for linen and hosiery, and their manufactures. Pop. 2108.

TORRECIJILLA, several places, Spain, particularly:—1 (de-Alonso), A tn. Aragon prov. Teruel, r. bank Mesquén, 70 m. from Saragossa. It is well built; has straight and well paved streets, a massive and richly-decorated church, a courthouse, and primary school and a trade in corn wine, and silk. Pop. 1034.—2 (de-la-Orden), A tn. Leon, prov. and 18 m. S.W. Valladolid; with a church, courthouse, prison, and primary school; manufactures of woolen, linen and hosiery cloth, tile-works, and a trade in the articles of manufacture, and in corn and cattle. Pop. 1837.—3, (de-Camero), A vil. Old Castile, prov. and 18 m. S.W. Logroño; with a townhouse, prison a porchouse, four beautiful fountains, two schools, and three churches united, and a mine of bole, considered by some superior to that of Armenia manufactures of clothes and paper, dye-works, a apicalate and several flour-mills. Pop. 1948.

TORRECUERO, a tn. Naples, prov. Principato-Ultra, dist. and 25 m. N.W. Avellino with two churches, an hospital, and an almshouse. Pop. 1700.

TORREDEBARRIA, a small seaport, Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 10 m. W.W. Tarragona, in the Mediterranean; lat. 41 11 N. lon. 1° 24' E. It has an ancient castle, two primary schools, a townhouse, an hospital with a public court, a parish church, and a chapel and manufactures of salt, soap, brandy hempen fabrics, and fishing-tackle. Pop. 1860.

TORREJON DE-AZORES, a vil. Spain, prov. and 11 m. N.E. Madrid, with a townhouse, two primary schools, and a church. Pop. (agricultural), 3016.

TORREJON DE-VELASCO, a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. and 18 m. S.W. Madrid; with a church, courthouse, primary school and old castle on an old-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1680.

TORREJONCILLO, a tn. Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 31 m. from Orense. The houses are ill-built, and the streets irregular, inconvenient, and ill-paved. It has a square with a fountain, in which stand the prison and townhouse; and it also has two splendid primary schools, a parish church, and several hermitages, manufactures of brown cloth, hats, leather, earthen jars, flour, oil, and falling mills, and a trade in cloth and wool. Pop. 6578.

TORREJONCILLO DEL-REY a vil. Spain New Castle, prov. and 38 m. S W Orense, r. bank Gálaga. It has a prison and townhouse, in one handsome edifice a good fountain, a public and a private primary school church, and hermitage, domestic manufactures of coarse linens and grogram, two dye-works, a shoemaking, two oil, and five flour mills. This is the birthplace of Alphonse de Ojeda, who was the first to follow in the track of Columbus, and who, accompanied by Amerigo Vesputi, discovered a portion of the continent of S. America. Pop. (agricultural) 2084.

TORRELAGUNA a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 32 m. N N E Madrid, with a townhouse, prison, three primary schools, and a church, a flour-mill, and manufactures of gypsum, bricks, and lime. Pop. (agricultural) 809.

TORREMANZANAS a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov. and about 80 m. from Alcala, 1 bank Torro with irregular streets; main features of earthenware, tile-works, and several oil and flour mills. Pop. 1106.

TORREMILANO, now called Dos Torres, a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov. and 88 m. N N E Cordova, with a townhouse and prison two primary schools, a church and several hermitages. Domestic manufactures of woollen fabrics and three flour-mills. Pop. (agricultural) 5005.

TORREMOCHA a vil. Spain Extremadura, prov. and 13 m. S E. Caesera, with a townhouse, primary school and church, falling and several flour mills, and some handicrafts for brown cloth, also some traffic in that article, as well as in sheep and swine. Pop. 2908.

TORRENTE (JACAR), S. Australia. See AUSTRALIA.

TORRENTE, a tn. Spain, prov. and 6 m. N W Valencia situated on a small eminence beside a mountain torrent. The houses are large, and in general two stories, and are laid out into broad and comfortable streets and regular squares, in one of which stands a large tower apparently of Saracenian construction. There are three primary endowed schools, a parish church, two hermitages, and on a hill near the town a well-spread convent. In the vicinity are some country-houses also quarters of yellow marble, which a moderate heat changes into red, adorned with beautiful clouds. Industry—agriculture, two flour-mills, 70 oil mills, almost every proprietor who has proper convenience being provided with one of these machines. The natives of Torrente are remarkably thrifty and laborious, and besides supplying Valencia with bread and other articles, many of them visit the principal towns in Spain selling oil, wax, and various fabrics. Some are also employed in preparing emulsions of almonds, &c. Pop. 5021.

TORRENUOVA a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 32 m. S E. Ciudad Real, pleasantly situated among gardens, olive-yards, and vineyards, nearly enclosed by the Jabalon. It has a parish church, two primary schools, a courthouse and prison, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, brick, and tile works, lime-kilns, and a trade in corn and oil. Pop. 1390.

TORREQUEMADA, a vil. Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 19 m. from Caesera, with a church, courthouse, prison, endowed school, and very ancient tower, several flour-mills, and an important annual cattle-fair. Pop. 4040.

TORRES, a vil. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 10 m. E. Jaen, consisting of ill-built houses with a square, townhouse, and prison, two primary endowed schools, and parish church, 11 oil and six flour mills. Pop. 5392.

TORRES, two places, Portugal, prov. Estremadura—1, (Nova) A tn. 18 m. N by E. Beja, on a flat watered by a small affluent of the bank Tagus. It is surrounded by walls, and defended by a strong castle, contains four parish churches, a Latin school, and almshouse; and has manufactures of cotton. Pop. 4268.—2 (Vedra), A tn., 1 bank Alentejo, which is here crossed by several bridges 35 m. N by W Lisbon. It is partly surrounded by old walls, and defended by a castle, but is not capable of much resistance. It contains four parish churches, two hospitals and a Latin school, carries on a considerable trade in wine, and has an annual fair. In the neighbourhood are an aqueduct with Gothic arches, and the celebrated convent of Vazirado. Torres-Vedra has been rendered familiar to British ears by the famous lines of defence which Wellington erected on the neighbouring heights in 1810 and behind which his army lay, encompassed till the decisive moment arrived, when it descended and compelled the enemy to a hasty and most disastrous retreat. Pop. 3886.

TORRES VEDRAS.—From Vimeiro. Property of Portugal and Spain.

TORRES STRAIT the strait which separates Australia from Papua, its distance across, from Cape York the most N point of Australia, to New Guinea, being about 80 m. It is crowded with islands, shoals, and reefs rendering its navigation difficult.

TORRETTA a vil and com. Franco, dep. Alpes Maritimes, near Lavenex with two small squares a church in hospital a free school and the remains of an old castle. Pop. 1266.

TORRE VIEJA a seaport, Spain Valencia, prov. and 28 m. S W Alcala, on the Mediterranean W from Cape Cervera. Lat. 37° 59' N. Lon. 0° 41' W. It has straight broad streets and three squares, but the clusters of hotels at the skirts of the town detract much from its beauty and symmetry. It has a townhouse, several primary schools, a parish church, and a cemetery several flour-mills, and some looms for linen, hempen, and cotton fabrics. The anchorage is good, but much exposed. There is an extensive and very productive salt lake in the neighbourhood, the produce of which constitutes the chief export of the port. About 865 vessels, of 27,625 tons, annually clear onwards. Pop. 8676.

TORRICE a tn. Italy, dalg. and E.S.E. Frosinone, on a hill. Pop. 1040.

TORRICELLA a tn. Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Citra, 18 m. S W Lanciano, on a lofty eminence, with manufactures of coarse woollens, and a fair of two days. Pop. 2600.

TORRICELLA DEL-FRANCO, a vil and com. Austrian Italy prov. and S.E. Cremona, near L. bank Po. It contains a parish church and has several mills. Pop. 1533.

TORRIGLIE a river, England, co. Devon, which passes Torrington and falls into Huddard Bay. Course, about 40 m.

TORRION (Locs) an inlet of the sea, Scotland, W coast, co. Ross, 11 m or 12 m long, consisting of three com. parlements, connected by narrow straits, the innermost basin being of considerable size.

TORRIGLIA a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. and N.E. Genoa, in the centre of an amphitheatre of hills among the Apennines. It has a handsome church, with a lofty spire; a small convent, and an ancient tower, forming the only remains of a very strong castle which it once possessed. Pop. 4672.

TORRIJO a vil. Spain, Aragón, prov. Saragossa, on the slope of a hill above the Marchas here crossed by a stone bridge of three arches. It contains a church, courthouse, prison, primary school, and flour and falling-mills. Pop. 1276.

TORRIJOS, a vil. Spain New Castle, prov. and 18 m. W S W Toledo, in a damp valley between the Tagus and a small range of hills. This much decayed place was once a walled town, and is still entered by two ancient gates, and surrounded by portions of earthen ramparts. It has a spa-cleans and modest palaces of Count Almaraz, a townhouse, three-story school, a small hospital for the sick poor, a large public edifice, a munary and parish church, manufacture of soap, hair, and chocolate, and 17 oil and several flour mills. Pop. 1824.

TORKILE, a vil. and com. daily and 9 m. N Paros with a primary school, and a trade in corn, rice, wine, silk, cattle, and dairy produce. Pop. 2346.

TORRINGTON, several parcs. Eng. 3.—1 (East) Lincoln, 1498 ac. Pop. 115.—2 (West) Lincoln, 1109 ac. Pop. 138.—3 (Berk), Devon 7700 ac. Pop. 1115.—4 (Little) Devon 2880 ac. Pop. 623.

TORRINGTON (SUMER), a market town and par England co. Devon, on the slopes and summit of a fine eminence rising steeply from the r bank Torridge, 83 m. N W Exeter; houses chiefly of stone, irregularly built. It has an ancient church and three Dissenting chapels, a neat modern market-hall, two charity schools and one or two commercial schools and two small public reading-rooms. Glove-making is the principal business of the place, giving employment to many hundred females. There are also full-mongers, curriers, and tanners. General Monk was born in a hamlet in the vicinity, and hence the title of Earl or Viscount Torrington bestowed on him by Charles II at the Restoration. Area of par 8456 ac. Pop. 3308.—(Local Correspondent).

TORKIB, a vil. Sicily prov and 17 m. W S W Catania on an acclivity above the plain of Catania. Finer-spar is found here.

TORRITA SOTTO MONTE POLLICINO, a ts and com. Tuscany 22 m. from Arezzo, built in the form of an oval and surrounded with fortified walls. It has a handsome parish and two other churches, a school hospital, theatre, manufacture of woollens and hair, dye-works, a silk and several oil mills. Pop. 3979.

TORRUELLA DE MORREZ, a ts in Spain, Catalonia, prov and 16 m. E. E. Girona, on the Tur 4 m. from the Medi terrace, at the foot of a hill crowned by an ancient castle. It has a townhouse, primary school, a church connected with two other churches, and manufacture of soap and brandy. Some fish are salted and exported. Pop. 8,000.

TORREX, a seaport, Spain Andalusia, prov and 34 m. E. Malaga lat. 36° 48' N, lon 5° 3' W, houses two and three stories, not well built, and with crooked and steep streets, two squares, a townhouse, several schools, a church, hermitage, and two fountains, three flour and two oil mills, two poteries, a bready-distillery, a sugar-mill and fishery. Pop. (agricultural) 4174.

TORREBUJA DEL CAMPO, a vil Spain New Castle, prov Caen, and 50 m. S. E. Madrid with a townhouse, two primary endowed schools, a parish church, two oil and two gypsum mills. Pop. 1750.

TORRY, two villages, Scotland.—1 Co. Fife, 4 m. W by S. Dunfermline, formerly in a flourishing state but greatly declined since the discontinuance of its extensive salt-works. Some coal is still exported from it.—2 Co. Kincardine, 1 m. S. by E. Aberdeen, on the S. shore of the Dee and harbour of Aberdeen. The inhabitants are mostly engaged in the fisheries. The salt taken consists of salm and kaducka, long turbid sea. There is a school in the village.

TORRY ISLAND, a rocky isl. Ireland S. coast, co. Donegal lat. (light-house, N W end) 55° 17' N lon 8° 15' W It is about 24 m. long, and 1 m. broad. The N side presents a range of cliffs 100 ft. to 800 ft. high the land slopes down to the S. shore, which is flat. The inhabitants consisting of about 70 families support themselves by fishing and tillage. On the N point of the island is a light-house, the lantern of which is 122 ft. above sea-level.

TORREYHILL, par Scot. Fife 5 m. by 2 m. P 1341.

TORBA, a small isl. W coast of Scotland, co. Argyll, between the land and the island of Luing, lat. 56° 17' N lon. 6° 40' W. It has a quarry of excellent slate.

TORTEVAL, par Guernsey Pop. 855.

TORTHORWALL, par Scot. Dumfri. 5600 ac. P 1813.

TORTINGTON, par Eng. Sussex 1181 ac. Pop. 104.

TORTOLA, one of the Virgin Islands, W Indies, belonging to Great Britain lat. 18° 24' 6" N, lon 64° 32' W [c], about 12 m. long E. to W, and 3 m. to 4 m. broad at its widest part, consisting of a mass of rugged and precipitous mountains rising E. to W, from one extremity of the island to another. The shores are fringed with bays, harbours, and creeks, and, together with the adjacent coasts, afford shelter and anchorage for a great extent of shipping.

TORTOLI, a vil and com. isl. Sardinia, div Cagliari, prov and 10 m. E. N. E. Lanusei, near the gulf of same name, on the E coast. It is the see of a bishop, and has a large cathedral, an Augustine convent, and a considerable trade in wine and cheese, chiefly with Genoa. Pop. 1498.

TORTONA, a m. Italy Piedmont, div and 12 m. E. Alessandria, cap. prov, at the foot of a bare and unincult hill, r bank Sesia. It is an ancient place, and was once of great strength, but its fortifications were completely destroyed by the French after the battle of Marengo so that now only some vestiges of the citadel and a single gate remain. It is not well built, the houses being generally arranged in narrow and ill-formed streets. In the only handsome square stands the cathedral, which has nothing remarkable except some paintings, and a finely-sculptured sacrosculpture, containing some 12 figures a Phœnix, and a Caesar and Pollux. The other principal edifices are four parish churches, three convents, a royal college a Latin and several other schools, a diocesan seminary, a civic hospital, a theatre, barracks, and a handsome cattle and corn-market. The manufacture consists of silk goods, bombazines and other stuffs, and there is a considerable trade in corn and wine. Tortona is the see of a bishop the residence of a commandant, and the seat of a superior law-court, and several public offices. It is the ancient Tortona, supposed to have been founded by the Gauls who invaded Italy under Brennus, and is mentioned by Ptolemy among the distinguished Lagurini cities situated between the Apennines and the Po. It has repeatedly suffered much from war. Pop. 10,821.

TORTORA, a ts Naples, prov Calabria-Citra, 45 m. N N W Paola, on the flat summit of a lofty hill near the Gulf of Policastro. Pop. 1580.

TORTORELLA, a ts Naples, prov Principato-Citra, E. S. E. 11 Valle, on a rugged hill near a bank Mucanò; with a collegiate church. Pop. 1069.

TORTORICI, a vil Sicily prov and 43 m. W S W Messina Pop. 2800.

TORTOSA (anc. Dertosa), a city Spain Catalonia prov and 46 m. S W Tarragona, on a hill-slope, 1 bank Ebro, here crossed by a wooden bridge. It is fortified on all sides, and some portions of the walls are of great antiquity. The town, which is entered by three gates, consists of irregular, ill-paved, narrow, and on the N and S steep streets; several small squares, and houses generally well built of granite, and three or four stories high. It has a townhouse, prison custom house, bull ring, ambulances, barracks, baths, episcopal palace, Gothic cathedral, with Louis chapel, numerous other churches and chapels, three nunneries six convents converted to secular purposes, an hospital for the sick, a founding hospital, a theological school a school for the higher branches of education, besides numerous primary schools and a lyceum oil and flour mills, manufactures of soap fine cloth, cottons, leather, broadly common earthenware, cordage, linen, wax-candles, plain glass, starch, and baskets, ropes, &c., of palm and superior and an important trade, through its two ports, El Fanger and Los Alfaques at the mouth of the Ebro, as well as directly—the river being navigable by vessels of 100 tons—in the wheat of Aragon, timber from the Pyrenees, Aragon, and Catalonia, wine from Godall Calers, and other places, as well as that of the country oil, wool, alum, silk, barilla, soda, charcoal, liquors, tares, pitch, tar, straw, paper, fruits &c. This city was wrested from the Moors by Louis-le-Delormaire, in 811, but was soon recovered by them, and became a nest of pirates, and a thorn to Italian commerce. Eugenius III. therefore proclaimed a crusade against it, and it was taken in 1148. In 1149 the Moors made a desperate effort to regain possession of the city, but were defeated, partly through the bravery of the women who mounted the battlements, while the men sallied forth and routed the Moors. Tortosa was taken in 1798 by the French under the Duke of Orleans. This bulwark of Valancia and Catalonia was shamefully surrendered in 1811, by General Lalli, who was afterwards tried for cowardice and condemned to death, but received pardon from Ferdinand VII. Pop. 20,532.

TORTORA, a ts Asiatic Turkey, pan. and 80 m. N Tripoli, on the Levant, opposite the isl. of Rhod. It once plus the site of the ancient Othello, and was formerly a place of importance, but now presents little more than the remains of its wall, and a large ruined castle.

TORTIVAR, or TORTIVARA, a vil. Austria, Transylvania, 14 m. S.W. Kronstadt, on a hill above the Tisza with a R. Catholic and a Greek non-united church, a castle, and a custom-house. Pop. 5690.

TORTUGANS—1. A group of islets or cays at the entrance of the Gulf of Mexico, 120 m. W. S. Cape Yucata, the S. extremity of Yucata, about lat. 24° 37' N., and lon. 88° W. They are 10 in. number, very low, and partly covered with mangrove-trees. On one of them, called Bush or Garden Cay, a lighthouse has been erected.—2. An island, W. India, N. E. coast of Cuba, from which it is only separated by a narrow channel called El-Savirral, length, N. W. to S. E. 38 m. breadth, about 8 m. It forms the entrance to the harbor of Las Navilas-del Principe.

TORTWORTH, par. Eng. Gloucester, 1651 ad. P. 257
TOSCANIA, the Italian name of Tuscany (see also) TOSCANELLA (see Toscani) in Regal States, Italy, and 88 m. N. Civita Vecchia, on a hill washed by the Mare. It is surrounded with battlemented walls and towers, and having been one of the strongholds of Francesco Sforza, has stood numerous sieges. After one of these by Charles VIII. of France, it was made a heap of ruins, and all its old buildings were destroyed, except two churches, one of which is adorned with pillars, mosaics, and antique sculptures. Sul phur is mined in the neighborhood. Pop. 4060.

TOSCOLANO a town and com. Italy. Lombardy prov. and 21 m. N. E. Brescia, on a height above the W. shore of Lake Garda. It is an ancient place, supposed to occupy the site of the Roman Besceno and in the 16th century was celebrated for its Paganini press, at which many valuable but now as extremely rare editions of the classics were printed. It has a parish and two auxiliary churches, extensive manufactures of paper, several oil-mills, and a trade in wine, oil, silk, iron, and fruit. Pop. 3484.

TOSKANA, par. Eng. Huntingdon 1830 ad. P. 230.
TOSMA, or TOSMA, a town, Doonagh 4 in. Anasle Turkey Anatolia, 60 m. S.W. Sinop, in a fertile valley on the Derrek or Doros, an affluent of the Kizil Irnak consisting of about 1000 houses, generally well built, with five mosques.

TOSNA, a river, Russia, rises in the N. W. of gov. Novgorod, enters gov. Petersburg flows N. W. and after a course of about 60 m. joins r. bank Neva. It is much used for floating timber to the capital.

TOSNA, a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 12 m. N. E. Zurich, on the Rhodan here crossed by a covered bridge. It contains the remains of a celebrated Dominican convent, now used as a corn and salt magazine. The Rhodan were defeated here in 1299 by Duke Albrecht of Austria. P. 1446.

TOSNA, a town, Catalonia, prov. and 20 m. S. Gerona, near a cape of same name in the Mediterranean, at the foot of steep, lofty, and almost inaccessible heights. It has a church, hospital, and primary school; manufactures of cotton goods and cork, a fishery and some customs-trade. Pop. 1663.

TOST or TOSKEA, a town, prov. Silene, gov. Calabria, and 28 m. S. E. Oppido, cap. circle. It has a court of law, two churches, and a synagogue; manufactures of linen and shoes, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1598.

TOSTAK, a river, Siberia, rises in gov. Yakutsk, near lat. 65° N. flows N. W. and joins r. bank Jana, after a course of about 400 m. Its chief affluent is the Adiga, which joins it on the left.

TOSTOCK, par. Eng. Suffolk, 940 ad. Pop. 848.

TOTALAN, a vil. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 6 m. S. E. Malaga, on a hill with a church and a primary school. It sends parientes to Malaga. Pop. 1068.

TOTANA, a vil. Spain, prov. and 27 m. S. W. Murcia, interrupted by a ravine. It has been reduced to half the size it had as no very distant date by wars and epidemic diseases. It consists of ill built and irregular houses, and dirty and ill-paved streets; and has a substantial townhouse, various schools, a solid Tuscan parish church, besides several other churches, and two fountains, eight potteries, which produce much esteemed earthenware and a few looms for linen and a small trade of wool and iron-ware, called totes. Pop. 6664.

TOTANE, two par. Eng. Essex—1. (Great), 6668 ad. Pop. 666—2. (Little) 1838 ad. Pop. 896.

Vol. II

TOTRALU, several places, Hungary—1. A vil. on Pest, about 8 m. from Waidom, on a hill in the Danube, with a Protestant church, a fishery a mill and some shipping trade. Pop. 2540.—2. A vil., co. Zips, about 9 m. from Kismark with several handsome villas, a R. Catholic church a mill, and mineral-springs. Pop. 1376.

TOTHILL, par. Eng. Lincoln, 854 ad. Pop. 59.

TOTMA, a town, Russia, gov. and 111 m. N. E. Volodga, cap. circle, at the confluence of the Totma with the Sezhema. It consists chiefly of three large streets; contains 17 churches and three monasteries, and has extensive salt-works, and a considerable trade, carried on both with Archangel and Siberia. Pop. (1848), 8208.

TOTNESS, a town market town, and par. England, on Devon, 24 m. S. E. W. Exeter, on the Dart, over which is a handsome bridge of three arches. It is well built; has a church in the later English style, and two Dissenting chapels two libraries, a small theatre, an assembly-room, and two endowed schools. Some large weaving is carried on, but this branch of manufactures has fallen greatly off of late. There is a considerable shipping-trade, vessels of 100 tons burden being now able to come up to the town at all times of the tide. The principal articles of export are cider, coal, grain, and wool. Great quantities of salmon are taken in the Dart. Totness sends two members to Parliament. Area of par. unincorporated with manner of Huddington, 1043 ad. Pop. 6838.

TOTONICAPAN, a town, corrientinos of the name, Central America, Guatemala 85 m. N. W. Guatemala city, it has manufactures of some earthenware, wooden utensils, woven cloths, and a few other articles. Near it is a medicinal spring, and also a mine-spring from which a good deal of salt is extracted. P. 12,000.—The communication is bounded, N. E. by Vera-Paz, S. E. Solola, S. W. Quetzaltenango, N. W. Chiapas, and N. the lands of the Maya Indians, area, 9600 sq. m. The valleys here are well watered, and the land fertile, yielding good crops of wheat, maize, various fruits, vegetables, and some sugar the pastures also rear large number of cattle. The inhabitants are chiefly Indian, speaking the Quiché language.

TOTOUA, or TOTOUA, one of the Fudges Is., S. Pacific Is., lat. 18° 58' S., lon. 179° 57' W. high and rugged, of volcanic formation, covered with luxuriant foliage and fertile, particularly in its valleys.

TOTTENHAM, a vil. and par. England, co. Middlesex near the Lea and the Eastern Counties railway 4 m. N. N. E. London. It consists of a long street of handsome but irregularly-arranged houses, and numerous detached villas, and has an ancient church, with a square embattled tower grown over with ivy, and several interesting monuments a district church, with burses at its angles; Baptist, Independent, Friends, Wesleyan, and R. Catholic chapels a grammar-school, several almshouses manufactures of various articles of earthenware and earthenware, a brewery and large flour and oil mills. Area of par., 8408 ad. Pop. 9120.

TOTTENHILL, par. Eng. Norfolk, 1650 ad. P. 412.

TOTTENRIDGE, par. Eng. Herts, 1697 ad. Pop. 635.

TOTTENRIDGE, par. Eng. Bedford 1894 ad. P. 753.

TOTTENTON, par. Eng. Norfolk, 1818 ad. P. 279.

TOTTINGTON, a town, Canada, a vil. and township, Eng. land, co. Lancashire on the East Lancashire railway, 8 m. W. N. W. Bury with a neat district church, a Wesleyan chapel, an endowed school extensive manufactures of cotton goods, calico print-works, several collieries, and freestone-quarries. Pop. 10,591.

TOUTAT, TOUTAT or TOUTAT, a territory or estate of the Sahara, Africa; about lat. 26° to 29° N. intersected by the meridian of 1° E. estimated at nearly 200 m. in length N. to S. It contains a great number of villages, generally built of sun-dried bricks, and surrounded by date and other fruit trees; and is divided into five districts or independent chiefdoms, which, beginning at the N. are Mahara, cap. Tebaloua Gouara, cap. Timimoun D' A. Gueugout, cap. Kaabab-el Hamara; Touat proper, cap. Sba and Tididit, cap. Isouak. The inhabitants consist of two distinct races. The one are Hall Touat, properly so called, who live in the towns and villages, call themselves Zenata, speak the language of that name, profess Mahomedanism and though as black as negroes, are essentially distinguished from them by their equine nose, thin lips, and other features. The other ness consists of Arabs, who live in tents and speak Arabic, but use the Senegal tongue in trading. The principal food of both races is mutton mutton-fat, better known as mutton, and corn. The last is imported from the Tell of Algeria by muleback caravans. Among the principal articles of trade are gunpowder and saltpetre—the former manufactured at Senegal, and the other obtained from the mines of Ténia—brought from Tidjebelt, Senegal, Senegal, better known, Senegal.

TOULOUAI (anc. Toulouai), a group of islands, S. Pacific Ocean, S. of the Society Islands and Low Archipelago lat. 21° 50' to 23° 45' S; lon. 152° to 147° 11' W. The principal islands of the group are Yavito, the largest. Toulouai proper which is not more than 5 m. in extent, and Oheerua or Kourouma, which rises to the height of 1800 ft. and has a numerous and industrious population.

TOUCQUE (La) (anc. Touque), a river, France, rises in dep. Orne flows about 200 N. across dep. Calvados, and falls into the English Channel at the village of its name total course, about 60 m., of which 24 m., when favoured by the tide, are navigable.

TOUCU (anc. Toucou) a tn. France, dep. Yonne, 15 m. S.W. Auxerre with an ancient church, manufactures of coarse woollens and leather, and a trade in wood. Pop. 1881

TOUCU (anc. Toucou) a tn. France, dep. Yonne, 15 m. S.W. Auxerre with an ancient church, manufactures of coarse woollens and leather, and a trade in wood. Pop. 1881

TOUL (anc. Toul) a tn. France, dep. Meurthe, on a fertile plain on the Moselle being crossed by a handsome bridge of seven arches, 12 m. W. Nancy. It is a place of some strength being surrounded by walls flanked with bastions, but the houses are indifferently built, and the streets are irregular and badly paved with flints. It has a Gothic cathedral, founded in the 10th century with a fine facade 227 ft. high, and much-admired portal; the old collegiate church of St. Gengoul, a townhouse formerly the episcopal palace college barracks, corn-market civil hospital and hospital or Maison-Dieu, manufactures of clove, leather and embroidery the latter of which employs more than 1000 hands and a trade in wine and brandy. Pop. 6082

TOULON-SUR-ARMOUX (anc. Tulorum ad-Armorum) a tn. France, dep. Seine-et-Marne on the Armoix here crossed by a bridge of 13 arches 40 m. N.W. Mâcon. It has a trade in corn, cattle, and wood. Pop. 1556

TOULON-DE-MER (anc. Tilo-Meris) a seaport in and after Brest, the most important naval arsenal of France, dep. Var admirably situated at the bottom of a deep double bay of the Mediterranean 30 m. S.E. Marseille lat. observatory 43° 30' N. lon. 5° 55' E. (p. 1). It stands on a slope which ascends gradually from the sea, and terminates towards the moorland, and with the exception of the S. and E., which are somewhat exposed, perfectly safe anchorage. In front of the bay is a projecting tongue of land, which stretches across so as nearly to close its entrance, and along which, as well as the adjacent points, numerous forts and redoubts have been erected, making a successful attack by sea all but impossible.

In this manner on the land side the fortifications are of the most complete description. In addition to the fortifications which surround the town, strong forts and outworks occupy all the important heights, and complete the defences. In the town itself, if we except the arsenal and other marine establishments which are on a scale of almost unrivalled magnificence, there is not much to excite interest. The houses are generally well built, but the space occupied by them is small compared with the extent of the population, and hence they are much crowded together without regularity, in narrow streets or small insignificant squares. The only edifice, unconnected with the marine which deserves notice are the cathedral, possessed of little architectural merit, and badly situated, the church of Notre-Dame, with a fine facade, the church of St. Louis, adorned with an elegant colonnade and the Académie, a handsome structure facing the harbour. The port which is separated from the mainland by a mole, which is hollow and bomb-proof and lined by batteries, is divided into two divisions—the Port-Marchand or Darce-Vieille on the E. appropriated to merchant vessels, lined with a fine quay and handsome edifices and the Port Militaire or Darce-Neuve on the W., surrounded by the dock yard ship, arsenal, storehouses, cannon-foundry, park of artillery &c. Neither the manufacture nor trade are of much importance. The former consist of wool-cloth, cordage, soap candles, and chemicals. Ship-building, also, is carried on to some extent and there are several dye-works, tanneries, and iron-foundries. The trade has increased considerably since the occupation of Algiers, and is chiefly in corn, flour, salt-provisions, wine, brandy oil, capers, and fruit. There are two annual fairs, one of which lasts eight days. Toulon is the seat of a maritime prefecture, and a court of first resort and commerce and possesses a second class school of hydrography, a medical naval school academy communal college, botanical garden, museum of natural history marine zoological, and degre or hulka, in which on an average 5500 convicts are detained. Though a place of considerable and early there is nothing in its early history deserving of notice. It owes its importance as a naval station to Louis XIV., who expended vast sums on it under the superintendence of Van-the most memorable and disastrous event connected with it took place in 1793 when the British, to whom the royalists had surrendered, after having been forced to retire, after a siege in which Bonaparte gave the first decided proofs of his military genius, the republicans revenge themselves by giving up the town to pillage and the inhabitants to almost indiscriminate massacre. Pop. 39 145

TOULOUSE, an ancient dist. France which belonged to the prov. of Languedoc, and is now included in depts. Haute-Garonne and Tarn-et-Garonne. Toulouse was its capital

TOULOUSE (anc. Tulosa Tolosa) a tn. France, cap. dep. Haute-Garonne, finely situated on the Garonne, where it is joined by the canals du Midi and Brienne, and on the trunk-line of railway which connects the Mediterranean with the Bay of Biscay 132 m. S.E. Bordeaux and 200 m. N.W. Marseille. It is built chiefly on the r. bank of the river but partly also on an island in its channel, a handsome bridge across the river communicates with the large suburb of St. Cyprien. It is of an irregular oval form, and was surrounded with old walls flanked with towers, which have almost entirely disappeared to make way for extensive modern improvements. The appearance of the town by no means corresponds to the beauty of its site. It is almost entirely composed of clumsy antiquated houses of red brick, badly ornamented with clay and of a very gloomy appearance, and the streets are narrow, winding, ill paved, and dirty. Several parts of the town, however, are gradually assuming a modern and handsome appearance. Among others may be mentioned the Place-de-Capitaine, a large and well-built square, adorned with four avenues, one at each angle, and the chief place of busie and traffic, and the Place-Fayette, a circular lined with regular mansions, and opening on the St. into a fine promenade, composed of three parallel alleys. The principal edifices are the Hotel-de-ville or capital, near the centre of the town, in the square to which it gives its name, a large structure, adorned in front with eight columns of red marble, and including, in addition to the municipal buildings, a theatre in the left wing; the cathedral, built about the beginning of the 13th century; but subsequently repaired and altered, so as to present a very incongruous appearance; the church of St. Sernin, the oldest and most perfect of the ecclesiastical edifices, built of brick and stone, in the Romanesque style, and rendered conspicuous by a lofty octagonal tower formed by five tiers of arches; the church of St. Taur, with a remarkable bellry; the church of the Jacobins surmounted by a lofty black tower, and now converted into a barracks; the picture-gallery with many bad and two or three good paintings; the museum, with a good collection of Gallia, Roman, and Gothic antiquities; the Convent des Inquisition an obscure edifice, remarkable only for the atrocities which the tribunal to which it owes its name perpetrated within its precincts; and the palais-de-justice, in which the parliament of Toulouse used to hold its sittings, but now so completely modernized as to have lost all its ancient features. The manufactures consist of coarse woollen cloth and woollen covers, silk and printed cotton goods, vermifell, gilet-de-toile-à-cordons (dark liver pie), starch, wax candles, military costumes, and porcelain. There are also numerous tanneries, both for summer and morocco leather; a genuine flint gunpowder and tobacco factories, dye-works, distilleries, and cotton-mills. The trade, general and transit, is important, being greatly favoured by the situation of the town, and facilitated both by water and railway communication. The chief articles are corn and flour, wine, brandy colonial produce, iron and ironware, oil, soap, and feathers. Toulouse is the see of an archbishop, the seat of an appeal court for depts. Haute-Garonne, Ariège, Tarn and Tarn-et-Garonne, and of courts of first resort and commerce; and possesses a chamber of commerce and exchange, a mint, a chambre de commerce, a Promenade divinity hall, a diocesan seminary faculties of law, science, and literature, a secondary school of medicine, veterinary school and school of artillery an excellent botanical garden, agricultural society antiquarian society and academy of science, inscriptions, and belles-lettres. It is a place of great antiquity, and rose to eminence under the Romans, who embellished it with a capital, amphitheatre, and other edifices, of which vestiges still remain. In the beginning of the 6th century the Visigoths became its masters, and made it the capital of their kingdom, which it continued to be till 506 when Clovis gained possession of it. Subsequently under Charlemagne it became the capital of Aquitaine. It was afterwards governed by independent counts, and in the 11th century fell a prey to the cruel blights of the Inquisition, who here established their infamous tribunal, and encouraged multitudes of Albigenses and Vaudois to the flames. The most memorable event in the modern history of Toulouse, is the defeat of the French by the British, under its walls in 1814, while ignorant that, by the abolition of Bonaparte, hostilities had ceased. Pop. (1822), 71,254.

W in a range of lofty hills. These, stretching their arms round, encompass the bay and nearly landlock it, forming a secluded and harbour where the largest fleet can find cover

TOULON, a river Gironde, forming a part of the boundary between it and Manchou. It flows N.E. then S.E., and falls into the Sea of Japan near lat. 42° 30' N, after a course of about 160 m.

TOULON-CLARE, a river China, which rises in a mountain district near the S. frontiers of prov. Kiangnan, enters prov. Kwangtung flows S.W. to Hout-tchou then nearly W., and dividing into several branches, falls into the bay 51 m. S.E. of the town of Canton, after a course of about 250 m.

TOULON-ALPES (La) a vil. France, dep. Var, 18 m. S.S.E. Apt, named from a Roman tower which once stood here by. Pop. 1468.

TOULON-FIN (La), a tn. France, dep. Isère, l. bank Rhodan, 41 m. N.W. Grenoble with manufactures of boot-making. Pop. 2214.

TOURAIN, an ancient prov. France, which consisted of an upper and a lower division, and had Tours for its capital. It is now included in dep. Indre-et-Loire.

TOURNAI, or TONNOIR, a tn. France, dep. Nord, 9 m. N.E. Lille, on the railway from Lille to Courtrai.

It is a tolerably regular and well-built manufacturing town, which has more than doubled its inhabitants since the commencement of the present century. It contains two churches, a townhall, and the remains of an old feudal castle; and possesses a communal college, conseil-de-prévôtés, and chamber of manufactures. Its great staples are ordinary and table linen, molasses, candles, and coarse cotton goods. It has also manufactures of carpets, numerous cotton and worsted mills, sugar-refineries, soap-works, dye-works, and distilleries. Pop. 15,885.

TOURNAI, a tn. Chinese Turkestan, near the Thian-shan Mountains, 180 m. W. Kiamul. It is the residence of a prince invested with power over Tournai and five other towns.

TOURINNE, two places, Belgium.—1. (Les-Gardens-St.-Lambert-Libercourt), A vil and com, prov. S. Brabant, on the RH, 24 m. S.E. Brussels. It has a brewery and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1702.—2. (de-Groen), A vil and com, not far from the former on the Meuse, 21 m. S. Brussels. It has several breweries, but agriculture is the chief employment. Pop. 1174.

TOURNAVILLE (see Tournai), a tn. France, dep. Manche, 2 m. S.E. Cherbourg with the remains of an ancient castle and a slate quarry. Near it are several Druidical monuments. Pop. 1845.

TOURNAI, or LOCHNAY (Flemish, Donaai, Latin, Thronacum) a tn. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 38 m. W.N.W. Mons, on the railway thence to Brussels, and on both sides of the Scheldt, which it here crosses by several handsome bridges, and enclosed by superb quays, finely planned, so as to form excellent promenades. It possesses strong fortifications, including an admirably-constructed citadel by Vauban, entered by seven gates and consists in general of spacious streets and squares, lined by well built houses. The principal edifices and establishments are the cathedral, a very ancient structure, of Romanesque and Ogival architecture, with five pointed towers a majestic interior of which the choir is particularly adorned, many interesting remains of antiquity, and some good paintings, among which is one of the South in Purgatory by Rubens seven other churches, of which that of St. Brice, with the tomb of King Childeric adjoining, is the most deserving of notice; the ancient convent of St. Martin, and its Gothic church now used partly as a townhouse and partly as a museum, with a park and botanical garden adjoining the belfry a lofty tower in the market-place, of unknown date, but supposed to have formed, in the beginning of the thirteenth century, the duplex of a castle, a large and imposing building in the Romanesque style, originally a cloth hall, and now converted into the principal guard house; a concert-room, with a colonnade arcade supporting a dance court; of first resort and numerous, superior luxury and other schools, a school of arts, an academy of design, painting, sculpture, and architecture; an unusual seminary, a picture-gallery, a public library, an observatory, a theatre, a deaf and dumb asylum, literary and musical societies, and several hospitals and similar benevolent institutions. The manufactures, which are extensive, employing about three-fourths of the inhabitants, consist principally of woollen and cotton hosiery, carpets, which have long been celebrated, porcelain, on a very large scale, linen and cotton tissues, leather, and lace. The trade, favoured both by the railway and the navigation of the Scheldt, includes, in addition to the manufactures, a large export of lime from quarries in the vicinity and besides a daily market for provisions, a weekly market for corn, flax, and linen thread, and three weekly markets for cattle, there are a number of important cattle and linen annual fairs, two of which last 10 days.

THE MARKET PLACE TOURNAI, WITH THE CATHEDRAL AND BELFRY.—From Pons's Sketches in France and Germany

Tournai, formerly the capital of the Tournaisis, is one of the oldest towns of Belgium. It is supposed to be the Civitas Nervorum mentioned by Julius Caesar, because in 458 the residence of Merovee, third king of the Franks and was often occupied by his successor, Childeric, who founded his cathedral, and died in it in 481. It was fortified by Philip the Fair in 1295, and afterwards figures much in history. Of its many sieges, that in which it was heroically defended by Marie de Lorraine, Princess of Guise against the Duke of Parma, is the most famous. Pop. 38,000.

TOURNAI, an ancient dist. Belgium, which had Tournai for its capital. With the exception of a part belonging to W. Flanders, it is now included in prov. Hainaut.

TOURNAI (Flemish, T'Wey) a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on an affluent of the Senne, 9 m. S. Brussels. It has manufactures of paper, a brewery several flour-mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 2745.

TOURNAI (anc. Tournon) a tn. France, dep. Ardèche, 25 m. N. Privas, at the foot of a steep precipice, r. bank Rhone, opposite to Tala, with which it communicates by a handsome suspension bridge. It has a court of first resort an agricultural society a college, an old castle of the counts of Tournon, now used as a prison and a trade in wine, champagne, with thread and silk goods wool and woollen cloth wood, &c. Pop. 5618.

TOURNAI (anc. Tournon) a tn. France, dep. Indre-et-Loire, r. bank Loire, here lined by a handsome quay, and crossed by a wooden bridge of five arches, 10 m. N. E. M. Loire. It contains an ancient church in the Romanesque style, two hospitals, a townhouse, and house of correction. In the public square there is a granite pillar, supposed to have belonged to a Roman temple. The manufactures consist of woollen and cotton weaves, molasses-bits, tiles, potash and boot-top sugar, and the trade is in corn, wine, and building-stones. The painter Greuze, who died at Paris in 1805 was born here. Pop. 4216.

TOURNEPPE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut on the Little Dendre, 16 m. N. W. Mons, with manufactures of bonery, a brewery a flour-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1255.

TOURNE (anc. Tournon or Cornouailles) a tn. France, dep. Indre-et-Loire, r. bank Loire, on a flat tongue of land lying between the river and its tributary Cher, 190 m. S. E. W. Paris. The principal entrance to it is by a magnificent bridge across the Loire, consisting of 15 arches, and 1625 ft. long, and continued by a fine street, which traverses the town throughout its whole length, and constitutes its principal thoroughfare. The banks of the river are inclosed by a quay lined with handsome houses and finely-planted promenades. Great part of the town is new and many of the streets are spacious and elegant, but the older quarters are very indifferently built, and generally consist of streets which are narrow, irregular, full, and dirty. The principal offices are in the cathedral. Its W. front consists of three lofty portals covered over with fossil ornaments, surmounted by a window of astonishing dimensions and flanked by two round towers, 205 ft. high. The interior, which is of the purest Gothic, and lighted by beautifully-stained glass, is 255 ft. in length, and 85 ft. in height, and among other objects of interest, contains a fine marble monument of the two early children of Charles VIII. and Anne of Bretagne, by whose early death the succession to the crown was checked. The other buildings chiefly deserving of notice are two towers, forming ancient gates from every part of the town, the one called the tower of St. Martin or Kierlog, from whence the principal clock; the other the tower of Christienne because his queen Lutgarde was buried below it; and both remarkable as the only relics which the revolutions of 1793 have left of the vast cathedral of St. Martin of Tours, after it had been finished for 12 centuries; the church of St. Julian degraded into a coach-house, but still a fine pointed edifice of the 12th century; two circular and unadorned towers, inclosed within the walled-barracks, forming part of the walls built by Henry II. of England; the church of St. Clement, a chaste and beautiful structure, with a fine portal, but now used as a corn-market; the archiepiscopal palace, regarded as one of the most handsome in the kingdom the prefecture, with a public library of 40,000 vols. and several remarkable MSS. picture-gallery and museum of natural history, the townhouse, courthouses, general hospital, and an elegant fountain of white marble, occupying the centre of the market-place. The manufactures consist of silk stuffs, ribbons, broad cloth, serge, rags, starch, and wax-candles; and the trade is in corn, wine, branched dried fruit, wax, hemp, wool, &c. Tours is the seat of an archbishop the seat of a court of first resort and of commerce, and possesses a chamber of commerce a society of agriculture, science, art, and belles-lettres, a diocesan seminary a secondary classical school, and a communal college. It early acquired considerable importance, and under the Romans became the capital of Lugdunensis III. In more modern times it had become famous for its silk manufactures, and had so extended as to have a population of 60,000, when the revocation of the edict of Nantes deprived it of nearly half its inhabitants, and almost all its industry, and inflicted a blow on its prosperity from which it has never recovered. Tours has become a favourite residence of the English, whose numbers within it have been estimated as 8000. In the neighbourhood, about 1 m. W. of the town, is the castellated den of Plessis-les-Tours, of which an admirable description is given by Scott in his Queen's Daughter. Pop. 55,521.

TOURVEE, a tn. France, dep. Var, 8 m. W. Brignoles. It is generally well built, contains the ruins of an ancient castle, picturesquely seated on a small hill which overlooks the town, and has manufactures of soap, paper-mill, tanneries and distilleries. Pop. 5223.

TOVARISOVA, a vil. Hungary either Danube, co. Bacu, 9 m. from Illok, with a Greek church, and a trade in corn, cattle, and silk. Pop. 1893.

TOVARNIK, a market tn. Austria, Slavonia, co. Syrmia, near Vukovar with a R. Catholic and a Greek church Pop. 3695.

TOWCESTER, a market tn. and par. England, co. and 84 m. S. E. W. Northampton on the Torr, with a handsome church chiefly in the later English style, several Dissenting chapels, a grammar school, three almshouses, and some minor charities. The manufactures are bobbin-lace, boots, and shoes. Area of par. 3780 ac. Pop. 2625.

TOWDNACK, par. Eng. Cornwall 2794 ac. P. 1057

TOWERSEY, par. Eng. Dorset 1800 ac. Pop. 448.

TOWIE, par. Scot. Aberdeen 4 m. by 3 m. P. 756

TOWN YARNHAM, a vil. Scotland, co. Roxburgh, in the vale of the Bowmont, here crossed by a good bridge, 8 m. S. E. S. Kelso. It has two annual fairs, one for lambs and wool, and another for cattle. A considerable number of gipsies reside in it. Pop. 618.

TOWNSTALL, par. Eng. Devon, 1756 ac. P. 1808

TOWTON, a township, England, co. York, 3 m. S. Tadcaster, and memorable as the scene of a sanguinary conflict in 1461, during the wars of the Roses. It is said that 110,000 men were engaged, and 36,776 slain. Pop. 123

TOWY (Twy), the largest river of S. Wales, next to the Wye. It rises in Carmarthenshire flows E. to Llandovery in Carmarthenshire, thence W. to the town of Carmarthen whence it flows S. E. W. to Carmarthen Bay into which it discharges itself by a wide estuary. Total course, about 45 m. Viable of 300 tons said to Carmarthen.

TOWYN, par. Wales, Merioneth, 36,972 ac. P. 2769

TOYNTON, four pars. Eng. Lincoln—1, (4-23-34) 2120 ac. Pop. 515—2 (Hghs) 1210 ac. Pop. 312—3, (Low), 950 ac. Pop. 180—4, (St. Peter), 2630 ac. P. 486.

TÖZER, or TOSTAN, a tn. regency and 250 m. S.W. Tula; houses mostly well built, generally of one floor and chiefly of the ruins of a Roman town. In the centre is a large square, used as a market-place and there are two mosques, two baths and a bazaar; and many of the inhabitants are occupied as smiths, armurers, joiners, and merchants. The Jews are dyers and goldsmiths, and the women card, spin, and weave wool.

TRABEJ, a river Russia, rises in S.W. of gov. Chernygov, enters gov. Poltava flows first S.E. to Potemkin where it receives the Alta, then S.W. and joins the bank Dnieper after a course of about 90 m.

TRABEN, a tn. Rhineland Prussia, gov. and 89 m. S.W. Coblenz, at the foot of the Trarbach 1 bank Moselle here crossed by a bridge, opposite to Trarbach. It contains a parish church, and has a trade in cattle. Pop. 1228.

TRABOLAN par. Irel. Cork, 390 ac. Pop. 390.

TRACHENBERG, a walled tn. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 35 m. N.W. Breslau, on the Barock. It has a court of law and several public offices, a castle, in which the Prince of Hohenlohe-Schwarzenberg resides; a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, a townhouse, industrial and other schools, an hospital, orphan asylum, manufactures of fur, a fishery some transit trade by barges, and a trade in cattle. P. 2459.

TRACHELWALD, a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 16 m. E.N.E. Bern. It consists of wall built houses, and has a handsome church, a new school house, and an old castle, with a tower and walls of immense thickness. P. 1938.

TRACTON par. Irel. Cork, 5623 ac. Pop. 1796.

TRACUNHAEM, a vil. and par. Brazil, prov. Pernambuco, 40 m. W. Goiana. It contains a parish church, and raises a good deal of cotton. Pop. 4006.

TRADATE, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 11 m. S.W. Como near 1 bank Olona. It is a cheerful-looking wall-built place; contains several handsome churches and private mansions, and has some trade in an excellent red wine produced in the district. Pop. 2146.

TRADE-Town, a maritime tn. W. Africa, Liberia, near the S.E. extremity of the colony.

TRAFALGAR, a cape, S.W. coast, Spain at the N.W. entrance of the Strait of Gibraltar lat. 36° 10' N. lon. 6° 1' W. It is low and sandy, and terminates in two head lands on the E. of which is a round tower. The famous naval battle in which Nelson lost his life, after defeating the combined French and Spanish fleets, under the command of Villeneuve and Gravina, was fought off this cape, October 21, 1805.

TRAHIGÜERA, a vil. Spain, Valencia, prov. Castellón-de-la-Piana, 19 m. S.W. Tortosa with a townhouse, several well-attended primary schools, a primary an hospital parish church, and two chapels and manufactures hempen-shoes and earthenware, with which Trahigüera supplies all the towns round about. Pop. (oldly agricultural), 1916.

TRAHIRAS, a tn. Brazil, prov. and 210 m. N.N.E. Goias, 1 bank Trankire river, an affluent of the Maranhão. It has a healthy site, and a cheerful look, and contains a church and a school of mutual instruction. A good deal of gold is found in the stream after heavy falls of rain and there are also mines of tin, which is obtained in large quantities, and much used for sea-lanterns. Pop. (dist.) 3000.

TRAINA, a little-known tn. Sicily, prov. and 38 m. N.W. Catania, on a mountain. Its inhabitants are said to be in wretched circumstances. Pop. 7000.

TRAJIKIRCHEN or TRAJIKIRCH, a market in Lower Austria, in a plain on the Mühlbach, on the railway to Grätz, 14 m. S.W. Vienna. It is irregularly built and has two churches, one of them with a tall tapering spire, a poorhouse, and manufactures of wax. Pop. 1115.

TRAITORS or TRAITORS, the island, one of the Navigator's group, E. Pacific lat. 15° 57' S., lon. 175° 58' W. It has an elevated surface, but a fertile soil, and appears to be densely peopled.

TRAJANAPOLI See OLSKOWA.

TRAJETTO, a tn. Naples, prov. Lavoro, 10 m. E.N.E. Gaeta, on a hill near bank Anagnino. It contains a collegiate and four other churches and a convent. It is built on the ruins of the ancient Minturnæ, among the marbles of which Marcus sought an asylum from the pursuit of Sulla. P. 2150.

TRALENS, a tn., regent tn., respect, and par. Ireland, co. Kerry, near the head of Tralee Bay, lat. 52° 17' N. lon.

10° 45' W. It consists principally of a main street, about 1/2 m. long, stretching in a tolerably straight line E. to W.; and of several other streets running at right angles with it, all of which are very indifferently kept houses mostly of limestone. It has an Episcopal and a Scotch church, a R. Catholic and two dissenting chapels, a very handsome county-courthouse, barracks, jail, workhouse, infirmary, and fever hospital, seven public schools, with nearly as many private ones, a Protestant apothecary society and a set of almshouses. The export trade in corn and provisions was at one time very considerable, but it has now all but entirely disappeared, the corn-stores having been converted into branch-workshops. The only trade carried on now to any extent is in butter. Pop. (tn.), 18,759. Area of par., 4805 ac. Pop. 12,849.—(Local Correspondent.)

TRALLING par. Wales, Brecon 8994 ac. Pop. 819.

TRAMELAN or TRAMMELAN a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 25 m. N.W. Bern, near the source of the Rhine. It is well built, consists of 1,000 and Lower Tramelan and has manufactures of clocks and particularly of a kind of horse-hair plait much used by the female peasantry of the canton in their head-dress. Pop. 3817.

TRAMONTI, a tn. Naples, prov. Principato-Citro, 7 m. W. Salerno. It consists of several scattered hamlets and contains 14 parish churches, a monastery and nursery, and several shiverable establishments. A great deal of charcoal is prepared here for the supply of Naples. Pop. 3850.

TRAMORE, a maritime tn. Ireland, co. and 64 m. N. Waterford, on the side of a hill to the N.W. corner of Tramore Bay. It has a very handsome church, a R. Catholic and a Methodist chapel, several schools, including some respectable boarding and other schools and two charitable institutions, one of which is a Dorcas society. There are numerous fine walks in the vicinity and one of the most beautiful beaches that may anywhere be seen. On these accounts, and the salubrity of its air, Tramore is much resorted to for sea-bathing. Pop. 1692.—(Local Correspondent.)

TRAMUTOLA, a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 28 m. S. Potenza; with a church, three chapels, convent and almshouse. Pop. 4000.

TRANA, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and 20 m. E.S.E. Susa, 1 bank Sangone. It is indifferently built. Pop. 1628.

TRANCOSO, a tn. Brazil, prov. Bahia 10 m. S. Porto-Seguro, on the shore of a small bay of same name. It has a church and a primary school. Inhabitants mostly Indians, employed in fishing and cultivating cotton. Pop. 1506.

TRANCOSO, a tn. Portugal prov. Beira-Alta, in a beautiful plain, 17 m. N.W. La Guarda. It is surrounded by ancient walls flanked with 15 towers, and defended by a castle contains six parish churches, a Latin school hospital, and almshouse and has an annual fair of three days. Pop. 1269.

TRANEKJAR, a vil. and par. Denmark, lat. Langeland with the ruins of an old castle, once a strong fortress, on an isolated height.

TRANENT, a vil. and par. Scotland, co. and 7 m. W. by S. Haddington. It has a substantial Established church, and Free and U. Presbyterian churches. The inhabitants are mostly colliers. Area of par., 5454 ac. Pop. 4156.

TRANI or TRAJANOPOLIS, a tn. and seaport, Naples, prov. Bari on the Adriatic, 26 m. N.W. Bari. It is surrounded by a fosse and a wall flanked with bastions and is entered by three gates. The houses are tolerably well built, but the streets, with some exceptions, are narrow winding, and badly paved. The principal edifices are the cathedral and the castle. The former is ancient and spacious, but its style of architecture is indifferent, and many of its decorations are preposterous. In addition to these are 20 parish churches, six monasteries, two nunneries, a large diocesan seminary, a theatre, and female orphan asylum. The harbour which is almost unobscured by the town, once contained great depth of water but has so much silted up that small vessels only can enter. The trade, however, is considerable, and consists chiefly in oil, silk, wine, and fruit. Trans suffers much from excessive summer-heats, and a great want of spring-water. The only alternative is the collection of rain-water by cisterns, almost every house being provided with one, and roofed so as to collect it most effectually. Cotton is grown in the district, and partly manufactured into coarse goods. Pop. 14,000.

TRANSMERE, a vil. and township, England, co. Chester, on the Mersey, a little S. of Birkenhead. It contains a great number of handsome villas and other residences, occupied chiefly by Liverpool merchants, and has a plain church, three Dissenting chapels, a school, and several objections. The Bay of Transmere, owing to the great depth of water in the Glodin and the shelter of surrounding hills, affords excellent anchorage. Pop. 6619.

TRANQUE an isl. S. America, forming the entrance to a bay on E. coast, Isl. Chiloe. A range of hills, nowhere exceeding 500 ft. in height, runs through it N W to S. E. The inhabitants appear to be few in number.

TRANQUEBAR, a ta. Hindoostan, on E. or Coromandel coast, 18 m. N. Nagapattin. In the presidency of Madras, and district of Tanjore lat. $11^{\circ} 1' 30''$ N. lon. $79^{\circ} 55'$ E. It stands between two arms of the river Cavery and is surrounded by ramparts faced with masonry, and having at the S. E. angle, the castle of Danaburg, containing a lighthouse and the government offices. The town is neatly built, and there are two Protestant churches, a Portuguese chapel, and Danish English, and Portuguese schools. The territory—area, 15 sq m.—is sandy or marshy and partly under cultivation for rice, dry grains, and fruit-trees, including vines. The bay at the mouth of the Cavery is always safe for small vessels, and the surf is less violent than at Madras or Pondicherry. Some manufactures of cotton cottons and handkerchiefs, oil, soap, leather, and salt are carried on and these goods, with rice, paddy and skins, are shipped for Madras Ceylon and occasionally the Mauritius and Bourbon. Tranquebar was purchased by the British from the Danes in 1845. Pop. (1844) town and territory 25,426.

TRANSCALCASSIA, or INDIA-ARABIA TRANS-CALCASSIA, a new division of that part of the Russian Empire constituted by an ukase in 1845 bounded, N. by the Caspian Sea, the Black Sea and Asiatic Turkey, S. Asiatic Turkey and Persia, and E. the Caspian and consisting of the four govts.—Kaisa, in the N. W., Teflis, in the W. and centre Shamakhi, in the S. E. and Derbend, in the N. E. The area, 50,324 sq. m., is apportioned among the four governments as follows—Kaisa, 6186 2/3; Teflis, 24,484 80; Shamakhi, 16,985 and Derbend 13,957 6. Aggregate pop. 2,648,000.

TRANSVAAL REPUBLIC, an independent state S. Africa, established by the Boers in 1848 lat. $23^{\circ} 25'$ to $28^{\circ} 20'$ N. lon. $26^{\circ} 30'$ to 32° E. It is bounded N. and N. W. by the Limpopo, E. by the Quahlanthe Mountains and Natal and S. by the K. G. deep or Vool river from which it takes its name, and the Orange River republic. It is well adapted for sheep and cattle rearing. Area, 60,480 sq. m. Chief tn. Potchefstroom. Whus pop. (1858) 40,000.

TRANSYLVANIA [German, Steinbürgen; French, Transylvanie; Hungarian, Erdely] a grand princip. [Grossfürstenthum] forming the S. E. prov. of the Austrian Empire lat. $45^{\circ} 12'$ to $47^{\circ} 45'$ N. lon. $22^{\circ} 15'$ to $26^{\circ} 20'$ E. and bounded N. and W. by Hungary, S. and E. the Danubian Turkish provinces of Wallachia and Moldavia, from which it is separated by the Carpathian Mountains and the Bukovina. It is of a very compact and tolerably regular square shape, greatest length, E. to W. 194 m. greatest breadth N. to S. 165 m. area, 17,900 sq. m. The surface is very much diversified, but certainly deserves to be characterized as mountainous the Carpathian chain not only covering its S. and E. frontier but sending out numerous ramifications, the most important of which, proceeding E. to W., give more or less of that direction to its principal streams. The culminating points of the mountains are situated near the S. frontier where Nagod, not far from Hermannstadt, has a height exceeding 8000 ft. and Bistritzburg near Kronstadt is scarcely 100 ft. lower. Many of the isolated summits, also, are elevated and often present scenery remarkable for its grandeur. The mountains in the S., along the whole of the frontier E. to the Buzina, a little W. of Kronstadt, are entirely composed of primitive rocks, of which granite usually forms the basis. These rocks are succeeded by graywacke which stretches almost without interruption across the country and N. to the sources of the Theiss. Still farther N., a great tract less than extends from the banks of the Albia, at the point where there is a N. and S. range of the S. frontier of Bukovina. To the W. of the primitive and trappean rocks now mentioned, the sandstones of the carboniferous system make their appearance, and are so largely developed as to occupy a considerable proportion of the whole province.

The whole surface belongs to the basin of the Danube, which receives a great part of its waters by a very circuitous process. A little to the N. of the centre of the province a branch of the Carpathian straits crosses it E. to W. and forms a secondary water-shed. All the country S. of it is drained by rivers which have a S. W. or W. S. W. direction, and thus reach the Danube without being obliged to make many windings. The chief of these rivers are the Albia and the Maros, with its tributaries the Great and Little Kolos. But to the N. of the above water-shed the rivers, being barred in by it, take first a W. and then a N. direction towards the Theiss; and hence the waters of the N. part of Transylvania do not reach the Danube before they have made the circuit of a great part of Hungary. The principal rivers by which the drainage is thus effected are the Tisza, by far the largest the Krasso, and the Körös.

The climate is very much modified by the diversity of surface; the higher districts having a severe winter which not only covers the rivers with ice, but often extends itself far into the spring so as to cause serious injury to vegetation, while on the other hand the summer-heat of the lower grounds is at times extreme. On the whole, however the air is healthy and the sky clear, and the temperature well adapted to bring all the more valuable plants of Central Europe to maturity.

In some of the loftier districts, almost bordering on the limits of perpetual snow, vegetation is necessarily confined within very narrow limits, but at lower altitudes magnificent forests begin to appear and not only furnish valuable timber, but add greatly to the productiveness of the lower grounds by the shelter they afford. Among the trees are several of economical value for the food obtained from them, and both the almond and chestnut are found thriving in the vicinity of Kronstadt at the height of 1900 ft. above sea-level. In all quarters exquisite fruits, including apples, pears, plums, cherries, apricots and peaches, are to be had in abundance, and the culture of the vine in general over the country. The mulberry would thrive well, but little attention appears to be paid to it. Notwithstanding the general ruggedness of the surface, there are many wide valleys and extensive plains, admirably adapted to the ordinary operations of agriculture, and on these, though much more in consequence of their natural fertility than the skill displayed in managing them, rich harvests are reaped. The crops include, in addition to the ordinary cereals and pulse, maize hemp, flax tobacco, cotton and smaller. Domestic animals also are very numerous, and fine breeds of horses, cattle and sheep are reared. The most of the forests feeds large herds of swine. Game also both large and small is abundant, and the rivers are remarkably well supplied with fish. Bees do not receive much attention, but are so very numerous, as a wild state, that large quantities of honey and wax are obtained.

The minerals are very important. Almost all the streams contain gold in greater or less quantity in their sands, and so fewer than 22 gold-mines, and to be very productive, are in actual operation. Silver also is worked with success in three mines, and there is one mine of quicksilver. The other minerals of value are copper, lead, iron, antimony, arsenic, the coal, alum bitumen, sulphates, and salt. The last occupies immense tracts, and is evidently inexhaustible. Crystals and fine pebbles, including garnets, sturpallites, amethysts, chalcedons, agates carnelians, and jaspers, are found in many quarters.

Manufacture have made little progress, and are chiefly in the hands of the German section of the inhabitants. They consist chiefly of woollen cloth, flannel, and linen, particularly the last, which is made to some extent, though scarcely in sufficient quantities to meet the home consumption. Other manufactures, besides those connected with the working of the various metals and minerals, are paper, gunpowder leather porcelain and earthen ware, glass, iron and copper ware, furniture, and a great variety of articles in wood. The trade is in a great measure confined to the natural products of the country. The most important exports are salt, to the amount of 70,000 tons annually; corn, horses, cattle, honey, wax, honey, tobacco, wool, wool, swine, hides, skins, iron, and saltpetre. The imports, introduced chiefly by native merchants, rearing of bees is much attended to, and several districts bear a high name for the excellence of their dairy produce, particularly cheese. The exports derived from these sources is considerable, that of wine occupying by far the first place. For administrative purposes Transylvania is divided into four comitates—Vila Real (the capital), Bragança, Chaves, and Monforte. Pop. (1841) 300,840.

TRAISEN, a river Lower Austria, which descends from the N slope of the Traisenberg near the frontiers of Styria, flows N.E. and joins r. bank Danube, after a very circuitous course of nearly 55 m.

TRAISENHOFEN, a vil Austria. See TRAISENHOFEN.

TRASILICO (Lago), See PANORAMA (Lake of).

TRASILICO (Latin, Trans Silicum) a tn. and com.uchy of Modena, near Massa-Duino; with a court of justice, a parish church, and a chapel. Pop. 2165.

TRAU or TRAGAU (Latin, Tragurium) a tn. Austria, Dalmatia, circle and 80 m. N.W. Spalatro, on an island of the same name, communicating by two long wooden bridges with the mainland on the N., and the island of Bra on the S. It is surrounded by ancient walls and other fortifications, in a very dilapidated state; and consists of old houses arranged in dark and narrow streets, but often rendered venerable by their antiquity and adorned in the Venetian style with balconies. It is the see of a bishop and has three churches three monasteries, a gymnasium and hospital, a trade in wine, oil, and fruit and a good harbour, much frequented by shipping. Pop. 8800.

TRAU N (Latin, Trave) a river Austria, rises in the N.W. of Styria, flows first W into Upper Austria, then N.E. expanding into several lakes, of which that of Traun is the most celebrated, passes the towns of Hallstatt, Ischl, Gmünd, and Wells and joins r. bank Danube about 3 m. below Linz, after a course of 100 m. Its principal affluents are the Alben and Krems on the right, and the Ager on the left. It is navigable by small barges. Pop. to Hallstatt and by vessels of 80 to 70 tons to Lambach, about 10 m. above Wells, but the navigation is difficult and dangerous, owing partly to the rapidity of the current and partly to the number of rocks and shoals. A fall of about 40 ft. occurs near the village of Fierth but the obstruction which it offered to the navigation has been removed by cutting a canal. The chief traffic is in the salt brought down from the mines of Salzbürg.

TRAUNSTEIN a walled tn. Upper Bavaria, cap. dist. 1 bank Traun 50 m. S.E. Munich. It has a court of justice, and other public offices, three churches, a castle, and townhouse, saw-works, stone-quarries, and a trade in corn, cattle, and flax. Pop. 2238.

TRAUTENAU New TRAUTENAU, or TRUDTOW (Latin, Trutonium), a tn. Bohemia, circle and 25 m. N. by E. Müllwitz, r. bank Aupa with a doxery church, townhouse, poorhouse, and hospital. It is the centre of the linen manufacture in the Riesengebirge, and has numerous mills, and an important weekly market for linen and yarn. Pop. 2405.

TRAVAGLIAIO, a vil and com. American, Italy prov. and N.W. Sicily, with a large and beautiful church, and manufacture of linen and ribbons. Pop. 8174.

TRAVANCORE, a native state, Hindoostan, subsidiary to the presidency of Madras, and occupying that portion of the S. extremity of the peninsula, between lat. 8° E. and 10° N. and lon. 76° 20' and 77° 30' E. bounded E. by the Ghats, separating it from the British districts Travancore and Malabar N. the Cochin territory W. and S. the Indian Ocean, its frontier terminating in the S.E. at Cape Comorin length N. to S. about 140 m. breadth decreases gradually from 60 m. in its N. part area, 4723 sq. m.—(1749 sq. Survey of India). The mountains on the E. rise gradually to between 5000 ft. and 5000 ft. in height (the Angulgar peak, to 7000 ft. in elevation) they are chiefly covered with forests of the best teak and other large trees, bamboo-jungles, &c., but in some places afford pasture-lands of tall grass, or abound with caraboon-plantations. Most part of the territory is abruptly hilly descending toward the sea, where the surface is flat, and presents extensive backwaters, as in Cochin. Rivers are plentiful the principal are the Peruvor and Pulikayoor canals and tanks for artificial irrigation are numerous in the S. The climate is generally considered healthy; during the S.W. monsoon, from June to September, a great quantity of rain falls, from March to May however, the heat is great, and the forest timber are very productive. The soil is much more fertile than in the country E. of the Ghats, though unimproved lands occupy fully one-third of the territory, rice, of which two crops are obtained yearly, pepper, cardamom, cocon, and areca nuts, and oil plants are the chief vegetable products cinnamon and nutmeg are raised near the hills, pine-apples, sugar-plants, tobacco, grapes, salicins come in production. The mulberry, coffee, and tobacco thrive well and the Travancore government has lately made great efforts to extend their culture, and that of silk. Some sugar and salt are manufactured. Cattle and sheep do not thrive, and are mostly brought from Timorely and Colimbatour. Goats are numerous as are the tiger, cheetah, panther, elephant, and wild buffaloes in the re-vestor parts. The population includes also upwards of 80,000 Malays or Malabars of Arab descent, and 170,000 E. Catholics and Syrian Christians. The lands are assessed on the ryotwary system, a fresh survey being made every 10 or 15 years. The dwellings are better than in many parts of India, and the middle classes of the population are usually able to read and write. The ruling family is Hindoo; the sovereignty and inheritance of property pass in the female line, as elsewhere on the Malabar coast. The country is in 82 districts, under the divisions of Travancore (the capital) and Quilon, besides which Kottar, Arjeng, and Alleppey are the principal towns. The high court of appeal at the capital consists of four judges—three Hindoo and one Christian, assisted by Malabar and Hindoo officers subordinate to it are five district courts, each having one Hindoo and one Christian judge. Travancore, the former capital is small, and now in decay. Pop. of state, 1,011,824.

TRAVE, a river Denmark, chiefly Holstein. It rises near the village of Barus a few miles S.E. of the Lake Fide, and flows S.W., traversing Lake Warden, and near Glashow turns round and proceeds E. till it reaches the territory of Lübeck. Here it takes a S.E. direction, traverses the town of Lübeck and shortly after turns suddenly E., and forms a large embouchure into the Gulf of Lübeck, total course about 60 m. At the town of Lübeck, it is from 40 to 50 yards broad, and is navigable by small craft. Below the town it has an average depth of 10 ft. to 12 ft.

TRAVEMÜNDE (North of the Trave), a tn. belonging to the free-town Lübeck and forming its port, lat. (right-house) 53° 57' 39" N. lon. 10° 52' 52" E. (t.) It is situated on the Baltic, at the mouth of the Trave, and is a place of strength, being not only surrounded by walls, but defended by a dike. It is a cheerful well built place, and is very much frequented for sea-bathing. The harbour the entrance to which is shown by a light, has been formed at great expense, and is good though somewhat embowered by a sand-bank. Pop. 1470.

TRAVERS, a vil and par. Switzerland, can and 12 m. S.W. Neuchâtel on the Ronas. It is well built. The inhabitants are mostly clock and watch makers. Pop. 1331.

TRAVERSE, a lake, U. States in the territory of Minnesota, about 18 m. long by 2 m. broad. It occupies a depression about 100 ft. beneath the extensive prairie which surrounds it, and forms one of the most elevated plateaus of N. America. It contains several islands, and supplies the waters of a head-branch of the N. Red River. A narrow strip of land, in flood passable by boats, separates it from Mignon Lake, whose waters flow by St. Peter's River to the Mississippi.

TRAVERSELLO, a vil and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin prov. lives with a handsome modern church and a large townhouse. The dist. is rich in mines of iron. P. 1447.

TRAVESSELO, a vil and com. duchy and 13 m. S.E.E. Parma, 1 bank Parma, with a primary school, manufacture of caraboon, and a trade in corn, silk, cattle, and cheese. Pop. 8432.

TRAVI, a vil and com. Parma, duchy and 18 m. S.W. Piacenza, 1 bank Trebia. It has a parish church, a primary school, the remains of an old castle, a quarry which produces good whetstones, and a trade in corn, wine, silk, and cattle. Pop. 2848.

TRAVNIK, a tn. Turkey in Europe, cap. Bosnia, in a narrow valley enclosed by mountains, r. bank Lavna 615 m. W.N.W. Constantinople. It is a very poor built, consisting of narrow, winding, and dirty streets, lined by very indifferent houses and has a sultan's palace, the remains of an old castle fortified with towers, and now converted into a prison; several mosques, khans, and bazars; manufactures of sword-blades, and several articles of primary necessity, and a considerable trade, favoured by the situation of the town at the junction of several thoroughfares. The vicinity is covered with vineyards and orchards. P. estimated at 10 000 TRAWBYNYDD, par Wales, Merioneth 21,800 ac. Pop. 1468.

TREBEGNIES, civil and com. Belgium prov. Hainaut, 164 m. N. by N. Mons. It has a church, a well-attended school, manufactures of woollen fabrics and rads, a distillery, brewery, and some corn-mills. The castle of Trebegnies, in the vicinity, is a noble structure of the 9th century. P. 1831

TRE-ÉLÉAZ (S), a vil. and com. Finchy and 13 m. N. N. W. Parma, r. bank France. It has a church, with a good painting by Gustave Oudard, a primary school, manufactures of lampen cloth, and a trade in corn, cattle, and excellent cheese. P. 5162

TREDDINGSTONE, par Incl Kilkeny 708 ac. P. 428

TREBBIN (New) — 1 A in Prussia, prov. Brandenburg gov. and 14 m. S.E.E. Potsdam, on the Havel. It has a parish church, and manufactures of lead-penall. Pop. 1722 — 3, A vil. same prov. and gov., circle Ober Harnia, with a parish church. Pop. 1178

TREBIA or TRIVIA, a river Italy rises in the N. slope of the Apennines, Piedmont, dir. Genoa flows N. N. E. past the town of Bobbio, enters the delta of Parma, and after a course of about 60 m., joins r. bank Po 3 m. E. Piacenza. It is not navigable, but is much used for irrigation TREBIGNE (anc. Trebennus), a to. Turkey in Europe, prov. Haragovina, cap. dist., 15 m. N. E. Ragusa. It is defended by a square fort flanked by four towers. Pop. 1000.

TREBISACCIA, a m. Naples, prov. Calabria-Citra, dist. and 17 m. E. N. E. Castroville, near the W. shore of the Gulf of Tarento. It has three churches. Pop. 1200

TREBITSCH, or DUSWITZ, a to. Austria, Moravia, circle and 20 m. S. E. Igla, in a deep and narrow valley on the Igla. It is generally well built, contains a denary and two other churches, castle, synagogue, school, and Capuchin monastery, and has manufactures of woollen cloth, and important corn-markets. P. 5000

TREBIZOND a peash Asiatic Turkey extending along the coast of the Black Sea lat. 40° 20' to 41° 30' N. lon. 35° 10' to 41° 30' E., bounded, N. E. by the dist. Gurial and peash. Akhalzik, S. Erzeroum W. Sivas, and N. the Black Sea. The picturesque beauty of the coast is particularly striking. The mountains rise immediately from the sea, from 4000 ft. to 5000 ft., clothed with dense forests, composed principally of chestnut, beech, walnut, alder, poplar, willow and occasionally small oak, elm, ash, maple, and box, the higher parts being covered with fir. The country generally is so wooded and mountainous, that it does not produce grain sufficient for the consumption of the population, yet not a spot capable of cultivation appears to be left uncultivated. The climate of Trebizond is backward and liable to constant changes chiefly owing to the cold winds, with rain and fog, which are brought across the Black Sea. Figs and grapes do not ripen before October or November. The vines are trained to large trees, the branches of which prevent the fruit from reaching the benefit of the sun's rays. Notwithstanding the generally mountainous character of the country, it contains many fertile and well-cultivated tracts. Indian corn is the grain usually grown, and it is seldom that any other is used for bread by the people, while the country does not supply in pecuniary form Gravel and Marbles. Hemp, flax, wheat, and barley are also cultivated. The inhabitants are a hardy, laborious, and bold race; they are skilled in the use of a short rifle, which every man carries slung at his back. Principal towns—Trebizond, Karsoun, Tirebolu, Rize, and Rizebolu, all on the coast.

TREBIZOND or TALABANAN (anc. Trebisus, French, Trebissonde, German, Trebisson, Dutch, Trebisson) an important fortified seaport city Asiatic Turkey cap. of shore peash. N. E. coast of the Black Sea; lat. 41° 1' N. lon. 38° 45' E. (S. E.). It lies at the foot of a high range of undulating hills.

Vol. II.

sloping gently to the beach, and everywhere well wooded. The houses outside the town are interspersed amongst trees and gardens, and shown off by the dark green hills immediately behind. To the E. of the town, on a small projecting rock, are the ruins of a castle, apparently Byzantine. Trebizond is divided into two quarters, the Greek and Turkish. The houses in the former are surrounded with gardens; streets extremely narrow even for an Eastern town. The houses in the Turkish quarter which is within the walls, are generally larger and better built than those without, but have not the agreeable appearance of a garden. This part of the town is connected with the suburbs by a high and narrow bridge on each side, and is defended by strongly fortified gateways. The houses in both quarters are mostly of one story, built of stone and lime, and roofed with red tiles. The town has neither law nor lodging-houses, but it has 18 mosques and 10 Greek churches. The principal articles of trade in the bazaar are alum and copper brought from the mines in the interior, but the shops are well supplied with English cottons and printed goods. The copper comes in a rough state, and is here manufactured into different articles for domestic or military purposes. The commerce of Trebizond has much increased in recent years, and especially since the establishment of steamers, by which this town has a direct communication with Constantinople, Odessa, and the Danube; and it still continues to be the chief route of the Persian trade, the goods being sent on by Erzeroum. In 1859, there entered the port 86 steamers and 150 sailing vessels; of the former 17, and of the latter 13, were British, and of the former 20 and of the latter 1 were Austrian, the remainder of the steamers, 51 and 120 of the sailing vessels, being Ottoman. The total imports amounted to 23 341 700. In the same year 319 steamers and vessels sailed, the total exports amounting to £1 456,628. The exports consist chiefly of silk, wool, tobacco, wax, galls, oil, opium and other drugs, honey, butter, timber for ship-building, the produce of Asiatic Turkey and silk fabrics. Cashmere shawls, carpets, ashraf, cotton, and camel-skins from Persia. The chief imports are cotton manufactures, sugar, coffee, and other colonial produce, salt, wheat, &c. Pop. 40 000

TREBIZOND.—From a Ship by Sir G. F. Moore.

TREBIZITZ, a to. Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. and 14 m. N. N. E. Breslau, cap. circle, at the source of the Schellbach. It is entirely surrounded by lofty hills, contains a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, several chapels, a confectionery, a brewery and three hospitals, has a court of law and several public offices, manufactures of woollen cloth and worsted, tile-works, bark and other mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 4168

TREBOROUGH par Eng. Boncomest 1796 ac. P. 148

TREBUJERA, a vil. Spain, Andalucia, prov. and 24 m. N. V. E. Cadix, surrounded by small streams. It has three squares, a primary school church, two hermitages, and several bread-bakeries. Pop. (agricultural) 2889

TREBUR (Latin Treburum) a market in Hesse-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg, 11 m. W. W. N. Darmstadt, with a church. A council met here in 822, and several kings of Germany held their court in it. Pop. 1897

TRECASTAGNE, a tu. Stilly, prov. and N.E. of Catala, on the S. slope of Etne. Pop. 3406.

TRECATÉ, a tu. Italy, Piedmont, div. and S. m. E.S.R. Novara, in a beautiful plain between the Ticino and Turloppa. It has a court of justice, a handsome parish and four other churches, a convent of the Sisters of Charity and a public school. Pop. of com. 5077.

TRECHINA, a tu. Naples, prov. Basilicata S. Lago-napoli, near the Gulf of Policastro. Pop. 1830.

TRECHTA, a tu. Italy, Venetia, prov. Foligno, 16 m. W.W. Bovigo with a church and several oratories; manufactures of hats, and a trade in silk, fish, and cattle. Pop. 3157.

TREDEGAR, a market tu. England, co. Monmouth, 12 m. W. by R. Aberystwyth, on the Barrow. It consists of five principal streets, four of them diverging from a square several smaller streets, and some detached houses. It has a handsome town-hall and market-house, a church, English and Welsh chapels, Independent, English and Welsh Wesleyan, and Calvinistic Methodist chapels, a weekly market, and three annual fairs. Near it are valuable mines of coal and ironstone, with extensive iron-works. In 1800 it consisted of three houses only. Pop. 3806.

TREDINGTON, two par. Eng. —1, Gloucester 870 aa. Pop. 143. —2, Worcester 5280 aa. Pop. 1117.

TREDOZIO (Latina, Tredozium) a vill and com. Tus- cany, camp. Firenze, in a valley r. bank Tronno, about 6 m. from Modigliana with a court of justice, church, castle and a trade in corn, maize, chestnuts, and cattle. Pop. 2502.

TREDUNOCK, par. Eng. Monmouth 1538 aa. P. 157.

TREESNE, a river, Danmark, rises in Schleswig, in the marshes S. m. S. of Flensborg flows S.S.W., then W., and joins r. bank Rider at Frederikshavn total course, about 40 m.

TRESTON par. Eng. York 8518 aa. Pop. 663.

TREY-DANWYN, par. Eng. Anglesey 2185 aa. P. 284.

TREY-DANWYN, par. Wales, Montgomery; 15,168 aa. Pop. 1798.

TREY-LAN, par. Wales, Carmarthen 999 aa. P. 168.

TREY-LAN, par. Wales, Pembrokeshire 1538 aa. P. 90.

TREYFURT, a vill and com. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 58 m. W. W. W. Erfurt, r. bank Unstrut, which here becomes navigable, and is crossed by a bridge. It has three churches and manufactures of woollen and cotton goods. Pop. 3061.

TREYLLAN, par. Wales, Cardigan 3301 aa. P. 303.

TREYLLAN, par. Wales, Carmarthen 432.

TREGARE, par. Eng. Monmouth, 2587 aa. P. 825.

TREGARON (Caer-on-Glawn) par. Wales, Cardigan, 39 185 aa. Pop. 2595.

TREGONY, a market tu. England, co. Down, 11 m. N.E. Palmouth, r. bank Fel; with places of worship for Independents and Wesleyans, and an hospital for decayed home-beset. Area of par., 60 aa. Pop. 546.

TREGUIER (anc. Breton Nova Ononormus) a seaport tu. France, dep. Côtes-du-Nord 12 m. N.E. Lannion. It contains a handsome Gothic church, formerly a cathedral, with a cloister of great extent and beauty adjoining it, and an hospital. The harbour is excellent, having a depth of 30 ft. to 35 ft. at ebb, and 32 ft. to 35 ft. at the highest spring. The largest vessels find good anchorage in the river. The chief manufactures is linen-cloth. The trade is in clover-seed, oats, hemp, tallow, salt-fish, butter, cloth, thread, &c. Several vessels are engaged in the maichon and oil fisheries. P. 8302.

TREGYNON par. Wales, Montgomery; 6700 aa. P. 718.

TREIGNAC, a tu. France, dep. Corrèze, 10 m. N. Tulle, r. bank Vézère, here crossed by a bridge remarkable alike for the boldness and beauty of its construction. On a steep rock adjoining are the imposing ruins of an ancient castle, surrounded on three sides by the river. The manufactory consists of hats and knive-stocks and the trade is in wax, wool and sheep. Pop. 3014.

TREIS, two par. Germany —1, (au-der-Lumde), A. tu. Hesse-Cassel Oberhessen, on a peninsula formed by the Lumde. It contains the ruins of an old castle, and has two mills. Pop. 1187. —2, (zu Trülen), A. vill. Rheinisch Prussia, gov. and 17 m. S.W. Coblenz, on the Moselle. It contains a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1248.

TREIBNIAH ISLANDS, a cluster of small islets, W. coast, Scotland, co. Argyle, between the N.W. part of Isl. Mull and the Isl. of Coll; about lat. 56° 34' N.; lon. 6° 34' W.

TRELAWNY, or Loon, a river, England, co. Down, flows S., and enters the English Channel, after a course of about 16 m. (the Loon.)

TRELACH au-Berrew, par. Wales, Montgomery; 11,492 aa. Pop. 1532.

TRELLECK, a vill. and par. England, co. and 5 m. E. Monmouth. It has a parish church, an endowed school on the national system, distillery-works, and a large terminal surrounded by a deep fosse. From the heaps of obolus in its forest parks, iron-ore appears to have been worked and smelted here from a very early period. Area, 7081 aa. Pop. 1186.

TREMADOC, a small market tu. and seaport, Wales, co. and 14 m. S. by R. Carmarthen, on a tract of ground recovered from the sea. It is of recent origin; and consists of a number of handsome houses lining the sides of a large quadrangle, with a lofty stone-pier in its centre. The harbour, called Port Madoc, is about 1 m. from the town, has a number of good houses in its vicinity, admits vessels of 800 tons, and has a considerable trade, consisting chiefly in exports of claret and copper-ore, and coal, lime, and timber.

TREMAIN, par. Wales, Pembrokeshire 1068 aa. P. 270.

TREMAINE, par. Eng. Cornwall 1045 aa. Pop. 95.

TREMLADE (La), a tu. France, dep. Charente-In- férieure, 1 bank and near the mouth of the Beudre, 23 m. S. La Rochelle. It has a small, well-frequented harbour, manufactures of brandy vinegar and glass; and a trade in wine, brandy, vinegar, salt, and oysters. Pop. 2499.

TREMBLEUR, a vill and com. Belgium, prov. and 9 m. N.E. Louvain, on the Bois de with manufactures of linen, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1861.

TREMBOWLA, a tu. Austria, Galicia, circle and 18 m. S.S.E. Turropol, on the Sereth. It was once the capital of a principality of same name. Pop. 3030.

TREMBIRCHION or Dremschion, par. Wales, Flint 3875 aa. Pop. 707.

TREMELOO, a vill and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Dyle, 16 m. N.E. Brussels. Pop. (agricultural), 1668.

TREMBLANTINE, a tu. France, dep. Maine et Loire, 25 m. S.S.W. Angers. It has manufactures of cotton goods, linen, and wool. Pop. 1098.

TREMITIERI, a vill Stilly, prov. and N. Catala, on the S. slope of Mount Etne. Pop. 1142.

TREMITI ISLES [anc. Diomedea Insula], a group in the Adriatic, about 12 m. off N.E. coast of prov. Capitan- cia, Naples. It consists of the five islands of San Domenico (the largest though only 4 m. in circuit) San Nicola, Capran- za Grande and La Vecchia. They are generally rugged and mountainous, but partly under cultivation, and produce both grain, oil, and fruit. Capranza has a spacious harbour, and on San Nicola, which contains the principal town, there are both a castle and a fine monastery. The inhabitants live chiefly by fishing.

TREMEL, Tremela, or Stremel, a tu. Bohemia, circle and 29 m. S.E. Tabor with a church finely situated in the highest part of the town, a townhouse and important manufactures of linen and cotton goods, an oil, saw, and several other mills. Pop. 2606.

TREMENSINZ, a vill and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and N. E. Brescia, on the top of the crags which form the W. side of La Garda. It contains a parish and two ancillary churches; and has a blast-furnace, and other iron-works, and manufactures of needles and other articles of hardware. Pop. 3060.

TREMP, a fortified tu. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 36 m. N. W. Lerida, r. bank Nogueras-Pallares. It has a townhouse, primary schools, prison, hospital, and a parish church; manufactures of leather, brandy, coarse cloths and linens, and cotton fabrics; and a flour-mill. Pop. 1600.

TRENEGLOR, par. Eng. Cornwall, 2780 aa. P. 168.

TRENT, a river, England, rises in the mountains of Staffordshire, 4 m. N. Derby, flows first S.E. till it reaches the S.E. frontier of Stafford, when it turns suddenly N.E., proceeds across the hills, corner of Derbyshire, then N.E. past the town and through the county of Nottingham, then almost due N., forming part of the boundary between that county and Lincoln, enters the latter county and flows into the Humber at Trent Falls, after a course of 144 m., of which 117 m., reckoning as far as Barton-on-Trent, are navigable by barges, and 25 m., as far as Gainsborough, by vessels of 200 tons. Its chief affluents are, on the right, the Soar, Tyne, &c.

Braz, and Dove, and on the left, the Styx, Dove, and Dove. Its surroundings are much improved by a series of canals. Its population is about 4000 sq. m.

TRENT, par Eng. Somerset; 1590 sq. Pop. 587.

TRENT (German, Trent, Italian, Trento, Latin, Trientum), a town in Austria, Tyrol, cap. of the district, and picturesquely situated in a large valley surrounded by hills. It bank the Adige, which is here navigable and crossed by a wooden bridge, 75 m. N.W. Venice. It is surrounded by steep hills, which, with its church-towers, palaces, and ruined castles, give it, when seen from a distance, a very imposing appearance. Internally, also, it is regularly and well built. The houses are all in the Italian style, and the streets are for the most part wide and commodious, with good side as well as centre pavement, and with canals in which streams of pure water constantly circulate, and contribute both to health and disincense. It contains a handsome square, its centre ornamented by a beautiful marble fountain, an old Gothic castle of vast extent and picturesque appearance but almost in ruins; a cathedral, a noble structure entirely of marble, finished in 1312, in the second or Byzantine style; three other churches, one of which Santa Maria Maggiore, a modernized building of red marble, is historically interesting as the place where the celebrated council of Trent held its sittings; two episcopal palaces, a fine courthouse, a large town-house, a capacious theatre, a number of elegant private palaces, three convents, and a nursery, an ecclesiastical seminary, a high school, and school of design, a gymnasium, an orphan and a foundling hospital, an ordinary hospital richly endowed, a poorhouse, and a house of correction. There are several fine manufactures properly so called, but the number of silk-mills and distilleries is considerable, and an active trade is carried on, particularly in silk, wine, and brandy. Trent is the seat of a bishop and the seat of a civil criminal and mercantile court. It is a place of great antiquity and is said by Pliny to have been founded by the Etruscans of Etruria. It afterwards became a Roman colony and on the decline of the empire, was successively seized by the Goths, Lombards, and dukes of Bavaria. In the middle ages its bishops made themselves independent, and met in the Germanic diet of the empire. The only memorable event in its history is the council, assembled A.D. 1545, concluded a. 1563, which was held in it, and bore its name. Pop. 13,195.

TRENT FORT, a vil. Canada West, partly in a cedar-swamp on the Trent, which is here crossed by a swing-bridge, and falls into the Bay of Quinte, about 20 m. W. S. W. Kingston. It has an Episcopal and a R. Catholic church, a tannery, a distillery and a large trade in lumber, immense quantities of which are floated down the river. Pop. about 950.

TRENTSHOE, par Eng. Devon. 1571 sq. P. 129.

TRENTOLA, a town, Naples, prov. Salerno S.W. Caserta, in a fertile plain; with a church and a chapel. Pop. 2400.

TRENTON, a town, U. States, cap. of New Jersey, 1 bank Delaware, opposite the lower falls, at the confluence of Assunpuck Creek, on the Delaware and Raritan canal, and on the Philadelphia and Trenton railway, which here crosses the Delaware on a handsome covered bridge, 59 m. S.W. New York. It consists of the city proper and the district of Mill Hill, Bloomfield, and Lambertville, which, though included in the separate borough of B. Trenton, are properly its suburbs. It is laid out with great regularity and has Presbyterian, Dutch Reformed, Episcopal, Friends, Methodist, and African Methodist churches, a state-house finely situated on a commanding height near the Delaware, a courthouse the governor's house, a plain but commodious edifice, the state-prison built on the penitentiary system, within an area of 4 ac. enclosed by walls 30 ft. high and 3 ft. thick; a lyceum, four academies, and various schools. The power of an extensive water-power created by artificial means from the falls on the Delaware and the wisdom of Assunpuck Creek, has led to the erection of numerous mills and other manufacturing establishments, and the trade enjoying the advantage both of railway river, and canal communication—the last afforded at an immense outlay the stone-quadant on which it here crosses Assunpuck Creek having alone cost 2500,000 sterling—is very extensive. The most memorable event in the history of the place is what is called the battle of Trenton, which took place in 1776, when Washington, by suddenly crossing the Delaware, surprised a body of 1000 Hessians, and made them prisoners. Pop. (1850), 5760.

TRENTON, an incorporated town, Canada West, on the north-west, on the Trent, at its entrance into the Bay of Quinte (25 m. W. Kingston). It has two Protestant churches, a R. Catholic church, a grammar-school, and three private schools manufactures of cloth, iron, and leather, several flour and saw mills, and a distillery; and a considerable trade in exporting square and sawed lumber to the U. States and Great Britain. Pop. 1600.

TRENTSCHIN, or TRENTSCHIN (Latin, Trentschin) a village in Hungary, cap. of its name, 65 m. N.E. Pressburg, on a rugged eminence crowned by a castle of great strength both by nature and art. It contains a Protestant and two R. Catholic churches, a synagogue, townhouse county-buildings, and gymnasium, and has manufactures of woollens, brownens, in which a famous here is made, distilleries of plum-brandy, and some general trade. Trentschin is of early origin, and in the castle are a massive tower and a deep well both supposed to be of Roman construction. Pop. 2888.—The country, bounded N. and W. by Moravia, and E. Galicia, area, 1861 sq. m., is traversed by two branches of the Carpathians, between which there is a valley of considerable extent, through which the Wag, the principal river of the county, flows. With exception of the more mountainous districts, which are generally covered with fine forests or good pasture, the greater part of the surface is fertile and well cultivated, yielding corn sufficient for home consumption, much fruit and garden produce, hemp, and flax. Among the minerals, coal is included, and there are several thermal springs of some celebrity. Woollen and linen manufactures have made considerable progress, and employ a great number of the inhabitants, who are almost all of Slavonian extraction and very industrious. Pop. 312,000.

TRENTANO, a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Brescia, 8 m. S.W. Capriatello, on the Sordio-Trevisano canal with two churches. Pop. 1287.

TREPOPT (La) [anc. Ullero Portus] a seaport in France, dep. Seine-Inférieure, at the mouth of the Breisle, in an extensive bay 44 m. N. N.E. Rouen. It contains an old church with a fine portal, and has a good harbour which has recently been connected with the canal, manufactures of lace and fishing-nets, and a considerable fishery. P. 3914.

TREPPIO DI CATEGALLO, a vil. and com. Tuscany, com. Florence, 6 m. from Castiglion, with a parish church. P. 1190.

TRETTOW, two places, Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. Stettin.—1 (Alt-) A village in, on both sides of the Tollense, 25 m. N.E. Neu-Stettin, with a church, two hospitals, and a trade in wool and cattle. Pop. 8848.—2 (Hof-) A village in, 57 m. N.E. Stettin, 1 bank Rega. It has a castle, two churches, and three hospitals, a court of justice, and several public offices manufactures of woollen cloth, serge, and hosiery, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 5690.

TREPLZZI, a town, Naples, prov. Otranto, N.W. Lecce in a flat and fertile district. It contains a convent. P. 3038.

TREQUANDA, a vil. and com. Tuscany, 35 m. from Siena, with a church, several orchards, a convent and a trade in oil, wine, sheepskins, and timber. Pop. 2983.

TREX-MANAR, three vils. N. West. See TREX.

TREX-MORRE, a bold and remarkable headland, W. coast, Patagonia, rising from the sea to the height of 3000 ft. and terminating a peninsula of same name, which stretches between the archipelago of Los-Chonos on the N. and the Gulf of Pema on the S.; lat. 46° 58' 57" S. lon. 75° 28' W.

TREX-MURAGNA, a vil. and com. Ital. Sardania, div. Sassari, prov. and 9 m. N.W. Cagliari; with a trade in corn. Pop. 1524.

TREX-PORTUS, a town, Brazil, prov. Minas-Germes, 40 m. E. Lacerda-Francis. It has a parish church, inhabitants are mostly agricultural.

TREXANA, or TREXANA, a vil. and com. duchy of Modena, 1 bank Magre with a church and the remains of an old castle. Pop. 2373.

TRESCOE, one of the Scilly Islands, England, off S.W. extremity Cornwall the largest of the group after St. Mary's area, 800 ac. Pop. 450. It has the remains of a monastery, a castle, and a fort called Oliver's Battery from having been built by the Parliamentarians in the time of Cromwell, inhabitants chiefly employed in fishing and in gathering sea-purples.

TRESCORE, or Transcoron [Latin, Transcoron] a vil. and sang. Austria, prov. and 9 m. E. Bergama, near a bank Cherso. It has several ancient massive towers. In good preservation: a handsome church, and several crucifers, a well-preserved convent, used partly as a prison, and partly as barracks several elementary schools, an hospital, manufactures of bonnets, iron-works, lunatic-asyl., oil, flour, and silk mills, and much-frequented mineral-springs. Pop. 3068.

TRESCOWITZ, or Transcoron, a market to. Austria, Moravia, circle Brünn, near Dürnkholz; with a church Pop. 1165.

TREMEER, par Eng Cornwall 1344 m. Pop. 175.

TREWEILL, par Eng. Notts; 1861 m. Pop. 354.

TREYER with MORAN-CHURCH, par Eng Hereford 1256 m. Pop. 133.

TRETS (see Treth), a tn. France, dep. Bonchard-de-Rhone, on the N slope of Mount Olympia, 30 m. N N E. Macellias. It has narrow and irregular streets, lined by houses which are very indifferently built, an ancient baronial castle, a large townhouse, and elegant hospital, manufactures of brandy refused-wine, and then. Pop. 2553.

TREUCHEN (Goth.), a market in Bavaria, Middle Franconia, 24 m. S.W. Nuremberg, near a bank Altmühl with a parish church, a synagogue, and two castles, one of them in ruins, and manufactures of lace, ribbons, and earthen ware, and numerous mills. Pop. 1583.

TREUBA, a tn. Saxony circle Zwettan, on an affluent of the Elster 5 m. N.E. Plessa with a church manufactures of muslin, lace, cotton, and tawara, quarries of building-stone and slate, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 4443.

TREUBERLEI (see Treub) a village in Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 31 m. S.W. Potsdam, on the Klepitz with a church, an hospital, manufactures of woolen and flannel cloth, leather, and paper and several mills. Pop. 4756.

TREYALGA, par Eng. Cornwall 1299 m. Pop. 126.

TREYANDRUM a tn. Hindoostan, cap. of the state Travancore, in its S. part, 2 m. from the Indian Ocean, and 23 m. S.E. Quilon, lat. (near observatory) 8° 30' N, lon 77° 12' E. It consists of a quadrangular fort, with walls partly of granite and partly of earth, 1000 yards in length, by 500 in breadth outside of which on all sides, but chiefly on the N., is an extensive collection of buildings. The fort has five gates, and contains a celebrated pagoda, at which numerous festivals are held and attended annually by about 60,000 people a large reservoir a new palace, and the residences of the chief state-officers and high court of law into this citadel which has a pop. of about 5000 none but Brahmans or persons of high caste are permitted to enter. In the town outside, many of the dwellings are surrounded by gardens and the inhabitants comprise many descendants of Dutch and Portuguese families, and numerous native R. Catholics here are the royal stables, barracks for two battalions of sepoy European contingents, and a new Protestant church. About 2 m. E. of the fort, on elevated ground, is the British residency and near it are the observatory an excellent establishment under British superintendence an hospital for all castes, and a good public seminary Pop. (m.) about 13 000; of immediate district of Travancore (1836) 57,012.—(Madras Ad. mensur, 1840) Rep. on Med. Topog. of Madras Presid. 172, &c.)

TREYANIO, or GOMERA, an isl. S. Pacific, Queen Charlotte's Archipelago; lat. 10° 40' S, lon. 165° 45' 30" E. is a lagoon of some name in the N.W. part of the island of Niue or Santa-Cruz. It is nearly 10 m. in circuit.

TREYVÉZ, or TRAYVÉZ, a tn. Spain, Archañuela, prov. and about 35 m. from Granada, S. side, Nevada, and not far from the culminating peak Mulhacén. It has a parish church, courthouse, prison, and primary school; several flour-mills and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1590.

TREYES (German, Trer), a gov. Rhinish Prussia, bounded N. by gov. Aix-la-Chapelle E. Coblenz and detached portions of the duchies of Oldenburg and Coburg, and the electorate of Bavaria, S. France, and W. grand duchy of Luxembourg, are, Trer, a tn. The market belongs for the most part to the valley of the Moselle, which traverses it continuously in a W. & W. direction, and divides it into two distinct portions. Both of these become elevated as they recede from the river and terminate in lofty ridges, that on the left bank being partly covered by the Rhine and the high Voss, and that on the right bank by the Hunsrück and the Vögele.

Many of the mountains are basaltic. Their culminating point is the Kriemhilde, 2660 ft. The principal tributaries of the Moselle, within the government, are the Sauer, Sauer, and Nahe. The climate in the lower valleys is mild, but elsewhere bleak and cold. Much of the surface is covered with wood, which supplies abundance of fuel both for domestic use and a number of blast-furnaces. Much of the higher ground is either waste or occupied as extensive sheep-walks. The extent of arable land is thus limited. The most fertile portions are on the lower slopes of the Eifel, where the subsoil is chalk. The principal crops are rye, barley, spelt, and potatoes. Flax is grown to some extent in favorable situations. In such situations the vine also thrives, and yields a considerable quantity of wine, part of which bears a good name. The minerals include iron, coal, limestone, gypsum, and roofing-slate. Manufactures have not made much progress. The most important is leather after it is from goat, porcelaine, and stone ware. For administrative purposes the government is divided into 18 circles, of which Treves is the capital. About five-sixths of the inhabitants are R. Catholics. Pop. (1849) 492,122.

TREYES (see Angusta Trevorum, German, Trer), a tn. Rhinish Prussia, cap. above gov. in a luxuriant valley surrounded by low vine-clad hills, bank Moselle, here crossed by an ancient Roman bridge, nearly 600 ft. long 57 m. S.W. Coblenz. It is considered the oldest city in Germany, and is by far the richest of its cities in Roman remains, though these are more remarkable for vastness than beauty, and are far outstripped by the remains both of Italy and France. Modern Treves consists of the town proper and of nine suburbs. It is surrounded by walls with eight gates, and is indifferently built, having few good public squares, and a great number of irregular and narrow streets. The buildings most deserving of notes are the cathedral, an irregular structure in the earliest Romanesque style, supposed to be partly of Roman construction under the orders of the Empress Helena, who, moreover is the reputed depository of the Holy Coat, the exhibition of which, in 1844, attracted 1,000,000 pilgrims, and brought large sums into the treasury of the cathedral; adjoining the cathedral, and far superior to it in architectural merit, the Leobrunnkirche (church of our Lady), one of the earliest and most elegant specimens of pure pointed Gothic; the palace of the electors and bishops a handsome and extensive edifice, now converted into a barracks, and partly occupying the site of a vast Roman structure, of which a colossal fragment still exists, under the name of the Heldenturm (Hero's Tower); at the extremity of an open space in front of this structure, the ancient remains of the Roman bath in a very sheltered state; to the E. of the baths, and outside the walls, the Roman amphitheatre, scooped out of the hill of the Marburg, where the solidity of the rock has preserved entire the form of the arena, but no buildings remain except two vaulted passages, and the Schwarze Thor or Porta Nigra (Black Gate), one of the most interesting monuments of the town, decorated in front with rows of Tuscan columns, and presenting the massive simplicity of Roman structures, but thought to be of more recent origin. Other buildings and establishments worthy of notice are the town-library of 60,000 vols., the museum, gymnasium, theatre, two nunneries, episcopal seminary, provincial, industrial, and numerous other schools, the school of design savings-banks, borough-hospital, poorhouse, house of correction, &c. The manufactures consist of woolen and linen cloth, woollen, carpets, hats, porcelain, soap, glass, leather tobacco and refined-wax, and the trade, for which the Meuse affords great facilities, is chiefly in the above articles of manufacture, and in fruit and wine. Treves, when Julius Caesar led his armies into the district, was the capital of a powerful people, who he calls the Tréviri. It afterwards, under Augustus, was made a Roman colony under the name of Augusta Treverorum, and became the capital of Gallia Belgica. Several of the Roman emperors often resided in it, and it attained to such magnificence that the poet Ammonius calls it the second metropolis of the empire. During the invasion of the Goths, Huns, and Vandals, it was almost annihilated but revived and rose to great splendour under the archbishop-bishops who possessed extensive domains, often maintained large armies, and managed by their union of temporal and ecclesiastical sovereignty, to exercise great political influence in Germany. St. Ambrose, one of the fathers of the Church, was born, and St. Jerome, another of its fathers, studied here. Pop. (1846), 19,639.

THE MARKET-PLACE, TREVES.—From English's Magazine.

TRIVET, pro fr Meath 4159 co. Pop. 416.

TRIVET/THIN-VIN-FOURTOON, pro Eng Monmouth, 11,220 ac. Pop. 15,264.

TRIVIA, a town, Italy.—1. Ann. Trivia a town in delago, and 9 in N Spoleto rising in the form of an amphitheatre on the W slope of Mount Sorano. It has some trade as corn. Pop. 8020.—2. Ann. Trivium: A town and 40 m E.E.E. Roma, near r bank Tevere no. Pop. 1025.

TRIVIANA, a town in Spain Old Castile pro and 33 m WNW Logroño, with a church, an ancient hermitage, a courthouse, prison, primary school and a trade in corn, wine, and fruit. Pop. 1724.

TRIVIO, a town, Naples, pro Principato-Ulteriore, and 11 m S.E. Aviano, in the heart of the Apennines. It is the seat of a bishop, and contains a cathedral and two other churches. Pop. 2000.

TRIVIGLIO, or TRIVIGLIA, a town and com. Italy Lombardy, pro Milan, pro and 13 m S by W Bergamo cap. dist., near the railway from Milan to Vercelli. It has a very cheerful appearance, consisting of spacious and well-kept streets, and containing many elegant mansions. It is the seat of a court of justice, has a large and handsome parish church in the Gothic style, another handsome church, which belonged to a suppressed Augustinian monastery, a large ordinary and a founding hospital, several nunneries, numerous wind-mills, in which the greater part of the inhabitants are employed, and manufactures of candles, vinegar and mustard. Pop. 8693.

TRIVIGNO a seaport to Austria. See Rovigno.

TRIVISO (Latin, Trevisum, French, Trevise) a town, kingdom of Italy, pro and 15 m N.W. Venice, cap. pro, on the Adige. It is surrounded by strong walls and bastions, and is entered by a walled street, supplied with water from the Adige, and is entered by three gates. It is an ancient place, and though not regularly built, has spacious streets and large squares, and a great number of handsome houses, generally lined by arcades, and often possessed of small but well-planted gardens, which give the town a very pleasing appearance. The principal buildings are the cathedral, a fine but unfinished structure of the Lombards; the church of St. Nicolas, a large Gothic edifice, the courthouse and new prison, townhouse, register-office, hospital, library of 80,000 volumes, a seminary, &c. &c., two theatres, both handsome buildings; and the city hospital. The manufactures consist chiefly of silk and cotton goods, and emery, the trade is in corn, cattle, and fruit, and there is an important annual fair of 15 days. Trevise is the seat of a bishop, the seat of provincial and city courts and offices, and possesses a botanical garden, agricultural society and observatory of sciences and literature. It is a place of great antiquity, and is supposed to have been a municipal free-town under the Romans. On the decline of the empire, it was taken possession of by the Huns, then by the Ostrogoths, and afterwards by the Lombards, who made it the capital of their two margravates, under the name of Mare Trevisanum. During the feud between the Guelphs and Ghibellines it formed part of the Lombardic league, and became independent. In 1344 it voluntarily placed itself under the government of Venice, whose fortunes it has since followed. Totila, king of the Goths, and Pope Benedict XI. were born in Trevise. Pop. (1846), 19,484.—Trevisum, area, 702 sq. m., is hilly and almost mountainous in the N., but in all other directions consists of an extensive undulating plain watered by the Piave, Sile, and Livenza. It is one of the richest provinces of Lombardy, abounding alike in corn, wine, and cattle. Hemp and flax are extensively grown, and chestnuts are particularly abundant. The dairy districts south of Treviso, and the cheese bears a high name. There are several large forests, yielding fine timber, and copper is wrought. The only manufactures of any consequence are silk goods, woollens, paper, and various articles in copper, brass, iron, and steel. Pop. 286,100.

TRÉVOLD, a town and par Portugal pro Beira-Alta, 18 m S.E. Lamego, near r bank Tavora. Pop. 812.

TRÉVOL, a town, France, dep. Als, 30 m S.E. W. Roug. It rises in the form of an amphitheatre on the side of a hill washed by the Saône, and crowned by the ruins of an old castle and has manufactures of tannery, jewellery, and gold and silver leaf. The Jesuits published here an encyclopaedia called Dictionnaire de Trévoux. Pop. 1655.

TRÉVON, pro Eng Corwall, 986 ac. Pop. 188.

TRÉVORD pro Eng Somerset, 1200 ac. Pop. 174.

TRÉVSA, a town, Hesse-Cassel Oberhessen, L bank Schwarze, have crossed by a bridge 30 m E.N.E. Marburg. It has manufactures of linen and paper a tannery, and numerous mills. Pop. 2549.

TRÉZZANO, a town and com. Italy Lombardy pro Milan, dist. and 3 m S.W. Corona, on both sides the Naviglio-Grande, here crossed by a bridge. It contains a parish church. P. 1057.

TRÉZZO, a town and com. Italy Lombardy pro and 19 m N.E. Milan, r bank Adda. It contains three churches; has manufactures of silk, and a considerable trade in corn and wine, greatly aided by the Marosca canal, which commences here. Pop. 3385.

TRÉBU, or TRÉBUVA, a town in Austria Moravia, circle and 29 m WNW Olmutz, a station on the railway to Prague. It contains a castle, four churches, hospital, townhouse, Placet college, and Franciscan monastery and has manufactures of woollens, and several dye-works. Pop. 8751.

TRÉBU, (Böhmisch), a market in Böhmen, circle and 30 m E.N.E. Olmutz, on the Bohemian railway with a church a townhouse, a bathing-establishment, and walk, leather use and four mills. Pop. 2400.

TRÉBIZ, or TRÉBIZOVA, a village in the Trobovia and on the Bohemian railway 6 m from Leitensdorf, with a very ancient church, a school, and two mills. P. 1089.

TRÉBOLI seaport, Asiatic Turkey. See Trebonia.

TRÉBULES, a town, Prussia, pro Pommern, gov and 22 m S.W. Stralsund, r bank Trebel, with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 2708.

TRÉCALA a town in European Turkey. See Thracian.

TRÉCALOE, a town, British Columbia, circle, r bank Panama 48 m W Panama, but 11 1/2 m N. Ion. 79° 15' E.

TRÉCARICA, a town, Neples, pro Basilicata, dist. and 27 m WSW Matera. It is surrounded with ancient walls flanked with towers is the see of a bishop, and contains a handsome cathedral, and three other churches, a diocesan seminary, four monasteries, and a nunnery. Pop. 4800.

TRÉCARÉ, a town, Neples, pro Orlando, dist. and 23 m E.E.E. Gallipoli, in a fertile plain near the Ionian Sea, with three convents, and manufactures of muscovee leather, and cotton goods made chiefly from cotton grown in the neighbourhood. Pop. 2789.

TRÉCERRO a village and com. Italy Piedmont, dep. Nova, pro Verelli with a church and two parishes. P. 1237.

TRÉCHINOPOLY a district and in British India, pro Madras.—The distance between lat. 10° 40' and 11° 25' N; and lon 78° 10' and 78° 30' E is surrounded on the N and W by the dists. S. Arcot, Salem, and Coimbatore, S. and E., by Madras and Tanjore. Area, 5050 sq. m. The surface is mostly level, but interrupted in the E. with several abrupt granite heights, on one of which the fort of Trichinopoly is seated. The river Covery flows through the district W to E, and along it are many rice-grounds. The soil, except near the river, is generally soft and sandy and from March to May the climate is oppressively hot. Little rain falls usually, yet the country is almost May laid under water drained from the Wynoor Mountains, which is carefully preserved during the rest of the year in artificial cuts and sluices, by which means two and sometimes three crops of rice are raised yearly. Tobacco, beet-root, coco-nuts, plantains and dry grain are cultivated and around the capital are good fruit-gardens. The hardware cutlery, and jewellery of Trichinopoly are famous in India, shrotons in large quantities, indigo, nitre, cotton, and salico are also exports of consequence. Pop. 686,400. — The town is built on a very lat. 10° 50' N., lon 76° 44' E., is 80 m. W. Tanjore, and 207 m. (by road) S.S.W. Madras. The fort, about 1 m. in length N to S., by 4 m. in breadth contains a granite-park 500 ft. in height, which commands all the surrounding country and its appearance from the W. is not unlike that of Edinburgh castle in miniature. On the rock are the citadel, a large and massive pagoda, and a square-pillared Hindoo shrine and in its E. face is a sculptured cave-temple. The fort has strong walls, from 20 ft. to 30 ft. in height and encloses a closely built native town, with the pay-office, arsenal, garrioon-hospital, ordnance store, jail, and a large missionary chapel. Beyond the walls, on the S. and W., are the various barracks, several hospitals, handsome residences for military officers, an extensive parade ground, a race-course, public rooms, St. John's church, with the tomb of Bishop Heber who was interred there in 1826. A R. Catholic chapel and various cemeteries. The country around is highly fertile, and abounds with populous villages, and the island of Seringham adjacent is renowned in India for the number size, and wealth of its pagoda. Trichinopoly is the head-quarters of the R. division of the Madras army. It is usually garrisoned by four regiments of native infantry and one of cavalry, a regiment of royal infantry, and a company of artillery the whole comprising between 4000 and 5000 men. Trichinopoly cloths and jewellery are famous and here are manufactures of cotton cloths, linens, hammans, and saddlery and well-supplied barracks. Good roads connect the town with Madras, Hindigal, Tanjore, and Madras. Pop. of the fort, and exclusive of troops 39,000.

TRICHINOPOLY from the S.E.—From Deane's View in India.

TRICHOOB (native, Trichooos-proor) a tn. Hindoos, Cochin dominions under princ. Malabar, 50 m. N. by W. Cochin. It consists of a walled inclosure 44 m. in circuit, its remains raised in 1794, surrounded an area over which several separate villages are situated, the most conspicuous being one around a Roman-Syrian church, and inhabited by Christians. The space also contains a citadel and palace, a college for 100 Brahmins, numerous pagodas, one of which has four towers, erected by as many Indian princes good baracks, an hospital, magazine, and storehouse. It is celebrated throughout Malabar for its sanctity and is the place of a large annual festival, it is also the most important trading centre in Cochin and the station of a collector, aillah court, and a regimental company of the Anglo-Indian army.

TRIEBEL, a tn. Franconia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 50 m. S. Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, with three churches, many factories of woollen and linen cloth, and earthenware, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1506.

TRIEBER, a vil. Germany, Rhenus-Schlesien with a church, two schools and saw and other mills. Pop. 1984.

TRIEDSWETTER, or RAOB Uta, a vil. Hungary. Thidist Thess., co. Thural, about 6 m. from Koslar, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1978.

TRIEGEN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 16 m. N.W. Luzern, with a handsome church, manufactures of cotton goods, and a cotton-mill. Pop. 2634.

TRIENT, a tn. Austria. See Tauer.

TRIEN, a gov. and tn. Russian Russia. See Taryva.

TRIESTE (Latin, Tergeste, German, Triest), a tn. and seaport, Austria, Illyria, dioc. Gorizia, circle Adelsberg 314 m. S.W. Vienna, on a gulf of same name N.E. extremity of the Adriatic sea lat. (middle) 45° 35' 30" N. lon. 13° 48' 30" E. (n.) It stands partly on sloping and partly on level ground in the form of a semicircle inclosed by hills; and consists of the old town, the new town or Thermenstadt, the Josephstadt, and the Franzens-Vorstadt. The old town on a slope to the S.E., surmounted by the castle, occupies the site of the Roman colony Tergeste, the old cathedral beside the castle standing, it is said, on the spot and its tower on a temple of Jupiter. It is surrounded by old high walls, the streets are narrow, crooked, and dirty in most cases so steep as to be quite inaccessible to carriages. The more modern parts of the town occupying a level space near the harbour partly gained from the sea and from salt marshes, or stretching away towards the hills to the N.E., are regularly built of handsome white houses, either lining broad commodious, well paved streets, or forming spacious elegant squares. A broad canal deep enough to float vessels of large tonnage, crosses the harbour through this part of the town, enables the merchants to receive or deliver cargoes at their doors. The principal public buildings are the exchange, the finest edifice in Trieste situated in a square in the centre of which are a fountain and a statue of the emperor Leopold I., and adorned with a Doric colonnade and a fine spacious portal leading to a noble merchant's hall, while the story immediately above is employed as a casino the Dom, or cathedral already mentioned, in the Byzantine style, and of great antiquity; the church of St. Peter the Jewish church with a fine Corinthian colonnade; the Protestant church, synagogue, custom-house, post-office, the old and new theatres. Among the fine buildings of Trieste deserves to be mentioned the Palais Revoltella, most splendidly furnished, and containing some very fine objects of art. The harbour is of easy access, and well sheltered except to the N.W., from which, though accidents seldom occur, a heavy sea is sometimes thrown in. It is deep enough to admit vessels of 300 tons to tie up quays and vessels of any size to anchor safely at a short distance off in the roads. It is in the form of a crescent surrounded by spacious quays, divided by small piers into several separate basins, and shut in on the south by a larger pier the Thermen Mole projecting N.W. into the sea, and terminating in a broad platform occupied partly by a fort, and partly by an intermediate light 106 ft. above the sea. Close to the harbour are extensive building-docks, and at the N. end, opposite the Thermen mole, the new lazaretto, the largest and best arranged in Europe, capable of containing seventy ships in quarantine. The old lazaretto, outside the mole on the S. side, is smaller but still spacious and convenient. Great improvements are at present (1867) being made on the harbour, which will make it in a few years quite equal to that of Marseilles, some £1,500,000 has been already expended. The trade, which began rapidly to increase about the middle of last century in consequence of the great improvements made in the harbour by the empress Maria Theresa, is very extensive, including much of the raw and manufactured produce of the neighbouring countries. The formation of the railway over the Carinthian Alps from Trieste to Vienna, and of several branches to various parts of the interior, and the consequent increase in the inland trade of the town has already materially increased the trade of the port, especially in wheat from Hungary and its dependencies of which more than 10,000,000 quintals are some years exported to Italy, France, and England, and when all the railways intended to connect this port with the hinterland have been opened for traffic, Trieste will become as important a base of the corn trade as Odessa, especially as, during the winter, it is far more accessible than the Russian port. Timber forms another important article in the exportations from Trieste. The following table shows the extent of this trade in 1865 and 1866.—

TRIESTE.—From Cassin, Voyage Pittoresque de l'Italie et de la Dalmatie.

| | 1865. | 1866. |
|--------|---------------------|-------------------|
| Timber | 1,068,897 cubic ft. | 920,964 cubic ft. |
| Staves | 38,128,062 " | 55,06,184 " |
| Planks | 4,011,830 " | 4,261,864 " |

The principal other exports are rice, wine, oil, wax, flax, hemp, tobacco, silk, wool, hides, marble, iron, lead, quick silver, copper, alum, vitriol, silk stuffs, printed cottons, coarse and fine lace, soap, leather, glass, and liquors. The principal imports are colonial produce, raw and spun cotton, cotton goods, dried fruits, hides, salt fish, camel's hair, &c. Trieste is the head-quarters of the Austrian Lloyd's steam packet company, which possesses 165 steamers trading to Venice, Alexandria, Varna, Constantinople, &c. The following tables give a good idea of the extent of this rising port:—

NUMBER OF VESSELS AND AMOUNT OF TONNAGE RECEIVED AND CARRIED AT TRIESTE IN THE YEARS 1864, 1865, 1866, AND 1867.

| Year. | ARRIVED. | | DEPARTED. | |
|-------|----------|---------|-----------|---------|
| | Vessels. | Tons. | Vessels. | Tons. |
| 1864 | 15,308 | 862,726 | 15,323 | 805,000 |
| 1865 | 10,905 | 775,477 | 10,864 | 772,455 |
| 1866 | 8,125 | 582,162 | 7,067 | 707,058 |
| 1867 | 8,271 | 644,741 | 8,268 | 521,781 |

* Vessels in ballast are not included in these years.

RECEIVED AND DEPARTED.

| Year. | ARRIVED. | | | DEPARTED. | | |
|-------|-----------|-----------|------------|-----------|-----------|------------|
| | By Sea. | By Land. | Total. | By Sea. | By Land. | Total. |
| 1864 | 8,769,400 | 1,879,100 | 10,648,500 | 8,464,900 | 2,255,600 | 10,720,500 |
| 1865 | 8,128,720 | 1,478,280 | 9,607,000 | 8,407,400 | 2,000,700 | 10,408,100 |
| 1866 | 7,085,000 | 1,190,700 | 8,275,700 | 6,867,000 | 1,450,000 | 8,317,000 |
| 1867 | 7,085,000 | 1,190,700 | 8,275,700 | 6,867,000 | 1,450,000 | 8,317,000 |
| 1868 | 7,085,000 | 1,190,700 | 8,275,700 | 6,867,000 | 1,450,000 | 8,317,000 |
| 1869 | 7,085,000 | 1,190,700 | 8,275,700 | 6,867,000 | 1,450,000 | 8,317,000 |

Though Trieste is more a commercial than a manufacturing town, the manufactures are numerous and in some branches extensive. The principal articles are white-linen, wax-candles, soap, rosoglio, spirals, earthenware, and more or less leather. A great number of vessels also are built, and an active shipping is carried on in the bay. Trieste is the see of a bishop, the seat of civil, maritime and military courts, and of a number of important public offices, and possesses various endowments and establishments, benevolent, educational, literary and scientific. It existed under the Romans, but never rose to much importance till about the middle of the last century. It was but a small village of 6000 inhabitants in 1719 when the emperor Charles VI conferred on it the privileges of a free port. Some years later it attracted the attention and shared largely in the enlightened policy of the empress Maria Theresa, who laid the foundation of a prosperity which has ever since continued to advance and converted a comparatively insignificant town into the first port of the Austrian empire. The country immediately around Trieste is extremely beautiful—gardens, vineyards, and orchards, under an Italian sky, meet the eye in every direction. The town itself is more Italian than German, accounts are generally kept, and most of the business done in Italian. Italian papers and pamphlets fill the coffee-houses, the chief magistrates even is not burgomaster but podestà. 1 pop. (1865) 73,691.

TRIGIANO a town in Naples prov and 8 m S.S.E. Bari; with a church and a convent, pop. 2850.

TRIGNO (anc. Trasena) Fiumicino a river in Naples, rises near Vasto-Gravido, prov. Sanm. flows S.S.E., then suddenly turns N.E. and falls into the Adriatic by two mouths, about 6 m S.E. Vasto-d'Ammonio, total course, 60 m.

TRIGOLO a vil and com Italy prov Cremona 6 m. E. Soncino, with a church and two chapels. Pop. 2087.

TRIGULON, a town in Spain, Andalusia prov and 10 m N.E. Huelva, with irregular but clean and well-paved streets; three squares, a church, suppressed Carmelite convent, and townships, a parochial school, two mosques, and numerous potteries, and flour and oil mills. P. (approx.) 3284.

TRIKAL a town in Greece, Thessaly, at a European Turkey Thessaly, 890 m. W.S.W. Constantinople; lat. 39° 21' N., lon. 21° 48' E. It is large, and has bustling bazaars, but is greatly neglected, and partly in ruins. Pop. 12,000.

TRIKERKI—1, a town in Turkey in Thessaly at the extremity of a peninsula forming the E. entrance of the Gulf of Volo, 80 m. E.N.E. Zante. It has one of the best-protected harbours in this part of the archipelago and building yards, at which a great number of vessels are fitted out. Pop. about 5000.—2, a small vil in the Gulf of Volo, immediately off the peninsula.—3, a channel leading off from the archipelago; it communicates with the Gulf of Volo on the N. and the channel of Tenedos on the S.W.

TRILLE (anc. Trille) a vil in Hohenzollern-Niederrhein on a very bleak and elevated site, with a parish church. P. 1840.

TRILLO, a vil Spain prov Guadalajara 80 m. E.N.E. Madrid, with excellent mineral baths, much frequented from June 15 to September 15. Pop. 670.

TRIM, a town and par. Ireland cap. of co. Meath, 1 bank Boyne 26 m. N.W. Dublin, with a court-house, court-house, hospitals, schools, a church, and chapel. Pop. (1811), 1906. Area of par. 18,430 ac. Pop. 6232.

TRIMMIS, a vil and par. Switzerland, cant. Grisons, 8 m from Coire, with two churches. Pop. 1105.

TRINCOMALEE a maritime town in Ceylon, E. coast; lat. 6° 23' N., lon. 81° 14' E. It stands on the N. side of the entrance to a noble harbour, at the foot of a height crowned by the fort, and defended by fortifications which extend for 1 m. along the shore. The native town was, a few years ago, a confined assemblage of 300 or 400 huts of palm-leaves, separated by lofty trees, near the harbour. It, however, a large, consisting of two long and wide streets, lined with all kinds of shops, and there is also a 'red-house,' a large and good hotel. A small pagoda with a very curious pattern, and a large tank, are the only other remarkable structures. Fort of petroleum; the other on the W coast, near Cape Mayaro, gives, in March and June, several deluges resembling thunder, succeeded by flames and smoke afterwards electric plumes of bluish or black and brilliant as jet. But the most remarkable phenomenon of this kind in the island is on the E coast, but few, and those indifferent, on its E and N shores. Pop. (1881), 68,645 thus classified:—M. Catholics, 48,605; Episcopians, 15,246; Wesleyans, 2506; Presbyterians, 1017; Independents, 133; Baptists, 446; Mahomedans, Gentoo, leathers etc., 4668. Pop. (1861) 84,438.

TRINIDAD, a vil and par Brazil, prov and 80 m NE Rio-de-Janeiro with a handsome church, numerous sugar-works and distilleries, and a considerable trade in timber. Pop. (dist.) 4000.

TRINITA, a vil Italy prov Naples, near Sorrento with two churches and an abbey. Pop. 1250.

TRINITA, a tn Italy Piedmont, div Coss. prov and 12 m. N NW Mondovi on the road to Turin, with a court of justice, two churches, and a well endowed hospital. Pop. 2853.

TRINITA VERRUCIO a vil and com France, dep. Alpes Maritimes 5 m N E Nîmes, on the Fagnone, with a church and a sanctuary. Pop. 1393.

TRINITA (La) a tn. W Indies, Isl. Martinique, W shore of a creek of same name, 16 m. N Port-Royal. It was formerly a large and well-built town, but having been almost destroyed by fire in 1794 and by hurricanes in 1813 and 1817 has only been partially rebuilt. It has a handsome church, barracks, and prison, a harbour difficult of access, and exposed to the E and a considerable export of sugar and rum, chiefly to the U States.

TRINITY, two pars. Irel. in city of Waterford—1, (Trinity), 15 ac. 1 op. 1280.—2 (Ward-off), 1068 ac. Pop. 12 177.

TRINITY-GASK, par Scot Perth 16½ m. P 597 TRINITY (Hort) par Eng. Chester 1858 ac. 1 8490.

TRINKEISEN a vil. Boleslau, circle Elbing 14 m. from Carlsbad with a church and school. Pop. 6511.

TRINVO, a tn and com Italy Piedmont div Novara, prov and 12 m S W Verucelli, 1 bank Po. It is traversed by a large principal street lined with porticoes, and has a court of justice and a handsome church, a Dominican convent, a college, and an hospital. Pop. 3217.

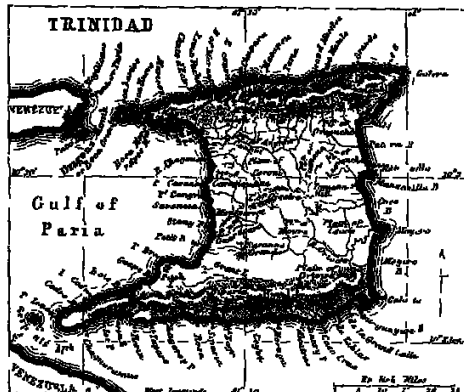

TRINOMAJEE, a tn S Hindoostan, Carnatic, 52 m W N W Pondicherry, lat. 12° 11' N lon. 79° 7' E. It is extensive and populous and the great street leading to the temple is lined with churches. Trinomajee sustained many sieges during the Carnatic wars of last century.

TRINSE (Honey) a vil and par Switzerland, can. Gr. some, 4 m. W Bolchman, near L. bank Vorder-Rhein. It is well built and has a parish church, the ruins of two old castles, and a trade in fruit. The Trinser-see, in the vicinity contains good fish. Pop. 1073.

TRININGALL, par Eng. Somerset 1826 ac. P 523 TRININGALL a vil and com. Sardinian States, div Mien, prov and 19 m N. by W San Remo on a mountain range, bathed on the E by the Capello, and on the W by the Verdegna, which unite their streams a little below. It was anciently surrounded by walls, and defended by two castles, of which portions still remain, and has an ancient collegiate church with some good paintings, an Augustinian monastery a public school, an hospital, and several other charitable endowments. Pop. 4846.

TRIPATTOUR, several places in Hindoostan—1, A large open village, 120 m. S W Madras, lat. 12° 50' N, lon. 78° 30' E.; well sheltered with fruit-trees, and having a comfortable appearance.—2 A tn. Carnatic, 62 m S W Tanjore, lat. 10° 7' N lon. 78° 40' E. with a ruined fort.—3, A small but well-built tn. Carnatic, 27 m. S by W Madras with a Hindu temple of considerable note.

TRIPOLI, a country in the N of Africa, forming one of the Barbary States, and, in some at least, a dependency of the Turkish Empire. It is often understood in an enlarged sense to include both Barca and Fezzan, but as these are described under their own heads, the present article is confined to Tripoli proper, which lies between lat. 32° and 35° 30' N and to the Asphaltenes or Pitch Lake, situated on the leeward side of the island on a small peninsula joining into the sea, a little to the N E. of Grand Bay it is about 12 m. in circumference, and elevated 80 ft. above the level of the sea. The beach on which it is situated consists of bituminous coarse vitrified sand, and earth cemented together. In some places beds of sanders are found, and a strong and numerous small parishes the ground to the distance of 6 m. or 10 m. from the lake. The pitch at the sides of the lake is perfectly hard and cold, but towards the middle the heat gradually increases, and the pitch becomes softer and softer until at last it is seen boiling up in a liquid state. Several attempts have been made to ascertain the depth of the lake, but no bottom has ever been found. The climate is apparently less unhealthy than that of many of the other W India islands, and is not subject to droughts. The beautiful and abundant down, arising from the numerous rivers of the island, and surrounding ocean, cool and invigorates the atmosphere, and give an unusual luxuriance to its vegetation. The soil is in general extremely fertile, and the elevated parts of the surface are mostly covered with dense forests, which contain the finest wood for ship-building and for ornamental purposes among which the red cedar and a great variety of palm are conspicuous. The principal animals inhabiting the island are a species of small deer, the mangrove-stag, the paca or lapo about the size of a hare, opossums, armadillos porcupines, hares, ant bears, sloths, tiger-cats, peccaries, water-dogs, monkeys in great variety, land-tortoises, &c. Birds—partridges flamingoes white wood-cocks, wild ducks pelicans, vultures, bats, parrots, paroquets and humming birds. The chief crop of Trinidad is cacao: the other exportable products are sugar, molasses rum, and coffee, a small quantity of cotton and ginger. The exports in 1848 amounted to £261,892 and the imports to £481,562, in 1853 they were £710,972 and £798,493 respectively. The revenue produced £25,384 in 1848, and £184,378 in 1853 and the expenditure was £70,518 in 1848, and £188,982 in 1853.

Trinidad is a crown-colony, the public affairs being administered by a lieutenant-governor, assisted by an executive and a legislative committee. It was discovered by Columbus in July, 1498 and was taken from the Spaniards by the British in 1797. Port of Spain, on the N W side of the island, is the capital, and one of the finest towns in the W Indies. Trinidad has numerous good harbours on its W and

lon. 10° and 20° E. and is bounded, N by the Mediterranean, W Tunis, S Fezzan and the Libyan Desert, and E the Libyan Desert and Barca; length, W to E., about 700 m.; breadth, varying from 100 m. near the coast, to 200 m. near the extremities, area, roughly estimated at about 100,000 sq. m. The coast-line, the E. half of which forms the very remarkable indentation recently known as the Gharbi Syrte, and now called the Gulf of Sirte, stretches in an irregular but almost unbroken course for about 600 m., and presents so few bays and projecting headlands as not to furnish more than one good harbor—that of the capital. One-half of the coast, from the Gulf of Gabes or Lesser Syrte E. to Murat's Point, is low and sandy, the other half is more diversified, and in some places the mountains of its sandy beaches by numerous rocky points, which were the terror of ancient mariners, though modern survey has proved that their imaginations had greatly exaggerated the real danger. The interior is very imperfectly known. The E. part, being mostly a continuation of the desert, partakes of its inhospitable character, and contains large tracts of almost barren sands. In the S. however, it is partly traversed by the Black Mountains, an E. offshoot of Atlas, which descending in successive terraces, inclose many valleys and plains of considerable fertility. Farther to the W. the surface becomes still more diversified, and presents scenery which is not deficient either in beauty or grandeur. Two mountain-ranges stretch from W to E. in directions nearly parallel to the coast—the one in the S. called the Buzza, and the other in the N. called the Gharian Mountains. The latter range which has a width of 12 m. to 10 m., and attains a height of about 4000 ft., is not more than 20 m. from the coast, and becomes visible at sea. It is composed for the most part of volcanic rocks, and many of its summits assume the form of isolated conical peaks. The space between these is often crossed by a kind of plateau. The soil upon them produced by the decomposition of lava and basalt, is very fertile, and being often under careful cultivation, produces heavy crops of grain more especially where the natural deficiency of moisture is supplied by irrigation from large tanks, in which, in the absence of running streams, the rain-water is collected for that purpose. On the sides of hills too steep to be arable, vines, olives, almonds, figs, and other fruits, are often seen growing in profusion. In these hilly tracts much of the surface is left in natural pasture, which more especially after the heavy rains, have rendered them with moisture, becomes extremely luxuriant, and rear cattle in such numbers as to become an important article of export. But by far the richest and most fertile tract of Tripoli is that of the Membræ, which stretches about 15 m. along the coast, with a width not exceeding 5 m. and has the capital nearly in its centre. The whole of this favoured district is economically occupied with fertile fields, on which rich crops of wheat, barley, millet, and Indian corn are grown, plantations of productive palm-trees, arranged in regular rows, oliveyards, vineyards, orchards, and gardens yielding in abundance, among other fruits, oranges, pomegranates, lemons, figs, apricots, plums, and water-melons. Though, from the porous nature of the soil, there are no proper rivers in the country, the supply of moisture under careful husbandry is sufficient both for domestic and for agricultural purposes. Abundant rains fall from November to March and are collected in numerous tanks and cisterns, to provide against the succeeding droughts which prevail throughout the remainder of the year, more especially from May to September when sometimes for months not a single shower falls. At this time the heat is intense, the sunsets often blazes, and the thermometer rises from 90° to 92°. During the rainy season the fluctuations of temperature are often very great, the thermometer frequently falling during the night to 40°, or to the freezing point, and rising during the day to above 70°. The prevailing winds of summer are E. those of winter W and N W. The rural population consists chiefly of Arabs, the town population chiefly of Moors, both with a considerable intermixture of Jews. Neither Turks, Manichæans, nor Christians are numerous. The government is an unmitigated and hereditary despotism. The pasha, generally chosen from among the Turkish officers who reside in the capital, and confirmed by a firman of the sultan, sets an example of tyranny and extortion which is naturally and eagerly imitated by his subordinates. A large portion of the revenues was at one time derived from piracy, since the suppression of which, the deficiency has been in a great measure supplied, not by developing the resources of the country, but by establishing monopolies, tampering with the currency, and imposing grinding taxes. The most regular and legitimate sources of income are direct tribute from the Arabs and district-governors, a land tax, a tax on Jews and merchants, and export and import duties. Pop. about 1,500,000.

TRIPOLI [anc. ZEN] a seaport town, N coast, Africa, cap. of above state, 300 m. S. of the coast of Sicily, and 800 m. S. E. Algiers, lat. (pasha's castle) 33° 53' 54" N., lon. 13° 11' E. (p.) It stands on a rocky promontory washed by the sea on the N and E., and connected with the mainland on the S. and W. by a sandy plain partly under cultivation. It is enclosed on the land-side by a lofty wall flanked with bastions, and defended on the sea-front by a formidable line of intarses, terminating at the S. E. angle in a strong castle, in which the pasha resides. The town is entered by two gates, incloses an area about 1300 yards long, by 1000 yards broad, and consists of a great number of narrow and uneven lanes, lined for the most part with mean houses huddled together without any order, and from the absence of front-windows, looking more like dead walls than inhabited dwellings. The pasha's castle, as already remarked, consists of an ancient pile of vast extent, built at different times, and so irregularly, that all appearance of symmetry is lost. The other principal buildings are six principal, and many smaller mosques. The great mosque, situated in the main street, is a handsome and majestic structure, in which the roof, formed by a number of small cupolas, is supported by 16 Doric marble-columns, said to have once belonged to a Christian church. The other objects most deserving of notice are two or more Christian churches, a Franciscan convent, three synagogues a number of public baths, each crowned with a dome, extensive bazaars and caravanserais, and several ancient remains, among which the most remarkable is a magnificent triumphal arch, erected in 164, to the Roman emperors Aurelius Antoninus and Lucius Verus, consisting of huge blocks of marble, beautifully sculptured on the sides and ceiling and now used as a storehouse. The only manufactures of any consequence are carpets, which have long been celebrated, mantles and other woollen stuffs, ordinary and morocco leather and potash. The trade has the advantage of the only good harbour for several hundred miles along the coast. It is formed by the S. E. of the promontory on which the town stands, and two long lines of reefs on the E. and S. E. furnishing tolerably good shelter. Where deepest it has not more than five or six fathoms, but has capacity sufficient to admit whole fleets of merchant-vessels, ships-of-war anchor in the outer roads, which have good holding-ground in 16 to 18 fathoms, with sufficient shelter. A great part of the trade of the state, and even of the more distant interior as far as Timbuctoo and Morocco, has its emporium at Tripoli, to which the goods are conveyed across the desert in caravans. The exports consist chiefly of woollen goods, hides, sesame, saffron, oil, cattle, goat and sheep skins, wool, fruit, chiefly dates, madder, wax, &c. the imports, grain, European wines of all kinds, chiefly cottons, hardware, cutlery, including sword-blades, firearms, wines, coffee, sugar, &c. Pop. about 30,000.

TRIPOLI, TARABOLUS, or TRIPOLIS, a seaport town, Syria, cap. pash. of same name, on the Mediterranean, 45 m. N. by E. Beyrout lat. 34° 26' 24" N. lon. 35° 49' E. (p.) It stands on a small triangular plain, washed by the sea on the N. and E., with a hill covered by a Saracenic castle on the E. and some low mounds on the S. W. and is divided into two portions by the Nahr-Kadisha, which runs by the castle, the part to the N. styled El Misa or Marina, being the port. The houses are chiefly of stone. Most of the mosques have been evidently Christian churches, and are handsome edifices; the bazars and khans also are the ancient monasteries and nunneries; and several of the streets have on each side remains of rude Gothic architecture. The luxuriant groves of oranges, lemons, and mulberry, and other fruit-trees, cultivated with the utmost care, which meet the eye in every direction, and the noble poplars and plane-trees, besides various other trees and shrubs which abound, give a very pleasing aspect to Tripoli. But it has numerous disadvantages. Its situation is extremely unhealthy, and its harbour small and unsafe. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, Tripoli continues to be a place of considerable trade, especially in silk and sponge. Some wool, tobacco, galls, ochre, and soap are also exported. Pop. 14,000.

TRIPOLIZZA, or TARABOLDA, a tn. Greece, Morea, cap. Arendia, on a black and elevated plain more than 8000 ft. above sea-level, 87 m. S.W. Corinth. Under the Turks it was the capital of the Morea, and rose to be a flourishing town of 30,000 inhabitants but suffered severely during the war of Independence and was finally abandoned by the Egyptians under Ibrahim Pasha, was left a heap of ruins, in alleged retaliation of atrocities of which the Greeks had on a previous occasion been guilty. It has been rebuilt and has a respectable appearance, presenting fewer ruins of modern buildings than are met with in most Greek towns. It is said to derive its name from the three towns of Toga, Manina, and Pallanura, which were all situated on the plain on which it stands. Pop. 2500.

TRIPPSTADT, a vil. Bavaria, Prussia 18 m. E. N. E. Zwettl; with a church, a castle, and extensive iron-works. Pop. 1876.

TRIPTRIS, a tn. Saxo-Weimar bail. Neustadt with two churches, a castle, and two mills. Pop. 1430.

TRISORDIO, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. and 5 m. S.E. Aquis with several churches and the ruins of an old castle. Pop. 1824.

TRISTAN D'ACUNHA, a group of three isles, S. Atlantic Ocean, the largest and most N., named after the Portuguese discoverer, Tristan d'Acunha is about 20 m. in extent in lat. 37° S. lon. 12° E. It is apparently a solid mass of rock, in the form of a truncated cone rising abruptly from the sea, and ascending at an angle of 40° to the height of 8000 ft. This mass is surmounted by a dome 5000 ft. high on the summit of which is the crater of an old extinct shield volcano, nearly 1 m. in circumference. The face of the mountain, as far as the base of the dome, is mostly covered with brushwood, intermixed with ferns and long grass, which is its native vegetation. In many places, however it is completely bare and presents to view the edges of a vast number of strata arranged horizontally or at slight degrees of elevation. The climate of the island is mild but moist. Wild celery is abundant and the ground is covered with a gigantic species of Euphorbia (S. crassifolia). Two species of seals are the only quadrupeds on the island that can be considered as strictly indigenous, the wild goats and hogs having been introduced since its discovery by the Europeans. The only land-birds are a species of thrush, hunting and common moor-bird. Of aquatic birds there is a great abundance, including the albatrosses. There are no reptiles, and very few insects.

TRISTE—1, A gulf, S. America, N. coast, Venezuela in the Caribbean Sea, formed by the point of Tucacas on the N.W. and the mouth of the Chavero on the S.E. It is about 24 m. across, and penetrates about 9 m. inland—2, A bay, uninhabited, in the lagoon of Termouss, in the Gulf of Mexico, about 16 m. in extent.

TRUGGIO, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. Milan; bank Lambro, 7 m. from Cerate, with a parish church a charitable endowment, a mill, and a trade in corn wine, and silk. Pop. 1100.

TRUJILLO, a tn. Brazil, prov. Rio de Janeiro, Rio Grande, 1 bank Taguari 90 m. W. Porto Alegre. It is the head-station of several electoral colleges has a parish church and a primary school, and a harbour which admits only small craft. Pop. (1854), 1442.

TRIVACOLA, a tn. Piedmont, S. Carnatia, dist. and 84 m. E. Turin; pleasantly situated on the Nagore, here crossed by two narrow stone-bridges. It is a cheerful and populous place, with a handsome square of native houses, including a magnificent tank, one side of which is occupied by a lofty pagoda, while a choultry occupies a projecting promontory on the opposite bank.

TRIVANDRUM, a tn. Hindoostan. See TRIVANCOOR. TRIVENTO, a walled tn. Naples, prov. Benevento, 15 m. N.W. Campobasso, bank Trigno. It is the see of a bishop, and contains a handsome cathedral episcopal palace, four parish churches, a monastery, a nunnery, and seminary. Pop. 2500.

TRIVERO, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin prov. and 9 m. N. E. Biella, on an affluent of the Sesia. It has a parish church and a sanctuary. Pop. 4016.

TRIVIGNO, a vil. Naples, prov. Basilicata, S. E. Matera, between lofty hills near a bank Basento; with a church and four chapels. Pop. 2500.

TROBRAND, a group of isles, Lonsdale Archipelago, S. Pacific, lat. 6° 45' 45" to 8° 55' 50" S., lon. 147° 34' to 151° 10' E. The islands are generally low, and of considerable extent, apparently fertile, producing, in particular, abundant quantities of the finest yams and maintaining a dense population. The more important islands of the group are Lagrande, Jurein, and Jureney.

TROCHTELFINGEN ntn. Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, on the Sekach. It contains an old massive tower forming the only remnant of the strong castle of Trochtelefingen. P. 1180.

TROCHTELFINGEN, a vil. Württemberg, circle Jaxt, half Reichenheim, with a church. Pop. 1020.

TROEDYRAUR, par. Wales, Cardigan; 4006 ac. Pop. 1020.

TROENSE, a vil. Denmark, in Taastrup, on the Theolund and possessing excellent building yards. Pop. 700.

TROFA, a tn. and par. Portugal, prov. Douro, 9 m. N. E. Aveiro near bank Vouga. Pop. 860.

TROGNI, a tn. and par. Switzerland, cant. and 6 m. N. E. Appenzel, cap. of Oerlikon. It stands on a narrow ridge between the arms of the Goldbach and contains a well-built square, and a handsome parish church. It has also an important educational establishment, a museum and library, an orphan asylum, and a penitentiary. The manufacturing consists of linen and muslin. Pop. (1850) 2011.

TROIS-ILLES, or St. Salvator, a tn. W. Indies, on the S.E. of Guadeloupe, cap. dist. and at the mouth of a stream of same name, 7 m. E. S. E. Terre. Pop. 2716.

TROTHAK, two isles. Russia—1, Gov. Orenburg cap. circle, 1 bank Ch. 280 m. E. S. E. Ufa. It is built in the form of a square, enclosed by a fence and wooden walls, flanked with towers and defended by outworks, so as to be a place of some strength. It has spacious and regular streets; three churches, one of them a handsome stone-building, two mosques, and an hospital large iron-works, manufactures of firearms, and an extensive trade. Near it are gold-mines. 1870—2, Gov. Penza, circle Krasnolobodsk. P. 1930.

TRONKON MONASTERY, or TRONKON-BANARU, a tn. Russia, gov. and 45 m. N. W. of Moscow on the Koluton, on the foot of a lofty hill which rises up in the centre, and is crowned by one of the largest and most remarkable convents in Russia. This monastery, said to have been founded in 1228 by St. Sergius, is enclosed by a lofty wall nearly 20 m. in thickness more than 1000 yards in extent and flanked by eight large towers. The principal church, in which the saint is buried has a gilded roof and numerous costly ornaments and vessels. Another church is surmounted by a modern tower 250 ft. in height, and contains 34 bells, one of which weighs about 60 tons, another 30 tons, and a third 25 tons. In addition to these two, there are still seven churches within the walls, an imperial palace, the residence of the archbishop, a seminary where nearly 300 students are maintained and educated, and a large establishment of monks. Pop. (or) nearly 6000.

TROJA, a tn. Naples, prov. Capitanata, 7 m. N. W. Bovino. It is the see of a bishop, and contains a Gothic cathedral, four parish churches five monasteries, two nunneries, and a handsome seminary. Pop. 4400.

TROJA (anc. Troia) a tn. Lycia, on the coast of Taurus about 12 m. E. of Kib. It is only about 1½ m. each way and has a conical summit crowned with a tower.

TROKI, a tn. Russia, gov. and 14 m. W. S. W. Wilna, cap. circle, on S.W. shore of Lake Rezanee, in which is an island with a castle upon it. Troki is built of wood, contains three churches a castle and a monastery. It was once the residence of the grand duke of Lithuania. P. (1845) 4860.

TROLLHÄTTA, a vil. Sweden, in Skåne, in a beautiful and romantic district, 1 bank Githa, about 7 m. below the outlet from Lake Wener, and 41 m. N. by E. Göteborg. It has extensive saw-mills situated on the celebrated falls of its name, and attracts many visitors by its wonders both of nature and art, the former, the falls already mentioned, over which the whole flood of the Githa, after rushing down a series of foaming cataracts, is precipitated a height of about 100 ft. forming one of the most magnificent spectacles in the N. of Europe, and the latter, the handsome conventions in the solid rocks, and the other great engineering works, by which, notwithstanding the falls, a continuous navigation has been secured from the Kattegat through the Götth, into Lake Wener. Pop. (vill.) about 1600.

TROMBETAS, or OTKAZKA, a river, Russian Gubernia, runs near the frontier of British Guiana, in the Serra Tumucumaque flows S., passes the town of Olibos, and falls into the Amazon by two unequal mouths at a short distance from each other. It is the largest of all the affluents which the Amazon receives on the left between the Negro and the sea.

TROMSØ, an isl off S. coast, Norway, prov. Christendom, opposite to Arendal, and only separated from the mainland by a very narrow channel. It forms a narrow belt about 7 m. long N. E. to S. W., and is partly covered with wood and partly under cultivation.

TROMSØ, a seaport in Norway, cap. prov. Tromsø, pleasantly situated on an island off the W. coast, about 1 m. long by $\frac{1}{2}$ m. broad, which lies between Isl. Hvaløen and the mainland lat. (observatory) $69^{\circ} 59' 12''$ N., lon. $18^{\circ} 57' E.$ (z.) It consists of a long street, built entirely of wood and though of recent origin, has rapidly acquired prosperity chiefly in consequence of the important fisheries carried on in its vicinity and it has an important trade. It is the seat of a bishop, residence of the governor, and several subordinate authorities and has a church, a superior and an elementary school and an hospital chiefly for the cure of leprosy and elephantiasis, which here prevail to a great extent. Pop. 901. — The province is the most N. of the kingdom. It is bounded, S. by prov. Trondhjem, E. Sweden and Russia, and N. and W. the Frozen and the Atlantic Ocean. It is divided into the two bailiwicks of Nordland (area, 11,003 geo. sq. m. pop. 65,512), and Finnmark (area, 20,560 geo. sq. m. pop. 42,588).

TROMSØENNES, or DROGOSSE, a town and com. Isl. group prov. E. Flanders, 2 m. W. Ghent 1 bank river with two churches, a chapel, townhouse, prison, and several schools, two distilleries, a brewery a miller and three corn mills. 1 op. 4634.

TROUD (Str.) (Flemish, Sint-Truiden), a town in Belgium prov. Limburg, 10 m. S.W. Hasselt. It has a townhouse with a lofty quadrangular tower, three churches, a college, a small seminary, an episcopal normal, and several primary schools, an hospital, orphan asylum and almshouse for old men. About one-third of the inhabitants are employed in making lace, and there are breweries, distilleries, salt-refineries, mills for oil and beating hemp, a soap-work, a tobacco and a beet-root sugar factory. It owes its origin to a Benedictine convent, founded in 605 and was surrounded with walls in 1056, which were demolished in the 15th century. Pop. 8111.

TRONDHJEM (anc. Nidaros, Latin, Ambrosia, German, Drontheim) a seaport in Norway, cap. of S. Trondhjem, beautifully situated on a circular bay at the mouth of the Nidelva, in the S. side of the Trondhjem-fjord, lat. (astronomy) $63^{\circ} 52' 42''$ N., lon. $15^{\circ} 42' 42''$ E. (vill.) On the land side it is commanded by a series of heights which make it impregnable of defence in that direction, but towards the sea it possesses strong fortifications, both on the mainland and more especially on the small rocky island of Munkholm. It has spacious, regularly formed, and remarkably clean streets, with water-cisterns at their intersections, and was once built almost entirely of wood, but now, in consequence of the ravages of repeated fires, consists chiefly of stone or brick houses, which, though more substantial, want the picturesque appearance for which those of wood were celebrated. The most remarkable edifices and establishments are the cathedral, the great object of interest, much dilapidated by the ravages of early barbarians, and adorned by the bad taste displayed in more modern renovations, but still venerable from the antiquity of some of its parts, which are as old as 1053, and entitled to rank, as a whole, as the most remarkable ecclesiastical structures in the kingdom, the palace of the old Norwegian kings, of whom Trondhjem was the capital, now converted into a military and naval arsenal, a museum, including a picture gallery and a library with some rare MSS., a superior and several other schools, a court-house, custom-house, handsome theatre, &c. The manufactories are not of much importance, but include excellent coats, hat-covers, &c., of goat-skin; trinkets, and rifles, said to have the double advantage of being cheap and the best in Norway. The breweries also are famous for a beer which is largely exported; and the building-yards fit out vessels which bear a high name for their sailing properties. The harbor is indifferent, not admitting vessels which draw more than 10 ft. or 12 ft. and the roadstead is exposed to a heavy swell from the N. and E. The trade consists chiefly in exports of timber, dried and salted fish, tar and copper. The beauty of the scenery of Trondhjem is much celebrated, and the elegance of its society gives it much more the appearance of a capital than Christiania, which supplanted it in this respect on the union of Norway to Denmark. 1 op. (1848), 13,916. — The province of Trondhjem is bounded, N. by prov. Tromsø, E. Sweden, S. prov. Bergen, and W. the N. Sea, and is divided into two bailiwicks.—N. Trondhjem (area, 6634 geo. sq. m. pop. 68,479), and S. Trondhjem (area, 5408 geo. sq. m. pop. 69,329).

TRONDHJEM CATHEDRAL.—From Voyages de la Commission Suédoise en Norvège.

TRONTANO a vil and com Italy, Piedmont, div. Novara, prov. Pallanza 2 m. E. N. E. Dronio. Dronio with three squares, each of which contains a parish church. P. 1163.

TRONTU a river, Naples, rises in the Apennines, in the N. of prov. Abruzzo-Ultra II flows circuitously N. till it reaches Arquata in the Papal States, when it turns E. N. E., passes the town of Ascoli, forms part of the boundary between the Papal States and Naples, and falls into the Adriatic, after a course of 60 m. of which scarcely 3 m. are navigable.

TROUV a small seaport in Scotland W. coast, co. and between 5 m. and 6 m. N. Ayr station on the Scottish South-Western railway. It is pleasantly situated on a promontory projecting into the sea, and is mostly built, containing many substantial houses and handsome summer-villas. It has an elegant parish church, and Free and U. Presbyterian churches, a large school, and a public library. The principal trade of the port is the exportation of coal and pig-iron, and the importation of timber. The harbor is of easy access and affords safe anchorage for vessels requiring 16 ft. depth at low water. At the pier is a depth of 19 ft. at low-water. There are a building yard, a spacious wharf-dock, two dry-docks, and a lighthouse. 1 op. 3404.

TROVATI A a town Naples, prov. Calabria-Ultra II, dist. and 12 m. W. S. W. Montebello. It occupies the crest of a conical rock overlooking the S. shore of the Gulf of St. Erythraea, and connected with the mainland by a narrow isthmus, is surrounded with walls flanked with towers, and entered by three gates, and has a handsome cathedral, five parish churches, a seminary, several free schools, a convent, hospital and almshouse. Some fine cotton goods are manufactured here, and the fishing is productive. Pop. 4300.

TROPEZ (Str.) a town France, dep. Var S. side of the Gulf of Grasse, 88 m. E. N. E. Toulon. It is an ancient place, occupying the site of the Roman Forum of Glanabona, of which many vestiges have been traced, and has some handsome modern houses, a court of commerce, a hydrographic school, manufacture of corals and weavers' reeds, distilleries, a well-sheltered harbour, a very large building-yard, tannery and other fisheries, and a considerable trade in raw and manufactured cork, wine, all wood for fuel, sundries, anchovies, and chestnuts. Pop. 337.

TROPPAU a walled town in Austria, Moravia, formerly cap. of Austrian Silesia, cap. of Kreis Oppa, 87 m. N.E. Olmitz. It is well built, many of the houses being handsome, and the streets generally being wide and well paved; and has four churches, a town-hall, castle, theatre, gymnasium, military and other schools, an infirmary, orphan asylum, four monasteries, and eight hospitals; and manufacture of wool-lens and linen fabrics, paper, soap and rugelie. Troppau is the seat of a court of first resort and of several other courts and public offices. It is a place of considerable antiquity and suffered severely both in the Thirty and the Seven Years war. Pop. (1849), 12,827.

TROQUELL, par Scot. Kirkcaldy 5 m by 6 m Pop. 4925.

TROBY, par Ind. Farnham 4387 ac. P. 1186.
TROSA, a town in Sweden, Ups. Nyköping near the mouth of a river of same name, in a small bay of the Baltic, 53 m. S.E. W. Stockholm. Though one of the smallest it is also one of the oldest towns of the kingdom. It is poorly built; but has a good harbour and a fishery. Pop. 590.

TROSBLEY or TROTSCHBURG par Zug Klot 1100 ac. Pop. 285.

TROSBINGEN, a vill. W. Urtenberg, circle Schwarzwald, near Tübingen, with a law-court, and a parish church. P. 2307.

TROSTOV, par Eng. Suffolk 1764 ac. Pop. 437.

TROSTREY, par Eng. Monmouth 1256 ac. P. 176.

TROTTON, par Eng. Sussex; 3377 ac. Pop. 484.

TROUVILLE, or TROUVILLE-SUR-MER, a small seaport in France, dep. Calvados, on the Touques, where it falls into the English Channel 7 m. N.E. of Pont l'Évêque. It has a small harbour and is much frequented for sea-bathing. Pop. 3118.

TROWBRIDGE, a market town, and par. England, co. Wilt, 25 m. N.W. Salisbury, on a rocky eminence in the valley of the river Ne, across which there is a stone-bridge. It consists mostly of one great street, winding and irregular, but tolerably well kept. The houses are generally well built, many of them excellent, and the greater part of stone, those of the wealthier classes are large and handsome, with extensive gardens attached. There are two churches one—the parish church—a fine ancient building in the perpendicular style; the other a modern structure in the early English style; and eight Dissenting places of worship only two of which, however, have any pretension to architectural elegance. There are two national and British and several less important schools, some charitable societies, and a manufacturing town. The principal manufactures are of woollen-cloths and kersey mers, of which from 30,000 to 35,000 yards are produced weekly. Pop. (in 1811), 10,157. Area of par. 2442 ac. Pop. 11,146.—(Local Correspondent.)

TROWELL, par Eng. Notis 1579 ac. Pop. 309.

TROWELL, par Eng. Norfolk 1000 ac. Pop. 1303.

TROY, Troas, or Ilion, one of the most famous cities of antiquity the ruins of which form the subject of Homer's Iliad. No vestige of it remains and even its site has given rise to much discussion, though it is generally believed to have been on a slope on spur of Mount Ida in Asia Minor about 8 m. E. of the W. extremity of the Strait of the Dardanelles, and overlooking an alluvial plain still known as the Plain of Troy. This plain about 10 m. long, by 3 m. broad is washed on the N. by the Dardanelles, and bounded on its other sides by mountains, from which descend three streams—the Menikios, the Sarakli, and the Asmak. It is not easy to identify these with Homer's Simois, Xanthos, and Scamander.

TROY a town, U. States, New York, 1 bank Hudson, 6 m. N. Albany, on the Chautauque and Hudson canal, and on rail ways connecting it with Boston on the E., New York on the N., the ports of Lake Erie on the W., and Vermont and Canada on the N. It consists of the town proper—occupying a somewhat elevated plain, terminated by a range of hills, in which the two most conspicuous eminences bear the classical names of Mount Ida and Mount Olympus—and of an extensive suburb, which from being situated on the opposite bank of the river, is called West Troy and communicates with it both by a bridge and three regular ferries. The great seat of business is River Street, which, following the curve of the stream for about 5 m., is deficient in regularity of form, but is lined on both sides with splendid and spacious shops and warehouses. The other streets, either parallel or at right angles to River Street, are generally straight and shaded by trees, which give them a retired and rural appearance, and there are also several public squares adorned with fountains, which, as well as the town itself are amply supplied with water from a reservoir in the neighboring hills. The public buildings include about 12 churches, among which one of four belonging to the Presbyterians, and the Episcopal church of St. Paul, are distinguished by the elegance and costliness of their structure the one in the Greek and the other in the Gothic style the courthouse, a splendid building, constructed after a Grecian model of Burg-Sing marble a female seminary of great celebrity and on a very extensive scale, occupying a beautiful and central situation, with ornamental grounds, and partly supported by the state the Renaissance Institute, chiefly for the education of engineers a lyceum of natural history, with a valuable library and museum two excellent market houses, a jail a county-prison to which a farm of 200 acres is attached, and a U. States arsenal. The last situated in West Troy occupies an extensive range of hill tops of stone and brick, and contains a large and well-kept armoury. A dam which has been thrown across the Hudson, immediately above the town has made its waters extensively available for manufacturing purposes and furnishes moving power to various furnaces and forges, and to paper, saw, pot and flour mills. Other manufactures are leather, wool, iron-cloth, carriage, earthenware, and more especially hardware and cutlery. The trade, favoured partly by the Hudson, which admits steam boats to the town, but much more by the various artificial means of communication is extensive and increasing. Pop. (1850) 28,785, West Troy 7064.

TROYES (acc. Augustiana, Treoumum, a town, France, dep. Aube, 90 m. N.W. Paris, with which it is connected by railway 1 bank Seine, which partly surrounds the town and being drawn off by numerous channels, both supplies it with water-power and contributes to its cleanliness. Many of the streets are narrow and irregular, and lined with antiquated houses composed of timber and plaster, but these buildings are gradually giving way to others of modern construction, and some quarters have already assumed a better appearance. The old ramparts have been almost completely thrown down, and their site is now occupied by fine prominence. The principal edifices are the cathedral a splendid specimen of florid Gothic, 374 ft. long and 96 ft. high, with a nave composed of five aisles, and beautiful patterns of the richest stained glass; the church of St. Urban, somewhat dilapidated, but still regarded as a model of light, airy Gothic; the church of St. John, of some historical interest as the place where the marriage of Henry V. of England with Catharine of France was celebrated; the church of St. Madeleine, with a stone roof-loft, richly decorated and of great beauty; the Hôtel-de-Ville, with an elegant facade; the prefecture, occupying part of the buildings of an ancient abbey; the hospital annexed to the palace of justice, and public library, containing 55,000 printed volumes and nearly 6000 MSS. It is the seat of a bishop, the seat of a court of first resort and commerce, and possesses a chamber of commerce, conseil-de-préfecture, diocesan seminary, secondary school, school of communal college, and society of agriculture, sciences, art, and letters. The manufactures consist of cotton hosiery, cotton cloth, bonneterie, mohair, calico, flannel, woolen cloth, woolen covers, prints, lace, strings, soap, bone-combs, starch, &c. There are also numerous sawmills and cotton mills, oil works, breweries, tanneries, wax-refineries, glassworks, tanning, and paper mills. It carries on an important trade chiefly in grain, wine, beauty, colonial produce, famous sausages, hemp, wax, wool, wood iron, lead, zinc, &c. In 1889 Troyes was burned down by the Normans and in 1415 it was seized by the Duke of Burgundy. In 1420 the marriage of Henry V. of England with Catharine of France by which the former was ultimately to have united both crowns in his own person was celebrated here. Nine years after the English were finally expelled from it, by the heroism of Jean d'Arc. In 1614 during the last struggles of Napoleon previous to his abdication it was his headquarters, and suffered severely, having been twice taken by the allies, and once retaken by the French. Pope Urban IV was the son of a tailor in Troyes. Our Troy weight takes its name from this town. Pop. (1882), 25,636.

SEE NOTRE-DAME, TROYES.—From Troyes to the Seine River.

TRUSTENNA, a market to. Hungary, either Danube, co. Arva, 42 m. S. W. Cracow with a church, Franciscan monastery and gymnasium and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 3050.

TRUXILLO, a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 21 m. E. Bern, in a valley and on the Zurich. It contains a church and the remains of an ancient Benedictine monastery. Pop. 2007.

TRUBAU (Münchhausen) a wall built, walled to. Austria, Moravia, circa and 23 m. W. N. W. Olmütz, on the Traubau. It has a church a Priory and a Franciscan monastery, and the remains of a fine old castle. Near is coloured quartz, jasper, and lignite are found. Pop. 5100.

TRUBLEY par. Irei Mouth 855 ac. Pop. 88.

TRUBSCHEN W. W. a to. Russia, gov. and 90 m. W. S. W. Orel cap. dist., r. bank Dnieper. It is built chiefly of wood, contains eight churches, and has manufactures of vegetables, and a considerable trade in corn and hemp. P. (1851) 6498.

TRUCCEAZZANO a vil. and com. Austria Italy prov. and 10 m. from Milan with two churches, two chapels, and the remains of an old castle. Pop. 1238.

TRUCHAN, a vil. Spain, prov. and 45 m. from Leon with a church and a primary school manufactures of woolen and linen cloth a fulling and several flour mills, and a trade in the articles of manufacture, and in young mules. P. 1368.

TRUYER, or TRUYER, a river, France, rises in the slope of Mount Magerite, in the Cévennes, dep. Lozère, flows S. W., then N. W., enters dep. Cantal flows W. S. W. across that dep. and part of dep. Aveyron, and joins r. bank Lot at Entraygues. Total course, 61 m.

TRULLA par. Eng. Somerset; 2228 ac. Pop. 718.

TRULLIKON, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and N. E. Zürich, at the foot of a hill, in a district covered with vineyards. In 1799 the French were here defeated by the Austrians. Pop. 1255.

TRUMELLO, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Novara, par. Lessolunga, on the Turdoppio with a church, an oratory a manufactory, and a small hospital. Pop. 8678.

TRUMPTINGTON par. Eng. Cambridgeshire; 2300 ac. P. 771.

TRUNCH par. Eng. Norfolk; 1858 ac. Pop. 451.

TRUNG, or TRUNG, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. Grisons, dist. and 8 m. N. E. Disentis, near l. bank Vorder-Rhein, in a fertile valley. It is well built; and has a parish church, and important iron works, supplied from mines in the vicinity. Trunz holds a distinguished place in Swiss history as the seat of liberty in the Rhodian Alps; and has at its entrance a decayed asymmetrical, under which the Grans-Bund or Grar-League was sworn in 1424. Pop. 1048.

TRURO, a bor., port, market in, and par. England co. Cornwall at the confluence of the Kenwyn and St. Allen, 43 m. S. W. by W. Looe. It is well built has two parish churches, several dissenting chapels, and a Friends' meeting-house a free grammar-school, a set of almshouses, and an infirmary. The Royal Institution of Cornwall, with its valuable museum, is established here; and in the same building is the county library, the Truro Institution lecture-room and the museum and library of the Royal Horticultural Society of Cornwall. There is also a handsome assembly-room in the town, with billiard-room attached. A Doric column of granite has been erected to commemorate the discovery of the well-known African traveller, John and Richard Lander natives of Truro. There are here a large carpet and woollen manufactory an iron-foundry two tanneries, and two small potteries for the coarse kinds of earthenware. The smelting of tin is carried on to a great extent, both within the town and in the vicinity. Tin ore is extensively exported and iron coal, timber, &c. imported. Truro sends two members to the House of Commons. Samuel Foot, the actor was born here in 1720. Area of par., 190 ac. P. 3169.

TRUSHAM par. Eng. Devon; 749 ac. Pop. 205.

TRUSLEY par. Eng. Derby; 1078 ac. Pop. 90.

TRUSTHOFF par. Eng. Lincoln; 1455 ac. P. 289.

TRUXILLO [anc. Terra Julia] a city Spain, Entre-madura, prov. Cáceres 130 m. S. W. Madrid. It is a dull, misery stricken place. The streets are narrow and ill paved yet some of the dilapidated houses mark the former opulence of those adventurers who returned here laden with the spoil of Peruvian conquest. The city is divided into two portions; the Villa—the acropolis—on the upper and more ancient, where the streets are cut out of the granite, once the seat of the aristocracy and the garrison. It is now abandoned and used as a burying place, the people of Truxillo preferring the lower and more convenient site of the under town or Ciudad. The Villa is bounded by a wall which crests the ridge, at the N. end stands a fortress, originally Roman, with flanking towers of granite. The castle has been well added to in modern times. Truxillo possesses a townhouse, archives granary hospital a small theatre, a hall-organ several schools, and five parish churches, the most remarkable of which is St. Mary a solid Gothic edifice with three naves, which contains the tomb of the brave García-de-Paredes, the Spanish Napoleon. Almost all the conventual establishments of Truxillo are totally or partially ruinous. In the neighbourhood is a mine of argentiferous lead, which does not, however repay the expense of working. Agriculture is the chief occupation; the manufacturers being confined to rather numerous potteries of glazed and majolica ware, chocolate-making and flour mills. Fairs are held yearly, June 2 and December 8. At the former, one of the most frequented in the kingdom the usual number of animals is about 50,000 head of sheep, 50,000 swine, and 10,000 horned cattle, besides horses and calves. Truxillo was wrested in 1738 from the Spaniards, by whom it was greatly prized. Pizarro the conqueror of Peru was born here in 1480. Pop. 6024.

TRUXILLO, a to. Peru, cap. dep., in the midst of the valley of Chimu, about 1½ m. E. of the Pacific Ocean lat. 5° 7' 30" S., lon. 78° 9' W. It occupies the S. W. side of a granite mountain, is surrounded by a line of mud-walled flanked with bastions, consists of regular streets, containing a number of good houses built of brick, but generally low is the seat of a bishop and has a cathedral and several other large churches, a college, hospital, and theatre. At Huancayo, which, though 5 m. or 9 m. N. W. is the port of Truxillo, a considerable export takes place, chiefly of rice and spices. In the vicinity of the town a vast space is covered by tumuli and other ancient Peruvian remains. Truxillo was founded by Pizarro, who gave it the name of his native town in Spain. Pop. about 8000. The municipality, however, N. by Kussur, E. by the pumps of Sarama, S. dep. Tarma, and W. by the Pacific, is about 600 m. long N. W. by S. E. by 200 m. broad. It is very mountainous, being both traversed by the principal chain and covered by numerous ramifications of the Andes. On the E. of the chain, and nearly parallel to it, flows the Marañon, the principal branch of the Amazon; and to the W of it numerous torrents descend with impetuosity to the Pacific. The principal cultivated product is rice. Much of the surface is occupied by interminable forests, though other parts are bleak and almost desert. The mines, which were long celebrated for productivity, are supposed not to be exhausted, though few are now worked.

TRUKILLO, a ts Tucumán, cap. prov., 150 m. S.E. Maracibo. It consists principally of two parallel streets and a public square, is poorly built, houses seldom of more than one story, and of mean appearance and has four churches, two convents, a college, and other schools and some trade in cacao, indigo, coffee, &c., earned on chiefly by means of the Lake of Maracibo. Before it was pillaged by the buccanniers in 1678, Trucillo is said to have been one of the finest and wealthiest cities in this part of America. Pop. about 8000.

TRUKILLO, a support in Central America, Honduras, cap. dep. Yoro, on a height above the bay of same name, lat. (fort) 16° 55' 42" N. lon. 82° 59' 50" W. It has a harbour, defended by three forts; and some exports, among which live cattle is one of the most important items.

TRYBERG, a ts Baden, circle Upper Rhine cap. bail. N.E. Freiburg with a church and manufactures of wooden cloths and straw-hats. Pop. 1114.

TRYBULL, pro Eng. Stafford 8110 ac. Pop. 559.

TRYBOGOWICZ, ts Bohemia. See HOUNIMUCK.

TRYEMASZNO, a ts Prussia, prov. and 30 m. E. N. E. Posen between two lakes. It contains a Protestant and two Roman Catholic churches, a synagogue, an Augustinian monastery with library a gymnasium, seminary, and hospital, and has a trade in cattle. Pop. 3182.

TRYKUN, a ts China, prov. Chekiang S.W. Hangchow. It is a large and important place; and has opposite to it a curiously-shaped hill composed chiefly of granite of a beautiful green colour which, being much prized by the Chinese, is extensively quarried and largely exported. It is employed for various ornamental purposes, and more especially for building tools.

TRYKORNYA a ts Hungary. See CHAKATYUM.

TRYAMPYAGU, a ts Burmah at the confluence of a small stream with the Irrawaddy, 76 m. S. Aya. It has a custom-house, and is the limit N. beyond which even native Burmese cannot pass without special permission from government.—(Four Asiat Soc. Bengal, April, 1837.)

TRYAN ts and *ts*ao, numerous cities and the China, some of which are of particular importance.

TRYANA a lake Abyssinia. See DAMBA.

TRYANTA a fortified ts China, prov. Yunnan on an affluent of the Pinglang, near the frontier of Burmah, 80 m. E. N. E. Shamo.

TRYANY a ts Hungary. See CHANY.

TRYCHADIN, or ts JARIN, a ts Russia, gov. and 113 m. W. S. W. Kazan, cap. circle, 1 bank Sera; with a trade in corn. Pop. 1000.

TRYCHAGIRA a river, Russia, rises on S. frontier of gov. Simbirsk, flows W. S. W. forming part of the boundary between that gov. and that of Saratov, and after a course of about 80 m. joins 1 bank Volga, 6 m. S. E. Kharaulak.

TRYCHAIHING, a market ts Hungary. See CHENBUN.

TRYCHARKIEK, a ts Russia, gov. Volhynia, 1 bank Str. 70 m. S. W. Pinsk. It is the capital of a principality belonging to the family of Radzwill, and contains a castle. Pop. 1600.

TRYCHEREN a ts Hungary. See CHENG.

TRYCHIBORSKY a ts Russia. See TOKHOMSKAN.

TRYCHILJABINSK, a ts Russia. See TRYKILJABINSK.

TRYCHILLAKOWITZ, or ts CHAKOWITZ, a ts Bohemia, circle Kaunitz 1 bank Elbe, about 4 m. from Brandeis, with a church and brewery. Pop. (agricultural) 1253.

TRYCHERAKOWITZ, a ts Bohemia, circle and K. Chrudim, with a Protestant and a Roman Catholic church, and school. A good deal of flax is hand-spun. Pop. (agricultural) 1466.

TRYCHEREMCHANE a river, Russia, rises in N. W. of gov. Orenburg, flows N. E. into Kamen, then S. W., across a corner of that gov. and part of Simbirsk, and after a course of about 140 m., joins 1 bank Volga, 3 m. S. E. Singuliyev.

TRYCHERPOWITZ, a ts Russia. See CHAKAROVITZ.

TRYCHERIKOW, a ts European Russia. See CHAKAROVITZ.

TRYCHERKASSY a ts Russia, gov. and 102 m. S. E. Kiev cap. circle, 1 bank Delogor. It was once the capital of the Cossacks, who founded it in the end of the 17th century. It contains several churches. Pop. (1847) 3654.

TRYCHERMNA a ts Bohemia, circle Bidschow, near Arcus with a church, a castle, and a mill. Pop. 1016.

TRYCHERNIGOFF gov. and ts Russia. See CHAKAROVITZ.

TRYCHERNOWITZ, Austrian Galicia. See CHAKAROVITZ.

TRYCHERNOCHERK, a ts Russia, gov. and 76 m. S. E. Mohilev on a stream of same name, with a castle, four churches, a synagogue, and three annual fairs. P. (1851) 1556.

TRYCHIKLOWA ts Hungary. See CARLOVA-NEVENS.

TRYCHIRKOFF one of the Alekian isle, W of the peninsula of Alaska; lat. (N. h. point) 56° 56' N. lon. 155° W. It is about 30 m. in circuit, low and flat on its W. but on its E. side presents steep and lofty cliffs. Its general aspect is dreary and inhospitable, being to all appearance, destitute of trees and shrubs, its coasts are much frequented by small whales.

TRYCHIRNAU (Giles and Krusen), two nearly-contiguous ts Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. and N. W. Breslau. They contain two churches a chapel, and two schools; and have manufactures of woollen cloth a spinning and several other mills. Pop. 1819.

TRYCHIRNE, a ts Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Loggia, circle Bunzlau with a church. Pop. 1049.

TRYCHISFA, a ts Bohemia, circle Bidschow cap. dist. with a church, a courthouse, manufactures of linen, a bleach-field, and two mills. Pop. 1893.

TRYCHISTAY, or ts SHAY, a market in Bohemia, circle and near Rakonitz, with a church, and manufactures of potash. Pop. 1423.

TRYCHOW a populous walled ts W. Africa, Yarrilla, 40 m. N. W. Katsang lat. 9° 15' N. lon. 25° 50' E.

TRYCHUKI ts and ts TONKORON.

TRYCHUGOVSKOI GOSODOK two places, Russia, gov. Perm—1 (ts Nyma). A market in 1 bank Tschoussara, 38 m. E. N. E. Perm. It formerly had extensive salt-works, which are no longer in operation. Pop. 2350—2 (ts Forster). A market in opposite to the former on the S. bank of the river. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. P. 3200.

TRYELL, a river in Hungary. See CHERF.

TRYEM, a city China, cap. prov. Shantung, 1 bank Tschin ho, 225 m. W. by E. Peking. It has manufactures of coarse fabrics made of wild silk, and ornaments of a kind of vitreous composition made to resemble serpentine, and various other substances.

TRYEMDO a ts Tibet, cap. prov. Kham 950 m. E. N. E. Lassa lat. 31° 10' N. lon. 86° 46' E. It lies in a valley surrounded by high mountains between two rivers, which unite to form the Ye-long kiang. Two great wooden bridges thrown over these rivers on the right and left of the town, lead to two parallel roads, called respectively the road of Soobuen and the road of Yimien. The carriers who act as porters between Lassa and Peking, and all the civil and military servants of the Chinese government, are obliged to pass by the former of these roads the other one, with the exception of a few Chinese merchants, who may be occasionally seen hastening along it into Tibet, it almost deserted. The town has an old and decayed appearance. Its old houses, irregularly constructed are scattered in a confusion over a great extent of ground, leaving on all sides large spaces almost altogether empty or covered with ruins. Tsamdo contains a garrison of 800 Chinese soldiers, and a monastery, occupied by about 2000 lamas, in which is one of the finest and richest temples in Tibet, but the numerous population of the town have an appearance of great wretchedness.—(Hue, Souvenirs &c.)

TRYEMPA, or ts CHAMPA, a prov. Anam (which see).

TRYEN a prefix to the names of numerous Chinese towns.

TRYENGO-SAWA, a river, Japan, the largest in the id of Kiusiu. It rises in the mountains on the W. of Bungo flows through prov. Tschugo, and after reserving the waters of a great number of rivulets, forms two mouths as it falls into the Gulf of Suwaha, between the towns of Saga and Iura gawa, in lat. 33° 10' N. having traversed the most extensive and most fertile valley in the island.

TRYKUZEN, a prov. Japan, occupying the N. E. portion of id Kiusiu, and comprising about 50 islands and islets. It is bounded, N. by the entrance of the Straits of Yamato-Capelle, E. by Busu and Bungo S. Tschugo and Fuso, and W. and N W the Corea Channel. On the S. frontier rise some lofty granite mountains, which extend to the shore, where they form the promontories of Kanakahi and Tawakahi.

TSEN-CHOU, two cities, China.—1. Froy Shantung, cap. dep. 80 m. E. Tai-wan.—2. Prov. Quinghai, cap. dep., on an affluent of the Lou-tung, 65 m. W. On-tchou.

TSEN-CHOU an isl. China, Amoy harbor, rising precipitously from the sea to a height of 250 ft. On the summit are three forts, having embrasures for 12 6 and 8 guns on the N. E. It is a jetty, with stone-steps leading to the summit.

TSEN-TSUKAI a tn. Chinese Empire, Manchouaria, L. bank Yalu, near the frontier of Mongolia, lat. 47° 25' N., lon. 123° 30' E. It is reached by a double wall.

TOKHINVALI a walled tn. Transcaucasian Russia, on the Likhvi at the foot of a steep and wooded hill, 55 m. N W Teflis, with four churches. Pop. about 2000.

TUNYA, or TAXA a river Russia, rises in the S. of gov. Tula, flows N through that gov past the towns of Tambov and Morshansk, and after a course of about 230 m., joins L. bank Mohava.

TUNG-SAR-SHEK, a tn. China, prov. Fukien, on an affluent of the Min, enclosed by hills in the midst of the black tea country. lat. 27° 13' N., lon. 113° 15' E. It consists of the town proper surrounded by walls and temples, partly runways and overgrown with weeds and of very extensive suburbs, which extend a long way on both sides of the river. Its staple trade is black tea. Throughout the town are large tea-houses, where the tea is sorted and packed for foreign markets and numerous tea-merchants from Canton and all parts of China come here to make their purchases. Tea is extensively cultivated both on the lowlands and on all the fertile slopes of the district. Pop. about 10,000.

TUNG-SUN, or TUNG-SUN, an isl. Corea, off S. E. coast, prov. Kianan, from which it is separated by a channel about 4 m. wide, and on the S. side of the estuary of the Yang-tse-kiang. lat. (E. point) 31° 23' N., lon. 121° 51' E. Greatest length, L. S. E. to W. N. W., 80 m. breadth about 10 m. It has a flat surface, intersected by small streams a salubrious climate a soil partly sterile on which there is scarcely any vegetation and partly fertile, producing rice, grain, cotton, and fruit. Large numbers of wild fowl seek refuge on it, extensively worked for exportation a considerable trade with the neighboring districts and a dense population. On its S. end, is a town of some name.

TUUKASAKI a small tn. Japan isl. Kiusiu near Urasa, from which it is separated by three high mountains, called San-sha. It is much frequented by invalids on account of its hot baths, of the temperature of 121° F. In the night torchwood are numerous potteries and large tea-plantations.

TUUMUREKI, a lake, Latak See CHAMOREKI.

TUUN MOA, a tn. China, prov. Chihli, 87 m. E. N. E. Peking cap. dist., famed for the tobacco cultivated in its vicinity.

TUUNG-SUN an isl. China. See TUNG-SUN.

TUUSUN a group of isls. Strait of Corea, between the Japanese Isl. of Fuso and the Corea Peninsula. lat. 34° 55' 55" N., lon. 129° 42' 15" E. Taus, the largest of the islands, is 35 m. long and has an estimated but not well ascertained breadth of 10 m. or 12 m. The surface presents a chain of pretty high hills divided by deep valleys.

TUA a river Spanish peninsula, rises on the S. slope of the Sierra Negrandes, on the confines of Galicia and Leon, flows first N. E. E., enters the Portuguese prov. Trás-os-Montes, flows S. W. past the town of Mizandoli, and after a course of about 60 m., joins r. bank Douro.

TUAMU, a tn. Ireland, Connaght, co. and 19 m. N. N. E. Galway on both sides of the Harrow, an affluent of the Glare, is a low and marshy district. It has of late been much improved, and is now chiefly of a capital market-place and five main streets diverging from it. One of these is continued by a bridge across the river and many of the houses are substantial, large, and handsome. The principal edifices are the Protestant cathedral in a mixture of the Baxon and Gothic styles, with a richly decorated Baxon portal, and windows of stained glass, the R. Catholic cathedral, a modern cruciform structure, in the later English style, with a lofty tower, a number of towers terminating in richly carved minarets, an altar of variegated marble, a beautiful stained window, and many internal decorations obtained partly from Rome, the Protestant and R. Catholic episcopal palaces, the latter adjacent ing the cathedral, and the former in a finely wooded domain on the N. E. side of the town, the R. Catholic ecclesiastical assembly or college of St. John's, several schools, including three national and a free model-school of the Tuam Diocesan Education Society, a monastery, a nunnery, a west cloister, a market-house, with a reading-room over it, a brickwell, and a dispensary, which annually affords relief to about 5000 applicants. The manufacturers are confined to tanneries, and a few coarse linens; but the trade in grain is considerable, and there are several tanneries and flour-mills, a large brewery, a weekly market, and four annual fairs. Tuam is of very ancient date, and had a cathedral founded by St. Jarlath in the 6th century. Its use in the 13th century became archeological and continued so till 1839, when it was reduced to a bishopric. It is, however, the largest in Ireland, the area of Killa and Achery having been annexed to it in 1835. Pop. 7819.

TUAT an oasis, Sahara. See TOUAR.

TUBAL, a river, Chih which has its mouth in the Pacific, close to the Bay of Amoo. lat. 67° 14' 25" N., lon. 78° 27' 30" W. It once had depth of water sufficient to allow vessels of 300 tons to pass up nearly 1 m., but an earthquake in 1835 so raised the bar that it is now accessible only to boats on each side of the river, except on a dry and only the neighbouring country is beautiful and fertile.

TUBARRO, or LAUTAR, a river Brazil rises in the E. slope of the cordillera which separates prov. Rio-Pedro-do-Grande from that of Santa-Catherina, and flows S. E. to the Atlantic navigable in its lower course.

TUBBIDMURRY, or LOANACHAN a small in Ireland co. and 19 m. S. W. Sligo, in a low situation, houses of limestone, some of them well built and slated, but most of them of a very inferior description. There are a parish church and R. Catholic chapel, a national school, and a dispensary. Flax and coarse linen are manufactured but mostly for local consumption. There is some trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 765. (Local Correspondent).

TUBRID, two par. Ireland.—1. Kilkenny, 1004 ac. Pop. 216.—2. Tipperary, 13,575 ac. Pop. 2928.

TUBRIDBRITTAIN, par. Ire. Kilkenny 4140 ac. Pop. 529.

TUBINGEN [French, Tubingue] a tn. in Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald cap. lat. L. bank Neckar, at the confluence of the Ammer. It is situated on the side of a hill, surrounded with walls and ditches. It consists of an upper and a lower town. It is the seat of a royal court of law and of several important public offices contains an old castle with three towers, a R. Catholic and three Protestant churches, a townhouse, museum, an hospital, a lyceum, a Protestant and R. Catholic seminary, a botanical garden, and a university founded in 1477 possessed of a library of 200,000 vols., and attended by about 800 students; and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, copper-ware, gunpowder, dye works, and saw and other mills. Pop. 7500.

TUBIZE, or TUNUS a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Sambre, 14 m. S. Brussels, on the railway to Mons. It has breweries, distilleries, a flour-mill and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 2362.

TUBNEY, par. Eng. Berks; 1144 ac. Pop. 253.

TUCANO, a tn. Brazil prov. Bahia, 8 m. from the river of Itapicuru, with a church and a primary school P. 1200.

TUCAPALI, a river, Chili See LAMA.

TUCHILL, a tn. Prussia, prov. W. Prussia, gov. and W. S. W. Marienwerder, on the Neva, with three churches and a chapel, manufactures of linen, and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1803.

TUCKER'S ISLAND and a low coral island, covered with coco-nut trees, N. Pacific; lat. 7° 27' N., lon. 146° 48' E. Pop. 350.

TUCKERTON, a vil. and port of entry U. States, New Jersey, at the head of Tuckerton Mill Creek, which falls into the Bay of Little Egg Harbour, in the Atlantic. It is well laid out in streets crossing at right angles, and lined with trees, and has manufactures of salt, exports of wood and lumber and a considerable coasting trade. It is much resorted to for bathing.

TUCOPIA, or TUCOPIA, an isl. S. Pacific Ocean; lat. 13° 21' 10" S., lon. 169° 45' 30" E. of a somewhat triangular shape, about 7 m. in circuit, and, when viewed from the N., presents the appearance of a middle. Near its N. E. and it attains the height of 8000 ft., and becomes visible in clear weather at the distance of 40 m. It produces yams, coconuts, &c., and has from 400 to 500 inhabitants. It was on this island that the sword-bill and other remains of the expedition of La Perouse were found, and led to the discovery of the exact site of the wreck.

TUCUMAN, a prov. La Plata, with cap. of same name lat. 27° to 27° 50' S. lon. 60° to 60° W.; bounded, E. by El Gran Chaco, N. by Salta, S. by Catamarca, and S. by Santiago. Towards the W. the surface is mountainous, but the base and slopes of the ranges are covered with a great variety of the trees and shrubs. The plains are uncommonly fertile, yielding, in the greatest abundance, wheat, rice, maize, and tobacco. The sugar-cane is also a natural product of the soil, and orange and other fruit trees attain to great perfection. Horses and cattle are reared in considerable numbers. The region abounds in ores of gold, silver, copper and lead, but mining operations are conducted on a very limited scale. The climate, though hot, is dry and healthy. Pop. about 40 000. — The town is situated on an elevated plain, lat. 27° 10' S. It carries on some trade in oxen and mules. Here in 1816 a congress of deputies from the several provinces of the Confederation proclaimed their independence, and separation from Spain. Pop. about 8000.

TUDDEHAM, two pars Eng Norfolk-1 (East), 1905 ac. Pop. 599-2, (North) 2270 ac. Pop. 430

TUDELA, a city, Spain, prov. Navarra 156 m. N. E. Madrid, in a plain, a bank Ebro, at the junction of the Quies. It is dry, but dull; streets narrow, and houses solidly built and lofty. In one of the squares, which is crossed by the Quies, are held the bull-fights, and another where the markets are held, is entered by two gates, and surrounded by arcades. There are four public fountains, a small theatre, a primary school, an institute for the higher branches of education, a college of medicine and surgery, an hospital, an orphan asylum and reforming hospital, the last two in the Dominican convent, a cathedral consecrated in 1138 but only raised to this dignity in 1738; four parish churches, four monasteries, several convents now turned to secular uses, two promenades, and, in the neighbourhood, three hermitages. Husbandry is the principal occupation of the inhabitants, but there are besides, six manufactories of soap, one of liquors, 20 oil-mills, four potteries, a dye-work for common black-cloth, and two flour-mills. Agricultural produce and a considerable quantity of wool are exported. In 1808 Tudela was sacked by the French, who defeated the Spanish forces in the battle named after this city. Tudela was the birthplace of the learned Jew, Benjamin, who flourished in the 13th century. Pop. 7233

TUDELY, par Eng Kent, 1605 ac. Pop. 642

TUDY (St) par Eng, Cornwall, 2287 ac. Pop. 652

TULJAB, a in Spain prov and 42 m N W Valencia, on a slope above L bank Chelva with a church townhouse primary school, and several mills. Pop (agricultural) 1346.

TUFARA a in Naples, prov Salerno, E.S.E. Campobasso, L bank Fortuna. Pop. 2260.

TURINO, a vil Naples, prov. Lavara, N.E. Nola, with a church and two churches. Pop. 1000

TUFTON, par Eng Hants 1553 ac. Pop. 168

TUGHY, par Eng Lancashire 1839 ac. Pop. 865

TUGFORD, par Eng Salop; 1920 ac. Pop. 157

TUGGUERT Dugoon, or Toucouleur (supposed also Zwegu) a in Algerian Sahara, cap. of a territory called the Rouars, lat. 33° 24' N lon. 0° 50' 38' E. It consists of 600 to 600 mostly man-looking brick houses of one story, surrounded with loosely-built walls and a fence, entered by two gates with drawbridges. The houses or houses, the residence of the sheik, and containing his harem and treasure, is a strong and well-guarded fortress. Tugguert has several mosques, a public area, used as a market, &c. and numerous public fountains raised over Artesian wells. The inhabitants are indolent, and traffic with all parts of the Sahara, 44 tribes being enumerated as frequenting its market, thus giving it the aspect of a daily fair. Most of the manufactured wares sold here are brought from Tunis, but a good many articles are made in the place by Jewish artisans. The people around Tugguert, like all those of the Rouars, are gardeners rather than agriculturists, having little arable land, they grow almost no grain. The savans abound in date, fig, pome-

Vol. 71.

granate, apricot, and peach trees, a great quantity of madder is grown, and the vegetable-ground yield water-melon, pumpkin, cucumbers, onions, &c. A favourite dish here is the Adchach, which has intoxicating qualities akin to those of opium. — (Dumas Sahare Algérien.)

TUGHLICKABAD, a fortified town in Hindoostan, with a strong citadel presid Bengal, 10 m S. Delhi. A few valuable ruins contain all the present inhabitants of this town; but the ruins, massive, and stupendous ruins of its walls, palaces, and subterranean apartments, still attract the traveller.

TUGLIE a in Naples prov Circeia, 7 m. E.N.E. Gallipoli, at the foot of a mountain. Pop. 1940

TUINEJE a in Cantabria lat. Furteventura, on a mountain-slope with a well built parish church, and a primary school, manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce and in barrels and caskins. Pop. 1877

TUKUM a in Russia, gov Courland, cap. circle, 37 m. W. Elga, on the Salok. It has a church, a castle, and a school, and some general trade. Pop. (1850) 2710.

TULA, a river, Chinese Empire, Kankas country South S.W., then N.W. and enters the Orkhon, in lat. 46° 38' N lon. 105° 30' E, total course 290 m.

TULA, a gov Russia, bounded, N by Moscow, W Kaluga, S.W. and S. Orsk and N Rusan lat. 52° 43' to 54° 45' N lon. 36° to 38° 40' E; greatest length, N to S, 160 m central breadth, 110 m. area, 8906 sq m. The surface is so generally flat as to have somewhat of a monotonous appearance. The principal rivers are the Oka, which waters the government in the N.W. and also forms its W. boundary, the Upa, which traverses it centrally and the Don, which runs here, but within the government is an unimportant stream. It has however, been turned to good account, and the water-communication of the government has been almost indefinitely extended by means of the Ivanovka canal, which, uniting the Don and the Upa, forms part of the grand system which connects the Baltic, the Black Sea, and the Caspian. The soil is generally of remarkable fertility and produces grain far beyond the house consumption. About two-thirds of the whole surface is under the plough. The principal crops are rye, barley and oats wheat is grown only in particular districts. Hemp and flax are generally cultivated. The pastures are both extensive and rich, and vast numbers of horses, cattle, and sheep are reared. Nearly one-sixth of the surface is under wood. The mineral of most importance is iron, which is both smelted and manufactured to a large extent. There are also numerous tanneries and distilleries. The trade consists chiefly in corn, flax, and hemp. For administrative purposes the government is divided into 12 circles. Tula is the capital. Pop. (1850), 1,251,500

TULA a in Russia, cap. above gov., on the Upa, 107 m S. Moscow. Most of the houses are wood, but great improvements have been made in recent years, the more an eighty streets have disappeared, and the whole town, with its numerous towers, domes, and spires, presents a very striking appearance, entitling it to be regarded as one of the handsomest provincial towns in Russia. It is the residence both of a civil and a military governor, the see of a bishop, and the seat of several important courts and public offices. It contains 28 churches, one of which is a very handsome structure, adorned with marble columns two monasteries, a diocesan seminary, gymnasium military school, handsome courtyards, theatre, foundling and other hospitals and has manufactures of firearms and hardware, so extensive as to have procured for it the name of the Russian Birmingham. The firearms of the government are manufactured in an extensive establishment, which the skill of an Englishman has made one of the first in Europe. The other manufactures of importance here are entirely of indifferent quality. granulated steel work, inferior to that of France, platinum snuff-boxes, surpassed by those of Moscow; silk, hats, soap, candles, cordage, and leather. Some of the iron used in making these articles is obtained from mines in the vicinity but the greater part of it is imported from here, chiefly from Siberia. P. (1850) 54,826.

TULA, a in Mexican Confederation, 40 m. N.W. Mexico, cap. dist. and L bank river of the same name, about 8000 ft. above sea-level. It was the capital of the Toltec or Tuluca, the earliest inhabitants of Mexico known to history, but has ceased to be a place of any importance. The district unites the most splendid mountain-scenery with great fertility.

The river sometimes called also Montezuma, is formed in the N of dep. Mexico; flows E.N.E., receiving the Quauhtlan, separating dep. Mexico from dep. Queretaro, and near the frontiers of the latter and of Vera-Pas, after a course of about 500 m., enters with the Pánuco in forming the Rio-de-Tampico, which falls into the Gulf of Mexico.

TULLE is a town in the U. States, California, in the upper part of the valley of the San Joaquin, to which it sends its waters; 50 m. to 40 m. long, and about 22 m. broad.

TULMA a vil. Hungary. Thither Thales, on. Biber diet. and 4 m. from Bannau, with a Greek church and some trade in agricultural produce and timber. Pop. 1513.

TULLA, or TULLON a market tn. and par. Ireland on. Chas. 94 m. N.E. Kells; with a church, several public and three private schools, and some transit and country trade. Area of par. 14,324 ac. Pop. 5760.

TULLARHACKY, par. Irel. Limerick 2309 ac. P. 836.

TULLAGH, par. Irel. Cork 5649 ac. Pop. 2374.

TULLAGHANBROGUE, par. Irel. Kilkenny, 5486 ac. Pop. 750.

TULLAGHANOGUE, par. Irel. Meath 1415 ac. P. 165.

TULLAGHGOORE, par. Irel. Antrim 433 ac. P. 82.

TULLAGHMBELAN, par. Irel. Tipperary 2686 ac. Pop. 730.

TULLAGHOBEGLY, par. Irel. Donagall 68,516 ac. Pop. 6882.

TULLAGHORTON, par. Irel. Tipperary 6889 ac. Pop. 1804.

TULLAHERIN, par. Irel. Kilkenny 5052 ac. P. 847.

TULLAHOUGH, par. Irel. Kilkenny, 4903 ac. Pop. 1264.

TULLAMAIN, two pars. Irel. —1, Kilkenny 1172 ac. Pop. 181.—2 Tipperary, 2217 ac. Pop. 478.

TULLAMOKK, a market in Ireland King's co. 48 m. W. by R. Dublin on an academy, with two market squares, a large and handsome church at its distance from the town, a R. Catholic chapel and a Methodist meeting-house a court-house, jail, poorhouse, county-infirmary barracks, nursery and market-house a classical a national and several other schools a Protestant orylian society a lending library two breweries, and one distillery a tobacco and snuff manufactory and a brick work. Pop. 4830.—(Local Correspondent)

TULLAROAN, par. Irel. Kilkenny 12,860 ac. P. 3373.

TULLE (see Tule) a tn. France, cap. dep. Corrèze on an eminence to the confluence of the Corrèze and Solane, 115 m. N.N.E. Bordeaux. It is an ancient place, and is generally composed of houses which are old and ugly but some of which possess considerable interest from their antiquities. It has a parish church in a kind of bastard Gothic style surmounted by a lofty spire, a courthouse, hospital, departmental prison, barracks theatre, public library a cemetery, on a circular hill which overlooks the town and manufactures of firearms, made in a government-factory to the number of about 35,000 muskets annually war-cannots, cut-off, playing cards, and leather, and a trade in brandy liquors, paper, wool, bones, and the above articles of manufactures. Horse-racing is some celebrity are held here. Tulle is the see of a bishop, the seat of courts of first resort and commerce, and possesses a diocesan seminary communal college, and agricultural society. Pop. (1852) 7633.

TULLALLAN, par. Scot. Perth 4 m. by 4 m. P. 2042.

TULLINS, a tn. France, dep. Loire, 12 m. N.W. Grenoble with manufactures of cherry brandy and a trade in hemp, thread, and cattle. Near it are numerous iron-works. Pop. 1895.

TULLIN or TULS (Latin, Comagene) a tn. Lower Armenia, on bank Danube, at the junction of the Tula, 14 m. N.W. Vienna. It is surrounded with old walls, and very irregularly built with narrow, dirty streets, and houses generally of mean appearance. It contains four churches, an hospital a swimming and several other schools, and has a best-root sugar-factory, and some trade in provisions. Pop. 1788.

TULLIMOT, par. Irel. Queen's co., 6008 ac. P. 1015.

TULLOW a market tn. Ireland, co. and 7½ m. from Carlow, par. Slaney with a market-square, a large handsome church and R. Catholic chapel, with a fine steeple and spire; contribution to police-barracks, two schools, and the principal corn-market of the county Pop. (agricultural), 1852.—(Local Correspondent.)

TULLOWGREEN par. Irel. Carlow; 5899 ac. P. 1110.

TULLOWMAGIMMA, par. Irel. Carlow; 4064 ac. Pop. 904.

TULLOWPHELIN par. Irel. Carlow; 7990 ac. P. 2497.

TULLY, two pars. Irel. —1, Dublin; 2382 ac. P. 1057.

—2 Kildare 5165 ac. Pop. 952.

TULLYALLEN, par. Irel. Louth and Meath; 5184 ac. Pop. 4122.

TULLYBORETT par. Irel. Meath; 7918 ac. P. 2322.

TULLYFFERN par. Irel. Donagall 16,612 ac. P. 5112.

TULLYLEASE, par. Irel. Cork 8392 ac. Pop. 1600.

TULLYLISS, par. Irel. Down; 11,707 ac. P. 12,400.

TULLYNAGILL, par. Irel. Down, 2922 ac. P. 1221.

TULLYNESELE and Possam, par. Scot. Aberdeen; 7 m. by 4 m. Pop. 390.

TULLYNIRMAN par. Irel. Tyrone, 4461 ac. P. 2474.

TULLYRUEK, par. Irel. Antrim, 4780 ac. Pop. 1040.

TULMARO a tn. Venezuela, dep. and 50 m. W.S.W. Caracas. It is well built and has an active trade in tobacco, large quantities of which are raised in the vicinity. Pop. about 8000.

TULOLA a small isl., Russia, Finland, near N shore of Lake Ladoga, at the mouth of the Looski, which here forms a fine cascade. It is about 6 m. in circumference, and contains fine granite-quarries, the stone of which is much used for building in the capital.

TULOKA, a lake, Russia, in N.W. of gov. Olonets, about 34 m. long N.W. to S.E., by 6 m. broad. Its banks are very steep, and it contains several islands. It has no apparent outlet, though several small lakes send their waters into it.

TULOUR ISLANDS, N. Pacific. See SALOMON.

TULISHA, TULISHA, or TULISHA (see Albania), a fortified tn. European Turkey Bulgaria, in the Dobruzhie, r bank Danube, immediately above the formation of the Sulina and Ek. George's arms, 108 m. N.E. Silistra. Its fortifications and immediate proximity to the Russian frontier, make it a place of great importance. Darius crossed the Danube near Tullish, on his expedition against the Scythians.

TULUMBA or TOOLUMBA, a large, populous, walled tn. Punjab, I. bank Ravee, lat. 30° 28' N. lon. 73° 9' E. Close by are the ruins of an ancient solid fortress, of great height and strength.

TUMACO a small seaport and isl. off the coast of Ecuador lat. 1° 49' S. lon. 78° 56' W. Tumaco was declared a free-port in 1844.

TUMAT or MALEK, a river, Africa, rises in the S.W. of Abyssinia, enters Nubia, and joins the Bah-el-Azrek, N.W. Fashol, total course, about 800 m.

TUMBELAN Isl. Indian Archipelago. See TAMBELAN.

TUMBEZ, or SARAGURA, a river, S. America, rises in Ecuador on W. slope, Andes, about 86 m. N.E. Loja, flows W., past the towns of Saragura and Saruma, then N.W., forming the boundary between Ecuador and Peru, and passing the town of Tumbes, divides into several branches, and falls into the S. shore of the Bay of Guayaquil, after a course of about 100 m. Its chief affluent is the Jubones. At its mouth, which is very near Malpelo Point, there is a bar with a violent and dangerous surf, across which even boats cannot pass without the utmost caution. Pirates landed here with his army destined for the conquest of Peru.—The town, situated about 7 m. up the river, scarcely deserves the name, as it is only composed of a few miserable huts, though it is said to have once been a place of importance, with a temple of the sun, an Inca's palace, and other edifices.

TUMEL, or TUMKEL, a river, Scotland, issues from Loch Rannoch in S.W. of Fifehire flows W., expanding into a lake of the same name, and near the Farn of Kilmorie joins the Garry. The united stream flowing S.E. joins I. bank Tay at Logiertha.

TUMNA, par. Irel. Roscommon; 6395 ac. P. 2843.

TUNA, a vil. and par. Sweden, 18 m. and 13 m. S.E.W. Falun near r bank Dal Elff, with a parish church, a castle, and cloister-works.

TUNAMA a river, Brazil. See ITUNAMA.

TUNBRIDGE, or TOMBRODIA, a market tn. and par. England, on Kent, on an acclivity above the Medway, here crossed by several bridges, within 1 m. of the South-Eastern railway, and 11 m. S.W. Maidstone. It contains chiefly of a long and tolerably well-built street; and has a handsome church with a square embattled tower. Independent, Baptist, and Wesleyan chapels, a well-endowed free grammar-school national and infant schools, a good townhall and market-house, a mechanics' institute, a library and scientific institution, several churches, manufacturing of gunpowder and sundry wooden wares, a trade in coal and timber, a market every fortnight, and an annual fair. In the time of William the Conqueror a strong castle was built here. It makes some figure in English history and its site is still marked by some ruins. Area of par., 16 385 ac. Pop. 10,548 of m., 4530.

TUNBRIDGE or TOWNESBURG WV, a market tn. and watering-place, England, to Kent, pleasantly situated amid picturesque scenery, on the Hastings branch of the South-Eastern railway, 15 m. S W Maidstone. It consists chiefly of clusters of houses, many of them handsomely built on detached embankments; and of a spacious parade, finely planted on one side, and occupied by assembly-rooms, libraries and elegant shops on the other, and has two district churches one of them Norman and the other in the later English style with a finely painted window, a chapel of ease with a much adorned unornamented ceiling, Independent Huntingdon and Wesleyan Methodist, and E. Catholic chapels, church of England presbytery, national, Baptist, and infant schools, a commodious townhall, a library and scientific institute, an infirmary, and dispensary; extensive manufactures of toys and other fancy articles, known by the name of Tunbridge ware, and a weekly corn and general market. The spring to which the place owes its origin and prosperity is chalybeate, nearly equal in strength to that of the German Spa, and is considered very efficacious in cases of weak digestion. The wells are situated in the centre of the town, and the accommodation provided for the numerous patients and fashionable visitors who annually resort to it, is both ample and elegant. Pop. 10,567.

TUNCHE, a n Chioa, prov. Ngranoh, about 20 m. from Hyvry-chow foo to which it forms a kind of port; lat. 29° 48' N lon. 118° 30' E. It is a large, busy, and thriving place, and carries on a very extensive trade especially in green-tea, the greater part of which is sent down the river, and thence onward to Shanghai, being shipped here. Pop. about 150,000.

TUNDERGARTH par Scot. Dumfries 12 m. by 2 S. Pop. 577.

TUNDOLSKIRCHEN, or PRUD-ESTHAR, a market tn. Hungary on Dababurg with a trade in wine P. 1554.

TUNG-CHANG a city, China prov. Shantung on the Ta tai-ho, 61 m. S. W. Tai nan.

TUNGARAGUA, a name given to the Amazon in the upper part of its course.

TUNGUSKA, three rivers, Siberia. — 1 (Upper or Verkh-), A river which is the upper part of its course takes the name of Angara (which see). It issues from the S W extremity of Lake Baikal, and proceeds circuitously N W for about 700 m., till it reaches lat. 57° 30' N, where it first becomes known as the Tunguska. From the point it flows W for about 230 m., and joins r. bank Yenisei about 80 m. above Yeniseisk. It is the largest of all the affluents of the Yenisei. Its chief tributaries are, on the right, the Mura and Teshobetsa and on the left, the Irkut, the Oka, and Tshuma. — 3 (Middle, or Podkamen-) A river, which rises in the N W of gov Irkutsk, flows first N N W, then W, and joins r. bank Yenisei, where it expands into a lake of its own name, after a course of about 500 m. — 3 (Lower or Nizh-) A river, which rises in the N W of gov Irkutsk, not far from the source of the former, flows very circuitously first W, then N N W, and finally W, and joins r. bank Yenisei, after a course of above 100 m.

TUNIS, one of the Barbary States of N Africa, and nominally dependent on Turkey is situated between lat. 31° and 37° N and lon. 8° and 12° E and is bounded, N and N E, by the Mediterranean, S E Tripoli, S and S W the Great Desert or Sahara, and W Algeria, greatest length, W to E, about 440 m., mean breadth measured on the parallel of 36°, 180 m., area, roughly estimated at 70 000 sq m. The coast-line, which is very irregular and much broken, presents three remarkable indentations, forming the Bay of Tunis on the N., and those of Hammamet and Gabes or the Lesser Syrte on the S. On the N W, as far as the Cape of Farina, it is bold and rocky, and presents in Cape Biance the most E point of the African continent. The shores of the Bay of Tunis are low and generally swampy but rise towards its extremity, and terminate in Cape Bon. Beyond this cape and S, the shore is generally low, but is occasionally diversified by rocky headlands of moderate elevation. The interior of Tunis, owing partly to its lying on the direct line of route between other countries, is very imperfectly known. The N W portion, lying between the frontiers of Algeria on the W, and the valley of Majerda on the S and E, is traversed by a range of mountains which, entering from the W, spread over the whole district. These mountains, estimated at 4000 ft. to 5000 ft. high, are well covered with fine timber, and on their lower slopes have many fertile tracts, partly under culture, and partly under olive-plantations. Among the mountains rich veins of lead are said to exist. Between these mountains and the Gulf of Hammamet on the E, stretches the extensive plain or plateau of Kairuan, which is about 100 m. long, by 80 m. wide, and though elevated, is almost an unbroken flat, nearly destitute of trees, and except in the vicinity of the town of Kairuan, unencultivated. Over this plain the Arabs roam pasturing their horses and camels. Little is known of the country to the S of this plain. Its fertility was celebrated by the ancients, but it is understood to be at present little better than a desert. The only river of any consequence is the Majerda already mentioned, both at its mouth and considerably to the W of it, near the Gulf of Biance, are numerous large lagoons abounding with several kinds of fish. The only other remarkable expanse of water is the great Lake of Al Bibah situated far to the S, on the borders of the Sahara. It is about 70 m. long by 20 m. broad but with the exception of its S. part, becomes dry in summer when a layer of salt is found deposited on its bed. The alluvium is one of the best in the Barbery States, the atmosphere being generally pure and wholesome, and the seasons summer-heat moderated by sea-breezes. In the town of Tunis the thermometer on an average of three years, showed a mean of 85° 9 in winter 71 in spring 88° 8 in summer and 64 in autumn the mean of the whole year being 69° 2. Hail falls at intervals from November to April, but long-continued and almost uninterrupted droughts prevail during the rest of the year. Owing to the extensiveness of the government, and the uncertain tenure by which property is held, agriculture is very much neglected, and large tracts, capable of yielding productive returns, remain in a state of waste. The principal crops are wheat barley and maize, olive also are extensively grown, and date-plantations are as numerous as to furnish the principal subsistence of the inhabitants. Tobacco is largely and cotton indigo saffron, and opium are partially grown. Almost all the fruits of E Europe abound, and in various quarters drugs and dyes form special objects of culture. The principal domestic animals are mules, oxen, and camels; on several parts of the coast the fisheries (including that of coral) are valuable. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen fabrics, more especially the seric or red cap, known all over the Mediterranean coast, both soft and hard, made on an extensive scale at Sfax; dyed skins, and ordinary and morocco leather the trade, both with the interior and with different parts of Europe, is of considerable extent. The inhabitants, consisting of a mixture of Moors, Arabs, Turks, and Jews the two first principally with a few Christians, rank as the most civilized in Barbary, though, as compared with the least advanced of European nations, they are manifestly deficient in everything that constitutes true civilization, their government is a rule and revolting despotism, in which a path is nominally sanctioned by the Sultan but virtually independent of him makes his will his only law and sources obedience to it by maintaining a large standing force. Pop. estimated at 2,500,000.

TUNIS, a seaport tn., N Africa, cap of above state, at the mouth of the Majerda, on the W side of an oval lagoon connected by a narrow strait with the bay of Sfax, and on a large and beautiful plain bounded on the distance by lofty mountains, 400 m. E by N Algeria; lat. (Fondouk) 36° 48' N, lon. 10° 34' 12" E. (n.) It is surrounded by a double wall—an exterior about 5 m. in circuit, enclosing the suburbs and pierced by four gates, and an interior still more lofty enclosing the city proper and pierced by six gates. It is also defended by a strong castle completely commanding the Goleta or narrow strait already mentioned, and by several detaching forts in other directions. When approached, whether by land or sea, it becomes visible at a considerable distance, and rising in long ranges of buildings of dazzling whiteness, presents a very striking and picturesque appearance. The impression thus made is not confirmed by a nearer inspection land, and from, raw and manufactured coffee, sugar, ginseng, &c. In carrying on this trade, notwithstanding the admirable situation of the town, considerable disadvantages are experienced. The depth of water within the lagoon is not more than 6 ft. or 7 ft. and hence even merchant vessels are obliged to lie outside the Golets, and can only load or unload by means of lighters. The place of anchorage, however forced by an easier lay off than that of Tumb, lies in a narrow depth of from 10 to 20 fathoms, and is consequently exposed to the largest and heaviest winds in its worst shelter. Even when the wind is in its worst shelter from all winds except the N.E.

The streets are narrow, uneven, unpaved, and filthy in the extreme, and the houses of stone or brick, generally of very mean appearance, consisting only of a single story without exterior windows. The interior however in the form of a court, with the apartments ranged round has a much more comfortable appearance. The houses are of no great significance. Water is abundantly supplied, partly from cisterns placed on the flat roof of each to collect the rain, and partly by an aqueduct carried from a neighbouring spring. The public buildings include a great number of mosques, several of them handsome, and one of them a magnificent structure, the Sultan's mosque, which is the principal object at the expense of the ruler in the interior of the town. In the town there is a handsome modern building in the Saracenic style, which is the residence of the British Consul.

Tunis is situated about 8 m. to the N.W. of the ruins of ancient Carthage, and thus derives much additional interest from its proximity to that celebrated seat of empire. At the same time, it is itself a place of great antiquity, and has been the scene of many important historical events. During the Punic wars it was repeatedly taken and retaken. In 459 it fell into the hands of the Vandals, but during the fourth century, when about a century thereafter by Belisarius, it continued to be subject to the Greek Empire till the end of the 7th century when Northern Africa was overrun by the victorious arms, and became a depend only of the caliphs of Baghdad. The distance of this capital soon enabled the governors appointed by the caliphs to become virtually independent, and at last in 1506, Tunis became an absolute sovereignty under Abu Fera, who soon added to it the greater part of Algeria and Tripoli. It soon became intolerable for its subjects to be ruled by a foreign Prince, in a chivalrous attempt to suppress these last he led his army and lost life. The last of the Tunisian kings, Muley-Hassan, having been deprived of his throne by the celebrated pirate chief called Barbarossa II in 1531 had recourse to the Emperor Charles V who restored him, but made him a kingdom tributary to Spain. It no continued till 1674, when it was subjugated by the Turks who at first governed it by a Turkish pasha and afterwards by a bey. The beys fled from Constantinople, but were ultimately obliged to allow the Moors to elect their own bey only reserving to themselves the power of confirming the election and exacting a tribute. The parables of the Tunisians subjected them to severe chastisement, first from the British admiral Admiral Haddock and afterwards from France and Holland. In 1816, under threat of the same punishment which had just been in flicted by Lord Exmouth on the Algerines, they engaged for ever to renounce piracy and Christian slavery. Pop. vari ously estimated at 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 of whom about 500,000 were under 5000 Christians, the remainder being chiefly Moors, Arabs, and negroes

TUNJA, a to New Granada, capital, on a height surrounded partly by mountains and partly by morasses near the sources of the Gachala or Bogomoro, 65 m N.W. Bogota. On the invasion of the Spaniards it was one of the greatest cities of the country, and governed by its own king, but it never prospered, and fell into decay, and was almost abandoned, it having neither a good climate nor an adequate supply of water, and possessing very few inhabitants. Among its buildings are several churches and convents, a college, and an hospital. The manufactures consist of some coarse woollens and cotton stuffs; and the trade is chiefly in these; and in grain and tobacco. The inhabitants suffer much from malaria. The battle of Boyaca, fought a little W. Tunja, in 1819; by which against the Spaniards, founded the independence of N. America.

TUNSTALL, or TUNSTALL-COURT a tn. England, Staffordshire, on an alluviality $2\frac{1}{2}$ m N by E. Newcastle-under-Lyne. It has railway close to from a hotel to a considerable celic style, badly situated in a narrow street, but adorned with courts and galleries of inlaid silver large and well arranged terrazzo, one of them fitted to accommodate 40000 men a Mosaic collage for theology not jurisprudence, several other apsework and elementary schools, several synagogues, a R. Catholic and a Greek church, a R. Catholic convent, a theatre, several elegant public baths, and extensive and well-furnished barracks The principal manufactures are linen and woollen cloths, red woollen caps, in such extensive demand, that 50,000 persons are said to have been at one time employed on them; embroidery ordinary and wondrous leather, and various ecclesiastical ornaments both of silk, rose, and jasmine. The principal manufactures of iron and tin are among its principal exports oil, essence or Turkey oil essence, grain and pulse, wool, hides, cattle, honey-oil essence, wax, wine, was gold-dust, and elephants'-teeth, &c. and among the principal imports, cotton, linen, and woollen manufactures.

town, and has a spacious market-place, with a townhall in its centre, a church in the early English style, with a tower and spire; Wesleyan, Primitive, and New Connexion Methodist chapels, national schools; and, both within the town and in its vicinity, extensive manufactures of china and earthen ware, brooks and tiles, &c. The surrounding district is rich in coal and ironstone, for which the Grand Trunk canal affords great facility of transport. Pop. of township, 9566.

TUNSTALL, several par. Eng.—1 Kent, 1196 ac. P 166.—2 Norfolk, 1612 ac. P 123.—3, Suffolk; 2653 ac. P 376.—4, York, 1907 ac. P 150.—5, Lancaster, 9234 ac. P 814.

TUNSTAD par. Eng. Norfolk, 2291 ac. Pop. 449
TUNWORTH, par. Eng. Hants, 1104 ac. Pop. 123.

TUNYAN a river La Plata. See Mazorca.

TUDGE, par. Irel. Limerick, 6519 ac. Pop. 2273

TUGHILLUGGIN, par. Irel. Limerick, 2094 ac. P 426.

TUGHER, par. Irel. Kerry, 9934 ac. Pop. 4034.

TUPARU a river New Granada issues from several small lakes, about lat. 5° N., and lon. 71° W.; flows E., and joins L. bank Orinoco at Maypura, a little above its entrance into course, about 220 m.

TUPOLMÉ, par. Eng. Lucerne, 1796 ac. Pop. 78

TUPIZA, a tn. Bolivia, on a plateau 9000 ft. above sea-level near the N. frontiers of La Plata, 140 m. S. S. E. Potosi. The Chirromo silver-mine is in its vicinity. Pop. about 5000

TUPPAU, a tn. Bohemia. See Dutra.

TUPLES, a river India. See Taptar.

TUPUNGATO a mountain, Chilean Andes, 100 m. E. S. E. Valparaiso, between the Pass of Cumbre on the N., and that of Portillo on the S. It appears to be the culminating point of the Andes, between lat. 33° and 35° S. having an elevation of 15,500 ft.

TUR-Kavi, a vil. Hungary Thither Themas dist. Great Kunsau, on the Berettyo, 10 m. S. W. Karsburg. It contains a Protestant and a R. Catholic church. Pop. 9400

TUR (Mazo) a market tn. Hungary, Hither Themas, co. Heves, r. bank Berettyo, 24 m. E. S. E. Szabolcs with a Protestant, a Greek, and a R. Catholic church manufactures of pottery, and a considerable trade in wine and cattle. P. 15,000

TURA, two places Hungary.—1 A vil. Hither Danube, on Pann. about 4 m. from Havran, with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 2469.—2, (O or Sava) a market tn. Hither Danube, co. and 88 m. N. N. W. Neutra with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, and a synagoga extensive potteries, and a considerable trade in cattle and cheese. Pop. 6486.

TURA, a river Russia, rises on the E. slope of the Ural Mountains, gov. Perm; flows S. E. enters gov. Tobolsk, passes Turinsk and Tumen, and after a course of nearly 800 m. joins L. bank Tobol a little below Jevlars. Its chief affluents in the Nites, which joins it on the right.

TURATE a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Como, 6 m. S. Appiano, with a church a courthouse, and a trade in corn and silk. Pop. 2361 TURBACO a tn. New Granada prov. and 5 m. S. E. E. Cartagena, on a height, in a healthy locality. Its delightful climate makes it a desirable resort for the citizens of Cartagena, and the strangers frequenting that port, but the most of the inhabitants are Indians, who live in houses of bamboo, thatched with palm-leaves.

TURBENTHAL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, com. and 16 m. N. E. E. Friburg, in a valley of the same name, watered by the Thur. It has an old church, and a well preserved castle, finely situated on a height. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in weaving cotton and spinning silk. Pop. 2349

TURBIGO, a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. Milan, 5 m. from Cuggiono, 1 bank Ticino with two churches, a courthouse, custom-house school, and a trade in corn and silk. Pop. 1385

TURCKHEIM, or THURCKHEIM, a tn. France, dep. Haut-Rhin, on the Frocht, at the entrance of the valley Munster, 4 m. W. Colmar. Turckheim here defeated the Imperial army in 1675. Pop. 2648

TURCKEEK (also TELAKO), two nearly-contiguous vils. Hungary, co. and on the river Thurcos, about 30 m. from Rados, with a R. Catholic church, and some means of gold and silver. Pop. 1137

TURDO, a vil. Hungary. See Toma.

TURBEGANO, a tn. Spain, Old Castile, prov. and 18 m.

N. N. E. Segovia in a valley watered by the Valencio and Mabe. It is two churches, one of these situated in the centre of an old castle, finely situated on a height, a townhouse, so situated as to look almost like a fortress, a primary school, and a palace which belonged to the Bishop of Segovia; manufactures of linen, and a considerable transit trade. Pop. 1140

TURENNE, a tn. and com. France, dep. Corrèze, near the source of the Tournante, on a steep and rugged height crowned by the ruins of an ancient castle, 20 m. S. W. Tulle. It has a trade in nut-oil, grain lime, &c. Near it are mines of iron, copper and lead. The castle, which figures much in the early history of France, was the cradle of the family of Turenne, to which the celebrated marshal of the same name belonged. Pop. 1876.

TURFAN, a tn. Chinese Turkistan. See Toufan
TURI, a tn. Naples, prov. and 18 m. S. S. E. Bari, with a collegiate church and several chapels, a monastery, nursery and tollage. Pop. 3560

TURI or TUR-APU a tn. Brazil, prov. Maranhão, at the mouth of a river in the bay of same name, lat. 1° 30' S., lon. 45° 20' W., with a parish church in a very dilapidated state. Pop. (dist.) 5000.—The river rises in the forests which stretch to the N. of the confluence of the Araguaia with the Tocantins flows N. N. E. and falls into the Atlantic at above town, total course, 80 m., partly navigable.

TURIA, a river, Spain. See GUADALAVIA.

TURJIA a river, Russia, rises in S. W. of gov. Volynia, flows N. N. E. through extensive morasses, and joins r. bank Prypiet after a course of about 100 m.

TURIN (Italian, Torino) a large and magnificent city, late cap. of kingdom of Italy, beautifully situated in an extensive and fertile plain surrounded by the Alps, at the confluence of the Dora-Susina into the Po, each of which rivers is crossed by a magnificent stone-bridge the former of five elliptical arches, and the latter of a single arch with a span of 150 ft. The approach from the W. is by a noble avenue, which commencing at the town of Rivoli, is one of the longest in Europe and the general appearance of the city and its environs is scarcely surpassed in grandeur. Turin was at one time surrounded by walls and bastions, and ranked as a place of considerable strength. Its large and imposing citadel still remains, but all the other fortifications have been removed and the site occupied by them covered partly with finely-planted walks and partly with magnificent houses which extending around in all directions, have both united the suburbs with the former town and nearly doubled its extent. The old quarters are closely built, and the streets are somewhat narrow and irregular, but all the modern portions have been built on a uniform plan in wide streets, which intersect each other at right angles, and thus form a series of square blocks and piles of building, the effect of which would be unpleasant were not the monotony relieved by the loftiness of the houses, their endless variety of sculptured fronts and rich decorations, and the fine bursts of scenery which are ever opening on the view. Several of the principal streets are lined with arcades. The finest squares are the Piazza-del-Castello, which is of great extent, and surrounded by splendid and lofty palaces; the Piazza-de-San-Lorenzo almost entirely surrounded by arcades, and adorned with a fine statue of Emmanuel Filiberto by Mazzetti, the Piazza-de-San-Giovanni, and the Piazza-del-Erbe. Few cities in Italy are so poor in ancient buildings and historical recollections as Turin, but its modern edifices are numerous and several of them magnificent. The ecclesiastical edifices most deserving of notice are the cathedral or duomo, completed in the beginning of the 16th century, of small dimensions, with an exterior remarkable only for some barbaric arabesques in the pinnacles of the facade, and an interior which has recently been rudely and carelessly decorated with fresco, and contains some good paintings, and a remarkable chapel of marble called Santa Sabina, regarded as the masterpiece of Guarini, the church of San Maurizio, surrounded by a fine dome San Donato, possessed of a fine Virgin and Child by Gasparino, San Felippo Neri, one of the finest alt. fons of the city, though with an unimproved facade. San Tommaso, a small church of little architectural merit, but possessed of some fine paintings; Santa Christina, with a striking facade, considered to be one of the best productions of Juvarra. Orsorio Christ, remarkable for the richness of its marble, gilding, and other decorations; La Consolata, famed of a comhibition of three congeneric shrubs, and remarkable for the number variety and richness of its furnishings; San Andrea, of an oval form, with numerous frescoes, sculptures in bronze and marble, and some fine wood-carvings; San

PALAZZO GIOVENETTI, TURIN. From Chapuy, Hogue, and Pittenenger.

Rocco, in the form of an octagon, with a concave facade and a well-constructed dome and La Grana-Madre-di-Dio, a new unfinished church on which vast sums have been expended, erected in commemoration of the restoration of the royal family but merely a servile and meagre imitation of the Pantheon. In addition to these, a remarkably handsome church in the old Lombard style for the accommodation of the Waldenses, and forming one of the chief ornaments of Turin, was consecrated on December 15 1863. Of the edifices not ecclesiastical the most conspicuous is the royal palace, built, like most of the other structures of Turin of brick, and remarkable only for its magnitude. Under the roof of the palace are the king's private library, with some curious MSS. and letters and the royal armory a large and curious collection, considered one of the principal sights in Turin. The palace of Carignano, originally inhabited by the prince, and situated in the square of same name, is a large and rather unpoising structure in an extravagant style. It has recently been converted into government-offices. Other conspicuous buildings are the register-office or Palazzo-degli-Archivi-Roali, a vast edifice by Jevara, and adjoining it the custom-house or Palazzo-delle-Dogane, the townhouse or Palazzo-di-Citta, with a lofty but unfinished tower the courthouses or Palazzo-di-Granada the university or Universita-Roale, a large and magnificent building by Giuseppe architect the large library now attached to the university and originally formed by the ancient dukes of Savoy containing 110,000 vols the picture-gallery with a large and valuable collection the Palazzo-dell'Accademia-Roale, under the roof of which are several museums—an Egyptian, with many curious antiquities, a museum of natural history particularly rich in minerals, and a cabinet of 15,000 coins and medals and several theatres, one of them among the largest and most splendid in Italy.

Among the educational establishments, in addition to the university already mentioned, are the Episcopal seminary occupying an elegant structure the royal military academy two colleges, and various superior and inferior schools. The charitable establishments include numerous rich endowments, of which the most interesting and important are the Riformatorio, a kind of religious community, in which 400 girls are maintained chiefly by their own labour, the general hospital or Infirmary (Spedale-Maggiore) the Ospedale-di-Carita, which receives about 1500 inmates; the Rospedale-Albergo-di-Turin, a kind of industrial school; the Regio-Mendicant or lazaretto system, the Spedale-di-San-Leop, a large and well-managed establishment, supported chiefly by voluntary contributions, and giving relief not only to numerous inmates, but to an annual average of 130,000 out-patients; and the Compagnia-di-San-Paolo, embracing a great number of objects—education marriage-portions, and relief to the poor—regimented or bachelors poor suffering in secret. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen, cotton, linen, and silk goods; wax-cloth, stained paper, hosiery, leather, glass, carriages, printing-types, philosophical and musical instruments, and there are numerous dye-works, and silk and other mills, distilleries, &c. The staple trade is in silk which has here its chief entrepot, employs a vast number of hands, and forms the principal source of wealth. Other articles of trade, in addition to silk and the above articles of manufacture, are corn, wine, fruit, and liquors.

Turin, until Florence was made the capital in 1865, concentrated all the principal offices of the state. It is the seat of an archbishop, and has numerous societies—ecclesiastical, literary, scientific and artistic. Of the original foundation of Turin very little is known. It is generally attributed to a colony of Transalpine origin, called Taurini or Tauriel. Shortly after Hannibal crossed the Alps he made himself master of the territory in which it is situated; but after his expulsion from Italy the Komans resumed possession, and converted Turin into a Roman colony which took the name of Colonia Julia. This name was afterwards changed, in honour of Augustus, into that of Augusta Taurinorum. It was taken and sacked by the Goths under Alaric. Its vast extent of smaller districts it was shortly after surrounded by walls, but did not escape the ravages of the Longobards. Charlemagne, into whose hands it subsequently passed, bestowed it as a fief on one of his bishops, several of whom ruled it with tyrannical sway. It was afterwards governed by the marquises of Susa, with whom it remained till the heretics of that family conveyed it by marriage to the counts of Savoy. In 1418 it was declared by Amadeo V. the capital of the states of Savoy, and, following the fate of his family, ultimately rose to be the capital of the whole Sardinian States. The environs of Turin are very beautiful, and present many objects of interest, among which the church of Superga, on the top of the lofty Mount Collina, immediately overlooking the city is conspicuous. The terrace in its front commands one of the best views of the plains of Lombardy girded by the Alps on the N. and the Apennines on the S. The vicinity of the Alps, which adds so much to the magnificence of the scenery, has, however an injurious effect on the climate, making its winters cold, and often, when the year is far advanced, sending down devastating storms of hail. P (1852), 143, 157.

TURIN, a vil. Spain, prov. and 80 m. S.W. Valencia, on the Mague with a townhouse, prison two primary schools, a church and chapel, several brandy distilleries, and two flour-mills. Pop. (agricultural), 2697.

TURJE (formerly TURKIA) a market in Hungary, Thither Danube, on Szalad, 2 m. from Billegh; with a church, a Premonstratensian abbey, and a trade in corn and wine. P 1268.

TURKA, a to. Austria Galicia, 28 m. S.W. Sambor, with a Greek and two R. Catholic churches, several mills, and a trade in tobacco, which is largely grown in the district.

TURKLEAN, pop. 1800, 1800 m. S. 378.

TURKISTAN, a wide region of Central Asia, partly included in the Chinese Empire, and partly subdivided among several independent states and nomads its two portions being separated chiefly by the table-land of Pamir, the Belor-taghi, and the Muz-taghi. In maps it is sometimes called Bucharia—Great Bucharia being a name applied to Independent or W., and Little Bucharia to Chinese or S. Turkistan.

CHINESE TURKISTAN [T'ien-shan-kan], or 'the country S. of the T'ien-shan' is between lat. 35° and 45° N. and long. 75° and 95° E., bounded N. by the T'ien-shan Mountains, which separate it from Sogdiana or Central Asia, W. by the table-land of Pamir; S. the Kossan Mountains, dividing it from W. Tibet; E. and S. the desert of Gobi, of which it includes a portion, length, W. to E., estimated at 1550 m.; breadth, from 300 m. to 550 m. area, 500,000 sq. m. It is closed on three sides by lofty mountain-ranges, and on the E. by a low abruptly elevated plateau, the centre of this country is the basin of the Lop-nor, a lake 70 m. in length, 40 m. wide, the W. by the Turan and its five great tributaries—the Kaskazi, Kashgar, Yarkand, Khotan, and Akse rivers. Pop.

Turkistan, based from the head of the Yarkand river its furthest source, has a total length of 1600 m., and at its inflex into the Lop-nor, is supposed to be no more than 1280 ft. above the level of the sea. — (Humboldt, Aspects of Nature, I. 84.) Its basin is almost wholly a sandy waste; it is in fact estimated that three-fourths of Chinese Turkistan are covered with deserts, and the very small proportion of the surface adapted for culture is merely situated around the oases and basins of the two rivers in the N., W., and E. The lands there, are, however, in some districts, very fertile, and from the conformation of the country, its climate and products approximate to those of much lower latitudes. The heat in summer is great in winter frost and snow though common in the W., are rare at Hami, near the E. border. Abundant rains occur at this season in the mountains, but seldom in the lower country, where water for irrigation is carefully preserved in reservoirs. In the desert violent storms of wind are common, and very destructive to caravans, which, accordingly, in their transit from China, traverse only its narrowest part on the route from Kansu across to Hami.

On the declivities and borders of the mountains rice, wheat, millet, yulm, and grains common in E. Europe with sesamum and other oil-seeds, cotton, &c., are raised in considerable quantities, besides hemp flax, and dye-plants. Grapes, melons, pomegranates, and other fruits of E. climates, come to maturity for perfection. Mulberry-plantations are numerous, and much silk is produced. The rearing live-stock is, however, the chief branch of rural industry. Most of the surface, where it is rendered verdant by sufficient irrigation is employed in pasturing horses, yak, and other cattle, camels, and sheep the horses of this region are in high repute, and are sent in large numbers to China, Tibet, and several adjacent countries. Wild horses, camels, and asses abound in herds on the stony steppes of the Lop desert; the argal or wild sheep, some antelope, the tiger, wolf, jackal, lynx, and fox are amongst the other wild animals; the ranges of the Tian-shan are the native country of the two-humped or Bactrian camel. Two large species of eagles are conspicuous amongst native birds, the number of which is not great. Gold is found in the Tian-shan, and in the affluents of the Khotan river. Copper, iron, nitre, asbestos, and agate are also met with. Sal-ammoniac and sulphur in great quantities in the volcanic districts of Bogdo-oolai and around Tourfan. The most remarkable mineral product is the gas or paper in which there is an imperial monopoly it is raised from the bed of the Khotan river, also in the streams named Yuringkash and Karakash, in the Yarkand province, and about 70 m. S.E. Yarkand is a rock stated to be wholly composed of this stone. At all these localities Chinese soldiers are stationed to supervise the operations for procuring the paper, and prevent, so far as they can, any of it from passing into private hands. The whole of the produce being officially sent to Peking where it is employed in the manufacture of vases and other articles of furniture for the imperial palace. — (Ritter Asien Archaologie, vi. 380-383.) Chinese Turkistan on an extensive trade, chiefly with Cashmere, Independent Turkestan, the Russian Empire, China, and Tibet. The caravans from Peking to Yarkand employ from three to six months on their route, and bring tea, silver porcelain, and numerous other manufactured goods, taking back milk, horses, cattle, and dyes. From Cashmere, by way of Yarkand, are brought shawls, kimonos, and white cloth, in return for Russian goods, tanned leather, gold and silver embroidery, raw China wares, and Tibet shawl-wool, from Yunnan, in Bedoukash, shawls and gams, in return for silver and tea. From Andam, in Khotan, wools and other manufactured goods are brought on horses, mules, and camels to Kashgar, where they are exchanged for Chinese produce; the routes from the two latter countries respectively traverse the two main passes across the lofty table-land of Pamir. Many merchants of Chinese Turkistan go to Tobolsk with cotton stuffs, tea, rhubarb, and sal-ammoniac, and return with broad-cloth, broadens, bullion, gold coin, copper iron, steel, and furs and the same kinds of merchandise come, by way of Uli, to Ak-su, the exports from which town are chiefly cotton, silk, cotton fabric, leather, pottery, and fruit. Yarkand is the chief emporium of trade, and is a large mart for Chinese goods. Other principal cities and towns are Hami or Khami, Fikhan Tourfan, Karakash, Katshe Akso, and Ush, along the N. route, below the Tian-shan; Kashgar, the city second in importance, toward the W. frontier, and Karakash, Khotan, Kila, and Paim, in the S.

The great bulk of the inhabitants are of the Turkish race, or Uzbeks, they are superior in civilization to the Uzbeks of Bokhara, and speak the purest of Turkish dialects. Tajiks or Persians, Eluths, Cashmerians, Tanguts, &c., all Mahomedans, are amongst the population, the Tajiks carry on most of the foreign trade. In the N.W. are some Kirghiz settlers; at Hami many Hsien Chakchaks and on the banks of the Lop-nor are a few people who, although they speak Turkish, are not Mahomedans they are occupied in fishing, trading in furs and swans' down, and weaving flax and wild hemp. Chinese merchants in the towns, a few Hindoo Jews, and Christians, Mongols in the E., and Mahomedans in the Chinese army, make up nearly the rest of the inhabitants. The civil government is vested in the hakim bey of the districts, whose appointment rests with the court of Peking, and the Mahomedan maintain, with much autonomy, their freedom from interference by the Chinese in their internal affairs. The Chinese troops which guard the principal cities amount in all to between 30,000 and 40,000 men, under Manchoo officers. At all the custom-house stations the officials are half Manchoos and half Uzbeks. Europeans are interdicted from entering the country.

This region formed anciently a part of the territory of the Hsiao-ang it was subjected by the Chinese in the 1st century A.D. and from the 6th to the 17th centuries, it was successively under the dominion of Tibet, Tangut, Genghis Khan, Timur, the Eluths, and the Boongarians. It was conquered by the Chinese emperor Kung-long, in 1756-8. In 1839-7, a great insurrection took place under Djanagire, one of his khodjas or princes, who with aid from Kokan, defeated an army of 60,000 Chinese in three battles, but the latter finally prevailed and the chief authorities of the province were transferred from Kashgar to Yarkand. — (Ritter, Asien Archaologie, vi. 380-381.)

INTERMEDIATE TURKISTAN is between lat. 35° and 51° N. and lon. 51° and 72° E., bounded E. by the Pamir table-land, W. by the Caspian Sea, N. by the Russian governments of Tobolsk and Tarnak, and S. by the Hissar Mountains and the Hindoo-Koosh, separating it respectively from E. Persia and Afghanistan. In it are the fescs of Aral several other considerable lakes, and the entire courses of the rivers Oxus and Jaxartes. It is composed of the khazanes of Bokhara, Khiva, Koonoord, Boshkhan, and Koken, with the steppes of the Kirghis (see those articles). Both in its S. part until lately possessed by Bokhara, now belongs to the Afghans.

TURKEY or THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE (Turkish, Islâm, Latin Turces Imperium, French, Turquie, German, Türken, Dutch, Turkye, Italian, Turchia, Greek, Turkey). This empire, comprehending all the countries in which Turkish supremacy is directly or indirectly recognized, includes some of the farthest portions of the world, and several of its earliest and most celebrated seats of civilization but labours under the serious disadvantages of being not so much a confederate dominion, as a mere aggregate of vicereigns, often widely separated, both by position and interest, and only accidentally united by having been the subjects of a common conqueror. Its vast territories consisting partly of mainland, and partly of islands scattered over the bosom or along the shores of inland seas, are situated in three different quarters of the globe, in the S.E. of Europe, the W. of Asia and the N.E. of Africa extend over 37° of lat. (11 to 48° N.) and 41° of lon. (37° to 49° E.) and though scarcely indistinguishable geographically defined as a common whole, may be considered as bounded, N. by the Black Sea, Russia, and Austria, W. Austria, the Adriatic, the Mediterranean, Algeria, and the African desert; S. the desert, Sudan, Abyssinia, and the Gulf of Bahabundab, E. Independent Arabia, the Persian Gulf, and Persia, and N.E. Transcaucasian Russia. The total area of the empire is estimated at 1,877,358 sq. m., and the population at 25,560,000. The administrative division is into gates or governments, and sanjaks or provinces, but their names and areas have been so often arbitrarily and even occasionally changed, that it is difficult to speak with certainty of those actually subsisting. The following table, extracted from Dietrich's Asiatische Reise des Historischen Bureau in Berlin (1866, No. 18, pp. 214-219) is believed to be the most accurate and authoritative which has recently appeared. —

HAYNES and ASHMAN of the EVALUATION and SANITARY of the TURNING KNOWN

[illegible]

As the leading names in the above table form the subjects of separate articles, in which the more important details are given, the geographical sketch introduced here will be of the most general description.

To prevent confusion, it will be proper to keep the territories of each continent distinct, and present them under the separate heads of Turkey in Africa, Turkey in Asia, and Turkey in Europe.

1. THEORY IN AFRICA, may be considered as an immense triangle, one side of which facing the N is formed by the R above the Mediterranean, and another, facing the E, by the W shore of the Red Sea and the Isthmus of Suez, while the base or third side is represented by an indefinite line drawn across the desert in a S-E direction, from the frontiers of Algeria to those of Abyssinia. It originally included the whole of the African continent, but has since been formally dismembered from it, and still includes the three separate governments of Tunis, Tripoli, and Egypt, the last comprising not only Egypt proper, but also Nubia or Dongola, and Senaar. The aggregate area, estimated at 719,323 sq. m., amounts to more than one half, but the population, only 9,800,000, falls short of one-ninth of that of the whole empire. This great disproportion indicates the nature of the territory, a large part of which is composed of sandy deserts and barren mountains, and is only fertile in the narrowest belt running along the shores strikingly contrast with the general barrenness. Tunis, belonging principally to the plateau of the Atlas, is intersected by many fertile valleys, had, owing partly to its natural resources and its maritime advantages, become the seat of an empire which long continued to rival for mastery with that of Rome and Egypt, enriched by the richest harvests of the Nile, condense, in epitome, all the characteristics of the African continent, and is one of the principal granaries of the world. The remoteness from the seat of government makes it difficult for the Turkish authorities to maintain a firm hold of their possessions in Africa, and home, at one period, it seemed as if they were not only about to establish their independence, but as if the Ottoman rule, both in Asia and Africa, were about to be transferred from Constantinople to Cairo. More recently however the Porte has unexpectedly regained her ascendency in Turkey, and has, it is told by a day, who holds his appointments for life, and has even been expressly relieved from the payment of tribute by that Tripoli, which had long possessed its own hereditary dust of the Carassani family, has been compelled, by a violent stretch of power to accept of a yamuk arbitrarily nominated by the sultan, and maintained in his position by Turkish troops and garrisons. The same has been done by the Egyptian Government, and the result has been made by a direct interference of the great European powers so completely to enmesh, that instead of being the most arrogant, it is now at least in profession, the humblest and most submissive of yamuk. The hereditary sovereignty is in the family of the late Mahomet Ali, but the Porte claims the right, at each vacancy, of selecting the particular member of the family who he will fit, draws a fourth of the gross revenue in the name of tribute, and has the uncontested nomination of all the higher officers of the government. The connection of the Turkish empire with Africa is, therefore, by no means so nominal as it is often represented to be. Its possessions on the continent not only extend all the others to Asia, but in consequence of the almost universal prevalence of Islamism, have a stronger bond of union with the African governments, and the vast territories which it has thus secured, probably, might seem to be more closely connected with it. See EGYPT, NUBIA, SENEGAL, TOGO, TRIPOLI, YEMMAH and BARBARY.

2 TURKEY, IN ASIA, taken in its widest sense, includes within its geographical limits the long belt of Arabia, which lines the E. shore of the Red Sea, and consisting of the two Jalomatina, Gureli, and Pruth, pour the accumulated waters of more than half of the whole country. Next in importance to the basin of the Archangel, which receives the Rumanian, from Thessaly the Indje Karama, Vardar and Sava from Macedonia, and the Maritsa from Rumania. The Adriatic and Ionian Seas, generally regarded as only sea basins, take a large extent of Turkish coast, but owing to the proximity of the mountain-chains, receive from no rivers deserving of notice, except the comparatively insignificant Albanian Drin, Scutari, and Yegina. The fourth basin, the Sea of Marmara, receives only a few mountain-streams. Considering the mountainous character of the country, and its numerous perennial streams fed from snowy heights, it is remarkable that it does not possess a single lake worthy of the name, with the exception perhaps of those of Ouhrida in the E., and of Samsat in the N. W. of Albania. Owing partly to the elevation of the surface and partly to its exposure to the N. E. blasts from the interior of Russia, the climate is not so mild as its latitude might seem to indicate, and is, moreover, subject to sudden and violent fluctuations. The Danube regularly freezes, and snow several feet deep remains nearly half the year on the loftier mountains of the Danubian provinces. The olive will not grow in the latitudes which in Spain and Italy are found to be most congenial to it, and such border plants are often nipped by hard frosts after the season has considerably advanced. On the other hand, the summer heat is excessive, especially in Albania, and other districts which possess a N. shelter, and even in the more exposed districts the vineyards become general before the end of July. Few the production of the ordinary cereals, no part of the world is more admirably adapted, and the grain produced at present very fully indicates the immense quantities which, under better circumstances, might easily be raised for the maintenance of a vast population either on the spot or in other countries. The only great exceptions to the general salubrity of the climate are produced by the miasmas of some low swampy tracts of no great extent, and by occasional visitations of the plague. The latter however are attributable not so much to the climate as to the complete neglect of sanitary arrangements.

The geology of the country has not been fully or accurately explored, but so far as yet known, it does not appear to be much distinguished either by the variety or the value of its mineral products. Primary fossiliferous strata occur only in isolated spots, and that part of the secondary formation where the coal measures ought to be found, is believed to be altogether wanting. On the contrary the upper part of the secondary formation, including the cretaceous system, is very largely developed the lias, the sandstone, and other rocks belonging to it compose almost the entire stratification of extensive tracts, particularly in the W. Tertiary formations also prevail both in the E. and in the basin of the Danube, and along almost all the larger rivers, and at the mouths alluvial deposits of more or less thickness are usually found. Crystalline schists, composed of gneiss and mica, and chlorite slates are, if not the most largely, the most consistently developed of all the rocks inasmuch as they form the great bulk of the loftiest mountain-chains. In connection with the schists, granite also is of frequent occurrence, and in some places seen piercing the gneiss at high elevations. No evidence of active volcanic agency anywhere appears, but the important part which it must have performed in giving the country its final configuration is indicated, both by the existence of thermal springs, and by the masses of trachyte and other volcanic products, which cap some of the summits both of the Peneo and the Taurus-Daghs. Many of the veins which traverse the crystalline schists have been supposed to be highly metalliferous and lead, yielding a considerable percentage of silver has at different periods been actually worked. Iron also, of the best quality is very abundant, but neither government nor people seem as yet inclined to turn their mineral treasure to good account.

Having thus cursorily surveyed the different territories, more or less subject to Turkish sway on the three great continents of the Old World, it seems practicable, and will serve to arrange our observations in such a manner as to make them applicable to the empire throughout.

Products.—These are partly natural and partly artificial, some of them being yielded spontaneously without human effort, while others are not to be obtained without a greater or less amount of skill and labour. Without attempting to specify the natural products of the Turkish Empire, we may mention, among others, the date groves of Tripoli and Tunis, from which the inhabitants derive a chief part of their subsistence, the cane, steppes, and plains on which the Arabs and other nomadic tribes, both in Africa and Asia, feed their flocks and herds, the dyed and dressed skins produced in arid tracts where scarcely anything else would grow, and the noble forests, which, in spite of the havoc to which they have been subjected, still magnificently crown many mountain-chains both in Asia and in European Turkey. In an empire where the number of the inhabitants bears so proportion to the extent of the country nominally occupied by them, such natural products form, both in amount and value, an innumerable part of the returns yielded by the soil. The two great classes of artificial products are furnished by agriculture and manufactures. Both of these, owing to the immensity of every kind of property, the natural industries of the Orientals, their pertinacious adherence to antiquated customs, the absence of means of communication and various other causes, are in a very neglected condition, and yield a mere fraction of the profitable returns which under more favourable circumstances, might easily be obtained from them. In many districts, however, the natural capabilities of the soil and the excellence of the climate, seem to announce all obstacles, and cotton, tobacco, olives, sesame, rice, maize, wheat, and other crops are raised in immense quantities. The vine, cultivated extensively, especially by Christians, produces the finest wines both the common and finer kinds of fruit are grown in almost every quarter the poppy is raised on a large scale for the manufacture of opium, immense numbers of silk-worms are reared on the leaves of the mulberry, and whole gardens are employed in producing flowers for the preparation of the celebrated star of roses. In connection with agricultural products, we may also be mentioned the rearing of cattle on the lower plains of the Danub of goats, particularly in the country of Angora, and of camels, horses, and sheep, by the various nomadic tribes. Manufactures—the other great class of artificial products, now occupy a very secondary place in the Turkish Empire, and are not entitled to more than a passing notice. Cotton at one time the staple branch of industry, carried on to a greater or less extent in almost every town, village, and hamlet, has nearly ceased to exist, from its inability to compete with the products of the power-looms of Great Britain, and almost symptoms of revival only at Beyrout where British capital has been employed with some success in introducing the factory system. Of the cutlery of Damascus, the refined sugar of Cyprus, the porcelain of Nise or Isnik, and the red dye, all formerly important industrial branches, scarcely a vestige now remains, and the only articles in which some degree of superiority may still be claimed, are various preparations of leather, carpets, and tapestry, the latter chiefly at Ushak, in Asia Minor and, above all, the silks of Damascus, Aleppo, Brusa, and Derbekir, which, in point of beauty and durability, still vie with the best products of the looms of Lyons and Milan. To these may be added, though the places they occupy is very subordinate, the soap of Cece, and the firearms and weapons of Matar and Travnik.

Trade, Commerce, &c.—In regard to these, the most enlightened states have only recently begun to furnish full and correct statistics, and hence, in Turkey, as might be expected, it is impossible to make even a distant approximation to accuracy. A more glance at the map, however, must convince us that countries governed by so many valuable products, and in consequence both of their position and the extent of their coasts and inland seas, accessible at so many points both from the W. and E. must, under any circumstances, command a very extensive traffic, both direct and transit. It is observable, moreover, that by means of the commercial policy which the Turks have adopted, this traffic has been allowed to develop itself with greater freedom than it could have enjoyed in most European states. In the heavy duty of 15 per cent. rightly exacted on all exports, with the important exception of wheat, which by a formal treaty in 1817 was declared free, we see a genuine result of Turkish barbarism; but in the opening up of the coasting trade to the competition of all nations, and the unlimited admission of all imports on the payment of a duty never exceeding 5 per cent. Turkey may claim the merit of having taken a lead in reforming the commercial system of the world. The full working of this system is necessarily swayed by the impolitic restriction on exports, but in every quarter of the empire we behold ports and commercial surroundings, in which a vast amount both of home and foreign trade is concentrated. Among the most important of these are Constantinople, Adrianople, and Salonica, in Europe; Smyrna, Aleppo, Beyrout, Bassora, Trebizond, Batoum, Bagdad, and Damascus in Asia; and Alexandria, Suez, Cairo, and Tunis in Africa. The exports of 1887, consisting chiefly of olive oil, wax, silk and silk goods, cotton, sheep's and goats' wool, grain, tobacco, drugs, opium, lead, etc., were estimated at £10,467,750 and the imports, consisting chiefly of cotton, woolen, and silk goods, metals, iron, steel, and glassware, mineral products, cereals, cordage, Indian and Chinese goods, fancy goods, etc. at £11,823,800. The following tables exhibit the share which Great Britain and other countries have in the trade of Turkey

FOREIGN TRADE IN 1887.

| Countries. | Exports. | Imports. |
|--|--------------|--------------|
| Great Britain, Malta, & the Ionian Islands | £1,538,000 | $1,508,000 |
| France to Paris | 3,175,000 | 3,175,000 |
| France | 1,067,641 | 5,329,716 |
| Austria | 1,167,465 | 1,852,110 |
| Russia | 975,691 | 748,688 |
| Holland | 284,419 | 90,175 |
| Belgium | 45,811 | 80,175 |
| Switzerland | 34,482 | 126,508 |
| Germany | 17,400 | 187,080 |
| Spain (direct trade) | 1,007,850 | 45,380 |
| Switzerland, United States, &c. | 614,319 | 694,118 |
| Japan | 918,500 | 30,1790 |
| Sweden | 378,460 | 353,200 |
| Moldavia | 109,938 | 185,197 |
| Serbia | 74,128 | 81,715 |
| Total | $11,823,800 | $10,467,750 |

DECLARED VALUE OF THE principal articles of HATTON and IRON PRODUCE and MANUFACTURES EXPORTED FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM TO TURKEY—EUROPEAN AND ASIATIC—including WALLACHIA and MOLDAVIA, SYRIA and PALESTINE; in each year from 1851 to 1880

| Year | £ | 1881 | $ |
|------|-----------|------|-------------|
| 1851 | 2,068,864 | 1861 | $1,947,553 |
| 1852 | 1,918,519 | 1862 | 1,847,638 |
| 1853 | 1,019,806 | 1863 | 2,801,866 |
| 1854 | 1,907,941 | 1864 | 2,000,623 |
| 1855 | 2,811,869 | 1865 | 2,848,918 |
| 1856 | 1,798,001 | 1866 | 2,811,607 |
| 1857 | 1,161,256 | 1867 | 2,398,161 |
| 1858 | 1,862,650 | 1868 | 1,112,846 |
| 1859 | 1,493,281 | 1869 | 2,020,619 |
| 1860 | 1,861,469 | 1870 | 2,118,676 |

Accounts are usually kept in piastres, each of which is equal to 2½ d. sterling, making very nearly 108 in the pound sterling. The piastre or guck is divided into 40 paras, and the para into 8oppers, 500 piastres makes a guver, and 100,000 (about £1000) makes a guck. The unit of weight is the cike, equal to about 2½ lb. the avoirdupois, it is divided into 480 duns. For larger weights the center of 44 cikes, and the hezme of 6 cikes are used. Liquids are sold by weight, but the prescribed dry measure is the sic, which is different in almost every district. At Constantinople, 100 hics are equal to 128 imperial quarts. The usual linear measure is the arakche, equal to 3 imperial feet. In travel, the distance is commonly estimated by the hour which affords a very uncertain criterion, but may on average contain about 6 m. The mode of estimating distance makes it almost unnecessary to observe, that in regard to means of internal transport, Turkey is still in the rudest state possible, and only a few of the principal roads are constructed so as to admit of wheel-carriages. The different races of the population are thus kept aloof from each other, cooped up within their natural barriers, and the products of one district are often perishing from want of consumers, while the inhabitants of another district may be suffering severely from inability to obtain them. Nothing recent better calculated to develop the internal resources of Turkey, and even further the cause of good government, by favouring the amalgamation of its hostile races, than the establishment of a system of good roads.

People.—These, consisting of various races accidentally brought into juxtaposition or political relationship by immigration and conquest, present none of the kindred features which combine to form a national character. First in order are the Osmanli Turks, who, as the dominant race, are diffused over the empire, though most numerously in Asia Minor, Armenia, and the R.E. of European Turkey. By right of conquest they are proprietors of the greater part of the soil and fill all the civil and military offices. They live generally in towns employed in various trades, and are never found as agriculturists except in districts where they have settled in great numbers. Accustomed to obtain their wives and supply their harvests from other races, they now constitute a very heterogeneous mixture, retaining few of the leading features of their ancient national character though the masses are still distinguished by features, features, and Asiatic indolence, as well as by a certain degree of good nature, frankness, and hospitality. Their temper is essentially phlegmatic, and hence, except on very extraordinary occasions, they never give way to violent bursts of passion. Their high set enjoyment is to allow the time to pass idly and luxuriously away, and their great places of resort are baths and coffee rooms. The former usually handsome and often magnificent structures are used universally by both sexes, and all classes the latter placed often in the vicinity of natural or artificial fountains, shaded by trees and open to the sky may be seen crowded at all times by visitors in all forms of heliose attitudes, apparently enjoying the highest happiness of which their nature seems capable, from such simple indulgences as a cup of coffee or a tobacco or opium pipe. The only striking contrast to such phlegmatic manifestations is presented by the general fondness for children, and the strong attachment of children to their parents, particularly to their mothers. Both of these affections are exemplified in numerous ways, but nowhere more strikingly than in the deep grief produced by family bereavement, the care bestowed on their education, and the numerous mourners who are constantly resorting to their cypress shades to bewail their loss. The number of the Turks proper is nearly 13,000,000 or about a third of the whole population. To the Turkish stock belong also the Turcomans, who lead a nomadic life in Armenia and the centre of Asia Minor.

A GATE OF THE DOORPHORA.—JOS. N. A. HALL.

Among Semitic races the first place is due to the Arabs, who not confined to their native Arabia, form a considerable element in the population of Syria, Palestine, and the lower head of the population, and constitute a great majority in Egypt. More or less allied to them are the Maronites and Druses in Lebanon, the Jebel Emran, the Mémals in Cile-Syrie, the Asserish or Komari in N. Syria, the Nestorians or Chaldeans in the highlands of Kurdistan and TURKISH WOMEN IN A COUNTRY. — ADAM A. SM.

Mesopotamia, and the Jews who are scattered over all parts of the empire, but have their favourite seats in Syria and Palestine.

To the Caucasian stock belong the Armenians, who, besides forming at least a third of the population in their native Armenia, are diffused as traders throughout all the larger towns the Mahometan Kurds, apparently Persian, though their language bespeaks a very mixed origin, the Yezidis, chiefly inhabiting the Sinjar mountains in the N. of Mesopotamia, the Greeks forming the bulk of the population in Asia Minor, Thessaly, Macedonia, and the islands, and constituting to a very considerable extent, the mercantile and trading community of Turkey more especially in the seaports, the Armenians in the S. and towards the coasts of Albania, the Wallachians or Romanians computed at about 4,000,000, who not only occupy Wallachia and Moldavia, but are found under different names in most provinces of European Turkey, and lastly the races of Slavonic origin confined exclusively to the European part of the empire, but so numerous as to form almost the entire population of the territories between the Balkan and the Danube, among, under the name of Bulgarian Bulgars, to about 4,000,000 in Bulgaria and the S. of Macedonia and Thracia, and under the name of Serbs, to upwards of 2,000,000, principally in Servia, but partly also in Montenegro, Bosnia, Herzegovina and the adjacent parts of Albania. To complete this long list of races, it is necessary to add the gipsies widely diffused and especially numerous in Moldavia and Wallachia, where their condition is one of complete slavery, the Herzies bounding as Tripoli, Tunis, and part of Kabilia, and the negro tribes of Kordofan, Senegal and Darfur. The three following tables exhibit a summary of the population of the Ottoman Empire, classified in the first according to religion, in the second according to race, and in the third according to provinces.

POPULATION according to RELIGIONS.

| Countries | In Europe | In Asia | In Africa | Total |
|----------------------|------------|------------|-----------|------------|
| Mahometans | 5,800,000 | 15,200,000 | 3,000,000 | 24,000,000 |
| Greeks and Armenians | 11,700,000 | 5,800,000 | — | 17,500,000 |
| Roman Catholics | 280,000 | 440,000 | — | 720,000 |
| Jews | 70,000 | 100,000 | — | 170,000 |
| | 18,000,000 | 21,400,000 | 3,000,000 | 42,400,000 |

POPULATION according to RACES.

| Races or Tribes | In Europe | In Asia | In Africa | Total |
|---------------------|------------|------------|-----------|------------|
| Armenians | 1,100,000 | 10,700,000 | — | 11,800,000 |
| Schismatics | 7,000,000 | — | — | 7,000,000 |
| Bulgarians | 4,000,000 | — | — | 4,000,000 |
| Arabs | 1,600,000 | — | — | 1,600,000 |
| Greeks | 1,000,000 | 1,000,000 | — | 2,000,000 |
| Armenians | 400,000 | 3,000,000 | — | 3,400,000 |
| Jews | 70,000 | 100,000 | — | 170,000 |
| Turks | 850,000 | — | — | 850,000 |
| Arabs | 900,000 | — | 2,000,000 | 2,900,000 |
| Serbs and Chaldeans | 600,000 | — | — | 600,000 |
| Herzies | 25,000 | — | — | 25,000 |
| Negros | 1,000,000 | — | — | 1,000,000 |
| Turkoman | 90,000 | — | — | 90,000 |
| | 14,820,000 | 16,000,000 | 2,000,000 | 32,820,000 |

POPULATION in PROVINCES.

| EUROPEAN TURKEY | | | |
|----------------------------------|------------|-----------|------------|
| Thrace | 1,800,000 | | |
| Bulgaria | 4,000,000 | | |
| Macedonia | 1,000,000 | | |
| Wallachia | 2,000,000 | | |
| Bosnia and Herzegovina | 1,400,000 | | |
| Serbia | 2,000,000 | | |
| Islands of the Archipelago | — | 1,000,000 | |
| | | | 15,200,000 |
| ASIAN TURKEY | | | |
| Asia Minor | 10,700,000 | | |
| Syria, Mesopotamia and Kurdistan | 4,100,000 | | |
| Arabia (Mecca, Medina, Hedjaz) | 400,000 | | |
| | | | 15,200,000 |
| AFRICAN TURKEY | | | |
| Egypt | 2,000,000 | | |
| Tripoli, Fezzan, Tunis | 1,000,000 | | |
| | | | 3,000,000 |
| | | | 32,820,000 |

Government — This bears throughout the characteristic features of an Asiatic despotism, in which the arbitrary will of the sovereign has the absolute force of law and is subject to no restraint, except that which may arise from the precepts of the Koran, from ancient traditions and customs, and still more, perhaps, from actual national prejudices which must be consulted in order to avert rebellion. In such a government the existence of a constitution in the usual sense of the term is impossible, though something of the kind was attempted to be introduced in 1809 when in the presence of the great officers of the empire and the representatives of the European powers, the sultan issued the celebrated edict known by the name of the Hatt-i-sherif of Gulistan. This edict appears to have been issued in perfect good faith but owing partly to the opposition of the more fanatical Turks, and partly to the corruption of the officials who ought to have carried it into effect, has remained in a great measure a dead letter, though it is not to be denied that important improvements have taken place and that the general tendency of the government is towards more enlightened views and a higher civilization. The monarch, usually designated by the titles of sultan or grand-seigneur khan and padishah, is regarded by the Turks as the Khalif or head of Islam, and is addressed by European courts as majesty or highness. His edicts bear the name of Hatt-i-sherif, and his government is often designated generally as the Sublime Porte. The sovereignty is hereditary in the family of Osman the presumptive heir being the eldest son who is born to the sultan after his accession to the throne. On a new accession, the sultan is not crowned, but is girded with the sword of Osman in the mosque of Eyub at Constantinople, after swearing to defend Islam. His dignity is considered to be too transcendent to allow him to enter into the married relation, and he has, therefore, no proper wives. Among the females of his harem, however, there is a gradation of rank. From four to seven bearing the title of Khatun take precedence of all the others, while a still higher place and influence are assigned both to the mother of the sultan and to the mother of his presumptive heir.

The public officers who conduct the administration under the sultan, are divided into three classes. The first class is that of law, which, being founded entirely on the Koran, makes no distinction between religious and civil, and, accordingly, includes all persons who discharge either ecclesiastical or judicial functions. At their head is the Sheikh-ul-Islam, usually called Kadis and subordinates to him are Mollahs, Cadis, Ismaes, and Ukhtas. The second class consists of the officials of the pen or the members of administration, properly so called. At their head is the grand vizier or Paşa, whom who is regarded as the centre of all administrative functions, domestic and foreign. Subordinate to him are his vicegerent or deputy (Kaimakan) the Reis Effendi, or minister of foreign affairs, the president of the council, the grand master of artillery, the minister of police, the minister of trade, agriculture, and public works the Mutesarrif of the grand vizier, who acts as minister of the home department; the superintendent of the civil list, the inspector of revenue, and the minister of pious endowments. The third class includes all the officials of the sword or those who preside over the army and navy, the head of the former being the Seraskier or minister of war and of the latter the Capudan Paşa or high admiral, and minister of marine. The Shadi-el Islam and the above ministers of the second class together with the Seraskier and Capudan Paşa, constitute the divan or highest deliberative council in the empire.

The whole revenue is estimated at nearly 27,500,000 sterling. The sources from which it is derived, and the modes in which it is expended, may be gathered from the following table containing the budget of 1887:—

| Revenue. | | Expenditure. | |
|---------------------|------------|-------------------------------|------------|
| Tithes .. | 22,300,000 | Civil list of the Sultan .. | 2,700,000 |
| Land-taxes .. | 4,000,000 | Div. Publican-master, &c .. | 80,000 |
| Poll-tax .. | 400,000 | Arm. army and ordnance .. | 872,000 |
| Customs .. | 900,000 | Pay of the functionaries .. | 1,900,000 |
| Indirect taxes .. | 1,400,000 | Foreign department .. | 100,000 |
| Tribute of Egypt .. | 300,000 | Public works .. | 100,000 |
| “ of Wallachia .. | 80,000 | Charitable institutions .. | 120,000 |
| “ of Moldavia .. | 10,000 | Interest of Treasury loans .. | 90,000 |
| “ of Serbia .. | 80,000 | Life annuities .. | 440,000 |
| Total .. | 27,510,000 | Total .. | 27,500,000 |

Army and Navy.—The regular army composed entirely of Mahometan troops organised on European principles consists of six ordres or divisions, each equally divided into active or semaie, and reserve or redif, and surrounded by a field-marshal or mushir. The strength of the division is from 25,000 to 30,000 men, and accordingly previously to the commencement of the war with Russia in 1877, the regular active army amounted to 128,680, of whom 100,000 were infantry, 17,280 cavalry and 8100 field artillery. Adding the army of reserve, also 128,680, irregulars to the number of 61,500, composed CONTINGENTS OF THE TURKISH ARMY (1887).

1. Regular army.

2. Infantry of the line, regular.

partly of Turians of the Dobruzhia, Cossacks of Asia Minor, and soldiers employed as urban and rural police, but chiefly of 50,000 Mahometan volunteers, the entire Ottoman force is swelled up to 445,380. The qualities of the troops thus variously composed differ sensibly according to the physical and moral characteristics of the nations from whom they are raised, and the kind and degree of discipline which they have received; but, in regard to all those of Turkish origin, it may be affirmed generally that they are distinguished by great natural courage, and manifest a remarkable degree of coolness in the most trying circumstances. This coolness, amounting to a kind of stolid indifference, is chiefly the result of fatalistic views inculcated by the Koran and instilled into them from their earliest years, and has often enabled them, especially when placed under any kind of shelter however indifferent, to defend themselves with the greatest obstinacy and heroism. It would also seem from recent (1854) experience, that even in the open field, those who have been regularly disciplined, are fully equal to the best troops which Russia can bring against them. The navy previous to 1853, on stated of 16 ships of the line, 14 frigates, six steamers, 12 corvettes four brigs, and about 30 smaller craft, carrying about 4000 cannon, and manned by 25,000 sailors chiefly Greeks on whose fidelity little confidence can be placed. The only naval arsenal is at Constantinople and the principal dockyards are at Sinope and Brakli in the Black Sea, and at the islands of Mytilene and Rhodes.

Religion, Education, Justice.—The principal internal institutions of the empire, the religious, educational and judicial, must be very briefly noticed. Islamism, professed by about 20,000,000, is in every sense the dominant religion, inasmuch as it is not merely the only one established by the state, but extends to regard all others with contempt. The leading sect is the Sunnite which is adhered to by the Turks proper, Turcomans, Arabs, Afghans proper, Albanians, and a considerable number of Slavians in Bulgaria, Bosnia, and Herzegovina. The Shiite sect has its adherents chiefly among the tribes E. of the Tigris while different modifications of Mahometanism are professed by the Ishmaelites, Walabias, Moteallis, and Anasaris. The Druses and Yaxidis have forms peculiar to themselves. Christianity under the Greek form, is professed by a large majority of the Greeks, Walachians, Bulgarians, and Serbs, and more partially by Dominians and Albanians. The Roman Catholic church claims a considerable number of the last two, and also the whole of the Maronites, part of the Armenians, and a few Greeks. The Armenians generally, the Jacobites and Copts, differ from other Christian sects, chiefly by their adherence to what is called the Monophysite system of doctrine. According to the usual estimate, the Christians exceed in European Turkey three-fourths, and in Asia a fifth, while in Africa they fall short of a fifth of the whole population. Notwithstanding the strong support and encouragement given by the government to Mahometanism, it is decidedly on the decline, and is continually losing while Christianity is adding to its adherents. One of the most hopeful signs in this respect is exhibited in the fact, that within a comparatively recent period ten Protestant communities, counting nearly 2000 members have been formed, chiefly by the labours of American missionaries in Armenia. According to a system which had long been established, the Turkish educational institutions were only of two sorts, Maktabs or elementary, and Madrasahs or high schools, the latter intended to prepare for the higher ecclesiastical and judicial functions. This system was greatly improved in 1847 by the introduction of a class of schools intermediate between the maktabs and the madrasahs, and intended chiefly for the commercial classes. The present educational system, accordingly now includes elementary schools, attendance at which is compulsory on all Mahometan children who have attained their sixth year. Middle schools, in which among other branches, geography, history, geometry, and composition are taught, and colleges arranged under the different heads of military, naval, medical, veterinary, agricultural, &c. Most of the madrasahs and colleges have libraries attached to them, containing a respectable list of works in various branches of literature. Those in Turkish are like the language itself, derived in a great measure from Arabian and Persian sources. Justice is administered according to a code derived chiefly from the Koran, but partly also from tradition and custom, by a series of courts which descend by regular gradation from the Amir Okash or most superior court, divided into two presidencies, a European and an Asiatic, to the Mamelukes or high courts, each with jurisdiction over one or more eyalets; and numerous subordinate inferior courts, presided over by a mullah or kadi as proper judge, or by a naib or deputy. In these courts the forms of process are simple, and the decision is seldom long delayed; but the judges are notoriously venal, and perjury is everywhere practiced almost openly and with perfect impunity.

History.—The Turks came in the remotest periods thinly scattered over extensive Asiatic tracts, from the desert of Gobi to the Mediterranean, and from the N of Siberia to the Persian Gulf. Among the most powerful tribes were the Oghuzs, supposed to have been the parent race, the Seljuks who, by their extensive conquests, long reigned as the dominant race, and the Osmanli who, though at one time threatened with extinction, suddenly rose to importance, and became the founders of the present Ottoman Empire. In 1284, when Sultan Shah was obliged to flee before the Mongols, they formed part of a body of 50,000 who quitted Khorezm, and emigrated westward. After Sultan's death they became again scattered, but about 400 families attached themselves to Ertoğrul, Sultan's youngest son, who entered the service of Alaeddin, the Seljuk sultan of Konia. In reward for their services against the Mongols and the Byzantine Greeks, a considerable tract of Phrygia, which had been wrested from the Byzantines, was distributed among them as Seljuk vassals. Towards the end of the 13th century they found themselves strong enough to throw off the vassal age, and in 1289, headed by Osman, greatly extended their possessions by brilliant successes against the Greeks. Osman was succeeded by Orchan who, equal to his father as a warrior, surpassed him as a politician. In 1356 he took Bursa which he made his capital, in 1357, Nicomedia, and, in 1359, Aeneas, the strongest of the Byzantine frontier fortresses, and was soon master of Asia Minor as far as the Hellespont. Orchan's successes were owing not more to his military skill and the valor of his troops, than to the discipline which he introduced by the erection of Janissaries, Spahis, and Zelas, long the great supports of the Ottoman power. He assumed the title of Padishah, a term of Persian origin, equivalent to kung or prince, called the gate of his palace the "High or Sublime Porte," which has since become a common name of the empire which he founded and obtained in marriage a daughter of the Greek emperor Constantine. His son Sultan, who predeceased him after giving great promise, was the first of his dynasty who obtained a footing in Europe by crossing over in 1357, defeating Gallipoli and Sestos and thereby obtaining the command of the Dardanelles. Orchan died in 1360, and was succeeded by his younger son Murad I, who, in 1363, made Adrianople his capital, and, containing his conquests, was soon master of a large part of what now forms European Turkey. The great victory gained in 1389 over the united Albanian and Servian nations of the Danube, confirmed his dominion but cost him his life, and he was succeeded by his son Bajazet, who, in 1396, struck a blow at western Christianity, by the defeat of King Sigismund at Nicopolis, in Bulgaria, and reduced the Greek emperor to the degradation of paying him tribute. Shortly after Bajazet's career was suddenly stopped by Timur who completely defeated him at Angora, in 1402 and afterwards kept him prisoner for life. Timur divided the Ottoman territories among Bajazet's sons, but they again became united, in 1413, under Mohammed I who, after making the empire more extensive than in the prosperous days of Bajazet left it to his son Murad II, whose numerous conquests and exploits were crowned by the subjugation of the Hungarian host in 1444. The most remarkable event in the reign of his successor Mohammed II, was the taking of Constantinople in 1453. His grandson Solim I, by driving back the Persians to the Tigris, conquering Egypt, Syria, and Palestine, and making himself master of Mecca, gave still further extent and vigor to the empire, which, under his son and successor Solim II, assumed the magnificent, who succeeded in 1519, attained the summit of its prosperity. Even before his death, how ever, symptoms of decline became apparent, and under a series of successors, generally so belated in his predecessors had been superior in talent, the downward progress has been very rapid. Unable to support its own weight, torn by internal dissensions, and continually preyed upon by formidable neighbors, especially Russia, it has lost provinces after provinces, and is mainly indebted for its prolonged existence to the interference of foreign powers. The first sultan who, after a long series of dissensions, endeavored to arrest the progress of decline, was Selim III who introduced the European system into the army, and commenced many internal reforms, which, had he been able to complete them, would have consolidated his power. He failed, and was in consequence forced to give way to an insoluble brother Mustafa, who, after becoming a traitor, was himself slain, and succeeded in 1808 by his nephew Mahmud II, the only surviving prince of the race of Osman. Occupying the throne without any rival to dispute it, and possessed of talents not unworthy of the earlier princes of his race, he endeavored to carry on the work of reform under rather favorable circumstances, but, as if the disease were too deeply seated to admit of cure, his reign ranks as one of the most unfortunate in Turkish annals. The only important service which he can be said to have rendered, was that of civilizing the Janissaries. His successor, Abdul Medjid, who ascended the throne in 1839 in his 16th year, has hitherto reigned with considerable success not so much, however, in consequence of his own talents, as from the support which he has received from foreign powers. By their direct interference the Pasha of Egypt, when on the eve of dismembering the empire, was driven from his Syrian conquest, and again reduced to vassalage; and now (1864) when a more formidable enemy has appeared in the Emperor of Russia, apparently imagining that the period for his long coveted possession of Constantinople has arrived, an alliance happily cemented between Great Britain and France, at a time when it was deemed all but impossible, promises, by repelling and effectually crippling the aggressor not only to prolong the existence of the Turkish Empire, but to save the threatened liberties of Europe.

TURKHAL, a town, Asiatic Turkey, pass, and 60 m. N. W. from Van, bank of the Tigris, at the foot of an angle perpendicular rock, surrounded by an old castle. It consists of 800 or 900 houses, and its environs, as in the time of Strabo, are covered by fine vineyards, cultivated by Armenians and Greeks.

TURKHEIM a market town, Bavaria, circle Swabia, esp. bail, 1 hour Wetzach, 23 m. S. S. W. Augsburg, with a castle, two churches, an hospital, and Cistercian monastery, manufactures of linen ill-works, and a trade in cattle. P. 1494.

TURKOS, Turkish name, or TURCO a v. Asiatic, Transylvanian 6 m. from Krassitz; with a Greek church. P. 1000.

TURKLOUGH, par. Incl Mayo; 25,714 sq. P. 4516.

TURNA, TOURNA, or TURN, a town European Turkey, Walachia, 1 hour Danube, a little below the confluence of the Arta, opposite Nikopolis, of which, it is dimly visible by the Danube in 1828, it was the site of a post. It is strong both by nature and art, and commanding the defile by which the Turks used to penetrate into the valley of the Arta, has been the scene of many battles. It was taken by the Russians in 1810 and 1829.

TURNAGAIN, an id. off Russian America, at the head of the more extensive part of Cook's inlet; lat. 64° 3' N. lon. 150° 30' W. It is about 20 m. long E. N. E. in W. N. W., and scarcely half that width. The beach in which the island lies diverges in a N. E. direction from the main inlet, and was called by Capt. Cook, Turnagan Bay, under the idea that it would prove to be a river. Its true character was ascertained by Vancouver, who called it Turnagan Arm.

TURNAGAIN, par. Eng. Haverhill, 580 m. P. 70.

TURNAGU, TURNAGU, or TURNAGU, a village in Bohemia, circle and 18 m. N. E. Bismark, 1 hour from which, has a bridge. It has two churches, a demary, Franciscan monastery school, and theatre, a bathing establishment; manufactures of calico, numerous distilleries, and a trade in wool. P. 4492.

TURNERS-FUNDITZ, par. Eng. Dorset, 1988 sq. P. 106.

TURNHAM-GAZAN a hamlet, England, co. Middlesex, par. Chiswick, 5 m. S. S. W. London. It contains many handsome houses; and has a modern district church in the form of a cross with a tower terminating in a lofty spire.

TURNHOUT, a town and open, Belgium, prov. and 24 m. S. E. N. E. Antwerp, in an extensive plain. The houses are generally substantially built and form regular streets. There are three parish churches, several chapels, a townhouse, hospital, prison, two orphan asylums, a mutual society, numerous religious communities, and an old castle now used as a court-house, manufacturers of linen, woolen, and cotton fabrics, coloured paper, playing-cards, candles, chislers, earthenware, bricks, tobacco, vinegar, &c. Dyeing, bleaching, brewing, distilling, tanning, expelling oil, and refining salt, are also carried on. Pop. 18 483.

TUMNITZ, or TROMONTO, a market in Austria, Moravia, circle and 25 m. S. E. E. Brdian, near bank March, with a parish church and a school. Pop. 1355.

TURNWORTH, par Eng. Dorset 1560 ac. P. 103.
TURO, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube co Treutsein, 6 m. from Silleau with a R. Catholic church, and a trade in timber. Pop. 1043.

TUROLUKA, a vil Hungary, co Neutra, in a plain watered by the Miava, and within 1 m. of the town of that name. Pop. 2699.

TURON, a vil Spain, Andalusia, prov and 58 m. S. E. Granada, with three squares, a granary which serves also as a townhouse; three fountains, two endowed schools, a parish church, and three brandy-distilleries. Pop. (agriculture), 2603.

TURON, a maritime co. Aram, on a fine bay of same name; lat 16° 7' 18" N. lon 106° 13' E. (x) consisting of several villages, the largest of which has about 500 mean bamboo-houses, and a pop. of 2500. The bay is commodious and perfectly safe, and the town which was formerly a place of considerable trade, is defended by two forts.

TURRIS, a m. Spain, Andalusia, prov and 27 m. N. E. Almeria, N. W. skirts of the Sierra of Gahern. It has broad and clean streets two squares, and in the centre of the town the ruins of a strong tower, a parish church, primary school, townhouse, and granary. Most of the inhabitants are engaged in husbandry; but there are also 40 looms for household linens, a manufactory of salt-petre, three oil mills, and seven flour-mills. Pop. 8000.

TURRIFF, a burgh of barony and par Scotland co. and 80 m. N. W. Aberdeen, pleasantly situated, r. bank of a small stream of same name. The houses are substantial and well built, and most of them have a garden attached. There are numerous good shops, several branch-banks, a public library, a most established and a Free church, an Episcopal and a dissenting chapel, and a number of schools, a handsome townhall, and an ancient cross situated in the principal street. The spinning of linen yarn, and bleaching, weaving of linen and woollen cloth by handloom, and the dyeing of woollens and silks, are carried on, but all to a very limited extent. Area of par. 21 800 ac. Pop. 8584.

TURRIS, a m. Naples, prov Basilicata 98 m. E. N. E. Lagrone. It is the see of a bishop, and contains a cathedral a collegiate, and a parish church, three monasteries, a university, a diocesan seminary and an hospital. Pop. 4630.

TURTLE.—1 A bay coast of Africa, Lower Guinea, N. Little 13th Bay.—2 A headland, N. Australia, W. side of Port Phillip.—3 An ill. Light of Baffra, lat. 3° 24' 18" S. lon. 5° 35' 45" E. (x).—4 A creek, U. States, Pennsylvania flowing into the Monongahela.—5, A river, U. States, an affluent of the Upper Mississippi.—6 A lake, U. States, Huron territory, near the source of the Mississippi.—7, An ill. Færie group, Pacific Ocean.—8, An ill. 4 m. off E. coast ARIZ, lat. 14° 34' N. lon. 109° 9' E. (x). small and very little above water, but with a safe channel between it and the main.—9 A group of three ill. Banda Sea; they are very low, covered with trees, and dangerous to approach in the night, being fringed by coral-reefs which project 2 m. or 3 m. from them, the inner R. ill. in lat. 5° 25' S., lon. 127° 28' E.

TURTON a vil and township England, co. Leicestershire in a romantic district near the Blackmore, Darwen and Bolton railways, which has here a splendid view, 4 m. N. Bolton. It has two churches, an endowed school, and extensive manuf. factories of cotton goods, and dye-works. Pop. 4158.

TURUKAI TURUNTA, or TOROKAN (anc. Thracian) a m. European Turkey, Bulgaria, on the last steep slopes of a hill above r. bank Danube, opposite Ohrida, and 37 m. W. by R. Silistra. It has strong batteries commanding the whole breadth of the river, and defending its approaches both from the E. and W., but consists for the most part of narrow dirty streets of unvarying appearance. Its most conspicuous buildings are several large flour-mills and warehouses accounted by the Danube traffic. The military importance of Turukai is owing not merely to its natural strength, but to its position in the middle of the base of the triangle formed by the fortresses of Shumla, Silistra, and Rustchuk.

TURVEY par Eng Bedford 3844 ac. Pop. 1098.

TURVILLE, par Eng Bucks 2816 ac. Pop. 436.

TURWESTON, par Eng Bucks, 1940 ac. Pop. 332.

TURYASSU a river, Brazil. See Turay.

TURZ, Tunc, or Tunc, a vil Hungary, Thaur Thales, co. Upson, 12 m. S. E. Nagy-Szöllös; with a Greek church. Near it are mines of gold and silver. Pop. 1703.

TUSA (anc. Ales), a m. Sicily, prov Messina, 5 m. N. N. W. Mistrata. It has a public square adorned with an ancient statue, and contains several other interesting antiquities. Pop. 8676.

TUSAPAN a vil Mexican Confederation, dep. and about 160 m. N. W. Vera-Cruz. It is the site of an Indian city, supposed to have belonged to the Totonacs.

TUSALOOSA, a city U. States formerly cap. of Alabama, 1 bank river of same name, 171 m. N. by E. Mobile. It is regularly laid out in spacious streets crossing each other at right angles, and in the centre of a public square stands the state-house, a handsome structure. Other principal buildings are a court-house, a U. States land office, four churches, a masole hall, an academy, a female seminary, a lyceum for boys, and the Alabama institute. The buildings of the university of Alabama are situated about 1 m. from the town. Pop. 1940.

TUSALOOSA, or BLACK WAGON RIVER, U. States, formed by the union of several streams in the N. of Alabama flows S. E. W. past the town of same name, and after a course of above 100 m. joins r. bank Tombigbee.

TUSCANY (anc. Etruria French, Toscane, Italian, Toscana) a prov. of the kingdom of Italy, formerly a grand duchy, and then bounded N. by the duchies of Parma and Modena and the Papal States E. and S. the Papal States W. the Tyrrhenian Sea and N. W. isolated parts of Modena, and the Genua in the German States lat. 43° 15' to 44° 30' N. lon. 9° 12' to 12° 30' E. In the boundaries now described, the duchy of Lucca, situated in the N. W. and afterwards forming an integral part of the grand duchy is included but as they are usually described under separate heads, the remainder of the present article will be confined to Tuscany Proper the divisions of which, with their areas, population, &c., are exhibited in the following table—

| DIVISIONS, AREA and POPULATION of TUSCANY | | | | |
|---|---------|-------------|------------|----------------|
| Prov. or dioc. | Cities. | Area sq. m. | Pop. 1858. | Capital. |
| Florence | 5 | 1708 | 292,018 | Florence |
| Lucca | 31 | 897 | 291,718 | Lucca |
| Pisa | 28 | 890 | 227,719 | Pisa |
| Siena | 55 | 1122 | 158,328 | Siena |
| Arezzo | 43 | 859 | 218,268 | Arezzo |
| Gravina | 30 | 1696 | 177,691 | Gravina |
| Livorno with ill. of Goro. | 3 | 29 | 56,354 | Livorno. |
| Island of Elba and adjacent islands | 6 | 23 | 31,271 | Porto-Ferrajo. |
| Total | — | 645 | 6441 | 1,779,081 |

In addition to its territories on the mainland, Tuscany possessed several islands, of which by far the most important was Elba.

Physical Features.—In the E. Tuscany terminates nearly in a point, from which it gradually widens out both on the E. and W., till it attains its greatest breadth in the N., and then assumes a triangular form, greatest length, M. to E. 180 m. central breadth, 100 m. The coast has a length of about 150 m., and in the N. part consists of a long and nearly continuous sweep, terminating at one of its most conspicuous promontories called Piombino. The S. part, continued from Piombino to its termination in the still more conspicuous promontory formed by Monte Argentario, is broken into a number of small bays, of which the largest are those of Piombino, Grosseto, Orbetello and Porto-Vecchio. The shore, though sometimes bold, is generally low, and lined by extensive swamps or Maremma. The interior of the country is nearly diversified. The chain of the N. Apennines forms a considerable part of its N. boundary, and then turning S. E. E., traverses its N. E. portion. This chain sends out numerous ramifications, which extend in all directions over the country, and leave in the intervals between them, valleys of greater or less extent, distinguished alike by their fertility and their beauty. The Arno, the largest and richest of these valleys, occupies nearly a sixth of the whole surface. None of the principal heights of the Apennines are situated in Tuscany, which has its culminating point of about 4500 ft. in Monte Luogo, on the borders of Modena, E. of Mount Cimona. The other summits are generally so much lower that the average height has been estimated not to exceed 1000 ft. The whole surface belongs to the basin of the Tyrrhenian Sea, with exception of the small corner on the N. E. side of the Apennine chain, which belongs to the Adriatic. In the latter the streams, which are very numerous, but so small as never to lose their character of mountain-torrents within the Tuscan territory have all a N. N. E. direction; in the former a secondary water-shed formed by a ramification of the Apennines, which crosses the country from E. to W., sends the waters on each side of it in opposite directions. The N. side is almost wholly drained by the Arno, which commencing its course very circuitously, flows, though not without considerable deviations, nearly W. the waters on the other side are received by several independent streams, all of which, with exception of the Cecina, whose course is nearly parallel to that of the Arno, flow S. Of these latter streams, the most important are the Tiber which, however, only commences its course in Tuscany, the Fiora and Albegna, which drain the S. and the Ombrone, which commencing near the centre, and deriving its supplies from numerous tributaries, is second only to the Arno.

Geology.—The far greater part of the strata belong to the upper part of the secondary formation, and are usually classed as cretaceous, being composed of limestones with nummulites and bryozoa, and of intervening sandstones containing numerous fossils. These cretaceous strata are very largely developed both in the N. and S. but are separated or rather partially overlain by a broad belt, composed chiefly of marls, travertine, and sandstones, belonging to the tertiary formation. An earlier tertiary series appears to the S. and W. of Volterra, and is penetrated in numerous places by plutonic rocks, consisting for the most part of serpentine, and apparently forming the great mass or nucleus on which the other strata lie. The most remarkable development of volcanic rocks is in Mount Anagni, and a portion of the country immediately surrounding it. Here trachyte, basalt, and volcanic tuffs are common. The oldest formation which occurs is near the W. coast, between Grosseto and Castiglione, where a space nearly of an oval form is occupied by siliceous rocks, and the most recent formation in the plains extending along the shore from Leghorn to Pisa, and to some distance inland, and occupied by deep beds of diluvial gravel and alluvium.

Climate.—The climate is on the whole one of the best in Italy. So far as the principal chain of the Apennines extends, the cold in winter is necessarily often severe and in the low flats along the shore and near it a worse evil is felt, where in summer the air becomes of a kind with the pestilential vapours of the Maremma, but with these exceptions, there are few if any countries which can boast of a milder temperature, and a more salubrious atmosphere. In January the thermometer marks 37° and in August 90° Fahr. Cases of longevity are of frequent occurrence, and the annual mortality never so high as 1 in 26, often does not exceed 1 in 40 of the population.

Vegetation and Agriculture.—In such circumstances, vegetation has most of the advantages which climate is able to bestow. The lofty barriers of the Apennines exclude the keen blasts of the North, and when heat and drought become excessive, the numerous streams afford an easy means of compensating for any deficiency of natural moisture, by means of irrigation. To these advantages, Tuscany adds that of a generally fertile soil. Some of the loftier summits, indeed have a bare and arid appearance, but in general all the land which from its elevation or ruggedness, cannot be brought under cultivation, is covered with forests or natural pasture. These, nearly equal to each other in extent, share between them rather more than a half of the whole surface. Of the remainder nearly one-half of the available land is arable, one-third in vineyards, and one-sixth in olive-yards, orchards, gardens, and meadows. On the arable land, the favourite crops are maize and wheat. Of the latter a peculiar species is cultivated solely for the straw. In the low flats a good deal of rice is grown. The principal subsidiary crops are barley, rye, and pulses. The grain produced falls considerably short of the consumption, and is supplemented partly by imports, which among the lower classes are much used for food, and partly by importation, chiefly from the Black Sea. This deficiency of produce, where climate and soil are so favourable is mainly the result of the small proportion of the land under grain-crops, and of the violent system of agriculture carried on, keeping the produce greatly lower than it might otherwise be. Each occupant has only a minute portion, seldom exceeding a few acres, and he cultivates it on what is called the metayer system, under which he gives little more than his labour, and shares the produce with his landlord. The inevitable tendency of such a system is to perpetuate old routine. Accordingly, in Tuscany as in other countries where the same system is pursued, the implements are of the most imperfect description, the rotations generally proceed on the principle of deriving the largest amount of present produce, without reference to future productiveness, and the farmer, in regard to all his views, feelings, and habits, is merely a peasant. All that preserving industry can accomplish, in farming is to be seen in every part of Tuscany, but the skill necessary to guide industry and secure its most valuable results, is very seldom witnessed. The culture of the vine is next in importance to that of grain and displays the same combination of great industry and defective skill. In many parts where the hills are naturally too steep, they have been laid out in artificial terraces, on which the vines thrive admirably and yield abundant produce. The quality is not often bad, but at the same time, is seldom so superior as to rank high and create a large demand. Oil also is much abundant, though that of Pisa and one or two other towns is well known in commerce. The raising of silk-worms occupies far less attention than it deserves, though the annual produce of silk is estimated at not less than 250,000 lbs. The grass-land is not carried to much perfection in Tuscany. Artificial meadows are not extensive, and the number of cattle kept is comparatively small. Oxen and buffaloes are almost the only animals used for draught, and horses are of a very inferior description. Asses, on the other hand, which are kept in great numbers are considered the best in Italy. Sheep and goats are also numerous, the former very indifferent, with a coarse wool, fit only for inferior purposes, the latter superior, and yielding a milk which is much used in making a highly prized cheese. Large herds of swine roam at will, and feed on the mast of the forests. In the neighbourhood of Pisa a large establishment and breeding-stead of camels is kept.

Minerals.—The minerals are more varied than valuable. They include copper, iron, silver, antimony, lead, generally in too small quantities to be worked to much advantage, iron of excellent quality found partly on the mainland, but to a much larger extent in the lake of Bolsena, where it has been advantageously worked for ages. Borax obtained in large quantities from a remarkable series of lagoons to the S. of Volterra salt, the produce chiefly of brine-springs in the same locality sulphur, alum, nitre, and several varieties of beautiful marble, among others that of Siena, well known throughout Europe.

Manufactures and Trade.—The manufactures employ few large establishments in which machinery is employed, but are for the most part the produce of manual labour, carried on by individuals in their own homes. They consist chiefly of straw-plait and straw-hats, in the preparation of which Tuscany has long been pre-eminent, silk goods, woollen cloth, woollen coats, carpets, tapestry and linen cloth iron and copper ware, glass and earthen ware, soap, leather, saddlery, paper, hair, and a great variety of articles in coral, stone, mosaic, marble, and alabaster. The trade is almost wholly centred in Leghorn, but is also shared to a small extent by Livorno and Porto-Ferrajo. The chief exports, in addition to several of the above articles of manufactures, are oil, timber, shagreen and gun silk, potash, hides, cheese, honey, wax, gold mine, tallow, &c. The imports, colonial produce, molasses and cotton goods, dye-wood, hardware and earthenware, salt-fish, &c. Accounts are kept in livre, nearly equal to scd. sterling and divided into 20 centesimi, each of which is again subdivided into 12 denari. The principal measures are, for length, the braccio, about 2 ft., for surface, the secco, nearly an acre, and subdivided into 600 pertiche, for corn, the moggio, about 2 of a bushel, and the secco = 25 setti, and for liquids, the bottle, which, for wine, is equal to 10 imperial gallons, but for oil only 7½ gallons. The Tuscan is nearly equivalent to our Tany R.

Government, Religion, Education, &c.—The government is an absolute monarchy. It is divided into the five departments of the Interior, Justice, foreign affairs, ecclesiastical affairs, public instruction, and war, each presided over by a minister of state, who owes his appointment and is accountable only to the grand duke. Justice is administered by 14 courts of first resort, which judge in all cases where the value exceeds 400 lire, and have a power of reviewing all the decisions of inferior judges, who are competent only in cases of smaller amount. The supreme court or Corte Reale sits in Florence, and has a general equitable jurisdiction over the whole grand duchy as well as a direct power of review in all cases exceeding the value of 800 lire. It consists of a president, four vice-presidents, and 16 councillors, and five of these, including a president or vice-president, are necessary to form a quorum. Trial by jury is unknown, and in penal sentences there is no appeal. Punishments however, are generally mild and crimes are neither numerous nor of an aggravated description. All the inhabitants are R. Catholics, who are governed by three archbishops and 12 bishops, and form the Established church, but the principle of religious toleration are well understood, and till lately (1852-4) when the spirit of persecution appears to have regained its ascendancy Tuscany had greatly honoured herself, and added to her prosperity, by giving effect to them in the case of Jews, and others, long before they were recognised in other countries. A large sum is annually expended on education, and elementary schools are very generally established but a very large proportion of the population remains uneducated. Superior schools exist in all the larger towns, and both Rome and Pisa have universities. The latter once celebrated over Europe, is still in high reputation, though the number of students is under 600. There are numerous learned societies and literary establishments, whose labours are well known, and have procured Tuscany an honourable place in the annals of literature. The Italian spoken by the educated classes has long been admitted to be the standard of purity though Rome claims a superiority in pronunciation. The people generally have fine physical forms, and bear a high name for industry, sobriety and honesty, but in some of the larger towns female vice is not to be highly honoured. The revenue, amounting to about £1,200,000 is derived chiefly from customs, and the monopolies of salt and tobacco. Nearly one-sixth is obtained by a land-tax and the lottery furnishes a considerable item. The expenditure exceeds the revenue, but the amount of debt is not accurately known. The army amounts to 14,758 men. The commercial shipping amounts (1858) to 911 vessels of all sizes, the far greater part of them under 50 tons. The whole tonnage is estimated at 87,508.

History—Tuscany embraces the far greater part of ancient Etruria, and was inhabited by a people who had early made great advances in civilisation, and were divided into 12 tribes, each headed by a king or Lucumon, and all confederated to gather for mutual defence. The most celebrated of these kings was Porseuma, who entered into a league with the Tarquins, and in order to restore them lost stage to Rome Etruria at last shared the common fate of all the other Italian states, and was finally subdued by the Romans about 500 B.C. From the Romans it passed first to the Goths, next to the Lombards and then to Charlemagne, who presented it by gifts to These, under Louis-le-Debonnaire, took the name of Marquis, and continued to govern as vassals of the empire till 1180, when the last of them, Guelph VI, sold his marquisate to the emperor Frederick I. His successors partitioned it out into a number of small fiefs. Meanwhile the cities of Florence, Pisa, and Siena acquired importance, and became each the nucleus of a celebrated republic. After numerous vicissitudes, the whole of Tuscany became united, in 1567, under the Medici family the second of whom, Cosimo I., assumed the title of Grand Duke. Under the Medici, who greatly distinguished themselves by their patronage of literature and art, it rose to great celebrity, and possessed one of the most brilliant courts of Europe. In 1737 the family of Medici became extinct, and the grand duchy passed to the Duke of Lorraine, who, by his marriage with Maria Theresa, succeeded, in 1745, to the throne of Austria. His successors, among whom the Grand Duke Leopold deserves special notice, for the ability and wisdom with which he governed, retained uninterrupted possession till 1801, when Bonaparte, to compensate the Prince of Parma for territories of which he had deprived it, ceded Tuscany to his favour into the kingdom of Etruria, but shortly after incorporated it with his kingdom of Italy. In 1814 it returned, with its old title of Grand Duchy, to the Archduke Ferdinand, a brother of the Emperor of Austria, and in 1859 was absorbed into the new kingdom of Italy.

TUSCARAWAS, a river U States, rises in the N of Ohio, pursues a very circuitous course S S E for above 400 m., and empties with the Walhonding river in forming the Mississippi.

TUSCHKAU-OR-DEN-MINE, or TARNKROW a tn. Bohemia, circle and 6 m. W N W Pilsen on the Miesse, with a church and townships. Pop. 1000.

TUSCUMBIA, a vill., U States, Alabama, 111 m. N by W Tuscaloosa, on the Memphis and Charleston railway with three churches, four seminaries, and an iron-foundry. Pop. about 2300.

TUSKAR, or KTRA, a river Russia, rises on the S frontiers of the Great principality of Russia, and a little below the town of Krasnoy, joins the bank Sum total course, 90 m.

TUSMORE, par Eng Oxford. Pop. 52.

TUSPAN, a seaport N. Mexico, dep. and 140 m N N W Vera-Cruz, 1 bank Tuspan, at its mouth in the Gulf of Mexico. A few of the houses are of stone, but the far greater number of adobe with earthen floors. The trade, which is considerable, is carried on partly by canoes with Tampico, through the Laguna de Tamiagua, but chiefly in small craft with Comanche. The bar across the river does not admit vessels drawing more than 5 ft. or 6 ft. Superior fatus and small quantities of excellent cucumbers are collected in the neighbourhood. Pop. about 1000.

TUSFERN aul off W Coast, Norway, lat. 68° 10' N, lon 8° E about 7 m N E Christiansund; greatest length, N E to S W about 12 m; mean breadth, 4 m. The coast is much indented, and the interior is mountainous.

TUTHURY, a large vil., formerly a market in England, 20 and 18 m N E Stafford about 2 m. from the bank Dove, here crossed by an excellent stone-bridge. It has a large and handsome Established church and three Dissenting chapels, an endowed school, and a large infant-school a cotton-mill and some glass works in the vicinity, and some mail making is carried on. The ancient castle of Tuthury originally built in the time of William the Conqueror, has long been a mere ruin. Mary Queen of Scots was for some time imprisoned in it. Arms of par, 4001 ac. P. 1798.—(Local Correspond.)

TUIGORIN, a tn Hindostan, near R.E. extremity of the Caraccas, lat. Tinnavally 70 m. N E Cape Comorin on the Gulf of Manar with a safe residential and good anchorage. It has a considerable trade in shipping cotton, and near it are pearl-banks.

TUTOYA, a tn Brazil prov and 160 m from Maranhão, 1 bank Tutoya which forms the most W branch thrown off by the Farnahaba. It contains an old parish church, and is well situated for trade having a harbour in which small vessels are completely sheltered, lying on the deepest and most frequented of all the entrances to the Farnahaba.

TUTSCHAF or TUGAF a vil. Bohemia, circle Tabor with a church, a castle, manufactures of potash and a saw and flour mill. Pop. 1123.

TUTTLINGTON, par Eng Norfolk, 830 ac. Pop. 213. TUTTLINGEN, a tn Wurtemberg circle Schwarzwald, cap hall r bank Danube, 43 m E Freiburg with two churches a house of refuge for destitute children, and manufactures of woollen, linen and silk goods honary glass, paper, cutlery, and nails, several breweries, and bleachworks. P. 5160.

TUTUILA, or TOVOVO-LEAK, one of the Navigator Islands, S Pacific, lat. (S. extremity) 3° 52' S, lon. 170° 42' W (S.). It is high broken, and of volcanic appearance, 17 m long, greatest breadth, 5 m., loftiest peak, 2277 ft. high. The spurs and ridges that form the highland are precipitous, sharp-edged, and frequently rise from the water to a height of 800 ft. or 400 ft. It is thickly settled round the shores, and particularly at its S.W. end, where is a large and flourishing village, called Soona, reckoning 10,000 inhabitants. This end is lower and more easily cultivated than the N., which is high and rugged. The only communication is by the sea.

above, the hills being too precipitous and difficult of ascent to pass over. It has many desirable peaches or leys on its N. side, where cereals may obtain wood, water, and supplies. The best and richest part, however, is Pung-pung, on its S. side, which affords a rich harbor for vessels to anchor, and where supplies may be obtained in abundance. This harbor is surrounded on all sides by inaccessible mural precipices, 800 ft. to 1000 ft. high. The climate is mild and agreeable.

TUTE, or TUCUO, a tn. Promea, gov. W. Promea, gov. Marikwar, on three lakes, in a narrow valley, 26 m. S.E. of Dramburg. It has two churches, and a trade in cattle. P. 1978.

TUXFORD, a market tn. and par. England, co. and 22 m. N.N.E. Nottingham, on a considerable navigable It has handsome parish church, and Wesleyan and Independent chapels, an endowed school occupying an elegant Elizabethan building, an infant and three private schools. Area of par. 5000 ac. Pop. 1911.—(Local Correspondent.)

TUXTLA a tn. Mexican Confederation, state Chiapas near) bank Tehuacan, 87 m. W. Ciudad Real with a trade in tobacco and cacao. Pop. 5000.

TUY [anc. Tude of Fines], a city Spain, Galicia, prov. and 28 m. S. Pontevedra,) bank Minho 18 m. from its estuary.

This was once an important frontier town, but it is now in a decaying state. It is regularly built and walled round, with a square, and a canal, paved streets, and has a town-hall, prince's apartment palace, barracks, theatre, several primary schools, and establishments for the higher branches of education, cathedral of good architecture the churches of the suppressed Dominican and Franciscan convents, serving as chapels of ease, and a Franciscan monastery. Agriculture, flour-mills, a large manufactory of linens and nappery for home consumption, and another for dressing leather are the chief branches of industry. Pop. 4048.

TUZA a river Venezuela, rises about 80 m. S.W. Caracas flows E. through the valleys of Araya first W. S.W., then S.W., and finally into the Caribbean Sea 30 m. S.E. of Cape Codera; total course, about 100 m.

TUZ-GHEED — (or Temenon-tar) A lake Chinese Empire, in the S.W. of Sonngaria lat. 42° 30' N. and between lon. 77° and 79° E. Length 90 m. breadth, 30 m.—2, See TUGIA.

TUZKURMATI a tn. Asiatic Turkey Kurdistan, push and 106 m. N. by E. Bagdad is an extensive plain on an affluent of the Tigris, at the foot of a mountain-chain. It is surrounded by hills and consists of about 600 houses.

TUZLA, Tuz or TOTU-GHEED, or SALATO [anc. Salus Tattius] a salt-lake, Asiatic Turkey push Karamania, 70 m. N. by E. Konya greatest length E.N.E. to W. S.W. 56 m., extreme breadth, 16 m. It lies 2300 ft. above sea-level; has no outlet except in the rainy season, when its surplus waters are discharged by a channel into the Kizil Irmak. It is of variable size, and in summer is almost completely dried up, leaving in its bottom a coating of salt, which supplies the wants of the surrounding country.

TUZLA, a river, Asiatic Turkey Anatolia, descends from the S.W. slope of Mount Ida; flows first W. S.W., then W. N. W. and falls into the archipelago at Nicosia after a course of about 50 m. There is another river of same name in push. Erzeroum, which rises in the Akdag, and after a course of about 10 m. joins the Mæand river of the Euphrates.

TVERR, a gov. Russia, bounded N.W. and N. by Novgorod, E. by Jolovsk, S.E. by Vladimir, S. by Moscow and Smolensk, and W. by Pskov, greatest length N.E. to S.W. 230 m. greatest breadth 150 m.; lat. 56° to 59° 50' N.; lon. 32° to 38° 10' E. area, 19,632 sq. m. The service in the S. though nowhere mountainous, attains a considerable elevation, but slopes gradually towards the N., and finally merges into an extensive plain. It is watered by numerous streams, of which the principal is the Volga. To the basin of this river receiving the drainage either directly or by its tributaries Tver and Malaya, the whole of the government belongs, with exception of a small portion of the N.W. drained by the Meta, and a still smaller portion in the S.W. by the Divna, which commences its course within the government, and, as well as the Meta, belongs to the basin of the Baltic. The climate is tolerably temperate, and the air generally pure and healthy. The soil is only of indifferent fertility and the quantity of corn raised in ordinary years barely suffices for the home consumption. The principal crops are rye and barley; hemp and flax are generally cultivated. Domestic animals are not numerous, and the breeds are generally inferior. A considerable part of the surface is occupied by wood, consisting principally of birch, beech, and pine, with only a little oak. Distillation is carried on on a large scale, and forms the principal branch of industry. The admirable position of the govern. ment between the two capitals, and the great system of water-communication which diverges from it as from a common centre, give it a very important transit trade. It is divided into 12 circles, of which that of Tver is the capital. P. 1897, 900.

TVERR, a tn. Russia, cap. of above gov. beautifully situated in a wide plain on the Volga, which here receives the Tverina on the left and the Tzanka on the right, and is crossed by a long bridge of boats, 96 m. N.W. Moscow. It consists of the Kremlin or fortress, surrounded by an earthen wall, the town proper, divided into four quarters, and a suburb and occupies a large space, but has an insalubrious, and in some parts an almost desolate appearance. The far greater part of the houses are of wood, and are built with considerable regularity partly in large squares, and partly in spacious, and generally though not always, paved streets. The principal edifices include 20 churches, one of them a large Gothic cathedral, and many others adorned with lofty spires and gilded domes, an imperial palace an episcopal palace town-house, court-house, a diocesan seminary, a gymnasium, and other schools, a handsome governor's house, two monasteries, an infirmary a foundling and several other hospitals. The banks of the river are lined with spacious quays, which form the principal promenade. The manufactures consist of linen, sailcloth, cordage, hats, bells, oil, vinegar, earthenware, tallow and wax candles and there are numerous dye-works, breweries and distilleries. The admirable position of the town secures to it a valuable transit trade, particularly with St. Petersburg and Moscow in corn, hemp, iron, salt-fish, caviar &c. Tver has been repeatedly ravaged by fire and plague. P. (1842) 14,743.

TVERTZA a river Russia, issues from a small lake in gov. Tver flows first circuitously N.N.E., then E.S.E. to Tver within which it joins) bank Volga, after a course of about 130 m. It has been rendered of great navigable importance by the construction of the canal of Vladimir Volotsk, which connects it with the Meta, and thus gives an uninterrupted communication between the Volga and the Neva.

TWARDAGORA, a tn. Prussia. See Prussia.

TWEED a beautiful river, Scotland, rises in S. of co. Peebles, flows N.E. to the town of Peebles, then E. to Melrose, afterwards E. by N. passing Kelso and Coldstream, from which it proceeds N.E. and falls into the German Ocean at Berwick. Area basin, about 1870 sq. m. Its principal tributaries are the Etrick, Gala, Leader, Teviot, Tyll, and Adder. The salmon-fisheries of the river are of very considerable value and importance. Entire length, including windings, upwards of 100 m. It is not navigable for any distance from the sea.

TWEEDDALE, the co. of Peebles (school co.)

TWEEDMOUTH, a vil. and par. England, in a detached part of the co. Durham, on a bank towards Berwick, of which it forms a suburb and with which it is connected by a stone bridge. It has a neat church, two Presbyterian chapels, and a large iron-foundry. Area of par. 5140 ac. Pop. 6716.

TWEEDSMUIR, par. Scot. Peebles; 8 m. by 6 m. P. 230.

TWILLLO a vil. Holland, prov. Gelderland, 20 m. N.E. Arnhem a large good looking place, with a church and school Pop. (agricultural), 1193.

TWELVE-PINN, a group of mountains, Ireland. See IRELAND.

TWENTY-FOUR PERGUNNAHS, a dist. British India, presid. and prov. Bengal, lat. 21° 05' to 23° 45' N.; lon. 88° 6' to 89° 45' E.; extends from the Sunderbunds on the N. to the dist. Nadwa on the N. separated on the W. by the Hooghly river from the dists. Hooghly and Midnapore, and on the E. by another arm of the Ganges from the dist. Jessore. Area, 1188 sq. m. The whole surface is a level plain. Almost every description of Asiatic, with some European products flourish. Cocoa nuts and oil, ginger, turmeric, yams, hemp, honey, wax, hides, horse skins, and a few of the Indian staples are the main articles of the trade, which is chiefly conducted at Calcutta, that city, with its suburbs, being located on the E. by this district. Many of the inhabitants are native Christians, and here are numerous Protestant and some R.

Catholic schools. Atipore, the cap., is a suburb of Calcutta. The surroundings of Dum-dum and Barrackpore are in the 'Twenty-four Parganahs', or cantons, which, however now consist of only eighteen six having been transferred to other districts. Pop. exclusive of Calcutta, 688,000.

TWERTON, par Eng. Somerset, 571 ac. P 9958.

TWICKENHAM, a vil. par Eng. and par England, co. Middlesex, 1. bank Thames, opposite Richmond, with which it is connected by a handsome stone-bridge. Pope, the poet, resided here. The village itself has nothing attractive about it, but the vicinity is beautified by numerous fine villas and pleasure-grounds. Area of par, 2349 ac. Pop. 6254.

TWINEHAM, par Eng. Essex, 1908 ac. Pop. 345.

TWINELE, (57), par Wales, Pembrokeshire, 1558 ac. P 810.

TWINING, par Eng. Gloucester, 8155 ac. P 1011.

TWINSTEAD, par Eng. Essex, 1008 ac. Pop. 207.

TWISS, a maritime co. of W. Australia, 50 m. long E. to W., and about 30 m. broad, traversed N. to S. by two main salt-branches, that subsequently unite in the Darling range. A large portion of the W. part of the county consists of open forest-land of a sandy character.

TWITCHEN, par Eng. Devon, 2918 ac. Pop. 208.

TWO BILLS, (Keweenaw or Two). See NARCOM.

TWOOLD HAY, New S. Wales, 280 m. S.W. Sydney and 80 m. N. Cape Howe, lat. 37° 5' S., lon. 150° E. It is a good harbour, and possesses excellent anchorage. On its shores are Boyd Town and Eden. It is the general place of call for the steamers regularly plying along the coast, between Sydney and all the settlements to the S., both in Australia and Van Diemen's Land.

TWOMBLEBORIS, par Irel. Tipperary, 11,940 ac. Pop. 2801.

TWORRAL, a vil. France, prov. Silésie, gov. and S.S.E. Oppeln, with a church, chapel, and sawed flour-mills, 1. 1071.

TWYCESS, par Eng. Leicester, 1850 ac. Pop. 805.

TWYFORD, a vil. and wapentake England, co. Berks, on the Great Western railway, which has here a station 8 m. S.W. Maidenhead. It is a large and well built place, with an Independent chapel, an hospital, and large silk mills, and is memorable for the battle fought in 1088 between the adherents of James II. and the Prince of Orange.

TWYFORD four par. Eng. — 1, Leicester, 2430 ac. Pop. 536 — 2, 500 ac. Pop. 520 — 3, Bucks, 4110 ac. Pop. 848 — 4, Hants, 4219 ac. Pop. 1279.

TWYNHOLM, par Scot. Kirkcubright, 9 m. by 3 P 782.

TWYNWELL, par Eng. Northampton, 1400 ac. P 298.

TYBERIS or TYBERIS [Italian, Tevere] a seaport in Austria, Illyria, 3 m. from Trieste, with a small harbour. It was once walled, and otherwise fortified but is now of little importance.

TYCOKTOW, an mt. China, prov. Quangtung, in Canton river, at the entrance of the Booc-Tigra. It is about 8 m. long by 8 m. broad.

TYD, two par. Eng. — 1, (St. Giles), Cambridge 4691 ac. Pop. 932 — 2, (St. Mary) Lincoln, 4845 ac. P 1107.

TYDWEILLOP, par Wales, Carmarthen, 2341 ac. P 456.

TYFARNHAM, par Irel. Westmeath, 1519 ac. P 252.

TYKOCZYN, a to Russian Poland, 1. bank Karow, in the midst of marshes, 18 m. W.N.W. Hlyastok. It is tolerably well built, with well-paved streets, has three churches, a convent, school, and a trade in corn. Pop. (1841) 4581.

TYLLEBURY, or TYLLEBURY-CON-SHAGGAREY, a vil. and township, England, co. Lancaster, 10 m. W.N.W. Manchester, with a handsome church, two Methodist chapels, manufactures of cotton goods, both by hand-weaving and power-looms, and several large spinning-mills, which employ the greater part of the inhabitants. Pop. 4718.

TYNAGH, par Irel. Galway, 19 455 ac. Pop. 8086.

TYNAN, par Irel. Armagh, 17,048 ac. Pop. 7802.

TYNE, a river, Scotland, rises in the Soutra Hills, in S.E. of co. Edinburgh, enters co. Haddington flows E.N.E. passing through the town of that name, and after a course of about 80 m., falls into the German Ocean, 8 m. N.E. Dunbar.

TYNE (Tana) two rivers, England, called respectively the S. and N. Tyne. The S. Tyne rises in the most E. corner of Cumberland, and flows N. to within 5 m. or 4 m. of Haltwhistle, when it takes an E. direction, and having been joined near Hexham by the N. Tyne, the united stream passes Newnham, and falls into the sea between 8 Shields and Tynemonth. The whole course of the river taking the S. branch, is about 80 m. The N. Tyne rises on the S.W. border of Northumberland, near Carter-Fell, whence it flows S.E. and S.S.E., till it falls into the S. Tyne, a little above Hexham. These rivers flow through a country of mountain-heaths and barren unencultivated waste.

TYNEHAM, par Eng. Dorset, 3915 ac. Pop. 378.

TYNEMOUTH, a vil. and par England, co. Northumberland, at the mouth of the Tyne, and on the Newcastle and North Shields railway in the immediate vicinity of North Shields of which it may almost be considered a continuation. It consists chiefly of two parallel streets one of them spacious, and containing several handsome houses, and has an elegant cruciform church, with a tower terminating in a spire, a Wesleyan chapel, several schools, a harbour, in the form of a basin, inclosed by a rocky amphitheatre; a shale-bath-spring, manufactures of ropes, a weekly market, and four annual fairs, chiefly for cattle. Tynemouth, having both baths and a fine sandy beach, is much frequented for sea-bathing. It is supposed to have had a Roman station on the peninsula now occupied by its picturesque old castle, which, rising abruptly from the river, has a most striking and imposing appearance, and is also rich in historical recollections. Area, 7223 ac. Pop. (1851) 80,524.

TYNIBAN, par Scot. Dumfriesshire, 12 m. by 8 m. P 483.

TYNIBAN, the most E. and largest mt. of the Madji oocamah group, between Formosa and the Loo-choo Archipelago, lat. (S point) 24 48' N., lon. 125° 28' E. (u). Length, 30 m., greatest breadth 10 m. It is surrounded by a dangerous reef on the N. and N.W.

TYRANA, a city European Turkey, Albania, 15 m. N. by W. El Bassan. It is a wretched place, but is celebrated for its beautiful mosques and spacious market-places — (Lear's Journal on Albania and Hyrie).

TYRBE or TUR, a seaport in Asiatic Turkey, near the N.W. frontier of Palestine, on a peninsula in the Levant, 100 m. N.N.W. Jerusalem. It is entered from the mainland across a sandy tract, and contains a considerable number of houses a few of which are of respectable appearance, while the great majority are mean and unsustained. The population is supposed to amount nearly to 5000, composed of about equal numbers of Christians and Muslims, with a small sprinkling of Turks and other orthodox Mohammedans. The petty river, with a harbour so shallow as to admit only fishing-boats, is all that now stands to represent the magnificence of ancient Tyre, the crowning city, whose merchants were princes, whose traffickers the home-rulers of the earth' (Isa. xliii. 9. Ezek. xxvii.). The only monuments of any extent are the ruins of the old cathedral, and two large pillars of red granite once incorporated with it, though probably belonging originally to a much more ancient building, but the chief interest of the place is in the desolateness by which several scriptural prophecies have been met exactly and circumstantially fulfilled.

TYRELLA, par Irel. Down, 1899 ac. Pop. 762.

TYRIA, or TIRIS, a to Asiatic Turkey Anatolia, 44 m. S.E. Smyrna, on an acclivity of Mount Tmolus. Numerous mosques, with their minarets and minarets, interspersed with fine trees, unite to give Tyria an appearance of wealth and importance which it does not possess. It is supposed to occupy the site of ancient Tyrrhene.

TYRLE, par Scot. Aberdeen, 10 m. by 4½ m. P 2880.

TYRINGHAM, par Eng. Bucks, 1784 ac. Pop. 188.

TYRNAU, a walled to. Hungary, co. 27 m. N.E. Presburg, in a fertile plain on the little river Ttrava. It has a Protestant, a Greek non-united, and nine C. Catholic churches, a lyceum, gymnasium high school, house of invalids, an infirmary with a lunatic asylum attached; an Ursuline monastery, a military school, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a trade in wine and wool. Pop. 6880.

TYROL, or TIROL, with Voralberga, a prov. Austrian dominions, on the S.W. frontier of Germany lat. 45° 40' to 47° 41' N. lon. 9° 30' to 13° 30' E.; the W. portion, to the sources of the Inn, forming Vorarlberg, and the E. portion Tyrol proper. It is bounded, N. by Lake Constance and Bavaria, E. Salzburg and Illyria, S.E. and S. Austria Italy, and W. Switzerland and the principality of Liechtenstein greatest length, from Lake Constance to the extremity of the Festerthal, 165 m. greatest breadth, S.W. to N.W., 187 m. area, 8386 sq. m. It is mountainous throughout, and is regarded as magnificence of scenery is second only to Switzerland, of which it may be regarded as a continuation. The Alps, entering it from Switzerland, stretch across S.W. to N. in three nearly parallel chains. The loftiest of these is the Rhetian Alps, which, occupying the western, divide the country into a N. and S. portion. In this chain are situated Mount Cristler, the culminating point of the Austrian Empire, 12,830 ft., and the Gross-Glockner, 12,560 ft. The second parallel chain, situated in the N., not far from the frontier, forms the Tyrolean or Graun Alps, and the third chain, to which the name of the Trunt Alps is sometimes given, extends round from the Lake of Garda, and sometimes S. till it becomes linked with the Carle Alps. All these chains descend very abruptly on the S. side, and form short lateral valleys, but on their N. sides generally descend gradually by parallel terraces, the spaces between which are occupied by long longitudinal valleys. Many of the summits are capped with perpetual snow; and glaciers, to the number of 80, covering in all a space of about 130 sq. m., descend into the valleys to the level of about 4000 ft. The most remarkable of these glaciers are the Oetzthal, Sulden Flieten, and Dax. Notwithstanding the height of the chains, the Tyrol has several of the lowest passes in the Alps. The culminated Brenner Pass is little more than 4000 ft. above sea-level. The other principal passes are the Malsertal, Timbelloch, Arlberg, Schönbach, Achen Pass, and the pass near San Pellegrino. The loftiest of all the passes is the Rätzer or Wornseeoch. The prevailing rock in these mountains is granite, which usually forms the crest of the chain. On the opposite sides of it there is generally a considerable difference of geological structure. On the S. slopes primitive schists and limestones overlie the granite on the N. slopes the rocks are almost entirely calcareous. At lower elevations a greater variety of rock appears, and in some localities of which the Festerthal is the most remarkable example, almost all the great formations of Europe may be seen in miniature. The principal chains mentioned above form three principal valleys—the Isenthal, Etschthal or Adige valley, and Festerthal. Into these a vast number of minor valleys open and thus, though no proper plains occur, large portions of the surface become flat enough to be placed under regular culture.

The drainage is divided between the basins of the Rhine, the Danube, and the Rhen. The first, forming part of the N. W. boundary is confined to that locality and receives only the waters of the Voralberg in part directly, and in part by the Ill and the Rhen, the latter through the medium of the Lake of Constance. A much larger share of drainage is received by the Danube, whose important tributary the Inn, traversing the celebrated valley of that name, issued on the S. by the Rhetian, and on the N. by the Tyrolean Alps, receives from both chains, but especially from the former numerous torrents and streams, fed by perpetual snow and glaciers. Another large supply sent to the Danube proceeds from the S. side of the Rhetian Alps, where the western of the E. part of the Festerthal, and of a number of lateral valleys, go to augment the Drava. The Adriatic receives its share chiefly through the Etsch or Adige. None of these rivers, except the Inn, are of navigable importance, but their effect on the scenery may be estimated from the fact that they form above 160 large waterfalls. The largest lakes, the Idrio, Garda, and Comance, being situated on the frontier, belong less to the Tyrol than to other countries. The others, though very numerous and picturesque, are of limited extent, the largest being the Achen and Rhen. There are 128 mineral-springs, though comparatively few have acquired much celebrity. The best known are the Mitterbach, Rabbi, Pejo, Imbach, Alpezen, Schönbach, Benita, Comance, and Carsten.

The climate is generally healthy, but differs much on the opposite sides of the Alps. In the S., and more especially in the lateral valleys, it is severe, but still not so much so as in the W., where the greatest degree of cold is felt; in the S. it becomes much milder, and almost Italian. At Innsbruck, 1700 ft. above sea-level, the mean annual temperature is 49°; at Botzen 880 ft. above sea-level, it is 55° 80°. The annual fall of rain is nearly equal both in the N. and S., and averages about 26 inches.

About one-third of the whole surface is unavailable for any economical purpose, being occupied by perpetual snows, glaciers, and inaccessible barren rocks. Rather more than another third is occupied by forests, many of them composed of magnificent timber. The remaining third includes large tracts of commonage—mostly in a state of nature, though capable of cultivation—meadows, gardens, vineyards, and arable lands. The common and meadows are employed in rearing cattle, which in all the higher districts forms the principal occupation. The most numerous stock are sheep and goats. In the gardens and orchards vast quantities of the finest fruits are grown. The vine also succeeds well, particularly in the circles of Botzen, Trunt, and Roveredo, where it occupies a large extent of surface, and produces several wines of excellent quality. Other objects of subsidiary culture are olives and mulberries; the former to a very limited extent, but the latter so generally in the circle of Roveredo as to form one of the most common and lucrative sources of employment. After deducting all the land appropriated as above described, there still remains nearly 500 000 ac. under ordinary culture. From the minute subdivision of property, farms are generally small, and the operations of husbandry are conducted with little skill, but the spirit of industry is untiring and a large amount of produce is obtained, though it falls to meet the consumption. The principal crops are wheat, rye, wheat, barley, oats, and potatoes. Hemp, flax, tobacco and sunnys are also largely grown. The minerals, which once formed the chief source of wealth, are less productive than formerly but are still worked extensively. The most important are iron and salt; but both gold and silver are obtained in small quantities, and also copper and lead. The only other minerals deserving of notice are marble, gypsum, whetstones, ochre, and coal.

The manufactures of the Tyrol are more numerous than important. The first place belongs to the spinning and weaving of silk, which has its principal localities in Roveredo, Botzen and Trunt. The second in order is woolen ware, which is made in a variety of forms; of which the most deserving of notice are the brass manufactures of Achenbach and Lienz, which are largely exported; articles in copper, iron, above all wire, nails, and anything. Another manufacture in which the Tyrolese display considerable ingenuity is that of articles in wood, many of which are carried into other countries by the makers or their children, and form a lucrative branch of traffic. Lace and embroidery and glove-making employ a great many persons regularly and fill up the spare hours of many others. The transit trade, owing to the many easy passes through the Alps which the Tyrol presents, is of considerable importance. On the other hand, the general trade is very limited, and consists chiefly in salt, dried fruit, cheese, wine, iron, timber, fat cattle, and several of the above articles of manufacture.

There are few countries in which the devotional feeling is so strong and though it may be often disguised by superstition, it has doubtless mainly contributed to the formation of that simple, pure, manly, and independent character for which the Tyrolese are remarkably distinguished. For an unimportant purpose Tyrol is divided into seven circles—Voralberg, Trunt or Oberinntal, Schwaz or Unterinntal, Brenneck or Festerthal, Botzen, Trunt, and Roveredo. The capital is Innsbruck.

Tyrol formed part of ancient Rhetia, and after a long and noble struggle to maintain its independence, was converted into a Roman province. It suffered much from the incursions of the northern barbarians, and at a later period was governed by counts, who continued in possession till 1254, when the first becoming extinct, the Count of Gorizia succeeded. He has been governed till 1843, when the succession opened to a female, who called it to the Archduke of Austria. It has since remained in the possession of that family, with the exception of a short period in the beginning of the present century when, with that contempt for national feelings which Napoleon so often displayed, it was handed over to the Bavarians. The Tyrolese agitated the yoke, and struggled nobly for their independence, repeatedly defeating large armies with very inferior forces. The efforts made by the Tyrolese patriots during this contest, furnish one of the brightest pages in the history of freedom; while the atrocious murder of Achenbach, one of the poles of the land, is one of the darkest spots in the annals of oppression. Pop. (1850), 328,704.

TYROL [Latin Tyrolus] a vil. Tyrol, circle Bozen I. bank Adige; with a parish church, a castle, a fine old chapel, an infirmary, and poorhouse. Pop. 900

TYRONE, an island on Ireland, prov Ulster, bounded N. by co. Londonderry E. Lough Neagh and co. Armagh, S. Monaghan and Fermanagh, W. Fermanagh and Donegal, greatest length, 46 m.; breadth, 60 m. area, 806,996 ac. of which 450,286 ac. are arable. The surface is hilly rising into mountains in the N and S, and declining to a level towards Lough Neagh, the plain adjacent to which is occupied by tertiary formations, consisting of beds of white, brown, and greenish-blue clay, alternating with white and gray sand. The old red sandstones and formations of the limestone group occupy large portions of the other parts of the county. Coal, fit for domestic purposes, is found near Lough Neagh, and indications of lead, coal, and iron are frequent in the hilly districts. But, although the surface is in many places, especially on the N and W, rough and mountainous there is a large extent of fertile land in the county particularly in the plain of Omagh, where the soil is of a light friable nature. In 1851 there were 278,125 ac. under crop, including oats 149,768 ac. wheat, 7994 ac., potatoes, 99,987 ac., turnips 16,150 ac.; and flax, 18,908 ac. Agriculture generally is in a backward state, but in the fertile parts is practised on improved principles. Young cattle are reared in the hilly and mountainous districts, but the breeds both of these and sheep are inferior. The manufactures are linen, coarse woollens blankets, whisky, beer, flour, meal and coarse earthenware. The county is divided into four baronies and contains 46 parishes. It returns three members to Parliament—two for the county, and one for the borough of Dungannon. Principal towns—Strabane, Dungannon, Cookstown and Omagh. Pop. (1861) 355,819

TYROSE, par Eng. Warwick 4710 ac. Pop. 1049

TYSMENICA, a tn. Austria, Galicia, circle and 7 m. E.E. Stanislawow on the Bystrzyca. It contains a R. Catholic, a Greek united and an Armenian church, its manufactures of muslin-leather; and a trade in wax, hides, and horses. Many of the inhabitants are Armenians. Pop. 9900.

TYNARSGOE, an off W coast, Norway, between the Stranda-fjord and the Harlingen-fjord, and only separated by a narrow channel from the S. coast of S. Bergslund; greatest length, N to S, 15 m. mean breadth about 6 m. It is very irregular in shape, and has very rugged coasts.

TYSSA a vil. Bohemia, circle Leitmeritz, about 9 m. from Tauschev; with a church, a school, and three mills. Many of the inhabitants during winter employ themselves in making buttons, buckles, clasps, spoons, knife-handles, and other articles of metal-ware. Pop. 1368.

TYTHBY, par Eng. North, 2610 ac. Pop. 811

TYTHBOSTON, par Wales, Glam. 2871 ac. P. 1152.

TYTHERRINGTON, two pars. Eng. —1, Gloucester, 2100 ac. Pop. 485 —2, Wilt, 1850 ac. Pop. 83.

TYTHRELLEY two pars. England, Hants.—1, (Rural) 1560 ac. Pop. 359 —2, (Ward) 2370 ac. Pop. 447

TYTHERTON KILWATE, par Eng. Wilt, 1400 ac. P. 15.

TYWARDRETH, a vil and par England, co. Cornwall on the English Channel, with a parish church, a chapel of ease and a Wesleyan chapel. Area, 3262 ac. Pop. 3387

TYANA or YANA, a lake, Abyssinia. See DANAKA.

TYARIZIN, or SARATSKY a tn. Russia, gov. and 210 m. S.W. Saratov asp. nure, at the confluence of the Zaritsa with the Volga. It is surrounded by walls and ditches, and otherwise fortified, and has two churches, a trade in cattle and fruit, a factory and celebrated mineral springs. P. 3900

TYARSKOM-SALO, a tn. Russia. See BORHIA (R.)

TYERINA, a tn and port, Cyprus. See CECILIA

TYINTZOUTZAN, a tn. Mexico, dep. Mechacuan, 30 m. S.W. Valladolid with some remains of ancient architecture, and originally capital of the Indian kingdom of Mechacuan. Pop. 2000.

TYIPA, or TURA, a river Siberia, rises in the Vitim steppe, gov. Irkutsk, flows E.N.E., expanding into Lake Baikal, and after a course of about 350 m., joins Lake Vitim.

U.

[For articles not found in U, look under Oo and Ou.]

UBA, a vil and par Brazil prov Minas-Geraes, near the Parahibuna; with a church. Manioc coffee, and sugar are grown in the vicinity

UBACH, a vil Rhodan Prussia, gov. and 12 m. N. Aix-la-Chapelle with a church, and a trade in swine. Pop. 1316.

UBAHU, a river Brazil. See TAYHU.

UBAHY a river Bolivia. See MADALEIRA

UBATUBA, a tn and export Brazil prov São-Paulo N. shore, bay of same name, 125 m. S.W. Rio-de-Janeiro. It has two churches, and a small harbour, at which there is a large export to Rio-de-Janeiro of coffee, tobacco, manioc, flour, rice, sugar cane, harrows, bacon, and timber. Pop. (dist.) 6000

UBAYZE, a river France, rises in the Alps, in the N.E. extremity of dep. Basses-Alpes; flows first S.E., then W.N.W., and after a course of about 60 m., joins Lake Durance at Seuilon, on the frontiers of dep. Hautes-Alpes

UBERTON, par Eng. Suffolk, 1212 ac. Pop. 208

UBEDA, a city, Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 35 m. N. Jaen, r. bank Guadalquivir. Of its ancient fortifications there remain numerous towers with 10 gates, and some portions of the wall all in a very dilapidated state. This place was built by the Moors with the materials of the Roman Baelula, now Ubeda-le-Vieja, and its whole aspect is still Moorish. It has an unfinished tomb-tower, with a good facade, a prison, a small theatre, a bull-ring, granary, shambles, fish-market, and several fountains and promenade numerous churches of which the most remarkable are St. Michael's, once a mosque, transformed into a Christian temple, and St. Salvador's, a handsome and beautifully enriched Gothic edifice. There were nine monasteries in Ubeda, which have been all turned to secular purposes; and five nunneries, three of which still retain their original destination. The educational establishments consist of a college, in which Latin is the principal thing taught, and various public and private schools. There are several benevolent institutions, among them a foundling hospital as asylum for old men, and an hospital for the sick. The inhabitants are mostly engaged in agriculture, the manufactures being confined to agricultural implements, cotton linen and woollen stuffs, hats, coarse earthenware with some flour and fulling mills. Ubeda was taken by Alonso VIII., eight days after the victory of Las Navas de Tolosa, and the conqueror in writing to Innocent III., stated that it then contained 70,000 Moors, of whom many were put to death, and the rest made slaves to build castles in Spain, and the city raised to the ground. The Indians, however, returned and rebuilt it, but it was taken again by St. Ferdinand in 1299. Pop. 15,098.

UBERAVA, a tn. Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, near r. bank Uberava-Falso. It has a church and a considerable trade in manioc, millet, rice, cotton, cattle, and swine. Pop. (dist.) 6000

UBERLINGEN, a tn. Baden. See T. K. K. K. K. K.

UBES (R.) a tn. Portugal. See BERNAL

UBLEY, par Eng. Somerset, 1811 ac. Pop. 294

UBOLDU, a vil and com. Italy Lombardy prov Milan, 8 m. from Saronno. It is well built, has two churches, a charitable endowment, and a trade in corn and silk. Pop. 1778.

UBRIQUE, a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 52 m. E.N.E. Cadix. It has generally steep and uneven streets, a parish church, townhouse two primary schools, two oratories, a hermitage in the suppressed convent of Capuchins, a few looms for ordinary cloths and coarse frieze, and four taneries. Pop. 5349.

UCAYLE, or PARO, a large river Peru, one of the chief affluents of the Amazon. All the rivers which rise in the S. portion of the Peruvian Andes unite in this stream, the most S. of its branches being the Apurimac. The Ucayle, which assumes this name only from the junction of the Paro and Piura, at lat. 5° 50' S., lon. 73° 47' W., flows N by N.E. and falls into the Amazon about 20 m. above San José de Omasaga, or about lat. 4° 28' S., lon. 73° 38' W. The whole course of the Ucayle, measured from the sources of the Apurimac to the Amazon, exceeds 1000 m. It is navigable for large vessels as high as Sarayacu, a distance of about 100 m. from its mouth.

UCULE, a vil. and com. Belgian, prov. S. Brabant, 1 m. S. Brussels, with a very handsome church, several cotton-mills, linen manufactures, bleachfields, distilleries, paper and flour mills, and a model establishment for the culture of the mulberry and the rearing of silk-worms. The beer of Ucule is excellent, and forms a considerable article of trade. P. 6226.

UL-HYM, a vil. Hanover, Oberhoya, cap. hall, 18 m. S.W. Kienberg. It has several well-frequented fairs. P. 1900.

UCKERMONDE, or UCKERMONDE, a tn Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. and 82 m. N.W. Stettin, cap. circle, at the mouth of the Ucker in the Havel-Haff. It has a court of justice and several public offices, a parish church, a castle in ruins, a courthouse, and poorhouse, building-yards, a fishery, and two mills. Pop. 3675.

UCKFIELD a market tn and par England on Sussex, on a height, 8 m. N.N.E. Lewes. It contains a number of good houses and has a parish church, Wesleyan and Baptist chapels, a free grammar-school and a workhouse. Area, 1747 ac. Pop. 1690.

UCLES, a vil. Spain, New Castle prov. Caenca 50 m. S.E. Madrid, at the skirt of a steep hill crowded by the once magnificent convent belonging to the order of Santiago, the church of which is one of the finest in Spain. It has a townhouse, prison, small hospital, granary, two primary schools, a church, two other suppressed convents and four hermitages. The French under Victor had routed Vangas January 13 1809 with 10,000 Spanish troops. Pop. 1693.

UDDEVALI A a seaport in Sweden, lin and 45 m. N. Göteborg, on a small stream at the head of the Hålfors-fjord. It is an ancient but clean and well-built place, though the houses are chiefly of wood and has a handsome stone church an ordinary and hospital manufactures of linen and cotton stuffs, and refined sugar dye-works, and a trade in wood and iron. About 2 m. S. is Gussafors which attracts many visitors in summer, both by the beauty of its site and its mineral springs. Pop. 8912.

UDDINGSFVÄN, a vil. Scotland, on Lanark 7 m. E.S. Glasgow, on branch of the Caledonian railway, inhabitants chiefly employed in weaving in agriculture, and in the manufacture of agricultural implements of all kinds.

UDEN, a vil. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 14 m. E.S.E. Hertogenbosch, well built, with a large market place, a church, several schools, and six cattle and horse fairs. Pop. 1710.

UDENHOUT, a vil. Holland prov. N. Brabant 10 m. S.W. Hertogenbosch with two churches, a school, and some trade in cutting and sawing timber. Pop. agricultural 8064.

UEDEWOLD, a tn. Hindooon territory and 160 m. S. Gwalior, at the foot of a remarkable conical hill. It formerly had a fort. Extensive ruins indicate its former importance.

UDMORE, par Eng. Sussex; 2231 ac. Pop. 436.

UDINE, or UDINZ [Latin, Udinum] a tn Italy Venetia cap. of deling Friuli, gov. and 60 m. N.E. Venice in an extensive plain on the canal of La Noja, between the Torre and Cormara. It forms a kind of double town—an outer, surrounded by walls, and an inner also surrounded by walls and wet ditches; and was once defended by a castle occupying a commanding height near its centre, but now converted into a house of correction. It is entered by six gates, and consists for the most part of narrow and crooked streets lined with arcades. The principal square, however is spacious, and is adorned with a fine pillar by Casselli, intended to commemorate the peace of Campo Formio. Immediately below the castle is a fine promenade, laid out in planted alleys, and containing a large pond with an island; and in the vicinity, approached by an avenue of stately plane-trees, is the Campofantico, which, from the taste displayed in its arrangements, and the number and elegance of its monuments, ranks as one of the finest residences in Europe. The ecclesiastical edifices include 13 parish churches, and numerous chapels, but the only one particularly deserving of notice is the cathedral, distinguished by its marble pillars, earnings, and pictures. The other public buildings and establishments are the episcopal palace, theatre, courthouse, the guardhouse, surrounded by a tower, the gymnasium, and several elementary schools. The manufactures consist of linen, silk, and woollen goods, copper and earthen ware, hair and paper, and there are several liqueur-distilleries, and numerous flour-mills. Udine is the seat of an archbishop, and the seat of a court of justice and several important public offices. Pop. 36,790.

UDINSK two places, Siberia, gov. Irkutsk.—1, (Ferdinand), A tn. cap. circle, at the confluence of the Uda and Selenga, 180 m. S.S.E. Irkutsk. It has a number of well built houses, a small fort, three churches, a Buddhist temple; and a considerable trade with China, particularly in seal-skins obtained from Lake Baikal. Pop. (1853), 2637.—2, (Zhitomir), A tn. cap. circle, on a flat traversed by the Great Uda, 260 m. N.W. Irkutsk. It has a church and a considerable transit trade; and rears a great many cattle. Pop. (1863), 3238.

UDJPU, a small tn. Hindooon, prov. Oudis 3 m. from the sea, and 39 m. N.W. Mangalore; lat. 13° 35' N.; lon. 74° 48' E.

UDNY par Scot. Aberdeen, 16 sq m. Pop. 1618.

UDVARD, a tn. Hungary, Thaur Danube, cap. and 16 m. N. by N. Komorn, with a E. Catholic church. Pop. 3189.

UDVARELLY-SANKET, see ODHARELLY.

UDVARY several places, Hungary.—1 A vil. Thaur Thaur, on Bihar about 20 m. from Potany; with a Protestant church, and a trade in wine and agricultural produce. Pop. 2875.—2 A vil. Thaur Thaur on Szathmar, 9 m. from Szathmar-Nemethi with two churches. Pop. 1169.—3, A vil. Thaur Danube, cap. and about 25 m. from Tolna; with two churches, and a trade in wine and tobacco. Pop. 935.

UEA, an isl. E. Pacific. See MATYAN.

UEBELLINGEN or UEBELLINGEN, a tn. Baden, Lake district, but N.E. shore of one arm of the lake and 8 m. N.W. the town of Constance surrounded by dilapidated walls. It contains many handsome antique houses, five churches, a townhouse, library of 16,000 volumes, a superior burgher-school a large hospital, and a mineral spring, with a bathing-establishment; and has manufactures of tobacco and wax, a bleachfield several mills, and a small harbor, with some shipping and a considerable trade. Pop. 2440.

UEBERSDORF or UEBERSDORF a vil. and par Switzerland, cap. and 8 m. N. E. Fribourg with a handsome church. Pop. 1395.

UEBERSSELK, a vil. and par Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and near Münster with a E. Catholic church, a poorhouse, and house of refuge for children. Pop. 1613.

UEDEM, a walled tn. Rhemish Prussia, gov. and N.W. Düsseldorf, with a Protestant and a E. Catholic church, manufactures of linen and distilleries. Pop. 1276.

UEHLFELD, or UEHLFELD a market in Bavaria, Middle Franconia, 21 m. N.W. Nürnberg, with a castle, a church, and a synagogue, a walled town with trade in hops. Pop. 1031.

UEHLINGEN, a walled tn. Hesse, gov. and 30 m. S.E. Lüneburg on the Hemsar. It has a court of justice, a church, and several hospitals, manufactures of tobacco, sherry, and starch, tile-works, a brewery, distillery, and fishery, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 3031.

UERDINGEN, or UERDINGEN, a tn. Rhemish Prussia, gov. and 10 m. N.W. Düsseldorf; 1 bank Rhine. It has a church, and superior burgher-school, manufactures of linen, lace, sugar leather, and earthenware a cotton mill, some shipping, and a trade in coal. Pop. 2335.

UESELINGEN a vil. and par Switzerland, cap. Thurgau, 4 m. W. Frauenfeld; a bank Thur. here crossed by a handsome bridge. It has a church and school. Pop. 1199.

UESTEREN, or UESTEREN, a vil. Denmark, Steyer Holstein, on the Pinnau, between the Geest and March, 15 m. N.W. Altona. It has several industrial establishments, in clothing boot-building yards, and a considerable trade in corn and peas. Pop. 2400.

UETIKOR, a vil. and par Switzerland, cap. Glaris, near E. shore, Lake of Zürich; with a church some silk and cotton manufactures, and two distilleries. Pop. 1060.

UFA, or OUPA, a tu. Russia, cap. gov. Orenburg, on the Belait, at the confluence of the Ufa, 753 m. E. by N Moscow. It is defended by a citadel; is the see of a bishop, and has several important courts and offices, some very indifferent, and a number of handsome and regular streets; seven churches, two monasteries, a theological academy one stone and two wooden mosques, a topographical school fitted to accommodate 1000 pupils, considerable manufactures, a trade in corn and cattle, and several annual fairs. Pop. (1849), 12,900.

UFA, or OUPA, a river, Russia, gov. Orenburg, rises on the W. slope of the Ural Mountains, flows circumspectly W. by W. to Krasno-Oudinsk, in gov. Perm, then S. by W., again entering Orenburg and joins r. bank Belait at the town of Ufa; total course 680 m. Its principal affluents are, on the right the Belait and on the left the Al and Joutren.

UFFCULME, a vil. and par. England, co. Devon about 5 m. N. E. Colmington, with a parish church, Baptist and Independent chapels, a free grammar-school, and manufactures of hazels. Area of par. 6123 ac. Pop. 2098.

UFFENHEIM, a walled town, Bavaria, Middle Franconia, cap. dist., on the Goetzach, here crossed by a bridge, 21 m. N. W. Augsburg. It has a court of justice, two Protestant churches, a castle, Latin school, and hospital, tanneries, several mills and a trade in cattle and wool. Pop. 1648.

UFFINGTON, a vil. and par. England, co. Berks, on the Wilt and Berks canal, and the Great Western railway, 4 m. S. E. Farnborough, with a handsome parish church, an endowed free school, and Uffington castle, a large encampment on a hill above the village, supposed to have been originally formed by the Britons, and afterwards occupied by the Romans. Area of par. 6620 ac. Pop. 1170.

UFFINGTON, two pars. Eng. — 1 Rutland, 3999 ac. Pop. 573 — 2, Berks, 2110 ac. Pop. 909.

UFFORD two pars. Eng. — 1 Northampton 2530 ac. Pop. 361 — 2, Suffolk, 1156 ac. Pop. 734.

UFION two pars. — 1 Warwick, 1920 ac. P. 189 — 2 (Newest Berks 2980 ac. Pop. 421.

UGBOROUGH par. Eng. Devon 8659 ac. Pop. 1988.

UGENTO (anc. Ugentum), a tu. Naples, prov. Otranto 15 m. S. E. Gallipoli, the see of a bishop, with a cathedral, a seminary, a university, and an ecclesiastical seminary. P. 1550.

UGGENHALL par. Eng. Suffolk; 1473 ac. Pop. 393.

UGLIANO two places, Naples — 1, (della Chiesa) A tu. prov. Otranto, 23 m. S. E. Lecce. Pop. 1517 — 2, (Alto di Jacca), A tu. prov. Otranto, S. E. Lecce. Pop. 660.

UGIJAR, a tu. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 60 m. S. E. Granada, on the Ugujar. Most of the houses are two stories, and solidly built, with elegant façades; and the streets are even and well paved. It has a townhouse, prison, college for primary and advanced education, with chairs of Latin and philosophy besides a primary school for poor children, and an academy for girls an hospital and Gothic parish church. Soft soap, glass earthenware, roof and paving tiles hempen shoes, common thence, and brandy are made and there are eight flour and several oil mills but the main occupation is agriculture. Pop. 8099.

UGIN, a tu. France, dep. Haute Savoie, r. bank Arly 10 m. S. E. Annecy. It is poorly built, but has several interesting antiquities, the remains of an ancient castle, and a considerable transit trade, and important fairs for cattle and mules. Pop. 2944.

UGLEY, par. Eng. Essex, 2088 ac. Pop. 450.

UGLIAN, an Isl. Adriatic, co. Durazzo, coast, opposite to Zara, and immediately N. W. of the island of Parmen, from which it is separated by a narrow channel. It forms a comparatively long and narrow belt, stretching N. W. for about 10 m., with an average breadth of not more than 2 m. It is not fertile.

UGLIPO, a tu. Russia. See OCOLOPO.

UGOCZ, a co. Hungary, bounded, N. and N. W. by co. Bereg, S. W. and S. by co. Szabolcs, and E. by co. Zemplén. Area, 869 sq. m. Though one of the smallest of the Hungarian counties it is one of the most interesting, both from the beauty of its scenery, and the fertility of the soil. In the N. and E. it is covered by branches of the Carpathians, but in the S. and W. is flat or undulating. The principal river is the Tisza, which, in traversing it, forms a number of islands. The mountainous districts are heavily wooded, both with hardwood and pine and the arable lands produce abundant crops of wheat, barley, oats, beans and peas, flax, hemp, and tobacco. The wine produced is only of tolerable quality. The minerals include coal. Nagy Söllös in the cap. P. 47,700.

UGOD, a vil. Hungary, Thither Deme, co. Vasvár, 4 m. from Pápa, with a church, mineral-springs, medicinal, and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1638.

UGRA, or OUSA, a river, Russia, rises in gov. Kaluga; flows W. enters gov. Smolensk, turns suddenly N. E., then S. E. crosses gov. Kaluga, and joins I bank Oka about 2 m. above the town of Kaluga. Total course, above 800 m.

UGRA a vil. Hungary Thither Tolos, co. Bihar 20 m. from Grăuvardeu with a Protestant church. Pop. 1988.

UGRINOVEZE, a vil. Austria, Slavonia, generalship and 32 m. S. E. Peterwardein with two Greek churches. P. 1047.

UGRINSKI ZEMOV a vil. Hungary See IMIR-MAGYAR.

UGRFAH, a market to Austria, Tyrol on the Drave, opposite to Lienz, with which it communicates by a long wooden bridge. It has a parish church, and an hospital. Pop. 2589.

UI or OUT, two rivers, Aislait Russia — 1. Bases in gov. Orenburg flows E. past Troitsk, and after a course of about 200 m., joins I bank Tobol near Fort Ust-Utiarsk — 2. Rises in gov. Tobolsk flows W. and after a course of about 190 m., joins r. bank Irtysh, 16 m. below Tara.

UIG, par. Scot. Ross, 24 m. by 10 m. Pop. 3209.

UIST (Moor and Sorru), two isls. and par. Scotland, Outer Hebrides, co. Inverness — 1, N. Utst 16 m. long, 17 4 m. to 18 m. broad bounded N. by the Sound of Harris and E. by the Little Minch, separating it from Isl. Skye, has a range of hills along the E. coast, mostly composed of granite, rising gradually from the N. to the S. and varying in height from 300 ft. to above 700 ft. These are intersected by inlets of the sea, forming safe and commodious harbours. Within this range of hills, towards the W. is a large extent of soft, deep, barren moor intersected in every direction by fresh water lakes of several miles in length. In the W. part the most of the cultivated grounds, rendered fertile by the drift of shell-sand from the shores of the Atlantic. Here, in favourable seasons rich pastures of white and red clover appear, and luxuriant crops of barley or bere are obtained and, under proper management, grain crops of every description, sheep, black cattle and horses are reared. Pop. 2018 — 2. Isl. separated from N. Uist by the island of Benbecula it is 20 m. long, with an average breadth of about 7 m. The W. side is low flat, and sandy and the E. mountainous, hilly and mossy. The highest peak is about 500 ft. above sea-level. The rocks consist of gneiss coarse granite, and hornblende. Some mica-slate is seen in a few places. Some of these hills contain good pastures for black cattle horses, and sheep, and the moor, extending from their base to the arable part of the parish, is generally deep, and furnishes excellent peat for fuel. There are numerous lakes, the largest of which is about 8 m. long and 1 m. broad. All of them abound with fish. In general the soil is light and sandy, but in some places a black loam, and in others moss. The crops are barley, bere, oats, rye potatoes and turneps. Black cattle and sheep are reared. Pop. (South Uist), 6173.

UITENHAGH, a tu. Cape Colony cap. city of same name, I bank Zwartkops 400 m. S. Cape Town. It stands among extensive gardens, well planted with fruit-trees and has spacious streets intersecting each other at right angles, a handsome Dutch church with a tower, Independent, Wesleyan and 2. Luthoran churches, and a Mahomedan mosque. P. 99, about 2700. — The DIVINATOR, bounded, W. by divs. George and Beaufort, N. Graf Reubert, E. Somerset and Albany and S. the Indian Ocean, is about 180 m. long from E. to W., by 90 m. broad contains several mountain-ranges with lofty peaks, one of which attains the height of 5400 ft. It is watered by the Kromme, Gantoua, Zwartkops Sunday, and Bechmans possesses the harbour of Port Elizabeth, near the S. W. extremity of Algoa Bay is supposed to be rich in minerals, particularly copper and lead and though more pastoral than arable, has tracts of fine corn-land, especially along the coast. Pop. roughly estimated at 10,000.

UTTGEST a vil. Holland, prov. N. Holland, about 12 m. W. Amsterdam, in the midst of gardens, flower-fields, and meadows. It has a townhouse, two churches, a school, and an orphan hospital. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in the culture of flowers, tulips, hyacinths, &c. Pop. 1076.

UTTHUHEN, a vil. Holland, prov. and 15 m. N. F. Froelingsen well built, with three churches, an elegant school, and two hospitals. Pop. (agricultural), 2538.

UTTHUHERNEEDEN, or UTHUHERNEEDEN, a vil. Holland prov. and 16 m. N. W. Groningen, with a church and three schools. Pop. (agricultural), 2302.

UJ BAZAR, or TUNGUNG BAZAR, a market to Hungary co. Tuzsard, 1 bank Thales; with an extensive trade in fruit. Pop. 2222.

UJEST, a to. Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. and S.E. Oppeln, 7 bank Kiebasz; with a court of justice, two churches, a chapel, a synagogue, an hospital, a castle, manufactures of linen and hats, and four mills. Pop. 2312.

UJFALU, several places, Hungary, particularly:—1 (Bazs) A vil. Hither Danube, co. Bacs, 12 m. from Illok with two churches. Pop. 2372.—3, (Buzsaga) A market in Thither Thales, co. Bihar, on the Burego, about 20 m. from Girsavandau; with a handsome Protestant church. Pop. 4726.—3, (Buzs) A vil. Thither Thales, co. Bacs, on the Turzsa, about 9 m. from Eger with a R. Catholic church, a synagogue, several churches, saw and flour mills. Pop. 1654.—4, (Buzsaga) A vil. Hither Danube, on Neograd with a R. Catholic church. Pop. 1109.

UJLAK a market to Austria. See 11102.

UJLAK several places Hungary.—1 A market in Hither Danube, co. and 9 m. from Neutra with a R. Catholic church, manufactures of rope, a brewery and several mills. Pop. 1430.—2, A vil. Thither Thales, Hanat and 6 m. from Temesvar with a Greek church. Pop. 1158.—3, (Buzsaga) A vil. Thither Thales, co. Eger, 8 m. from Eger with a Greek and a Protestant church, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1172.—4 (Buzsaga) A vil. Thither Thales, co. Bacs, 9 m. from Aranyos-Magyar, with two churches. Pop. 1264.—5, (Buzsaga) A vil. Thither Thales, co. Ugocsa, on the Thales 10 m. from Nagy-Szilias; with three churches, and a considerable trade. Pop. 1454.

ULCHBY two pars. Eng. Lancashire.—1, 2220 ac. Pop. 161.—2, 2790 ac. Pop. 269.

ULCOMBE, par. Eng. Kent 5629 ac. Pop. 638.

ULDALE, par. Eng. Cumberland 5500 ac. Pop. 588.

ULEA, a to. Spain, prov. and 15 m. N. W. Murcia near the Segura. It is tolerably well built, has a parish church, courthouse, and primary school, and a trade in oranges, lemons, and other fruit. Pop. 1181.

ULEA, or ULCO, a river, Russia, Finland, issues from the N. W. extremity of a lake of same name, or as it is usually called, Ulea track flows N. W., and after a course of about 80 m., falls into the Gulf of Bothnia near Uleaborg. Before reaching its mouth it divides into four branches, and forms several extensive rapids.—The LAKE, remarkable for the irregularity of its shape, is about 40 m. long, by 25 m. broad, though it scarcely admits of being considered as a whole, being not so much one lake, as a series of lakes connected by narrow channels.

ULFABORG a seaport in Russia, Finland, cap. circle, on a peninsula, at the mouth of the Ulea in the Gulf of Bothnia, 331 m. N. W. St. Petersburg. It is built almost entirely of wood, but with considerable regularity and has a church, townhouse, hospital buildings, yards, and a considerable trade in wood, tar, pitch, butter, and dried fish. The harbour is almost silted up. The salmon-fishery in the Ulea is very productive. There is a mineral spring in the vicinity and on an island at a short distance stands the old castle of Uleaborg, built in 1590. Pop. 6000.

ULEY, par. Eng. Gloucestershire 1492 ac. Pop. 1327.

ULFA, par. Isl. Pacific Ocean. See KALIFA.

ULLARNOU, a vil. N. W. coast, Sweden, co. Cronmarty (part of) on the N. E. shore, Lach Brown. It stands on a fine terraced promontory between the loch and the Ashell; and from the sea-beach to the summit it exhibits several parallel lines of houses, most of them white-washed and slated or tiled. The harbour is spacious, and easily accessible to vessels of large burden, which can approach this quay ULLARD par. Irel. Carlow and Kilkenny; 5847 ac. Pop. 1681.

ULLDECONA a to. Spain, Catalonia, prov. Tarragona, 14 m. S. Tortosa, with a townhouse, two primary endowed schools, two churches, a chapel, and numerous flour and oil mills. Pop. (agricultural), 4617.

ULLERADOFF, several places Austria.—1, (Grove) A vil. Maravia, circle Olmutz; with a church, a castle, a school, and a bathing-establishment. Pop. 2114.—3, (Jenau, or Jenau-Jenau) A vil. Moravia, circle Olmutz, near Kohnstern with a church, glass-works, two bleachfields, and two mills. Pop. 819.—3, (Jenau) A vil. Bohemia, circle Kolin-gratz with a church, an oil, a saw, and two other mills. Pop. 1067.

ULLESTHORPE a hamlet, England, co. Leicester, a station on the Midland railway, 8 m. N. W. Lutterworth; with Baptist and Independent chapels, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 622.

ULLM par. Irel. Kilkenny 3249 ac. Pop. 877.

ULLINGWICK, par. Eng. Hertsford; 1945 ac. P. 856.

ULLOA, or ULUA, a river Central America, Honduras flows first N. W. then N., and after a course of about 160 m., falls into the Gulf of Honduras. It is partly navigable by vessels of 200 tons.

ULLSWATER, or ULLEN-WATER, a picturesque lake, England, between cos. Cumberland and Westmorland, about 9 m. long and varying in breadth from $\frac{1}{2}$ m. to 2 m. depth, 210 ft. It occupies the upper part of the valley of the Eamont, which is contracted between high lands, and receives the drainage of the loftiest part of the mountain range.

ULM, a to. Wurtemberg cap. circle Danau, 45 m. S. E. Stuttgart, 1 bank Danube, here crossed by one, and on both sides of the Danube, here crossed by five bridges. It is one of the fortresses of the Germanic Confederation and is a place of considerable strength being provided with important defenses on both sides of the Danube. It is an old place, and though irregularly built, with narrow winding streets, has a number of houses interesting from their antiquity. It has a court of law and several important public offices, a cathedral, a large and lofty structure in the old Gothic style, two other churches, both handsome, a palace, in which one of the princes of Wurtemberg resides; a denary, townhouse, gymnasium, theatre, barracks, industrial and other schools, a hospital, town-library, and several benevolent associations; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, leather, paper, brass-ware, matches, tobacco and tobacco-pipes, bleachfields, dyeworks, vinegar-works, tile-works, linoleum, and an important trade, including in addition to the above articles of manufacture, corn, wood, seeds, wine, and iron-ware. Ulm is advantageously situated, and was long an imperial free-town, during which it became so wealthy that its gold was proverbially said to rain the world. Unfortunately it forms an important military position, and hence, the possession of it has been heavily contested in every great European war, its prosperity has been seriously injured. As a German fortress, it is garrisoned during peace by Wirtemberg and Bavarian troops, and a body of Austrian artillery. In time of war one-third of the forces is Austrian. Pop. 18,400.

THE TOWN OF ULM — View from the river in the foreground

ULM, a vil. Baden, Rhine, N N E Offen-burg, with a church, and in its vicinity the ruins of the old castle of Ullenberg. Pop. 1476.

ULMBAUGH, a vil. Home-Casual, prov. Hantz, near Halmstad on a stream of same name, with a parish church
Pop. 1289.

ULRICHAMN, a tn. Sweden, N. and 57 m. S. E. Wan-enberg at the N. extremity of Lake Abunda, in a mountainous district amidst romantic scenery. It has a considerable trade with the surrounding districts. Pop. 1642.

ULSTER, a prov. Ireland occupying the N. part of the island; lat. 53° 45' to 56° 26' N. lon. 5° 24' to 8° 45' W. It comprehends the nine counties of Donegal, Londonderry, Antrim, Down, Armagh, Monaghan, Cavan, Fermanagh, and Tyrone. Total area, 5,475,683 ac., of which 3,407,539 ac. are estimated to be arable. It is extremely mountainous both in its N. and E. parts, with a comparatively level district intervening, the latter occupying considerable portions of the coe.
Down, Armagh, and Tyrone. The highest summits are in the co. Donegal, where some are above 3000 ft. high. The coasts are deeply indented with spacious lagoons and bays, the principal of which are Donagh Bay, Lough Swilly, Lough Foyle, Belfast Lough, Lough Strangford, Donagh Bay, and in part, Cardigan Bay between the coe. Down and Louth, the one in Ulster the other in Leinster. Numerous smaller inlets indent the coast of Donegal which is extremely rugged.

On the N. coast of Antrim are the basaltic rocks known as the Giant's Causeway. The principal rivers are the Bann, Foyle, Erne, and some tributaries of the Shannon. It contains the large lakes Neagh and Erne. It is the chief seat of the linen and other manufactures of Ireland. Pop. 2,004,289.

ULTING par. Eng. Essex 1147 ac. Pop. 166.

ULU Ismsu, a river, Turkistan. See Ismsu.

ULULA det-Campo, a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and about 80 m. from Alcala, on a gentle height; with a church, courthouse, and primary school; manufactures of woollen cloth and a trade in wheat. Pop. 1800.

ULVA, an isl. in the coast, Scotland, on Argyle, separated from W. coast of Isl. Mull by a narrow channel, called the Sound of Ulva. It is about 4½ m. long, and nearly 3 m. broad has a bold and rocky coast, in some places rising by successive ledges to an elevation of nearly 1300 ft. from sea-level and in many places exhibiting beautiful ranges of basaltic columns, often as regular as those of Staffa. On the S. side of the island is a cave, the entrance to which is a natural arch of 87 ft. span. The soil is generally fertile.

ULVERSTON a market tn. and par. England on and 2½ m. N. W. Lancaster, on some gentle declivities, about ½ m. from that branch of Morecambe Bay called the Laver Sands or Ulverstone Sands. It has two Episcopal churches, two Dissenting chapels and a B. Catholic chapel a theatre, and union-workhouse, numerous schools; an infirmary, and ladies institute, having a Dorcas institute connected with it, two cotton-mills, a coarse-paper mill and two manufactories of chock-linen. The principal articles of export are iron and copper ore, gunpowder, hoops, and baskets. Of the iron-ore upwards of 50,000 tons are shipped annually, copper-ore, 9000 tons gunpowder, several hundred barrels. Chief imports, coal, cotton, and general merchandise. Area of par. 24,566 ac. Pop. 1625.

UMAN, or UMAY, a tn. Brazil, gov. and 122 m. S.
Kiev, esp. circle, on the Umanka. It is surrounded by ran-parts, which form an excellent promenade, has a fine castle belonging to the Polotsk family, a B. Catholic and three Greek churches, a synagog, monastery, and riding-school and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. (1842) 7877.

UMBRAGO LAKE, a beautiful sheet of water, U States, on the boundary between New Hampshire and Maine, about 16 m. long, and 10 m. broad. Its outlet on the W. forms a considerable branch of the Androscoggin.

UMBALLA, a tn. Hindostan, prov. and 130 m. N. W.
Delhi, 1040 ft. above sea level, esp. district of its name. It is a large walled place, with very narrow streets. Under its walls is the unassuming ground of the British troops.

Pop. 112.

UMBRETE a vil. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 9 m.
S. W. Sevilla, with a beautiful palace and garden, belonging to the Arch bishop of Sevilla a granary, townhouse and prison, three primary schools a parish church a hermitage, which serves as a chapel of ease, and several fowl and oil mills.
Pop. (population), 1855.

UMBRATCO a tn. Naples, prov. Calabria-Ultra II
30 m. N. W. Utrona, on a steep hill surrounded on all sides by inaccessible precipices. It is a small, ill-built place but is the see of a bishop, and contains a cathedral. P. 3500.

UMFÄ, a seaport tn. Sweden, esp. 120, in a plain on a river of same name, near its mouth in the Gulf of Bothnia, 223 m. N. N. E. Stockholm. It is regularly built, though of wood; and has a good and well-sheltered harbour which admits vessels drawing 8 ft. as far up as the town, and at which a considerable trade is carried on in timber, iron, pitch, dairy produce, fowl, hides, fish &c. There is a mineral-spring in the vicinity. Steamers call here in passing between the Stockholm and Turku. Pop. 1408. — The UMFÄ rises in the S. slope of the mountains which separate Norway from Sweden, in lat. 66° N. flows S. E. forming several lakes by its expansion and falls into the Gulf of Bothnia by a wide embouchure, a little below the town of Umeå, after a course of about 250 m.
The water, which at its mouth is 14 ft. to 15 ft. deep, is only 8 ft. at Umeå. Its chief affluent is the Windel.

UMBEIGHUR, or AKHARABAH a tn. Hindostan, prov.
Ajmer, 128 m. S. E. Jodhpore. It is of considerable size, and in the centre are three temples. There is also a manufactory of chmcs. Above it on a high rock, stands a castle.

UMMENDORF a vil. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and
W. Magdeburg with a church and several mills. P. 1016.

UMMERAPPOORA a tn. Burma, esp. ARKANAROMA.

UMMERSADT a tn. Saxo-Meiningen 19 m. S. E.
Hildburghausen, on the Roda, with two churches, a townhouse, school a saw and bark mill. Pop. 728.

UMPUQA a river, U States, Oregon which has its mouth to the N. of Cape Gregory lat. 43° 44' N. lon. 124° 7' 30' W. For a distance of 10 m. it admits vessels drawing not more than 12 ft. On an extensive plain about 200 yards from the river, is Fort Umpqua, an inclosure of about 200 ft. square, with bastions at the angles. The Umpqua county yields a considerable supply of furs, chiefly small beaver.

UMREITER, a city. Prussia. See ARKANAROMA.

UMSTADT, or GNOM-UMSTADT a tn. Hesse-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg 21 m. E. Darmstadt, with two parish churches, two castles, and an hospital and manufactures of linen and leather tale-works, and bark and other mills. P. 2699.

UNA several rivers Brazil particularly — 1. A river prov. São Paulo, which flows E. for 60 m. and falls into the sea by a large mouth, 40 m. N. the mouth of the Iguaçu.

— 2. A river forming the boundary between provs. Alagoas and Pernambuco. It rises in the Serra Germinhos flows first E. and then S. E. for 150 m. receives the Jaenipe on its right, and falls into the ocean about 12 m. N. of the Barra-Grande.
Its mouth is wide and admits barges, which ascend to the forests on its banks, and those of the Jaenipe and take in cargoes of excellent timber — 3. A river, prov. Bahia. It rises in the Serra d'Itabora, forming the N. termination of the Cordillera dos Amores, follows a mountainous course E. till it reaches lat. 16° S., passes the town of Olivença, and about 4 m. below falls into the ocean. It is navigable by slugs far as Olivença — 4. A small river, prov. Rio-de-Janeiro. For about 12 m. it is navigable by canoes, and falls into the sea between Cape Braze and the mouth of the São-João.

UNADILLA, a vil. and township, U States, New York, 85 m. W. by S. Albany r. bank, Susquehanna and an Episcopal church, grist and saw mills, and manufactures of woollen stuffs and tobacco. Pop. 1463.

UNCASTILLO, a tn. Spain, Aragon prov. and 46 m.
N. W. Saragosa, at the entrance of the Ebro and Cardenas. It has two parish churches, three primary schools, a courthouse, and prison. flour-mills, and a trade in agricultural produce and cattle. Pop. 1905.

UNDERCLIFF, a beautiful and romantic dist. England, co. Southampton, forming a comparatively narrow belt of 6 m. in length, on the E. E. side of the Isle of Wight. Immediately fringing the sea are cliffs varying in height from 80 ft. to 100 ft., and serving as an abutment to a long irregular platform, bounded on the N by a bold overhanging precipice, from 200 ft. to 300 ft. high. The platform to which the name of Underfoot is properly confined, is broken into a number of minor terraces, and appears to have been formed by a succession of landslips, several of which, of considerable magnitude, have taken place in recent times. The soil is generally fertile, and both the beauty of the situation and the mildness of the climate, have caused it to be studded over with beautiful villas. It is much resorted to by invalids.

125.

UNDERBOOT or ANDROOZ: the chief of the Laccadive Islands, in the shape of an ellipse, 3 m. long, by 1 m. broad, lat. 10° 45' N., lon 74° E. (See LACCADIVE).

UNDY, par. Eng. Monmouth, 3717 ac. Pop. 573.

UNGH, or UNGWAV, a river Hungary rises in the W Carpathians, flows curiously S W just the town of Ungvár and joins I. bank Labovara. total course, 90 m.

UNGHVAR, s. to Hungary cap. on r. bank river of same name, in a beautiful district, 40 m. E. by S. Kasehan. It consists of the lower proper and two suburbs, is the residence of a bishop, and the seat of several important public buildings and has a handsome cathedral, a R. Catholic, and a Greek-orthodox church, a fine modern edifice, in which the county meetings are held, a theological seminary for united Greeks of the dioceses of Epire and Manissa, a R. Catholic gymnasium and high school, and a trade in salt, cochineal, and wine, particularly the last, which is extensively grown in the vicinity. Pop. 6234.—The country bounded, s. by Gallia, E. co. Beragh S.E. Shabolos, and S.W. and W. Kemptin greatest length, N.W. to S.E., 60 m., mean breadth, about 45 m. area, 1261 geo. sq. m. is generally mountainous, being traversed by the Carpathians, but the climate, except in their immediate vicinity, is mild, and favors the growth of the vine, and the rearing of silk worms. Corn, hemp and timber are abundant, and the minerals include iron and marble. The country is divided into the four markets or districts of Ungvár (the capital), Szoboszi, Kapos, and Szarhely. Pop. 110,003.

UNGSTEIN, a vil. Bavaria, Palatinate, dist. Dittelsheim, with a Protestant church. An excellent wine is grown in the neighbourhood. Pop. 1141.

UNROSCOTT, a p. Bohemia, circle Bekenitz, W. Prague; with a watch church, a chapel, and several mills. Pop. 1474.

UNRIE, an is. Australia, North, at the S.E. entrance of the Gulf of Quararua, W. of the island of Omeo. It is about 5 m. long by 2 m. broad; and has three good harbours, and a village of same name, with a church and chapel. Pop. 230.

UNRIE, a seaport in Asiatic Turkey, path. Siver, on the Black Sea, 50 m. E. Samsoon. The houses are built of wood, those next the sea being erected on stone piles or pillars, and the streets are filthy and staid. A considerable number of vessels belong to the port, brought none of them exceeds 200 tons burden. The exports are cotton stuffs, fruits, and wine, the imports, corn and oil from the Crimea, coffee, sugar, and European manufactures from Constantinople.

UNIONTOWN, a bor. U. States, Pennsylvania, 155 m. W. by S. Harrisburg, on Redstone Creek with seven churches, Madison college, founded in 1825 and several schools grist and saw mills, manufactures of leather earthenware, and spirits, and three printing-offices. Pop. 2700.

UNITED STATES or N. AMERICA, an immense federal republic, comprising the whole of the central portion of the continent, between lat. 24° and 39° N. and lon. 67° and 125° W.; stretching from E. to W. between the Atlantic and the N. Pacific Oceans, and from N. to S. between British America and the Gulf and Confederation of Mexico; greatest length, E. to W., 2900 m., greatest breadth, 1700 m., area, estimated at 3,350,000 sq. m. or only about 500,000 sq. m. less than the whole continent of Europe. The number of the states and territories forming the republic is (1854) 37. Their area population (free and slave), churches, schools, exports and imports &c. are given in the following table; with the date of their being received into the Union, those marked * being the original states.—

NAME, AREA, POPULATION, CHURCHES, &c., OF THE DIFFERENT STATES.

| State. | Area in sq. miles. | Population in 1850. | St. of 1850. | Whites. | Free Coloured. | Slaves. | Ch. in 1850. | Anglican. | Other Denominations. | Methodist of Free Ch. | Date of Admission. | Exports. | Imports. |
|-----------------------|--------------------|---------------------|--------------|-----------|----------------|-----------|--------------|-----------|----------------------|-----------------------|--------------------|------------|------------|
| Alabama, 1800 | 50,000 | 102,180 | 19-44 | 961,818 | 1,850 | | 281 | 304,477 | 30,100 | 8,832 | 30,323 | 345,894 | 518,958 |
| "New Hampshire | 9,250 | 317,364 | 39-96 | 317,364 | | | 101 | 335,888 | 18,000 | 9,106 | 31,870 | 18,000 | 16,000 |
| Arkansas, 1781 | 54,524 | 314,135 | 39-96 | 314,135 | | | 181 | 308,408 | 30,000 | 9,703 | 34,000 | 27,000 | 30,000 |
| "California, 1850 | 78,000 | 904,899 | 137-92 | 305,480 | 9,004 | | 1,435 | 852,500 | 10,000 | 1,619 | 73,845 | 3,618,000 | 6,700,000 |
| "Colorado, 1861 | 1,074 | 167,344 | 113-97 | 167,344 | 3,070 | | 221 | 86,705 | 10,000 | 8,000 | 1,107 | 18,000 | 20,000 |
| "Connecticut | 4,574 | 370,701 | 39-93 | 369,189 | 7,512 | | 719 | 393,300 | 32,000 | 1,744 | 19,135 | 701,330 | 70,000 |
| "Delaware | 4,600 | 3,07,299 | 67-93 | 3,033,338 | 49,000 | | 4,028 | 1,294,799 | 120,000 | 15,320 | 167,407 | 17,484,000 | 15,483,000 |
| "Florida, 1820 | 5,500 | 998,618 | 38-96 | 465,612 | 23,850 | 283 | 327 | 344,885 | 15,000 | 1,279 | 19,000 | 280 | 430 |
| "Georgia, 1788 | 40,000 | 3,71,700 | 39-93 | 3,519,682 | 33,000 | | 3,459 | 1,548,430 | 70,000 | 8,011 | 46,447 | 1,186,714 | 9,977,000 |
| "Idaho, 1890 | 3,100 | 91,139 | 49-97 | 71,129 | 10,018 | 3,200 | 180 | 86,741 | 8,000 | 974 | 8,000 | | |
| "Illinois, 1809 | 57,000 | 1,033,038 | 39-97 | 617,943 | 74,732 | 90,200 | 309 | 336,536 | 30,000 | 5,001 | 1,233,579 | 1,548,000 | 1,548,000 |
| "Indiana, 1800 | 36,403 | 1,431,681 | 39-97 | 896,000 | 54,000 | 478,500 | 8,000 | 834,000 | 180,000 | 4,480 | 30,000 | 344,000 | 247,171 |
| "Iowa, 1846 | 56,000 | 760,909 | 39-93 | 618,000 | 37,000 | 82,500 | 1,070 | 618,500 | 16,000 | 1,900 | 1,012 | 113,700 | 81,000 |
| "Kansas, 1861 | 80,000 | 663,107 | 37-96 | 3,467 | 3,999 | 334,000 | 1,183 | 438,000 | 20,000 | 1,000 | 9,000 | 2,284,000 | 462,120 |
| "Kentucky, 1792 | 39,400 | 306,989 | 16-96 | 341,479 | 3,651 | 321,000 | 1,721 | 618,000 | 30,000 | 804 | 4,000 | 960,018 | 94,000 |
| "Louisiana, 1800 | 52,400 | 286,989 | 16-96 | 498,000 | 1,112 | 47,000 | 1,001 | 588,000 | 30,000 | 1,112 | 5,112 | 3,777,141 | 117,000 |
| "Maine, 1820 | 33,000 | 306,989 | 39-97 | 306,989 | | | 719 | 318,979 | 30,000 | 974 | 2,000 | | |
| "Maryland, 1788 | 10,000 | 1,177,281 | 11-18 | 864,000 | 77,448 | 244,800 | 370 | 304,000 | 100,000 | 100 | 7,001 | 8,227,777 | 8,421,848 |
| "Massachusetts, 1780 | 8,000 | 518,000 | 39-93 | 154,000 | 377 | 63,161 | 100 | 64,415 | 30,000 | 4 | 148,615 | 15,000 | 6,000 |
| "Michigan, 1836 | 30,000 | 267,117 | 11-17 | 47,511 | 804 | 49,300 | 100 | 41,370 | 10,000 | 60 | 182 | 400,000 | |
| "Minnesota, 1858 | 37,000 | 602,402 | 39-97 | 261,417 | 11,070 | 310,911 | 1,018 | 478,000 | 30,000 | 777 | 11,000 | 37,118 | 37,118 |
| "Mississippi, 1790 | 36,000 | 1,038,000 | 38-96 | 754,738 | 4,001 | 289,260 | 1,000 | 606,000 | 30,000 | 811 | 4,700 | 11,000 | 11,000 |
| "Montana, 1864 | 100,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Nebraska, 1860 | 77,000 | 200,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Nevada, 1864 | 110,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "New Hampshire, 1776 | 9,250 | 317,364 | 39-96 | 317,364 | | | 101 | 335,888 | 18,000 | 9,106 | 31,870 | 18,000 | 16,000 |
| "New Jersey, 1776 | 8,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "New Mexico, 1848 | 120,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "New York, 1788 | 54,524 | 3,71,700 | 39-93 | 3,519,682 | 33,000 | | 3,459 | 1,548,430 | 70,000 | 8,011 | 46,447 | 1,186,714 | 9,977,000 |
| "North Carolina, 1776 | 50,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Ohio, 1803 | 22,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Oregon, 1859 | 24,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Pennsylvania, 1776 | 46,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Rhode Island, 1790 | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "South Carolina, 1776 | 32,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Tennessee, 1796 | 60,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Texas, 1845 | 697,541 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Vermont, 1792 | 9,600 | 267,117 | 11-17 | 47,511 | 804 | 49,300 | 100 | 41,370 | 10,000 | 60 | 182 | 400,000 | |
| "Virginia, 1788 | 38,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Washington, 1889 | 70,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "West Virginia, 1863 | 62,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Wisconsin, 1848 | 52,000 | 1,000,000 | 39-93 | 1,000,000 | | | 1,000 | 1,000,000 | | | | | |
| "Wyoming, 1890 | 9,600 | 267,117 | 11-17 | 47,511 | 804 | 49,300 | 100 | 41,370 | 10,000 | 60 | 182 | 400,000 | |
| Total | 3,350,000 | 3,350,000 | 39-93 | 3,350,000 | 43,640 | 3,306,360 | 56,011 | 3,306,360 | 1,100,000 | 100,000 | 1,000,000 | 1,000,000 | 1,000,000 |

General Features.—The shores of the United States are in general low and shelving; in the West they are generally bold and rocky. The mountains are comparatively few, and of no great magnitude, but are more numerous on the N. than on the W. side. The most important on the Atlantic are Chesapeake Bay, between the British provinces of New Brunswick and the state of Maine; Massachusetts Bay, between Cape Ann and Cod; Long Island Sound, between Long Island and Connecticut, and in connection with it the noble bay of New York; Delaware Bay, commencing between Cape May and Hatteras, and penetrating far into the interior, between the states of New Jersey and Delaware; Chesapeake Bay commencing between Cape Charles and Hatteras, and then stretching N through Virginia and Maryland for about 300 m.; Albemarle and Pamlico Sounds on the coast of N. Carolina. The Gulf of Mexico is only an immense indentation of the Atlantic but contains no such indentation of any consequence. The Pacific is also deficient in bays, but possesses in that of San Francisco, on the coast of California, one of the largest and finest natural harbours in the world. The coast of the Atlantic is remarkable for the almost total absence of islands, the only ones of the least consequence over a range of more than 15° from lat. 30° to 45°, being Long Island, already mentioned, and on the coast of the Pacific, though the islands are more numerous, they are all insignificant in respect of magnitude. The mainland consists of two mountain-chains, which stretch as a comparatively short distance from the opposite coasts, and in directions nearly parallel to them, and inclose between them a vast tract, sometimes so elevated as to deserve the name of a plateau, and so sterile as to present all the character of a desert, and other times so depressed as to form a deep and level valley traversed by mighty rivers, belonging chiefly to the basin of the Mississippi, and spreading out into luxuriant prairie, rich alluvial plains, and boundless swamps, regularly laid under water. By far the loftiest and most magnificent of the two chains is that of the Rocky Mountains, which, entering from Mexico, of whose cordilleras they may be considered a continuation, stretch N along the Pacific, at distances from it varying from 500 m. to 600 m. and are continued into British America. Within the U. States, they attain in Long's Peak or Highmore, about lat. 38° N. on 106° W., the height of 13,755 ft. They have a breadth of about 800 m. and, besides showing evidence of several transverse ramifications descended, by a series of parallel ranges, of which that of the Sierra Nevada is the most elevated, towards the coast, and often give it very bold features. The E. chain, that of the Alleghenias, stretches in a similar direction along the shores of the Atlantic nearly from the Gulf of Mexico to the St. Lawrence at a considerable distance from the shore in the S, but gradually approaching it towards the N. Though by no means destitute of magnificent scenery the Alleghenias are much lower than the Rocky Mountains, consisting rather of a long plateau crowned with mountains and hills, than of a well-defined continuous chain occasionally rising in Vermont and New Hampshire to the height of 6000 ft. or 6000 ft. but on an average not exceeding 3000 ft. and only in Pennsylvania and Virginia attaining a breadth of 100 m.

Rivers and Lakes.—The great plateau and valley inclosed by these two chains belongs almost entirely to the basin of the Mississippi, which is by far the largest river of the N. American continent, and in respect both of length and magnitude, ranks high among the greatest rivers of the world. For a course of nearly 3200 m., commencing in dreary lakes and swamps in the W. of Lake Superior it flows S.E. into the Gulf of Mexico. Among other large tributaries it receives on its right bank the Missouri, which joins it after a course of more than 2500 m., and more than doubles its volume, being, though only an affluent, the recipient of streams more than 800 m. long—the Arkansas, which conveys to it waters collected during a course of 1800 m.—and the Red River, which, after flowing E. through the S. part of what has been called the great American desert, joins S.E. and June it after a course of above 1000 m. The chief tributaries of its L. bank are the Wisconsin, Illinois, and Ohio, all of them diminutive compared with those of the R. bank, except the last, which, formed by two considerable streams, the Allegheny and Monongahela, flows S.W. for 945 m., receiving, among others, the Wabash, Cumberland, and Tennessee. The country W. of the Rocky Mountains, belonging to the basin of the Pacific, is of comparatively little width, though of very great length, and hence occupies host of many large rivers.

The most important are the Columbia, navigable for 125 m. by vessels of 300 tons, the Sacramento, which discharges itself into the Bay of San Francisco, is deserving of notice, more for its locality than for its magnitude, and the Colorado, which falls into the Gulf of California. Between the Alleghenias and the Atlantic, the principal rivers are the Connecticut, which falls into Long Island Sound, the Hudson a magnificent stream, which, allies remarkable for its scenery and its navigable importance, flows S. for 300 m. and contributes to form the harbour of New York; the Delaware, which, after a course of 300 m., falls into the bay of that name, and is navigable by ships of the line to Philadelphia, a distance of 40 m.; the Potomac, which falls into Chesapeake Bay and is navigable by the largest vessels to Washington, a distance, including the bay, of 200 m. and the Savannah, which, after separating between S. Carolina and Georgia, enters Savannah Bay and being navigable for large vessels for 17 m. to the town of Savannah, there forms an important harbour. Besides the rivers, one of the most remarkable features of the United States, but common to them and Canada, is the chain of enormous fresh-water lakes—Superior, Michigan, Huron, Erie, and Ontario, which drain an area of about 1,000,000 sq. m. and send its waters into the St. Lawrence, after precipitating the greater part of them in an accumulated mass over the renowned falls of Niagara, between the two last-mentioned lakes. In the interior of the country the most extensive lakes are those of Lake Champlain in the N. between the states of Vermont and New York, and the Great Salt Lake, near the N. frontier of the Mormon territory of Utah.

Geology and Mineralogy.—Though imperfectly explored in some of the best settlements, the geology of the United States is better known than that of many countries in Europe, owing chiefly to the liberal and enlightened measures adopted by the different states in order to obtain geological surveys, but partly also to the explorations of eminent European geologists among whom I will mention the foremost place. Immense alluvial tracts occur along the Gulf of Mexico, commencing in the United States at the Rio-Grande, their S. boundary, and covering a wide belt of the state of Texas, the whole of Louisiana, considerable portions of Arkansas and Alabama, and the whole of Florida. Similar tracts, but narrower, stretch N along the Atlantic, as far as the N. E. extremity of Long Island but are partially interrupted by tertiary groups, which belong to theocene or tertiary period, in parts of Georgia and S. Carolina, and to the miocene, or less ancient period, in N. Carolina, Virginia, and Delaware. In the same states, and more especially in the N. and W. of New Jersey, the cretaceous system is seen in isolated spots or narrow strips. The chief development of this system, however, occurs to the N. of the alluvial lands of the Gulf of Mexico where it forms the prevailing formation of large areas in the states of Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama. The alluvial and tertiary tracts along the Atlantic already referred to are not followed in like manner by the cretaceous system but by a large development of what has been called hypogene rocks consisting of granite gneiss, &c., which stretch N from Alabama and the W. parts of Georgia, along the main chain and the S. slopes of the Alleghenias, become greatly narrowed in Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania, but afterwards widen out in Massachusetts, and then cover a large part of the N. of New York, and the whole, or almost the whole of Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine. From Virginia N to Massachusetts, the granite and gneiss inclose narrow belts of new red sandstone, pierced by masses of trap. These seem to be the only spots of the United States where either new red sandstone or trap occurs. In the Alleghenias, W. of the granite and gneiss, the alluvial system, forming the lowest series of sedimentary rocks, begins to be developed. It commences on the banks of the Tennessee where it turns W. and stretches in a narrow belt, but without interruption till it reaches the frontiers of Vermont. It belongs to the lower part of the system, and consists chiefly of what is known by the name of Trenton limestone. It is succeeded W. by narrow strips of old red sandstone and occasional belts of carboniferous limestone, giving indication of the approach of the true coal-measures. These, accordingly immediately occur on a scale of almost unexampled magnitude, and form an immense coal-field which stretches continuously from S.E.W. to N.N.W., between the parallel of 35° and 43°, for a distance of more than 800 m. Both in the S. and N. it tapers nearly to a point, but gradually widens out from both extremities, all on the parallel of 40° N has a width of 170 m. The area of the whole field is moderately estimated at 46,000 sq. m. The coal occurs in numerous thick beds, partly bituminous and partly anthracite, is well adapted both for domestic and manufacturing purposes, and is accompanied by valuable seams of iron-ore, and the limestone necessary for smelting. The old red sandstone, already mentioned as bounding this coal-field on the E. widens out so as to occupy an extensive area on the N., and is then continued S. as a narrow belt so as to form the greater part of its W. outer edge. Still further W. chiefly in the states of Ohio and Indiana, this old red sandstone is succeeded by rocks of the algonian system, belonging, with few exceptions, to the upper series, but again appears in a very remarkable shape, forming, along with an inner belt of carboniferous limestones, an oval almost mathematically exact, and including, as with a kind of outer rim, the great coal-field of Illinois. This coal-field, which consists of horizontal strata, with numerous rich seams of bituminous coal, comprehends parts of the states of Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky and has an area not much less than that of all England. Beyond this coal field, to the W., the rocks of the algonian system are continued into Missouri, and both there and in the N. of Arkansas are seen reaching a large elliptical area of granite and gneiss. The extreme W. has not been explored, and the space left blank by Lyell in his geological map of the United States remains to be filled up by the investigations of future geologists. In the N., however, the geological structure is well known. The remarkable peninsula of Michigan washed by the lake of that name on the W., and by Lake Huron and Erie on the E., consists of three distinct formations, following each other in regular series—first, the upper algonian system bounding it on the S. and S.E., and terminating it on the N., next, the old red sandstone, immediately overlying the Huron rocks bounding Lake Michigan on the E. and Lake Huron on the W., and stretching round on all sides so as to inclose a large heart-shaped nucleus; and, lastly this nucleus itself consisting of a thin rim of carboniferous limestones, which forms the basis of a third coal-field of small dimensions compared with the other two, but large compared with most of our European coal-fields, having a length, from N. to S. of 150 m. with a maximum breadth 50 m., and thus comprising an area of not less than 1500 m. To the N.W. of Lake Michigan and to the E. and W. of Lake Superior tracts of granite and gneiss occur and appear to be rich in veins of copper. The large blank left in the geological map of the United States in regard to the territories which have been newly organized or recently acquired has begun to be filled up in the S.W. towards the shores of the Pacific, in consequence of the discovery of a vast auriferous region, which, though its limits are not yet defined, evidently covers a great area in California. As far as has yet been ascertained this gold region appears to occupy an area from 400 m. to 500 m. long, and from 40 m. to 50 m. wide but the area will probably widen out as the different districts of the territory are more accurately explored. The matrix of the metal is quartz, existing in the form of veins or rocky masses, embodied in granite and primitive schists. These accordingly appear to be the prevailing geological formations. As yet, however the gold has not been found to any great extent at one, and has been chiefly obtained by collecting it by various mechanical processes from the superficial debris which floods and torrents have brought down from the mountains. Besides gold, copper seems to be an abundant product of this remarkable district, and from its use as an amalgam for the extraction of gold, a of occurs abundantly sought after. Other metals, as copper lead, and iron, undoubtedly exist in the same region in quantities sufficient to yield productive returns. At the opposite extremity of the Union in the N.W., on the shores of Lake Superior, copper occurs both in rich veins, and in enormous boulders, weighing several tons, and has been successfully obtained to such an extent as nearly to meet the demand of the western markets. The mines of lead in Missouri and Illinois are said to be almost inexhaustible, though apparently little has yet been done to turn them to account. The great coal-fields of the country have already been referred to, and, though of comparatively little value for domestic purpose so long as a cheaper fuel is so easily obtained from the unexplored forests, is already working to a considerable extent for the supply of marine steam-engines, and the melting and working of iron. For the latter purpose, it is so extensively employed, that in Pennsylvania, the iron manufactures give substance to one-tenth of the inhabitants, and in several other states forms an important interest. Salt is abundant in New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia, and in all the N.W. states, and in the territory of Utah the Great Salt Lake, and its valley, it is truly inexhaustible. In marble and limestone, granite, and other varieties of building-stones, roofing-slates, and potter's-clay, few countries in the world are better supplied.

Climate.—A vast country, stretching over 35° of latitude, and exhibiting all possible varieties of surface—low swampy shores, boundless alluvial plains swelling billowy ranges, elevated acid deserts, and lofty mountain-chains—must obviously possess, not one climate, but a number of climates, not only differing greatly from each other, but often exhibiting the most remarkable contrasts. The only one feature which can be said to be common to all the climates of the United States, is inconsistency. The transitions from cold to heat, and humidity to drought, take place so suddenly and to such an extent, that even in the central states, a change of 5° in the thermometer in the course of a few hours, is by no means uncommon. On the N. frontier, these changes become still more marked and, on the other hand, at the opposite extremity, are so much diminished, that the thermometer in Florida is almost stationary throughout the year, and at no time varies so as to give an annual range of more than 12°. Compared with Europe, the climate of the United States exhibits very remarkable differences. The isothermal lines which pass through Belgium in lat. 51° after crossing the Atlantic, is found at Boston in lat. 42° 45', and there which passes between Rome and Florence in lat. 43° is found in the United States at Raleigh in lat. 36°. In the N. of the States, between lat. 42° and 45°, nearly on the parallel of Rome, Toulon, Padua, and Bordeaux, the winter is so severe for three or four months that the snow is abundant enough for the use of sledges, and the ice of the rivers strong enough to be crossed by horses and waggons. In Philadelphia, lat. 39° 54', the mean annual temperature is 54° 9' whereas in Naples, lat. 40° 55', it is 53° 9'; in other words, the American town, which, from having a lower latitude, ought to have a higher annual temperature than the European town is about 9° colder. The ranges of temperature are still more remarkable than the annual averages, and hence it has been and with truth, that while New York has the summer of Rome, it has the winter of Copenhagen. The prevailing winds of the United States are the N.W. S.W., and N.E. The first, blowing from frozen regions, over high mountains and plateaus, prevails in winter, and though piercingly cold, is usually dry until it reaches the shores of the Atlantic, where meeting with dense vapours, it condenses them into snow hail or rain. The second prevails in summer particularly on the W. side of the Appalachians, and in the basin of the Mississippi, where, indeed, it blows more or less at all seasons, except at the winter solstice. The third arises on the American coast, charged with the vapours collected in its course from the Arctic, and across the Atlantic Ocean, and immediately deposits them in cold dense mists or heavy showers. The average fall of rain is estimated at 27½ inches, whereas in the N.W. of Europe, it is only 18½ inches, and yet in the United States, as the showers, when they do fall, are more copious and persistent also, more constant, the number of rainy days is fewer. In the more elevated middle districts the climate is decidedly healthy, and instances of great longevity are of frequent occurrence, but on the low flats of the S. and the immense plains on which the great rivers are continually overflowing their banks, cutting out new channels, and forming extensive marshes, all the diseases engendered by miasmata prevail, and indicate their presence in the quivering fumes and yellow fogs of the inhabitants.

Vegetation, Agriculture, &c.—A large portion of the United States still remains in a state of nature, either because from its arid nature it never can be brought under profitable cultivation, or because the population is still too thinly scattered to be able to overcome it. On the former description of land vegetation is either altogether extinct, or produces very stunted forms; on the latter it is usually of the most magnificent description, being either covered by dense furs or spread out in boundless prairies of the richest verdure. Of forest-trees 140 different kinds have been counted, and of these no more than 80 obtain an average height of 60 ft. Several of the trees are valuable not merely for their timber, but for other products, among which special notice is due to the sugar-maple. Among cultivated crops, the most important are wheat, the great staple of the western and middle states, but cultivated more or less extensively in every district; maize, equally adapted for universal culture, but most productive in the middle states of Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Tennessee, and Missouri; tobacco, which began to be cultivated on the parallel of 40°, but is only considered a staple in Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland and Tennessee, cotton which forms a staple in all the states from 39° N. and more especially in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, the Carolinas, and Tennessee; rice, chiefly in S. Carolina; cane-sugar in Louisiana, Florida, Texas, and Georgia; and maple-sugar in New York, Vermont, Ohio, and Indiana; hemp and flax in all the western and middle states but more especially in Kentucky, Ohio, Missouri, and Virginia; and hay, chiefly in New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. The culture of the vine also has made good progress, and above 140,000 gallons of wine are produced, chiefly in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Indiana. In many parts of the Union the mulberry-tree grows spontaneously, and though it has hitherto attracted little attention, might obviously be turned to good account in the production of silk. Fruits also, both of the temperate and tropical climates, grow in great variety and abundance, the N. yielding apples, pears, cherries, plums, &c., and the S., figs, olives, oranges, pine-apples, almonds, melons, &c. The domestic animals, the same at those of Europe have so greatly increased, that their value in 1860 was estimated at above £100,000,000 sterling. Sheep are now so numerous in New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Vermont, &c., that the wool alone furnishes an important source of national wealth, and amounted in 1860, to above £2,000,000 lbs. The cattle kept for feeding cannot easily be estimated, but the produce of the dairy was ascertained in 1860 to amount to £15,000,000 lbs. butter and 100,000,000 lbs. cheese, have made chiefly in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Massachusetts. Immense numbers of hogs also are reared almost without expense, on the waste of the forests. Among wild animals, the first place is due to the bison, which in countless herds roams over the vast prairies to the W. of the Mississippi; the other more remarkable animals are the moose or American elk, the prong-horned antelope, the cougar or puma, the black and grisly bear, the racoon, opossum, beaver; birds in almost endless variety including swans, wild turkeys, wild geese, wild ducks, eagles, vultures, mocking and humming birds, &c., including the deadly rattlesnake and alligators which, though unknown to the U. and middle states, inhabit the lagoons and estuaries S. of the Carolinas.

Manufactures.—The number of inhabitants employed in these is as yet small compared with those employed in agriculture, but, partly from the native energy of the people and still more perhaps from the adventurous encouragement which, whether judiciously or not, has been liberally given them in the form of protecting duties, various important branches of industry have made considerable progress. That of iron has already been incidentally adverted to. In 1860, 31 states had furnaces for smelting iron, absorbed a capital estimated at £2,500,000, employed 30,448 persons, and produced 564,765 tons of pig valued at £2,540,000. In the same year 422 establishments, 231 of them in Pennsylvania, were manufacturing malleable-iron, with a capital of £2,800,000, employing 13,976 hands, and producing 373,044 tons, valued at £2,260,000. Castings made to a greater or less extent in all the states, except Florida and Arkansas, absorbed a capital of £2,600,000, employed 21,599 hands, and produced £35,745 tons of goods, valued at £5,000,000 sterling. The cotton manufacture, the next great branch of national industry is carried on in seven states, but to a great extent only in five—Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New York. The capital invested (1860) was nearly £15,000,000 the hands employed, 81,151 males, and 59,188 females, and the value of the products, consisting of above 763,000,000 yards sheeting, and nearly 28,000,000 lbs. yarn and thread, estimated at rather more than £12,000,000 sterling. In 1840 the value was only £2,000,000. The goods are seldom of a fine description, and consist chiefly of shirtings, shadings, calicoes, and heavy domestics for negro wear. The woollen manufacture is carried on in 26 states, but to a considerable extent only in six—Massachusetts (to the extent of nearly a third of the whole), New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Ohio. The capital invested is between £25,000,000 and £26,000,000 sterling, the number of hands 89,252 and the value of the products above £3,600,000. Domestic looms, for the manufacture of woollens, have existed in the states from an early period, but the first large establishments were introduced only about 30 years ago. They have nearly doubled their capital, and more than doubled their products since 1840. The manufactures of wool cotton, and wool alone detailed, may be considered the staples of the United States, but there are various other important branches of industry, among which may be specified articles in wood, silk, flax, and mixed textures; machinery hardware and the products of numerous tanneries, soap and candle works, distilleries and breweries, paint and dye works, glass houses, potteries, brick-works, rope-walks, sugar-houses, and corn, saw and paper and powder mills, &c. Exclusive of the great staples last mentioned, the value of all other manufactured goods is roughly estimated at about £175,000,000 sterling.

Trade.—This is of such enormous extent that it has already outstripped that of all the countries of the Old World, with the single exception of Great Britain. It may be viewed under the two great heads of domestic and foreign. The former includes the large traffic carried on coast-wise, up the large rivers and rivers, and on the great lakes, the scarcely less important traffic of the basin of the Mississippi, chiefly by steam boats, but partly also by rude flat bottomed barges and even canoes, and the overland traffic between the western and the Atlantic states, consisting principally of hogs, horses, cattle, and mules. The foreign trade is shared to a greater or less extent by all the maritime states of the Union but more especially by the four New England states—Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Maine, and next to these, by New York, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. Among these, Massachusetts takes the foremost place and has acquired such a pre-eminence, that though it has less than one-twenty-fifth of the population of the Union, it owns more than one-fourth of the shipping tonnage. The exports consist principally of agricultural products both vegetable and animal including lumber and other articles obtained from the forest. Among the more important items are vegetable food in the forms of wheat, flour, rice, Indian corn, and Indian meal, and animal food, chiefly in the form of pickled pork, bacon, beef and dried fish. But more important than all these is cotton, which alone exceeds the aggregate value of all other exports. After it may be ranked tobacco, raw, but more especially refined sugar, naval stores including tar, pitch, rosin, and turpentine, sahes, tallow and hides, horned cattle, horses and mules, skins and furs, butter and cheese. Manufactured articles also begin to hold a high place in the list of exports. The more important are cotton goods, plain and coloured, cotton-twist, iron and articles in iron, household furniture, and silver articles in wood, soap and tallow-candles, leather raw and manufactured, hats, wearing apparel, spirits, medicinal drugs, &c. The fisheries, in addition to the dried fish already mentioned furnish large exports of whale and other fish oil, sperm-oil, whalebone, &c. and have, in fact, become one of the most important interests of the Union. In 1860 the whale-fishery pursued in all the great seas but more especially S. of the equator in the Atlantic for the black whale, and in the Indian and Pacific Oceans for the sperm-oil whale, employed 141,012 tons of shipping, manned by 12,000 seamen and produced 641,946 barrels whale and 98,684 barrels sperm oil, while the cod-fishery, pursued partly off the coasts of New England, but to a much larger extent in the seas of British America, as far N. as Labrador and E. to the great bank of Newfoundland, employed 80,946 tons of shipping. An additional 58,111 tons were, during the same year, employed in the mackerel-fishery. To the other leading exports above mentioned, that of gold in the forms both of coin and bullion must now be added. The imports, of which more than one-half enter the port of New York, consist of European manu-

A view of the progress of the trade of the United States, from 1791 to the present time, is shown in the following table of the aggregate imports and exports, and of the tonnage employed.

TOTAL IMPORTS AND EXPORTS OF THE UNITED STATES, at intervals, from 1791 to 1895.

| Year. | Imports. | Exports. | Tonnage. |
|-------|-------------|------------|-----------|
| 1791 | 410,440,000 | 8,302,400 | 808,140 |
| 1801 | 85,978,700 | 10,924,100 | 1,038,810 |
| 1811 | 10,000,000 | 19,943,000 | 1,800,000 |
| 1821 | 16,517,146 | 15,968,376 | 1,936,900 |
| 1831 | 30,978,887 | 10,048,118 | 1,857,847 |
| 1841 | 54,002,816 | 34,570,000 | 2,104,000 |
| 1851 | 81,027,007 | 49,940,000 | 2,880,185 |
| 1861 | 92,446,910 | 50,928,281 | 3,417,000 |
| 1871 | 94,506,888 | 50,907,708 | 3,665,000 |
| 1881 | 99,300,177 | 81,709,744 | 3,938,000 |
| 1891 | 101,931,836 | 80,807,887 | 4,144,000 |
| 1895 | 99,971,408 | 80,111,161 | 4,284,010 |
| 1899 | 84,497,618 | 87,000,813 | 4,485,464 |
| 1901 | 65,444,086 | 68,977,938 | 5,773,028 |
| 1904 | 46,683,086 | 61,008,836 | 4,139,441 |

In the year ending June 30, 1895, the numbers of vessels entered from foreign countries were—American, 8,964; foreign, 10,607; total, 19,571;—and cleared for foreign countries—American, 9,987; foreign, 10,488; total, 19,895.

NUMBERS AND TONNAGE OF VESSELS ENTERED AND TOTAL TONNAGE RECEIVED OF MERCHANDISE AND CARGOES, IN THE UNITED STATES, in 1899 and from 1849 to 1895 inclusive.

| Year. | Vessels built. | Tonnage of vessels built. | Total tonnage of U. S. boats. |
|-------|----------------|---------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1849 | 858 | 180,000 | 2,098,470 |
| 1849 | 1,477 | 218,177 | 2,434,014 |
| 1849 | 1,820 | 273,518 | 2,884,464 |
| 1851 | 1,897 | 282,000 | 3,272,400 |
| 1895 | 1,648 | 281,408 | 4,139,441 |

Internal Communications.—The most important of these, furnished by nature herself on a most gigantic scale, in navigable rivers and lakes, have already been adverted to. To complete her work and extend it, much has already been accomplished by the hand of man, and probably more is either in actual progress or in contemplation. The canals, comparatively few in number have an aggregate length of 6000 m., of which more than one-half is confined to the states of New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. With the exception of the New York and Erie, the Wabash and Erie, the Miami, and the Illinois, and Michigan, which may be considered great national thoroughfares, these canals have not so much opened new lines of commerce as contributed to the improvement of those previously existing. Nor is it likely, that, in future, their number or importance will be much increased, as the mode of communication by rail roads destined ultimately to supersede all others, and possesses peculiar facilities in the United States from various causes, among which, not the least important is the moderate cost at which the land to be occupied can be obtained. In 1859, the aggregate length of completed railroads was 12,000 m., and of those in progress, 8000 m. In no state has the average cost exceeded $6000 per mile whereas in France it has exceeded $21,000 and in England is not less than $25,000. Up to 1849, the length of electric telegraph actually completed was 7886 m.

Weights and Measures, Currency &c.—The weights and measures are the same as those of Great Britain. Accounts are kept in dollars or about 4s. 2d. sterling, cents or hundredths, and mills or thousandths of a dollar. The currency is partly in paper and partly in specie. The former seems to absorb the larger share of the circulation, and is by no means on a satisfactory footing. Since the charter of the bank of the United States expired, there has been no national bank, and both banking and the issue of notes are generally in the hands of joint-stock companies, incorporated by their respective states, possessed of a fixed capital, which, in too many instances, is only imaginary, and enjoying for the most part the privilege of a limited liability. The number of such banks in 1851, was 724, with 148 branches; their capital, $55,510,000; their circulation, $81,000,000, and their liabilities, $115,000,000. To meet the loan, their principal resources in the payment of loans and discounts reside to the amount of $23,648,000. The amount of the specie currency cannot be ascertained. It consists of gold, silver, and copper coins. Gold is coined in double eagles = 20 dollars, eagles = 10 dollars, half-eagles, quarter-eagles, and dollars. Silver is coined in dollars of 100 cents, half-dollars, quarters, dimes or 10 cents, half-dimes, and pieces of three cents. The only copper coins are cents and half cents.

Government.—The Government of the United States is a federal republic, based on the constitution of 1787. This constitution was drawn and adopted by a convention, which was composed of delegates from the 13 original states, and presided over by Washington. It has been partially modified by subsequent amendments, but remains essentially the same. Each state maintains its own separate independence and by means of a state legislature and executive, has complete management of its own peculiar affairs, but the whole States considered as a Union, has one supreme legislature, which takes the name of Congress, and consists of a senate and house of representatives. The senate consists of two members from each state, elected by its own legislature for six years, one-third of the whole body being renewable biennially. Senators must be resident in the state which chooses them, citizens of the United States of nine years standing, and at least 30 years of age. The house of representatives consists of members chosen biennially by the people of the several states, in numbers proportioned to their population as ascertained by a decennial census. Each state appoints at least one representative. The total number of representatives, based upon the census of 1850 is 338. Representatives must be resident in their electing states, citizens of the United States of seven years standing and at least 25 years of age. Congress meets at least once a year and on the 1st Monday of December unless otherwise specially provided by law. Its leading powers are to levy taxes, duties, imports, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the Union, to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, to coin money, declare war, raise and maintain an army and navy, &c. To secure the general control of Congress, it is provided that no state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation, coin money or make anything but gold and silver a legal tender, make any law impairing the obligation of contracts, levy duties on imports or exports, except with the consent of Congress, and for the use of the United States treasury keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, or enter into any agreement or compact with another state, or with a foreign power. The executive is vested in a president, chosen for four years, but re-elected indefinitely by the ballot of an electoral college. This college is peculiarly formed. None of its members can be either a senator or representative in Congress, or in possession of any office of profit or trust under the general government. Each state in such manner as its legislature may provide chooses as many electors as it sends senators and representatives to Congress. The president and vice-president are chosen by the majority of these electors in the case of an equality of votes, the president is chosen by the house of representatives, and the vice-president by the senate. The only important restrictions are, that, in this, the house of representatives votes not by a majority but by states, each state having a single vote, and that the electors both of president and vice-president must fall on one or other of the three candidates who received the greatest number of electoral votes. The president, who must be a native born citizen 35 years of age, and resident in the United States for 14 years, is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and has the power, in concurrence with two-thirds of the senate, to make treaties, appoint civil and military officers, levy war, conclude peace, &c. He has even a veto on the laws passed by Congress, at least until such time as the same law, when again brought under consideration, has received the assent of two-thirds of both houses. The vice-president presides in the senate, acts for him in cases of temporary disability, and, in case of death or permanent disability succeeds him for the whole period of his office which was unexpired. The business of the executive is administered by what is called the cabinet, consisting of seven principal officers—the secretary of state, secretary of war, secretary of the navy, secretary of the treasury, postmaster-general, secretary of the interior and attorney-general. Each of these has a salary of $1000 per annum, except the last, whose salary is only $600. The judicial powers of the Union are vested in a supreme court, provided over by a chief justice, and eight associate justices, and such other inferior court as Congress may from time to time establish. These inferior courts consist of present district courts and district courts, the former held by a justice of the supreme court and a district judge conjointly, and the latter by a district judge alone. All these judges hold their office during good behavior and are removable only on impeachment, but in order to form a correct idea of the judicial system of the United States, it is necessary to remember that the courts now mentioned judge only in matters which fall under the category of national, and that each separate state administers justice by its own judges, many of whom owe their appointments to the influence of the people, and hold them only for limited periods.

Revenue.—The general government derives its revenues, without direct taxation from customs, sales of public lands, and miscellaneous sources, and has its treasury in a condition which most of the states of the Old World may well envy. In 1850, its public debt did not amount to $14,000,000 sterling. Its receipts in the same year amounted to nearly $10,000,000 and after defraying all expenditures and employing nearly $1,500,000 in the extinction of debt, left a balance in the treasury of $1,330,000.

Army and Navy.—The policy of the United States has hitherto been opposed to the maintenance of a standing army as dangerous to freedom, and hence its regular force is only 10,317 men, including officers. For aggressive warfare, such a force is obviously insufficient, and except such very extraordinary occasions as the late Mexican war its prowess has not been often tested. For defensive warfare few countries are more amply provided. Not only is it strongly protected by the nature of the surface, covered with forests and swamps through which an invading force, however great, could scarcely force its way, while flanked by very inferior numbers, but the militia, composed with some legal exceptions, of all male citizens between 18 and 45 is in respect of courage and training, inferior to no militia in the world and has now reached the enormous number of 2,353,534. The navy, though always a favorite force with the citizens of the Union, has scarcely yet had an opportunity of proving its prowess in what can be called a general naval engagement. When individual ships have met those of the enemy the American seamen has seldom been found deficient, and during the last war with Great Britain, many instances occurred in which British were forced to strike to American frigates. It is but fair, however, to remind the American citizen when planning himself on such success, that while the British vessels engaged in these encounters were truly frigates, the American vessels were frigates only in name, and for the most part in respect both of dimensions and equipment, were truly ships of the line. The navy consists (1855) nominally of 11 ships of the line, 12 first-class frigates, 1 second-class frigate, 20 sloops of war, 4 brigs, 4 schooners, 15 steamers, and some small craft. The actual expenditure on the navy in 1850 was $1,384,623.

People.—In 1790 the population of the United States was 3,929,827. In 1820, a period of thirty years, it had increased to 9,688,191, and in 1850 after another period of thirty years, has been found, partly, however, in consequence of the accession of new territories, to amount to 23,555,065. In regard to this population a very marked distinction exists between the N. and the S. states. In the former, with a few exceptions, only one kind of human being is recognized, the constitution throws its shield over all, and freedom, to a degree long considered to be incompatible with the existence of any kind of government, is enjoyed by all as an inalienable birthright. In the latter a very different scene presents itself and we see not one kind of human being but two, easily distinguished by their features, the one being white and the other black; and, unhappily, still more remarkably distinguished by their relative positions, the one being masters and the other slaves. In judging of the social condition of the people, it is necessary to keep this distinction always in view, because the great advances in civilization, which have undoubtedly been made in the N. states, certainly cannot be recognized to the same extent in the S. states, where more than one-third of the whole population is regarded, in the eye of the law and systematically treated as mere chattels, in the same category with horses, cattle, and birds of cotton. But subject to this caveat, it must be admitted that the great body of the people in the United States are in circumstances of greater comfort than in common in European countries, and during the comparatively short period of their existence as a nation, have given decided proof of great physical, intellectual, and moral energy. In regard to religion, the tendencies of an establishment have seemed to them so inconsistent with pure democracy that they have not only rejected it, but have been careful in amending the constitution to insert a clause providing that Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion.* The different religious denominations thus left to depend on their own resources have betrayed no want of activity, but have been able to diffuse themselves widely over all the states of the Union, and give, not only to the larger towns, but remote and scattered villages, every appearance of being amply provided both with churches and ministers. The following table gives the names, churches, and aggregate accommodation of the different religious denominations. (See also table, p. 1189.)

RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

| Denom. | No. of Churches | Aggregate Accommodations |
|------------------|-----------------|--------------------------|
| Baptist | 6,779 | 4,130,978 |
| Christian | 818 | 594,090 |
| Congregational | 1,074 | 724,777 |
| Polish Reformed | 839 | 181,365 |
| Episcopal | 1,423 | 496,313 |
| Free | 361 | 108,446 |
| Friends | 714 | 237,523 |
| *German Reformed | 227 | 144,538 |
| Jewish | 81 | 16,378 |
| *Lutheran | 1,043 | 181,100 |
| Methodist | 110 | 99,900 |
| Methodist | 19,497 | 4,979,322 |
| Moravian | 281 | 113,163 |
| Presbyterian | 4,194 | 1,040,215 |
| Roman Catholic | 1,113 | 680,860 |
| Sacramentarians | 16 | 5,070 |
| Unitarian | 52 | 24,075 |
| Union | 619 | 313,248 |
| Unitarian | 348 | 127,997 |
| Universalist | 419 | 116,047 |
| Minor Sects | 838 | 115,347 |
| Total | 26,911 | 12,869,580 |

* The German Reformed and Lutheran denominations use the same building in many places.

The importance of education under a government where the whole power is directly as well as virtually in the hands of the people, has long been perceived, and strenuous efforts have accordingly been made, at least in all the older states, in furnishing both of a superior and of a common primary education. The necessary expenditure is provided partly by means of 'school funds' accumulated from various sources, and partly by taxation. In 1850 the total number of colleges and schools was about 100,000 of teachers, 115,000; and of scholars, 4,000,000, or at the rate of one for every five free persons. In speaking of free persons, we are again reminded of the millions of unhappy blacks, who are not only not educated, but denied the common rights of humanity and subjected to any treatment, however abominable, by which the greatest amount of profit can be obtained from their bodies and souls.

Thus the slave system is the plague spot of the Union, and so long as the S. states continue to carry it on, and the N. states continue to sanction and abet it, by not only recognizing the rights of the slave-owner but lending him the full authority of their laws to recapture the poor negro who may have escaped from his chains, and send him back to his cruel bondage, humanity will shudder at the very mention of American freedom, and smile incredulously at all that may be said of the high standard of American civilization.

History.—The first English colony within the limits of the Union was settled in Virginia, in 1607. It was sent out by two merchant companies, called the London company and the Plymouth company, and consisted of only 100 individuals, who were reduced, at the end of a year, to a third of their number from disease and poverty of food. A new colony, sent out in 1609, proved equally unfortunate, but new settlers continuing to arrive, a better footing was ultimately obtained, and a colonial assembly was for the first time convened in 1619. In 1639 a company, incorporated by royal charter, settled in Massachusetts, and laid the foundation of the colonies of New England. They consisted chiefly of Puritans, whom the persecutions of a cruel and bigoted government drove from their homes to seek shelter in the wilds of America. Their strict religious habits and zealous assertion of their political rights, are still characteristic of their descendants. Unfortunately the conduct of these new settlers was very inconsistent. While claiming unlimited religious freedom for themselves, they denied it to others, and numerous instances of their persecuting tendencies are on record. The states of Maryland and Virginia, colonized chiefly by English, Roman Catholics and royalist refugees, were remarkable for the development of an aristocratic and military spirit. The central states were of a more mixed character, having to a great extent been colonized by Dutch and Swedish, who remained in the country after it was ceded to Great Britain. Pennsylvania, colonized by the Society of Friends, long preserved much of the character of its founders, and generally observed a calm neutrality amid the commotions of the more excitable neighbours. But it is impossible to enter into a detail of the origin and progress of the different states now composing the Union. Their early history is merely that of a young colony occasionally depressed but more generally prosperous, and seldom engaged in transactions which possess much general interest. The most remarkable events were those of the wars which Great Britain and her colonies were obliged to wage with France, and which terminated as is well known, by the cession of Canada to Great Britain in 1763. No sooner was this peace concluded than the tranquillity and prosperity which it promised were rudely disturbed by a very harsh, impolitic, and almost inhuman procedure on the part of the mother country. On March 10 1764, the British Parliament resolved that it was proper to charge certain stamp duties on the colonies. This resolution was followed, in 1765, by an act for raising a revenue by a general stamp-duty through all the American colonies. The excitement, opposition, and violent commotions produced by this act led to its repeal in the following year, but the reconciliation thus attempted to be produced was defeated by a preamble, which asserted a sovereign right in the British Parliament to tax their colonies as they thought best expedient. This preamble was not long allowed to remain a dead letter, for, in 1767 an act was passed imposing a duty on tea, paper, glass, and painters colours, introduced into the colonies. The same violent opposition, and the same course of timid and irresolute, yet most obnoxious policy, were again exemplified. In 1770 all the duties were repealed except that on tea. The controversy between the mother country and her colonies involved an important principle the former asserting her right to tax generally and the latter denying her right to tax for any but colonial purposes. By retaining the duty on tea the whole ground of controversy remained as before and consequently, as might have been foreseen and was distinctly announced in the almost prophetic eloquence of Burke, the controversy itself raged more fiercely than ever, as if a new element of bitterness had been infused into it. The colonists closed their ports against the articles on which duty was imposed, and in 1773 when British ships loaded with tea attempted to effect a landing in the port of Boston the inhabitants seized them and threw the cargoes into the sea. In 1776 hostilities actually commenced. A battle was fought at Lexington in Massachusetts, and was followed shortly after by another more decisive at Bunker's Hill near Boston, in both of which the British were defeated. The colonists had the wisdom or good fortune to give the chief command of their forces to the immortal Washington, and in order to furnish him with the means of war, bills of credit were issued to the amount of $4,000,000. One great cause of the success of the colonists undoubtedly was the singular and irregular manner in which the British carried on the war by sending out isolated detachments of troops, to be overpowered and destroyed piecemeal as fast as they appeared. The only excuse for Britain, though a very poor one, is that she did not anticipate a very determined opposition, and almost hoped to put down her refractory colonies with as much ease as an ordinary popular outbreak at home. Finally now there was weight lent to the scale, and helped to turn it completely in favour of the revolted colonies. The British were foiled in almost every encounter, and in 1781 the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, to the combined French and colonial forces under Washington and Rochambeau, virtually terminated the war. In 1783 Great Britain, after a contest which sullied her laurels, and had cost a lavish expenditure of blood and treasure finally recognized the independence of the United States, which, on the establishment of tranquillity, wisely turned their attention to the improvement of their political constitution and social condition, and the development of their vast internal resources. An unhappy war arose with Great Britain in 1812, but after two years, continuance and doubtful success, was terminated in 1814 by the treaty of Ghent. Since then large additions have been made to the domain of the Union, partly by the settlement of immense territories previously purchased from France under the name of Louisiana, partly by the purchase of Florida, and the settlement of the Oregon boundary and partly by the large conquests achieved by the rather equivocal instrumentality of a Mexican war. Her states originally only 13 in number, are now 31. All danger of external aggression is at an end, and henceforth, if she will only be true to herself, and do one great act of tardy justice by letting the oppressed go free, there is nothing to prevent her from occupying a foremost place among the nations of the world.—[Fisher's Gazetteer of the United States. Baldwin and Thomas Gazetteer of the United States, Lyell's Travels, first and second journeys. W. F. Johnson's Travels, Abstract of the Seventh Census. Marcon's Geological Map of the United States, The American Almanac. Hunt's Magazine, The Bow's Industrial Resources of the Southern and Western States. Parliamentary Papers &c.] See Appendix.

Vol. II

UNJA, a river, Rhine, rises in gov. Volodga, flows S into gov. Kostroma, then S E and S S W, and joins the Volga. Total course, about 340 m., principal affluents the Viga and Yala, both on its bank.

UNKELE, a tn. Rheuss, Prussia, gov. and 31 m. N. W. Coblenz & bank Rhine, with a R. Catholic church, a synagogue, and a trade in cattle and wine. On the opposite side of the river and stretching so far into it as partly to obstruct the navigation, and form a very rapid current is the Unkel rock, a lofty precipice of basaltic pillars extensively quarried for road and pavement. Pop. 827.

UNKIAR KAZANLI [I undying place of the Emperor?] a vil. Asiatic Turkey on the Bosphorus, 8 m. N. V. E. Constantinople, where there is an extensive paper-factory. A treaty was signed here between Russia and Turkey on the 26th June, 1829.

UNLIAGEN a tn. Württemberg, circle Danzba, bail Riedlingen on the Danube, with a church and old nursery and several breweries and mills. Pop. 1008.

UNNA, a walled tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 19 m. N. W. Arnberg, on the Kottelback with a court of law and other public offices. A Protestant and a R. Catholic church, an hospital, manufactures of pottery, tile-works, a brewery and distillery. The extensive salt-works and salt baths of Künigshorn supplied by brine-springs are in the vicinity. The mysterious court or society known by the name of the Vehmgericht, had its head-quarters here. Pop. 5573.

UNRUHSLADT Kason, or Kasonova, a tn. Prussia, prov. and 54 m. S. W. Posen on the Odra. It is well built and has a Protestant church, manufactures of cloth, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1879.

UNST, the most N. of the Shetland Isles, Scotland. lat. (N. extremity) 60° 55' N., lon. 1° 0' W. length, 10 m. average breadth, between 3 m. and 4 m., area, about 86 sq. m. The shores are much indented with bays and creeks, and around the coast are numerous natural caves. The soil is on the whole, tolerably fertile, and the pasture-grounds are mostly covered with a short tender herbage affording excellent feeding for sheep. The two principal harbours are Uyea Sound on the S. E. and Balla Sound on the E. Woolen stockings, and other woollen articles, are made here in considerable quantities, but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in fishing and in agriculture. Pop. including all Uyea at the S. end, 2377.

UNSTRUT, a river Prussia, rises in gov. Erfurt, S. E. of Hildesheim, flows easterly, and joins L. principal basin near Naumburg. Total course, about 180 m. Its principal affluents are the Stern, Wipper and Helme. In most places it is deep, and flows sluggishly.

UNSWORTH a hamlet, England, co. Lancaster 5 m. S. S. E. Bury, with a neat and commodious chapel of ease, several other places of worship, and an endowed school, inhabitants employed as agriculturists and in cotton-mills, print-works, and blacksmiths. Pop. 336.

UNTER-BUREN a vil Baden, circle Middle Rhine, bail, and near Baden; with a parish church. Pop. 1146.

UNTER-GESSENBERG, a vil Baden, circle Middle Rhine, bail, Bruchsal; with a parish church. Pop. 1600.

UNTERJESSINGEN, a vil Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, near L. bank Ammer. Pop. 1328.

UNTERKÖCHEN a vil Württemberg, circle Jaxt, on the Kocher; with a parish church, a gunpowder, paper, and other mills and extensive iron-works. Pop. 819.

UNTERMEIMINGEN, a vil Austria, Tyrol circle Inns, not far from Brix; with a church and a school. P 1607.

UNTERMÜNSTERTHAL, a vil and par Baden, circle Lower Rhine, in a valley of same name, with a church, and tile-works. Pop. 1920.

UNTERMEIXINGEN a vil Württemberg, circle Tübingen, bail. Vaihingen with a church, a chapel and two castles, one of them an old feudal ruin. Pop. 1049.

UNTERGESSENBERG, a vil Saxony circle Zwickau, bail. Völsberg; with manufactures of articles in brass and wood, musical instruments, lace and embroidery and a trade in wood. Pop. 1078.

UNTERSEEN a tn. Switzerland, can and 36 m S.E. Bern, on the Aar, between Lakes Thun and Brienz. With exception of the townhouse and castle, which are of stone, it is built entirely of wood. There are a number of saw-mills, and the principal manufactures in wooden boxes. Pop. 1110.

UNTERKREIBITZ, a vil Württemberg circle Neckar S.E. Gmünd, r. bank Neckar, here crossed by a bridge, with a church, a gypsum-quarry and a trade in wine. P 2049.

UNTERVATE, a vil and par Switzerland, can. Grenchen on a mountain of the same name with two churches. Near it are the ruins of three ancient feudal castles. Pop. 1160.

UNTERWALDEN [Latin, Unterwalden French Unterwald] a central canton Switzerland, bounded N by the Wald-stättersee or Lake of Luzern, W can. Luzern, S. Bern, and E. on greatest length N.E. to S.W. 25 m. breadth, 21 m., area, 243 sq. m. The greater part of the surface is occupied by mountains, which, in various groups and isolated masses of larger or less dimensions, interest it in all directions and form scenery of remarkable beauty and sublimity. The general slope is towards the S. the mountains attaining their greatest height in the N. and thence descending gradually towards the lake. Few of these mountains rise above the snow line. The most remarkable summits are those of Mount Pilatus, which forms a kind of nucleus for all the chains of the canton, and of Mount Titlis, with its glistening crown of ice and snow. The most important rivers are the Reuss and the Aa, which both flow N. and accumulating almost all the waters of the canton, discharge them into the Lake of Luzern. This lake, about one-fourth of the area of which may belong to the canton, is by far the largest, but there are many others of considerable extent, the most deserving of notice are Lakes Bernen and Laggen. The whole of the canton belongs to the chalk formation, in which a great number of remarkable caverns occur. Corresponding to the two largest streams are two principal valleys of the Engisberg and Bernen, which leave the greater part of the surface between them, and are opened into laterally by a number of minor valleys. There is little flat land in which the operations of agriculture can be successfully carried on, but the soil is generally fertile, producing far up on its mountain-sides extensive forests of excellent timber and lower down plantations of chestnuts, and great quantities of apples and pears. In some favoured spots the culture of the vine is attempted but not with much success. The great wealth of the country is in its pastures, and the produce of the cattle which are fed upon them. The best-known division of Unterwalden is into the hidden-wald and the Ob- oder-wald [Upper and Lower], the limits of which appear to have been determined by a vast forest which has between them. The chief places of the former is Stans- of the latter, Bernen. The great majority of the inhabitants are E. Catholics, and speak German. The government is an extreme democracy—the legislative power being lodged in the whole of the male inhabitants of 20 years of age, who meet annually in a general assembly to make laws and appoint the principal functionaries. Unterwalden shares with Schwyz and Uri the honour of having formed the nucleus of the Swiss Confederation. The constituent of men which it now furnishes to it is 582 Pop. (1850), 25,125.

UNTERWIESENTHAL, a tn. Saxony, circle Ewickand, bail, and near Wismuth 1 bank Pohlsdorf; with blast-furnaces and other iron-works, a paper, saw, and other mills. Pop. 1778.

UNIK (SAN-MARTIN-DE-), a tn. Spain, prov. Navarre, about 25 m from Pamplona with a church, courtyards, prison, primary school, the remains of an old castle a stone-mill, and a trade in cere, oil, and wine. Pop. 1099.

UP Gassan, par Eng. Devon; 1109 ac. Pop. 94.

UPA or Oupa, a river, Benda, rises near the centre of gov. Tula; flows N.W. to the town of Tula, then W.S.W., and joins r. bank Oka on the frontier of gov. Kaluga; total course, about 150 m.; principal affluents, the Uper, Oberevna, Chut, Tulinia, and the Plova. It becomes navigable at Tula, and communicates with the Don by the canal of Ivanovka.

UPAHAI, a vil. Hindoostan, N.W. shore, Bay of Bengal N. Ceylon, 16 m. N.E. Yangapalan. It stands in a deep bay, bounded inland by bold mountain-escarpment, and as one of the most considerable fishing-stations on the coast, above 100 catamarans and several man-of-war-boats being sometimes seen engaged.

UPCHURCH, par Eng. Kent, 6128 ac. Pop. 407.

UPHALL, par Scot. Linlithgow, 4 m by 8 m. P 1331.

UPHAM, par Eng. Hants; 2658 ac. Pop. 650.

UPHAVEN or Upravu, par Eng. Wilts, 3529 ac. Pop. 510.

UPHILL, par Eng. Somerset 1697 ac. Pop. 422.

UPHEADON par Eng. Gloucester; 1207 ac. P 275.

UPLEATHAM, par Eng. York (N. Riding) Pop. 447.

UPLAWNMAN, par Eng. Devon 2913 ac. Pop. 286.

UPPLYME, par Eng. Devon, 8199 ac. Pop. 1039.

UPMINTER, par Eng. Essex, 3378 ac. Pop. 1228.

UPOLU or OAROTOA, the second largest of the Navigators or Samoan Isles lat. (Apia harbour N coast) 13 48' 54" S; lon 171° 41' 12" W (s) It is of irregular form, being broken into sharp peaks and hummocks, but is of great elevation. Length, N.E. to W.N.W. 40 m., breadth, about 10 m. Here and there broad and fertile valleys occur, yielding coconut, plantain, breadfruit, &c., in great abundance. The island is covered with timber to the top. The shore is lined with a coral reef which is low and then interrupted by channels, and forms snug and convenient harbours, in two of which Apia and Uafato, both on the N. coast, there is anchorage for large vessels. In the interior of the island is an extinct crater, in which there is a lake, the edge of the crater is 2570 ft. above sea-level and the descent to the water inside 120 ft. The rocks of Upolu are volcanic, and consist principally of basaltic lava, in which are found agates, felspar, albite, and chrysolite. Many deep gorges occur in the island, in which there are water-falls 750 ft. in height.

UPOTTERY par Eng. Devon 5830 ac. Pop. 1043.

UPPERBUECH, par Ireland, Tipperary; 13,903 ac. Pop. 2560.

UPPERMARK, a vil Rhenish Prussia, gov. Düsseldorf, on the Rhine. Pop. 1100.

UPPERMOUTH a market tn. and par. England, co. Rutland, 89 ac. N.W. London. It has a spacious church, in the ancient English style, with a tower surmounted by a lofty spire, three Dissenting chapels, and a free grammar-school.

Area of par, 1210 ac. Pop. 2068.

UPPINGTON, par Eng. Salop, 755 ac. Pop. 98.

UPSALA, a tn. Sweden, 11 m of same name, on the Fyris, here crossed by two stone-bridges, near its confluence with the Skel one of the E. creeks of Lake Mälar, 39 m. N.W. Stockholm. It is built with considerable regularity, is the seat of an archbishop, the residence of a governor, and the seat of several courts and public offices; and contains two churches, one of them the cathedral, an ancient Gothic structure in brick, flanked by two Gothic towers and containing many interesting monuments, among others those of Gustavus Vasa and Linnaeus an old castle of great historical interest; the university, founded in 1477, provided with 47 professors, and attended by 850 students; the library of 100,000 vols., occupying a handsome building, and rich in rare works and MSS., particularly the Codex Argenteus, a copy of the Gospel in Gothic, as translated by Bishop Ulfilas at the end of the 4th century; the palace of Gustavus Vasa, half ruinous, but partly occupied by the governor; the house in which Linnaeus lived.

the old and new botanical gardens, the museum, townhouse, senate-house, archbishop's palace, cathedral-school, academy, observatory, infirmary, &c. Besides Linnæus, the university counts among its professors who have earned an European reputation, the names of Celsius and Bergmann. Pop. 5908.—The L. is bounded, N. by the Gulf of Bothnia; E. by the Stockholm; S. Lake Mälare, which separates it from the Nyköping; W. the Western, and N.W. Götter, greatest length, N. to S., 55 m., mean breadth, about 32 m.; area, 1566 sq. m. The coast-line, which is of limited extent, presents one fine bay, that of Lofas. The interior consists generally of undulating plains, in which numerous lakes occur, but the only stream of any importance is the Dal. In the S. the soil is fertile, and the scenery beautiful and picturesque, but the N. constitutes a bare, bleak, and in many parts barren region. The grain raised equals the home consumption. Minerals constitute one of the principal sources of wealth. Iron in particular has long been worked, and its quality cannot be surpassed. In addition to it, the only export deserving of notice is cattle. Pop. 37,700.

URSALA (GAMLA), or OLD URSALA, a to. Sweden about 3 m N of the present Upsala. It is next to Siguna, the most ancient residence of the Swedish kings but is now reduced to a small village. The church has been built out of the ruins of old heathen temples, and its tower is understood to have formed part of the temple of Odh. Among the tumuli in the vicinity are the graves of Odh Freys, and they UPTON 20 pars England.—1, Hamington; 970 ac. Pop. 189.—2, Linnock; 3180 ac. Pop. 577.—3, Norfolk 1893 ac. Pop. 664.—4, Northampton 679 ac. Pop. 43.—5, Notts; 1860 ac. Pop. 339.—6, Somerset 3779 ac. Pop. 344.—7 (Zetland), Harrold 3891 ac. Pop. 693.—8 (Oxford), 3609 ac. Pop. 58.—9, (New-Chelsea), Becken, 1360 ac. Pop. 3578.—10, (Owen) Hants, 2384 ac. Pop. 423.—11 (Bedford), Devon 819 ac. Pop. 197.—12 (York) Wills; 1893 ac. Pop. 233.—13 (Magpie) Salop 3260 ac. Pop. 458.—14 (Noble) Somerset 677 ac. Pop. 338.—15, (Furze) Salop 722 ac. Pop. 302.—16, (Pine) Devon, 1893 ac. Pop. 491.—17 (St. Leonard) Gloucester 2975 ac. Pop. 1124.—18, (Staudamur) Wills, 2503 ac. Pop. 407.—19 (Shedden) Worcester 1661 ac. Pop. 341.—20 (Warren) Worcester 2600 ac. Pop. 423.

UPTON market town and par England com. and 10 m. S. Worcester r bank Sever, which is here navigable for vessels of 100 tons. It is neatly built and contains a market-house a subscription library a handsome church, two Dissenting chapels, and a national school. Considerable quantities of cider are shipped here for various places. Area of par. 3170 ac. Pop. 2298

UPWALTHAM, par Eng Sussex 1845 ac. Pop. 67

UPWAY par Eng Dorset 1760 ac. Pop. 657

UPWELL, a vil and par England, partly in co. Cambridgeshire, and partly in co. Norfolk, on both sides of the River. 6 m. S.E.E. Woburn. It has a handsome parish church, with an octagonal tower and a lofty spire, a chapel of ease, Baptist, and Primitive and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and a charitable endowment. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. Area of par. 21740 ac. Pop. 5877

UPWOOD, par Eng. Herts, 1809 ac. Pop. 416

URACH, a walled to. Württemberg, circle Schwabenzwald cap. hall at the confluence of the Ems and Elmsch with a castle, a church, a cemetery, and hospital, manufacture of linen and paper, dye-works, breweries, and distilleries, bark, saw systems, and oil mills, and a trade in these articles, and in fruit. Pop. 9588.

URAGU-DURU a vil and com. Austrian Italy gov Milan prov and 20 m W Brescia, r bank Oglio It has a church, a castle of a quadrangular form surrounded by a fosse, and a trade in corn, wine, and silk. Pop. 1560.

URAL, URAL, or JAK, a river Russia which rises in the Ural Mountains, in the N. of Gov Orenburg, near lat. 60° N.; flows S. past Verkh-Ural to Omsk, then W through an opening in the Ural chain to Orenburg, where it turns S.W. and then S., retaining the latter direction till it reaches the N. shore of the Caspian, and enters it by several mouths, the largest of which passes close to Grief. Its whole length is not known, but its direct length is estimated at 550 m and its basin at 22,300 sq m Its principal affluents are, on the right, the Kist, Tanais, and Sakmara and on the left, the Sunduk, Or, Ilek, Outra, and Gratsch. Its upper course is along a channel bristling with steep and lofty rocks; the lower course is through extensive steppes and saline marshes. It abounds with fish, particularly towards its mouth, where the Ural Cosacka have extensive fisheries. The Ural is supposed by some to be the ancient Rhymanus. Its delta, already extensive, is rapidly increasing, and several of its branches, which were navigable a few years ago, are now dry and overgrown with reeds.

URAL or OURAL MOUNTAINS, a long and comparatively narrow chain, stretching nearly between N and S. from the shores of the Sea of Kara in the Arctic Ocean in lat. 68°, to the S. frontier of Gov Orenburg, about lat. 56°. During the whole of this extent of 18 it forms the proper boundary between Europe and Asia. According to some geographers, the chain, instead of terminating here may be traced much further S., along the high grounds between the Caspian Sea and Lake of Aral. The N. Ural is constituted more or less of a simple central ridge, fringed to some extent by low parallel embankments. It has not been properly examined, at least on the E. side beyond lat. 65° N. where it appears to be covered with impenetrable forests and deep morasses still left to its wild inhabitants, Ostiaks, Vogels, or Samoyeds. Its average height is from 2000 ft. to 2500 ft., but it has many lofty rugged summits, chiefly on the E. side of the crest. Among them are the Domashnik Kamen in lat. 60° 15' which is estimated at 3887 ft. and the Kondakofskoe-Kamen in lat. 59° 20', estimated at 5730 ft. apparently the culminant point of the whole chain. Unlike the N. the S. Ural forms many separate longitudinal ridges, which trend S.E. and S.W. diverging in a fan shape from a common nucleus. Its most remarkable summits are the Tagan near Zlatoust, lat. 56° 15' 3600 ft.; and the Iremel, lat. 54° 30' 5671 ft. With the exception of the plateau of Sakmara, nearly all the S. Ural is metamorphic and highly diversified and it is a great extent a pastoral Bashkir country. The W. flank of the Ural chain is approached across a low undulating region occupied by that immense development of the youngest rocks of the paleozoic era to which Murchison has given the name of the Permian system. Rising from beneath the Permian system, and hence geologically beneath though here locally above it, occur in descending series carboniferous old red or Devonian, and Silurian rocks, all containing a great variety of fossils. The crest of the chain consists chiefly of chlorite, quartzite, and metamorphic paleozoic rocks, which are immediately succeeded towards the E. by rocks of igneous origin. In these igneous rocks, and the metamorphosed strata in contact with them occur all the richest mines of gold, platinum copper and magnetic iron for which the chain is renowned. On the E. flank the Permian deposits are altogether wanting. Their place is occupied by low hills of older granite and other eruptive rocks, paleozoic and metamorphic deposits, covered towards their E. edge by tertiary accumulation, and detritus in which mammoth and rhinoceros bones are mixed up with the sand and shingle of the glacial washings. The vegetable production which may be regarded as the type of the whole chain is the Picea obovata, accompanied in the N. Ural by firs and birch only but in the S. also by numerous trees and plants of warmer latitudes. In the S. also are many broad valleys of remarkable fertility with occasional hills of deep black loam, covered with splendid natural crops, and rank vegetation. The principal rivers fed by the Ural chain are the Pechora, and numerous affluents of the Ob, belonging to the Arctic Ocean and the Kama and Ural belonging to the Caspian.

URALSK, two places, Russia, Gov Orenburg.—1 A tm., cap. dist., r bank Ural, 126 m W S.W. Orenburg. It is a large place, surrounded by palisades, and an irregular rampart, is the seat of several important offices; is entirely built of wood and has five churches, and a considerable trade particularly in fish taken in the Ural. A considerable proportion of the inhabitants are Cosacks. P. (1849), 10,822.—2 (Verkh-Ural), A fortified to., cap. dist., r bank Ural, here crossed by a wooden bridge, 140 m S.E. Ural, par. of the garrison, 870.

URAR, a vil and com. in Sardima div Cagliari prov Sardinia, cap. dist., 7 m S.W. Alai. It has a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2600.

URATUPPA, ORATUPPA, or URATUPPA, a to. Khannat of Bokhara, 80 m. N.E. Samarcand, and 100 m. W.S.W.

KORNA. It is surrounded by lofty walls, with a deep fosse outside, consists of straight streets lined with houses of earth; and has extensive manufactures of fine shawls, and an important trade, favoured by its position on the great thoroughfare between Bokhara and Kokan.

URBANA, a vil and township, U States, Ohio, on the Columbus, Pelee, and Indiana, and the M and River and Lake Erie railways, 39 m. W Columbus. It has several churches, an academy, and court-house, and a considerable trade. Pop. (township), 5414, (village), 3020.

URBANIA [formerly CASSEL-DEBANTE] a tin Italy the Marche, deleg Urbino-Pesaro, on the Metauro, 6 m. S.W. Urbino. It has a richly decorated palace, and a convent with some fine frescoes by Giotto Rossini. Pop. 8700.

URHAL or WASOWICZ, a vil Austria, Moravia, circle Znaim, with a church. Pop. 1048.

URBERACH a vil Hesse-Darmstadt, prov Starkenbach, near Offenbach with a church. Pop. 1213.

URBINO a tin Italy, one of the capitals of deleg Urbino-Pesaro, on an isolated hill in the midst of bleak and desolate mountains, 45 m. W N.W. Ancona, fortified and defended by an old castle, the seat of an archbishop, and the seat of several provincial courts and offices. Among the buildings deserving of notice are the ducal palace, at the time of its erection the finest edifice of the kind in Italy and still in some respects without a rival, equally remarkable for the lightness of its proportions and the richness of its decorations, particularly arabesque carvings the cathedral, several other churches, and the theatre, remarkable as the place where the first Italian comedy was represented. The chief manufactures are pins, needles, articles in bone, and some furs. Urbino is the birthplace of the painter Raphael whose called Raphael d'Urbino. Pop. 7000.

URBINO-PESARO a deleg Italy bounded, N by deleg Forlì and the republic of San Marino W by the duchy of Tuscany S.W. and S. by deleg Perugia, S.E. deleg Ancona, and N.E. the Adriatic. Area, 1094 sq. m. The surface is mountainous, particularly in the W, from which it gradually descends to the E, all its streams, of which the principal are the Foglia, Metauro, and Cesano, taking that direction and pursuing courses nearly parallel to each other. The highest mountains are generally bare and sterile but those of less elevation have excellent pastures, on which vast numbers of cattle, sheep, and swine are fed the lower slopes are covered with the vine, olive, mulberry and ordinary fruit-trees the plains raise rich crops of corn, hemp and flax. Much attention is paid to the rearing of bees and silk-worms. Some of the silk produced is the finest in Europe. Pop. 237,966.

URCHFONT, par Eng Wills 6873 ac. Pop. 1604.

URDA a vil Spain, New Castle prov and 34 m. S.E. Toledo. It has a town-house, granary primary school parish church, and two barns. Pop. (chiefly agricultural) 2084.

URDENBACH a vil Rhénish Prussia, gov Düsseldorf on the Rhine with a church, and manufactures of woollen cloth and yarn. Pop. 1077.

UREGARE, par Ind. Lincoln 4944 ac. Pop. 1903.

URESHO, a tin Japan, Ise, Kinki, celebrated for its thermal medicinal waters, which are used both internally and as baths in cutaneous disorders, gonorrhea, paronychia, rheumatism, &c. The waters are pellucid, have a slight taste of sulphur, contain sulphate and muriate salts, and have a temperature of 200° F. The environs of Uresho bear striking marks of violent volcanic action.

UREXWEILLER, a vil Rhénish Prussia gov Treves, circle and near St. Wendel. Pop. 1016.

URFAH, supposed Ur of the Chaldees. See URFAH.

URGEN Urugutan, or Omurgan, two vils, Khazet Khiva —1 (5700) On a sand near the Oxus, 210 m. N.E. Khiva. It contains 600 houses, and had at one time a considerable trade.—2 (604) 67 m. N.W. Khiva.

URGLIN par Ind. Carlow, 3149 ac. Pop. 678.

URIGNANO a vil and com Italy Lombardy gov Milan, prov and 9 m. S.W. Bergamo, with a handsome church, an ancient castle, now occupied as a country-seat, an hospital, and a trade in corn, silk, and wool. Pop. 3558.

URGUB, a tin Asiatic Turkey, prov Karamania, in a deep ravine on an affluent of the Kili-Trek, 29 m. W.W. Karamah or Osmara. It consists of houses raised upon columns, built of a soft pumiceous soil, finished with great care and neatness, and often exhibiting over the doorways and windows great paintings of red and blue paint. They are generally placed on the sides of remarkable conical and pointed hills, varying from 100 ft to 300 ft in height, and pierced by numerous caves, supposed to have been originally occupied by nomad tribes, and still sometimes used as dwellings. From the nature of the site the house seen often to rise in terraces, the roof of one serving as a court to that above, and are approached by pathways cut zigzag in the rock. In the valley the spruce, apparently indigenous, grows in great quantities and yields several varieties of fruit, which though small, is very highly flavoured. The number of houses, including the castle, conspicuously situated on one of the hills, is about 3000.

URUBA.—From Turkey Description de l'Asie Mineure.

URGUNDAB, a river W Afghanistan which rises in the Kharash country about 85 m. W by S Ghazni, lat. 33 N., lon. 67 E.; whence it flows S.W. passing Kandahar 25 m. below which it is joined by the Tarnak, when it takes a W direction for about 70 m. and falls into the Helmand, after a course of 250 m., in lat. 31° 30' N.; lon. 64° 10' E. Its banks below Kandahar are thickly studded with gardens and villages for about 26 m.

URI, a vil and com, in Savaria, div and 7 m. S.W. Szaszar. Pop. 1039.

URI [Latin, Ursina] a central can. Switzerland bounded N by can. Solvaya, W. Unterwalden and Bern, S.W. Valais, S. Ticin E. Glarus, and N.E. Glarus, greatest length, N. to S. 32 m., central breadth, 19 m. area, 423 sq. m. It is one of the most mountainous of the Swiss cantons, presenting a complete chain of deep ravines, narrow valleys, and mountain-masses none of which have a less elevation than 5000 ft. while the greater part are from 6000 ft. to 9000 ft., and several above 10,000 ft. The principal summits are the Calandier, Ruetshorn, Scherhorn, Spiezhorn, Wankgall, Bräntsch, Urirothsch, Mathhorn, and the most famous, though not the highest of all St. Gotthard. So completely is the canton hemmed in by these mountain-chains, that the only practicable outlets from it are the pass of St. Gotthard to the E., and the Lake of Lucerne in the N. Between these points lies the principal valley of the canton, lofty narrow, and precipitous, in the former direction but widening out and spreading almost into a plain in the latter. This plain is traversed by the Reuss, which, receiving all the drainage directly or by mountain-creeks and down from numerous minor lateral valleys, converges into the lake. Only in the lowest grounds can the climate be regarded as temperate and even there a wind, known by the name of the föhn, often comes down in fearful gusts from the E., and sometimes even rages like a hurricane for eight days in succession. This wind, though tempestuous, has a low temperature, and is said to melt more snow in 24 hours than the same alone make in a week. The section is rich in natural plants; but there is little agriculture, properly so called. In the lower grounds are gardens sown with corn, rape, and hemp, or planted with potatoes and vegetables; the lower meadows also, which are remarkable for the richness of their verdure, are generally bordered with fruit-trees, while the highlands are often lined with rows of vines and the sunny slopes covered with multitudinous chestnuts. Uri is divided into the two principal districts of Uri and Uverson, and has Altorf for its capital. The inhabitants are almost all R. Catholics, and speak German. The government is an unmixed democracy the whole power being both virtually, and in a great measure actually exercised by the general assembly, composed of all citizens above 20 years of age. This section has the honour of being one of the three which first raised the standard of Swiss independence. Pop. (1850), 14,500.

URI (Lakes of), the name sometimes given to the S.E. branch of the Waldstätter-see or Lake of Lucerne, that branch lying wholly within can. Uri.

URIUPINAKAIA a tn. Russia gov. Don Cosacka, 1 bank Chopra, 185 m. S. by E. Tashov and celebrated for its annual fair, which lasts three weeks, and attracts great numbers of dealers, particularly Tartars, Armenians, and Calmucks. Pop. (1850) 3198.

URK a small town in Holland, in the Zuider-see, 16 m. E.S.E. Enkhuizen; with a church, a school, and a good harbour. Inhabitants engaged in fishing. Pop. 1130.

URLINGFORD a small tn. and par. Ireland, co. and 16 m. N.E. Kilkenny. It is the centre of a manufacture of coarse stuffs, flannels, and worsteds, and carries on an extensive retail trade with the surrounding districts. Pop. (tn.), 4010. Area of par. 8498 ac. 1 pop. 3498.

URLOFFEN a vil. Baden, circle Middle Rhine, 7 m. N. Offenbourg, on the railway from Karlsruhe to Freiburg, with a church. Pop. 1596.

URLUJAH, ruined city, Asiatic Turkey, Anatolia, near the S.W. coast, 85 m. N.E. Mahrn, with remains of temples and a synagogue.

URNASCH, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 5 m. W.S.W. Appenzel, in a valley watered by a stream of same name. It has a church free school and orphan hospital and several saw and corn mills. Pop. 2449.

URNEN (NAMES and ONES) two vills. forming a parish, Switzerland, can. and 5 m. N.W. Glarus. The former possesses baths, which are much frequented, and has manufactures of silk goods, and several large tanneries. Pop. 1542.

URNEY two par. Irel. —1, Cavan 7492 ac. Pop. 2289. —2 Donagall and Tyrone 22 048 ac. Pop. 2451.

URNIETA, a tn. Spain, Biscay, prov. Guipuzcoa, 6 m. S. San Sebastian, with a church, a primary school, manufactures of linen and ironware, and several mills. Pop. 1107.

URQUHART, par. Scot. Elgin, 5 m. Pop. 1381.

URQUHART and GLENROBERT, par. Scot. Inverness, 30 m. by 12 m. Pop. 3380.

URQUHART and LOST VILLAGE, par. Scot. Ross, 10 m. by 24 m. Pop. 3159.

URR, par. Scot. Kirkcubright 19 m. by 6 m. P. 3363.

URRAY, par. Scot. Ross; 7 m. by 8 m. Pop. 2621.

URREA or GLAN a vil. Spain, Aragon, prov. Teruel, 1 bank Martin 60 m. from Saragossa. It is well built, has regular and clean streets, a church, two primary schools, and a trade in corn, oil, wine, and silk. Pop. 1073.

URBANNE (the) or St. Ursin, a tn. and par. Switzerland, can. and 87 m. W. Bern, in a wild and rugged district on the Doubs, here crossed by stone-bridges. It contains two churches, and has extensive tanneries from also is worked in the neighbourhood. Pop. 1781.

URSEL, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, 11½ m. N.W. Ghent, nearly built with a church, chapel, town house, and school; a large flour-mill and manufactures of linen fabrics, bricks, tiles, oil, &c. The butter made here is of esteemed quality. Pop. 2510.

URSEL, two places, Germany. —1, (Ober-) A tn. in Nassau, 10 m. N.W. Frankfurt-on-the-Main. It has a church, and a paper, snuff, iron, copper and other mills. Pop. 1985. —2, (Nieder-) A vil. not far from the former, belonging to the free-town of Frankfurt. Pop. 869.

URSEREN, or Umsen, a valley, Switzerland, can. Uri, about 4356 ft. above sea-level, enclosed by lofty mountains, and watered by the Rhoda. It is partly cultivated, but has its chief wealth in its pastures, which are excellent.

URSEEN a vil. Switzerland. See ANDERMANN.

URSEUM, a tn. Russia, gov. and 91 m. S. Viatka, cap. circle, on the Urals; with a trade in corn and fax. P. 1183.

URSERINGEN, or URSERINGEN, a vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, dist. Bamberg, with a church, a castle, and oil and flour mills. Pop. 1059.

URSTULA (Sawla), a vil. Cassaria N. coast, lat. Temar. It has a parish church two primary schools, manufactures of linen, and a considerable trade in wine. Pop. 1480.

URSWICK, par. Eng. Lancaster 4100 ac. Pop. 891.

URUBU —1 (or de-Cuma), A. tn. Brazil, prov. Bahia, r. bank São-Francisco, 120 m. N.W. Rio-de-Contas. It contains two churches and a primary school. Pop. (dist.) 1000. —2, A river Brazil, prov. Para, rises in Brazilian Guiana flows S., and joins l. bank Amazon nearly opposite to the confluence of the Madeira.

URUBUCUARA a river Brazil, prov. Para, rises in the Serra-Velha, in Brazilian Guiana flows S. expands into a lake of same name on the E. shore of which the little town of Ostato stands, issues from it, and about 20 m. below, joins l. bank Amazon.

URUCALIA a river Brazil, rises in the Serra-da-Tabatonga, on the frontier of prov. Goyaz where prov. Minas-Geraes, and flowing almost due E., and rejoining the Clara on the left, and the Santa-Rita on the right, becomes navigable by canoes, and joins l. bank São-Francisco, 16 m. N. the town of São-Bomão, after a total course of about 200 m.

URUCANGA a river, Brazil rises in the W. of prov. Santa-Catharina, and flows E. After passing a lake, with which it communicates by its l. bank, it has a depth of from 8 to 4 fathoms but unfortunately its mouth is almost blocked up with a mudbank on which the waves break with so much violence as to prevent the entrance of vessels.

URUCUI, a river Brazil, prov. Piahy, rises in the Serra-Gurgueia, flows N. and joins the Paraibuna on its right, nearly opposite to the confluence of the Balsas. It is navigable by canoes for about 80 m.

URUGUAY a river S. America, which rises in Brazil in the W. slope of a cordillera, in the N. of prov. São-Pedro-do-Rio-Grande, lat. 28° S., and flows N.W. for about 100 m. entering the plains of Yauria, where it is joined on the right by the Pelotas, and on the left by the Papay-Guay, now turning W. it receives on the left the Uruguay Falls and the Abucum and shortly after on the right, the Repira, which forms the N. boundary of the state of Entre-Rios. It now proceeds S.S.W. and is augmented by numerous streams, particularly by the Itcuia and the Arapah, which separates Brazil from the Banda-Oriental. In its remaining course, almost due S. for about 400 m. it forms the boundary between the Banda Oriental and Entre-Rios, receiving on the right, from the latter state, the Aguapey, Miram, Grande-guay together with numberless small streams, and on the left, from the former state, the Delmar, and last of all, the most important of its tributaries the Negro. About 50 m. below in lat. 34° S., and lon. 61° 40' W. it unites with the Parana in forming the Rio-de-la-Plata. The whole course of the Uruguay is about 800 m. It is navigated by sailing barks up to a great fall 40 m. below the Itcuia after the fall is passed, large canoes ascend as far as the confluence of the Pelotas, and small canoes almost to the sources both of this affluent and of the main stream. The banks of the Uruguay are fertile but ill cultivated. The principal products are cotton and meat, and considerable numbers of cattle are reared. The articles exported by it are chiefly hides, tallow and honey.

URUGUAY (BANDE-ORIENTAL-DEL) a republic, S. America, bounded, N. and N.E. by Brazil, E. the Atlantic, S. the Rio-de-la-Plata, and W. the Uruguay separating it from the united provinces of La Plata. It is of a compact shape, somewhat in the form of a cone, with a convex and almost circular base in the S. and S.E. and its apex in the N.W.; greatest length, measured from the centre of the base near Maldonado, to the apex at the mouth of the Guayrá, 550 m.; greatest breadth, 8 W. to N.E., 330 m.; area, estimated at 120,000 sq. m. Viewed as a whole, it may be regarded as a vast undulating plain, generally flat towards the Uruguay, the Rio-de-la-Plata, and the sea-coast, but broken in the interior by several ridges of moderate elevation, which are composed for the most part of clay-slate, granite, and gneiss, and form the water-sheds of the more important rivers; these are, the Negro, by far the largest, which, rising on the N.E. frontier, in the Sierra-Tuella, flows S.W. to its junction with the Uruguay and divides the state into two nearly equal portions; the Quary on the N. frontier the Arroyo, Dulman, and Quagay all also tributaries of the Uruguay. The San Luis and San José, which unite their streams and fall into the Rio-de-la-Plata, the Schellard, with its numerous affluents, and the Yaguaron, the two most important sections of the large lake of Maracaibo, which is situated in the N.E. partly in Brazil, and after the rivers, forms the most important hydrographical feature of the country. The climate is mild, frost being unknown and the excessive summer-heats being greatly tempered by sea-breezes. The extensive plains, covered with rich turf and almost destitute of trees, seem admirably adapted for agriculture, but owing partly to the thinness of the population, which does not exceed 67,000, they remain for the most part in a state of waste, and are roamed over by immense bands of horses and cattle. There are chief sources of wealth, supplying large exports of hides, skins, jerked beef and horns. The only mineral which has been partially worked is copper. Administratively Uruguay is divided into nine departments. Monte-Video is the capital.

URUMIYAH Urumia, or Urumia a town and lake, Persia, in the W. of prov. Azerbaidjan. The town, on an extensive plain about 10 m. W. of the lake, and 65 m. S.W. Teheran, is surrounded by a high mud-wall and a deep moat, which, filled with stagnant water, makes the site unhealthy, and contains a number of extensive gardens and handsome houses, including those of the American Mission, which occupy windmills of an extensive enclosure, remarkably secluded notwithstanding its situation near the centre of the city and beautifully adorned with large trees. Urumiyah claims to be the birthplace of Zoroaster and in the vicinity are several mounds, supposed to be the hills of the ancient fire worshippers. The surrounding district is of surpassing fertility and forms one of the greatest centres of commerce, vineyards, gardens, rice-grounds, and villages. Pop. of town about 15,000.

—The LAKE, called also Shak, situated 4,300 ft. above sea-level, is about 80 m. long from N. to S. by 20 m. broad and, but for a peninsula which projects from the N. more than half way across is of a compact and nearly rectangular shape. It is extremely shallow throughout, and particularly for 2 m. along the shore. The average depth does not exceed 3 fathoms, and the greatest depth yet found is only 4 fathoms but its fitness for navigation is greater than this depth naturally indicates, as, in consequence of the great specific gravity of the water from the quantity of salt which it contains, it is little affected by storms, and a vessel of 100 tons, built to ply upon it, would not, it was calculated when loaded, draw more than 5 ft. or 4 ft. The numerous islands scattered over the bosom of the lake long remained barren and uninhabited, but the largest, called Maral, has been and others are in course of being colonized.

URUP, Orup, or COMPART LAKE, one of the Kurils Islands, N. Pacific Ocean N. from Urup, from which it is separated by a narrow channel, called the Strait of V. It is about 50 m. long, and 10 m. to 12 m. broad, N.E. to S.W. lat. 45° 28' N. lon. 149° 24' E. It is composed of lofty mountains and deep gorges, covered with long rank grass and large trees. Its mineral products are copper sulphur, and quartz.

URUPINKA a town. Russia. See URUMIYAH.

URURAH or SANTA-URRA, a vil. and par. Brazil, prov. Rio-de-Janeiro, on the river or channel of same name, forming the outlet of Lake Uru, 16 m. from Campos. It contains a parish church has several sugar-works and distilleries, and some manioc-flour to Campos. Pop. 3,000.

URVOLGY a vil. Hungary. See HERZEGNEV.

USA or OSMA, a river, Russia, rises in N.E. of gov. Archangel in the W. slope of the Ural Mountains; flows circuitously S.E.E., receives the Loma, &c., and joins 1 bank Petelers at the town of Usa; total course, 300 m.

USAGRE, a town, Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 50 m. S.E. Badajoz with a handsome church, a courthouse, primary school, manuf. of quicksilver of which there are actually worked, a distillery and numerous wind-mills. Pop. 1,440.

USCIO a vil. and town, Sicilian Islands, div. Genoa, near Rapo with a parish church. Pop. 1,302.

USCE, or USCIRA, a town, prov. Frosino, gov. and W. Rome, on the Tevere. It contains a B. Catholic church, and a grange, and has manufactures of woollen cloth, a distillery, fishery, and extensive glass-works. Pop. 1,047.

USEDOM, an isl. Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. Stettin, between the Balie on the N. the Pomeranian-lake on the S., the Poles on the W., and the Swines on the E. It forms a sandy tract of very irregular shape, and generally flat, though occasionally broken by low sandhills, greatest length, N.W. to S.E. 25 m.; greatest breadth, 15 m. It contains several lakes well supplied with fish, is well wooded, and has some tolerable pastures, but is not well adapted for agriculture. The inhabitants are generally fishermen or sailors. Along with the adjacent island of Wolin it forms the circle of Usedom. Its two principal towns are Usedom and Swinemünde. Pop. (1848) 21,081.

USEDOM a town, Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. and 40 m. N.W. Berlin, W. side the lake, and S. side the island of same name. It consists of the town proper, surrounded by walls with three gates, and of two suburbs. Has a court of law, a market-place, parish church, a chapel and a fishery. P. 1,504.

USERAE, a vil. Spain, Valencia, prov. and 17 m. N.W. Castellon-de-la-Piana; with a townhouse, two primary schools, a church, and brandy-distillery. Pop. (agricultural), 1,900.

USEH, Ur, or Utr, a river, Russia, rises in N. of gov. Volhynia; flows S.E. passing Orzech, enters gov. Kiev and joins r. bank Priprya, a little above its junction with the Dniester, after a course of about 155 m.

USHAK, or USMAN, a town, Asiatic Turkey, pach. Anatolia, 188 m. S. by N. Smyrna. It is built of sun-dried bricks, and is noted as the place where the largest and finest carpets are made the weaving, dyeing, &c., of which occupy most of the inhabitants.

USHANT [French, Usant, or Usant], an island, France, 15 m. off W. coast, dep. Finistere, greatest length E. to W. 5 m. greatest breadth, 3 m. It is almost entirely composed of granite and presents a very bold and rocky coast, which is accessible only at some points. A considerable part of the surface is covered with meadows and pastures, on which horses and sheep are reared. An active lighthouse is carried on Beiden St. Michael, which is the chief place, there are several hamlets. The inhabitants are said to have remained idolaters till the 17th century. There is a light-house on the island in lat. 48° 28' N., and lon. 5° 3' W. An indecisive naval engagement was fought here, between the French and English in 1778. Pop. (1841), 2,194.

USHEH a town, Chinese Turkistan. See OSUNT.

USHLA-WROED a township, England, co. Monmouth, par. Badwelly including the market-town of Tridgar. Pop. 15,424.

USHNETI, a small town, Persia, prov. Azerbaidjan, gov. Urumiyah, dist. of its name on the rise of the mountains near the N.W. extremity of a fertile plain. It once contained 1,000 houses, but now has dwindled down to 300.

USHROFF, a town, Persia. See ASHROFF.

USINGEN a walled town, Nassau, cap. bail., on the Utsch, 15 m. N.W. Frankfurt-on-the-Main. It has an appeal court, two churches, a castle, a school and hospital, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, sundries, hosiery, and leather a bark and a flour mill. Utschingen gave name to one of the branches of the house of Nassau. Pop. 1,933.

USK, a market town and par. England, on 18 m. S.W. Monmouth, on the Usk; irregularly built, houses chiefly of stone. It has an Established church, in the Anglo-Norman style with square embattled tower, a B. Catholic and several dissenting chapels, a county house of correction, a townhall, a grammar and several other schools, a mechanics institute and some minor churches. The salmon-fishing is actively prosecuted in the Usk. Area of par., 4,856 ac. Pop. 3,056.

—The river rises in Wales, on the W. frontier of co. Brecknock flows E. to the town of Brecknock, then S.E. by Abercromby to Usk, then S.E.W. circuitously past Cerrion and Newport, into the estuary of the Severn, after a course of about 60 m. It is navigable to Newport.

USK, par. Irrel. Kildare (1783) ac. Pop. 712.

USKANE, par. Irrel. Tipperary; 7,656 ac. Pop. 1,076.

USKUP [anc. Uscup] a town, Turkey in Europe, cap. eparch. on the Uscup, at its confluence with the Vardar, 113 m. N.W. Salonika. It occupies a very ancient site, and consists of narrow, extremely dirty streets. On a hill on its W side is an old dilapidated castle, regularly garrisoned. Pop. about 10 000

USLAR, a village in Hanover, prov. Rhenishland, principality and 16 m. N.W. Göttingen, cap. town, in a valley watered by the Ahle. It has manufactures of tobacco-pipes, iron-works, a paper and several other mills. Pop. 2118.

USMAN, a to. Russia, gov. and 66 m. S.W. Tambov, cap. circle, on the Voronez. It contains a wooden and three stone churches and has a considerable general trade, and an annual fair. Pop. (1861), 4211.

USMALE, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 18 m. from Milan, on bank Molgora or Orio. It has a parish church, an elegant palace, and a trade in corn and silk. Pop. 1045.

USMANA, a vil. and com. Isl. Sardinia, gov. and 12 m. N. Cagliari. It has a trade in corn. Pop. 1190.

USSEATUX, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont div. Turin, prov. Pinerolo, near Fenestrelle. It is poorly built, and has two small churches. Pop. 1468.

USSEGLIO, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont div. Turin, with a handsome parish church. Pop. 2660.

USSELE, a to. France, dep. Corrèze, in a mountainous district, 25 m. N. Tulle. It was once surrounded by walls and stood several stages. It has a court of first resort, an agricultural society and communal colleges; manufactures of woolen stuffs, saddlebush, nails, and leather, and a trade in hemp, some linen, wax, tallow and timber. Pop. 2879.

USSELY by Eng. Lincoln 1110 ac. Pop. 63.

USSELA, a river Turkey in Europe, which rises in the N.W. of Bosnia, flows S.E., and joins L. Bosna a little above Dobol, after a course of about 45 m.

UST-SOLUK, a to. Russia, gov. and 296 m. S.E. E. Volynsk, cap. circle, on the Synyola. It has a considerable trade in the furs and skins obtained in the neighbouring forests, and a much frequented annual fair. There are salt works in the neighbourhood. Pop. 6000.

USTARITZ, a to. France, dep. Basses-Pyrénées, 12 m. S. Bayonne, L. bank Nive. It is a long straggling place and has manufactures of woolen stuffs, nails, glass, and earthenware. Pop. 1808.

USTER, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 9 m. E.S.E. Zürich on the Aare. It is a well built, and contains a large and handsome church, an ancient castle, and infirmary and has two cotton-mills. Pop. 4486.

UTICA an isl. in the Mediterranean, 33 m. off N. coast Sicily, of which it is a dependency lat. 38° 42' N. lon. 18° 10' E. It is of an oval shape, about 8 m. long by 2 m. broad, and has a prominent surface, occupied by three hills of considerable elevation, on one of which in the S., the fort of Falconara is built. Along the shores are coral banks visited by fishers from Tripoli. Utica used to be a great resort of Turkish corsairs. Pop. 8042.

USTIUJNA, OUSTIENNA or OUSTOUN-JELSOPOLEK, a to. Russia, gov. and 198 m. E. Novgorod, cap. circle, on the Mologa. It contains a church and has a considerable trade in wood and iron, the latter obtained from extensive and rich mines in the neighbourhood. Pop. 4500.

USTJUG-VOLSK, a to. Russia, gov. and 220 m. N. E. Volynsk, cap. circle, on the Synyola, which here unites with the Jug to form the Dvina. It is the see of an archbishop, contains 23 churches, five monasteries, and several other public buildings; and has manufactures of woolen and linen cloth, soap, candles, housewifery and articles in gold and silver, an extensive trade, being a kind of central depot for various articles brought from Europe by way of Archangel, and from Siberia, and a much-frequented annual fair. Pop. 14,000.

USTLEBINEK, a border to and fort, Russia, gov. Caucasus, on bank Kuban, 190 m. W. by N. Stavropol, inhabited by the Cossacks of the Line. It is composed of detached houses arranged in straight lines and to the midst of the church.

USTON, a to. France, dep. Ardege, on the Aisne, 18 m. S.E. St. Ghons. It has iron-works, and in the neighbourhood are several remarkable caverns, one of which contains a chapel, to which numerous pilgrimages are made. Pop. 1125.

USUMASINTA, a considerable river, N. America. It is formed in Guatemala, by the junction of the Lacamun with the Rio de las Pasas lat. 16° 30' N. lon. 91° 55' W. It flows, with many obstructions windings, generally N. forms the boundary between Guatemala and the Mexican department of Chiapas, traverses part of Tabasco, and falls into the Gulf of Mexico on the W. side of the Laguna-de-Tulumuc.

USURBIL, a to. Spain Biscay, prov. Guipuzcoa, 8 m. S.W. San Sebastian. It has a parish and three auxiliary churches, a courthouse, prison, primary school, hospital, and a magnificent castle called the Casa-de-Sorco, which suffered much during the last war, and has iron-works at which numerous anchors are made, and several flour-mills. P. 1803.

UTA, a vil. and com. Isl. Sardinia, div. and 13 m. N.W. Cagliari.

It has a trade in corn. Pop. 1214.

UTAH (the Desert of the Mormons) a W. territory of the U. States lat. 37 to 42° N. lon. 108 to 120° W. bounded N. by Oregon, E. the Indian territory, S.E. and S. New Mexico, and S.W. and W. California, length, E. to W., 620 m., breadth, 345 m., area, 187 928 sq. m. It forms part of the immense plateau which stretches between the Rocky Mountains on the E. and the Sierra Nevada of California on the W. varying in height from 4000 ft. to 8000 ft. above sea-level enclosed on all sides by mountain-ranges, and presenting all the elements of a desert, with its arid sterile plains, and occasional fertile tracts or oases. Very little is known of the geology, but basalt, and other rocks of volcanic origin, occur on the mountain-slopes, and in many other places. Utah is drained partly by rivers of which the Colorado, with its tributaries, Grand traversing the E. portion of the territory in a S.W. direction, and Green which rises in the N.E. of Oregon is by far the most important; and partly by great lakes the most remarkable of which is the Great Salt Lake (which see) situated in the N. at the height of 4100 ft. above sea-level. About 85 m. S.E.E. of it, and 100 ft. above its level is Utah Lake, which has a length of 35 m. and is fed by numerous mountain-streams, the surplus waters of which it discharges into the Great Salt Lake. The water is perfectly fresh, and abounds with trout and other fish on which the Indians partly subsist. These two lakes are supposed to drain an area of 12,000 sq. m. and have around them considerable tracts of alluvial soil. Another remarkable lake is that of Humboldt in the W. From the magnitude of the river of same name which flows into it, it should be the largest of all the lakes, but is comparatively small, a large proportion of the volume of water which it receives being absorbed by the surrounding deserts. The far greater part of this vast territory is unexplored, but its most fertile valleys have been occupied by the Mormons. The Mormons, after being expelled by the inhabitants of Illinois from their settlement of 'Nauvoo, emigrated into this territory and having fixed themselves on the borders of the Great Salt Lake, assumed a form of government, and gave to their territory the name of the State of Deseret. Congress interfered and in 1850 passed an act, by which its name has been changed into that of the territory of Utah. By this act the legislature consists of a council of 18 members elected for two years, and a house of representatives of 36 members elected for one year by all the male whites of 21 years of age. The same clause have the privilege of sending a delegate to Congress. Now such a system of delusion and deception as Mormonism is to be made compatible with the existence of civilized government remains to be seen, but a kind of security against gross abuse has been provided by a clause of the act, which declares that all laws passed by the Utah legislature are to be submitted to Congress, and if not approved will be of no effect. In the minutes of the Mormon General Conference of October 4, 1858, the population of Utah, estimated at 18,208 is classified as follows:—Sovereigns, 1529; high priests 560, elders, 629, deacons, 6699; children, 5907.

UTELDERP, a vil. Lower Austria. See BERGDOORF.

UTELLE, a to. France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 19 m. N. Nice.

It has a beautiful church which belonged to the Tem.

plars, several auxiliary churches, a large and well-managed hospital and communal schools. The vine, olive, and chestnut are largely grown in the vicinity and there is also a considerable trade in cheese. Pop. 3130.

UTICA, a city U. States, New York, situated on a beautiful slope, on bank Mohawk, 16 m. W. by N. Albany. It has wide and spacious streets, 20 churches, an exchange, several madrasas, a museum, a public library and the mechanism association, two cotton and several woolen factories, a rolling-mill flour grist, and saw-mills tanneries, foundries, &c., and an extensive trade, greatly facilitated by the Erie and the Chicago canal, and by several railways. P (1850) 17,565; (1855) about 20,000.

UTIEL, a town in Spain, New Castile, prov and 57 m. S.E. Cuenca. It has various educational establishments for advanced as well as primary instruction, a substantial Gothic church, and in the neighborhood several hermitages. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in agriculture but there are besides five heavily clothed, three soap manufactories, eleven flour-mills, while many are employed as muleteers, and some as grain and cattle dealers. Pop. 6550.

UTILLA, an isl. Caribbean Sea, Honduras Bay lat. 16° 4' N. lon. 86° 50' W about 7 m. long, and 2½ m. broad in the widest part; it is all but entirely occupied by mangrove-swamps. It has some good harbours, and wood and water may be procured in abundance.

UTOB, an isl. Sweden, off S.E. coast of Ika Stockholm lat 59° 25' N. lon. 18° 12' E. It is of very irregular shape and no great extent, but has valuable mines of iron.

UTRECHT the smallest prov. in Holland, bounded N. by prov. N. Holland and the Zeider-zee, E. and S. Gelderland, and W. by N. Holland about 20 m. N. to 8, by 28 m. E. to W; area, 400 sq. m. It is generally flat, but becomes more elevated eastward its soil bears a considerable resemblance to that of the provinces of N. and S. Holland and being more suitable for dairy farming than corn growing, the inhabitants devote themselves greatly to rearing cattle, sheep, and pigs, and making cheese and butter. The province is well watered by the Rhine the Vecht, the Amsel the Lek, &c. and yields in some places good corn crops and some tobacco is raised. Manufactures are chiefly carried on in and around its principal towns—Utrecht (the capital) Amersfoort, Rhine Wijk, Montfoort, and IJsselstein. In 1851 it contained 163 schools, attended by 18,771 pupils. Pop. (1851) 148,482.

UTRECHT (Latin, Utroctropium or Tropium and Utroum) an important town in Holland cap above prov., 28 m. S. E. Amsterdam on the railway thence to Arnhem. It lies on a pleasant district, on a somewhat elevated site on the Old Rhine, where the Vecht branches off from it is somewhat hump-shaped and traversed by two canals, across which are twenty-eight stone-bridges. The old walls have been levelled and planted and now form pleasant walks besides which outside the walls, is the Mallebaan, a promenade planted with eight rows of lime-trees, bordered with fine gardens, and having four foot and three carriage ways. Utrecht is the seat of the provincial government, and of superior courts, civil and military and possesses a government-house, courthouses, prison, and house of correction a mint, a townhall, the finest building in this town, with a considerable collection of archives, a small library a gallery of paintings chiefly by native artists, and a rich collection of drawings of old Utrecht houses, the buildings of the society of art and science, several barracks, an arsenal, and numerous remains of antiquity. It likewise has eleven Protestant churches, including the cathedral and eight R. Catholic churches, of which three belong to the Jesuits, thus being the head-quarters of that body; a synagogue, fever-hospital, several orphan hospitals, and numerous other benevolent institutions, besides many benevolent, religious and literary and scientific societies, a university, with a botanical garden, anatomical hall, laboratory observatory, library of 50,000 volumes, and a museum of natural history attached a veterinary school, schools for drawing and architecture, and numerous other educational establishments.

THE TOWN HALL, UTRECHT

(from Pease's Sketches in Flanders and Germany).

Utrecht is well situated for trade, has four large market squares, besides several squares on what were formerly baying-grounds, and well supplied and frequented markets. Its trade is chiefly in grain and cattle, and the manufactures of the place, which include cotton and woollen spinning cloth, dyeing silk twisting and weaving, and the kind of plush called Utrecht velvet, carpets and floor-cloth, metal and bone buttons, metal castings, snuff and cigars, soap, leather, ropes, salt, brandy, flint coffee, book-binding &c. Its active trade gives rise to a considerable amount of shipping business. It is the birthplace of Adrian Floriszoon, tutor to Charles V. Bishop of Utrecht, and afterwards Pope Adrian VI. In the audience-hall of the university in 1579 was signed the act of confederation, declaring the seven United Provinces independent of Spain and to the British military house now replaced by a barracks, the treaty of Utrecht was signed in 1713, which ended the war of the Spanish succession. Pop. (1849) 49,175; (1856) 53,908.

UTREDA a town in Spain, Andalucia, prov and 14 m. S. Seville. It has broad well-paved streets, and some good houses, although the great majority are of an inferior description. One of the squares is surrounded with two rows of iron balustrades and is used for bull-fights, and other public shows, in it stands the townhouse. A ruinous Carmelite convent has been converted into an excellent prison. The other public buildings and institutions consist of a college for primary gratuitous instruction attended by about 850 pupils, a philanthropic society, a founding hospital entirely for 100 children, an hospital for women, a house of refuge, an hospital for men, a granary two parish churches three nurseries, four suppressed convents, two public fountains, one of them an elegant and solid fabric and two fine promenades. There still exist some remains of the ancient fortifications. There are numerous oil and flour mills and manufactures of hats, soap, limes, and gypsum, bricks, tiles, and salt. Pop. 11,335.

UTTENWEILER, a vil. Württemberg circle Danneb, Riedlingen on the Renzbach with a church and a castle. Pop. 1115.

UTTERBY, par. Eng Lincoln 1564 ac. Pop. 346.

UTTOKETER, an ancient market town par. Eng, Lincoln, co. and 14 m. N.E. by E. Stafford, on a gentle eminence above the vale of the Dove, on the N. Staffordshire railway. It has eight principal streets, and a commodious market-place; the former are generally straight and kept clean; houses mostly of brick, and well built. It has a handsome stone parish church, with a fine spire, a R. Catholic and several Dissenting chapels a free grammar and a national school, a literary and scientific institution a seat of almshouses, and numerous other charities. Mailing, tanning, nail-making, rope and twine spinning, and wool-crafting are carried on to some extent; but the principal trade is in cheese, wool, bricks and malt. Area of par., 6973 ac. Pop. 4990.

UTTRIGHSHAUSEN, a vil. Hesse Cassel, prov Hanau with a church and two mills. Pop. 1045.

UTWEIL, a vil. Switzerland, can Thurgau, on the Lake of Constance, 20 m. E.N.E. Frauenfeld. It is well built, has a handsome church, and a large landing-place on the lake, where corn, fruit, and cattle are largely shipped. Pop. 549.

UYELKA, a river Russia, gov. Orenburg, which issues from a small lake near Kandravinskaya; flows westerly S.E., past Fort Uvelskaya, and joins I. bank Ul at Troitsk, total course, 60 m.

UXBRIDGE, a market town in England, co. Middlesex, 16 m. W. by N. London, 1 bank Coin, here crossed by two good UAEU. It is large, well built, paved, lighted with gas, and supplied with water; contains an ancient church, built of flint and brick, a Dominican chapel and St. Louis' orphrey, a library and scientific institution, a Lancasterian and several other schools, including a school of industry. Brick-making is carried on here on a large scale, and there is an extensive traffic in corn and flour, there being a great number of mills in the immediate vicinity. Pop. 3396.

UXUE, a tn. Spain, prov. Navarre, on the Pyrenees 27 m. S.E. Pamplona, with a church, townhouse, prison, and primary school; a flour mill, and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1208.

UYTERGEN a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders on the Scheldt, 10 m. E. Ghent with manufactures of linen, a brewery an oil and a flour mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1078.

UZBEKISTAN, a kingd Central Asia. See BOKHARA.

UZEL, a tn. and com. France, dep. Côte-du-Nord near the Ouse, 16 m. S. by W St. Etienne. It is tolerably well built, and has an important trade in linen and thread, being the centre of the linen trade of Brittany. Pop. 2090.

UZHEN two rivers. Russia.—1, (Uzhen) flows in E. of gov. Saratov, flows S.W. past the town of Uzen, then S.E. and is lost in Lake Kamysh; total course, nearly 800 m.—2, (Uzhen), flows considerably W of the former, and then pursues a course almost parallel to it, losing itself in like manner in the same lake, after a course of about 250 m.

UZHEROIE (anc. Uzerca), a tn. France, dep. Corrèze, on a conical hill nearly enclosed by the Vézère, 21 m. N.W. Tulle. It is built in the form of an amphitheatre consists of houses many of which are adorned with little turrets and contains a church which has a crypt beneath it, and is surrounded at the E and by five apsidal chapels. It has several fairs, one of which, a celebrated horse-fair, lasts two days. Pop. 2385.

UZES (anc. Uzès), a tn. France, dep. Gard, r. bank Aude, 9 m. N.W. Nîmes. It contains an ancient cathedral, surrounded by a lofty staple, and adorned with fine woodcarvings an episcopal palace, now occupied by the court-house and prefecture, and an old castle, surrounded by high walls flanked with towers. The manufactures consist of silk homery, coarse woollens, leather and paper and the trade is in corn wine, brandy and olive-oil. Pop. 5898.

UZMASTON, par. Wales, Pembrokeshire 2070 sq. Pop. 888.

UZMACH, a vil. and par. Switzerland, cant. and 23 m. S.W. St. Gall, near the E. extremity of Lake Zurich. It is tolerably well built, has a handsome church, the remains of an old castle several good schools, and an inn. Near it is a large cotton mill, driven by water. P. 1472.

UZZANO a tn. and com. Tuscany, comp. Florence 1 m. from Pesia, with a church a castle, and a school. P. 4084.

V

[For names not found under V, look V and W]

VAAGEN (Oer and Yeer) two lals. Norway, Loftholen group and near their S.W. extremity. Oer Vaagen is about 35 m. long N.N.E. to S.S.W. and contains a parish and part of the same name situated on a bay on its S.E. side. Yeer Vaagen is about 85 m. long, by 15 m. broad, its principal place, Yeer, is situated on the N.W. coast.

VAAOEE, one of the Faroe Islands (which see).

VAALE, a vil. Holland prov. Luxemburg, 15 m. S.E. Maastricht, with two churches, a townhouse, a school; and manufactures of cloth and wax-candles. Pop. 1342.

VAAST (St.), or St. Vaast la-Hougue, a seaport in France, dep. Manche, on a bay of the English Channel 15 m. S.E. Cherbourg. It has an excellent harbour, defended by the forts of Tilly and La Hougue and has a fine hospital building yards, cod, herring, and mackerel fisheries, and a trade in drals, waxes, dried fruits, copper &c. Pop. 1258.

VAAST (St.) a tn. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 10 m. E. Mons. Coal is extensively worked and exported and there are limekilns, breweries, and corn, tan, chloxy and oil mills. Pop. 3683.

VABRE (anc. Valeriana) a tn. France, dep. Tarn, 18 m. N.E. Castres, on the Agout with manufactures of cotton and woollen stuffs. Pop. 1381.

VACILA, an island in Sarc-Wanar archipelago and 16 m. S.W. Etneah, i. bank Werra, here crossed by a bridge. It has a church, grammar-school, hospital, manufactures of tobacco, a paper and other mills, and tanneries. Pop. 2239.

VACHE, an Isl. Caribbean Sea, off S. coast, Hayti, lat. 18° 0' N. lon. 78° 48' W. (n) It is hilly, and at the distance of 15 m. or 18 m., appears like an assemblage of small islands. The W. end of the island forms the E. side of the entrance of the great bay called the Bay of Cayes.

VADASE, several places, Hungary.—1, A vil. co. Arad 8 m. from Nagy Ezered, with two churches, and a trade in timber. Pop. 1855.—2, (Vad) A vil. co. Alsany 8 m. from Eichenau, with a church, and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1802.—3, (Vado), A vil., near the former.

VADAVATE, a river S. Hindoostan, rises in the W. Ghats, near the W. frontiers of the Mysore flows N.N.E. and after a course of about 200 m. joins r. bank Tombudra about 20 m. S.W. Adoni. In the lower part of its course, it sometimes takes the name of Hindory or Hungry.

VADISCO, a small seaport, Naples, prov. Otranto. It has often been used for shelter by the Barbary corsairs.

Vol. II.

VADJ HUKY is a market to Austria, Transylvania, co. Hunyad, at the confluence of the Osarna and Zsild with a fine old turret castle, which belonged to Corvinus manufactures of scythes and other ironware. Pop. 1600.

VADKERT, a market to Hungary co. Aggrad 26 m. S.E. Karpen. It has mineral-springs, and a trade in excellent tobacco grown in the vicinity. Pop. 2494.

VADKERE, a vil. Hungary co. Pesth, about 16 m. from Kalocsa with a R. Catholic and two Protestant churches, and a considerable trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 2315.

VADO a seaport in Italy Piedmont prov. and 4 m. S.W. Savona, W. shore Gulf of Genoa on a beautiful and commodious bay where any number of ships may find safe anchorage. It is defended by two forts, and has a number of well-built houses a parish church, school a valuable fishery, and extensive brick and tile works. Pop. 1468.

VADSTEN, a tn. Sweden lin. and 27 m. N.W. Linköping on a bay of Lake Wetter. It contains two churches, an infirmary a new hospital, large and well managed a female endowment, and extensive manufactures of linen and lace, the latter employing the aged and the young. Near it is the old castle of Wetterburg now partly used as a corn-magazine. Pop. 2158.

VADUZ, a tn., cap. princip. Liechtenstein, on the valley of the Rhine, on the frontier of the Swiss can. Grisons, 21 m. S.E. St. Gall. It contains an old castle, seated on a height which overhangs the town. Pop. 573.

VAERDAL a vil. and par. Norway prov. and 85 m. N.E. Trondheim, at the mouth of the Siaker, in the N.E. part of the Trondhjem-fjord. Pop. 8900.

VAGA, a river, Russia, rises m. S.W. of gov. Vologda flows N.E. past Veleik enters gov. Archangel and joins i. bank N. Drina a little below Ust-Vega, after a course of about 240 m. In spring it is navigable by barges.

VAGH Bessarabia, a market in Hungary co. and 22 m. N.E. Tronstschin, i. bank West here crossed by a bridge. It has a handsome church, a synagogue, two castles extensive manufactures of earthenware, and a trade in corn, and various articles in wood. On the opposite side of the river stands the castle of Podhray. Pop. 3146.

VAGHA or Vagovce, a vil. Hungary, Hither Danubio, co. Presburg on the Vagh. Pop. 1879.

VAGLIO a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 7 m. E. Potenza. It has a church, several chapels, and a convent. Pop. 8020.

145

VAGOS, a to and par Portugal, prov Douro, 6 m. S. Aveiro. Pop. 3393.

VAGYOCZ, a vil. Hungary. Elther Danube, so. Neutra, in a mountainous district, about 24 m. from Galgoczi with a parish church. Pop. 1059.

VALGATZ, an isl. Russia, Arctic Ocean, between N. E. coast of gov Archangel, from which it is separated by the Straits of Vagatz, and the island of Nova Zembla, from which it is separated by the Straits of Karsky. greatest length, from N W to S. E., 60 m.; greatest breadth, 55 m. The interior is said to be mountainous, and the N. and S. E. shores present deep rocky cliffs not exceeding 200 ft. in height. The cliffs are partly composed of clay-slate, which contains cubical crystals of pyrites, and yielding very rapidly to the action of the frost, the air, and the water, crumbles down, and is soon worn by the sea into balls of an inch in diameter, which are known by the name of avalanias, or nut-stones. All the streams of the island have bars across their mouths, formed by banks of these stones, which, in the case of a strong wind towards the shore sometimes accumulate so rapidly, as to choke up the streams, and convert them for a time into lakes. The inhabitants are chiefly Samoyedes, by whom the island is called Kharodaya. Part of them who own reindeer, remain throughout the year, but others, as well as Esquimaux, only go over in summer to fish and hunt.

VALHINGEN, two places. Württemberg. — 1. A to circle Neckar, 1 hank Eng. 1 m. N W Stuttgart, with a church a castle in ruins, a townhouse, and Latin school, manufactures of chimney a paper mill and a trade in wood. Pop. 3073. — 2. (aus dem Fildern) A vil circle Neckar bail. Statt. part with a church, and manufactures of linen and cotton goods. Pop. 1486.

VALLETTA, a to and com Italy Lombardy prov and 9 m. from Lodi. It has the remains of an ancient castle, and a trade in fruit, particularly in exquisite peaches. Pop. 2207.

VALMUGA, a river Russia, which rises in gov Archangel flows E. and after a course of about 70 m. joins the bank N. Dvina near the town of Emmeze. Its banks are covered with fine timber large quantities of which are cut and transported to Archangel.

VALNOR, par Wales, Brecon 6597 ac. Pop. 2567.

VALRANO, a to. Naples, prov Lavoro, 7 m. N E Tosco. Pop. 1760.

VALRO, a vil and com. dischy and 35 m. S. Parma, a bank Euse. It has a trade in cattle, but many of the inhabitants emigrate for employment. Pop. 8473.

VALSÈ, a vil France, dep Rhone, properly only a suburb of Lyons. Pop. 1277.

VALRON [sic, de la Vocontrium] a to. France, dep. Van cluse, on a steep rock near the Ouyère, 15 m. N E Orange. It has narrow winding, and very steep streets an ancient cathedral, and several Roman remains. Pop. 1863.

VALTJANA, a river Finland. See BISTREX.

VALKE, a river Siberia, rises in lat. 62° N., in the W. of gov Yeniseisk, flows W., enters gov Tolokan, and joins a bank. Its about 190 m. above Surgut. total course, about 500 m. its chief affluents in the Kulugan, which joins it on the right.

VAL-ARZA, a vil and com Italy Lombardy gov Milan prov and 10 m. N F Bergamasco. It has a handsome church a charitable endowment, several schools, and a trade in corn, cattle, and dairy produce. Pop. 1100.

VAL-BERGAZIA, a valley partly in the S. E. of the Swiss ca. Grisons and the N. of Lombardy. It follows the course of the Maira, is inclosed by high mountains, and is both fertile and pleasant.

VAL-BE-ALOT (L.), or LARREN, a vil France, dep. Vosges, 10 m. from Remiremont, on the Comblant. It has manufactures of cotton stuffs, straw-hats, and cherry-brandy. P. 1031.

VAL-DE-ROUSE, an ancient division, Sicily, which comprehended the whole of prov Messina, a large part of Catania, and a small portion of Palermo. Its cap. was Messina.

VAL-DE-BARRO-DONOURO, a vil. Spain, New Castle, prov and 17 m. W N W Toledo. It has clean streets, a square with good piazzas, a townhouse prison, primary endowed school, a church and several oil and flour mills. Pop. (agricultural) 2872.

VALAAM an isl. Russia, in N. of Lake Ladoga. It is about 16 m. in circuit; is covered with fine forests, and said to be rich in iron. There is a monastery on the island, and the monks who live in it, and employ themselves in agriculture. See almost the only inhabitants.

VALAIS (Sav. WALLIS) a com. Switzerland, bounded, N by cant. Bern and Vaud, W by Savoy, S. and E. by Piedmont, and N E a corner of cant. Tessin and Uri, greatest length, N. E. to S. W. 57 m. breadth, 37 m. area, 1655 sq. m. It is surrounded on all sides by some of the loftiest and most magnificent mountain chains in Europe, on the N. by the Bernese, on the S. and W. by the Pennine, and on the E. by the Helvetic or Leontopontine Alps. In all these chains are heights varying from 13,000 ft. to 15,000 ft. The Bernese Alps descend precipitously from N. to S., the Pennine Alps descend more gradually from S. to N. There is thus an intermediate space in which these slopes merge into each other, and find a common level, this level is the bed of the Rhone, and in order to trace it we have only to follow the course of that celebrated river, as it flows across the canton, first W. R. W. and then N. N. W. accumulating all its waters, and finally discharging them into the Lake of Geneva. The long valley through which the Rhone thus flows is the largest in Switzerland. It is steep and narrow, particularly on the N. side, where it approaches very near to the Bernese Alps, which accordingly, send down their torrents almost in straight lines parallel to each other, and perpendicular to the axis of the chain. On the S. or left side, the distance from the Pennine Alps is much greater and hence though the chain itself is higher the streams which proceed from it have both a longer and a less direct course, and mark out transverse valleys of considerable extent. Many of these valleys are occupied by magnificent glaciers of these though forming only a small proportion of the whole, 17 are counted in the Val-de-Bagnes, and eight in the district of the Simplon. Where the elevation is not too great, the mountain-slopes are covered with extensive and magnificent forests of plane hard wood, oaks, and walnuts, succeeded lower down by noble plantations of chestnuts and productive orchards. Pasture of the richest verdure abound, and form, by the produce of the cattle which graze upon them, the principal source of subsistence and wealth. In general too where the elevation above the sea-level does not exceed 2000 ft., the vine thrives, and a good deal of wine of tolerably good quality is made. Much arable land also, is found in the lower valley of the Rhone, and yields good crops of grain. In the mountainous locality most of the fine fruits attain perfection, and the rearing of silk worms is successfully pursued. The manufactures of the canton are of little consequence but its situation on the great line of traffic over the Alps gives it an important transit trade. Almost all the inhabitants profess the R. Catholic religion and public instruction is wholly in the hands of the Jesuits. A common division of Valais is into Upper and Lower, in the former of which German, in the latter French, is spoken; but for administrative purposes the division is into 13 districts or diocèses, of which that of Sion or Sitten is the capital. The other most important places are Martigny, Leuk, and Vispach. Each diocèse has a council elected by all the citizens belonging to it of 18 years of age, and each council sends four deputies to a diet, in which the legislative power is vested. In addition to these deputies, each president of a diocèse has a seat in the diet ex officio, and by a strange anomaly not only does the Bishop of Sion possess a seat, but his vote counts as four. The executive is vested in a council of five, elected by the diet annually, though the same individuals may be again and again re-elected. Pop. (1850), 81,871 of whom only 450 are Protestants.

VALASZKA or BELA, a vil Hungary, co. Neutra, is a well wooded district, about 12 m. from Balmaz; with several saw and flour mills. Pop. 8037.

VALATIE, a vil U. States, New York, 20 m. S. E. Albany. It has three churches, a machine-shop, a variety of mills, and extensive manufactures of cotton stuffs.

VAL-BENOÎTE, a vil. France, dep. Loire 5 m. S. E. of St. Etienne, on the Forez. It has manufactures of iron and steel, vegetable red, and carmine. Pop. 3947.

VALCARLOS, a to. Spain, prov. Navarre, in a valley of same name, 85 m. from Pampeluna; with manufactures of iron and leather and several mills. There are iron-mines in the vicinity, which supply the royal iron-works of Orreaga.

Pop. 962.

VALDAGNO, a tn. Italy, Venetia, prov. and 15 m. N W Vienna, on the Adige. It has iron-works and manufactures of woollen cloth, linen, and agricultural implements. Pop. 2890.

VALDAI a tn. Russia, gov. and 80 m. S.E. Novgorod, cap. circle, and on the shores of a lake of same name. It is surrounded on three sides by an arched rampart; it is built mostly of wood, but contains some good stone-houses; has a court of justice, three churches, a palace, and some trade. Pop. 4319.

VALDAI (German, Waldai) a range of hills, Russia, which stretches N E from gov. Pskov and between govts. Tver and Novgorod, for above 100 m. The Valdai Hills seldom exceed 850 ft. in height, and are generally rounded, so as to give the districts which they cover the appearance of an undulating plateau often cultivated to its greatest height, and where not cultivated, generally covered with wood. These hills, though low, form part of the great European watershed sending the waters on one of their sides to the Baltic, and on the other to the Caspian. They are composed chiefly of clay slate, and more partially of sandstone and limestone.

VALDARACETTE, a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. Madrid, 21 m. from Oaxaca. It is poorly built, has a church, a primary school; manufactures of articles in asparto, several oil-mills, and a trade in oil and amaranth. Pop. 1698.

VALDALGOLFA a tn. Spain, Aragon, prov. Teruel 9 m. from Alcañiz, near the Guadalupe. It has a church, surrounded by a lofty tower; a manery, finely placed on a height, a primary school, manufactures of linen, and several oil-mills. Pop. 1400.

VALDEHIMBRE a tn. Spain, prov. and 10 m. from Leon with a church, courthouse, primary school, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1814.

VALDEFUENTES, a scattered vil. Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 17 m. S.E. Cáceres. It has a townhouse prison, palace of the Marquis of Valdefuentes in a neglected state, two primary schools, an Augustinian convent, whose church is appropriated for public worship; and a parish church. Many of the inhabitants are employed as carriers, some domestic linen and woollen fabrics are made, and there are nine flour-mills, one oil-mill, and some traffic in cattle. Pop. 1917.

VALDEGANGA, a tn. Spain, Murcia, prov. and 18 m. from Albacete, on a lofty height above a bank of the Júcar. It contains a parish church, courthouse, prison, and primary school, and has manufactures of woollen and linen cloth and a trade in corn, wine, cotton, silk, fruit, and cattle. P. 1154.

VALDEIGLESIAS (Bar. Marques de) a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 86 m. W N.W. Madrid, tolerably well built; with two squares, a townhouse, prison, hospital, ancient castle, church, three hermitages, and two primary schools; and manufactures of soap, chocolate, brandy, and leather and some oil-mills. Pop. 8038.

VALDELABACA, a vil. Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 70 m. from Cáceres, near the Tagus. It is indifferently built and consists of narrow, unpaved streets; contains a church and a primary school, and has a fishery in the river, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1096.

VALDEMORILLO a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 18 m. W N.W. Madrid, in a narrow valley watered by several streams. It has a church, courthouse, prison, and primary school, manufactures of superior stoneware, two flour-mills, and a trade in charcoal. Pop. 1223.

VALDEMORO, a vil. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 15 m. S. Madrid, with a townhouse, a small hospital, an asylum for poor widows, three primary schools, a Latin grammar-school, a Franciscan manery, and a parish church; a soap-manufactory, and several oil-mills. Near it are a hermitage, several foundations, and a cemetery. Pop. (agricultural) 2553.

VALDONGO, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. Biella. It has an old castle, in good preservation, and a church. Pop. 1303.

VALDEOBREPO, a vil. Spain, Extremadura, prov. and 45 m. from Cáceres, on a height in a rugged district near the Alagón; it is poorly built; has a church, courthouse, prison, and primary school, manufactures of linen, a fishery, several flour-mills and a trade in cattle, honey and wax. Pop. 1205.

VALDEOLIVAS, a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 80 m. N.W. Guadix. It is poorly built, consisting of mean houses in narrow and ill-paved streets, and has a church, a primary school, and a trade in oil. Pop. 1819.

VALDEPENAS, a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov. Ciudad Real, 110 m. S. Madrid. With few exceptions, the houses are low and small, with foundations of stone and clay and walls of ash, but the streets are wide and paved. It has a townhouse, prison, hospital, several primary schools, a suppressed monastery, an old and handsome parish church and nuns hermitage, manufactures of home-made cloth, soap, some oil presses, flour-mills, and pottery, where jars are made for the famous wine produced here, and the exportation of which forms the chief branch of commerce. Fine delicious wine is derived from the Burgundy vine, transplanted into Spain; it is kept in large jars (fucos) in very deep cellars, and when removed, it is put into pig-skins pitched inside. It is rich, fruitily full-bodied, high-coloured, and will keep well and improve for 10 years, but it is a heating wine. Valdepenas was sacked by the French in 1808. Pop. 11 085.

VALDEPIÑAS-de-Jaar a tn. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 18 m. S.W. Jaen on the skirt of a hill. It has a substantial townhouse, a flesh-market, two primary endowed schools, a parish church and two hermitages, three flour-mills, five oil presses, three soap-manufactories, three tile and brick kilns, and a manufactory of plasters. Pop. (agricultural) 4309.

VALDEPIELAGO a tn. Spain, prov. and about 22 m. N.E. Leon with a church, courthouse, primary school and manufactures of linen and serge. Pop. 1018.

VALDEPIADUEY a river Spain, prov. Leon, rises in the hills between Almansa and San Roque-del-Termino, and after receiving the waters of the Salado, enters the Duero, 20 m. E. Zamora. Excludes of windings its length is about 80 m. and its general direction S.W.

VALDENAS a tn. Spain, prov. and 80 m. S.E. Leon between the Cea and Valderaduey. It has four squares, two primary endowed schools, five parish churches, two hermitages, one of them outside the town, a bull-ring theatre, a substantially-built hospital, and a Carmelite convent. Near the town is the seminario-convento or theological school, in which the most philosophically mathematical, and Latin sciences are taught. Besides agriculture and cattle-rearing, the industry of the place is limited to two tanneries, two flour-mills, and several brandy-distilleries. Pop. 8435.

VALDEKROBRES a vil. Spain, Aragon, prov. and 63 m. N.E. Teruel, on bank Matarranya, here spanned by a bridge of four arches. It is well built, the streets rise over one another like the seats of an amphitheatre, and it has a town house, parish church, two primary endowed schools; an oil and a paper mill, a copper mill, and various other manufactures. Pop. 8278.

VALDES an isl. N.W. coast of America in the Gulf of Georgia; lat. 50° N. lon. 125° W. It is the largest of the islands in the vicinity and along with Vancouver's, forms the continuation of the gulf, which is also called Discovery Passage. There is a village upon it, seated on the summit of a steep sandy cliff about 100 ft. high.

VALDEVERDEJA, a vil. Spain, New Castle, prov. and 65 m. W Toledo, near the Tagus. It has a townhouse, prison, two primary schools, church, a tanning mill, several flour-mills, and some baking-establishments. Pop. 3048.

VALDIBLACA a vil. and com. X. Leon, prov. Alapes Maritimes near St. Martin-de-Lantous, with a church, and an old castle. Pop. 1179.

VALDIBERI or Valdiber a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. and 11 m. S.W. Coudi bank Gecco with a court of justice, a handsome church, mineral-springs, with a bathing-establishment, and quarries of fine marble. P. 1887.

VALDIVIA, one of the 5 provinces of Chili, bounded N. by the River Imperial, S. the Maypo or Rio-Negro, E. the Andes, and W. the Pacific Ocean. It is about 180 m. long, by 75 m. wide. The Aricaean Indians, supposed to amount to some 18,000 still dwell in this territory, and are about twice as numerous as the Creoles or descendants of the original Spanish settlers, but generally speaking are quiet and inoffensive. Here the Andes appear somewhat to descend from their towering height: in the V. parts of Chili; but as the climate is colder, they are covered throughout the year with snow. From their jagged summits break out a number of volcanoes of great magnitude, among which may be specially noticed that of Villarica, whose eruptions can be distinctly seen at a distance of above 200 m.; it stands detached from the parent-chain, and is ever vomiting forth volumes of fire and smoke. The volcano of Osorno is next in importance, and like the former is seldom in a state of quiescence. In the district of Huilliches is that of Huanahuel. The country between the sea and the Andes presents a more level surface than is generally the case in this very mountainous region, in consequence of which, and of the natural humidity of the climate it possesses a great number of rivers and lakes, the former being in many cases navigable for vessels of large tonnage. Among them may be mentioned the Cautin or Imperial, which has a width at its embouchure of 640 yards, the Budi, which takes its rise in the salt-lake of the same name, the Tolten, which issues out of the great lake of Villarica; the Valdivia, which springs from the lakes of Huanahuel, and after receiving the tributary waters of many large streams, falls into the Pacific, forming a number of islands at its mouth. In the Indian territory comprehended in this province, are also to be found the Chivita the Trumog or Bano, the Bufonada, and a great many others of more or less note. Most of these rivers are deep and wide, and admirably adapted for forming a system of inland water communication yet strange to us, this natural advantage has never yet been turned to any account. The soil everywhere is extremely fertile, and the climate, though rarely as very salubrious, nor can any other part of Chile boast of so many and so secure harbours, still its progress hitherto has not kept pace with that of the rest of the Republic, or corresponded in any degree to the manifold advantages with which nature has endowed it. Some efforts, however, have been made of late years by the Chilean government, not to resume it from this state of torpor and backwardness by establishing steam-navigation between it and the principal seaports of the Republic. A considerable part of the land is covered with wood of the best quality, and suitable both for houses and ship building. This is the chief article of export from the district—a little grain and a small number of cattle forming the residue. The very scanty population is employed in agricultural pursuits. This province once yielded gold, and the Spanish conquerors for sometime drew immense sums from its rich veins, but the system of compulsory labour which they attempted to impose on the natives, caused at last a general rising of these fierce tribes, which led to the utter ruin of all the Spanish settlements, and to a struggle so severe and protracted that not only were the mines abandoned, but every successful attempt to re-open them led to fresh and sanguinary irruptions of the Araucanians, until their very names were forgotten, nor can any one tell now where those rich deposits lie. Principal towns—Valdivia and Osorno. Pop. 23,000.—Repertoire Chileno Domingo Arce (see Moche, Histoire de Chili).

VALDIVIA a tn Chili, cap. of above prov lat 39° 49' S. lon 78° 15' W 900 m. S. S. W Santiago. It stands on a sloping bank on the S. side of the river Valdivia, at some distance from the sea, and in the centre of a district complacent for its magnificent woodland and the fruitfulness of its soil. The houses are chiefly built of wood and for the most part have a mean unlovely appearance. The inhabitants are poor and sunk in ignorance and sloth. The port of Valdivia is considered the best in Chili, whether for its size or for the safety of its anchorage. The town was one of those built by Pedro Valdivia, a follower of Pizarro, and one of the most ruinous of the Spanish conquests. It grew and prospered for a time, and became in reality the most thriving and populous of the Spanish towns in the S. of Chili. But Valdivia fell at last, the Spaniards were exterminated almost to a man all their towns were destroyed, and this favourite settlement shared the same fate, and thus ended its short-lived prosperity nor could it ever afterwards regain its ascendancy, notwithstanding all the efforts and the fostering care of the Spanish government. It was here that the Spaniards established the first mint in Chili. They made it a place of great strength, and for many years it was the penal settlement of both Chili and Peru. Valdivia was taken by the Dutch on several occasions in the 17th century. In 1820 Valdivia was wrested from the Spaniards by a patriot force headed by Lord Cochrane (Earl of Dundonald) under circumstances which render this deed of arms one of the most remarkable in modern times. Pop. 2059.

VALDOBIA DENE, a tn Austria Italy, prov and 21 m. N. W. Treviso. It has several silk-mills, and raises a great deal of silk in its vicinity. Pop. 3400.

VALDUGGIA, a vill and com Italy, Piedmont, div Novara, 5 m. E. Borgosesia, on the Stresa, have crossed by a bridge. It has a parish church. Pop. 3867.

VALFOLIA, three places, Brazil.—1. A tn, prov and 90 m. W. N. W. Rio-de-Janeiro, between the Prato and the Parahiba. It is the seat of an electoral college, and the headquarters of a body of the national guards contains a parish church, and an hospital, and groves within its district much coffee, millet, manioc, and bananas. Pop. (1848) 5000.—2. A tn, prov Bahia, 1 bank Una, near a canal, which is navigable at high water and gives that river a communication with the Jiquá. It has a court of law, with extensive jurisdiction over the neighbouring municipal districts contains a church, and two primary schools, and has a trade in coffee and timber. Pop. 1200.—3. (or Cataguanha) A tn, prov Parahiba, on the Cataguanha, 55 m. N. Oeiras; with a church. In the district are numerous mines of saltpetre, rice, tobacco, mandioc, and millet are grown and cattle reared. Pop. (1848), 3000.

VALEÇA, two places, Portugal.—1. A tn, prov Minho, on a lofty height, 1 bank Minho, opposite to Tuy in Spain 19 m. N. Ponte-a-Lima. It is a place of great antiquity and is strongly fortified. Pop. 1700.—2. (de-Douro) A tn and par Borna Alta, 5 m. S. E. Lamego, in a fertile district. Pop. 635.

VALENÇAY a tn France, dep. Indre 34 m. N. W. Chateauroux, on the Nahon. It contains a magnificent chateau built by the family of Eximenes during the reign of Francis I, and in which Francis VII and the Infante of Spain were detained from 1808 to 1814 after they had been kidnapped by Bonaparte and has manufactures of woollen, woolen cloth, and cutlery, and a wool-spinning mill. 1 up. 1676.

VALENCE (anc Valentia), a tn France cap. dep. Drome 1 bank Rhone, have crossed by a fine suspension-bridge, 66 m. S. Lyons. It is surrounded by old battlemented walls, flanked by towers, and entered by several arched gates; and consists of poorly built houses, and narrow narrow streets. It contains a cathedral a small ancient theatre in the Roman style, and containing a fine bust by Canova, of Pope Pius VI., who died here a public library of 16,000 volumes, a handsome opera-house, and theatre. It is the see of a bishop, has a court of first resort, a consulting chamber of manufactures, a society of agriculture, commerce, and art, a diocesan seminary communal college, school of artillery, and building-arsenal. The manufactures consist of cotton prints, hosiery and gloves. There are also silk and cotton mills, breweries, soaperies, tanneries dye-works, marble-works, and bookbinds. The trade is in wine, of which that of St. Ferey has much long champagne, bears the highest name, brandy fruit, silks olive and nut oil, paper, &c. Pop. (1869), 11 127.

VALENCE-D'AGEN (anc Valentia) a tn France, dep. Tarn-et-Garonne, 15 m. W. Mousas, with manufactures of leather and quilts and a trade in fashions, corn, beets, and tides. Pop. 2400.

VALENCIA, a prov and ancient kingdom in the E. of Spain. The province, bounded, N. by Castellon-de-la-Pena and Turren E. the Mediterranean, S. Alicante and Albacete, and W. Albufera and Caserta, has an area of 5754 geo. sq. m. and 500,000 inhabitants. It has first divided into the Balears, consisting of beautiful plains and valleys, enclosed by mountains and hills, is well watered by the Guadalquivir, Júcar, and other streams, which all flow E. to the Mediterranean, and though sparingly productive of the ordinary cereals, which are scarcely equal to the consumption, is renowned for its wine oil, silk, and numerous varieties of exquisite fruit; raises heavy crops of rice on its lower grounds departs large numbers of live stock, particularly sheep and goats and is clothed with forests of excellent timber in its more mountainous districts; possesses valuable quantities of marble in various quarters, and has many productive fisheries on its coast.—The *XXIV*th, bounded, N. by Aragon and Catalonia E. and S. the Mediterranean, E. and S. W. Murcia, and N. W. New Castile, comprehends the three modern provs. Castellon, Valencia, and Alicante; and has an area of 7198 geo. sq. m., and 1,110,990 inhabitants. It was first colonized by the Phœnicians or Carthaginians, who had established many flourishing settlements in it, when it was wrested from them by the Romans. Under them it made great progress in civilization, and was one of the most tranquil provinces of the empire, when it fell a prey to the Goths. About the beginning of the 8th century the Saracens became its towers. In the 11th century it was erected into a separate Moorish kingdom, under the dynasty of the Almoravids and retained its independence till 1238, when Don Jaime I., availing himself of its civil dissensions, completely subdued it, and incorporated it with his kingdom of Aragon. It afterwards passed to the crown of Castile, and has since followed its fortunes.

VALENCIA [see Valencia-Estremadura, French, Valencia, Italian, Valence], a city, Spain, cap. of the ancient kingdom and modern prov. of same name 180 m. E.S.E. Madrid, on the Turia, about 2 m. from the sea. lat. 39° 28' 45" N; lon. 0° 24' 33" W (w). It is the see of an archbishopric the residence of a captain-general, and has a supreme court of justice. The city in shape is almost circular, and along the N. base of the battlemented walls flows the river whose sandy stream exhausted by irrigation, is here crossed by five wide bridges. The walls built in 1356 by Pedro IV. are very perfect. There are eight gates, some of which, with their towers and machicolations, are very picturesque. The houses are lofty and gloomy looking and, with few exceptions, the streets are tortuous, and so narrow, that when one looks down from the cathedral tower, the openings scarcely appear amid the irregular and beauty of the place. The want of a proper harbour is a great drawback to Valencia. This city is a cheap, well supplied place, for here fish, flesh, fruit, and green-herbs abound; the society is easy and agreeable and the climate is delicious. It is celebrated for its manufactures, the most important of which is spinning and weaving silk, in which great numbers are employed, the rest comprise silk-throwing—the exportation of rice alone requiring about 50,000 sacks annually—cordage, hats of wool, hair, silk, and straw, gloves, fans, glass, painted tiles, which are very celebrated, cordage and fine wools, soap, combs, and leather. There are also two foundries, a nail work, and a tobacco-manufactory which gives employment to more than 8000 women. The principal articles of import are linen, ironmongery drugs, bar-iron plates, and colonial produce and the chief articles exported comprise corn, rice, silk, saffron almonds and oranges.

Valencia was founded by Junius Brutus, for the veterans who had fought under Viriatus. It was destroyed by Pompey, and when rebuilt became a colony, and the capital of the Edetan. It was taken from the Goths by the Moors in 713, and annexed to the kingdom of Cordova and from thence again; it was, after a siege of 30 months, wrested in 1095, by the Cid, who ruled despotically till his death in 1098. His widow Ximena was disposed of by the Moors in 1101, but the city was retaken in 1228 (according to others in 1239) by Jaime I. of Aragon, and was brought into the Castilian crown by Ferdinand's marriage with Isabella. In consequence of its opposition to the French in the war of succession it was robbed of its liberties and wealth by Philip V. In 1808 the French, under Marmont advanced on Valencia, but though the generals and nobles fled, the people led on by Elio, a monk, bravely repulsed the enemy who retired with great loss on Almanza. It was afterwards, however, ignominiously surrendered by the Spanish general Blake to Soult, who violated the capitulation, and put to death all who had distinguished themselves in the national cause (Pop. 56,355 (Midos) but according to Ford the population including the suburbs reaches 120,000 (1854) 148,512).

VALENCIA a city Venezuela dep Caracas, prov. Carabobo, 80 m. W.S.W. Caracas. It has a parish church situated in a handsome square, and communicating as it does by an excellent road with Puerto Cabello, 20 m. distant, a well-frequented port in the Gulf of Trinité all goods landed there for the consumption of the provinces of the interior pass through the city. The adjacent country produces every sort of provision and fruits in great abundance, and the plains feed immense herds of cattle, with sheep, horses, and mules, so that its markets are well supplied. Pop. estimated at 16,000.

VALENCIA—1, A lake, Venezuela. See TACARIGUA—2, A seaport and island Ireland. See VALINTRA.

VALENCIA DE ALICANTIA, a tn. Spain, Extremadura prov. and 43 m. W. Cecebre, near the Portuguese frontier, I bank Avid. It is walled, has a castle, government-house, prison, fish-market, handsome townhouse, various educational establishments, an hospital for the sick, two parish churches, with several parishes, and in the vicinity a fine climate, with several fountains, one of them supplied by a Roman aqueduct 80 ft. high in some places. It has manufactures of some coarse linen, cloth, and hats, two fulling mills, and many flour and three oil mills. About 4 m. distant are the ruins of the ancient Julia Contrasta. Pop. (agricultural) 6026.

VALENCIA DE-DON-JUAN, a tn. Spain, prov. and 18 m. S. Leon, on the Esla. It is surrounded by an earthen wall and in the highest part of the town is a strong Gothic fortress, but both are falling into ruins. It has a townhouse, three primary schools, and some domestic woolen and cotton weaving. Pop. (agricultural) 1857.

VALENCIA DE LAS TORRES, a tn. Spain, Extremadura prov. and about 40 m. from Badajoz. It is poorly built, and has a parish church, an old castle, a courthouse, school, and an oil and several flour mills. Pop. 1230.

THE MARKET-PLACE, VALENCIA.—From Chappell's Spain.

gular, close-packed roofs. Of the public buildings and institutions the following may be mentioned—a good new theatre, various hospitals, among them the general hospital which has baths, the porchouse, a fine edifice the founding hospital &c. a university founded in 1500 with chairs of jurisprudence, medicine, and philosophy with a fine library of 40,000 vols. a museum of natural history, chemistry and physics a botanic garden in the environs of the city, a theatre, and chapel, the seminario-convento where theology Greek and Latin are taught the college of Corpus Christi, founded in 1586, which contains many fine paintings by Ribais a national museum in one of the suppressed convents containing six or seven hundred pictures, and in which the great Valencian school may be studied to advantage, especially Vicente Juanes, the Spanish Raphael Ribalta, and Ribera (Spagnolotto) The cathedral built on the site of a temple of Diana, and a Moorish mosque, was raised to metropolitan rank in 1492. It is one of the finest monuments in Spain in point of architecture, but it is rich in paintings by the great masters of the Valencian school. There are besides 16 parish churches numerous suppressed convents, the most remarkable of which was St. Dominic's 21 nuns, a Magdalen asylum, 23 hermitages, a handsome custom-house, a college for orphans of both sexes, a normal school, an academy of fine arts a school of commerce, a school of agriculture, a college of advocates, a medical institute, with various other educational establishments; an episcopal palace, containing a library of 15,000 vols. the silk-hall or chamber of commerce, a beautiful Gothic building, a noble Ducal residence, a hall-venue a casino, a hippodrome, fine parks and gardens, good baths, prisons, and penitentiaries but there is only one fountain in the town, that in the great square. The citadel was built by Charles V. to defend Valencia against Barbarossa. The Ghorleta, with its fountain and statues, is a delicious promenade and frequented by the VALENCIA DEL-VENTOSO, or DEL-BARRAL, a tn. Spain, Escalante, prov. and 48 m. S.E. of Badajoz, with a courthouse, prison, a castle, rebuilt in Philip II.'s time, an endowed school for each sex, a church, suppressed monastery, and a hermitage. There are some domestic weaving of linen and fringes, and some traffic in pigs. Pop. (agricultural) 8109.

VALENCIANA a small tn. Mexico, dep. and 10 m. N. Guaymas, near which is a noted silver mine not now worked.

VALENCIENNES (anc. Valentianum) a fortified tn. France, dep. Nord, at the confluence of the Rhonelle with the Scheldt, which traverses the town S. to N., and divides it into two unequal parts, 30 m. S.E. Lille, on the railway from Paris to Brussels. The houses in general are tolerably well built, but the streets are narrow and winding and the whole place is of a dark and gloomy appearance. Its principal edifices are the Métal-d'Or, partly Gothic partly Italian, the church of St. Gery, the theatre, general hospital, the academy of painting sculpture, and architecture and the public library of 18,000 vols. It has courts of first resort and commerce, a smelting chamber of manufactures, and a communal college. The manufactures consist of lace, for which the town has long been famous; fine linen, hosiery, corsets, wine, cloth, sails, starch, malpica, oil, chimney-culch, Prussian blue, pencils, toys, dolls and fine pottery ware. There are also numerous beet sugar-factories salt-refineries, soap-works, tanneries, distilleries, flax mills, dye-works, and bleachfields. The trade is in wine, brandy, oil, soap, coal, wool, and the above articles of manufacture. The chronicle Frobenius was born here. Pop. 18,458.

VALENA a vil and par. Switzerland can. and 32 m. S.E. St. Gall, a cheerful well built place near to the baths of Pfäfers (which see).

VALENTANO (anc. Freudent) a vil. Papal States, deleg. and 19 m. NW. Viterbo. Pop. 1090.

VALENTIA or VALENCIA an isl., tn., par and harbour, Ireland, on the W. of co. Kerry and near the S. entrance of Dingle Bay. The island of a triangular shape, about 6 m. long E.N.E. to W.W.W. by 2 m. broad, has an area of 6371 ac. mostly fertile and under tillage, and possesses extensive and valuable slate and flag quarries, and productive fisheries. The towns or villages, at the S. E. extremity of the island, are beautifully enclosed among mountain slopes, and has a small church, chapel, and school, and some trade in slate, flags, fish, and agricultural produce. Pop. of tn. and par 2482. — The HARBOUR, formed by the island and the channels separating it from the mainland, has the advantage of two entrances, one from the N. and the other from the W., but both somewhat narrow in deep, spacious, and completely landlocked, and being the most W. port in Europe, has lately attracted considerable attention in consequence of a proposal to make it the W. terminus of railway communication, and a principal station for Atlantic steamers.

VALENTIA (isl. and sea, also named Dixton (which see).

VALENTINO (San), two places, Naples. — 1. A tn. prov. Abruzzo-Citra. 13 m. S.W. Castel with two churches and a convent. Pop. 2460. — 2. A tn. prov. Principato-Citra, N.W. Salerno, with a palace, a church, and five chapels. P. 2068.

VAIFENZA a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. and 7 m. N. Alessandria. A bank fort whose fortifications were dismantled in 1803. It has spacious and regular but ill kept streets, and three squares, a court of justice, a large parish church of three naves, eight other churches a college, a monastery and two hospitals. Pop. 7477.

VALENZANO, a tn. Naples, prov. and S. Bari with a church, monastery, and nursery. Pop. 2486.

VALENZUELA two vils. Spain. — 1. Andalusia, prov. and 36 m. E. Cordova, with broad paved streets, a town-house, public granary hospital, a primary school, church, and two hermitages. Pop. (agricultural), 2224. — 2. New Castile, prov. and 10 m. from Ciudad-Real, with a church, court-house, and school, manufactures of hides, and two oil-mills. Pop. 1240.

VALERA, two places, Spain. — 1. (de Alagoa), A tn. New Castile, prov. and 20 m. from Cuenca, poorly built, with a parish church, an old monastery and nursery, a courthouse, and primary school; and a trade in corn, wine, and cotton. Pop. 1020. — 2. (de Arriba), A tn. New Castile, prov. and S. Cuenca, with a church, a primary school, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1187.

VALERY or CAUX (St.), a seaport in France, dep. Seine-Inférieure, 85 m. N.W. Rouen, on the English Channel. It has a small harbour, much used for shutes in storage W. goods, and at which a considerable coasting trade is carried on. The trade is chiefly in corn, oleaginous seeds, iron, cotton, and coal. Pop. 6348.

VALERY or SAINT-SCIENT (St.) a seaport in France, dep. Somme, 12 m. N.W. Abbeville, a bank Somme, where it falls into the English Channel. It has a church, a harbour with a fine quay, admitting vessels of 800 tons, some ship-building, manufactures of cables and carriage, a trade in malted and pickled wine, oil, brandy, and cheese; and an active fishery. It is much frequented for sea-bathing. William the Conqueror, in invading England, sailed from Valery. P. 2842.

VALKEPIER, an ancient dist. France, which belonged to the former prov. Roussillon and is now included in dep. Pyrénées-Orientales.

VALETTA, or VALETTA a seaport in Malta, on N.E. coast of the island lat. (palace) 35°58'48" N., lon. 14°31'15" E. (n). It is picturesque and advantageously situated on a long neck of land called Mount Xiberras, which, with the mainland on either side of it, forms two large and commodious harbours, one on the E. called the Great Harbour, and the other on the W. called Marsa Muscat, or the quarantine harbour. The view of the town, on approaching it from the sea, is singularly magnificent. In entering it, attention is first attracted by the magnificence and strength of its fortifications. These consist principally of forts St. Elmo and Riccio guarding the great harbour the former an enormous work of granite, with barracks sunk in its lower bastions for 2000 men, fort St. Angelo, Fort Tigne and Marsa Muscat guarding the quarantine harbour, and the lines of Floriana, extending from harbour to harbour, across the isthmus. The unevenness of the site makes it necessary to keep up the communication between the different streets by flights of steps, forming one of the peculiar features of the place. The principal street, called Strada Reale, stretches across the crest of the hill and the other leading streets run parallel to it at lower elevations. All these streets are wide, and well paved with lava. There are also spacious and handsome squares in different parts of the town, and in the lower part, or Marina, the splendid quays, with the elegant edifices which line them, are especially deserving of notice. Besides the town proper, Valletta consists of a number of suburbs, of which the most important are Floriana, immediately beyond the lines already mentioned; and Sanglea, Rummia, and Vittoriosa, on the E. side of the great harbour. The ecclesiastical edifices include 20 churches, of which the from foreign silk, fabrics of hemp and flax, and different handicrafts. Pop. 210,000.

STREET ST. GIOVANNI VALETTA.—From Wright's Mediterranean Handbook

VALLADOLID (anc. Paseo), a city, Spain, Old Castile, esp. sh. prov., and once cap. of Spain, 98 m. N.W. Madrid, lat. 41° 39' 14" N.; lon. 4° 49' 28" W. (L.) in a beautiful and extensive plain, 1. bank Pisuerga, at the terminus of the canal of Castile. It is surrounded by an earthen wall and is entered by four principal gates. It has numerous squares, of which the principal one is surrounded with solid and handsome edifices, mostly provided with phases supported by elegant granite columns, each of one piece, and in a central point from which many streets branch off. Besides the cathedral, with PLAZA DE ANUNCIADA, VALLADOLID.—From Chapel L. Espinosa.

Doric facade, and solid arch, 50 ft. by 94 ft., over the principal entrance, which was planned by Herrera, but never completed, the chief public buildings are the royal palace of Philip III. with a commodious exterior and beside the remains of the most frequent in Spain especially by students in jurisprudence, the numbers altogether averaging about 2000 with colleges for Scotch, English, and Irish. El Colegio Mayor de Santa Cruz, a fine Gothic structure, with elaborate frontal, now converted into a museum, in which are gathered together the pictures, carvings, and images of the suppressed convents of San Benito and the small but once magnificent abbey of Portacocha, founded by Rodrigo Calderon, a prominent character in Qui II is altogether there are 16 parson churches five chapels, 24 convents, and 18 monasteries. The other public buildings and institutions consist of the high court of chancery the townhouse, various barracks, a theatre, a lyceum a bull-ring five-courts, with various other places of amusement a normal school, a college for orphan girls, an academy of architecture and design, a college of advocates, with numerous other establishments for elementary and advanced education a public library with 14,000 vols., general hospital, capable of accommodating 800 patients, military hospital, lunatic asylum, poorhouse, and foundling hospital. In the ancient and sumptuous palace of the counts of Benavente with several other charitable foundations, prisons, and penal establishments, a spacious stadium, bathing promenade, and fountains. The manufactures consist of paper linens, flax, brick and tiles, metal castings, leather, buttons, chocolate, fine delft, plain earthenware, ribbons, lace, silver-work hats, serges, blankets, dye-works, a chemical work &c. This city is the centre of traffic for the grain, fruits, and industrial products of the whole province, which are shipped at the great canal. Belad-Wind, as it was called by the Moors, was wrested from them by Ordoñez II. in 930. At the beginning of the 15th century when it became the residence of Juan II. it was already considered the finest town in Castile under Charles V. it was adorned with splendid edifices and his son Philip II. favoured his native place; he gave it the title of City in 1566, having succeeded Clement VIII. to elevate it to a bishopric in the preceding year. Madrid rose on the decay of Valladolid, as when the court removed the supremacy of its prosperity were out. Philip III., finding how much better the situation of the ancient capital was, determined to re-establish it, but after a five years' absence, the attempt was found to be impossible. At that time its population exceeded 50,000. Valladolid passed slowly away, keeping pace with the decay of Spain, until the invasion of the French, when ruin came on with frightful celerity. Columbus died here in 1506, and Hernandez the great artist in 1866. Philip II. was born here in 1537. Pop. 30,000.

VALLADOLID, a city Yucatan esp. dep., 90 m. E.S.E. Merida. Its appearance from a distance is pretty, each house having a little garden in front, filled with trees and flowers. The streets are well laid out and clean, but gram grows in the centre of the most frequented. The houses are principally of one story, with flat roofs, large doors, and barred windows, with courtyards and stone and mortar floors. It has some good public buildings a fine square, a handsome stone church, a townhouse, elegant aqueduct, which supplies the town with water and a pretty large cotton-factory, built of stone. The sellers in the marketplace are principally Indians, squatted about upon the ground, with small pieces of meat laid out in piles, and vegetables displayed in the same manner upon benches beside them in the public square. Valladolid is noted throughout the peninsula for the salubrity of its climate, and is much resorted to on this account by invalids from other parts of the province. Pop. about 15,000.

VALLADOLID-DE-NUOVA, dist. and to Honduras. See COMATAGUA.

VALLAMARTIN a in Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 44 m. N.E. Cadix, at the confluence of the Sarraon with the Guadalete. It has a townhouse, primary school church, nursery and manufactures of soft soap, and a pottery. P. 5178.

VAIL LATA a in Naples, prov. Principato Ultra, 18 m. S.E. Arzano, with a church and an hospital. Pop. 3600.

VAIL LAURIS (anc. Vallis Aurca) a vil France, dep. Var 10 m. S.E. Grasse, well built with manufactures of earthenware. Near it is a mine of manganese. Pop. 2282.

VAIL DORF a vil Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. Minden with a church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1113.

VALL-DE-ANDALUSIA, a vil Spain Andalusia, prov. and 20 m. N. Malaga, with a prison, granary, and hospital, five schools, a church and hermitage. Pop. (agricultural) 3850.

VALL-DE-GUERRA, a vil Cantabria, lit. Tenerife, very poorly built with a primary school, and some trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1258.

VALL-DE-SANTA ANNA a vil Spain, Extremadura, prov. and about 40 m. from Badajoz, with a church, an endowed school, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, numerous flour mills, and a trade in lime and charcoal. Pop. 1406.

VALL-DE-HUENCO, a tn. Cantabria, N. end of xl. Gomera divided into two parts by a ravine. It consists of 500 houses, including several hamlets and has a disappointed prison, a primary school, and parish church, several flour-mills, and manufactures of household houses. Pop. (agricultural) 3857.

VALL-DE-RODRIGO, a tn. Naples, prov. Lavoro, dist. Sorra, in a deep valley with three churches. Pop. 3200.

VALL-DE-SANTA ANNA, a tn. Spain New Castile, prov. and 5 m. S.E. Madrid, in a deep valley near the Jarama. It is indifferently built has a church several hermitages, a court-house, endowed school, and hospital and a trade in town and pavement. Pop. 1431.

VALL-DE-SANTA ANNA, a tn. Italy, Isola, and 14 m. S.E. Frignano, on the Valle Fratta. Pop. 8000.

VALL DULMO, or VALLE DE OMO, a tn. Sicily, prov. and 40 m. S.E. Palermo, at the bottom of a well-cultivated valley in a mountainous district. Pop. 8000.

VALL-DE-SANTA ANNA, a vil kingdom of Italy gov. Venice, prov. and 15 m. S.W. Verona, near I. bank Minio. It has an old castle, with a lofty dungeon, and a remarkable bridge or causeway about 600 yards long, built on either side and defended by several lofty towers. Pop., including four adjacent villages, 4000.

VALLELONGA a tn. Naples, prov. Calabria-Ultra II., E. Monteleone, in a fertile plain near the Madina. It contains a church, and is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient Nepheleon.

VALLELONGA a tn. Italy, prov. and 22 m. N W Calabrisco on an affluent of the Plaisan. Pop. 3600.

VALLENDAR, a vii Ebanah Prussia, gov. and N N E Cologne, r. bank Rhine with a R. Catholic church, a castle, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, tanneries, dye-works, &c. Pop. 3791.

VALLENGEN or VALARON, a vii. Switzerland, can. and 2 m. N W Neuchâtel in the fertile valley of the Ros with a church, an old castle, partly of the 12th century, and now used as a prison. Pop. 430.

VALLENBOLE [see Valena Solarium] a tn. France, dep. Basses-Alpes, 80 m. S.W. Digne, with a considerable trade in almonds, which are extensively grown in the district. Pop. 1890.

VALLEBAUGE [see Valbaud] a tn. France, dep. Gard, 13 m. N Le Vigan, on the Herault, with a Protestant church, and numerous silk-mills, the inhabitants being almost all employed in the rearing of silk-worms. There is also some trade in wood and ironware. Pop. 1867.

VALLEBÉ, a tn. Mexico, dep. and 185 m. E. by 8 San-Luis-Potosí, 1 bank Monteuma. It stands in a district rich in sugar-plantations and other tropical productions, in which it carries on a considerable trade. Pop. 3600.

VALLETTA, a tn. Malin. See Valletta.
VALLEIR (St.) a tn. France, dep. Rhône, at the confluence of the Galaure with the Rhône, 19 m. N by W Talence. It has an old Gothic castle, with a molary, soap-manufactures of grape, silk-thread, pottery, and chemicals, laweries, tanneries, and dye-works. Pop. 3466.

VALLEVO, a tn. European Turkey, Servia, 55 m. S.W. Belgrade, with numerous mosques and well frequented markets. Pop. about 6000.

VALLO (St.) a tn. Naples, prov. Principato-Citra, 15 m. S.E. Salerno. It is well built, has a parish church, a Dominican convent and numerous tanneries. Pop. 2400.

VALLOIRE, a vii and com. France, dep. Savoie, prov. Maurienne, 9 m. S.E. St. Jean-le-Maurienne. It has a trade in cattle dairy produce, and rock-crystals. Many of the inhabitants travel the country as colporteurs. P. 1826.

VALLOIN, a tn. France, dep. Ardèche, 14 m. S.E. E. Largentière, not far from the Ardèche, where it is crossed by a suspension bridge. It contains a Protestant church, and raises much silk. Pop. 2873.

VALLONGO, two places Portugal, prov. Douro —1, A vii and par. 7 m. from Oporto, near hills of same name, in which the Romans had silver-mines. It has a large trade in bread, honey, &c. Pop. 2166 —2, (de-Popo) A vii and par. 1 bank Vouga, about 10 m. from Aveiro. Pop. 2160.

VALLORE, a vii and par. Switzerland, can. Vaud, 37 m. N.N.E. Geneva, with manufactures of clocks and watches, weights, weapons, &c. Near it are iron-works. Pop. 1495.

VALLE, a tn. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 12 m. N N W Turragón, nearly enclosed by two streams. It is surrounded with ancient walls and towers and is entered by five gates. Its houses are for the most part old-fashioned but solid, and the streets are unpaved. Almost all the squares are used as markets for different commodities. This considerable and thriving town is poor in public buildings. It has a townhouse, hospital for the sick, prison, a church three ex-monasteries two nunneries, four fountains, and various public and private schools, manufactures of cotton and woollen fabrics, five spinning-mills, a factory for twisting raw silk and making it into shawls, 30 bread-disheries, 16 tanneries, five soap-manufactures, brick and tile kilns, a pottery, a brown-paper mill, numerous oil and flour mills, and six dye-works. Here the Spindlers were completely defeated, Feb. 24, 1809 by St. Cyr, when the town was most mercifully sacked. On the same plain, Jan. 16, 1811, Berrillford routed General Eugene and an Italian detachment of MacDonald's. Pop. 16,064.

VALLEY [see Al Valley] a vii and com. France, dep. Haute-Savoie, prov. Chablais near Thonon. It has fine marble-quarries; and a trade in corn, butter, and cheese. Pop. 1165.

VALMACCA, a vii and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. Casale, near Frasinetto with a church. Pop. 1809.

Vol. II

VALMADRERA a vii and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and about 16 m. from Como. It is well built and has a handsome church, a beautiful park, several silk-mills, and a trade in corn wine and silk. Pop. 2649.

VALMASEDA a tn. Spain, Biscay on a narrow piece of ground between 1 bank Cadagua and a precipitous hill, 16 m. S.W. Bilbao. It is surrounded by walls, and entered by four gates has two churches a townhouse remarkable chiefly for its magnitude, a Latin and two elementary schools, an hospital and a ruined palace manufactures of various articles in iron and copper and several flour-mills. Pop. 1858.

VALMONTON, a tn. Italy, Solog. and 24 m. N W Frosinone, at the opening of the plain of the Secco. Pop. 1040.

VALMOZZOLA, or PIETRE in VALMOROSA, a vii and com. duchy and 80 m. S.W. Parma 1 bank Mozzola; with an old castle, a trade in cattle, and quarries of very hard sandstone. Pop. 1889.

VAL OGNES [see Valognes] a tn. France, dep. Manche on the Merderet, 56 m. N W R. La. It has a court of first resort, a communal college, public library and an agricultural society, manufactures of earthenware, bladders, wax, linen, series, and dye-works and a trade in butter, flax, thread, linen cloth, gulls, wax, honey, and fresh fish. Pop. 5677.

VALOIS, an ancient dist. France, which belonged to the Tiende France, and is divided between the E. of dep. Oise and the S. of dep. Aisne. Its capital was Croisy.

VALONA a tn. European Turkey. See Avlona.

VALOR, a tn. Spain Andalusia, prov. and about 56 m. from Granada, E. side of the Sierra Nevada. It has steep winding streets, a parish church, and a grocery school; mineral springs, oil and flour mills, and a trade in wheat, pimento, fruit, particularly figs and silk. Pop. 1644.

VALPARAISO, a maritime prov. Chili, formerly included in that of Santiago but erected into a separate territorial division by the law of October 27, 1842. Its limits are to the N the Cuesta del Blanquillo and Lake of Catapile, S. dep. Melipilla, E. the Cuesta de Calavera, and W the Pacific Ocean. This province, from its entraining the port of Valparaiso, is one of the most important in Chili. A great part of the land is mountainous and dry, and is greatly inferior in productiveness to some of the neighbouring ones. Wherever there is moisture, however, fertile soil is sure to be found. Many small valleys occur of uncommon beauty, and clothed in the richest vegetation. Those of Casa-Blanca and Quillota are the largest, but the latter which is 80 m. distant from Valparaiso, is by far the most extensive and important. It is watered by a large mountain-forest of the same name formed by the melting of the snow in the Andes. From it are drawn numberless water-courses, by which the whole of the land capable of cultivation is irrigated. The soil is a deep loam of extraordinary fertility producing the finest clover, wheat, barley, beans, vegetables every variety of European fruit, and even some of the tropical ones. A considerable quantity of wine and brandy is made. The almond and orange grow here luxuriantly the mildness of the climate being peculiarly favourable to them. The former is among its most valuable productions, and is sent as far as Calcutta. The hemp grown in this valley is excellent, a good deal of it is made into cordage for the Valparaiso market. There are no mines of copper, and some of silver, in the neighbourhood the ores of the former are mostly smelted on the spot, and made into bar-copper, for the English and American markets. Mining, however, is less attended to than either agriculture or commerce. The only river of note in this province is the Quillota, which falls into the sea a few miles to the N of Valparaiso and there takes the name of Concepcion. Principal towns—Valparaiso, Quillota, and Casa-Blanca. Pop. (1847), 78,929.

VALPARAISO the principal port of Chili, cap. above prov. first in commercial importance, and second in population, in the Republic. It is situated on a large bay in the Pacific lat. 35° 1' 56" S. lon. 71° 41' 45" W., 90 m. W N W Santiago. The Bay of Valparaiso is of a semicircular form, and capable of accommodating a very large fleet. It is well sheltered on the E., S., and W. but is entirely open towards the N., and during the prevalence of winds from this quarter in the winter season, accompanied as they always are by a heavy rolling sea, the shipping is much exposed, and some vessels often take place. The town rises like an amphitheatre, showing everywhere signs of life, and presenting an exceedingly English-like aspect; it has in fact more the appearance of an English colonial town than one of Spanish origin. A good deal of building-ground has been gained of late years by the gradual filling up of the bay through the deposition of sand and other debris brought down from the hills by winter-torrents. The part of the town properly called the Port is built on the lower slopes of a range of lofty heights which enclose the bay and on a narrow beach widened here and there by deep cuttings into these steep acclivities. The Almendral formerly a rural suburb, is gradually becoming the principal part of the town. Here the base of the hills is farther removed from the sea than it is in the W part of Port, and the intervening space being quite level and forming excellent building-ground, the town is [1854] fast extending in this direction.

Valparaiso is all paved; the houses have nothing remarkable few can be called handsome. Of the public buildings, the custom-house, situated near the landing-place, is the only one worthy of notice. It has an extended and rather handsome facade, surmounted by a tower of elegant design, the stores attached to it are extensive. The merchants have an exchange and reading room, where they meet to transact business, and read foreign journals, with which it is plentifully supplied. The theatre is one of the best in S. America, and is generally well attended. Valparaiso has two parishes churches, La-Matriz in the Port and Los Santos-Angelitos in the Almendral, besides chapels of ease in different parts of the town also several convents for nuns, and one of French nuns, chiefly intended for the education of poor children. The Protestants have two places of worship, one British Presbyterian and one Independent; they have further a cemetery of their own. There are in Valparaiso a British naval hospital two hospitals for other foreigners, and one for natives. Valparaiso possesses no public library or scientific institution, the inhabitants generally are not much given to reading or study. There are however, numerous schools for both sexes, in most of which the English language is freely taught, this being considered by the Valparaisians to be an essential branch of education. Valparaiso cannot boast of a true harbour, the billy nature of the country, but especially the want of water restricts agricultural operations to very narrow limits, consequently it is chiefly indebted to other parts of the country for its supplies of provisions, thus Santiago furnishes cattle. Aconcagua and Quillota, fruit, vegetables, and breadstuffs are obtained from different points, principally from the S. A fine carriage-road, the best in the country connects this place with the capital. But the railway to Santiago, passing through the rich valleys of Quillota and Aconcagua a work of great magnitude, cannot fail to be of the highest benefit in a country so wantonly and so deficient in good roads. Valparaiso has three printing presses and two daily papers. There are also two clubs, chiefly frequented by the English. Hotels and cafés are numerous, and are chiefly kept by Frenchmen. The foreigners in Valparaiso constitute no slight proportion of the population. The English are the next numerous, then the Germans, French, and Americans, they live in perfect harmony with the natives, who here more than anywhere else in Chili have experienced the benefit, and appreciated the value of such an element of civilization. Many of the artisans are European, so are the principal houses of business, together with their numerous retinues of clerks; and this gives to the foreign body a standing and influence it possesses in no other part of the country or the coast.

VALPARAISO.—From English Vantage across the Bay.

Some doubt exists as to the precise date of the foundation of Valparaiso by the Spaniards. It is probable, however, that it was simultaneous with or immediately subsequent to that of Santiago; inasmuch as Valparaiso is known to have been, from the earliest times the channel through which the former received its supplies of foreign commodities, and by which it exported the products of its own soil. During the Spanish domination Valparaiso was a place of very little note, and was scarcely known to the world. In 1819 the population barely amounted to 5000 souls, the town itself was little better than a straggling village. But from this moment that Chili attained the rank of an independent state, and was left free to hold out the hand of fellow ship to the nations of the earth, Valparaiso began rapidly to advance, and has since continued to do so in a most remarkable manner. Indeed, with the single exception of San Francisco in California, no place is to be found on the W side of the continent that can be compared with it in the rapidity of its growth, or in the increase of its importance and prosperity. In 1845 the value of the imports of the whole country (nine-tenths at least being through Valparaiso) was £1,331,000, that of the exports, £1,521,000. In 1851 after the gold discoveries in California, the former rose to £3,174,800 and the latter to £1,800,000 in 1854 they had increased to £4,874,870 and £6,363,043 respectively. The above figures do not include the value of goods introduced in transit, and which is a considerable quantity. In 1845 the number of vessels that entered the harbour was 869; in 1851 it increased to 1561. In 1854 the number entered had risen to 1075, of 960,169 tons and cleared, 1077, of 909,988 tons. Valparaiso as a seat of commerce possesses advantages of no ordinary kind. It is the first port of any note in the S. Pacific. It lies opposite the Australian colonies, and stands on the direct route of vessels proceeding to California and the other countries bordering on the Pacific. It is, moreover, the port of the capital, and the natural outlet of large tracts of fertile land. Thus, independently of being the centre of a very extensive local trade, it is the general rendezvous of ships entering the Pacific, besides being the emporium from which Bolivia, the South Sea Islands, and a variety of other states draw their supplies of foreign commodities, and the port which chiefly provides the maritime provinces of Peru with flour, wheat, and other articles of subsistence. The discovery of the gold fields in California has added much to the importance of Valparaiso, by giving rise to a large trade in cereals, carried on almost exclusively through this place; to say nothing of the many vessels that call here for supplies on their way to and from that country. A similar intercourse has sprung up lately with Australia in consequence of like discoveries there. That portion of the Argentine Provinces situated along the E. base of the Andes, is chiefly dependent on Valparaiso for European fabrics and all articles not produced by its own soil, this branch of trade has become more important since the expulsion of Buenos-Ayres. This also is the headquarters of the foreign ships-of-war stationed in the Pacific.

Valparaiso is common with the rest of Chili, is very liable to earthquakes, they occur frequently though seldom causing serious damage. The last severe one happened April 2, 1851, when a number of houses fell, and a great many others were completely shattered. But the most fearful earthquake of the kind experienced for many years in Chili occurred in November, 1822; on this occasion the greater part of the town was destroyed, and a great many lives were lost. The earthquake of 1822 was the most severe one experienced for many years in Chili occurred in November, 1822; on this occasion the greater part of the town was levelled to the ground, and several hundred persons were buried under the ruins. The climate is free from extremes of temperature; the thermometer in the town never descends to the freezing-point, and seldom rises above 80° even at the height of summer. The evenings and mornings are invariably cool and pleasant. Pop. (1847) 40 000; 1854 (estimated at) 50 000.—(Private information, &c.)

VALPO, a town in Austria, Slavonia, on the Karanitz, 15 m N W Ensek. It has a castle and a bathing-establishment. The Roman emperors Decius and Valentinian II were born here. Pop. 3400.

VALREAS [vau, Fabrieux] a town in France, dep Vaucluse, 20 m N N E Orange, on the Cèronne. It has manufactures of silk and leather, and a trade in wine, oil, chestnuts, silk, and particularly madder, which is extensively grown in the neighbourhood. Pop. 8220.

VALS, a watering-place, France, dep Aribche in the picturesque valley of the Volane, an affluent of the Aribche, 18 m W S W Privas. The springs, which are cold, acidulated, and ferruginous are much frequented, and are said to be very efficacious in stomach-complaints in intermittent fevers, jaundice, &c. Pop. (com.) 2789.

VALSEQUEILLO a vil. Canaries, Isl Gran-Canaria, with a church, and two schools, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth a trade in fruit and agricultural produce. Pop. 3798.

VALEUGANA, a market town, Austria, Tyrol on the Brenns, and the road from Innsbruck to the Venetian frontier. It is well built and has a castle, a Franciscan convent, and a number of silk-mills. Pop. 2600.

VALSZIO a market in Hungary, co Borszys, about 4 m W Szekes, with a courthouse, and a trade in corn. P 1800.

VALTANAS a town in Spain see BALZANAS.

VALTIERRA, an ancient in Spain prov Navarre I bank Ebro, 42 m S. Pamplona with a church, courthouse, prison, school, and a flour and several oil mills. Pop. 1181.

VALVUONANEN, a town and com. in Italy, Piedmont, div and 18 m N E Aosta on the slopes of Mont Cervin. It contains chiefly of peasants huts, and has a church, several chapels and elementary schools. Pop. 1487.

VALVA (J.A.), a town Naples, prov Principato-Citra 9 m N E Campagna, with three churches, and three chapels. Pop. 1800.

VALVERDE, a town Canaries, esp ul Hierro or Ferro consisting with its numerous suburbs, of houses generally low, built of dry stone, and covered with straw. It has a townhouse, prison, granary three primary schools, two parish churches, and a number of hermitages and manufactures of coarse woollen stuffs, tacks, saddle-girths, blankets, ribbons, and household linen. Pop. 4580.

VALVEDDE, several places, Spain —1, (de-Jaca), A vil New Castile, prov and 20 m S. Luena with a primary school, church and two oil mills. P (agricultural) 1774 —2, (de-le-Fera) A town Extremadura, prov Caceres, 12 m from Jarandilla, with a church, strong castle, courthouse, primary school, and hospital several oil and flour mills and a trade in oil wine, silk, and fruit. Pop. 1314 —3, (de-Leganes), A vil Extremadura, prov and 18 m S. Badajoz, with a townhouse, public granary two schools, a church, and two hermitages numerous flour-mills, and some trade in grain. Pop. 1810 —4, (de-Llerena) A town Extremadura, prov Badajoz, 10 m from Llerena, with a church, courthouse and school several flour-mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1120 —5, (del-Camino) A town Andalusia, prov Huelva, 40 m W N W Huelva. It has a large square, and clean paved streets; a granary, primary schools, Latin grammar-school, townhouse and prison of good architecture parish church and three hermitages. The chief employment of the inhabitants is husbandry the manufactures being confined to hats and mulleballs. Pop. 6390 —6, (del-Fraser), A vil Extremadura, prov and 55 m from Caceres, in a valley with a church, prison, and endowed school manufactures of linen, several oil and flour mills, and a trade in oil and pimento. Pop. 1008. —7, (del-Mayona), A town New Castile, prov and about 6 m from Segovia with a church, courthouse, prison, school, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 829.

VAMOS, several places, Hungary —1, (Perle), A market in Thibet, Russia on Sakhlin, in a well wooded district, 2 m from Delnecoz with two churches, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2524 —2, (Sajo), A vil Upper Thuria, on-Borod on the Sajo, 12 m from Munkacs with a church, a castle, and a trade in corn, wine and wool. Pop. 1890.

VAN, or WAN a to eyalet and lake, Asiatic Turkey on the borders of Armenia and Kurdistan. The town, 145 m. S.E. Erzeroum close to the E. shore of the lake, on an extensive plain covered with beautiful gardens overlooking it is the situated in a numerous cascades crowning a lofty enormous height. It has narrow dirty, ill paved streets, and small, scantily-supplied bazars; but the houses are not ill built. There are no public buildings of any consequence, except two Armenian churches, and some mosques with conspicuous minarets. Cotton cloth is the only staple article both of manufacture and export. Pop. about 15,000. —The EXTREME area, 9818 sq. m., is bounded N by Erzeroum and Duzdaz, E. by the Persian Gulf, S. by the Persian Gulf, and W. by Diarbekir, and forming part of the Armenian plateau, is traversed by several mountain ranges, in which among others occur the lofty summits of Asiatic and Bapen, each exceeding 10,000 ft. is watered by numerous streams, generally feeders of the lake and though better adapted for pasture than agriculture has several large and fertile plains, of which that of the capital is the most celebrated, on which large quantities of corn, fruit, and tobacco are grown. The inhabitants chiefly Kurds, Turcomans and Armenians are roughly estimated at about 150 000. —The LAKE, situated in the N W of the eyalet, 5467 ft. above sea-level, is of very irregular shape, having an extreme length, N E to S.W. of about 70 m. and an extreme breadth, N to S., of 28 m. and an area of about 1240 sq. m. In its depth at some distance from the shore is understood to be very great, but shallows much towards the N.E. extremity its water is salt, but becomes only brackish near the mouths of the streams, and is freely drunk by cattle. Its principal feeders are about eight in number, but it has no visible outlet. It contains many islands, particularly on its E. side. The only fishery in it is that of a kind of sardines, which are salted and exported to all parts of Asia Minor. The islands both on the N and E. exhibit much lofty and well-wooded scenery and great quantities of pumice, and other volcanic products, lie scattered on the shores.

THE CEPAINE, VAN.—From Taylor's Description of the Province, &c.

VAN DIEMEN'S GULF N W Australia, between the Cape peninsula and Cape Holland, and Melville Island. It is about 100 m. E. to W. and 50 m. in breadth.

VAN DIEMEN'S LAND or TASMANIA, an island about 100 m. off the S.E. extremity of Australia, from which it is separated by Bass Strait between lat. 40° 45' and 48° 35' E., and lon 144° 30' and 148° 20' E. It is of the shape of a heart, or an irregular triangle with its base stretching to the south, and its sides tapering gradually from these points the one to the S.E. and the other to the S.W. direction, till they meet in the apex at South Cape; greatest length, from N to S, measured on the meridian of 147° 155 m.; median breadth, measured on the parallel of 43°, 165 m.; estimated area, about 34,000 sq. m. The shores are generally bold and rocky, particularly the W., which present long ranges of barren cliffs of enormous basalt, with scarcely an opening in which a small boat shelter, except those of Macquarie Harbour and Port Davey. The N.E. shores are almost equally bold and unprovided, but in the N., where several low sandy beaches occur, we have, among other harbours, the fine estuary of the Tamar and in the S.E. and S. an almost uninterrupted series of anchorages, which, for shelter, bottom, and depth are scarcely surpassed in any other part of the world. In particular D'Entrecasteaux Channel, which stretches for about 30 m. between the S. coast and the island of Bruny, with a breadth varying from 2 m. to 8 m., and forms the S.W. entrance to the Derwent at the mouth of which the capital Hobart-Town is situated, is a quibonous line of land-locked harbours in the midst of magnificent scenery. The interior is remarkably rugged and mountainous. The main-chain commencing in the N.E. at Cape Portland where its continuity with the great E. chain of Australia is made apparent by peaked islands extending across the strait, pursues a very irregular course, first nearly due S., at no great distance from the E. coast till it reaches Oyster Bay where it turns W.N.W., and continues in that direction more than half-way through the centre of the island. It then suddenly resumes its original direction, curving gradually round to the S.E. and finally terminating at South Cape. This tortuous range, on one or other of whose flanks all the larger streams of the island take their rise, has a mean height of about 3750 ft., and attains its culminating point of 5530 ft. in the S.W. in Mount Humboldt lat. 43° 25'; lon. 148° 7'. The other most remarkable summits occur, not in the main-chain, but in two lofty branches which it throws off. The one of these, stretching between St. Patrick's Head on the E. and Port Dalrymple on the N. coast, presents in succession the remarkable summits of Ben Lomond 5003 ft., Ben Nevis 3910 ft., and Mount Arthur 3900 ft. the other, breaking off at Mount Humboldt, proceeds E. and terminates magnificently a little W. of Hobart-Town, in Mount Wellington, 4195 ft. A line drawn from the Hutan on the N. to Clarence Lake in the interior and continued N.W. to Cape Grim, would divide the island into two nearly equal parts. The section to the E. and N. has been minutely surveyed, and comprises the inhabited portion of the island that to the W. and S. is not only uninhabited, but, from the impenetrable nature of the vegetation and the alpine character of the region, which have baffled the most intrepid explorers, but very little of it is known. From the snow-capped peaks skirting the horizon to the westward as summer as seen from the highlands in the interior it is conjectured that there are mountain-ranges there above the level of the perpetual snow-line, which, in these latitudes, would be between 7000 ft. and 8000 ft. In all the mountain-ranges, and generally throughout the island, the prevailing rocks are crystalline consisting of lamit, granite, gneiss, quartz, &c., either produced directly by volcanic action, or changed by it, and hence, as might be expected in such circumstances, the country is one of the wildest description. Eucalyptus parks, of the most fantastic shapes, tower into the clouds, or overhang profound and torrid abysses, evidently formed by rending whole mountains asunder. In these most frightful precipices occur, among others one in Ben Lomond, with a perpendicular depth of 8000 ft. Beyond the range of these convulsions, however rugged sedimentary strata, chiefly of sandstone and limestone, are largely developed, and form gentle hills or undulating valleys, equally remarkable for heavy and fertility, and usually watered by copious streams. The river system radiates from the central portions of the island towards the coast, and issues from lakes and springs at an average altitude of 2000 ft. above the sea. Of these streams by far the largest is the Derwent, which, issuing from the beautiful mountainside of St. Clair in lat. 43°, flows S.E., augmented by the Dee, Ouse, Clyde, Jordan, &c., and after forming a broad estuary, pours its waters into two main channels, that of D'Entrecasteaux on the W., and that of Storm Bay on the E. side of Bruny Island. Another river of much shorter length, but, from the width and depth of its channel, of scarcely less navigable importance, is the Tamar, which, formed by the junction of the N. and S. Esk rivers at the town of Launceston, flows N.W. into Port Dalrymple. The other principal streams are the Huon in the S. the Gordon, which has its mouth in Macquarie Harbour, in the W., and the Arthur in the N.W. The two last, however, through districts of the most inhospitable character are very little known. Great or Clarence Lake, the largest in the island, situated near its centre, about 90 m. N.W. Hobart-Town, is 15 m. long, by 5 m. broad, but owing to the numerous creeks and windings of its shores, measures nearly 100 m. in circuit. Its scenery is much vaunted. The climate is colder and more humid than that of Australia, and in respect both of vegetative power and salubrity is, on the whole, superior to it. The spring-months, those of September, October, and November, are usually bright and clear with occasional rain and high winds the summer heat, which averages about 70°, sometimes rises suddenly to 100° or 110°, partly in consequence of a stifling and blighting N. or N.W. wind but is almost always tempered by alleviating land and sea breezes; autumn, by far the pleasantest season, comprehending March, April, and May, is generally clear and bright, and free from clouds and mists; winter is never severe, except in high or exposed situations, where frost is frequent, and snow often falls, while in the lower grounds it is moderate and gentle showers rather assist than obstruct the husbandman's labours.

The indigenous herbivorous animals are mostly of the spotted kind, common to Australia, but exist in greater numbers than on the mainland, so much so, that the kangaroo-leather for boots and shoes, and opossum fur, constitutes articles of export. Here also is found a unique animal of its kind called the 'native tiger' by the colonists, being the largest carnivorous animal in Australia, though not larger than a wolf. The principal natural productions are extensive native forests chiefly of the gullypink pine and ash, several of which furnish timber for ship-building and cabinet work. Large tracts of rich and verdant pasture, well adapted for cattle, but more especially for sheep, which form by far the most important source of wealth; and minerals among which free-stone, limestone, roofing-slate, and coal have all recently been turned to good account. The coal occurs in two fields, one in the S.E., at Port Arthur, of an inferior quality requiring to be burned along with wood to assist its combustion and the other in the N.E. near the Douglas, of better quality and, though much disturbed by intrusions of peat contains seams of great aggregate thickness, and has been successfully worked by pits, one of which is 50 fathoms deep. Among metals which may yet be made available, are mentioned both gold and silver of which traces have been discovered, lead, of which a vein has been found in a mountain-limestone ridge copper, believed to exist in the same quarter and iron, both excellent and abundant. Another product, not of much economical value, but found here in great abundance, is alcholic wood, much of it of opaline texture, and susceptible of a beautiful polish. The arable lands lie mostly in the valleys, in quality resembling the alluvial lands of Scotland, and in about the same proportions to unarable land as 5 to 100; but the soil is coarse and in general, as yet, of wheat. In agriculture considerable progress has been made, and all the ordinary cereals are successfully cultivated. The wheat, in particular, is so superior in quality, that when brought to the London market it brought a higher price than any other grain. In 1858 the whole area under crop were only 34,058, but 20 years later, in 1848, amounted to 173,540. In 1863 the extent of cultivated land had increased to 237,178 acres. In live stock, particularly horses and sheep, the progress has been equally rapid, the former having increased between 1828-48 from 1084 to 47,196, and the latter from 553,698 to 1,703,969; in 1863 the number of sheep was 1,800,811. In 1848 the exports, consisting chiefly of wool, wheat and flour oil and timber amounted to £490,381, the imports to £394,154. In 1863 the exports were £298,511, and the imports £203,940. The population in 1848 amounted to 74,741 of whom 38,429, considerably more than a third of the whole, were convicts. This was unquestionably the worst feature in the social system of the island, and naturally hindered the development of the colony. Neither the religious nor educational institutions were able to provide in any adequate degree for the evils which it entailed, but a more effectual remedy has been found in the recent enactments of the British Parliament abolishing transportation. To convict labour, however, must be attributed the construction of the many excellent public works throughout the island, especially the tamboke road from Hobart-Town to Launceston, a distance of 180 m., which cost £25000 per mile, without taxing the colonists for the outlay. The aboriginal population, once sufficiently numerous and powerful to contest the superiority of the colonists, is now all but extinct. The government, regulated by the Act 15 14 Victoria, c. 59 (1850), consists of a governor and executive council, nominated by the Crown, and of a legislative council, of at least 24 members, of whom a third is nominated by the Crown, and two-thirds obtain their seats by election. Van Diemen's Land was discovered in 1643 by the Dutch navigator Abel Jansz Taasman, who, believing it to be a part of the Australian continent, gave it the name of the then Dutch governor of the East Indies. In other names of Taasman has been given it in honour of the navigator himself. Its next visitor after the lapse of more than a century, was Captain Cook, who saw it in 1770, and coasted along part of it without detecting Taasman's mistake. The fact of its separation from Australia was first made known in 1797, by Mr. Bass, a surgeon of the British navy, who, on a volunteer voyage of discovery in a small little larger than a jolly-bout, sailed so far through the strait which was deservedly named after him, as to ascertain its true character. The following year he set out on another voyage, with Lieutenant Flinders and completed his discovery by a circumnavigation of the island. The first settlement on it was made in 1803 by a guard of soldiers with a battery of cannons. The locality fixed upon was Bladen or Baskerville Cove, on the E. side of the Derwent, but was vacated in the course of the same year, for the site now occupied by the capital. For a series of years the great obstacles to the prosperity of the colony were the hostility of the natives and the depredations of escaped convicts, known by the name of bush-rangers. The latter ultimately perished as they deserved, by the sword or by the hand of justice, but it is impossible not to lament the fate of the former who, after they had been reduced from a comparatively large number of several thousands to a mere remnant, were removed first to Flinders Island, and then to Maria Island on the S.E. coast. There, at the beginning of 1849 12 men, 28 women, and one male child, were the only survivors of the unfortunates of this race. In the same year the government removed them to comfortable dwellings near Hobart-Town, under the care of a surgeon-superintendent where, notwithstanding the preponderance of the female branch, there are no signs of the race being perpetuated. On the contrary they are now reduced (1864) to 98 individuals, and it is calculated that in less than 20 years the race will be extinct. To other names, therefore, besides those of violence and disease, must be assigned the gradual extinction of these children of nature, when coming in contact with the civilized European. Pop. (1864), 91,519.

VANCE a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Luxembourg on the Semois, 5 m. W. Arlon. It has a fulling and two flour mills. Pop. 1125.

VANCOUVER or QUADRA and VANCOUVER, an isl., W. coast, British America lat. 48° 10' to 50° 35' N., lon. 128° 17' to 129° 28' W.; length N. W. to S. E., 378 m. breadth, varying from 80 m. to 65 m. On the E. and N. E. it is separated from the mainland of British America by the Gulf of Georgia and Queen Charlotte's Sound and on the S. from that of the U. States by the Strait of Juan-de-Fuoc, on the N. and W. it lies open to the N. Pacific. The interior of which scarcely anything is known, is said to be fertile, well-wooded, and freely divided by interesting mountain-ranges and extensive prairies; the shores, most of which have been carefully explored, are generally high, steep, and rocky, nearly unbroken on the N. E., but presenting in other directions numerous indentations, many of which are so completely landlocked, either by projecting promontories, or minor islands, stretching across their mouths, as to form excellent natural harbours. Among these may be mentioned Nootka Sound on the W. and Camasuek or Victoria Harbour on the S. The only navigable river at present known is that of Nimuk, in the N. E. In the same part of the coast, and it is believed to a considerable extent inland, a field of excellent coal exists, and lies so near the surface, that by the aid of the natives, 60 tons were obtained at an average cost of 4s. per ton; the strata, however, are only 10 inches to 18 inches thick. Fog, remarkable both for density and duration are of frequent occurrence. The winter is very stormy, and heavy rains fall, particularly in November and December. Frost occurs on the lowlands in January, but seldom continues long and can scarcely be said to interrupt agricultural operations. Vegetation begins to advance in February makes rapid progress in March, and continues to be fostered by alternating warm showers and sunshine in April and May. The summer-season of June and July are excessive, and by the end of August, or beginning of September, the long grass has become so thoroughly parched as to be easily ignited. The agricultural capabilities of the island are unquestionably great, and the farming operations carried on chiefly at Victoria, near the harbour of that name, are said to have succeeded beyond the most sanguine expectations. The principal products, in addition to those of the soil are furs, obtained chiefly from the beaver, marten, land-otter, and sea-otter and fish of the most valuable species found on all parts of the coast. The natives belonging to 18 tribes, of which the Kwakwaka, Quakwaka, and Nootka, are the most numerous, are estimated at 11 468. They form a fine race, and appear to be industrious and friendly though much addicted to drinking. The property of the whole island was granted in 1849 to the Hudson's Bay Company under the express condition of colonizing it. Attempts with this view have accordingly been made but have not met with much success, partly in consequence of the greater attractions offered by the gold-fields of California and Australia. Van Diemen's Island was supposed to form part of the mainland till 1799 when the captain of an American vessel sailed through the E. channel which separates it. In 1793 it was visited by Vancouver who gave it the name of Quadra and Vancouver, the former name given in compliment to the Spanish commandant of Nootka Sound, is now generally dropped. The agents of the Hudson's Bay Company had long been accustomed to visit it regularly for the furs and other commodities provided by the natives, but it attracted little attention till recently, when the discussion of the Oregon question brought it prominently into view. By the boundary treaty with the U. States, the entire possession of it has been formally fixed in Great Britain, and there seems no reason to doubt that its position, its agricultural capabilities, its excellent harbours, and its coal, destined it were long to occupy a prominent place among our colonial possessions.

VANDALIA, a vil U. States Illinois, of which it was for some time the capital, on the Kaskaskia, and at the junction of several important lines of railway 66 m. S. E. by S. Springfield. It has an important transit trade. Pop. about 1700.

VANDELLO, a to Spain, Catalonia, prov. and about 34 m. from Terragona; with a church, school, distillery flour-mill and a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 1175.

VANDOLA (La), the west E. of the Admiralty Islands lat. (centre) 2° 14' S., lon. 149° 10' 16" E.; under 5 m. in circumference, covered with coco-nut trees, and densely inhabited.

VANGE, par. Eng. Essex 5230 m. Pop. 164.

VANIAMBADY a tn Hindostan presid. and 105 m. W. S. W. Madras, on an island in the Pulicat. It contains several Hindu temples.

VANIKORO Vanuatu, MARIANAS or PERTH ISLAND, an isl., S. Pacific Ocean remarkable as the scene of the disastrous shipwreck of La Perouse, in 1788 lat. (Mount Kapoge) 11° 35' 30" S., lon. 168° 08' 24" E. It is 80 m. in circuit, lofty, and covered with trees to the water's edge. The commanding point, Mount Kapoge, is 3000 ft. above the sea, and distinctly visible at a distance of 60 m. The interior is a wild and dense forest, nearly impenetrable. The inhabitants, including those of a few adjoining islands, are supposed not to exceed 1500 or 1600. They are in general small and thin, ugly and indolent, and often attacked with ulcers or covered with leprosy spots.

VANKLEEKHILL a, in Canada West, 60 m. from Montreal; with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, three schools; manufactures of pots and pearl ashes, iron, and cloth, and steam flour and saw mills. Pop. 750.

VANNES [anc. Durovernum Ventorum] a seaport in France, cap. dep. Morbihan, on the Yonne, a stream 85 m. in length, where it falls into a narrow inlet of the Gulf of Morbihan, 63 m. N.W. Nantes. It is walled, and has narrow gloomy streets, overhung by antiquated-looking houses, a cathedral, with a lofty but by no means elegant spire; a large lower called Tour-du-Comte prefecture, episcopal palace, barracks, college, and three hospitals, a court of first resort and commerce, an agricultural society, a school of hydrography, a diocesan seminary, communal college, and public library of 8000 volumes. The Cours-de-la-Garenne, an elevated space with well-planted alleys in the form of an amphitheatre affords an excellent promenade. The manufactures consist of coarse woollens, linen and cotton goods, lace and silk, extracted from salt-marshes in the neighbourhood. There are also foundries, tanneries, breweries, and building-yards. The harbour is lined with good quays but only admits vessels of small tonnage. The trade is in corn, hemp, honey, wax, butter, salt, tallow, cider and wine. Pop. (1852) 10,825.

THE PRINCE-GATE, VARS—From Savoy, La Brevette.

VARS (Lan), a tn. France, dep. Ardèche 15 m. S.W. Largentiere. It has manufactures of silk stuffs, silk-mills and a trade in wine, corn, cattle, and silk. Pop. 2610.

VANTHALLA a vil. Hungary. Thither Thos. co. Marmaros, 8 m. from Seged with a Greek united church. Pop. 1068.

VANTSD a vil. Hungary. Thither Thos. co. Bihar; with a Protestant parish church, a synagogue, several mills, and a trade in corn, wine and cattle. Pop. 1099.

VANUA VALAVO, or SIR CHARLES MIDDLETON'S ISLAND an isl., R. Pacific belonging to the Fœge group. lat. (N.W. point) 17° 10' S. lon. 179° 2' 50' W. It forms an irregular belt of a serpentine shape. 14 m. long, but nowhere more than 2 m. wide and has on its W. side a spacious harbour, with a village at its head, and a large stream of water. One of its peaks, called Mount Toties, is estimated at 664 ft. high. Pop. about 1000.

VANVES, or VANVES, a vil. France, dep. Seine 4 m. from Paris on the railway to Versailles with an old chateau built by Mansard for the Duc de Bourbon. Pop. 1894.

VANZAGHETTO a vil. and com. Italy. Lombardy, prov. about 22 m. N.W. Milan; with a parish and an auxiliary church and a trade in corn and silk. Pop. 1064.

VANZAGHETTO or VANZAGHETTO a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. about 16 m. N.W. Milan, 1 bank. Milan with a parish church and a trade in wine and silk. Pop. 1250.

VASBIO (a vil. and com. Italy. Lombardy, prov. about 19 m. N. Milan, 1 bank. Aosta, here crossed by a wooden bridge. It has a magnificent modern church, the remains of an old castle, a charitable endowment, manufactures of silk and a paper-mill. In 1834 the Gauls were defeated here in a bloody battle by the Ghibellines and the town was burned down. Pop. 2575.

VAN [Italian Vero Latin Verso] a river Europe, rises in the Alps, in the S.E. of France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 40 m. N.W. Nice flows circuitously S.E. and forms the E. boundary of the dep. to which it gives its name, and after a course of about 75 m., falls into the Mediterranean about 5 m. S.W. Nice. It receives on the right the Colon and Esturon and on the left the Hana and Vesoul.

VAR a maritime dep. France forming to S.E. extremity and bounded, N. by dep. Basses-Alpes, N.E. Alpes Maritimes, E. and S. the Mediterranean, and W. dep. Bouches-du-Rhône. It is nearly in the shape of a right-angled triangle, of which the sea coast forms the hypotenuse; greatest length, N.E. to S.W. 82 m., breadth, 40 m.; area, 2778 sq. m. The coast is generally bold and is penetrated by numerous deep indentations, the principal of which are the bays of Joux, Napoléon, Fréjus, Grimaud, Hères and Toulon. On the S. it is encircled by the islands forming the group of Hères and on the S. are the small islands of Lérins and Martignac. The interior is generally mountainous, being traversed, particularly in the N. and N.E. by ramifications of the Alps. Var is remarkably well watered and belongs to the basin of the Mediterranean towards which it has a gradual slope. The Var forms part of its boundary on the E. and the Varion on the N. The chief river of the interior is the Argens, with its numerous tributaries. Along the coast are several extensive lagoons, the largest of which are those of Napoléon, Villapuy and Pasquier.

The temperature is variable, the winter is very mild except during the N.W. wind which is extremely keen while the S.E. wind which is frequent in summer has an enervating effect both on man and beast. On the coast, where lagoons and marshes prevail the air is unhealthy. The soil possesses little natural fertility and though much indebted to irrigation and careful culture, does not produce more than two-thirds of the grain required for the home consumption. About one-fourth of the whole surface is absolutely waste, and not one-sixth arable. About one-third is in wood, and rather more than one-eighth is devoted to the culture of the vine the produce of which is both abundant and of good quality. The olive also is extensively cultivated and the mulberry, for raising silk worms, is seen in all the lower districts, either in separate plantations or hedgerows. Many of the finer fruits grow almost spontaneously and the air is perfumed with odoriferous plants and flowers. The principal domestic animals are sheep, goats, and swine. There are few horses, but mules are numerous. Game abounds. Minerals exist in great variety, but seldom in an extent and of a quality fit for being worked to profit. The working both of lead and iron, once carried on, has been abandoned. The manufactures consist of coarse woollens, perfumes, essences, liquors, olive-oil, soap, cork and leather. There are also paper and silk mills, and numerous distilleries, and the fishing both of tunny and anchovies is actively carried on. The trade is in olive-oil, liquors, wine, fruit, fish, corn, and wool. For administrative purposes Var is divided into four arrondissements—Draguignan (the capital) Brignoles, Grasse, Toulon subdivided into 25 cantons, and 202 communes. Pop. (1852) 357,967.

VARALLO a tn. Italy. Piedmont, div. and 30 m. N.W. Novara, at the confluence of the Mastellone with the Sesia, both here crossed by bridges. It has narrow winding streets, a superior court of justice, and several public offices, five churches, a college, a seminary two convents, public prisons, a theatre, an hospital, and several charitable endowments; and manufacture of articles in iron and copper. Pop. 2807.

VARALLA, a vil. Hungary. Thither Thos. co. and 16 m. from Tolna; with a church, a ruined castle several flour-mills, and a trade in corn, wine, and timber. P. 1181.

VARALIYA (Boco-Zas) a market tn. Hungary, co. Abony, near 1 bank. Herad 22 m. S. Kaschau with two castles one of them an ancient ruin, and the other a handsome modern structure, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1287.

VARANGER-FJORD, an inlet of the sea, Norway, in the N. of Finnmark, penetrating inland about 60 m. with a mean breadth of about 15 m. It receives several streams, particularly from the S., and among others the Elkhjelt, by which Lake Sævi discharges itself. On its N. shores are the small towns of Rensby and Vadsø.

VARANNO, or VARANOV, a market tn. Hungary, Hither Thess., co. Zemplin, about 13 m. from Vagy Mihály with a parish church, a synagogue, the ruins of an ancient castle, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1494.

VARANO [anc. Vara], a lake Naples at the N foot of Mount Garzano, near Capri, separated on the N from the Adriatic, into which it discharges its waters by a long and narrow belt of land. It is of a rectangular shape, 50 m. in circuit, and abounds with fish.

VARANO-MEZZEMANO, a vil and com. duchy and 16 m. S.W. Parma, 1 bank Ceno; with a church, an old castle, and a trade in cattle and swine. Pop. 1076.

VARAZZINI, a seaport in Italy Piedmont prov and 6 m. N.N.E. Savona, on the Gulf of Genoa, near the mouth of the Tanaro, between two small promontories, each of which is crowned by a tower. Its central part, divided into Borgo and Borghetto was at one time surrounded by walls, of which the gates still remain and two suburbs extend considerably on either side along the highway. It is irregularly built, consists generally of narrow and ill-paved streets, and has three churches, a courthouse with a colossal statue in marble of St. Giacomo, an elementary school, and an hospital. The harbour is small but at the building-yards from 40 to 50 merchant vessels are annually built. Pop. 7779.

VARBERG, a seaport in Sweden, 114 m. and 36 m. N.W. Halmstad on the Kattegat, was one of considerable strength, being defended by a fortress which figures in the early Swedish wars, but is now used as a prison and house of correction. It is regularly built, has a beautiful church and is much resorted to for sea-bathing. Pop. 1691.

VARDAK, a river, Turkey in Europe, rises in the E. slope of Teber-dagh on the frontiers of Albania and Macedonia. flows first S.E. to Uskup, then S.E. past Kopriv and after a course of about 160 m. falls into the S. shore of the Gulf of Salonica. Its chief affluents are the Tzerna and Barizra, on the right, and the Porpents Uskup and Egnieri, on the left.

VAREDO, or Varé, a vil and com. Italy Lombardy prov and about 8 m. N. Milan 1 bank Sesia, with a church, and a trade in corn wine and silk. Pop. 1648.

VAREL, a vil Oldenburg circle Neuenburg, near the mouth of the Jeldes, with a church and castle, and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 8164.

VARELA (Pinto)—1, An islet 18 m. off S.W. coast, Sumatra, lat. 6° 47' N. lon. 99° 33' E.—2, An islet E. coast, Sumatra, lat. 0° 50' N., lon. 104° 22' E.; having a hill on its W. part, which may be seen from 21 m. to 24 m.—3, An islet in the Strait of Malacca, about lat. 3° 45' N. lon. 99° 50' E.—4, An islet 11 m. off E. coast, Malay Peninsula lat. 3° 19' N. lon. 103° 40' E. It is a barren rock, crowned with a few bushes.—5, (or Avelele), A cape, S. E. coast, Annam; lat. 12° 50' N. lon. 109° 24' 30' E.; formed of steep cliffs extending nearly N. and S. 3 m. or 2½ m. having in the middle of them a small sandy bay where a stream of excellent water descends from the mountains into the sea.—6, (Pinto), A cape, S. E. coast, Annam, about 85 m. due S. from the true cape, lat. 11° 44' N. lon. 109° 22' E. formed of a very high oblong mountain of great magnitude.

VARENNE, a seat in Lower Canada on the St. Lawrence, 15 m. below Montreal; with an excellent medical springs, a large B. Catholic church, three schools, three grist-mills, and two saw-mills. Pop. about 1500.

VARENNE-SUR-ALLIER, a tn. France, dep. Allier, on the Vallangeon, 30 m. S.S.E. Moulins. Near it is an old abbey, now converted into an hospital. Pop. 1468.

VARESE, a tn. Italy Lombardy prov and 13 m. W. Como and a little S. of the lake of same name in a valley the sides of which are studded with fine villas. It has extensive silk-mills, employed in spinning the silk which is produced in the vicinity. Near it, on a lofty mountain, is a church, to which numerous pilgrimages are made. Pop. 3000.—The lake, about 4 m. E. of Lake Maggiore, into which it discharges itself is 6 m. long by 8 m. broad, and rather more than 80 ft. deep.

VARGUT A (Gross and Klein) two nearly-contiguous vils. Prussian Saxony circle Langensalza; with a Protestant church and a castle. Pop. 1120.

VAREHLY, a vil Hungary, co. Hunyad 8 m. W. S.W. Hiteg, in a narrow gorge, and supposed to occupy the site of the Roman Ulpia Trajana. Many remains of buildings cover the adjacent hills, and in the village itself are the ruins of an arena, an aqueduct, a temple, and baths.

VARI, or VARJOVA, a market tn. Hungary, Hither Thess., co. Bergh, near the confluence of the Borova with the Theiss, 5 m. from Teme-Ulak, with a Protestant church, and a trade in tobacco. Pop. 3746.

VAREIGNANA, a tn. Papal States, lat. and 12 m. S.E. Bologna. Pop. 5090.

VAREINA, or VARMA, a market tn. Hungary, co. Trentschin, r. bank Vagh with a church. Many of the inhabitants are employed in making lace. Pop. 1600.

VARINAS, a tn. Venezuela, cap. prov. of its name, r. bank St. Domingo, 80 m. S.E. Merida. It is a most place, at the opening of a valley and has a church and an hospital. The river becomes navigable at Turcas about 14 m. below the town, so that Turcas may be considered the port of Varinas. Pop. estimated at 12 000.—The province, bounded N. by prov. Carabobo, E. Caracas, W. Truxillo and Merida, and S. Abogana, is intersected by numerous large and navigable rivers, which occasionally inundate and fertilize its plains, of these the Apure, Guanayra, and Guanarito are the most important. But its most remarkable features are its extensive plains covered with a luxuriant herbage, feeding innumerable herds of cattle, flocks of sheep, and droves of mules and asses. The chief products of the country are tobacco, sugar, coffee, cotton, indigo, and tropical fruits.

VARKENY, a vil. Hungary, Hither Thess., co. Borsod 40 m. from Erian, with a B. Catholic church, a trade in wine and wood and several flour-mills. Pop. 1099.

VARKONY (Terna), a vil. Hungary co. Heves, on the Theiss, 8 m. from Szekes; with two churches, the ruins of an old castle, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1306.

VARI, a vil. Prussia, prov. Westphalia gov. Minden, near Lübbecke with manufactures of woollen shawls. Pop. 1848.

VARNIA, a fortified tn. and seaport, Turkey in Europe, Bulgaria, majest. Suhrta, 160 m. N.W. Constantinople, S.W. shore of the Black Sea. It occupies a gentle height on the N.W. side of a semicircular bay formed by two rocky promontories, is surrounded by a stone-wall, 10 ft. high, painted white, and loop-holed, and defended by several batteries and other outworks and is very irregularly built of wooden houses of different colours, with red tiled roofs. The whole place has an appearance of decay, and the only public buildings of any note are a few mosques with tall minarets. There is no proper harbour but the bay though open to the E. and S.E. is sheltered on the N. and N.E. from which the most dangerous winds of the Black Sea blow, and affords good anchorages. Immediately W. of the town is the Lake Darna formed by the Pruvadi and other streams from the neighbouring hills. It has been proposed to make a navigable cut connecting this lake with the bay. Were this effected, Varna would have one of the best harbours in the Black Sea and might soon rival Odessa as a seaport. Even at present it has a considerable trade. In 1847 its exports, chiefly of grain, poultry and eggs, amounted to 2600 000. The most interesting events in its history, are the great victory gained in its vicinity by the Turks over the Hungarians, in 1444, its capture by the Russians, in 1828; a great and supposed incendiary fire, August 10, 1854, which destroyed about a fourth of the houses, and vast quantities of military stores prepared for the expedition against the Crimea and the sailing of that expedition from its bay, September 7th thereafter. Pop. about 14 000.

VARSAND, several places, Hungary;—1, (Pankov) A vil. Hither Thess., co. Arad, 3 m. from Bismar; with two churches, and a trade in corn and hemp. Pop. 4068.—2, (Opole), A vil. Hither Thess., co. Arad, on the Wutsa Kistis, 16 m. from Szatmar, with two churches. Pop. 1563.

VARSI (Lann, Pavment), a vil. and com. duchy and 29 m. S.W. Parma, 1 bank Ceno. It has a church, an old castle and a trade in corn, wine, cattle, and chestnuts. Pop. 3402.

VARZI, a tn. Italy Piedmont, prov. and 11 m. N.W. Robbio, r. bank Staffora, with a square four principal streets, a church threeatories and an old castle. Pop. 3043.

VARZO, a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, dep. Novara prov. Pallanza, in the wild and romantic valley of the Novara or Draveto. It has a church numerous oratories, and four elementary schools. Pop. 2343.

VAZEY, a tn. France, dep. Nièvre, 80 m. N N E. Nevers; with a church, a college, hospital, and tanneries; manufactures of linen leather and silkworms. Near it are blast-furnaces and other iron-works. Pop. 2058.

VAN-KOS or KOH VAA, a vil. Hungary, on Rihar, on the Black Körös, not far from Gröszvárd; with important iron works, supplied from mines in the vicinity.

VASA, or Vas, a mountain in Russia, Finland, on a small bay in the Gulf of Bothnia, 335 m. N W. St. Petersburg. It has a stone-church, infirmary and high school; manufactures of leather and pitch, and a trade in these articles, fish, and timber. The harbour is much allied up. Pop. 2700.

VASA BARRO, or VAZBARRO, a river, Brazil, rises in the Serra Itatiaia, prov. Bahia flows E., enters prov. Sergipe, where it unites with the river of that name. The united stream, which often receives the name of Sergipe, continues its course 8 m. further and falls into the Atlantic.

VASANIELY numerous places, Hungary among which are:—(1) Hódmező, a market tn., on Congrad, on Lake Hód, 12 m. from Szeged; with two churches, and a trade in corn, wine, and tobacco. Pop. (1846) 23,900—2 (Szécsény) a market tn., on Vasgyirmó with a church a trade in corn, tobacco, and excellent wine. Pop. 1395.

VASABUTH a market tn. Hungary on Preobrazh in the Schwitz on an arm of the Danube, 15 m. from Somersin with a church and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1047.

VASHKA a river, Russia, which rises in gov. Volodga, lat. 62° 20' N flows N N W into gov. Archangel, and after a course of above 300 m. joins L. bank Mezon.

VASHUAN a river, Asiatic Russia, rises on the E. of gov. Tobolsk flows E. N. E., and joins L. bank Ob about 80 m. below Yermim, after a course of about 170 m.

VASKUT a vil. Hungary Hither Danube, co. Bacs, 4 m. from Bacs with a church, and a trade in corn, wine, sheep, and cattle. Pop. 2388.

VASONY two places, Hungary.—(1) Nagy-, a market to Thibier Danube, co. and near Vasgyirmó with two churches, a handsome modern and a very ancient castle, tile-works a trade in corn, cattle and oak-timber, a brewery saw and flour mills. Pop. 1897—2 (Zsolt) A vil. co. and 8 m. from Vasgyirmó with two churches and a marble-quarry. P. 1497.

VASBOURAS, or Bras, prov. Nièvre-de-Jaune, with a parish church, a primary school, an ornamental fountain, and a considerable trade in coffee, extensively grown in the district; wine, honey and sausage. Pop. (dist.) 4000.

VASSY [anc. Vasson] a tn. France, dep. Haute-Marne, r. bank Blaise. It is generally well built, and has clean streets adorned with fountains, and a fine promenade and has a court of first resort, a communal college, manufactures of druggist, calico, leather, refined wax, earthen and iron ware, and a trade in iron, wood, charcoal &c. It acquired a melancholy celebrity by the atrocious massacre of the Protestants by the Duke of Guise in 1567. Pop. 2456.

VASTO, or VASTO D'AMOROS [it. San. Vito] a tn. France, dep. Ardennes, on a hill near the Adriatic, 29 m. S.E. Chieti. It is walled, and entered by four gates consists of tolerably well built streets, and a spacious square adorned with a beautiful fountain, and has two collegiate churches a handsome palace seven monasteries, a nursery two hospitals, two almshouses, and manufactures of earthen vases, and of a liquid said to be very efficacious in healing wounds. The fishery on the coast, including that of sturgeon, is valuable and the surrounding district is covered with productive vineyards and olive-plant. Pop. 10,000.

VASTO-GRANDE, a tn. Naples, prov. Salerno, 15 m. N W. E. Marina. Pop. 1184.

VASZAR, a vil. Hungary co. Vasgyirmó, 4 m. from Paps, with a R. Catholic church, and a trade in corn, wine, tobacco, and cattle. Pop. 1612.

VATALA a tn. Punjab. See BATTALAH.

VATAN (anc. Vastan), a tn. France, dep. Indre, 19 m. N N E. Chateauroux. Owing to its low situation the houses are extremely damp. It has a church, and an old building called Ferrerie, attributed to the Knights Templar; and a considerable trade in wool. Pop. 2646.

VATERI one of the Fenjies lak. See ABRATHE.

VATERSA or WATERAY a vil. Scotland, near the S. extremity of the Hebrides, immediately E. of Barra, from which it is separated by the Sound of Wateray, about 1 m.

wide; length, 8 m.; breadth, 1 m. On its E. side is good anchorage for large vessels.

VATHI, or BAHET, a tn. Ionian Islands, tal. Rhéa, S. side of the beautiful Gulf of Molo. With a landing wharf the port or harbour is of easy access. Inside, it forms a kind of basin, capable of containing a great number of ships, and is perfectly landlocked. The town consists of a single street, well paved and clean, extending 1 m. along the shore, and though not well built, has a picturesque appearance. The houses are principally of stone, but rarely put together, and penetrable to every blast. Pop. 8000.

VATU LEX, one of the Fœpœsias, S. of Viti-Levu; lat. (N point) 16° 31' S; lon. 177° 25' W. Though presenting the appearance of a coral-island, it is of volcanic formation has an elevation of about 70 ft. in the N, and gradually descends to a low point in the S; is well covered with wood, and inhabited. It is surrounded by dangerous reefs.

VAUGLOUSE, a dep. France, bounded N. by dep. Drôme E. dep. Hautes-Alpes S. the Durance, separating it from dep. Bouches-du-Rhône and W. the Rhone, separating it from dep. Gard. greatest length, N N W to S S E., 60 m.; breadth, 37 m. area, 1928 sq. m. The surface has a general inclination to the S. and W. In the latter direction there are considerable plains, but the N E. E. and S E. are rugged and mountainous, being traversed by ramifications of the Alps. The culminating point, Mont Vastoux in the N E., is 5570 ft. above the sea. The department belongs wholly to the basin of the Rhone which drains great part of it directly and the remainder by the Durance and its tributaries. More than one half of the whole surface is arable, and nearly one-fifth is in wood—about one-fifth is waste, and vineyards occupy one-twelfth. The cereals produced fall short of the home consumption. Some of the wines bear a good name, and are extensively exported to Switzerland and Germany. All the ordinary fruits, including pears, apricots, peaches, prunes, almonds, and figs are in great abundance, and a good deal of ground is occupied by the mulberry and olive. Madder also is cultivated on a large scale, and considerable attention is paid to the rearing of aromatic and medicinal plants. Of domestic animals the sheep are by far the best and most numerous. The mines are of comparatively little importance. The manufactures consist chiefly of silk stuffs, velvet, woollen cloths, soap, oil, lavender and other essences, wax-candles, mineral acids, and mineral products. Silk mills also, driven partly by the hand, in the cottages of the peasantry and partly in large factories by water or steam power, are very numerous. Many mills are likewise employed in grinding madder. The principal articles of trade are grain, flour, clover and lucerne seed, madder, silk, wine, brandy, saffron, fruit essences, wax, honey, and wool. For administrative purposes Vaucluse is divided into four arrondissements—A. Vignone (the capital), A. Carpentras, Orange, subdivided into 25 cantons, and 149 communes. Pop. (1855), 284,618.

VAUCLUSE [anc. Vallis Clusina; Italian, Vall'cluse] a vil. France, dep. Vaucluse, 15 m. E. Avignon, at the foot of a mountain of its name, r. bank Sorgue. A little to the S.E. is the fountain of Vaucluse, rich in natural beauties, and rendered celebrated by the residence and verses of Petrarch. A ravine which penetrates deep into the side of the mountain, and is hemmed in by walls of rock, with bristling peaks from 500 ft. to 600 ft. high, while down its centre the Sorgue pursues its rapid course, descends to a ravine, cavern which contains the fountain. According to the abundant or limited supply of water within it, it is either a gushing cascade, tumbling over moss-clad stones, or a dark blue pool sunk within its bed.

VAUCOULEURS [anc. Vallis Coloris], a tn. France, dep. Mosne, L. bank Mosne, 28 m. S.S.E. Bar-le-Duc, in the form of an amphitheatre with manufactures of cotton goods, hosiery, and leather. Pop. 2375.

VAUD (German, Waadt, or Wandthal), a cant. Switzerland, bounded N. by cant. and Lake Neuchâtel, W. France, S. cant. and Lake of Geneva, and E. Fribourg, greatest length, N to S., 28 m.; breadth, 28 m. area, 1185 sq. m. The mountains of this canton belong to three distinct chains—the Alps, in which are the culminating points of the canton, in the S.E.; the Jura, in the W.; and the Jura, stretching to the N. of the Lake of Geneva, and forming a connecting link between the other two. The valleys are so numerous that the name of the cañon, Wauda, a corruption of the old Wauda or valley, is supposed to be derived from them. Several of these valleys lie longitudinally between the terraces of the Jura, but the longest of all is that of the Gruye. Yaud belongs partly to the basin of the Rhine, and partly to that of the Rhoda, the Jura forming the watershed which separates them. The N portion belongs to the former, and is drained chiefly by the tributaries of the Lake of Neuchâtel, the S portion belongs to the latter and is drained directly or indirectly by the Lake of Geneva. In addition to these two great lakes, which Yaud only shares in common with other cañons, it possesses as its own the Joux, Brenet, and Ter in the Jura the first in the Joux and the Jaman, Rond, Nervaz, Brethay, &c. in the Alps. The climate varies much in different localities, but is on the whole both temperate and salubrious. The warmest and best-cultivated districts are on the E shore of the Lake of Geneva. In some districts where swamps prevail, bays are frequent. Iron is the only mineral worked and that only to a limited extent. The soil in general is not of remarkable fertility. The corn grown falls far short of the consumption, and hemp and flax are barely equal to it. One of the most important branches of rural economy is the culture of the vine. Along the banks of the Lake of Geneva it is extensively carried on and much wine of a fine quality is made. Among the most important products of the cañon are the various species of nuts—filberts, walnuts, and chestnuts. The last often form extensive plantations. Among the mountains the prevailing trees are pines. The principal hard-woods are ash, elm and alder oak is seldom seen. Neither trade nor manufactures are of much consequence. The inhabitants are almost all Protestants, and education is very generally diffused. For administrative purposes Yaud is divided into 19 districts, subdivided into 80 circles. The government is of a mixed form in which it is difficult to detect the resemblance to the democratic principle predominant. A grand council of 184 members, elected for five years meets annually in Lausanne, hence regarded as the capital, and forms the legislature. The electors require a pecuniary qualification. The grand council appoints the executive, which consists of nine members. The contingent of men furnished to the Swiss Confederation is 2964. Pop. (1860) 199,458.

VAUGRARD, a vil France, dep Seine, and so near Paris as to be only one of its suburbs. It contains a botanical garden, is a great holiday resort of the Parisians, and has manufactures of carriages and stained paper wax-cloth orthomane, and chemical products. Pop. 15,978.

VAUNKE, a river Central America. See CAYE RIVER.
VAUVERT, a vil France, dep Gard, 12 m. S.S.W. Nismes, with a Protestant church and manufactures of silk hosiery oil and brandy. Pop. 3681.

VAUX some-GUYENNOT, a vil and com Belgium, prov and 4 m. S.E. Liège on the Vesdre. A great many of the inhabitants are soldiers. Pop. 2865.

VAN AU or VAVAN, a group of the Fæge Islands. S Pacific Ocean, lat. 18° 59' S, lon. 174° 5' W. [a] They are all formed of a hard white rock, and are, it is supposed, of coral origin they are thickly covered with trees. Vavau, the principal island, is highest towards the N., sloping gradually to the S.

VAVITOU one of the Society Islands, Pacific Ocean lat. 25° 42' S, lon. 147° 50' W., discovered, 1791.

VAXHOLM, a vil Sweden. See WAXHOLM.

VAKHABAD or WAKHABAD, a m. Punjab, 60 m. N. by W. Lahore. About 5 m. from 1 bank Chindal lat. 31° 32' N, lon. 74° 0' E. It is one of the handsomest towns in India, having been rebuilt in the European style, with wide streets, and a handsome and commodious bazaar.

VECHELDE, a vil Brunswick, on the Aue and the railway to Hanover, 7 m. W. Brunswick, with a church, and a castle, now used as a courthouse.

VECHINGAN, or VECHONN, a vil and par Southern-Ireland, con. Barn, 7 bank Worles; with a church, several schools, and manufactures of linen. Pop. 2597.

VECHT—1, A river, which rises in the Prussian prov of Westphalia, gov Münster. flows N.W. into Hanover and across the N.W. corner of that kingdom into Holland, then circulates W & W. past Hardenburg and Zwolle, and turns to Vol. II.

N.N.E., falls into the E. of the Zuidersee, after a course of nearly 100 m.—2, A river Holland, a bifurcation of the Old Rhine, which leaves it near Utrecht; flows N.W., and falls into the Zuidersee at Muiden.

VECHTA, a vil Oldenburg on the Vochta 37 m. S. Oldenburg. It is walled has a Protestant and a Catholic church gymnasium, and workshops; and manufactures of linen, and a brewery. Pop. 1976.

VECKENSTADT a vil Prussia, prov Posen, gov Magdeburg S.E. Osterow, on the Elbe. It has oil, bark, paper and other mills. Pop. 1062.

VECKENHAGEN a market in Nassau-Cassel, Niederhessen, 1 bank Weser 15 m. N.N.E. Cassel; with a church and an old castle, now used as chemical works. Pop. 1868.

VEDANO, two places, Italy Lombardy—1 A vil and com. prov and 12 m. Milan with a church several churches, and a trade in corn wine and silk. Pop. 1102—2, (on Veduggio-d'Ossola) A vil, and com on a hill above the Olona with a church, and a trade in wine and silk. P. 1547.

VEDEIN a vil and com Belgium prov and N. Namur on a stream of same name. It has extensive mines of iron and lead particularly the latter which are very rich. Pop. 1355.

VEEN a vil Holland, prov N. Brabant, 10 m. N.W. Hartogenbosch, prettily situated on the Maas; with a church, and a trade in grain. Pop. (agricultural) 571.

VEENENDAAL a vil Holland, prov and 15 m. S.E. Groningen; with three churches and a synagogue, several schools, an orphan hospital and a workshop; numerous boat-building yards, and ropes, block, and sail making, and many smithies, two tanneries, and saw, malt, and other mills. Pop. 5376.

VEENENDAAL, a market in Holland, prov and 19 m. E.S.E. Utrecht, with two churches and a school a considerable live market, much turf-cutting, wool combing, and manufactures of calicoes. Pop. 2930.

VEEP (Sp.), par Eng Cornwall 5146 sq. ft. Pop. 647.

VEERE Vekra, a vil Vries a martinet in Holland prov Zeeland lat Walcheren 8 m. N.N.E. Flushing on the Vierschegat a sea-arm which separates Walcheren from Isl. V. Beveland. It is fortified, entered by four gates, has a harbour an elegant townhouse, two churches some schools a roomy market place, and some calico and other weaving it once had some shipping yards, building-yards, rope-works, &c. but these have all left, and the town has fallen off to a third of what it at one time was. Pop. 5449.

VEESEN a river issues from a lake among the moun tains on the N.W. frontier of Sweden, enters Norway; flows N.W. through Nordland and after a course of nearly 90 m., falls into the fford of same name in the Atlantic.

VEGA numerous places, Spain particularly—1, A vil prov Leon 9 m. from Ponferrada with a church, primary school and a trade in corn, wine, and fruit. Pop. 1090—2, (de Zendeo) A vil Asturias, prov and 60 m. W. Oviedo, at the confluence of the Saboron and Eo. It has a custom house, warehouse, and two primary schools. The Eo is navigable for small vessels, which have good and safe anchor age in the harbour. Pop. 1947—3, (de-Santa-Brigida) A vil Canaries, Isl Gran Canaria in the centre of the island It has a prison, a primary school, and parish church, many factories of ordinary linen, and several flour-mills. Pop. (agricultural including several hamlets), 3832—4, (de-Pal-areo), A vil prov and about 70 m. from Leon, with a church, a primary school, a flour-mill and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1080 VEGA (La), a vil Hayti. See CONCORDIA DE LA YMA-REAL.

VEGACERRA, a vil Spain, prov Leon, 7 bank Tera with a church, a primary school, and manufactures of linen and serge. Pop. 1468.

VEGAS-DEL-CORDADO, a m Spain, prov and 12 m. from Leon, on the Orza with a church, courthouse, school manufactures of linen several flour-mills, and a trade in flax. P. 1071.

VEGEN, an isl. Norway prov Tromsø, bail. Nordland, 15 m. off the coast, lat. 65° 44' N, lon. 22° E., about 80 m. in circumference.

VEGESACK, a market belonging to the free-town of Brunsch, on the Weser 22 m. N.W. Bremen, with a church, a harbour, some shipping, and an active trade. Pop. 3060.

VEGLIA, an island, Austria, Illyria, in the Gulf of Quarnero, separated from the island of Cherso on the W. by the channel of Plaunch, and from the mainland on the E. by that of Meuse greatest length, N N W to S. S. E., 34 m.; greatest breadth, 15 m.; area, 78 sq. m. The coast is bold, and the interior generally mountainous. In the N the soil is thin and almost barren, but elsewhere produces much wheat, rye, and excellent fruit; is well wooded, and has good pastures, on which great numbers of horses, sheep, and goats are reared. The fisheries on the coast are very productive. The most valuable mineral is an excellent marble. There are numerous villages on the island, but the only town bears the same name and is on the S. W. coast, at the foot of two mountains, and has a cathedral, an episcopal palace, a castle, two monasteries, a high school, and a harbour at which some trade is carried on. Pop. (n.), 1000 (all), 13,200.

VEGLIE, a m. Naples, prov. Salerno, 31 m. S. S. E. Brindisi, with a church, convent, and two almshouses. P. 1350.

VEIGI FOURCETEX, a vil and com. France, dep. Haute-Loire, prov. Faurcy near the Hermance. It consists of two distinct portions, and has a trade in cattle. Pop. 1125.

VELLE, a m. Denmark. See WELLS.

VELT (Str.)—1, (an-der-Trueding) A vil. archdiocese of Austria, on the stream and in the valley of the Triesting, S. W. Baden with manufactures of metal wares and machinery, a copper-mill, and a trade in fruit timber lime, and pitch. Pop. 918.—2, (an-der-Wied) A vil W of Vienna, of which it may be considered a suburb. It has a beautiful church, with a remarkable crypt; a palace of the Archbishop of Vienna and manufactures of chocolate. Inhabitants much employed in supplying the capital with milk and vegetables. P. 1220.

VELT (Str.), a m. Austria, Illyria, circle Klagenfurt, on the Rhine, 38 m. S. W. Laybach; with a church, and manufactures of white-lead and paper. Pop. 1785.

VETTSCHÖCH a vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, 7 m. S. W. Würzburg, with a church, a castle, and a trade in wine and fruit. Pop. 1846.

VELLE or VELLA FORTUNA, a m. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 37 m. S. E. Cadix, and 4 m. from the Atlantic. The houses are mostly old-fashioned and the streets narrow. There are three squares, a new townhouse and prisons, various schools, public and private, a parish church, and in the environs, several hermitages. A handsome bridge here spans the Barbate. Agriculture is the general occupation, while some are employed as masons, in flour and oil mills, and in weaving coarse woollen fabrics. Pop. 9144.

VELLA (Is.), a port in Venezuela, in the Gulf of Caraccas, lat. 10° 25' N. lon. 65° 40' W. with an active foreign trade.

VELLAINE, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. and 1 m. S. Namur on the Sambre; with manufactures of linen and a trade in fax. Pop. 1627.

VELLAINE, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Namur, 6 m. N. E. Tournai, with two breweries, a distillery, and a trade in cattle, grain, and hides. Pop. 2528.

VELLATE, a vil and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 16 m. N. E. Milan with a church, and a trade in wine and silk. Pop. 1086.

VELLAUR, two rivers, Hindoostan, Madras presid.—1, Rises in lat. 10° 28' N. lon. 78° 21' E. flows E. through Madras and Tanjore, and falls into the Bay of Bengal at lat. 10° 6' N. lon. 79° 17' E.—2, Rises in the E. Ghats, in B. Arcot, flows E. and falls into the Bay of Bengal near Porto Novo, lat. 11° 29' N. lon. 79° 50' E. It only admits small craft. Its waters are used for irrigation.

VELAY (Ld), an ancient dist. France, which depended on prov. Vivarais, and now forms part of dep. Haute-Loire. It was the capital.

VELDWEKELT, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. Limburg, 13 m. S. E. E. Maastricht. Pop. (agricultural) 1076.

VELLE, a river France, rises in dep. Marne flows W N W past Nohes into dep. Aisne, and joins 1. bank Aisne a little below Reims after a course of about 70 m.

VELLIA or VELLARIA, an anc. Lagaria city, Parma, 1. bank Chero about 24 m. S. Piacenza. Only a few ruins of it now remain. It stood on the N. slope of a hill called Regia, close to Mount Moris and Bovisano, which, originally called Mons Vellus, burst asunder and buried Velle under their ruin. Some interesting remains have been obtained from it by excavations.

VELENCE, a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Stuhlweissenburg, near lake of same name; with two churches, aatory and a trade in cane, corn, and wine. Pop. 1248.

VELETHIE, or VELASTIE, a vil. Hungary Thither Thales, co. Ugocsa, on a stream of same name, 8 m. from Nagy-Szeben, with a Greek church. Pop. 1386.

VELEZ, a m. New Granada, prov. and 60 m. N. Tunja; lat. 6° 10' N. lon. 75° 50' W. 1. bank Surozo. It is a city extremely situated on ground so soft and sandy, that the streets are at times impassable, none of these being paved. It contains a handsome church and two convents. The waters here had an wholesome. Pop. 7645.

VELEZ-BLANCO, a m. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 57 m. N. E. Almeria, on an isolated eminence. The more ancient part of this town, which was destroyed by a small but strong castle is nearly ruined. It has a townhouse and prison, two primary schools, a parish church, and two oratories. Near it are quarries of gypsum, red and white marble, mines of sulphate of copper lead and iron, and springs holding in solution chlorate and sulphate of soda; but none of them are turned to account. Pop. (agricultural), 7000.

VELEZ-DE-BENAFALLA a m. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 30 m. S. E. Granada, 1. bank Guadalquivir, at the foot of a hill crowned with an ancient ruinous castle. It has a townhouse, prison, two primary schools, and a church of good architecture. The inhabitants are chiefly occupied as muleteers and bankers, for Velez supplies with brand Mollis. It is the largest and most considerable number also are employed in the different lead-mines in the neighboring hills of Lajar, as well as in manufactures of that metal. Pop. 3043.

VEL EZ-MALAGA, a city, Spain Andalusia, prov. and 15 m. E. Malaga, on the Velez, 14 m. from the Mediterranean, lat. 36° 45' N. lon. 5° 3' W. The houses are in general three stories, and the streets broad, but for the most part steep and irregular, and although indifferently paved, they are kept neat and clean. It has five squares, in one of which stands the townhouse, a spacious and elegant structure. It has also a small and handsome prison, custom house, hospital for the sick, foundling hospital, houses of refuge, two primary endowed schools, with various other private ones, two parish churches, three suppressed convents, the churches of which are open for public worship, two monasteries, and several hermitages, manufactures of sugar, hats, soap, cordage, brandy and liquors, leather shoes and 29 oil mills. The chief source of the wealth of Velez has always been its fruits lemons, oranges, figs almonds, but especially its famous muscat vines. It is also celebrated for its oil, which is considered the best in the kingdom. In 1844-5, the number of vessels that entered its port was 840 tonnage, 5461 the chief articles imported being rice, dried cod, barley, coal and timber. Pop. 13,715.

VELEZ-RUBIO, a m. Spain, Andalusia, prov. and 54 m. N. N. E. Almeria. It is surrounded by earthen walls, has five squares, a handsome modern parish church crowning a central height, a suppressed convent, and ruined sunnary a large and well-built courthouse, with a massive but unhealthy prison, a college, several schools, and a magnificent hospital originally intended for general purposes, but now devoted solely to leprosy. The manufactures consist chiefly of woolen, linen, and hempen cloth, oil, and flour, and the trade is chiefly in the above manufactures and agricultural produce. There is an annual fair which lasts eight days. Pop. 11,800.

VELHA, a lofty and extensive acra in Brazilian Guiana, between the Para and the Amazon.

VELHAS, a river Brazil rises in the W. slope of the hills between provs. Minas-Geraes and Goyas, runs W N W in the latter prov., and joins 1. bank Paranaiba, 60 m. above its confluence with the Grande, after a course of 240 m., during which it receives in succession the Ferns, Ilheuta-Verde, dardo, and Infante on the left, and the Quirara-Ancas on the right. In the rainy season barges ascend as far as the Ferns.

VELHAS (Rio-da) or GUACOUAT, a river, Brazil, prov. Minas-Geraes, rises in the N. slope of the Serra Paranaiba, flows E. then turns suddenly N., receives the São, Paranaiba, Paro, Curatati, and the Benda, and joins 1. bank São Francisco above the village of Barra-da-Velha.

VELICORNA, or NANYTAL, a market in Hungary, co. Arva, 7 m. N. river of that name, 85 m. N. Hencul. It has two churches, a townhouse, and school; manufactures of linen, and a trade in bark and wax. Pop. 1685.

VELIZ, a m. Brazil, gov. and 53 m. N. P. Viçosa, at the confluence of a stream of same name with the S. Doña

It is very irregularly and poorly built of wood; and has one R. Catholic and eight Greek churches, a synagogue, a castle, and a considerable trade in hemp, linseed, and corn. P 4908.

VELIKAILA, a river Russia, rises in S. of gov. Pskov flows S.E.W. into gov. Vitebsk, then turns suddenly N., re-enters gov. Pskov, and falls into the S.E. extremity of Lake Pskov, above a straits of about 120 m.

VELIKI LUGO, a tn. Russia, gov. and 133 m. S.E. Pskov, on the Lovat, here crossed by a wooden bridge communicating with a suburb. It is surrounded by an earthen rampart; has seven churches, manufactures of leather and articles in leather, and a considerable trade in these articles and in flax and hemp. Pop. 4000.

VELINO, a river Italy, rises in the W. slope of the Apennines, in the N. of prov. Abruzzo-Ulteriore, Naples flows S.E.W. and W., enters the Adriatic, and reaches the sea. Here it turns N. & W. and dashes over a precipice of about 900 ft. in height, forms the celebrated falls of Turi, and then joins the bank here. Its principal affluents both on the left, are the Salto and Tarnano total course, about 60 m.

VELLANO, a vil. and com. Tuscan comp. Florence, 4 m. N. Pescia, with a church, an old castle, several schools, and a trade in wine oil, and wool. Pop. 3820.

VELLETRI [anc. Vulturna], a tn. Papal States, com. and 21 m. S.E. Rome, at the foot of Mount Artemale. It is surrounded by rugged hills, and is both irregularly and poorly built. It has however one large square, with a statue of Pope Urban VII. and several of its fountains are handsome. The buildings chiefly deserving of notice are the townhall, built from the designs of Bramante the palace Lancelotti and the palace Borghia, a handsome edifice, but now deprived of its chief attraction—a picture-gallery which has been removed bodily to Naples. Velletri is the see of a bishop, who is a kind of sovereign within his own territory, having a soldiery and treasury of his own and holding a supreme court, whose decisions cannot be carried by appeal even to the Pope. The foundation of the town by the Volturni, the first inhabitants date from a very early period. It is the original seat of the Octavian family. The Emperor Augustus, its most celebrated member, was born here, and here too several of his successors had magnificent palaces, in which they occasionally resided. Pop. 12,000.

VELLORE, a tn. and extensive fortress, Hindoostan, presid. and 94 m. W. Madras lat. 12° 55' N., lon. 79° 11' E. The town, which lies S. from the fort, is large, populous rather clean and neat, contains a splendid pagoda, and has an exceedingly busy and well supplied bazaar. The fortress is extensive, has ramparts built of large stones and is surrounded by a deep wide ditch cut in the rock, and filled with clear water. It contains barracks, hospitals, magazines, and buildings sometimes occupied by state prisoners. Though the heat of Vellore is very great, the climate is healthy, and debilitated troops from other stations recover strength when sent here. On the fall of Seringapatam, the sons of Tippu-Sulth were sent here, and continued to reside in Vellore from 1798 to 1806, when a mutiny and cruel massacre, perpetrated by the native troops on their officers and Europeans, caused their removal.

VELSEN, a vil. Holland, prov. N. Holland, 5 m. N. Haarlem, prettily situated with two churches and a school. Pop. 823.

VELSQUE-Remousmeuse, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. F. Flandre, 104 m. S. Ghent. It is neat and thriving, and has a church, chapel, three schools, and a convent, manufactures of linen and cotton, and three flour-mills. Pop. 1661.

VELTHAM Berzance, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, 10 m. N.E. Brussels with a brewery, two flour-mills, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1802.

VELTPOUG a tn. Lower Austria. See PARANAGAN.

VELUWE, a dist. Holland, forming the N.W. part of prov. Gelderland, and comprised between the Zuider-zee, the IJssel, and the Rhine.

VELMEND a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Baranya, 1 m. from Szekes, with two churches, and a trade in corn, wine, cattle, and oak- timber. Pop. 1988.

VENENTRY, one of the Shetland Islands, Scotland, in the Bay of St. Magnus, and close to the island of Mainland, from which it is separated by the narrow sound of Rye. It separates a considerable number of cattle and sheep.

VENADO, a tn. Mexican Confederation, dep. and 46 m. N. San-Luis-Potosi. Pop. 8000.

VENAFRO [anc. Venafrum], a tn. Naples, prov. Larino 51 m. N.N.W. Caserta. It is the see of a bishop; contains a handsome cathedral, six parish churches, three schools, five monasteries, a nursery and a large hospital. Pop. 2800.

VFNABA, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and about 8 m. W. N.W. Susa, a pretty place, with a small square, in which the parish church stands. Pop. 1438.

VERASCA, a tn. Italy, Piedmont, div. Coni prov. and 8 m. S.W. Saluzzo. It is very poorly built, has a court of justice, a parish church, and a marble-quarry. Pop. 3811.

VENCATIGERRY, two tns. Hindoostan, presid. Madras—1. 58 m. W. by N. Arcot—2. 72 m. N. by E. Arcot.

VFNCE [anc. Vindon], a walled tn. France, dep. Var, 6 m. N.W. Nice. It has manufactures of leather oil-mills, and a trade in olive-oil and fruit. Pop. 3103.

VENDA (Guanay), a vil. on the coast of Brazil, prov. and 8 m. from Rio-de-Janeiro. Being on the highroad to Minas-Geraes, and having a harbour where barges can land for Rio-de-Janeiro it commands a good trade.

VENDEE, a river, France, formed by the union of three small streams, the principal of which takes its rise in the forest of Chantenay, in the W. of dep. Deux-Sèvres, enters dep. Vendée; flows S.E.W. passes Fontenay, and joins the Sèvre-Nantaise a little above Marais, after a course of about 45 m., of which 15 m., beginning at Gros-Noyer, are navigable.

VENDEE, a maritime dep. France, bounded, N. by dep. Loire-Inférieure and Maine-et-Loire, E. Deux-Sèvres, S. Charente-Inférieure, S.W. and W. the Bay of Biscay, greatest length N.W. to S.E., 76 m. breadth 65 m. area 2556 sq. m. The surface is perhaps more diversified than that of any other department, and is divided into four distinct parts—the Bocage, so named from the quantity of wood which covers it, and occupying above one-half the department; the Plaine a tongue of land included between the Bocage and the S. limit of the department, sloping gradually down towards the sea, by which, from the quantity of shells and calcareous matters strewed over its surface, it appears to have been at one time covered the Marais, applied to all the S. and W. coasts of the department where marshes prevail, from many of which salt is obtained, and the Ile, four in number—Bouin, Dieux, Noirmoutiers, and Piler. The rivers are numerous, and five of them are navigable within the department—the Antise, Vendée, Lay, Vie, and Sèvre-Nantaise. The Sèvre-Nantaise does not become navigable till it reaches the permanent Loire-Inférieure. The only navigable canal is that of Lagon. About two-thirds of the land is arable, and one-sixth of it in permanent meadow or pasture. Vendée grain which more than suffices for the home consumption, the principal crops are flax and hemp. A considerable quantity of wine is produced, but the quality is almost without exception extremely indifferent. Of domestic animals, the horses only are superior breeds. Cattle both large and small abound, and the fashings in the sea and the rivers are very productive. The minerals include a mine of argentiferous lead, and indications of coal, but there is little iron. There are excellent millstone-quarry, and also quarries of granite and building-stone. Clay some of it fit for porcelain and fine ware, occurs in many places. The manufactures consist of household linen, coarse woollens, earthenware, and salt, and the trade is in corn, wines of Bordeaux and Anis, wool charcoal, ship-timber horses, &c. The inhabitants, particularly those of the Bocage, are remarkable for the simplicity of their manners, and the strong mutual attachment subsisting between the lords and vassals of the soil. The strength of this attachment has more than once signified itself in modern times in a manner very honourable to the parties themselves, but with very disastrous results. For administrative purposes Vendée is divided into three arrondissements—Bourbon-Vendée (the capital), Fontenay and Les-Baillies-d'Olonne; subdivided into 80 cantons, and 294 communes. Pop. (1859) 283,784.

VENDEE, a tn. Russia. See WIKOWSKA.

VENDOME [anc. Vindonema], a tn. France, dep. Loir-et-Cher, on the Loire, at the foot of a hill covered with vineyards, 20 m. N.W. Blois. It is regularly and well built, and on a height above it rise the picturesque ruins of the old castle of Vendôme. It is provided with several fine promenades.

also contains an ancient church, a communal college, public library, barracks, and theatre; and has manufactures of gloves, and woollen and cotton stuffs, tanneries, and cotton and paper mills. Pop. 6709.

YENDOTENA (San. Panderosa) an id in the Mediterranean off coast of Naples lat. 40° 47' N lon. 13° 34' E. It is about 9 m. in circuit, is defended by a strong tower, and has a small harbor. The soil is fertile and well cultivated. Under the Roman emperor it was occasionally used as a kind of state prison. Agrippina, the wife of Germanicus, and Octavia, the wife of Nero, were banished to it. Pop. 300.

VENDRELLA, a tn. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 16 m. N. E. Tarragona, 6 m. from the Mediterranean with an assembly room, custom-house, hospital, church, burnings, several schools, and two towers on the coast a cooperage and a distillery. Pop. (including) 4936.

VENERIA a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. and 6 m. N. W. Paris, on an affluent of the Seine. It consists of a spacious street, regularly lined by well built houses, and has two parish churches, a large old castle a riding and a communal school, a small hospital, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 3207.

VENEZUELA, a republic of S. America, occupying the N. E. portion of that continent lat. 1° 8' to 12° 16' N, lon. 53° 18' to 75° 17' W bounded, N. by the Caribbean Sea, E. by the Atlantic Ocean and British Guiana, S. Brazil, or Portuguese Guiana, and N. New Granada. This western boundary does not follow the natural line of demarcation, but rests on a convention between the two republics. It begins on the coast at Cape Chichibacoe lon. 72° 34' W, runs to the sources of the Maimachi, an affluent of the Rio Negro, and is determined throughout chiefly by the junctions and courses of rivers, its whole length being 1100 m. The E. and E. boundaries running through countries but little known, are imperfectly determined. The former of these, towards Brazil, from the sources of the Maimachi in the W. to the junction of the Raponda and Essequibo in the E., follow the water bounds or ridges separating the basins of rivers which in the present state of our geographical knowledge, can only be represented hypothetically. On the E. the republic assumes that its boundary extends from the river Oyumi to the mouth of the Moroco on the coast, while the British government claims for Guyana a territory N. of this line and all the coast between the Essequibo and Orinoco. The area of the Republic is about 400,000 sq. m. or double that of France. When Ojeda and Vespucius entered the Lake of Maracibo, in 1499 they were surprised to find there an Indian village constructed on piles over the water, the banks of the lake being thought unhealthy. They called the insular village Venezuela (the diminutive of Venecia or Venice), a name subsequently given to the lake, and ultimately to the surrounding country.

In variety of surface, Venezuela is nowhere inferior to the other S. American republics; it has, indeed the advantage that its mountains hold a secondary importance, and occupy but a fourth of the whole territory. Its plains (the llanos) are easily accessible, and to a great extent extremely productive. In the valley near the foundations of the rivers in the basin of the Orinoco extend far and wide, and the forests are converted into grass. The meads or table-lands, varying in elevation from 500 ft. to 1300 ft., are also well developed, and constitute a characteristic of the country.

Mountains.—The E. cordillera of the Andes divides into two branches before it leaves New Granada. The W. branch, which includes the Lake of Maracibo, bears in its different portions, different names—Sierra de Uzuza, Sierra de Paria (in the middle) and where it reaches the coast at Cape Chichibacoe, Monte de Oca. It has but a moderate elevation, rarely exceeding 4000 ft., and is nowhere cultivated. The thick forests which cover it in its whole extent shelter the independent Indian tribes, the Cocamae and the Guajira. The E. branch enters Venezuela much further S. and stretching N. E. for about 300 m., its general breadth being 60 m. imposes on an extensive area comparative sterility. It is an immense pile of rocks, forming ridges narrow at the summit, and rising to the height of alpine vegetation. The paramos, or summit-plains have generally an elevation of 12,000 ft. and the Sierra Nevada de Merida, the loftiest of the summits which rise above them, and 15,399 ft. in height, is always covered with snow. Here cultivation has got a footing on the slopes of these mountains, it succeeds to a height of 8000 ft.

or 8000 ft., the line which separates the cereal crops of temperate climate, wheat, barley, &c., from tropical productions, maize, coffee, the yuca, &c., being at an elevation of about 4000 ft. Breaking off from these mountains near Trinita, the coast-chain runs N. E. towards the Gulf of Venezuela at Valencia, which, inclosed by the mountains, presents the most diversified and beautiful scenery the chain then continues onwards parallel to the sea-coast. Its N. branch, known as the Sierra de Mariara, terminates at Cape Codera, rising in the Sierra de Caracazo, which is a conspicuous object from the sea, to an elevation of 8000 ft. The S. branch known as the Mountains of Gacacimo and Tucua, sends a winding chain, Sierra de Alta-Gracia, S. to the Orinoco; while towards the E. and S. E., it forms the chains of the Bergantina and Coacilar. The valleys and table-lands of these coast-chains, which have collectively a moderate elevation, are the chief seats of cultivation in Venezuela, and form together the most populous region of the torrid zone in the New World. In the southern part of the state, on the frontiers of Guiana, rises an isolated group of mountains, between the rivers Orinoco and Amazon, divisible into several chains, extending for the most part E. and W., and called collectively the Mountains of Parima. This extensive mountain-region still remains uncultivated, a wilderness overgrown with superb forests. It is known however that the Mountains of Parima nowhere attain the elevation of parana (12,000 ft.), so that their summits, when cleared of trees, would be capable of yielding the grains of Europe.

Llanos.—From the Mountains of Parima to the coast-chain at Caracas, and from the mouth of the Orinoco to the foot of the Andes, extends an immense plain, with an area of perhaps 300,000 sq. m. having in some places on its margin an elevation of 1800 ft., though a great portion of it is little above the level of the sea, and in the rainy season it is flooded by the rivers to an extent equal to double the surface of the British Isles. Such are the llanos (level) of Venezuela. They are generally destitute of trees, which in the most favoured spots occur only in small clusters. The caricote (Mauritia) palm is scattered thinly over the waste, which is often quite treeless. The change of level is rarely discernible by the eye, though in some places, patches of rock, showing horizontal stratification, and occasionally some square mounds in extent, rise a few feet above the surrounding plain. In the dry season the greater part of the llanos presents to the view a bare sunburnt desert, over which the least agitation of the air whisks clouds of dust. The intense heat, contributed from the baked ground, the want of landmarks, with the frequency of extensive mirages, and the difficulty of finding water, then render a journey through the llanos a dangerous undertaking. But no sooner does the rain fall—and it pours down with the violence peculiar to the tropics—than the scene changes totally; vegetation springs forth and spreads itself abroad with surprising rapidity, the arid waste becomes a rich garden, the sunburnt earth is seen to heave and open, and forth come the crocodiles and the sea-monsters, sucking off their lethargy, and relaxing themselves from their temporary imprisonment. The rivers, hitherto dry, are now quickly filled and their banks become low, the waters spread over the llanos, forming great seas, which towards the foot of the Andes penetrate even into the majestic forests. The plains above the level of the inundation feed cattle and horses in great numbers.

Rivers.—Among the rivers of Venezuela, the Orinoco holds decidedly the first place among the rivers of S. America generally, it ranks third in magnitude. The exuberantly fertile valley of that great river into which flow above 600 other rivers reputed navigable, watering a territory of 150,000 sq. m., offers to advancing civilization all the natural conditions of an opulent and populous state. (See Orinoco.) Within the limits of this Republic, the rivers that have a course of at least 100 m. are about 60 in number, the chief of these belong to the basin of the Orinoco (which see); of the remainder few call for special notice. The Cayman runs E. from the Mountains of Parima, S. of the Orinoco, to join the Essequibo in British Guiana. Farther W. the Guaiana or Rio Negro, crosses the territory of Venezuela, on its way from the foot of the Andes in New Granada, to the Amazon in the Brazilian Guianas. The rivers flowing into the Caribbean Sea are much inferior in magnitude to those already mentioned; the most important of these are the Zulia, Catumbé, and Monstan, falling into Lake Maracaibo the Tuyuya, running N. E. between the provinces of Coro and Carabobo the Tuy, running E. through the plain S. of Caracas; the Unare, 50 m. farther E., and the Guasipalme, which enters the Gulf of Paria. Lakes and Rivers.—Above 800 lakes or lagoons are enumerated within the territory of Venezuela, but most of these are the remains of inundation, being only marshes more or less permanently covered. Only two of the whole number are noteworthy for extent or beauty, namely Lakes Maracaibo and Tucaguá (see see). The chief harbours are those of Cumana, at the S. side of the Gulf of Cariaco, and spacious enough to receive and shelter all the fleets of Europe and Puerto-Cabello, which is also roomy and secure. La Guayra owes its importance chiefly to its vicinity to Caracas, and to the population of the neighbouring country.

Climate.—The climate of Venezuela exhibits in the fullest manner the equatorial character. It distinguishes seasons only as they are wet or dry. There are two rainy seasons on the coast in December and January are the short runs, the long rains fall from April to July. In February and March, and from August till November are the dry seasons. On the coast-mountain the rain is very heavy, and the rank vegetation, combined with the latitude of the atmosphere, renders that region extremely insalubrious. In some parts of the country, as at the foot of the high Andes, the rains never cease entirely, and fall heavily with little intermission for 10 or 11 months of the year. The heat on the coast is generally excessive, and in some places, as La Guayra, almost insufferable. The banks of the Orinoco are said to be cooler than the adjacent llanos, owing doubtless to the rapid evaporation continually going forward in them, and Angostura, close by that river is refreshed by breezes from the sea above 200 m. distant. The changes produced in the llanos, by the spreading of the inundation and its retirement, are alike prejudicial to health. The lowlands about the delta of the Orinoco rank with pestilential exhalations, and when the first rain falls after the dry season they emit a strong musky odour, like that which characterizes certain animals, as the jaguar the crocodile, rattlesnake, &c. Elephantiasis and gonorrhea seem to be here endemic diseases. The whole of Venezuela excepting the alluvial tracts about the Orinoco is liable to earthquakes. In 1813 devastating shocks, which laid in ruins Caracas, La Guayra, and Puerto-Cabello, were felt along the coast through an extent of 1000 m.

Minerals.—The attention of the first Spanish settlers in this country was chiefly attracted by the gold ornaments worn by the Indians, and their search for mines of the precious metals was not wholly fruitless. The towns of Barquisimeto and Nirgua owed their origin to the discovery of gold-mines in the mountains lying between them. In 1560 were discovered the mines of Los Teques. In 1584 the city of San-Juan-de-la-Paz was founded on the Tuy and for some years derived wealth and prosperity from the neighbouring gold-mines of Ayacucho and Carup. Several other mines enjoyed a transient reputation. But owing to the rapid exhaustion of the supposed treasures, and the ravages of climate, these mines seem to have been all abandoned early in the 17th century, and were soon forgotten. Silver-mines were also discovered at Guandía between Arica and Nirgua and in the present century silver-ores have been found in the Mountains of Merida, S. of Lake Maracaibo. But the copper of Arica has proved more valuable than its silver. These copper-mines situate in the hills of San Felipe, about 70 m. W. of Puerto-Cabello, are extremely productive. The tin-mines of Barquisimeto were worked for many years on account of the crown, their whole produce being used in casting brass guns they were at length sold to a private speculator who abandoned them. Coal is said to be excellent and abundant in many of the coast-districts, but chiefly in Coro. Among the mineral resources of Venezuela, salt is not the least important. The salt-mines of Araya facing the sea, on the peninsula N. of Cumana, were discovered by the followers of Columbus in 1499, and as they offered an inexhaustible supply of the purest salt, they continued for some years to attract adventurers of all nations. Asphalt and petroleum are abundant round Lake Maracaibo. At Lagunilla, in Merida, is a lagoon, which, in the dry season, yields a large quantity of the sequi-carbonate of soda, known to European druggists by the African name of trona. The Indians use it to mix with their tobacco.

Botany.—Owing to the equatorial position of Venezuela, the variety of its surface, and its humid climate, the flora of that country is one of the richest on the earth. No various indeed are its plants, that even the more enumeration of the more important kinds would occupy more space than can be here devoted to them. It will here suffice to cast a rapid glance at the several gradations of vegetable forms from the sea-side to the snows of the Andes. From the level of the sea to the height of 8800 ft. extend the region of palms. Only three species flourish above these limits, one being the wax palm, which often attains an elevation of 9000 ft. another is the royal palm, remarkable for its great size and beauty. Of the palms in the lower plains, the most important is the marchito (Coccothrinax) called by the mountaineers the bread of life, or the Indian sagu. This tree produces marshy ground, and is thinly scattered even over the llanos. Every part of it is serviceable its farinaceous pith, called purma, is made into bread. If this be allowed to decay in the tree, it breeds worms, which are considered by the Indians as a great delicacy. The berries, leaves, cortical fibres of the root, and the wood itself of this tree are all converted to use by the Caribs and Guianas. The chibichiqui yields the fibrous tufts of which the natives make their strong and elastic ropes. The yuca supplies the place of the olive, two kinds of oil one of them extremely fine, being made from its fruit. The chagarrana, a palm of most elegant and majestic appearance, produces, in immense clusters, a fruit equally palatable and nutritious. Mingled with the palms are the cardenas and cast of candelabra forms sensitive mimosa—papaele or bromelia, nor must we forget the milk-tree, called also palo-de-oso or cow tree which yields on incision a nutritious fluid resembling milk. Among the large timber-trees may be mentioned the baobab, of colossal size, the Bocconia tree, and mahogany. Sarcocolla, copals, dragon's-blood and other drugs abound caribba (caribba) from several tracts of different kinds are all produced in the region of palms. In the forests thus richly stored with useful products the plants which chiefly attract the stranger's attention and admiration are the arborescent grasses (lombas), and ice-ferns. Agave at an absolute elevation of 800 (generally of 2000 ft.), and extending up to 9000 ft. are the fibrous plants (anchoas) the stems forming great forests by themselves. They are extensive zones of many flowering plants now almost extinct. In the mountains there also grow wild the aromatic vanilla, the plantain, the strychnos or poison plant of the Indians and the mopo, an acacia, of the bruised seeds of which the natives make snuff. Trees grow stunted and rare at the elevation of 8000 ft. where all the grasses of temperate regions attain perfection. Alpine plants show themselves at a height of 8500 ft. increasing upwards till they approach their upper limit, between 12 000 ft. and 14 000 ft. Above 11 000 ft. bushes cease and only humble plants remain. At the height of 13 700 ft. phanerogamous vegetation disappears altogether, and only lichens and hepatics cover the rocks as far as the limits of perpetual snow about 1800 ft. higher up. Among the cultivated plants, subservient to the wants of the country, or to the demands of commerce the first rank is due to the cacao. Owing to the remoteness of the colonists however the coats of Venezuela which are particularly adapted for its culture, were long unable to supply the demands of the mother-country, and in the middle of the 17th century chocolate was even imported into Caracas from the Dutch colony of Cayenne. It was about 1728 that the cacao of Caracas began to attract notice, and towards the end of the century the exportation was very large, but this prosperity was marred by the war of independence, and it is supposed that the cacao-plantations have now only half the extent of those of 1810. The plantation supplies the staple food of the great majority of the population. The species are numerous, and some of them thrive at an elevation of 6000 ft., but lower down the tree is more prolific, and continues bearing for 80 years, loaded with fruit all summer. Maca, which at a height of 8000 ft. or 8500 ft. ripens slowly, is gathered in four months near the coast, and thus two crops of it are easily taken in the year each producing 240 fold. The yuca is cultivated chiefly by the Indians, who prepare from the root the farinaceous meal called manioc. The coco-nut is now very generally cultivated along the coasts of Venezuela for the sake of its oil, and is found to be more remunerative, in suitable situations, than the cacao. In 1778

the science or superiority of the royal monopoly of tobacco was established in Venezuela. The privileges thus conferred were abolished, however, in 1823, by the congress. The tobacco of Caracas in 1824 is much esteemed in Europe. Cotton, coffee, sugar, and tobacco are cultivated with success, but not to any great extent.

Animals.—The forests of Venezuela are amply stocked with the furred tribes and with monkeys. Of the species peculiar to this country, it will be sufficient to mention the titi, a diminutive monkey only 6 inches in length, the most elegant varieties of which are found only on the banks of the Casiquiare. While the monkeys occupy in families the upper and ramified region of the remote forest, the tapir the largest of the American pachyderms, wanders below in solitude along the banks of the rivers. The tapir, a kind of wild hog, though much smaller than the tapir, is more formidable and when in large herds, fearfully attacks the hunter. The jaguar or American tiger, being hunted for the sake of its highly-prized skin, is growing rare. The puma or lion, prefers the hills and ascends almost to the deep forests. The chigüire is an amphibious animal resembling a large otter, it is often domesticated in ponds for the sake of its flesh which, being dressed like, is eaten during fasts. Besides dolphins of great size which ascend the rivers, the manatee often weighing 800 lbs. is found in the Orinoco and its affluents at the foot of the Andes, as well as in Lake Maracibo.

Divisions.—Venezuela, in its present extent, dates from 1821, when its limits were assigned by the Colombian congress. It was divided at that time into three departments, namely, Guayana, Cuzco, and Zulia. In 1824 the divisions were re-adjusted and a fourth department, that of Apure, added. These departments were subdivided into 13 provinces. But in 1830, on the dissolution of the Colombian republic, a 15th province, Barquisimeto, was formed, and the division into departments was therefore abolished. The republic is therefore now divided into the following 13 provinces, namely Carabobo, Carabobo, Barquisimeto, Coro, Maracibo, Truxillo, Merida, Varinas, Apure, Barcelona, Cumaná, Margarita (the island), and Guiana. The last nearly equals in extent all the others. In Carabobo, Apure, Margarita, and Guiana, the capitals are respectively Valencia, Achaguas, Asunción, and Asquetora. The other provinces all bear the names of their capitals.

Population Race &c.—The population of Venezuela, like that of the other Spanish American colonies, exhibits a singular mixture of the white (European) red (Indian), and black (African) races, and consists in the composition all the elements of dissension. More than half of the population are people of colour that is to say, Mestizos, Mulattoes, Zambos, and other mixed breeds. The Creoles, or people of European descent, amount at the present to a fourth. The domesticated Indians make about a sixth. The remainder are negro slaves emancipated by decree of the Republic, dated March 10 1854 now reduced to a small number and independent Indians. The whole amount of the population was in 1839 945,000 having been much reduced in preceding years by intestine wars earthquakes and pestilence. At present (1853), it probably does not fall short of 1,250,000. Of this number, about 50,000 are independent Indians, who add nothing to the strength or resources of the state. These are divided into at least 100 different nations or tribes, some of them numbering but 100 people, and speaking apparently different languages, which are doubtless but dialects derived from a comparatively few tongues in the isolation of the forests. Among the nations which may be regarded as parent stems of this various and alienated progeny that of the Caribs holds the first rank. The Caribs are tall, strong, courageous, and intelligent. It is not believed that cannibalism was ever an established custom with these on the continent, though it certainly existed among their brethren in the Antilles. The surviving remnants of their nation in the present day inhabit a few villages in Guiana, on the river Carony, Guyana, and Maracibo, and about the lower part of the Orinoco. The delta of this river and the mouth of the river entering the sea from the Sierra Imbabura, are inhabited by the Guaranis, who are all business trading with Trinidad, and subsisting chiefly on the moriche-palm. Some of them, quitting their woods and gardens, have settled in villages near Flocia in Guiana. The Guianas, also in the neighbourhood of Flocia, are remarkable for their fair complexion and slender features. Their language resembles that of the Guaranis, but a savage tribe dwelling near the upper falls of the Orinoco. The Maquiritana, another light-coloured tribe, dwell on the banks of the Ventuari and Guasima, and trade with Democura. The Guasima, in the plains of the Apure, are a wretched tribe, remarkable for their extreme addition to the savage habit of eating clay. The Guasima, on the peninsula W of Lake Maracibo, are still a considerable nation, they cultivate maize, yuca, and sugar-cane, and breed horses, mules, and cattle.

Government.—The constitution of Venezuela, derived on it by the parent republic of Colombia, is a slightly modified copy of that of the U States. The E. Catholic religion is that of the state, but other creeds are tolerated. The clergy are held to be strictly subordinate to the civil power. The papal mission, when required as transmitted through the government, which also administers the patronage of the church. There is very little machinery carried on in the state; the land attracts all the industry, still hardly a fourth of the fertile territory has yet been reached by cultivation. The foreign commerce is chiefly with the U States and Great Britain. In this, as in most of the other S. American states, the development of the internal resources of the country is much hindered by the want of good roads. At the close of the revolution, the debt contracted by loans in England alone, amounted to £2,750,000.—(Humboldt's Personal Narrative, Depon, Voyage a la Paria Originale de la Tierra Firme en A. M. de 1806; Lavayrac, Voyages de 1812; Hippelley, Expedition to the Orinoco de 1818; Campesino and Ordoñez en Venezuela, de 1851 Coloza Resumen de la Geografia de Venezuela, 1841.)

VENICE [Latin, Venetia Italian, Venezia, French Venise German, Venedig] a seaport in kingdom of Italy, cap. gov. of same name on an extensive lagoon in the N.W. of the Adriatic Sea, near the mouth of the Brenta, and connected by railway with Verona, Mantua, &c. lat. 45° 25' 54" N lon. 12° 20' 12" E (R.) Its site is perhaps the most extraordinary in existence. A long and narrow belt of land, very little raised above the level of the water stretches from R. to VIEW PORT OF VENICE, VENICE.—From Melbourne's 1850.

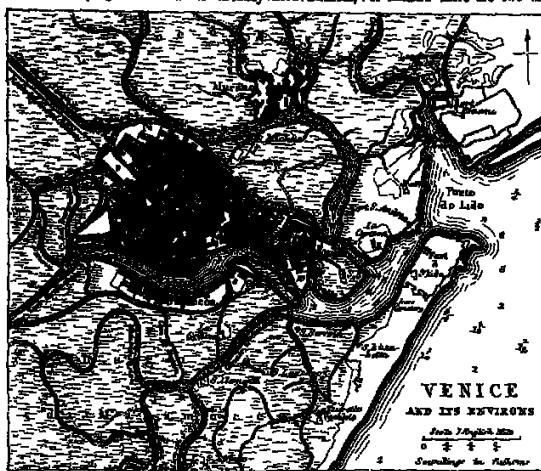

R along a portion of the Adriatic, and at its average distance of about 4 m. E. of the shore. A number of openings in this belt give access to the sea, which accordingly, filling all the space between the belt and the shore, forms a lagoon. In the N. portion of this lagoon, a cluster of islands, to the number, it is said, of 82, most at one time have been visible on its horizon, but are no longer, because the town has been built upon them, or rather on piles driven into them, and connected from the river by its masses of buildings which, from whatever quarter viewed, have the appearance of floating on the near, the only connection between the town and the Italian shore being by a great railway viaduct carried over the lagoon, having 322 circular arches and extending in length to 8906 yards, or nearly 2½ m. Such a site has many inconveniences, however are only 4 ft. and only a few as much as 6 ft. in width, and therefore, being mere footpaths, have smooth flags or marble-slabs for their pavement. To this state of matters there are two exceptions deserving of notice.

The first is a street called the Morrete situated near the centre of the city, lined with handsome shops, and so wide, that by careful driving two carriages meeting might manage to pass. The other is the Piazza of St. Mark, and the piazzetta leading to it. These form two main branches at right angles to each other and united by the Basilio of St. Mark and the doge's palace. The piazzetta, the shorter of the two, opens upon the sea, where in front of it stand two magnificent granite columns, each formed out of a single block, and crowned with a bronze figure the one, the winged lion of St. Mark, and the other a statue of St. Theodore. The piazza is about 570 ft. long, by 300 ft. broad, and is by far the finest part of the city. It contains some of the most remarkable public buildings, and is lined by arcades with handsome shops and cafés. Along with the piazzetta, it is the centre of commerce, and at all times presents a very gay and animated scene.

In some other places, where the islands are large enough to admit of them, there are a few small squares, and in

1 Church and Piazza of St. Marco
2 Piazza of St. Marco
3 Piazza of St. Marco
4 Piazza of St. Marco

5 Doge's Palace
6 Doge's Palace
7 Doge's Palace
8 Doge's Palace

9 Church of St. Mark
10 Church of St. Mark
11 Church of St. Mark
12 Church of St. Mark

but one of its most obvious advantages is its strength. On the land-side it is defended by the water, and on the sea-side it is defended by the land, the only approach to it being through narrow openings, commanded by powerful batteries crossing their fire with each other, and making a successful attack on the town impossible. All these formidable batteries are silenced. In regard to such a town the ordinary language of description must be changed, and an idea of it can only be obtained by attending not to its streets but to the net-work of canals which wind among its laies, and the numerous bridges which place them in communication with each other. Beginning then with the canals, the first which claims attention is the Canalazzo or Grand canal, which has a varying breadth of from 100 ft. to 180 ft. and pursues a serpentine course through the heart of the city dividing it into two distinct and nearly equal portions. Both sides of this canal are lined by buildings many of them marble palaces of great magnificence and so close to the water's edge that they are stepped into from the gondolas or water-coaches which are constantly plying about in all directions, and give wondrous animation to the scene. There is one elegant bridge across this canal, the Rialto, which spans it by a single arch of 98 ft., and two tunnel bridges. The other canals branching off from the Canalazzo and from each other are much narrower and shorter, but the bridges across them occur so frequently that no fewer than 306 have been counted. These bridges to give a free passage to the gondolas, have a considerable elevation, and rise so rapidly from both extremities towards the centre that they are rendered passable only by having the roadway formed into steps, the streets consequently become an all but continued series of stairs. In these circumstances it is easy to see that no one thinks of walking when he can reach his destination by a gondola, and that the canals constitute the only true thoroughfares. Next however, in addition to their main entrance by water, have a land-side communicating with a call or lane for foot-passengers. Hence, Venice is not altogether destitute of streets, if its narrow passages can be so named. Most of these, similar localities successive rows of narrow squares occur, where the houses have the disadvantage of not being accessible by the gondola. The ordinary houses are built of brick, and have generally three or four stories. They are seldom lined by arcades, but are for the most part provided with balconies, and have a very shabby appearance, for the sake of which, however convenience is said to be often sacrificed. The larger of them are generally of a square form, with an interior court, to which a cloister for collecting rain-water is never wanting. This water forms the main supply of the city, and in addition to private is collected by 160 public fountains.

The public edifices, though not a few were barbarously demolished during the domination of the French, are still numerous and splendid. The first which claims attention is the ancient palace of the doge, the Palazzo di San Marco, which dates from the 10th century, but was reconstructed in 1854 by the doge Marino Faliero, and has since received many important additions, among others the beautiful entrance called the Porta della Carta. The style of its architecture is Gothic, of a kind to which the name of Oriental or Venetian has been not improperly applied, but in many of the capitals and alterations there is a mixture of Italian, introduced, however, in such a manner as not to impair the unity of the whole. It is in the form of an irregular square, two of its sides resting on double ranges of arches the columns and tracery of which, though necessarily many, have been so skillfully worked, as to have an appearance of airy lightness, particularly around the capitals, which are highly enriched and adorned with groups of allegorical figures. In the interior are a number of beautiful halls, among which the most remarkable are the Sala delle Quadre-Porte, so called from its four symmetrical doors designed by Palladio, with a richly ornamented ceiling and walls covered with stucco by Tintoretto, and paintings by distinguished masters, among others Titian; the Sala del Collegio or presbytery-chamber, where the doge held his court, adorned by national and historical allegories by Paul Veronese; the Sala del Consiglio del Doge, where the fearful tribunal of that name held his sittings; and the Sala del Maggior Consiglio, a vast apartment, 176½ ft. long, 84½ ft. broad, and 61½ ft. high, occupying the greater part of the upper story adorned with splendid paintings, said to be the earliest entire side of the piazza of San Marco; the Orologio, a lofty tower with a sundial clock, in which the hours are struck by gnomonic figures in bronze; the Palazzo del Quarantotto, close to the Rialto bridge, and now converted into the Tribunale d'Appello; the Dogana or custom-house. A massive structure of the early part of the 16th century, with coupled arches and arched piers, covers the arsenal, a vast range of buildings nearly 3 m. in circuit, surrounded by battlemented walls and towers and containing an armory in which are many remarkable armaments, the Palazzo-Possari, Cam-d'Oro, Palazzo-Grimaldi, now the post-office; Palazzo-Pisani, Palazzo Trevisani, Palazzo Manfrin with one of the best private collections of paintings in Venice, various other palaces, the Conservatorio della Carita, now occupied by the academy of painting; six theatres, the public library occupying a handsome marble structure the Zecca or mint, a noble specimen of Italian rustic work by Sansovino; and various establishments of a charitable nature, under the name of Scuole, of which the most deserving of notice, both for the elegance of their buildings, the beautiful paintings which adorn them, and the rich endowments which they once possessed are those of San-Marco and San-Rocco.

THE GRAND CANAL AND DOGE'S PALACE, VENICE.—From Francis Cornhill's Sketch.

specimens of oil painting upon canvas but much injured in its appearance and general effect from having been converted into a museum and a library. The celebrated Ponte de Rialto (Bridge of Lions) connects the palace with the public rooms, a gloomy range on the opposite side of a narrow canal. The edifice next entitled to notice is the church of San Marco, originally the domed chapel and not raised to the dignity of a cathedral till 1817, but justly regarded as one of the grandest and most interesting ecclesiastical structures in Christendom. Its style is mainly Byzantine with an intermixture of Gothic and modern Italian, and its form that of a Greek cross, the nave, 245 ft. and the transept, 211 ft. It is surmounted by five domes, the one in the centre 30 ft., and each of the others 80 ft. in height. The principal front, 170 ft. wide, has 500 splendid columns of precious marbles of diverse sizes and colours, several of them covered with deeply cut Syrian inscriptions and terminate in polished arches surmounted by numerous crosses, statue pinnacles and spires. Standing in the piazza, quite apart from the church is the bell tower the grand and impressive campanila, 323 ft. high, ever interesting as the spot where many astronomical observations were made by Galileo. The external appearance of San-Marco suffers much by the overworking of its ornaments; but in the interior, though everything is gorgeous almost beyond description—resplendent cupolas above, rich and variegated pavement below gold ground mosaic spread over roof and wall in such profusion as to make the whole look as if it were lined with gold—the same feeling of overcrowding is not felt. Among the many other edifices deserving notice either for their architecture or the historical associations connected with them, are the lofty and venerable Gothic church of Santa Maria-Gloriosa-de Frari built in the 15th century filled with magnificent monuments, among which the gorgeous marble structure where now rests the grave of Titian is one of the most remarkable, and adorned with paintings by Titian and Tintoretto; the solemn and majestic church of San-Giovanni-e-Paolo remarkable for its fine painted glass, and the monuments of numerous doges; the church of La-Madonna-dell' Orto, once the richest in Venice, but in a dilapidated state; the church of San-Pietro-di-Castello, with a fine campanile and some good paintings and mosaics; the church of San-Francesco-della-Vigna on a magnificent plan, but only partly finished; the church of the Jesuits, in the theatrical and luxurious style not uncommon in churches of the order; the church of Il Santissimo-Madonasso, built as a votive offering after the staying of the plague in 1576 and regarded as the finest of Palladio's structures; the church of Santa-Maria-della-Salute another votive offering, erected in 1632 after the cessation of a still greater plague particularly distinguished by the boldness of its principal arches and decorated within with many admirable works of art; the Palazzo-Renai, originally the Procuratie Vecchie, standing on 60 arches, and occupying one

The manufactures include a variety of articles, but are not individually of great importance. Among others are woollen cloth, serge, canvas, cordage, cloth of gold and silver, velvet, silk hosiery lace, paste, counterfeits, guns, mirrors, coloured glass, jewelry, wax-work, &c. The printing-presses of Venice, which in early times became celebrated over Europe for the beautiful editions of the classics which issued from them, are still active and send out more works than any other town in Italy. During the middle ages, before the western nations of Europe had devoted themselves to maritime enterprises, Venice naturally became the great mart for the commerce between the East and West. The progress of discovery having opened up new channels, and other causes occurring, the trade rapidly sunk and has at last dwindled down to a mere shadow. Even in its own neighbourhood it is outstripped by Trieste, and the utmost which it can now claim is a share in the trade of the neighbouring sea, and particularly in the Levant. It has been a staple beyond all possible question, being nearly co-extensive with its lagoons but the very despot of the openings in the belt of land which follows them does not exceed 16 ft. at the highest springs and at Malamocco, the most frequented of them, there is a bar upon which the water is never more than 10 ft. The great armaments by which the foreign commerce of modern times is principally carried on are consequently excluded, and though it has been a free port since 1839 both the exports and imports are very insignificant. In 1858 there cleared 816 vessels, tonnage 128,811 besides 894 coasters, tonnage 329,337 and there arrived 876 vessels, tonnage 134,444 besides 894 coasters, tonnage 368,561. In 1854, 8092 vessels, of 805,584 tons, entered and 8062 of 807,861 tons, cleared. The imports include colonial wares, dyewoods, wool, silk, oil, sugar, tallow, cane, iron, salt, fish, &c., and the exports, timber, rice, linen, glass, coral, &c.

Venice is the seat of a R. Catholic patriarch, of whom 11 bishops are suffragans; of a Greek archbishop and an Armenian bishop the residence of a naval commandant, the seat of a superior appeal court, and of several important public offices and possesses various schools, educational, literary, scientific, and artistic. Its history extends over many centuries, and derives great interest from its intimate connection with many of the most important events of which Europe has been the theatre, both in early and in more modern times. Its foundation is attributed to the inhabitants of the surrounding districts, who fled from the cruelty of Attila, king of the Huns, and took refuge among the islands at the mouth of the Brenta. Here, about the middle of the 5th century they founded two small towns called Rialto and Malamocco, and being in a manner shut out from all other modes of expansion, naturally devoted themselves to commerce. In this way they soon became prosperous and their numbers increased so rapidly, that in 897 they made application to the emperor to be erected into a holy polity, and obtained authority to elect a chief, to whom they gave the name of Duke or doge. The town continuing to increase, gradually extended its buildings to the adjacent islands, and at the same time acquired considerable tracts of territory on the main land, then inhabited by the Veneti, from whom the name of city is supposed to have borrowed its name of Venice or Venetia. At a very early period it had begun to trade with Constantinople and the Levant, and though subjected to formidable competition from the Pisans and Genoese, succeeded in engrossing the far largest share of the traffic of the East. The Crusades now commenced, and giving lucrative employment to their shipping in the conveyance of troops and the supplies of war, greatly increased both their wealth and power, and enabled them to make large additions to their territory. In early times the doge had been elected by the popular voice, and held their office by a very precarious tenure, for, in the case of any reverse or general dissatisfaction, from any other cause, they were not only deposed, but often lost their lives, either by open violence or assassination. The disorders thus occasioned rose to such a height in the 13th century that a change in the form of government became necessary. For this purpose the city was divided into six districts, each of which elected two delegates, or 12 in all, these 12 nominated 40 representatives, who constituted in themselves all the powers which had been previously exercised by the popular assemblies. At the same time a senate was appointed, and the doge was provided with a council of six who were nominally to assist, but if so disposed, could easily find means to thwart him. The 40 representatives formed the great council and receiving their appointment annually from 12 delegates chosen by the popular voice, continued in fact, notwithstanding the change in form, to be dependent upon it. The next change, however, was then free. After a severe struggle the 40, in 1319 succeeded in making their office hereditary and thus converted what had previously been a democracy into one of the most rigid forms of aristocracy. The evils of the system soon developed themselves. The 40 now hereditary nobles, became as jealous of each other as they had formerly been of the people and while appropriating all the great offices of the state had recourse to various methods, many of them of the most despotic nature, to prevent any one of the great families from acquiring a preponderant influence. Among these measures the most important was the institution of a council of 10, selected from the great council and subsequently, in 1454, the selection of three state inquirers from the council of 10. These inquirers, in whom all the powers of the state were absolutely vested, justified the name which had been given them, and in the strictness of their proceedings they have been equalled only by the tribunal of the same name established by the cruel bigotry of the Romish church. This rigid despotism had, however the effect of giving a stern unity of purpose to the proceedings of government, and doubtless contributed in some degree to consolidate the various possessions of territory which had been made into one whole. At this period the Venetians were masters of the coast of Dalmatia, and the islands of Cyprus, Candia, and a great part of the Morea, and had almost monopolized the trade of Egypt and the East. The first great attempt to humble Venice was made in the beginning of the 14th century, by the famous league of Cambrai between Pope Julius II the Emperor of Germany and the kings of France and Spain, for the avowed purpose of completely subduing her and partitioning her territories. Dangerous among the considerations more than her own valour, saved her from destruction, but not before most of her possessions on the mainland had been wrested from her. A still heavier blow at her prosperity was struck by the discovery of a new passage to the East, which carried its rich traffic into new channels and dried up one of the main sources of her wealth and strength. The work of destruction was all but completed by expensive and ruinous wars with the Turks, at intervals from 1649 to 1718 during which she lost the Morea, the islands of Cyprus and Candia, and with them the ascendancy which she had long possessed in the Levant. The wisdom of her independence were destroyed in the wars that followed the French revolution, during which she became successively part of the Austrian empire, Napoleon's kingdom of Italy, and the Lombardo-Venetian kingdom under Austria, in which last she continued from 1815 to 1866. Her attempts to regain her independence in 1848-1849 were abortive, but in 1866, in consequence of the misfortune of Austria in her wars with Prussia and Italy the city and province were ceded to Napoleon III. under whose auspices they were united to the kingdom of Italy by a plebiscite. Pop (1867) 118 173. — The province, bounded N.E. by Friuli, N.W. by Treviso, E. by Udine and Gorizia, the Fiume S. and S.E. and E. the Adriatic Sea is productive of all kinds of cereals, hay, maize, rice, wine, hemp, and silk and occupying nearly the whole of the littoral portion of the Lombardo-Venetian kingdom presents the long series of lagoons which stretch nearly due N. from the mouth of the Brenta-Nova to that of the Rile in the old bed of the Piave, for about 25 m. They contain numerous small islands on several of which Venice itself is built, and are separated from the open sea by a long and narrow tongue of land, consisting partly of alluvium brought down by the rivers and sand thrown up by the waves, and intersected by natural or artificial channels giving access to the capital and the coast.

Vol. II

VENICE (GULF OF) See ADRIATIC SEA.

VENICE (LAGOON OF) See VENICE.

VENISSIBOUX, a in France dep. Loire, 60 m. N.W. Grenoble. Pop 3400.

VENLO, a fortified in Holland prov. Limburg 48 m. N.E. Maastricht, 1 bank Meuse. It is closely built, entered by four gates has three market-places, a townhouse, shambles, theatre, two arsenals, and other military buildings, two churches, several hospitals and benevolent institutions and numerous schools manufactures of pipes organs, leather, ale, beer, brandy, vinegar and salt, and a good general trade with Germany. It has been several times besieged. Pop 6518.

VENN-OTTEY, par. King Devon 918 ac. Pop 105.

VENOSA (anc. Venusia), a in Naples, prov. Basilicata 24 m. N. Potenza. It is the seat of a bishop, and has many handsome and interesting edifices both private and public. Among the latter are a splendid cathedral five parish churches, an abbey with a handsome church and several fine monuments, four monasteries, a nursery an hospital, two almshouses, an exchange, a fine aqueduct, and an old castle in ruins. Venus is the birthplace of the poet Horace. Pop 6000.

VENRAJ, or VERAJ, a vil. Holland, prov. Limburg 23 m. N. Rotterdam with a church and two schools. Pop (agricultural) 1695.

VENTA (anc. Venta), a vil. Spain, New Castile, prov. and about 80 m. from Caceres, 1 bank Guadiana with a church and a primary school, manufactures of soap and linen a distillery and two flour mills. Pop 1432.

VENTANA (SIERRA), a mountain, La Plata, prov. and 820 m. S.W. Buenos-Ayres lat. 38° 5' S. It is of quartz formation bare and jagged, and attains a height of 3,000 ft.

VENTANAS-COCHES, a villa AGUILERA, a vil. Spain, New Castile, prov. and 18 m. S.W. Toledo with a church, courtyards, school, and a trade in charcoal. Pop 1200.

VENTIMIGLIA, or VENTIMILLA (anc. Altema Intense), a seaport in France dep. Alpes Maritimes, 23 m. S.E. N. Nice, on the Mediterranean, at the mouth of the Roya. It is surrounded by modern walls, and defended by two forts, but is in general very poorly built. It is the seat of a bishop, has a court of justice, a cathedral, another very ancient church, an episcopal seminary a college two monasteries, a nursery an hospital and several charitable endowments. Pop. 5904.

VENTURIN, or WATZUR, a vil. Casselberg, 7 bank Jallum 20 m. S.E. Casselberg. From its extensive ruins it is supposed to occupy the site of a much larger town, which was once the capital of the valley. Among these ruins are two remarkable buildings, a larger called Venedictus Dei, and a less called Vendictus Dei, and both alike remarkable for the simple and massive style of their architecture and the elaborate skill displayed in their construction. All the blocks employed are of immense size, many of these weighing at least 10 tons and one of the gateway, nearly entire, was covered with ornaments, scrolls, and figures.

VENTNOR, a watering-place, England, in E. shore, Isle of Wight, in the beautiful and picturesque bay of Undercliff. It is mostly of recent origin and has many substantial and handsome houses, an elegant and commodious church, situated on a commanding height, and surrounded by a beautiful spire 103 ft. high. Independent and Wesleyan chapels, a bathing establishment, a show-mall, and a weekly market. Pop. 2609.

148

VENTOUX a mountain-range, France, in the N.E. of dep. Vosges. It belongs to a branch of the Alps, stretches E. to W., and attains a height of 3440 ft.

VENTRY prov. Ind. Kerry, 3439 sq. Pop. 1329.

VENUS (Ponce) the most N point of Isl. Tahiti lat. (figured) 17° 25' 15" S. lon. 149° 29' W. Upon the situation of this point depend most of the geographical positions of islands in the South Sea.

VENÈVE, a vil. and par. Italy Venetia, prov. Friuli, 19 m. N. N. W. Udine, on the Tagliamento, with a parish and several auxiliary churches, and an active trade, particularly in silk. A battle was fought here between the French and Austrians in 1809. Pop. 3380.

VEPT, or WZERNITZ a market tn. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Eisenburg, 4 m. from Szebenitz; with a church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1169.

VERBUDAZA, a vil. Hungary Hither Danube co. Bacs, 12 m. from Komor. with a church, and a trade in corn cattle, and wine. Pop. 3546.

VERA, a tn. Spain, prov. Navarra, r. bank Bidassoa, 40 m. N. Pamplona with a church, elegant townhouse, primary school, and mines of iron, lead, copper, and other metals. Pop. 1764.

VERA, a city Spain, Aduana, prov. and 40 m. N.E. Almaraz, near the Mediterranean. In general, the houses are low and the streets unpaved but clean. There are four squares, and in the principal one, in the centre of the town stands the townhouse. The other public buildings include the parish church, the flesh-market, hospital various schools, suppressed convent with church open for public worship, and two hermitages. Garrucha, a hamlet on the shore, chiefly inhabited by fishermen is the place where goods are landed and shipped, and where there are also warehouses and custom house. Vera has manufactures of soap, saltpetre, oil and potteryware, and of trade in these articles, and in rice, cloths, &c. On the night of November 9, 1818, Vera was entirely destroyed by an earthquake with almost all its inhabitants. It was rebuilt by Charles I. Pop. 10,000.

VERA CRUZ, a maritime dep. Mexican Confederation lat. 17° 56' to 23° 17' N. and consisting of a long and some what narrow belt of territory stretching along the S. W. part of the Gulf of Mexico, and bounded N and S. W. by dep. San Luis Potosi and Queretaro N. Mexico and Puebla S. Oajaca and E. Tabasco greatest length, N. to W. to S. E. nearly 500 m. breadth only about 80 m. area, 37,595 sq. m. The coasts are generally low level and sandy, and the streams which fall into them are either obstructed by bars at their mouths, or navigable for only a short distance. The most important are the Tampico, the San Juan or Alvarado and the Guzmanaco separating Vera-Cruz from Oajaca and Tabasco. Another characteristic feature of the coast is the number of its lagoons. One of these the Tamaguan, in the E., is about 55 m. long, by 80 m. broad, and communicates with the gulf by two mouths, which thus form the island of Tampico. Within the lagoons are the primary islands of Juan-Barruco and El Toro. The lagoons next in size and still farther N. is Tampico, 12 m. long, by 9 m. broad, the largest in the S. is that of Alvarado subdivided into eight smaller lagoons. The interior after the low sandy belt of seashore is passed, begins to rise gradually and becomes either clothed with magnificent forests, or covered with verdant pasture, or spread out in cultivated fields of cane or corn. Its most mountainous region is near the centre, to W. of the capital, where the volcanic peak of Orizaba rises to the height of 17,097 ft. The climate is almost equatorial on the coast, where from May to November yellow fever always more or less prevails but becomes gradual and healthy in the higher and more inland districts. The products, embracing numerous varieties both of the temperate and torrid zone, cannot easily be enumerated, but include among others, maize, barley, and wheat, tobacco, coffee, sugar cane, naranjilla, vanilla, pine-apples, mangoes, bananas, and smaller fruits, dye-woods, and many valuable species of cabinet-wood. The domestic stock, consisting chiefly of horned cattle, and to some extent also of horses and sheep, are so numerous that their value has been estimated at nearly $500,000 sterling. For administrative purposes Vera-Cruz is divided into four dep.—Jalapa, Orizaba, Vera-Cruz, and Ameyuacan; subdivided into 12 dists. Pop. composed of mixed races, chiefly Creoles and Indians, with some Spaniards, foreigners, negroes, and on the coast a considerable number of Mulattoes, 964,735.

VERA-CRUZ, or VELLA CRUZ on the Vera-Cruz, a seaport tn. Mexico, dep. of above dep., on a sandy, marshy, and unhealthy plain on the S. W. shore of the Gulf of Mexico, 165 m. E. Mexico; lat. (San-Juan-de-Ulloa light) 19° 11' 54" N.; lon. 96° 5' W. (L). It presents an imposing appearance from the sea, is defended by the strong castle of San-Juan-de-Ulloa, built upon an island about 3 m. from the shore; and consists of several squares and regular streets, with houses of coral-limestone, sometimes three stories high, flat-roofed, and generally provided with wooden balconies. The principal buildings are 16 churches, of which, however, only six are in use, though the remains of all still remain, and form very conspicuous objects. The government houses which is tolerably handsome, and some dilapidated monasteries. The harbour is more rounded between the town and castle, on the latter of which there is a brilliant revolving light, 79 ft. above the sea is very insecure, having neither good anchorage nor sufficient protection from N. winds, and the trade, though considerable, is rather declining in consequence both of the unhealthiness of the climate, the scarcity of good water and the superior attractions of the rising port of Tampico. Vera-Cruz was founded in the latter part of the 16th century on the spot where Cortes first landed, and obtained the rank and privileges of a city in 1615. Its castle, which completely commands it, was taken by the French in 1829, and by the U. States Americans in 1847. Pop. once about 50,000, now not more than 7000.

THE PRINCIPAL SQUARE, VERA-CRUZ.—From Hotel, Vapora on Wharf.

VERA CRUZ, a vil. Brazil, prov. Bahia, on the island, and about 2 m. behind the town of Itaparica. It contains a church and a primary school.

VERA PAZ, a prov. or corregimiento, Central America, state Guatemala, bounded N and N. W. by the Mexican dep. Yucatan S. W. Solola and Totomucman S. Quetzaltenango and Guatemala, and E. British Honduras, Bay of Honduras, and correg. Chiquimula area, above 3600 sq. m. It has a surface greatly diversified by mountain and valley, and a climate, which though varied is generally temperate and healthy. The soil, which is for the most part excellent, is adapted to almost every species of agriculture, but owing to imperfect cultivation, does little more than furnish subsistence to a comparatively scanty population. Large tracts remain entirely in a state of nature, but give sufficient indications of their capabilities by the Brazil and other dye woods, mahogany rosewood, and other species of valuable timber which they yield; and the cacao, coffee, indigo, and nopal or Cactus opuntia, which are all found growing spontaneously. Its capital is Vera-Paz or Coban. Pop. about 66,000.

VERA-PAZ, a tn. Central America. See COBAN.

VERAGUA, a prov. New Granada, dep. Istmo, having the Central American state Costa Rica N. prov. Panama E., the Caribbean Sea N.E., and the Pacific S. and W. lat. 7° 15' to 9° 40' N. lon. 80° 20' to 82° 50' W. It is mountainous and rugged, covered with vast forests beautifully interspersed with luxuriant and fertile valleys. Some of its highest altitudes are supposed to attain 9000 ft. The climate is extremely humid, and extremely hot. There are numerous and extensive pastures, on which great numbers of cattle are bred. A considerable quantity of gold is obtained in various parts of this province by washing, copper and iron are abundant, and tin and mercury are said to have been found, but very little capital is embarked in the respective works. Veragua was first discovered by Columbus in 1508, and the province was granted to him by the Spanish king, as a reward for his services, with the title of Duke.

VERAGUA (St. Jacinto), esp. above prov., 1 bank Martin, 20 m. S.W. Panama. It is well built; and has a considerable trade in gold-dust, copper, cotton, and dyer. Pop. about 5000.

VERANO, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy, prov. and 16 m. N Milan, with a church, and a trade in corn, wine, silk, and dairy produce. Pop. 1378.

VERAPOLI, a m. Hindoostan, Malabar coast, on a small island in an extensive shallow lake, territory and 7 m. N.E. Cochin.

VERBAS or VERBITA, a river Turkey in Europe, rises in the mountains on the N. frontier of Essegovora flows first N.N.W., then N.N.E., passing Banjeika, forms part of the boundary between Bosnia and Turkish Croatia, and after a course of about 90 m. joins r. bank Sava.

VERBAZ, two places, Hungary:—1, (O, or Old Verbaz), A vil. Elther Danube, co. Bacs, on the Teiskai, 1 m. from Uj Verbaz, with a Greek church and a trade in wheat, wine, and excellent cattle. Pop. 3265.—2, (Uj, or New Verbaz), A vil., co. Bacs, near the former with two churches and a trade in corn, wine, and poultry. Pop. 2810.

VERBENICE, a vil. and com. Austria, Styria, on the l. bank of a river, a quarantine station, and some trade. Pop. 1290.

VERBICARO, a m. Naples, prov. Calabria Citra, V. Paoli. Pop. 3248.

VERBITZ, or VERBANCS, a vil. Hungary co. Liptau, r. bank Waag about 1 m. E. St. Miklos. It has a Protestant church, manufactures of linen, dye-works, and some general trade. Pop. 3000.

VERBU, a market in Hungary, co. and 28 m. N.W. Munkacs, with extensive manufactures of woollen and linen cloth. Pop. 2668.

VERBOVSEKO, a market in Austria, Civil Croatia, on the Dobra, 23 m. W.S.W. Carlsbad. The inhabitants are chiefly employed as carriers, transporting goods by pack horses and oxen to Carlsbad and Pluma. Pop. 1000.

VERCANIA, a vil. and com. prov. and 27 m. N.E. Como, at the N. extremity of the Lake of Como. It has a church, and some trade in milk, wine, and cattle. Pop. 1043.

VERCELLI or VERCELLI (Latin Fercellus) a m. Italy, Piedmont, dep. Var 12 m. S.W. Novara, esp. prov. near r. bank Sesia. It was once surrounded by walls and ramparts, which have been thrown down and converted into fine boulevards, commanding magnificent views of the Alps. It has generally narrow and winding, with a few spacious and handsome streets, a cathedral or Basilica Romana, built by Palladio Tibaldi, in the 16th century, in the best Italian style, the church of St. Andrea, an ancient Gothic structure, with a Renaissance facade, the church of San Cristoforo with some of the best works of Girolamo Favaro several other churches, with good frescoes and paintings, the library attached to the cathedral, and containing a great number of rare and valuable MSS., three monasteries and two nunnages, several of them in elegant buildings, the royal college, and several other important schools, the castle, now converted into courts of justice; a large and richly-endowed hospital, several other hospitals and charitable establishments, extensive cavalry-barracks, &c. The manufactures consist chiefly of silk, linen and cotton goods, ironmongery, articles in brass, bronze, gold, and silver, stone-lime, leather, earthenware, and porcelain; and there are several dye-works, rope-works, silk, flax, and cotton mills. The trade is chiefly in linen and ironmongery, and in rice, which is extensively grown on the plains in the vicinity. Vercelli is the see of an archbishop, and the seat of several important public offices. It boasts of a very high antiquity, and many interesting remains have been found in it. Pop. 19,353.—The province, area, 545 sq. m., is bounded N. by prov. Biella, W. Biella, Ivrea, and Turin; S. Casale and R. Lemania and Novara. The surface in the N. is partly covered by ramifications of the Alps but elsewhere is flat or undulating. It belongs wholly to the basin of the Po, which by the Po on the E., and receives from it the Sesia, augmented by the Silva and Cervo. The soil is generally of great fertility and produces rich crops of corn, hemp, and rice; but the general cultivation of the last makes the districts where it prevails unhealthy. The other principal products obtained are wine and silk. The most important mineral is iron. Administratively the prov. consists of 18 mandamenti, subdivided into 86 communes. Pop. (1859), 125,234.

VERCELLI Boscio a m. Italy Piedmont, dep. Novara, prov. and 4 m. N.E. Vercelli, near l. bank Sesia. It has a court of justice, two parish churches, a palace, occupying the site of the old castle, an elementary school, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 2568.

VERCHERES, a m. Lower Canada, r. bank St. Lawrence, 23 m. below Montreal, with a R. Catholic church, two schools, a grist and saw mill, and several tanneries. P. 1000.

VERD (Gare) Africa. See GARA VERD.

VERDAGELUM, a m. Hindoostan, prov. Carnatic, 50 m. S.E. W. Pondicherry formerly a small and thinly-inhabited place, but having become the seat of the district-court of South Arcot in 1812 it assumed an improved appearance.

In consequence of considerable sums granted by the R. India Company for the erection of public offices and other buildings.

VERDE, several rivers, Brazil, particularly—1, A river prov. Minas-Geraes, rises S.W. of the town of Ajurua, near the source of the Grande, a tributary of the Parana flows continuously first N. and then W. receives the Bapendi, Capivari, and several minor streams and after a course of about 150 m. joins r. bank Nagahid.—2, A riverous river, prov. Minas-Geraes rises in the marshes to the W. of Serra Grão-Mogor and flows N. receiving first several small streams, and then the Guaratuba, by which its volume is doubled. After this junction it proceeds N.W. till joined by the Parana, then W. on the frontier of prov. Bahia, and joins r. bank São-Francisco nearly opposite to the mouth of the Japora and Carimbanha.—3, A river prov. Bahia, which flows N. through extensive plains, and mingles its brackish waters with those of the São-Francisco nearly opposite to the town of Ilhéu-Araújo.—4, A river prov. Goias, rises in the N. slope of the Serra-dos Pirineos, flows N., and joins l. bank Maranhão.—5, A river prov. Mato-Grosso. It takes a northerly direction across the Cordillera of Parana, leaving from left to fall and after a course nearly parallel with that of the Guapore, joins that river on its r. bank about 100 m. from the town of Mato-Grosso, in 18 E. It is navigable about 12 m. above its mouth.

VERDELLI or VERDELLI-MAGGIORIS, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 9 m. S. Bergamo cap. dist. It is well built; has two churches, and the remains of an old castle, a remarkable sepulchral monument, several charitable endowments, and a trade in corn and silk. Pop. 1760.

VERDEN, a to Hanover goz Stadt, esp. duchy of same name, r. bank Aller here crossed by a bridge, 19 m. R.E. Bremen. It is walled, has three gates, and was made the see of a bishop by Christian IV. It contains an old cathedral, one of the finest ecclesiastical edifices of Hanover and several churches, a gymnasium, townhouse, hospital, and barracks and has manufactures of tobacco, some shipping, and a considerable trade. Pop. 4670.

VERDON, a river, France, rises in a branch of the Alps, S.W. Barcelonnette, dep. Lower Alps flows first S.E. to Castellane, then easterly to N., forming part of the boundary between depts. Var and Lower Alps, and joins l. bank Durance a little below Vaison, total course, 110 m., of which 80 m. commanding at Castellane, are used for fisheries.

VERDI, a m. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 21 m. E. Lerida; with a church, apothecary, and primary school; manufactures of linen, and a very large annual fair, which lasts eight days. Pop. 1514.

VERDUN-SUR-GARONNE, a tu. France, dep. Tarn-et-Garonne, 15 m. S.W. Montauban with manufactures of sugar, and tanneries. Pop. 1878.

VERDUN-SUR-LOIRE or sur-Saône [anc. Castrum Verdonum] a tu. and com. France, dep. Saône-et-Loire, at the confluence of the Doubs and Saône, 9 m. N.E. Châtillon-sur-Seine. The whole of the vicinity is surrounded by a double row of dikes, to protect it from the frequent inundations of the two rivers. It has manufactures of tiles and earthenware, linoleum, and oil-works, a trade in bricks, corn, wood-chemicals, fowls, and wine. Pop. 1858.

VERDUN-sur-Meuse [anc. Verdunum], a tu. France, dep. Meuse, is a valley on the Meuse, which here begins to be navigable, 30 m. N.E. Bar-le-Duc. It is surrounded by walls flanked with bastions, and defended by a detached ramp as a fortress of the fourth class; and is divided into two distinct parts by the river, which, within the town, branches off into five separate streams that unite on quitting it. It is generally well built, but several of the streets are steep, and badly paved with flints. The episcopal, separating the town from the chateau, is surrounded with trees, and forms a fine promenade. The principal buildings are the episcopal palace, a large edifice, finely situated on the castle-barracks, and public library. The manufactures consist of sugar-plums, salted grapes, and figs, most of which are famous. There are also woollen and cotton mills, breweries, tanneries, dye-works, and sugar-refineries. The trade is in the above articles of manufacture and variously wine, fruit, oil, nails, &c. Verdun is the seat of a bishop, the seat of a court of first resort and commerce, and possesses a diocesan university, secondary ecclesiastical school, strange banks, museum, and philosophical and philological societies. Pop. 10,538.

VERDUNOIS, an anc. div. France, now included in depts. Tarn-et-Garonne and Haute-Garonne.

VERE, a tu. Holland see VERRE.

VEREBLY, a market tu. Hungary co. Bars, 1. bank Tisza, 12 m. S.E. Neutra. It has a considerable trade in excellent wheat grown in the district. Pop. 1522.

VEREJA, a tu. Russia, gov. and 50 m. W. S.W. Moscow cap. circle, on both sides of the Protra, here crossed by a wooden bridge. It is a very ancient place is defended by a castle, surrounded by a lofty earthen rampart and a deep fosse, and has a cathedral, another stone and wood church, a ducal school, a prison, numerous inns and tile-works and a considerable trade in corn hemp, hemp-oil honey wax, tallow and wool. Pop. (1850) 4920.

VEREA, a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Stuhlweisenberg 4 m. from Velence with two churches, a trade in corn, wine, and timber. Pop. 1073.

VERFEIL [anc. Verule Follens] a tu. France, dep. Haute-Garonne, 12 m. N.E. Toulouse. Pop. 2186.

VERGARA, a tu. Spain. See VERGARA.

VERGHAN, a city U. States, Vermont, at the head of navigation on the Otter Creek, 7 m. from its entrance to Lake Champlain, 23 m. S. Burlington with three churches, several mills, and manufactures of iron wooden stuffs, and leather. The river is here 500 ft. wide and navigable by the largest vessels on the lake. Pop. 1878.

VERGHERTO a vil. and comp. Florence, on a narrow strip of the Apennines, about 5 m. from Regno. It has a church school, an old castle, and a trade in cattle. P. 1246.

VERIA, a tu. European Turkey 35 m. W. Salonica. Some cotton weaving and dyeing are carried on, and considerable quantities of fruit are raised in the vicinity. Pop. 3000.

VERKHOTURIE, a tu. Russia, gov. and 200 m. E.N.E. Perm, cap. circle, agreeably situated, 1 bank Tura, a little E. of the Ural Mountains. It is an ancient place, surrounded by wooden walls and towers and has five churches, two monasteries, an old castle, a house several manufactures, and a considerable trade with Siberia. Pop. 8000.

VERLAINE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 15 m. W. S.W. Liège, on the Yenne. It has a brewery, and a trade in corn and wool. Pop. 1251.

VERMADON, an ancient dist. France, which formerly belonged to prov. Picardy, and is now included in dep. Aisne, and a small part of dep. Somme. Its cap. was St. Quentin.

VERMELHO or BRANCO, a large stream, S. America. It rises in Bolivia, prov. Tarija, flows with a very winding course S.E. across the N. part of La Plata, traversing El Gran-Chaco, and falls into the Paraguay about 80 m. above the junction of the Paraná. Its chief affluent is the Uruguay or Rio-Grande-de-Lavayon, on the right. A great part of its course, including windings about 1400 m. long, is through a sandy, sterile country. It has been descended in a boat from Oran, a small town in the department of Salta, to its mouth, about 1200 m.

VERMELHO, a river, Brazil, rises in the mountains S.E. of the town of Goyas, which it traverses without being navigable; receives numerous small streams, and after a N.W. course of about 240 m. joins r. bank Araguaia.

VERMONT, a tu. France, dep. Yonne, 15 m. S.E. Auxerre, r. bank Cure. It has a considerable trade in the wine extensively grown in the district, and wood, which comes from Morvan, and is floated down to Paris by the Seine and the Seine. Pop. 2171.

VERMONT one of the U. States of N. America; lat. 43° 50' to 46° N.; lon. 71° 58' to 73° 25' W., and bounded, N. by Lower Canada, W. New York, from which it is partly separated by Lake Champlain, S. Massachusetts and N. the Connecticut river, separating it from New Hampshire; length, N. to S. 187 m., breadth 61 m., area, 10,215 sq. miles; it is for the most part hilly and mountainous, being traversed by the Green Mountains, which give the state its name, and, entering from Massachusetts, stretch across it centrally S. to N. They attain their greatest heights in the N.W., where Camel's Hump, midway between Burlington and Montpelier is 4180 ft., and Mansfield Mountain a few miles further N. is 4280 ft. The drainage is shared between Lake Champlain and the Connecticut. The latter receives its supplies from the E. slope of the mountains by numerous streams, of which the most important are the Otter River, Quechey, White River, and Passumpsic, the former, which, in the N. where it is widest, contains several large islands, forms a long expanse of 123 m., narrowing as it proceeds S. from 16 m. to 3 m. receives, among other streams, the Missisquoi, La Moelle, Otter River and Otter Creek, and discharges itself into the St. Lawrence by the Sorrells. Another lake, the Memphremong 30 m. long, though chiefly in Canada, belongs partly to Vermont. The soil is generally fertile consisting, more especially in the valleys, of a deep, dark loam, well adapted for grain, the higher lands are most commonly employed in grazing. The climate, though generally healthy has a very wide range of temperature, rising in summer to 84° and sinking in winter as low as 30° below zero. The snow lies from the middle of December to the middle of March, and on the hill-sides is often from 4 ft. to 6 ft. deep. Nearly three fourths of the inhabitants are employed in farming and grazing and manufactures are chiefly confined to a few coarse articles as woollens, linens, &c.

The foreign trade, which has its only direct outlet at Burlington, on Lake Champlain is very limited, but the internal and transit trade is considerable, and has recently been much increased by the opening of lines of railroad for above 500 m. The principal religious denominations are Baptists, Congregationalists, and Methodists; but R. Catholics and Protestant Episcopalians are also numerous. The means of education, though considerable, are far short of those provided by Massachusetts and New York. For the higher branches, the universities of Vermont and Norwich, and Middlebury college, are the chief institutions. In 1850 the public school districts were 2647, and the number of scholars 95,616. The government is vested in a governor executive council, senate, and assembly, all elected annually by universal suffrage. Montpelier is the capital. Vermont was first settled at Fort Dummer by emigrants from Massachusetts, and became a member of the Union in 1791 after the state of New York, which made a claim to the territory had renounced it for a payment of £20000. Pop. (1850) 118,611.

VERNANTE, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, dist. Cui, 3 m. N.W. Lione. It has a parish church, a public school, and an hospital. Pop. 3171.

VERNAZZA a vil. Italy, Piedmont, prov. Lavagna, on the side of a rugged rock jutting into the sea. It has a church a convent, and the ruins of an old castle. The salt-guar Quindio Vernazza was here built. Pop. 1075.

VERNE, a vil. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. Minden, circle Bielefeld. It consists of three distinct parts, and has a R. Catholic parish church. Pop. 1853.

VERNEUIL (anc. Fernovium) a tu. France, dep. Eure, in a valley watered by the Arre and a branch of the Ron, 36 m. S.S.W. Evreux. It contains some fine specimens of Gothic architecture, among others the donjon of the castle, known by the name of Tour-Grise, on the bank of the Arre; and the church of Madeleine, with a magnificent tower richly sculptured. The manufactures consist of coarse homely druggs, flannel, ironmongery, nails, and earthenware. The trade is in hemp and linen cloth, wool, and leather for bookbinding. Pop. 3480.

VERANO, a vil and com. Tuscan, comp. and about 24 m. from Florence, with two churches, and an old castle. Pop. 2998.

VERNON (anc. Vernovium) a tu. France, dep. Eure, 15 m. N.E. Evreux, r. bank Seine, here crossed by a wooden bridge of 23 arches, communicating with the suburb of Verneuil. Its ancient timber framed houses give it a venerable air, but it is in general very poorly built, and has narrow winding streets. It contains a handsome Gothic church, partly of the 13th and partly of the 16th century; a tall and massive tower closed among the historical monuments of France, and a communal college, and has manufactures of plaster and chalk, and a trade in corn flour, wine, and building stone. Outside the town, approached by a fine avenue, stood the Chateau-de-Bly, one of the finest seats in Normandy destroyed at the Revolution, and replaced by a plain modern mansion, in which the late Louis Philippe often used to reside. 1 3863

VERNON ISLES, three isle lying in the centre of the W entrance of Clarence Strait N.W. Australia lat. 12° 5' S, lon. 151° E

VERNOUX, a tu. France, dep. Ardèche, 11 m. N. Pri vas with a communal college and secondary ecclesiastical school silk-mills and tanneries, and a trade in woollens extensively manufactured in the surrounding districts. P. 1646

VEROCZE, or Vasovitz, a market in Austria, Civil Servantia, cap. of its name, on the Rana, 66 m. W. N. W. Kom, in a fertile and well wooded district. It has a large and handsome castle, and a Franciscan monastery. Pop. 4111.—The country is bounded, N. by con Slavagh and Baranya, E. Bacs and Syrmia, S. Military Servantia, and so Poega, and W. generally Wraetadin greatest length, W. N. W. to E.S.E., 100 m. greatest breadth, 39 m. The surface, though somewhat mountainous in the S.W. is generally level but marshy prairies, in many places unhealthily. It is well watered, having the Drava for its N. boundary and the Danube on a part of the E. and the soil is generally fertile, producing heavy crops of corn, maize, hemp, flax, and tobacco. Fruit also is abundant, and a good deal of wine produced. The pastures are both extensive and rich and rear great numbers of cattle. Pop. 120,000

VEROLA, two nearly contiguous places Italy Lombardy —1 (Nerves), A vil and com. prov. and 21 m. S. Brescia, on the Strove. It is well built, has a court of justice, a parish church and a trade in corn, hay and flax. Pop. 4399 —2 (Verola) A vil and com. about 1 m. W. of the former with a trade in corn silk, and cattle. Pop. 3198

VEROLENGO a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, 47 and 18 m. N.E. Turin. It consists of a principal street lined with ancient porticoes, and five minor streets, which open into it, and has three churches and a sanctuary. Pop. 4761

VEROLI, a tu. Italy deleg. and 6 m. S.E. Frosinone. It occupies the site of the ancient Verulan, and is the see of a bishop. Pop. 8000

VEROMILIS (Rax) a vil and com. Ital. Sardina, div Cagliari, 9 m. N.N.E. Oristano, with a trade in corn cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 1566

VEROVA, a tu. kingd. of Italy, gov. and 68 m. W. Venice, with which it is connected by railway exp. 1860. Beautifully situated where the last slopes of the Alps merge into the plains of Lombardy, on both sides of the Adige, which traverses the town in a wild and rapid torrent, and is crossed by four noble bridges. The fortifications, constructed by Sardinia, were of great strength, till dismantled by the French, in virtue of an article in the treaty of Lunéville, but the town is still surrounded by lofty walls flanked with towers and bastions, and is watered by five gites, of which those called Porto-di-San-Steo or Del-Pallo, Porto-Nuova, and Porto-di-San-Zeo, are five structures, remarkable alike for solidity and beauty. Few towns surpass Verona in the richness of its environs, and the majestic appearance which it presents at a distance; and the street by which it is approached, though short, is of great width and magnificence. Many other streets are lined by splendid mansions, particularly rich in marble decorations and these are several elegant squares, of which the Piazza-Bra, the Piazza del Signori, the Piazza-del-Erba, and the Piazza-Vecchio are most deserving of notice. The public buildings are numerous, and include magnificent specimens of the architecture of the Romans and of the middle ages. The principal Roman structure is the amphitheatre, occupying one side of the Piazza-Bra. It is of vast dimensions, and still to entire in all its parts that it can scarcely be called a ruin. It is in the form of an ellipse, the transverse axis of which is 510 ft. and the conjugate 410 ft., and excepting portions on which the wallings of the outer circuit rested, is wholly of marble. About 25 000 persons might have been accommodated in it. The ecclesiastical buildings include 40 churches, all of them more or less remarkable for their architecture or the objects of interest they contain. Among others are the Duomo or cathedral, premining one of the most perfect specimens of what has been called the Lombard Romanesque, with a magnificent portal, the columns of which rest on colossal griffins of red marble; the church of San Zeno, similar in style to the Duomo with an equally magnificent portal; a fine campanile, and a remarkably fine crypt. San-Fermo-Maggiore, a large and ancient structure, with a lofty porch a bold Gothic interior and a curious and richly ornamented wooden roof; San-Fermo, with some remarkable monuments; Santa-Eufemia, with fine frescoes and paintings; San-Sebastiano, with a magnificent front after the designs of Berninelli, and many fine sculptures and San-Giovanni-in-Valle, with two very remarkable Christian tombs of an early date. The other more important edifices are the Palazzo-Publico, a noble building, lined by a long range of rustic arches placed opposite to, and harmonizing well with the amphitheatre, the palace of the Scaligeri, the lords of Verone, now converted into municipal buildings from the midst of which a huge campanile rises to the height of more than 800 ft. the Palazzo-del-Consiglio, ornamented with busts of distinguished natives of the town, including among others, Catullus, Cornelius Nepos, Pliny the younger and Vitruvius the Palazzo-della-Ragione or courts of justice, with a fine Latin library, the Casa-del-Mercato, with a statue of the Virgin by Campeggio, and fine but greatly faded frescoes of Campeggio, the bishop's palace, almost Oriental in its style; the Castello Vecchio, a vast and solid structure fronting over the city the Museo-Lapidario, with a valuable collection of antiquities; the Museo-Florentino, the public library attached to the cathedral the opera with a fine fabled portion, several magnificent fountains, and the temple of the Bellini, consisting of a series of richly sculptured pyramids perfectly unique of their kind. The manufactures consist chiefly of silk, wool, linen and glass, hosiery, leather soap, earthenware, and chocolate. There are also numerous silk mills, a considerable trade in the above articles of manufacture, and in silk, grain, rice, oil, and enamel, two weekly markets and two annual fairs, each of which lasts 15 days. Verona is the seat of a bishop, the seat of several superior courts and public offices and possesses numerous institutions, literary, scientific, artistic, educational and benevolent. It is supposed to have been founded in the 4th, and to have been subjected to the Romans in the 3d century before the Christian era. It afterwards rose to great importance, and was adorned by numerous magnificent structures, of which the amphitheatre still presents a distinguished specimen. On the decline of the Roman Empire, it was taken by the Goths, and made by Theodoric the capital of his empire. In 774 it was taken by Charlemagne, and so long as the power of the emperors in Italy lasted took a lead among the Italian cities. It afterwards became an independent republic, but the library and the town of its name which ruled it with despotic sway passed through the hands of various masters, and at length, weary of the vicissitudes to which it had been subjected voluntarily ceded itself to Venice, under which it remained till 1797. During the French domination it was annexed to their kingdom of Italy. Verona is celebrated for the beauty of its environs. Pop. 50,000.—The province, in the W of gov. Venice, is bounded N by the Tyrol, E. by the Venetian and Padua, S.E. by the Mantua, and W. by the Mantua and Lake Garda area, 507 sq. mi. The surface is the N and the vicinity of Lake Garda mountains, but becomes flat between the Mantua on the W and the Adige on the E. In the S.W. and S. it is very fertile though somewhat marshy in the latter direction. The principal products are corn, rice, fruit, silk, fax, hemp, oil, and wine. The pastures are rich, the forests abound with game, and both Lake Garda and the rivers are well supplied with fish. The principal minerals are copper and numerous varieties of marble, several of which are very beautiful. Administratively the province is divided into 15 districts. Pop. (1846) 502,902.

THE MARKET PLACE, VERONA
From T. M. Richardson's Sketches in Italy, &c.

VERPOLETH, a market town in Hungary co. and 6 m. from Havas, with distillery, and a trade in excellent tobacco grown in the vicinity. Pop. 1519.

VERREA, a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, div. and 18 m. E.S.E. Aosta, traversed by the Evron, which here joins a bank Dora, and is crossed by a handsome modern bridge. It has a court of justice, a church, a monastery, a public school, a castle, and manufactures of iron. Pop. 1132.

VERRUA, a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. and 21 m. N.E. Turin, with a church, and a strong castle, so advantageously situated, that though it has repeatedly been besieged, it has never been taken except by surprise. Pop. 2003.

VERSAILES, a tn. France, cap. dep. Seine-et-Oise, is a plain, 11 m. S.W. Paris, with which it is connected by railway it may be regarded as a town of royal construction, having risen up regularly, and with great magnificence, under the auspices of the sovereigns of France, particularly Louis XIV., who made it the seat of his court, and lavished immense sums on its embellishment. It is justly regarded as one of the handsomest towns in Europe, though the magnitude of its mansions, and the great extent of space occupied by them compared with the population, give it a dull, monotonous, and half-deserted appearance. It is built with the greatest regularity. The houses are almost all elegant and of a uniform height, and the streets, which are remarkably spacious, follow the direction of the four cardinal points, intersecting each other at right angles, and are adorned with numerous fine fountains. It is traversed by three finely planted avenues, which meet in an extensive square, called the Place d'Armes, separated from which by an extensive court is the palace, the most conspicuous edifice in the town. It was built by Louis XIV. under the superintendence of Mansard and Le Brun, who have displayed all their talents in its embellishment. The garden bordering the place is perhaps the pleasant part of the building, consisting partly of a terrace of brick, forming part of the original chateau, and contrasting awkwardly with the more modern wings. The principal apsis is on the other side, toward the garden and park. It has a length of 900 paces, a height of three stories, and is decorated throughout with balustrades, columns, and statues also imposing as a whole, and beautiful in detail. The galleries and saloons are of great size and splendour, and all that money, labour, skill, and the highest art could accomplish, have been employed in adorning them. It ceased to be a royal palace at the Revolution of 1793, and was rapidly falling into decay, when the late Louis Philippe happily conceived the idea of diverting it from its original use, and converting it into a kind of national museum. Accordingly numerous small apartments, formerly occupied by court and state functionaries, have been converted into a few spacious halls, and the whole palace filled with an immense collection of statues and paintings intended to represent all the principal personages and events connected with the French monarchy, from Clovis downwards. The other buildings in Versailles chiefly deserving of notice are the cathedral, the Hotel-de-Ville, prefecture, college, theatre, public library of 48,000 volumes, and civil and military hospital. The manufactures are chiefly tallow and wax candles, potato-flour, silk, and glass, the trade is in corn, straw, fruit, etc. Versailles is the seat of a bishop, the seat of a court of finance, and commerce, and possesses a diocesan seminary, and secondary ecclesiastical school, and a college. The park of Versailles, both in extent and embellishment is a complement of the palace, attracts crowds of visitors. Pop. (1852) 29,131.

VERSCHELTZ, VERSCHELTZ, or VERSCHELTZ, a tn. Hungary, Banat, co. Temes, 41 m. S. Temesvar. It is walled and otherwise fortified; and has an elegant Greek church with two towers, a Greek gymnasium high school, hospital, large barracks, manufactures of silk, and a trade in silk, wine, and rice. (1846) 18,100.

VERSEZT, a tn. Hungary, co. Vascomar. VERSMOLD, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, 24 m. F.N.E. Münster with a church, manufactures of linen and tobacco, and a trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 1391.

VERSOLX, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 6 m. N. Geneva, S.W. shore of Lake of Geneva. It was founded in the middle of the 18th century by Louis XV. with the view of carrying off the trade of Geneva. It was regularly laid out, and has several handsome houses. Pop. 765.

VERTAISON, a tn. France, cap. Puy-de-Dôme, 10 m. E. Clermont, with the ruins of an ancient castle of the counts of Auvergne. Pop. 2366.

VERTLES, a vil. Hungary, Tithier Themas, co. Bihar, 1 m. from Lota, with two churches, a salt-petre refinery, and a trade in corn, mules and cattle. Pop. 1393.

VERTOVA, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy, prov. and 13 m. N.E. Bergamo, a bank Serio with a beautiful and picturesquely situated and richly decorated parish church, a Capuchin convent, a ruined castle; several forges and silk-works, and woollen manufactures. Pop. 1748.

VERTVINS (anc. Verduan) a tn. France, dep. Marne, 17 m. W.S.W. Châlons. It is very poorly built. Its trade is in red wine produced in the district. Pop. 2313.

VERTVIER, a tn. Belgium, prov. and 14 m. E.S.E. Liège, on the Vesdre, here crossed by a handsome bridge, and on the railway from Liège to Aix-la-Chapelle. It is divided into a high and a low town, and though containing several handsome houses, is in general ill built, in narrow and irregular streets. Its principal buildings are the churches of St. Maurice, St. Joseph, and Notre-Dame, the Hotel-de-Ville, and the theatre. It possesses several law-overs, a chamber of commerce, industrial, free, and other schools, numerous hospitals, and benevolent institutions. The great staple is broad-cloth, in which it is not surpassed. The number of hands employed in the town and neighbourhood is at least 40,000, and the annual produce is 100,000 pieces, valued at $1,000,000 sterling, and largely exported. The other manufactures are cotton, leather, soap, twine, and sheet-lead, besides dye-works, filling-mills, brickworks, linoleum, &c. Vertviers existed as early as the 7th century. Its fortifications, once strong, were demolished by Louis XIV. Pop. 26,071.

VERTVINS (anc. Verduan), a tn. France, dep. Aisne, 23 m. N.E. Laon. It rises up a hill in the form of an amphitheatre; and has a communal college, and an hospital, with a chapel, in which are some fine paintings; manufactures of woodens and homes, cambric, paper, and earthenware; and a trade in linen and hemp. Pop. 3510.

VERWICK, par Wales, Pembrokeshire, 5062 sq. P. 578.

VERVAN par Eng. Cornwall, 5827 sq. Pop. 1488.

VERZUOLO a in Italy Piedmont, prov and 4 no. S. Saluzzo. It has two parish churches, a public school, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 8901.

VERZUOLO, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov and 7 no. N. E. Cremona, between the Olfo and the Dalmone, with a ruined castle, and a trade in corn, oil, and cattle. P. 2181.

VERZURE, a river rises in the W. of Rhodan Fruscia, near Expan enters Belgium flows E past Lohburg and Verriere, and joins R bank Ourthe a little above Liège. Its course is about 33 m.

VERZURE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div Alessandria, prov Aosta near Bobbio I bank Bormida, here crossed by an ancient bridge. It has four churches, and the remains of an ancient castle. Pop. 1156.

VERZURE (anc. Vesvure) a town France, cap dep. Haute-Saône, 195 m. S.E. Paris. It is generally well built, in wide, regular well-paved and clean streets, and has a parish church with a fine altar, a handsome townhouse, courthouse, a normal and agricultural school, a communal college, theatre, cavalry-barracks, civil and military hospital, manufactures of calico, druggs, hosiery, and turnery, wax-refineries dye works, and tanneries, and a trade in corn, wine, groceries, iron nails, leather and salt. Pop. (1809) 6668.

VERZURE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont div and 7 no. S.E. Novara, with two parish churches and an old castle. Pop. 1836.

VERZURE, a seaport in Sweden ldn and 76 m. N. Kalmar on a peninsula in a bay of the Baltic. It is well built and has a handsome church, a good harbour building-yards, and a considerable import trade in salt and exports of wood and metals. Pop. 2023.

VERZURE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div Turin near Borgomasino on the W. slopes of Mount Masino with ruined walls, a parish church, and a manor. Pop. 1840.

VERZURE, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov and 4 no. N. E. Brescia near R. bank Chiese with a ruined castle, which figures much in the early Italian wars extensive iron works, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1272.

VERZURE, a volcanic mountain Naples, opposite to the bay and 10 m. S.E. of the city of Naples. In approaching it from the W. a slope rising gradually from the shore till it attains the height of 3800 ft above the sea is first ascended. This slope, which is about 3 m. long by 3 m. broad, embraces the volcanic cone, which stands nearly in its centre, and rises from it as a base at a nearly uniform angle of 32° for an additional 1800 ft, making the total absolute height above sea-level 5600 ft. The cone does not terminate in a point, but is truncated so as to leave a summit of about 2000 ft. in diameter. As recently as 1838 this summit presented the form of an uneven plane but an eruption afterwards took place which completely changed its appearance, converting what had been solid plain into a hollow cup with an outer rim, varying in breadth from 400 ft. or 500 ft. on its W. side to not more than 50 ft. in other parts and with an internal surface sloping gradually to a depth of about 500 ft. To the S. beyond the cone and its ascending plain, called Atrodo, Cavallo, is a lofty mural precipice, forming an arc of a circle 1400 ft. high, and 3 m. long, known by the name of Monte Somma. Though precipitous as a wall where it faces the cone, the outer side of Monte Somma slopes gradually at an angle of about 38°.

The lower part of the sloping plain, forming a belt along the shore about 3 m. broad is well cultivated and laid out in vineyards though intersected every few rods or two by lines or terraces of black calcined matter resembling the scoriae of a smelting-furnace, and easily tossed upwards towards the central cone from which they have obviously descended in molten lava streams. Higher up, beyond the well-cultivated belt, the whole plain becomes very rugged and covered with scoriae, while the lava terraces already mentioned are seen branching off from the cone with sharp steep sides like those of an embankment, and heights varying from 30 ft. to 80 ft. The scoriae are of all forms and sizes, sometimes forming groups masses 8 ft. to 10 ft. on their sides and sometimes as small as hazel-nuts. The whole space covered by these black jagged masses is the most desolate imaginable. The cone itself consists externally of loose sand composed of scoriae, blocks of lava, and volcanic sand, and has obviously assumed its shape by following the natural law of gravitation the successive showers and streams thrown out by the crater first falling thick around its edges, and then descending gradually till the declivity becomes so small as to allow them a resting-place. In this way a succession of layers are formed and piled up like a pyramid. The regularity of the pyramid has, however been modified, mainly by two causes. First, the lava has not always flowed from the summit of the crater, but has sometimes burst out from its sides nearly level down and sometimes at the distance of 1 m. or 2 m. from its base thus forming a number of minor or parasitic cones. The second great cause of modification is the internal force of the volcano acting on the external crust before it has become completely cooled and solidified. It has been found that currents of lava, in ascending, remain continuous only where the angle of inclination does not exceed 3°, and at any higher angle break up into masses of scoriae. Solid masses of continuous lava are traced up the cone to its very edge at an angle of 30°, and as in its original descent the angle of inclination could not have been more than 3°, it has been inferred that the much higher angle at which they now stand must have been caused by a movement of elevation from within. Monte Somma, which is about 1 m. from the centre of the present cone, is supposed to have formed part of a cone of far larger dimensions and probably of comparatively larger height, which once had its circle complete, and consequently a diameter of not less than 4 m. at its base. This original cone had, with the exception of the part now remaining, been subsequently thrown down by the volcanic force, and destroyed in a manner similar to that in which 600 ft. of the present cone was actually carried away by an eruption in 1827. Geologists think they have discerned a difference in the structure and composition of Somma and of the existing cone the fragmentary and stony matter of the former being much more so and crystalline, and spread out in much broader sheets, and it has hence been inferred that Somma, like other traps, has been formed under great pressure at the bottom of the sea, and was in fact a submarine and not a Vesuvius a true aerial volcano. The inference derives strong confirmation from the fact, that the beds of Somma are found to pass under the marine shelly tuffs which form the surface of the plain of Naples. The earliest eruptions of Vesuvius are lost in remote antiquity and no symptoms of its activity had been evinced within the memory of man till A.D. 63, when an earthquake damaged many of the surrounding cities. In 79 it again began to show symptoms of activity, and immediately thereafter sent forth the terrible eruption which buried the cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii. A graphical description of it is extant in a letter by the younger Pliny to Trajan. A succession of eruptions followed, more especially in 808, 473, 512, and 983, but were not attended with any flow of lava, the ejected matter consisting apparently only of stones, ashes, or volcanic sand, and fragments of older lava. The first recorded discharge of liquid lava took place in 1034. Since then various eruptions some of them extremely violent, have occurred. Among others may be specified those of 1779, 1793, 1834, 1838, 1847, 1850, and 1855.

VERZURE, a vil. Hungary co. Arva, on the frontiers of Galicia, about 34 m. from Alco-Kubin with a church, and a trade in cattle and flax. Pop. 1823.

VERZURE, or Wesprim, a in Hungary, cap. co. of same name beautifully situated near Lake Balaton, among vineyards, partly in a valley on the S. and partly on a lofty and steep limestone-rock 24 m. W. S. W. Stralsburg. It is the see of a bishop, and the seat of several important public offices and has a cathedral, a Flakung gymnasium with valuable library, a bishop's palace, finely situated on a hill beside a ruined castle a synagogue, hospital, and orphan asylum, and a trade in salt and wax, particularly the latter. Pop. 10 060.

The court is bounded, N by the Oedenburg and Raab; N. E. Komorn; E. Stralsburg; S. Tolna, Sümegh, and Szekes; and W. Eisenburg. Length, N. W. to S. E. 75 m. breadth about 50 m. is occupied in its centre by the Bakonyer-Wald, and in the S. by part of Lake Balaton. The soil is fertile, and the minerals include among others coal and alum.

Pop. 152 000.

VETLUGA a river. Smola, rises to the W of gov. Vladik, discharges Kostroma flows very circuitously W., then S. past the town of Vetluga, and turning S.E., joins L. bank Volga. Its course, about 500 m., is chiefly through vast forests. Its principal affluents are the Voksha, Kobosha, and Usta.

VETRALIA, a tn. Papal States, diag. and 6 m. E. W. Viterbo. Pop. 1000.

VETSCHAU, a m. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. and 45 m. S. W. Frankfurt-on-the-Oder on an arm of the Spree, with two churches, a castle, manufactures of linen, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1420.

VEVAY (Sermes, Vime, anc. Vidocum) a tn. Switzerland, cant. Vaud, beautifully situated at the N. E. margin of the Lake of Geneva, 11 m. S. E. Lausanne. It is regularly built, in the form of a triangle, and has spacious streets, and a large market-place lined on three sides by handsome buildings and on the fourth planned so as to form a fine promenade. The principal buildings are two churches, one of them on a lofty height above the town, surrounded with trees, and containing the tomb of Laillou, one of the regicides of Charles I, the town museum (Kormen), with 18 marble-pillars, the townhouse, and hospital. As an entrepot for the surrounding districts, Vevay has a considerable transit trade. The beauty of the town and neighbouring straits many foreign residents. Pop. (1850) 5001.

VEVAY a vil. U. States, Indiana, cap. co. Switzerland, pleasantly situated on the Ohio, 88 m. S. E. by Indianapolis. It was settled by a colony from Switzerland, with a view to the cultivation of the vine and has many neatly built brick houses, a courteous academy and jail. The wine produced resembles claret. Pop. about 1500.

VÉVÉRE, a river. France, rises near Chalamont, dep. Ain flows first N., then W. and joins L. bank Saône a little below Mâcon, after a course of about 60 m.

VEVRE, or VAYAN-MORVAN, a tn. France, dep. Puy-de-Dôme, 9 m. S. E. Châtelle, was some time wine. P. 1845.

VEZÈRE, two rivers. France — 1. (Vidre Proper) Formed by the union of several streams dep. Corrèze flows S. W. past Lazerin, and joins L. bank Dordogne at Lampert, after a course of nearly 120 m. After receiving the Corrèze it becomes navigable — 2. (Weste Vidre) Rises in the N. W. of dep. Corrèze flows S. W., and joins L. bank L. d. d., 6 m. above Perpignan after a course of about 50 m.

VEZIN a vil. and com. Belgium gov. and 9 m. E. N. E. Namur, on the Meuse, near the confluence of the Somme with a blast furnace, an oil and three flour mills. Pop. 1184.

VEZIR-KOCHI or KARA KALAN, a tn. Austria Turkey, gash. Straz, 42 m. W. S. W. Scutaria. It is divided into quarters, sometimes separated by party walls and has Armenian and Greek churches, several mosques, and a bazouk or covered market, for silks and fine goods. Pop. about 5000.

VEZON a vil. and com. Belgium prov. Hainaut, 24 m. W. Mons with an agricultural pop. of 1350.

VEZOUZE, a river. France formed by two streams from the W. slope of the Vogues, dep. Morille flows W., and joins L. bank Meurthe, after a course of nearly 45 m.

VEZZA a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 66 m. N. E. Bergamo, on the Veduggio, here crossed by a handsome bridge with an elegant carriage manufacture of ironware, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1400.

VEZZA, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy gov. Cont. prov. Alba, on a lofty hill with several churches, a public school, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 2125.

VEZZANO a tn. Sardinia States, prov. and 15 m. E. Levante, at the confluence of the Vare and Magra. It is partly walled and has two parish churches. Pop. 2638.

VIA MALLA a remarkable defile, Switzerland, cant. Grisson, S. W. Coire, through which the Rhin flows, and along which the road to the Spilggen Pass, Sw. has been cut. It is about 4 m. long. The road crosses the Rhin several times at so great a height, that the noise of the tumbling stream below is scarcely heard, while the rocks in some places form a wall on either side 1600 ft. high, and not more than 30 ft. apart.

VIA MANDA a tn. and com. Italy, Venezia, gov. Veneto, prov. and 30 m. S. W. Mantua, near L. bank Po. It is well built with principal street lined by arcades; and has 14 churches, an old castle, a gymnasium, elementary school, a theatre, several benevolent institutions, manufactures of or silks and fine linen, ordinary and merino leather, various distilleries, and an important trade in corn. Pop. 8500.

VIADENHOS, a mountain-range, Brasil, prov. Goyas, between the Maranhão and the Purucas. Its culminating point, which overtops the pass called Chapada dos Viadinhos, is bare and very lofty.

VIAGRANDE, a m. Italy, prov. and 8 m. N. N. E. Catania, on the S. E. slope of Etna. Pop. 8000.

VIA MAO — 1. A lake, Brasil, prov. São-Pedro-do-Rio-Grande. It stretches N. to S. over a large space between the mouth of the Jacobi and the Lake of Patos; and besides the Jacobi, receives on the N. the navigable Rio, Cahi, Gravatahi, and a great number of small streams. It contains some islands, and being deep, is navigated by briggs. — 2. A vil. and par. Brasil, prov. São-Pedro-do-Rio-Grande, on the E. shore of the above lake, about 18 m. E. E. Porto-Alegre with a magnificent church. Pop. (dec.) 3816.

VIANA, a tn. Spain, prov. Navarra, 46 m. S. W. Pampluna, L. bank Ebro with a large courthouse, two primary schools for each sex, two churches, and three hermitages some cattle-rearing three off and two flour mills. Pop. 2603.

VIANDEN a tn. Holland duchy and 26 m. N. E. Luxemburg on both sides the Ome, here crossed by a bridge, near the Prussian frontier, with a church, a townhouse, and a cattle manufacture of glue, tanneries, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1280.

VIANEN a tn. Holland, formerly fortified, prov. S. Holland, 7 m. S. Utrecht, L. bank Lek, with a townhouse, prison, two churches, orphan and old man and old women's hospitals, a town's and several other schools. Pop. (agricul. tural) 2293.

VIANNA two places, Portugal — 1. A tn. and seaport, prov. Minho, 9 m. W. Ponte-de-Lima, near the mouth of the Lima. It is surrounded by ancient walls flanked with towers, and defended by a castle and has two churches, two hospitals and a small harbour admitting vessels of 150 to 300 tons. It is said to have been founded by Colin Gauls, nearly three centuries before the Christian era. Pop. 6790 — 2. A tn. and par. prov. Alentejo, 30 m. S. S. W. Evora, near the Xarama with a church, several chapels, and two hospitals. Pop. 1360.

VIANOS, a tn. Spain, New Castile, prov. and about 46 m. from Albacete with a church courthouse, and primary school a tanning and several flour mills, and a trade in corn cattle, and wood. Pop. 1690.

VIA R, a river, Spain, rises in the mountains of Monasterio near Montemolin, prov. Badajoz, flows about 50 m. S. E., southeast of windings, and joins the Gandalequiv at Castellanos 18 m. N. E. Sevilla.

VIAREGGIO (Latin Via Regia) a tn. Tuscany duchy Lucca, on the sea-coast, 12 m. N. W. Pisa. It has straight and spacious streets, lined for the most part with substantial and even elegant buildings, two parish churches, one in the form of a Latin cross, adorned with a sculptured facade, and capable of holding 5000 persons; a productive factory, and a trade in corn wine, oil and chestnuts. Pop. 7600.

VIA RIGI a vil. and com. Italy Piemont, div. Alessandria, prov. and 11 m. S. Casale, on a gentle slope covered with vineyards with a parish and four other churches, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1779.

VIATKA a river. Russia, rises in the E. of gov. Viatka, flows N. W., then circuitously S. W. to the town of Viatka. here it begins to form a vast curve, almost in the form of a semicircle, passing the towns of Orlov and Kotolich, then proceeds S. E., skirts the E. frontier of Kassan and at a point where the three gov. Viatka, Kassan, and Ornskoug touch each other, joins L. bank Kama, after a course of about 500 m. Its principal affluents are the Kobra, Lelka, Valda, Voloma, and Fyma, and the Tekopets and Klimos. It becomes navigable for barges at Viatka, and has a deep stream, with a current of very moderate rapidity and banks well covered with fine timber.

VIA TKA or WIA TKA, a gov. Russia, bounded, N. by Vologda, E. Furm, S. E. Ornskoug, S. Kassan, S. W. Nijnez-Novgorod, W. Kostroma, and N. W. Vologda, greatest length, N. to S., 310 m. central breadth, 230 m. area, about 40,150 sq. m. The surface, of an irregularly triangular shape, is much broken by hills, generally low, except towards the N. and E. where some distant ramifications of the Ural chain appear. The strata are chiefly cretaceous. The drainage belongs wholly to the basin of the Volga, to which it is carried chiefly by the Kama, which, rising near the middle of the R frontier, flows N, and after a long and winding course through Perm, again enters Viatska on its S.E. extremity and forms its S.W. boundary. The other principal streams in that which gives the gov its name. The climate varies much, being keen in the N and mild in the S. The soil is generally a strong clay or a calcareous loam, which, though unskillfully cultivated, yields good crops of corn, flax, and hemp, large tracts are under wood and natural pasture, in some parts extensive meadows prevail. The common fruits suffer much from spring-frosts but nuts and walnuts are abundant. In the more densely wooded districts the hunting of fur-animals occupies many persons. Great attention is paid to the rearing of bees. The minerals, chiefly copper and iron, are not much worked. One important branch of industry is the building of boats and barges, for which the forests furnish excellent materials, while the numerous streams give easy means of transport. The only other manufactures of consequence are coarse woollens and linen cloth, leather trowers, and articles in wood. The trade consists in corn, timber, wax, honey, soap, leather, fur, iron, and copper. The chief imports are wine, colonial produce salt, and tea, the last two brought overland through Perm. Education is so miserably neglected that there is only one person at school out of every 3800 and the gov possesses only one printing-press, which is the property of the Crown. Viatska is divided into 11 districts. Pop. (1850) 1,698,000

VIATKA a to Russia, esp. above gov advantageously situated near its centre, in a beautiful district at the confluence of the Kilmowka with the Viatska, 500 m N N E Moscow. It consists mostly of indifferent wooden houses, is surrounded by walls flanked with towers, defended by a citadel and has 23 stone-churches, one of them a cathedral with very costly decorations; two convents an ecclesiastical seminary, a gymnasium; manufactures of soap, leather, and various articles in silver and copper; a very extensive distillery and considerable trade in corn, flax, tallow and leather particularly with Astrakhan St. Petersburg and Archangel. P. (1800) 9379

VIADUE, a river France, rises in E. of dep Aveyron flows easterly N.W. then turning W. forms part of the boundary between depts. Tarn and Aveyron, and joins bank Aveyron, after a course of about 60 m.

VIADMA, or VIADMA a to Russia, gov and 97 m E.N.E. Smolensk, on a river of same name. It occupies a large area, is surrounded by walls, built almost entirely of wood, and has a fortress or kremlin 12 churches, a monastery two schools, extensive manufactures of leather and gingerbread, and a considerable trade in corn and hemp. In 1812 the French sustained severe losses here and the greater part of the town was burned down. Pop. (1850) 8716

VIADMA.—From copy of de la Commission déléguée de Mont.

VIADNIKI, or VIADNIKI, a to Russia, gov and 70 m. N. Viadmir r bank Elisei. It has two churches, a monastery manufactures of linen, several tanneries, and a trade in tea, apples and cherries. Pop. (1840) 2648

VIBOLDONE, or VIBOLDONE, a vil and com. Italy, Lombardy prov and 8 m from Milan, between the Lambro and the Olona. It figures much in early Italian history; and has a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1327

VIBORG, tw. Russia and Denmark See SWEDEN
VIBRATIE, a to France, dep. Sarthe, 25 m. N N E Le Mans; with several tanneries. Pop. 1443

VIC (anc. Pige) a to France, dep. Meurthe in a narrow valley on the Sella, 15 m. N N E Nancy. It is well built and has a collegiate church, built in 1340; a castle still more ancient, salt-mines, and salt-works. Pop. 1033

VICANT BISHOP, a to France, dep. Haute-Pyrénées, 11 m. N Tarbes. It is well built and has a communal college the ruins of an old castle, fine promenades, manufactures of leather and distilleries. Pop. 3391

VIC-FEMASMAC, or VIC-FEMASMAC (anc. Fidesmac), a to France, dep. Gers, 17 m. N W Aul bank Lasse. It is tolerably well built and has manufactures of wax and hoops, tanneries a worsted-mill a dye-works; and a trade in wine, corn, brandy and ship timber. Pop. 1868

VIC-LE-CORRE, or VIC-SUS-ALLIER, a to France, dep. Puy-de-Dôme, 11 m. S E Clermont in a fertile wine-district, r bank Allier. It is still partly walled; and has an ancient chapel, a much-frequented saline-spring and a fine pottery. Pop. 2352

VICALVARO a vil Spain New Castle, prov and about 4 m from Madrid, with a church, conchione, prison primary school, and fine salt-water-works. Pop. 1808

VICARELLO (anc. Vicus Aureus), a to Papal States, N W shore of lake, and about 5 m from the town of Bracciano, with the ruins of an imperial villa of the time of Trajan, and mineral-springs, known to the Romans as the Thermæ Aureæ. It was fortified in the middle ages.

VICARI a to Sicily prov and 8 S E Palermo, finely situated on Mount Ercibene, in a healthy district. Pop. 4500

VICCHIO NAT-MUSELLO, a villed in Tuscan comp and about 18 m from Florence, on a hill near bank Sura; with a church, a castle, and a school. Pop. 1527
VICENTINA BARRA (Sic), a to and near Portugal, prov Barra Barra, 20 m. N N W Castello-Branco, in a mountainous and somewhat barren district. Pop. 1710

VICENTE-DE LA BARQUERA (San), a seaport, Spain, Old Castilla, prov and 28 m. S.W. Santander. It is walled, has a castle with dungeons, said to have been used as a prison by the kings of Navarre a handsome Gothic church, primary schools, and custom-house. The harbour is secure, and can admit vessels of considerable burden. Pop. 1099

VICENTE (San), a to Spain, Extremadura, prov and 33 m. N Badajoz, with good and clean streets, a town-house, prison, several primary schools, a parish church, and several hermitages numerous manufactures of coarse hats, leather common cloths and linen oil presses, and flour-mills, exports of dried figs and other fruit to Portugal imports of hides, and some cattle in cattle and products of industry. Pop. 6760

VICENTE (San), a to Central America, San Salvador, cap. dist. and at the E. foot of a volcano of same name, 40 m. E San-Salvador; with extensive plantations of indigo and tobacco in its vicinity. Pop. about 3000
The VOLCANO, an enormous isolated mass of irregular shape with numerous projecting eminences, separated by deep chasms is supposed to be about 300 ft. high.

VICENZA [Latin Vicentia] a to Italy, gov and 40 m. W Venice, on the railway to Verona, cap. prov of same name, beautifully situated near Mount Berico, at the confluence of the Retrone with the Bacchiglione, here crossed by stone bridge. It is surrounded by dry moats, now partly under cultivation, and by dilapidated walls, and is very well built containing numerous fine mansions, many handsome streets, and several elegant squares, among which the Piazza-del-Signori, with its campanile, not more than 30 ft. in the square and yet more than 200 ft. in height, is conspicuous. The public buildings, though numerous, are somewhat monotonous, being almost all the work of Palladio, who was born here, or of scholars who rather slavishly imitated him. The most remarkable edifices are the Duomo, originally Gothic, but much injured by modern alterations; the Dominican church, also Gothic, with Romanesque capitals; San-Pietro, with a handsome tower by Casanova. Santa-Croce, with two fine paintings; the Basilica, or Palazzo della Ragione, an excellent Gothic building, the Palazzo-Provanzo, in a rich and fanciful Corinthian style; the Teatro-Olimpico, regarded as the most curious if not the finest work of Palladio; the Pinacoteca, the lyceum, public library and numerous hospitals. The manufactures are silk, woolen, and linen tissues; leather, earthenware, hats, and articles in whalebone, gold, and silver. The trade is in the above articles, and in corn, wine, and silk. Vicenza was founded above a century before the Christian era; became a Roman municipal town, was pillaged by the Goths, first under Alaric, and afterwards under Alaric II. passed into the hands of the Lombards; was ravaged by the plague in 1033 and burned down by the Emperor Frederick II. in 1236. It afterwards passed to the Venetians, who retained it till the downfall of the republic in 1798. After forming part of the French Kingdom of Italy it was united to Austria in 1815. Pop., including suburbs, 80,000.—The province, 90 m. long by 55 m. broad, though partly covered in the N. and W. by branches of the Alps, is generally flat and fertile, producing much corn, maize, hemp, flax, wine, and silk. Pop. 298,000.

THE MARKET-PLACE, VICENZA.—From Henry's Illustrations of Italy

VICI (see Auzone) a city of Spain, Catalonia, prov. and 26 m. N. Barcelona. It has narrow and tortuous streets, several squares, one of which serves as a market-place, the remains of very old towers, and a castle, the latter of which serves as a prison, a townhouse, theatre, cathedral, and four other churches; three monasteries, two hospitals, a poorhouse, an asylum for poor druggists, seven suppressed convents, a theological school, a free school of design, and various other establishments for elementary and advanced education, manufactures of leather, gloves, soap, chocolate, bricks and tiles, flax and cotton mills, bleaching-works, dye-works, flour-mills, and ironworks. Vich is also famous for its sanguine. This is a place of great antiquity. The modern name, Vich, is a corruption of Vesca, a Roman town which was razed by the Moors, and rebuilt in 798. Many Roman antiquities have been found from time to time discovered, and neglected. Vich is the seat of an ancient bishopric, which was restored in 890, and in 970 was raised by John XIII. to be the metropolis of Catalonia. This dignity, however, reverted to Catalonia, after its re-conquest from the Moors. The cathedral was rebuilt in 1688. Pop. 10,567.

VICHADA a river New Granada, which rises in the Montes de San-Juan, near lat. 4° N. lon. 78° W. flows S. N. E., receiving the Mucos on the left, and after a course of about 800 m., joins the bank Orinoco near lat. 5° N.

VICHERA, a river Russia, rises in the N. of gov. Perm, in the W. slope of the Ural Mountains, flows S. nearly parallel with the Ural, then diagonally S. W., and joins the bank Kama, after a course of about 240 m. Its principal affluents are on the right the Kolve, and on the left the Tava. Its course, partly navigable, is through vast forests.

VICIGODA, a vil. Hungary, co. Lipca, 41 m. S. N. E. Veszprém, with a trade in dairy produce, particularly sweet cheese. Pop. 1500.

VICHTE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders near the Groote-Beka, an affluent of the Leyn, 23 m. S. Bruges with manufactures of linen, a distillery an oil and a flour mill. Pop. 1559.

VICHI, or MOUTIER-LES-BAINS, a tn. and com. France, dep. Alier in a beautiful valley of the river of that name, 33 m. S. S. E. Moulins. It was once a place of strength, and is celebrated for its thermal alkaline springs, which issue from a deep fissure, and have temperatures varying from 102° to 115°. Pop. 1861.

VICKSBURG a tn., U. States, and 1 bank river Mississippi, and on a railway connecting it with Jackson, which is about 45 m. W. It stands in a fertile and picturesque district, and though of recent origin, is large and flourishing with Presbyterian, Episcopal Methodist, and R. Catholic churches; three academies, and a public school attended by about 500 pupils. An active business is carried on in lumber and building-materials, and about 100,000 bales of cotton are annually exported. Pop. (1850), 5079.

VICO several places. Italy particularly.—1. A tn. dioc. and 8 m. N. N. W. Frosinone. Pop. 5100.—2. A tn. Naples, prov. Capitanata, dist. and 81 m. S. E. N. E. San-Severo, on the side of Mount Gargano with a collegiate church and three convents.—3. A tn. Naples, prov. Lavoro, dist. Nola. Pop. 1120.—4. (Egineae) [anc. Egnus] A tn. Naples, prov. and 16 m. S. E. Naples on a jutting rock in the Gulf of Naples. It is defended by a strong castle, and has several ancient remains. Pop. 2600.

VICO a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont div. Turin prov. Ivrée, in the valley of Bracon with a court of justice, and a parish church. Pop. 1068.

VICO, or VICO DI MONDOVI, a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. Cune, prov. and nearly 3 m. S. Mondovì at the foot of a hill crowned by an old castle, now converted into a modern mansion. It has three churches a Cistercian monastery, and a superior school. The French gained a victory here in 1796. Pop. 3594.

VICO-PINARO a vil. and com. Italy, Tuscany comp. and 7 m. E. Pisa, on a slope of Mount Pisano, with an ancient church and a castle. Pop. 1457.

VICOMARINO a vil. and com. Parma, dioc. and 17 m. S. W. Piacenza, on a lofty hill, with a trade in corn, wheat, fruit, and cattle. Pop. 4508.

VICORAGO, a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 37 m. from Como on a lofty height above the Trese with a parish church, and mines of argentiferous lead, copper, and antimony. Pop. 1170.

VICOBA or COMETA, a tn. Brazil, prov. and 140 m. W. Coara, in the Serra-Hibipaba. It consists of about 150 houses, partly of brick, but chiefly of wood and thatched with reed. The greater part of the inhabitants are Indians. Pop. (1850) 5000.

VICOVARO a vil. Papal States, 7 m. N. E. Tivoli; with some remains of polygonal walls, and a fine old hermitical castle. In the vicinity is the ancient bridge of the Claudian aqueduct. Pop. 1080.

VICTORIA (formerly PORT-PHILL), a British colony in the S. E. of Australia between lat. 34° and 39° S., and lon. 141° and 150° E. bounded, N. E. and N. by New South Wales, from which it is separated in the former direction by a straight line drawn from Cape Howe to the nearest source of the Murray, and in the latter by the course of that river to the E. boundary of S. Australia. W. by S. Australia, and S. by Bass Strait, separating it from Van Diemen's Land. Length, E. to W., 600 m.; mean breadth, measured on the parallel of 144°, about 200 m.; area, about 90,000 sq. m., nearly the same as that of Great Britain. The coast is generally low and unbroken in the W. from the mouth of the Glenelg to Cape Coree, between which are situated the available harbours of Portland, Port-Fairly and Warnambool; and in the E, from the harbour of Port Albert, in lon. 147° to Cape Howe, between which latter points almost the only features which tend to diversify its monotonous appearance are a series of lagoons, of which Lake King is the largest. From Wilson Promontory to Cape Otway a remarkable contrast is presented, and the coast becomes skirted by perpendicular cliffs rising 600 ft. to 1000 ft. above the sea, and containing openings into numerous bays and anchorage. Of these the most remarkable is Port-Phillip, which, scarcely 2 m. wide at its entrance, forms a kind of inland sea, stretching from N to E for about 25 m., and expanding from E. to W. near its centre to 50 m., though its average width may not exceed 18 m. Within this spacious basin, covering an area of 875 sq. m., the largest fleet that ever went to sea might ride in perfect safety. Separated from Port Phillip by a low promontory is the well formed but shallow harbour of Western Port, effectively protected by Phillip or Grant Island, at its mouth, and divided into an E. and a W. arm by French Island near its centre. Still farther E. the most remarkable feature of the coast is Wilson Promontory connected with the mainland by a low sandy isthmus, but consisting of a lofty mass of granite, with summits rising to the height of 9300 ft., and mainly developed in sand. On the N. of this promontory is the last great indentation of the coast, Corner Basin, protected E. and E. by several low sandy islands, of which the largest is La Trobe. The entire sea-board has a S. aspect, and following its external contour, is not far short of 600 m.

The interior is well diversified, both by mountains and plains, but is chiefly characterized by the latter, which are often of great extent and so sparingly wooded and free from other obstructions, that it has been said the plough could in some parts be drawn conveniently for 100 m. across tracts well adapted for agricultural purposes. In general however, the surface is better adapted for pasture than agriculture, and wool of the most excellent quality now is and probably will long continue to be the staple product obtained from the occupation of the soil. The mountains form two principal ranges near the opposite extremities of the colony. The E. range is a continuation of the long chain which stretches from N. to S. through New South Wales, at no great distance from the coast, and nearly parallel to it. Shortly after attaining its culminating point of 5500 ft. in Mount Kosciusko or Wollangong, this chain, under the name of the Australian Alps, enters Victoria, and proceeds S.W. with a bold outline but gradually diminishing height to the coast at Wilson Promontory from which it is continued almost visibly by the islands of Bass Strait to Portland Cape, and thence abruptly to the S. extremity of Van Diemen's Land. This range sends out numerous ramifications, chiefly N. and W. and covers an area estimated at 7000 sq. m. The W. range, called the Grampians, commences in Mount Zero, lat. $36^{\circ} 52'$ lon. $142^{\circ} 50'$ and stretches S. for 54 m., with a breadth of 20 m., to its termination at Mount Sturgeon, which rises abruptly 1070 ft. above the level of the plain, in lat. $37^{\circ} 28'$. It forms three distinct masses or ridges—a N. E., and W. called respectively the Grampians proper, the Serra, and the Western or Victoria range—which have their common nucleus and culminating point near the centre in Mount Willsie, the height of which above sea-level is 4500 ft. The other loftiest summits which occur in the N. are generally bare and rocky, but have some fine timber on their slopes. In the S. end of the most remarkable summit is Mount Albert, a few miles N.W. of Mount Sturgeon. It is 1700 ft. in perpendicular height, contains a crater 445 ft. in breadth, and 80 ft. in average depth, and is described by Sir Thomas Mitchell as rewarding the toil of its ascent with a scene of surpassing magnificence and sublimity. The Grampians and the Australian Alps, notwithstanding their position at opposite extremities of the colony, are visibly connected by these ramifications, so as to form parts of the same mountain-system, and thus constitute a continuous water-shed, sending the whole drainage of the colony either N. to the Murray or S. to the ocean. It may be considered as a vast region of primary and transition formations, extending E. to W. for about 300 m., with breadths varying from 100 m. to 150 m. exhibiting numerous cones and extinct craters, apparently subvolcanic, and composed chiefly of metamorphic rocks of granite, gneiss, quartz gneiss, &c., overlain on their slopes by more recent second ary and tertiary formations. Within this region lie all the gold-fields which have recently been discovered in Victoria, and have added so suddenly and extensively both to its wealth and population, making it the great centre of attraction for emigrants, not only from the United Kingdom but from various other quarters of the world. The rivers which descend from this water-shed are more numerous than important. In the rainy season they fill their channels, overflow their banks, and have all the appearance of magnificent streams, but as the summer advances they shrink rapidly in their dimensions, and ultimately for the most part, become either altogether dry, or leave only a chain of large and deep, but often unnecessary pools. By far the most important river is the Murray which, so abundantly and from the N. frontier and receives the whole of the drainage of the N. side of the water-shed. Though the magnitude of its volume is small in proportion to its length it would seem from recent trials that its navigable importance has hitherto been underrated and that, at least during the months when it attains its greatest height, it is capable of affording to the timber invaluable communication by steam for many hundred miles. Its chief feeders, however, come to it from New South Wales, while Victoria sends it only a few comparatively paltry streams, as the Mitta-Mitta and Ovens toward the E. and the Gonullara, Campwood and the Loddon or Yarra towards the centre. On the S. side of the water-shed the principal streams are, proceeding from the E. the Snowy River or Margaling the Tambo Nicholson, Mitchell, Avon, Macalister and La Trobe which contribute to form a chain of lagoons, the Yarra Yarra, important from having on its banks the capital, Melbourne, to which it is navigable by vessels of 300 tons, and along with it the Mariburnong or Salt-Water River Wertheim and Little River all falling into Port Phillip, the Moorabool and Barwon, at the entrance of Port Phillip, and the Glenelg which forms part of the W. boundary its mouth being variously situated on the map by the colonial surveyors, which has caused disputes as to government jurisdiction amongst the colonists. Mitchell places it 30 m. E. of the R. Australian frontier, while Yerra marks it almost on the meridian boundary within Victoria. The latter position is adopted in the government charts. The lakes are so numerous as to form one of the principal physical features of the interior. Few of them however, are fed by perennial streams and hence many which at one season cover large areas, dwindle away at another or become altogether dry. By far the largest, Lake Corangamite, attained 50 m. W. of Geelong, and at the common division of four courses, is of very irregular and serpentine form, about 90 m. in circuit, and, though fed by several fresh-water streams is perfectly salt. Lake Colac about 8 m. E. of this, though only 19 m. in circuit, is, however the most important, from the fact of its being fresh and affording water to upwards of 200,000 sheep that feed in its vicinity. For pastoral purposes the colony is divided into five great grazing districts—Gipps Land and the Murray E. Wimmera, and Portland Bay or Geelong district W. and Western Port district between. The climate of Victoria, though liable to great and sudden fluctuations, is on the whole temperate and eminently salubrious, at least to the human frame, though catarrh and other diseases often commit great ravages among live stock particularly sheep. The worst feature in the climate are its hot winds, which commence in November and cease in February. The days however during which these winds prevail average annually not more than 20 and of these only a third are oppressively hot. At Port Phillip the maximum and minimum summer temperatures are respectively 90° and 48° the maximum and minimum winter-temperatures, 69° and 39° the annual mean is 51° nearly that of Naples. The annual fall of rain at Melbourne is about 27 inches, but this is very equally divided over the year, about a fifth of the whole falling in July. The agricultural capabilities of Victoria have been very partially tested but there cannot be a doubt that though much of the soil is of light texture, it possesses great natural fertility and is capable of raising cereals of the best quality, and in quantity sufficient to maintain a large if not dense population. The vine also thrives well and both the ordinary and many of the finer fruits and vegetables of the N. temperate zone have already become acclimatized and abundant. The following table shows the areas under crop, with the produce in the year ending March 31 1858—

| Crop | Area | Product |
|-------------------------------|--------|---------|
| Wheat | 16,899 | 699,704 |
| Oats | 1 | 61 |
| Barley | 4713 | 6,831 |
| Ordn. | 8,062 | 80,892 |
| Peas | 1,676 | 4,614 |
| Turn grass | 14,101 | — |
| Green feed for cattle | 401 | — |
| Hay | — | 21,696 |
| Total number of acres in crop | 36,053 | — |

In vineyards, the same year, there were 1072 acres, yielding 4500 gallons wine, and 500 gallons brandy. In the year ending December 31 1859, the live stock were 54,021 horses, 431,520 horned cattle, and 6,504,906 sheep. The largeness of the last item proves the vast progress which Victoria has made in the production of what was, previous to the gold discoveries, its only great staple. It now furnishes one-half of the whole wool imported into Great Britain. Its first export of wool took place in 1835, but the quantity probably trifling, is unknown. The following year (1837) it amounted to 275,000 lbs. valued at £14,000. In 1844 to 4,395,000 lbs.; in 1849 to 10,525,000 lbs. and in 1853 to 30,842,501 lbs. valued at £1,651,871. These results might of themselves establish the pre-eminent class of Victoria as a field for emigration but they have recently been in a great measure eclipsed by her mineral treasures. The conformity of the geological structure of the mountain-ranges with that of the Urals, had led Murdochson to predict, with confidence, that gold would be found among them, and rumours of its actual existence had repeatedly been spread, on grounds more or less authentic. Its discovery however and the promulgation of it as an ascertained fact, within the colony, dates only from 1851. Since that the number of its known localities have greatly increased and multitudes of diggers have been successfully at work, partly in the E. among the Australian Alps, where among other valuable diggings, notice is due to those on the banks of Lake Ouse, at Mount Ockbrook near the sources of the Mitta Mitta, and on the banks of the Ovens; but chiefly in the W. among the E. ramifications of the Grampians, from 50 to 100 m N W of Melbourne. By far the largest continuous field yet explored is that which has Mount Alex. under for its centre, and occupies an extensive area between the sources and along the banks of the Campaspe and Loddon. Besides these the diggings which have hitherto acquired most notoriety are those of Ballarat, at the sources of the Yarrowee or Lee, 45 m N N W Geelong, and those of Mount Fyvie among the range of the Pyrenees, at the sources of the Avoca but there are doubtless many others of equal value only remaining to be brought to light. In July 1854, the number of gold-fields in course of being worked was 10, extending over no less than 5° lon. The quantity of gold which passes by private hands, and of which no public return can be made makes it difficult to form even an approximate estimate of the gross produce. The total quantity of gold obtained within Victoria up to the end of 1853 has been estimated at 4,891,000 oz., which at £3. 15s. 6d. per oz., gives a value of £14,841,250. The quantity exported in the same year was 4,868,043 oz., valued at £13,966,407. In 1853 the ascertained and estimated quantity exported was 3,000,243 oz., which valued at £3 15s. 6d. per oz., the current rate of the colony, gives £12,264,110 or upwards of £20,500,000 on the produce of less than 2½ years. The following table gives a detailed account of the gold export on the customs list for that year—

| Exported | Ounces | Value |
|---------------|-----------|-------------|
| To London | 1,712,318 | £5,444,498 |
| „ Liverpool | 419,948 | 1,299,717 |
| „ Southampton | 394,046 | 1,207,627 |
| „ Glasgow | 460 | 1,397 |
| „ Sydney | 39,823 | 120,275 |
| „ Melbourne | 3,891 | 14,161 |
| „ Hongkong | 41,794 | 127,643 |
| „ Calcutta | 39,710 | 121,635 |
| „ New York | 10,460 | 39,874 |
| „ Canton | 6,420 | 20,192 |
| „ Other | 61 | 208 |
| Total | 2,977,723 | £25,796,446 |

The immense addition thus suddenly made to the wealth of the colony has necessarily produced a complete revolution in its circumstances. The security of entering into detail on this subject is saved by the following table, which exhibits a summary of the most remarkable changes—

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY 1850-1854.

| | 1850. | 1851. | 1852. | 1853. |
|--|-----------|-----------|-----------|------------|
| Grosses general | 194,409 | 180,706 | 618,294 | 7,543,628 |
| Revenue, territorial | 134,718 | 199,830 | 750,897 | 1,463,848 |
| Total revenue | 329,127 | 380,536 | 1,369,191 | 9,007,476 |
| Imports | 744,998 | 1,068,437 | 4,063,096 | 11,000,000 |
| Exports | 1,041,798 | 1,428,079 | 7,461,248 | 11,081,541 |
| Shipping: Number | 833 | 949 | 1,527 | — |
| „ Tonnage | 108,083 | 126,611 | 408,816 | — |
| Bank deposits, 4th quart. | — | — | 4,854,841 | 6,855,897 |
| Circulation, do. | — | 180,000 | 1,397,811 | 1,919,008 |
| Coin and gold, do. | — | 810,794 | — | — |
| Number of banks | — | 9 | 6 | — |
| Valuation of Melbourne (General value) | 184,000 | 374,728 | 688,000 | — |
| Population 31st Dec. | 75,000 | 95,000 | 300,000 | 523,000 |

It ought to be observed that gold is not the only source of mineral wealth possessed by Victoria. The copper found so abundantly in N. Australia, doubtless exists here also, in ironstone, granite, and sandstone are already worked in quantities apparently inexhaustible and an extensive field of coal has been traced along the coast, though no mine has yet been opened in it. The want of proper means of communication has been much felt, but three railways, which will bring the principal diggings into connection with Melbourne, Geelong, and Hobson's Bay, are (1854) in course of construction, and efforts are being made to establish a system of telegraphs. With all these sources of prosperity, a splendid future can undoubtedly await this comparatively infant colony provided the eager pursuit of wealth does not so completely absorb the public mind as to produce an indifference to the most important elements of social greatness. The present population is perhaps the most heterogeneous that was ever crammed into a body politic, and the great danger is that the rising generation, instead of improving upon the present, may, from the neglect of proper education become still more degenerate. In relation to this subject, the statistics of the following tables of schools and churches are full of interest—

| Description | No. of Schools | No. of Scholars | Aid from Government | Average Paid from School-fees | Total |
|-------------|----------------|-----------------|---------------------|-------------------------------|------------|
| | | | £ s. d. | £ s. d. | £ s. d. |
| Disendowed | 88 | 6,856 | 7 168 17 4 | 4,402 3 2 | 12,515 0 6 |
| National | 8 | 823 | 0 16 0 | 829 15 6 | 9 15 0 0 |
| Private | 17 | 678 | — | — | — |
| Total | 113 | 7,811 | 7 798 17 4 | 5,231 18 6 | 12,595 0 6 |

| Description | No. of Churches | No. of Persons they are estimated to contain | No. actually attending |
|---------------------|-----------------|--|------------------------|
| Church of England | 18 | 3,780 | 2,980 |
| Presbyterian Church | 7 | 1,500 | 1,200 |
| Wesleyan Church | 17 | 1,970 | 1,500 |
| Independent Church | 8 | 1,110 | 1,010 |
| Baptists | 3 | 420 | 320 |
| Roman Catholics | — | 800 | 800 |
| Jews Synagogue | 1 | 60 | 60 |
| Total | 49 | 10,600 | 14,890 |

For administrative purposes the squabbling districts of Geelong Land, Western Port, and Portland Bay are divided into 94 counties, of which that of Bourke contains the capital Melbourne. The government, similar to that of the other Australian colonies, consists of a governor, an executive council and a legislative assembly, of which a third is nominated by the Crown and two-thirds are chosen by qualified electors. Port Phillip was first discovered in 1802, and became the general name of the whole colony which after it had been partially settled by emigrants, chiefly from Van Diemen's Land, was formally recognised in 1850, when the first sale of crown-lands took place. It formed the N. division of New South Wales till 1851, when it was separated into a separate colony and, in honour of her present Majesty, assumed its new name. The rapid progress of Victoria in its material prosperity is unparalleled in the annals of British colonization. Without government aid, it was at first planted by a few private individuals and, nursed by their industrious energies it grew apace, until its financial power was extricated so much by the parent colony, that its growth was being blasted, while at the time of the New South Wales gold discovery its existence was threatened. But the indigenous resources yielded their fruits to the enterprising colonists, and in spite of misgovernment and local jealousies, it has become the most flourishing shoot from the parent stem in the British colonial empire. (See Supp.)

VICTORIA—1, A large river Australia, N.W. coast. (See Australia sup. Shore)—2, A large river, N. Australia, discovered in 1848 by Sir T. L. Mitchell, who crossed it in lat. 24° 14' S.; lon. 144° 34' E.—3 (or Alexandrina), A lake, S. Australia, 46 m. S.E. Adelaide. It is an expanse and may be called the embouchure of the Murray River. It is about 20 m. in extent N. to S., and including a reach on the S.E. called Lake Albert, connected by a narrow strait, about 33 m. N.W. to S.E. Its shores on the S. and E. are undulating and present a few bold headlands, but on the N. and W. they are low. It contains several islands and is navigable, but the entrance to it by a narrow strait from the sea, at Encounter Bay is obstructed by a sandbar.

VICTORIA A tin China, N. side, Isl. Hong-Kong built by the British settlers. It is mostly of stone and brick, and extends nearly 8 m. along the shore of the magnificent bay of Victoria (which affords excellent anchorage), occupying all the land between the water and the hills wherever the activity is not too steep. The principal edifices are the school of the Morrison Education Society the hospital of the Medical Missionary Society, the Queen's and Military hospitals, the chapel and school of the London Missionary Society the government-house, the magistracy and the ordinance and engineering departments, the exchange, and the club-house, the latter a very handsome structure, was opened in May 1847. A substantial and commodious courthouse, public offices, and a colonial church have also been erected. The houses of the merchants are large and elegant, with fine gardens attached. Pop. (1848) 14,000.

VICTORIA, CAMBODGE, or CAMBODIAN, a harbour at the S.E. extremity of Vancouver's Island, lat. 49° 24' 46" N. lon. 123° 33' 25" W. Though not the best, it is the most important harbour in the nation. The Hudson Bay Company's settlement, Victoria, with the fort of that name, consisting of a square inclosure with octagonal bastions, is in the immediate vicinity.

VICTORIA, or CONQUISTA, a tn. Brazil, prov. Bahia, 80 m. S.E. Uruatá with a church, a primary school and a considerable trade in cotton and cattle sent to Bahia. It suffers from the aggressions of the wild Indians, who live in the recesses of the forests.

VICTORIA (La) a vu Canaries N. side, in Tenerife with a church manufacture of linen, and a trade in fruit and wine. Pop. 1878.

VICTORIA LAND, or S. Victoria. See ANTARCTIC OCEAN.

VICTORIA LAND, an insular tract, British N. America, N. of lat. 68° N., and extending from about lon. 108° to 110° W. It is separated from the N. American continent on the S. by Dease Strait, and from Boothia-Felix on the E. by Victoria Strait. It was discovered and named by Simpson and explored by Dr. Rae in 1851.

VICTORIA (SANTA), a vi and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Cune, prov. Alba with an ancient castle and three rural churches. Pop. 1085.

VICTORIA STRAIT, a broad sea-arm, Arctic regions, separating Victoria-Land, and Prince of Wales Land on the W. from Boothia-Felix and N. Somerset on the E. It communicates N. by Cuvier's Inlet with Barrow's Strait, W. of the entrance to Wellington Channel.

VID or URAK (anc. Atax) a river, Turkey in Europe, rises in the N. side of the Balkan, in the S.W. extremity of Bulgaria, flows circuitously N.E. between and nearly parallel to the Lake and Dnieper, and after a course of 150 m., joins the Black Danube opposite to Island, about 10 m. above Nikolopol.

VID (Wassau) a vi. Hungary co. Eitzing, on the road from Buda to Fünfkirchen, with a church, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1029.

VIDARJA a river Spain. See BRASCO.

VIDAUBAN (anc. Vicus Albanorum), a tn. France, dep. Var 8 m. S.W. Draguignan, L. bank Argens. It suffered much during the religious wars. In the neighbourhood the Argens forms a magnificent cascade. Pop. 3512.

VIDIGNEIRA a tn and par. Portugal, prov. Alentejo, 23 m. S. by E. Evora. Pop. 2390.

VIDIGULFO a vi and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 7 m. N. Pavia, on the Lambro with a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1481.

VIDOMIAK or WIDOMIAK a vi Austria, Transylvania, 4 m. from Kronstadt, on a stream of same name; with two churches. Pop. 1100.

VIDOUBLE, a river France, rises near St. Hippolyte, in the W. of dep. Gard flows S.E. E., and after a course of 50 m. divides into two branches the one of which joins the canal of Radelle, while the other falls into the lagoon of Mangrove.

VID, two rivers, France. The one rises in N.E. of dep. Orne flows N.W. and joins the bank Dives; total course, 35 m. The other rises in dep. Vendée, a little S. of Balleville flows W.S.W. and falls into the Atlantic at St. Gilles total course, 88 m. of which 6 m. are navigable at high-water.

VIECHTACH two places Bavaria—1 (Unter) A market in Lower Bavaria on the Black Regen, 42 m. N.W. Passau with three churches an ordinary manufactures of linen and tobacco, a mill dye-works and several breweries. Pop. 1489.—2 (Oben) A market in Upper Palatinat, 24 m. N.E. Amberg with a church and two chapels, and a trade in flax. Pop. 1245.

VIELSÄLM a vi and com. Belgium prov. Luxembourg on the Sambre, about 39 m. N. Arlon with slate and wheatstone quarries, two tanneries, and four flour-mills. Pop. 3033.

VIENNA (German, Wien, Latin, Vindobona or Vienna, French Vienne, Dutch, Wien, Venesse), one of the principal cities of Europe, and capital of the Austrian Empire, about 3 m. from the main stream of the Danube, but traversed partly by an arm or branch which bears the name of the Viennese Danube, serving the purpose of a canal, and is crossed by five bridges, and partly by an insignificant stream, called the Wien or Venna, which empties itself into this arm of the river. The site is 450 ft. above sea-level, lat. 48° 12' 30" N. lon. 16° 23' E., 390 m. N.W. Milan, 137 m. N.W. Poth, 240 m. S.S.E. Berlin 380 m. S.E.E. Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and 600 m. E. by S. Paris. Lake Fera, Vienna stands near the centre of a tertiary basin strewed in fossil shells, but of less extent, as the secondary and transition rocks form conspicuous mountain boundaries to the E.W. and S., at average distances of 10 m. and 12 m. With exception of two suburbs, the whole of the buildings are on the bank of this branch of the Danube, rising from it in terraces, which give a considerable facility to many of the streets.

THE HOF SQUARE, VIENNA.—From Batty's German Gallery

Vienna consists of the town proper, or Innere-Stadt, and of 24 suburbs. Its whole circuit, traced for the far greater part by walls, or as they are called, lines, 19 ft. in height, provided with a ditch and 12 gates or barriers, is about 16 m. The Inner-Stadt, the central nucleus of the town, forms a kind of circle near its centre, and except on the N.E. side, where it crosses the river as surrounded by ramparts from 30 ft. to elegant streets in the suburbs, particularly in those of Schottenfeld and Neudorf on the W., Mariahilf on the S.W. and Leopoldstadt and Alserdorf on the N.E. In the last in particular, the street of same name, with its Frobenstrasse, forming the great thoroughfare to the Prater, in one of the most showy and animated in Vienna. The dwellings are usually from four to five stories high, and of very large dimensions, seen peep in data by a number of families, who obtain access by a common stair. Several of the houses built round courts, and hence designated by the name of Hofen, are of enormous extent. Among others may be specified the Schotten Hof or Scotch court, so called from having been originally attached to the church of the Scotch Benedictines, who settled here in 1158, the Mitter Hof belonging to the monastery of St. Michael, and the Trinitarier Hof, situated in the Graben, tenanted by 400 persons, and yielding a yearly rent of 60 000 gulden—nearly £8000. From its altitude and island position, Vienna is one of the most salubrious climates in Europe; the atmosphere is remarkably pure and balmy and the inhabitants enjoy robust health, without being much attacked with colds, pulmonary affections, and the like, while epidemic diseases pass over the city lightly. Few cities are better provided with the means of relaxation in the open air. The broad glass encircling the inner town has been already mentioned, the Angerplatz in the N and the Belvedere gardens in the E. are equally commodious, but they are all eclipsed by the Prater in the N.E., about 4 m. long, by 3 m. broad, situated between two arms of the Danube, and so beautifully planted, laid out, and otherwise decorated, that it is regarded as the finest public park in Europe. The British traveller is struck with the resemblance of the Viennese to his own country men and women who inhabit large towns, and, on inquiry he finds that there is an affinity by descent between the Austro-Saxon and the Anglo-Saxon races.

Churches.—The first in order is the Dom-Kirche or the cathedral of St. Stephen, a lofty, cruciform, Gothic structure, 350 ft. long, 235 ft. broad, and 90 ft. high. It stands in the centre of Stephansplatz, and is built of large blocks of heavy limestone. The W. facade, 110 ft. high adorned with rich tracery and sculpture, and flanked by two octagonal towers, called Heidenthürme, contains the principal entrance, a gigantic portal (Heidenthor) with beautiful specimens of Gothic ornament. From the centre of the S. apse rises a magnificent tower, diminishing gradually from its base in regularly retreating arches and buttresses, till it terminates in a point 465 ft. in height, the loftiest in Europe, with the exception perhaps of Strasburg. Its top is reached by a stone-stair of 553 steps, another of wood of 200 steps, and several ladders, and within it is a great ball of nearly 18 tons weight, cast of cannon taken from the Turks in 1711. Besides the atmosphere is remarkably pure and balmy and the inhabitants enjoy robust health, without being much attacked with colds, pulmonary affections, and the like, while epidemic diseases pass over the city lightly. Few cities are better provided with the means of relaxation in the open air. The broad glass encircling the inner town has been already mentioned, the Angerplatz in the N and the Belvedere gardens in the E. are equally commodious, but they are all eclipsed by the Prater in the N.E., about 4 m. long, by 3 m. broad, situated between two arms of the Danube, and so beautifully planted, laid out, and otherwise decorated, that it is regarded as the finest public park in Europe. The British traveller is struck with the resemblance of the Viennese to his own country men and women who inhabit large towns, and, on inquiry he finds that there is an affinity by descent between the Austro-Saxon and the Anglo-Saxon races.

Churches.—The first in order is the Dom-Kirche or the cathedral of St. Stephen, a lofty, cruciform, Gothic structure, 350 ft. long, 235 ft. broad, and 90 ft. high. It stands in the centre of Stephansplatz, and is built of large blocks of heavy limestone. The W. facade, 110 ft. high adorned with rich tracery and sculpture, and flanked by two octagonal towers, called Heidenthürme, contains the principal entrance, a gigantic portal (Heidenthor) with beautiful specimens of Gothic ornament. From the centre of the S. apse rises a magnificent tower, diminishing gradually from its base in regularly retreating arches and buttresses, till it terminates in a point 465 ft. in height, the loftiest in Europe, with the exception perhaps of Strasburg. Its top is reached by a stone-stair of 553 steps, another of wood of 200 steps, and several ladders, and within it is a great ball of nearly 18 tons weight, cast of cannon taken from the Turks in 1711. Besides the tower there is a dome, the outside of which is covered with several remarkable statues, carvings, and sculptures. The interior, supported by 15 pillars, remarkable for their size and the number of these statues is somewhat gloomy but very imposing, has some beautiful specimens of ancient painted glass, a superb pulpit, a richly sculptured and carved chancel, 80 marble-stairs, and various monuments, of which that of the Emperor Frederick IV with a Plasson by Sandrart placed over it, is the most gorgeous, and that of the celebrated Prince Eugene the most interesting. Near the Josephplatz is the court parish church (Hofkirche) of the Augustines, a finely proportioned edifice, founded by Frederick the Fair in 1566, in fulfilment of a vow made during his imprisonment in the castle of Trevisia, and containing a beautiful monument to the Archduchess Christina by Canova. The Capuchin church is remarkable only as containing the Imperial burying-place the Bernabite or St. Michael's church, for being the most ancient in the city; the church of St. Peter for its not very successful imitation of St. Peter's at Rome, some curious leaden statues and frescoes and the church of St. Laurence, for its excellent organ and its fine music. Of numerous other churches, notice is due only to the castle-chapel, where the music of the great composers is regularly performed in the best style; the Scotch chapel, originally built in 1155 for Scotch Benedictines, though it has long ceased to have anything Scotch about it, the church of Maris Stegus, a handsome structure, with fine painted glass and an elegant tower about 185 ft. high, St. Charles church surmounted by a dome, and so called after Charles Borromeo, whose life is by an odd conceit exhibited in bas-reliefs on two immense isolated pillars, above 40 ft. in height and 15 ft. in diameter and the university-church, with 16 richly decorated marble-columns and a number of fine frescoes. The Lutheran church the requested monastery of St. Catherine, has an excellent organ, and the Calvinists or members of the Helvetic Confession, have a handsome church after designs by Hgelli. The Jews have three synagogues, one of them with a magnificent interior.

Palaces and Government or Municipal Edifices.—The Imperial palace (Kaiserliche-Burg), on the S.W. side of the inner town, near the glacis, is an ancient and irregular structure of little merit, consisting of three courts or quadrangles, one in the centre called the Burgplatz, another on the E. side called the Amalienhof, and a third on the W. side called the Schweizerhof. The apartments of the imperial family are in the last. Immediately adjoining and on the bastion is the palace of the Archduke Charles, a splendid structure by Fischer d'Erlich. The other principal palaces are the Belvedere consisting of two buildings one at the foot and another at the summit of a gentle eminence with a fine garden between and built by Prince Eugene, who spent the latter years of his life in it, the palace of the Prince of Liechtenstein, conspicuous both by its architecture and its enormous extent the palace of Count Schönborn, Prince Schwarzenburg Prince Anserpurg, Prince Esterházy, &c. The principal government buildings are the hotels of the ministry the majestic structure in which the states of Lower Austria sit, the townhouse, the national bank, the mint, the Imperial and the civil arsenal, both with collections of ancient armour and the former with 150 000 stand of arms.

Educational Establishments and Libraries.—Among the former the first place is due to the university founded in 1257, but re-organised by Maria Theresa under the direction of Van Swieten. It occupies a large isolated building in the form of a parallelogram, with a arcade opening upon a public square, and adorned with two fountains. The professors, about 75 in number, are all paid by government, and the average attendance of students, the largest in Europe, is nearly 6200. In immediate connection with it are an admirable botanical garden, and several valuable collections. The Josephinum a medico-surgical academy for army-surgeons, has a very extensive series of anatomical preparations in wax. The polytechnic institute, occupying a handsome structure facing the glacis, instructs 600 pupils in the arts and practical sciences, as well as trade and agriculture. The normal school, established by Maria Theresa, has the honour of having originated that most important class of institutions, and recently amplified their utility almost half a century before they were thought of in Great Britain. Other important educational establishments are the Seminarium or R. Catholic institute, in which the greater part of the best educated priests of the empire finish their education. A Hungarian theological institute or Pannonicum, a similar Protestant institute, the Theresianum, specially intended for the education of young nobility; the academy of Oriental languages, to qualify for diplomatic appointments in the East, the military geographical institute, three gymnasia, attended by 1650 scholars 14 schools of design, an agricultural and veterinary and a riding school, 29 Volk schools or common 7 high, and 19 girls schools, at which the average attendance amounts in all to at least 50 000. The Imperial Library occupying a handsome edifice which forms one side of Josephplatz, and immediately adjoins the Imperial palace, is one of the largest and most valuable in Europe, containing 806 000 printed volumes, and 16,000 MSS. many of the latter either unique or of extreme rarity. Annexed to the library is an almost unrivalled collection of engravings, originally commenced by Prince Eugene, and now containing 300 000 of the finest prints. The university library has 120 000 volumes, that of the Theresianum 80 000 and that of military archives 24,000. Besides these are several valuable private libraries, to which access can easily be had, among others the emperor's private library, 60 000 vols. the library of the Archduke Charles 40 000, of Prince Liechtenstein, 50 000, of Prince Schwarzenburg, 40,000; of Prince Esterházy, 30 000, and of Count Schönborn-Buchheim, 20,000.

Museums, Picture-Galleries and other Collections.—The museum of natural history adjoining the Imperial Library has one of the largest herbariums in existence, and is particularly rich in ornithology. The cabinet of minerals consists of five divisions—mineralogy geognosy fossils zoology, and pictures in mosaic—all excellent and some unrivalled. The cabinet of antiquities contains about 60 000 coins and medals, 12 000 Greek vases, several celebrated armours and integuments, and an enormous mass, 384 inches in diameter, which formed part of the dowry of Mary of Burgundy, wife of the Emperor Maximilian. The Schatzkammer or treasury contains the imperial jewels, and among other remarkable curiosities the regalia of Charlemagne, taken out of his grave at Aix-la-Chapelle. The cabinet of Egyptian antiquities is particularly rich in mummies, and the collection of Ambras, so called from a castle in the Tyrol where it was commenced includes a remarkable assemblage of ancient and modern armour, together with a series of antique sculptures, and a museum of natural objects and works of art. Among the latter is the celebrated salt cellar made by Bevenuto Cellini for Francis I. The upper picture-gallery, in the Upper Belvedere contains about 1200 pictures, among which are excellent specimens of almost all the different schools of painting. The other principal galleries are those of Prince Esterházy Prince Liechtenstein, Count Czernin and Count Schönborn-Buchheim. The sculpture-gallery owes its chief attractions to modern artists, Canova, Thorwaldsen, &c.

Asylums, Correctional, and Charitable Establishments.—These are very numerous, and include a general hospital (Allgemeine-Krankenkasse), an enormous pile composed of seven quadrangles containing 2000 beds and annually receiving 16 000 patients connected with it a general lying-in and foundling hospital greatly needed in a city in which according to the statistics of 1849 above one-half of the births are illegitimate, a lunatic asylum, recently completed on a new plan and regarded as a model of its class, a humane society for the recovery of persons only apparently dead by drowning or otherwise, a deaf and dumb institute, a Jewish and various other hospitals particularly those of the Brothers and Sisters of Charity, a large well-known penitentiary and house of correction for the province and an Imperial penitentiary and workhouse a blind asylum, an orphan hospital and various establishments of a similar description; a savings' bank, a mont-de-piété, a society for the relief of widows and orphans, and numerous almshouses and charitable foundations, both public and private.

Societies and similar Associations.—The most important are the Vienna academy of sciences, the geological institute of the Austrian Empire the Imperial geographical society, the polytechnic institute or society of arts, with a valuable collection of implements, models, and designs, the academy of the fine arts, including four schools—one for painters and sculptors, another for architects, a third for engravers, and a length for manufacturing designs; the imperial agricultural society, the philharmonic society of the Austrian Empire, and conservatory of music, and various other musical associations.

Public Monuments.—There are neither numerous nor very remarkable. Among the finest are the equestrian and colossal statue of Joseph II., by Kauer in the Josephstadt, the handsome monument of the late emperor Francis I., by Marchion in the Burgplatz; and above all the marble statue of Theresa, executed by Canova, and set up in the temple of Theresa in the Volksgarten.

Amusements.—Of these the citizens of Vienna are extravagantly fond, and the demand thus created has not failed to call forth a corresponding supply. In all quarters gardens, coffee, and similar establishments, are open, where excellent music, much harmless and not a little vicious pleasure are easily obtained. The more systematic establishments for amusement are an opera-house, where operas and ballets are performed in a style not surpassed elsewhere, and four theatres, one called the Hof or Burg theatre, attached to the palace, and appropriated to the regular drama, another, the Vienna theatre, the largest and handsomest in the city and celebrated for melodramas and spectacles the third, in the Josephstadt, of an interesting description, and the fourth, in the Leopoldstadt, which is the favourite resort of the middle and lower classes, and furnishes, in the humour and rather coarse jokes of the pieces performed, an accurate idea of the popular taste and character.

Some of the most attractive objects belonging properly to Vienna are not within the town, but at a short distance from it, in the environs. The most celebrated of these is Bobolbrunn, about 2 m. distant, and the summer-residence of the emperor. Its fine gardens are the great holiday-resort of the citizens. Other places which share with it in this respect are Haiding, with its famous Haiding, with its Tivoli, Lachenburg with its palace and its fine avenue connecting it with Schönbrunn, and Baden with its romantic valleys. The latter are placed at some distance but with other places still more distant, have been rendered easily accessible by the completion of two railways—the one on the N called the Kaiser-Ferdinands Nordbahn and the other on the S. called the Gloggnitzer and Brucknerbahn.

Manufactures and Trade.—Vienna is unquestionably the first manufacturing town in the empire. The most important articles are cotton and silk goods, particularly shawls, millinery shawls, and other articles in leather, porcelain, made chiefly at the government-factory and distinguished equally by the fineness of the ware, the beauty of its designs, and brilliancy of its colours, sword-cutlery, firearms, and cannon, the latter made chiefly at the government-foundry tobacco, a government monopoly, manurehouse-pipes, and musical and optical instruments, cutlery hardware, white-lead, bronzes and other metallic goods, paper liquors, chemical products, watches, and jewelry. In the arts of letter-press and lithographic printing and in the adaptation of the electrotype process to printing the imperial office has produced specimens not surpassed anywhere. The trade, notwithstanding the disadvantages of an inland position, is also very extensive, Vienna being a central depot not only for its own provinces, N of the Alps, but for the traffic between the E and the W of Europe. The number of wealthy mercantile houses, many of them in the hands of Greeks, is great, and money transactions to a very large amount are carried on. The national bank, established during the Seven Years war and well managed, has contributed greatly to the commercial prosperity, and its shares bear a high premium.

Bathery.—Vienna appears to have been a Roman station in the 1st century and to have borne the name of Fabiana. It was afterwards included in Upper Pannonia, and received the name of Vindobona. On the decline of the Roman Empire it experienced the common fate, and was pillaged by the Goths and Huns. It afterwards formed part of the empire of Charlemagne who erected it into a bishopric, and contributed much to its prosperity. Under him it became the capital of a margraviate, and the surrounding territory received the name of Austria, or Oesterreich, the Eastern kingdom. Its first sovereigns were princes of the Babenberg family who afterwards changed their title to that of Dukes, and continued to rule till the 13th century when the line became extinct. Vienna then came into the possession of Ottokar of Bohemia.

By him it was greatly increased in extent, and improved in appearance but in consequence of his refusal to acknowledge the election of the emperor Rudolph, was subjected to a six weeks siege. Not long after it passed, with Austria itself, to the house of Hapsburg. In 1484, Matthias, king of Hungary, gained possession of it, after a siege, and made it the seat of his court. Under the emperor Maximilian I. it became the capital, and has ever since been the habitual residence of the head of the Austrian family. Under Ferdinand I. a host of Turks mustering 120,000 men, and 600 pieces of cannon, appeared before the walls, burned the suburbs, and battered down a great part of the city, but the defence, though conducted by only 16,000 regular troops, and 4000 citizens, was so valiant that the Turks were forced to retire. Before the disasters which they had caused were repaired, the plague visited the city in 1679, and carried off 130,000 persons in 11 months. In 1685 the Turks re-appeared, with a still more formidable host than before, headed by the grand-vizier Kara-Mustapha. The defence was most valiantly conducted for two months by Count Radiger, of Starbemberg, but had become almost hopeless, when the celebrated John Sobieski suddenly appeared with his Poles, and the Turkish host was almost annihilated. A long period of rest and prosperity followed, though interrupted by the wars of the French revolution, an inundation of the Danube in 1830, the fearful ravages of the cholera in 1832 and the commotions of 1848, Vienna has grown up to be one of the great capitals of Europe; and having recently become the centre of a great railway system promises to advance still more rapidly than it has ever done before. Pop. (1846), 407,980 (1844) 500,000.

VIENNA, a v. l. U. States, New York, about 170 m W Albany at the outlet of Cayuga Lake, and on the Auburn and Rochester railway with three churches, a female seminary, four plaster and saw mills, distilleries, manufacturers of clothing, &c. Pop. 1600.

VIENNA, a t. Upper Canada, on Otter Creek so and 42 m S.E. London. It is improving fast, has three Protestant churches, several schools, and a large trade in lumber with manufacturers of cloth iron leather, chairs, &c. several grist and saw mills, a distillery and a brewery. Pop. 1400.

VIENNE a dep France bounded N by dep. Maine-et-Loire and Indre-et-Loire, E. Indre, S. Haute-Vienne and Charente, and W Deux Sèvres greatest length, N.W. to S.E., 78 m. breadth 53 m. area, 3574 sq. m. The surface, though nowhere mountainous, is very much diversified, particularly in the S. and N.W., by numerous low hills; is well watered being traversed S to N by the Vienne, which gives the dep. its name, and in its N frontier by the Creuse, both navigable and belonging to the basin of the Loire has a mild, though changeable climate, and is generally healthy. Nearly one-third of the surface is arable, one-eighth under wood, and one ninth waste. The cereals produced more than satisfy the home consumption; principal crops after them are hemp, flax and potatoes. A considerable extent of surface is occupied by vineyards, but the wine is inferior. Chestnuts abound in the woods, and form an important resource to the poorer inhabitants. Iron is abundant and there are excellent quarries of marble, granite, millstones, whetstones, lithographic stones, and limestone. The manufactures consist of serge, coarse woollen stuffs, silks, common lace, cutlery millinery and starch. There are also numerous bleachfields, tanneries, paper mills, blast furnaces, and other iron-works. The cap. of the dep. is Poitiers. Pop. (1825), 217,865.

VIENNE (anc. Vienne Allobroge) a tn. France, dep. Isère, at the foot of an amphitheatre of hills, 1 hour above, here crossed by a suspension-bridge leading to the suburb of St. Colomb, 49 m. W N.W. Grenoble. It is a very nice place, and very indifferently built, having only a few small squares, and narrow, dark, steep and winding streets. The principal edifice are the cathedral, with a W front flanked by two towers, and decorated with numerous but tasteless flamboyant ornaments; the church and cloister of the ancient abbey of St. André-le-Bas, with a fine Renaissance tower; the museum; public library of 10,000 vols the college, a handsome structure, once belonging to the Jesuits; the infirmary, hospital, and work-house. The manufactures are woollens, common laces, green soap, and chemical products. There are also silk-mills, dye-works, tanneries, glass-works, paper-mills, copper and lead furnaces, iron-mills, and blast-furnaces. The trade, which is important, is in wine, woollen cloth, iron, steel, copper lead, and zinc. Vienna contains numerous Roman remains. It is one of the first towns of France into which Christianity was introduced, and makes a considerable figure in ecclesiastical history. Pop. 18,818.

VIENNE.—A busy street, Viège (near) in the town of Vienna.

VIENNE (Haute) [Upper Vienne] a dep. France, bounded N by depts. Vienne and Indre, E. Creuse S. Corrèze and Dordogne, and W. Charente, greatest length, N to S, 86 m. average breadth 50 m. area, 2118 sq. m. The surface is covered by numerous hills and mountains, which are highest in the E. and slope gradually to W. At first they are almost destitute of vegetation, but as they descend begin to be covered with hush and pine, and lastly exhibit extensive forests in which a prominent place is occupied by the chestnut. The commanding point, Mont Jargeau, 2118 ft., separates the basin of the Loire, to which almost the whole dep. belongs from those of the Charente and Dordogne. The principal rivers are the Vienne, Gartempe, Brance, and Taurion. The climate is cold moist, and variable and hence Lamagne, though 5° farther S. than Paris, has its mean temperature lower. The arable land is much less than one-half of the whole one-sixth is absolutely waste. Little of the soil being adapted for wheat, the principal crops are buck-wheat, rye, maize, and peas. On the mountain pastures many horses, mules and swine of superior breeds, are reared. A considerable quantity of millstone iron is produced. The minerals include iron, copper ore, lead, antimony ore, and an excellent seam of kaolin which is largely employed in the porcelain-works in the neighbourhood of Paris. The principal manufactures are porcelain, common woollen and other tissues paper and leather. There are also many glass-works, blast-furnaces steel and other iron works. Limoges is the capital. Pop. (1882), 219,879.

VIENNE (Loire) [anc. Vienne] a river France, which gives its name to two depts. rises on the plateau of Millerauche dep. Corrèze, flows W. across Haute-Vienne, passing Limoges, enters dep. Charente, turns first almost due N., then N.W. and joins the bank Loire at Candou. Its principal affluents are, on the right, the Thoron, Isore, and Creuse and on the left, the Combrade, Grande-Brance, Vaire, and Clain. Of its course of 220 m., 60 m., beginning at Châtelleraul, are navigable.

VIENNOIS, an ancient dist. France, which belonged to former prov. Dauphiné, and had Vienna for its cap. It is now included in depts. Drôme and Isère.

VIEQUE, one of the Virgin isls. W. Indies. See BRISQVA.

VIERLANDE the common name applied to a small territory in the N. of Germany comprising the four villages of Altengarn, Curslack, Kirch-Wirder and Neusengarn, belonging jointly to the towns Hamburg and Lübeck, and situated between the Elbe and the Hille. It is protected from the Elbe by dikes. It is remarkably fertile and the inhabitants, who are distinguished solely by the peculiarity of their dress and their language, are mostly engaged in agriculture and cattle-raising, and in raising vegetables, flowers, and fruits, including immense quantities of strawberries, for the markets of Hamburg and Altona. Pop. 8500.

VIERLINGSBEEK, a vil. Holland prov. N. Brabant, 20 m. E.S.E. Hertogenbosch, near l. bank Maas, with a church, synagogue, school and new townhall. Pop. (agricultural), 808.

VIERNHIM a vil. Hesse-Darmstadt, princely. Steinhilburg 8 m. S.W. Heppenheim, on a forest of the same name. with a church. Pop. 9498.

VIERRADEN a tn. Prussia prov. Brandenburg, gov. Potsdam, 24 m. S.W. Stettin with two churches, and manufactures of tobacco. Pop. 1611.

VIERSEN, a tn. Rhinish Prussia, gov. and 18 m. W. Düsseldorf, on the Maas with two churches, manufactures of linen, woollen, cotton, and silk goods velvet, lace, ribbons, hats, vinegar, and soap bleach fields, dye works, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 4917.

VIERWALLSTÄTTEN See LÜCKEN (Lake of).

VIERZON, or VIERZON-VILLE [anc. Verme], a tn. France, dep. Cher, amid vine-slopes and meadows, at the confluence of the Ocher and Yèvre, and the junction of the Orleans, Chateaufort and Nevers railways 20 m. N.W. Bourges. It consists of well built houses roofed with slate, a handsome principal and several other regular streets, and has manufactures of woollen cloth sugar honey leather parchment, porcelain and stone ware. Near it are blast-furnaces, and other iron-works. Pop. 6210.

VIESELY a tn. France, dep. Nord 10 m. N.E. Cambrai. It has a church, with a lofty steeple. Pop. 2715.

VIENTI [anc. Apennine] a tn. Naples, prov. Capitanata, on a peninsula forming the N.E. extremity of Mount Gargano and washed on three sides by the Adriatic, 45 m. N.E. Foggia. It has ancient walls, a strong castle, a cathedral two convents, and a small harbor, frequented chiefly by fishing boats. Pop. 4700.

VIENTI two places, Naples.—1. A tn. prov. Principato Citra, 1 m. W. Salerno on a hill near the Tyrrhenian Sea, with a number of well built private mansions, a convent with an almshouse paper-mills and a considerable trade.—2. A tn., prov. Benevento, 15 m. W. S. Potenza, with a convent, hospital and two almshouses. Pop. 3600.

VIELZ, a vil. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg gov. and 26 m. N.E. Frankfurt with a church a cannon-foundry, and other iron-works. Pop. 1625.

VIEUX COUSIN, a tn. France, dep. Nord 9 m. N. Valenciennes, near the Scheldt, with a brewery a fine nursery, and extensive collieries. Pop. 4286.

VIELUX GARNIER, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Dyle, 17 m. S. Brussels with a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1199.

VIF a tn. France, dep. Loire, 10 m. S. Grenoble with potteries and silk mills. Pop. 1113.

VIG a river Russia, rises in the N. of gov. Olonetz, expands into a lake of same name flows about 170 m., first S.W. then V. and falls into the White Sea. Its current is broken by several cataracts.

VIGAN, a seaport in Philippines, N.W. coast, Isl. Luzon, cap. of prov. N. Ilocos at the mouth of an arm of the Abra with a governor's house, a cathedral extensive barracks, building yards, and an important trade, chiefly in the hands of the Chinese. Pop. 17,295.

VIGAN (Luz) [anc. Finesse] a tn. France, dep. Gard at the foot of the Cévennes, 40 m. W. N. Narbonne. It is well built; and has a primary court, a counting chamber of manufactures, an agricultural society manufactures of silk and cotton stockings leather and a kind of white skins which bear the name of Vigan, several cotton-mills; and a trade in silk, wine, oil, leather mules, and horses. Pop. 4594.

VIGATIO [anc. Finesse], a vil. and com. Italy and 6 m. S. Parma, l. bank Parma, with a church, a primary school, and a trade in corn, wine, silk, and cattle. P. 4486.

VIGEVANO (St.) prov. Boet. Forth, 7 m. by 4. P. 9790.

VIGEVANO a walled tn. Italy Piedmont, dist. Novara, and 59 m. N.E. Turin, near r. bank Terno. It is well built, and has a cathedral, in a large and handsome square surrounded by porticoes, two other churches, and cavalry harkness, an episcopal seminary, a convent, a college, and other schools; a panopticon an ordinary and flourishing hospital and manufactures of silk stuffs, hats, soap, and macaroni. A post was signed here in 1694. Pop. 15,321

VIGIANELLO, a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 20 m. S.E. Lescosuro; with three churches. Pop. 3820.

VIGIANO, a vil. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 21 m. S.E. Potenza, with four churches, a convent, hospital, and two almshouses. Pop. 5700

VIGIU or VIGU a vil and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. and 21 m. W. Como; with a magnificent parish church a remarkable grotto, fine marble-quarries, and a mineral-spring. The decree of the emperor Sigismund, calling the council of Constance, was dated here. Pop. 2100.

VIGIA, or SIO-JOES non-ALANCO, a tn. Brazil prov. and about 60 m. from Para, on the Guajara, a tributary of the Amazon. It was founded by the Jesuits, who built here a college and a conventual establishment; has three churches, and a trade in coffee and cacao. Pop. (dist.) 10,000

VIGIPARA a tn. Cuchma. See BUENAR.

VIGNACOURT a vil. France, dep. Somme 11 m. from Amiens. Pop. 3851

VIGNALE, a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. and 7 m. S. Canale with two churches. Pop. 2189

VIGNANE, a vil. Austria, Dalmatia, near Spalatro, with a church, an infirmary and an active trade with Turkey. Pop. 1928

VIGNANELLO a tn. Papal States, 8 m. E. E. V. Marbo, near the Maggiore. Pop. 1060

VIGNOLA a tn. Naples prov. Basilicata, 5 m. S.E. W. Potenza, with a collegiate and several other churches a lofty battery two convents, an hospital and a famous fair of eight days. Pop. 4000

VIGNULO, a vil and com. Italy Piedmont, div. and 5 m. S.W. Coni with a parish church, an oratory and a charitable endowment. Pop. 1209

VIGO, a lake, Russia, in the N. of gov. Olonets, about 50 m. long N.W. to S.E. by 18 m. broad. It communicates with Lake Soga, receives the Vig at the S.E. and discharges itself by a river of the same name into the White Sea.

VIGO, a city Spain Galicia, prov. and 15 m. S. Pontevedra lat. 42° 14' 45" N; lon 6° 44' W (n) on the slope of a hill, and on the shore of a spacious bay from which it presents a very picturesque and diversified aspect by its towered and amphitheatrical construction. It is surrounded by a double wall with six gates and has a battery and several forts, steep, narrow, tortuous streets, three squares in which are held the weekly markets a small townhouse and prisons, a up and down the coast. Here foreign vice-consuls reside. Agriculture, navigation, fishing, and curing codfishes form the principal employment of the inhabitants, while some are engaged in making canals, loading and unloading vessels, &c. There are also flour-mills, and looms for ordinary linens. Wine, maize, kidney beans, sericeae, &c., are exported, and wheat, oil, and other commodities imported. Vigo has been often attacked and almost destroyed by the English. Sir Francis Drake was here in 1595 and 1599; and in the war of succession Admiral Rooke and General Stanhope destroyed the gallies fleet and French convoys. Pop. 5590.

VIGOLENO, a vil. and com. Parma, duchy and 22 m. S.E. Piacenza, with a church, a ruined castle, and a trade in corn wine, chestnuts, and cattle. Pop. 4387

VIGOLEONE, a vil and com. Parma, duchy and 10 m. S. Piacenza; with a castle, a primary school, a copper, an iron, and two paper mills, and a trade in corn, wine, cattle and timber. Pop. 8088

VIGONE a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and 9 m. S.E. Pinerolo, in a plain. It was once walled, and has two ancient parish churches of baroque Gothic, a large ordinary and orphan hospital, and a superior school. P. 3808.

VIGTEN (Tun, Muz. and Yr), three parallel islands, lying close to each other in a S.W. and N.E. direction, off W. coast Norway have \ Trondhjem lat. (W. extremity) 64° 46' N lon 16° 24' E (S.)

VIGUFLA a tn. Spain Old Castile prov. and 13 m. S. Logroño, on a hill above r. bank Irroga. It has a well formed square, a parish church, courthouses, primary school and old palace a fulling and two flour mills, gypsum-kilns, and a trade in charcoal. Pop. 1266.

VIGUZZOLO a tn. Italy Piedmont, div. Alessandria prov. and 8 m. N.E. Tortona, on the Carroone. It was once walled and is still entered by two towered gates, and has a parish church, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 2105 VILHAR, a princip. Hindoostan. See COCHIN-BABAR.

VILNYE (Kamensk) a vil. Hungary co. Szol. in a narrow valley enclosed by lofty mountains, about 10 m. from Szabolcs with celebrated and much-frequented thermal springs, and a trade in maize and fruit.

VILJAYA PORA, See BEZAJOUR.

VILJAYANAGARA city Hindoostan. See BEZAJOUR.

VILKARTOCS, or WENCSOOR a vil. Hungary, Hither Thales, co. Zips, about 80 m. from Leisnau; with a church, saw and flour mills, and a trade in timber. Pop. 1239

VILKUR, or GEORABAKER, a tn. Svalde, 20 m. from the sea, r. bank Haparand branch of the Indus lat. 24° 14' N lon 67° 35' E. Vikkur was at one time the port for the greater part of the commerce of the delta of the Indus but in consequence of a change in the bed of the Haparand, it is no longer accessible by water. It is now a measurable place with only a few huts.

VILAFABELA, a tn. Spain, Leon, prov. and 18 m. N.E. Zamora, with four churches, a courthouse, prison, and primary school. Pop. 1158.

VILAGOS (Latin, Vico) a market tn. Hungary, co. and 17 m. N.E. And with the ruins of an ancient castle which is famous in the wars of Hungary, and also a modern castle. Near it are the mineral springs of Szend-Kut. Pop. 6166.

VILAINNE (Latin, Harles, or Vicentina), a river, France, rises W. of Brode, dep. Mayenne, enters dep. Orne-et-Vilaine; flows W. to Nemun, where it is joined by the Ille canal then S.W. to Redon, then W.R.W. past Roche-St. Bernard, and falls into the Atlantic at the port of Rennes, where a course of 185 m. of which about 90 m. are navigable. French of 200 tons ascend as far as Redon. Its principal affluents are the May, Cher, Oise, and Ille.

VILALLONSA, a vil. Spain, Catalonia, prov. and about 7 m. from Tarragona; with a beautiful church, a courthouse, and primary school; manufactures of linen, a silk and several oil mills, and numerous distilleries. Pop. 1121

VILASA-DI-MAR (San Juan de), a vil. Spain, Cataluna prov. and about 20 m. from Barcelona, on the Mediterranean, VIGIO.—From Victor's Survey of Spain and Portugal.

handsome theatre, a granary, fish-market, a college, founded in 1580; besides various schools, public and private, for primary education; a military hospital, a custom-house, an almshouse, a lazaretto, a good port, a tribunal of commerce, a board of commerce, a substantial Doric parish church, and a chapel. This very ancient port was much injured by the establishment at St. Ferrol, but now it is reviving, and is the point where the Peninsular steamers touch, when going VILLA FRANCA, a tu. Brasil, prov. Para, on a lake communicating with the Amazon on the right and the Tapajós on the left, 20 m. S.W. Santarém. It has a parish church, and a fertile district inhabited by Indians, who gather great quantities of manioc. Pop. (Est.) 4,000.

VILLA MARIA, a tu. Brasil, prov. Mato-Grosso, 1 bank Paraguay, 110 m. N.W. Curitiba with a parish church. The inhabitants cultivate millet, rice, manioc, haricots, and sugar-cane, and raise some cattle. Pop. 1,000.

VILLA MARIMBA, a vill. and com. of Sardinia, div. Cagliari, prov. and 6 m. S.E. Iglesias, on an unhealthy plain at the midst of marshes. Pop. 2,850.

VILLA-NOVA, or VILLA VITORIA-DA-MADRE-DE-DIUS, a tu. Brazilian Galesia, prov. and 200 m. W.N.W. Para, 1 bank Amazon, about 25 m. above its confluence with the Amazon. It has a parish church, and a fertile alluvial district, well adapted for rice. Sannaparilla is everywhere met with.

VILLA-NOVA-MONTE-LEONE, a vill. and com. of Sardine, div. and 15 m. S.E. Sassari, on a plain at the S. foot of Monte Leone, in a tolerably healthy district. Pop. 5,429.

VILLA PAVU, a vill. and com. of Sardine, div. and 36 m. N.E. Cagliari, 1 bank Fiume. There are some of lignite in the vicinity. Pop. 2,162.

VILLA REGIA, the former name of ORO-PETRO (misused).

VILLA-SALIZ, a vill. and com. of Sardine, 82 m. N.E. Cagliari, finely situated on a hill, in a healthy district. P. 1,537.

VILLA-SOR, a vill. and com. of Sardine, div. and 15 m. N.W. Cagliari, on an unhealthy plain with a Capuchin and a Cordilleran monastery and a trade in corn. Pop. 1,698.

VILLA VALSA, a vill. Brasil. See ESPORITO (SASTO).

VILLA VASCA, an Indian tu. Brasil, prov. Bahia, near the Maranhão, 80 m. S.W. Porto-Seguro, with a parish church, a primary school, and some trade in cotton and timber.

VILLACARAR, a tu. Spain, New Castile, prov. Toledo, 56 m. S.E.E. Madrid, situated in a plain near the Rianares, it has spacious, straight, paved, clean-kept streets, but in the back parts of the town there are more than 300 subterranean hovels, inhabited by the poorest class. There are a town-house with prison, chapter-rooms, archives, and a flesh market, all in the same building, several primary schools, parish church, and hermitage. Near it are three salt-pools. The manufactures consist of cloths and serge, tashes, garters, and platted silk, a dye-works and several flour-mills. Pop. 3,275.

VILLACERILLO, a tu. Spain, Andalucia, prov. Jaen, between the rivers Guadalquivir and Guadalquivir. It has an hospital for the sick poor, a public granary, townhouse and prison, two primary schools, an elegant and substantial church, and a manufactory with a pretty church. 86 small breadly distilleries, two flour-mills on the Guadalquivir, 15 oil-mills, and four soap-manufactories. Pop. 4,504.

VILLACE, a tu. Spain, prov. and about 5 m. from Leon with a church, a primary school, and a trade in corn, wine and fruit. Pop. 1,350.

VILLACH, a vill. and com. of Austria, Myria, gov. and 63 m. N.W. Ljubljana, cap. circle, 1 bank Drava. It is well built and has two churches, a high school, a strong castle, a theatre, and coarse manufactures of white-lead litharge, vermilion, and shot, and a trade in these articles, and in iron, for which it is an important outport. Pop. 2,487.

VILLADA, a vill. Spain, Leon, prov. and W. Palencia with a townhouse, granary two primary schools, and two parish churches, manufactures of hats, collars, saddle bags, hats, &c. Pop. (agricultural) 2,216.

VILLADEATI, a vill. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. and 13 m. W. Casale with a handsome Gothic parish church. Pop. 2,149.

VILLADICANCA, a vill. Spain, prov. and 60 m. from Leon, with a church, an endowed school, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1,071.

VILLADONSE, a vill. Italy, Venetia, prov. Polesine, 1 bank Adige, 7 m. E. Rovigo, with a trade in cattle and silk. Pop. 2,000.

VILLADEROSA DE-HANO, a tu. Spain, New Castile, prov. and about 35 m. from Leon. It is well built and has a church, a handsome townhouse, a school, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1,350.

VILLAFAMEA, a tu. Spain, Valencia, prov. and 10 m. from Castellón de la Plana, 1 bank Mestor. It is walled and defended by a castle; and has a parish church with a lower, a courteous prison, and primary school, and an oil and flour mill. Pop. 1,978.

VILLAFRANCA, numerous places, Spain, particularly:—1. A vill. prov. Navarra, and 17 m. N.W. Tudela, near the river Aragón. It has a townhouse and prison, two primary schools, parish church, three hermitages, and various fountains. The inhabitants are generally employed in tillage and rearing cattle. Pop. 2,237.—2. (del-Ob.) A tu. Valencia, prov. and 55 m. N.W. Castellón-de-la-Plana, on a steep height; with a church, courthouse, primary school, and hospital, manufactures of woollens and soap, dye-works, a chocolate and several flour mills, and some trade. Many of the inhabitants are molesters. Pop. 1,189.—3. (de-Cordoba) A tu. Andalusia, prov. and 17 m. N.E. Cordova, 1 bank Guadalquivir; with a townhouse, granary, poorhouse, primary school, academy for girls, parish church, and three hermitages; oil and flour mills, weaving houses and coarse cloths, a pottery, several brick and lime kilns, and a tannery. Pop. 3,594.—4. (de-la-Sierra) A tu. Old Castile, prov. and 23 m. W. Avila. It is indifferently built, and has a church, an old Moorish castle, a courthouse, and trade in wool, corn, and fruit. Pop. 1,119.—5. (de-la-Sierra) A tu. Basque, prov. and 33 m. S.E. Rodas, with straight but ill-paved and dirty streets, a large square with a planted promenade in its centre, a townhouse, archives, and granary, a poorhouse, three schools, a parish church, two hermitages, and several fountains, and a considerable number of flour and oil mills. Pop. (agricultural) 4,406.—6. (de-la-Cala) A tu. New Castile, prov. and 29 m. E. S. Toledo, near the Amarguillo. It consists of seven houses, generally of two stories, and arranged in straight well paved streets, and has a church, manufactures of woollens, several flour-mills, and a trade in woollens, corn, and cattle. Pop. 1,950.—7. (del-Penedes) A tu. Catalonia, prov. and 23 m. W. S.W. Barcelona. It is walled, and has three suburbs, and three squares, barracks, prisons, town house, a theatre, a civil and military hospital, a poorhouse, and other benevolent institutions, various schools for primary and advanced education, a large and lofty parish church, a sumptuous three suppressed convents, several chapels, a fish and a flesh market; cotton-spinning, and the manufacture of cloths and leather, once very considerable, have sunk to insignificance, but pottery is greatly on the increase, and is much esteemed. There are also two gymnasiums, four large houses, distilleries, cooperages, and several chemical works. Pop. 5,511.—8. (del-Viejo) A tu. prov. and 66 m. W. Leon, at the confluence of the Nerva and Valcarlos, which are crossed by several bridges. About half of the houses are regularly built, large, and commodious. It has a townhouse, a prison in the ancient palace of the dukes of Villafraña, an old Jesuit college, an hospital barracks an Augustinian manufactory, a Franciscan manufactory with a beautiful church, a synagogical collegiate church, and the church of the extinct convent of Franciscan monks, four parish churches, various primary schools, a professorship of Latin, and three public granaries, manufactures of household linen and shoes, flour-mills, and a pottery. Pop. 3,150.—9. (de-Palencia) A tu. Andalusia, prov. and 12 m. E. Seville with a townhouse and prison, four primary schools, a parish church, and several hermitages, almost entirely ruined; seven oil-mills, and a number of flour-mills. Pop. 3,187.

VILLAFRANCA, a seaport in France, dep. Alpes Maritimes, 1 m. E.N.E. Nice, on the Mediterranean. It rises from a small bay in the form of an amphitheatre, is defended by a fort and has three churches, a commodious hospital, an old convent, a public school, an excellent harbour, with a wet-dock, a productive tannery factory, and a trade in oil, fruit, silk, wine, corn, and hemp. Pop. 2,574.

VILLAFRANCA, a vill. Italy, Venetia, prov. and S.W. Verona, 1 bank Tevere. It is well built, and has a fine old castle flanked with towers, and was once of great importance.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, or VILLAFRANCA-DE-PINCHOT, a tu. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and 12 m. S.E. Pinerolo, 1 bank Po, where it first becomes navigable. It was once walled, and is regularly built, containing thirty of two good streets, and three squares; and has two parish and several other churches, a Capuchin convent, a college or gymnasium, an hospital, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 2,573.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRANCA, a tu. Sicily, prov. and W.N.W. Girgenti. Agates are found in the vicinity. Pop. 2,700.

VILLAFRECHOS, a tn. Spain, Leon, prov and 38 m. N W Valladolid, on a height between the Marredal and the Abogaberos with three churches, a courthouse, school, flour-mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1514.

VILLAGARCIA, two places, Spain:—1, A tn. Extremadura, prov and 65 m. from Badajoz, with two churches, a courthouse, primary school, and a ruined castle; manufactures of soap several oil mills, and a trade in corn, fruit, and cattle. Pop. 1822.—2, A tn. New Castle, prov and 48 m. from Cáceres; with a townhouse, church, school, some domestic weaving, manufactures of shoeleather, and oil-mills. Pop. (agricultural) 1365.

VILLAGONZALO, a tn. Spain Extremadura, prov and about 26 m. from Badajoz, near the Guadiana. It is poorly built and has a church a hermitage, a courthouse, an endowed school, manufactures of woollens, tile-works, and several flour-mills. Pop. 1190.

VILLAHERRERA, two places, Spain:—1 A vil. Valencia, prov and 58 m. N W Castellón-de-la-Plana, situated on a river of the same name. It has regular but very steep streets, a townhouse, prison, a small hospital two primary schools, and a parish church. There are three hermitages in the neighbourhood, and at some distance are seen the lofty peak of Pelagatos, upwards of 6000 ft. high, and the hill called La Hor with mines of copper and silver. It has some domestic linen-weaving and six flour-mills. P. (agricultural), 1760.—2 A tn. New Castle, prov and 47 m. E.S.E. Ciudad-Real with a townhouse, prison, granary, two primary schools parish church and several hermitages. P. (agricultural) 3445.

VILLAINES-LE-JONKEL, a tn. France, Dep. and 18 m. E Mayenne, with manufactures of woollen stuffs. Pop. 1500.

VILLAJUOSA, a seaport in Spain, Valencia, prov and 20 m. N E Alicante, on the coast of the Mediterranean, at the mouth of the Vilia. It has two small squares, one of which, with a fountain in the centre, serves as the flower-market a townhouse custom-house, a large and secure prison a lighthouse on the shore, a parish church of solid Tuscan architecture, a suppressed convent, with a church in which there is public worship and four primary schools manufacture of soap, hemp, and separate cordage, woollen tissues for sails, household linen, and hampers made. The women are employed in working the aquatic, and making sailing tackle, but the principal branches of industry are navigation, fishing, and the trade of the muleteers. Above 400 small coasters enter and clear annually. A pier is much wanted and the anchorage for large vessels is not good. Both in the town and vicinity have been found sepulchres, capitals of columns, fragments of statues, medals, translated pavements and mosaics, as well as stones with Roman inscriptions. Pop. 9097.

VILLALBA several places, Spain:—1 A tn. Catalonia, prov and 45 m. from Terragona, with a church, courthouse, primary school and a trade in oil. Pop. 1385.—2 A tn. Extremadura, prov and 30 m. S.E. Badajoz, on a height above the Guadajira. It consists of wall built houses, and regular streets; and has a church courthouse, school ruinous castle, several oil and flour mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1556.

VILLALBA, a tn. Sicily prov and not far from Catanzaro. Pop. 1460.

VILLALGORDO-DE-JUQUA, a tn. Spain Murcia, prov and 20 m. from Albacete, near the Júcar, here crossed by a bridge, with a church, courthouse, primary school, paper oil and cotton mills. Pop. 1098.

VILLALON-DE-CARLOS, a tn. Spain, Old Castle, prov and 88 m. N W Valladolid with many elegant and substantially built houses, a handsome Gothic hospital five primary schools three parish churches, one of them a fine Gothic edifice two suppressed convents, one of them converted into a barracks; three flour-mills four dye-works, manufactures of dressed-oil shoeleather, leather, woollen, linen and hampers fabrics, and the exquisite shoes so much famed at Madrid and elsewhere. Pop. 4674.

VILLALONGA, a tn. Spain, Valencia, prov and 40 m. from Alicante, a tn. Algeria, with a church, a chapel, courthouse, prison, and primary school, oil and flour mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1508.

VILLALPANDO, a vil. Old Castle, prov and 42 m. N N W Valladolid, 1 bank Valderaduey, with a townhouse two primary schools, eight parish churches, a nursery and two suppressed convents. Pop. (agricultural) 2500.

VILLALUENGA several places, Spain:—1 (de-la-Sagra), A tn. New Castle, prov and about 14 m. E Toledo, poorly built of earth, with a church, a ruinous castle, a courthouse, school limestone-quarries and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1000.—2, (de-Rosario) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 60 m. from Cadix, irregularly built, with a church, courthouse, and school manufactures of linen, coarse woollens, and corbs and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1682.

VILLALVA-DE-ALCORA, a vil. Spain, Andalusia, prov and 36 m. E N E. Huelva with a townhouse, primary school, various fountains, and a Gothic parish church, which formerly belonged to the Templars, and was erected on the site of an ancient temple of Juno. Pop. (agricultural) 2689.

VILLALVA-DE-RATZ, a tn. Spain, New Castle, prov and 26 m. from Cuenca, tolerably built; with an elegant church a primary school tile works an oil and a flour mill, and a trade in corn and mules. Pop. 1149.

VILLAMALISA, a tn. Spain, Murcia, prov and 38 m. from Albacete, near the Cabriel, with a church, a ruined palace, a courthouse, prison, and primary school manufactures of carpets, and filtering paper, and flour mills. P. 1848.

VILLAMARSA, a tn. Spain, prov and 18 m. S. E. Leon, near the Esla. It has a large and beautiful church, with a lofty tower a courthouse and prison, a primary and a Latin school manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, several flour mills and a trade in wine, wool &c. Pop. 1951.

VILLAMANRIQUE-DE-ZUCROA, a vil. Spain Andalusia prov and 20 m. W Seville, with a palace of the counts of Alameda, a townhouse a granary three primary schools, a parish church in the ex convent of Franciscans, and a small hermitage, wood-cutting, charcoal burning, various oil and flour mills and a soap manufactory. Pop. 9249.

VILLAMAYOR, numerous places Spain:—1 (de-Coletores) A tn. New Castle prov and 12 m. S.S.W. Ciudad-Real with a church courthouse, endowed school and a trade in wine, oil &c. Pop. 1115.—2 (de-Campo) A tn. Leon, prov and about 40 m. N W Valladolid, near the Valderaduey with two churches a courthouse, prison, primary school, and two flour-mills. Pop. 1804.—3 (de-San-Juan), A tn. New Castle prov and S.W. Cáceres, with a townhouse, granary, several primary schools, a parish church, the church of a suppressed monastery, and in the vicinity four hermitages. Pop. (agricultural) 2503.

VILLAMEDIANA, two places Spain:—1 A tn. Leon prov and 9 m. S. Valencia, with a church a suppressed convent, courthouse, and primary school, manufactures of linen a distillery oil and flour mills, and a trade in wine and corn. Pop. 1219.—2 A poorly built to Leon prov and S. Valencia with a handsome parish church, courthouse, primary school, and a trade in agricultural produce. P. 1546.

VILLAMIEJ, a tn. Spain, Extremadura, prov and 35 m. from Cáceres with narrow and ill paved streets, a church courthouse, prison and school, manufactures of linen, oil and flour mills and a trade in wine oil, and vegetables. P. 1669.

VILLAMOR-DE-LOS-ENCARNADOS, a tn. Spain Leon, prov and 21 m. S.E. Zamora with a parish church, courthouse, prison, and primary school; a flour-mill and a trade in corn and wine. Pop. 1008.

VILLANGVA a rating tn. Canada West, co. Norfolk, about 70 m. S.W. Toronto with two Protestant churches, two schools, a cloth factory a flour mill, and a trade in lumber. Pop. about 750.

VILLANOVA a tn. Brazil, prov and 13 m. N E Rio-de-Janeiro, near 1 bank Macaen, with a handsome stone church originally built by the Jesuits and a townhouse. The inhabitants are partly brancos and partly Indians. Pop. 2000.

VII LANOVA a vil. Brazil, prov Santa-Catharina, N shore of Lago Laguna, 60 m. E. Desterro. It is almost entirely of wood and has a parish church a harbor advantageously situated for trade, and manufactures of linen from flax, here cultivated on a large scale.

VILLANOVA-DE-RAINHA, two tns. Brazil:—1 A tn. prov Para, at the confluence of the Maní or Conema with r bank Amazon, 130 m. W S.W. Santarem. Its inhabitants are Indians, who make excellent gourd, a kind of bread much esteemed in Brazil.—2 A tn. in the interior of prov Bahia, 120 m. N Jacobina, with a church and a primary school. The inhabitants rear cattle, and cultivate millet, rice, manioc, and sugar-cane. Pop. 2000.

VILLANOVA-DE-SANTO-ANTONIO, a tn. Brazil, prov and 45 m. N N E Bahia, on hill above a bank São Francisco, with a parish church, a Latin and a primary school, and a trade in cotton. Pop. (list.) 4000.

VILLANOVA-DE-SÃO-LUIZ, a tn. Brazil. See GUARATUBA.

VILLANOVA-DE-SOUSA, or JARDIM-DO-RIO-DO-PRINCE, a tn. Brazil, prov and 130 m. S S W Paraíba, 1 bank Peixe with earthen houses, a large and handsome stone church, two primary schools, and a considerable transit trade. Pop. (list.) 5000.

VILLANOVA-DO-PRINCEIRO, or CAHETEIRO, a tn. Brazil, in the interior of prov Bahia, 60 m. W S W Rio-Do-Ouro; with a church, warehouse, primary school, and a trade in cattle, cotton, and other produce.

VILLANOVA-DO-PRINCEIRO, a tn. Brazil, prov Rio-Grande-do-Norte, on the Riohio, 150 m. W S W Natal; with a church, a Latin and a primary school, and a trade in cotton, tobacco, and cattle. Pop. (list.) 8000.

VILLANOVA-SOLANO, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div Cuni, prov and 8 m. N N E Saluzzo r bank Vaita, with a church, a modernized castle, and a school. Pop. 1676.

VILLANTERIO, a tn. Italy, Lombardy, prov and 13 m. E N E Pavia, on the Lambro, with a trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 3000.

VILLANUEVA, numerous places, Spain, particularly—1 (de-Alcalá) A tn. Valencia, prov and 17 m. from Castellón-de-la-Plana, with a church, courthouse, primary school, manufacture of reed baskets, oil and flour mills. Pop. 1071.
—2 (de-Algodales) A vil. Andalusia, prov and 35 m. N Málaga. It has merely a parish church in a suppressed Franciscan convent, and a hermitage. Pop. (agricultural) 3163.
—3 (de-Cordobes) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 35 m. from Cordova with a large and handsome church, a courthouse, several flour-mills, and a trade in wine. Pop. 1888.—4 (de-Cordoba) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 84 m. N Cordova. It has a parish church, prison, granary, an hospital for the sick poor, two primary endowed schools, and two hermitages, some manufactures of linens, sackcloth, coarse cloths, and soap, and several flour-mills. P. (agricultural) 6572.—5 (de-Loreana, Santa-Maria-de-Yalderrama) A vil. Galicia, prov and about 30 m. from Lago regularly built, with a celebrated and magnificent old Benedictine monastery a primary school, infirmary, and several flour-mills. Pop. 1659.—6 (de-San-Juan) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 55 m. from Seville with a church, courthouse, primary school, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1320.—7 (de-La-Piedad) A vil. Old Castile, prov and 54 m. E Ciudad-Rodrigo, with a townhouse, prison, primary endowed school parish church, two hermitages, and some manufactures of cloths and coarse linens. Pop. (agricultural) 2100.—8 (de-La-Jara) A tn. New Castile, prov and 40 m. S Cuenca, on the Valde-membra. A considerable number of the houses are well built and there is a handsome townhouse a sumptuous parish church, an hospital, a public school and Latin college, both fine edifices two monasteries, and two suppressed convents. Pop. (agricultural) 2267.—9 (de-La-Serna) A tn. Extremadura, prov and 53 m. E Badajoz, with some gay and elegant houses, broad, regularly paved, straight, and tolerably clean streets, a townhouse, prison, granary, hospital, several elementary schools, a monastery, a suppressed convent, a generous and solid parish church, and four hermitages. A great quantity of wine of good quality is produced here, and there are some common linens and cloth manufactures. Pop. (agricultural) 7296.—10 (de-La-Vera) A vil. Extremadura, prov and 65 m. N E Cáceres. It has rarely-built houses, narrow but clean and paved streets an hospital, an elementary school, townhouse, prison, and parish church. Pop. (agricultural) 2410.—11 (de-La-Castellana) A vil. Andalusia, prov and 25 m. N Huelva, close to the Portuguese boundary; with a primary school, a church, and a granary; manufactures of yellow metal buttons, with which this place supplies the whole peninsula, coarse woollen cloths, leather, and wax—all which articles are largely exported. Pop. 2996.—12 (de-La-Española) A tn. Old Castile, prov Ciudad-Rodrigo, and 114 m. S S E Madrid, in a beautiful plain in the Campo-de-Mondeal. It has many handsome buildings, a large and three small squares a connections townhouse, a substantial and secure prison, a flesh-market, the parish church, with a remarkably fine portico; a chapel of ease, several suppressed convents, two monasteries, and numerous families; oil, gypsum, and flour-mills; manufactures of earthenware, brick, soap, and wool, and distillation of tannery. The celebrated Quirós died here in 1548. Pop. 3004.—13 (del-Abasco) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 43 m. N E Jaén, with a townhouse, three primary schools, a monastery, two suppressed convents, the parish church, and in the neighbourhood several hermitages; manufactures of common linens, oil and flour-mills, and a tannery. Pop. (agricultural) 3334.—14 (del-Abasco) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 7 m. from Sevilla; with a church, courthouse, and endowed school, manufactures of soap, several distilleries, and a trade in wine and brandy. Pop. 1370.—15 (del-Campo) A tn. Leon, prov and about 60 m. from Zamora, with two parish churches, a celebrated hermitage, and several flour-mills. Pop. 1900.—16 (del-Castro) A tn. New Castile, prov and 54 m. N N E Toledo, on a plateau near the Gigante. It is well built; and has a parish church, courthouse, and an endowed school, tanning and flour mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1567.—17 (del-Frío) A tn. Extremadura, prov and 34 m. S S W Badajoz; with mean houses, a parish church, a suppressed convent, a townhouse with a square tower manufactures of linen, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1604.—18 (del-Rio) A tn. prov and 16 m. from Merula, a bank Segura, tolerably well built, with a trade in fruit, particularly lemons and oranges. Pop. 1499.—19 (del-Suero) A tn. Andalusia, prov and about 30 m. from Seville, on a fertile site near the Guadalquivir, with a church, courthouse, primary school, and mineral springs. Pop. 1547.—20 (de-La-Rosa) A tn. Andalusia, prov and 18 m. from Jaén, on an elevated plain above 1 bank Guadalquivir, with a church which looks like a fortress, a courthouse, an endowed school, numerous flour-mills, and a trade in corn and oil. Pop. 1747.—21 (de-La-Serna) A tn. Extremadura, prov and 50 m. from Cáceres, W side of the Sierra-de-Dios-Padre with a church, oil palace, courthouse, prison, and primary school, manufactures of linen, several oil and flour mills, and a trade in oil and wine. Pop. 1914.—22 (de-Solera) A tn. prov and 32 m. S W Barcelona, with a custom-house, two parish churches, a large barracks, townhouse, prison, primary school and two suppressed convents. Besides tanning, the inhabitants are employed in fishing, distilling brandy, and cotton-spinning. Some fruit and products of industry are exported. Above 800 small coasters enter and clear annually. Pop. 10,809.

VII LANUEVA-DE-CASTELLÓN, a tn. Spain. See CASTELLÓN-DE-JAVIERA

VILLANOVA-DEL-GRAN a tn. Spain. See GRAN.

VILLANUEVA several places, Italy Piedmont—1. A tn. div Coni prov and 8 m. S W Moncalvo, near 1 bank Ellero, with two churches, one of them handsome and modern a magnificent sanctuary, which attracts numerous pilgrims a superior school, and a rich charitable endowment. Pop. 2673.—2 A tn., div Alessandria, prov and 16 m. W N W Asti It has two parish churches, a courthouse, communal school, and charitable endowment. Pop. 3121.—3 A vil. and com., div Alessandria, prov and 8 m. N Cuneo; with a very ancient parish and three other churches. Pop. 2693.—4 A tn. and com., div Genova, prov and 4 m. W Albenga, at the entrance of the Ligure and Arona. Pop. 1145.

VILLANUEVA a vil. and com. prov and 29 m. N W Puzos, in an unhealthy district, 1 bank Adra, with a trade in corn, wine, and cattle. Pop. 2906.

VILLANY, a vil. Hungary, co. Buzsaky, about 30 m. S E Fénfarkas with a church, a ruined castle, a marble quarry and a trade in excellent wine, which bears its name.

VILLAR, several places, Spain, particularly—1. (de-Casas) A tn. New Castile, prov and 34 m. from Cuenca, near the Tamarra, with a church, courthouse, prison, and primary school; manufactures of woollens, dye-works, and a trade in corn. P. 1489.—2 (de-Chorva) A tn. Leon, prov and N W Zamora; with a church, courthouse, endowed school, manufactures of linen, and some trade with Portugal. Pop. 1086.—3 (del-Arango or del-Bosch) A vil., prov and 24 m. N W Valencia, with a palace of the Archbishop of Valencia, two endowed elementary schools, a fountain in the centre of the square, a parish church, and in the vicinity a hermitage, flour-mills and oil-mills, three potteries for ordinary earthenware, and three luxury-distilleries. Pop. 2191.—4 (del-Bag) A tn. Extremadura, prov and 30 m. from Badajoz; with a townhouse, two schools, a church, flour and oil mills, tanneries, and a trade in sheep. Pop. 1666.

VILLAR-ALMEDI, a vil and com Italy Piedmont, div Turin prov Susa; with a small square, containing the parish church, and a ruined castle. Pop. 1261

VILLAR-BRANDO, a vil and com Italy, Piedmont, div Turin prov Cuneo, 1 bank Pellice. It has a ruined castle, and a E. Catholic and a Waldensian church. Pop. 2398.

VILLAR-FORMIGLIANO, a vil and com Italy Piedmont, div Turin prov and 10 m. E. Stam, near r bank Dora Its pairs, with a church, and the remains of an old castle. P. 2120

VILLAR-FRANCA, a vil and com Italy Piedmont, div Turin prov Pinero, near Perosa. It has a small square, containing the parish church and a handsome villa. P. 1182

VILLAR-SAR CORRAZZO a vil, and com Italy, Piedmont, div and 7 m. W W W. Cont with a very ancient parish church, with a Gothic crypt. Pop. 3097

VILLARMIERI, a tn Spain, Old Castile, prov and 18 m. W Palencia. It has tolerably well-built houses, and the principal streets, as well as one of the squares, are spacious, and have paved foot-paths. It also possesses a townhouse, an elementary school, a fountain, two churches, and a hermitage some tanneries, manufactures of serges and coarse wool lene, and four iron-mills. Spain, (Agricultural) 3605

VILLARMIERI, a vil Spain, Andalusia, prov and 20 m. N.E. Huelva, with a townhouse, parish church, and elementary school. Pop. 1111

VILLARMIERI, a vil and com Italy Piedmont div Turin, near Biello; with a handsome public square, a church communal school and charitable endowment. Pop. 1112.

VILLARD a vil and com France, dep Savoie, 8 m. W Boncourt. Pop. 1140.

VILLAREAL, a tn Spain, Valencia, prov and 5 m. S Castellon-de-la-Piana, on the Mures Of its ancient fortifications scarcely a trace remains, with the exception of the citadel which has been rebuilt. The streets are broad and straight, and there are three squares, one of which is in the centre of the town, has piazzas. Besides the large and commodious townhouse, there are an hospital, three elementary schools a parish church, five chapels, a suppressed convent, a manufactory and in the vicinity are two hermitages 12 school and nine oil mills, five brandy-distilleries, some looms for linen and muslin etc. Pop. 8207

VILLAREGGIA a vil and com Italy Piedmont, div Turin, prov and about 10 m. S S E Ivrea, near l bank Dora Baltes, with a very ancient church. Pop. 1377

VILLARJO, a vil, Spain, prov Leon, dist Astorga, r bank Orlago, with a church, a primary school, manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. P. 1946.

VILLARJO-DE-FRANCA, a tn Spain, New Castile, prov Cuenca, and 80 m. S W Madrid; with a townhouse, two elementary schools, several fountains a parish church, and hermitage. Pop. (Agricultural) 3841

VILLARJO-DE-SALVAMANCA, a vil Spain, New Castile, prov and 28 m. S E Madrid with a good townhouse, hospital, a large granary, two elementary schools, a sanctuary and a parish church, manufactures of soap, earthenware cloths of the country, and agave-rope squares. Pop. 3297

VILLARRE, several places Spain—1, (de Orlago) A vil, prov and about 18 m. from Leon, with a church, courthouses, primary school manufactures of linen and a trade in flax and garden-stuffs. Pop. 1076—2, (de) A vil Andalusia, prov and 5 m. S. Jaen, a dirty and unhealthy place with a townhouse, prison, two primary schools, and a parish church two potteries, and oil and flour mills. Near it are quarries of limestone and gypsum. Pop. 1908

VILLARRODRO a tn Spain, Andalusia, prov and 10 m. from Jaen, near l bank Guadalquivir with a church, courthouses, primary school, and a trade in corn, oil and wool. Pop. 1585.

VILLARINO-DE-LOS-ARCES, a vil Spain, Leon, prov and 38 m. W N W Salamanca, at the confluence of the Tormes with l bank Douro It has a church, courthouses, school manufactures of linen, and several flour-mills. Pop. 1677

VILLARLUCENGO, a tn Spain, Aragon, prov and 42 m. N.E. Teruel; with a parish church, a manufactory, courthouses, manufactures of hempen shoes, and woollen and linen cloth and some trade in corn. Pop. 1095

VILLARROBLEDO, a tn Spain, Aragon, prov Albarracín, and 64 m. S.E. Madrid; with a townhouse, prison, granary, hospital, two elementary schools, a chair of Lectality, a solid and magnificent parish church, with two auxiliary churches, three manufactory, a beautiful hermitage, and an unexpressed convent; manufactures of linens and woollen cloths, earthen jars, bricks, tiles for paving and roofing, and a tannery, and several flour-mills. Pop. 3565.

VILLARRODRO, a tn Spain, Catalonia, prov and about 16 m. N.E. Tarragona, 1 bank Goya, with a church, courthouses, prison, primary school, and a distillery P. 1879.

VILLARROYA, two places, Spain, Aragon—1 (de los Serres), a tn Aragon prov and 90 m. from Saragossa, 1 bank Clara. It is well built and has a church, courthouses, primary school, brick and tile works distilleries, mills, and a trade in wine and brandy. Pop. 1880—2 (de los Pieseres) A tn prov and 34 m. N.E. Teruel in a mountainous district between two streams, which form the Guadalope. It is tolerably built and has a church, courthouses, primary school, and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop. 1378

VILLARUBIA-DE-LOS-OJOS-DE-GUADIANA, a tn Spain, Old Castile, prov and 19 m. N.E. Ciudad-Real, picturesque situated on the skirts of lofty ranges of hills. The houses are almost all two stories high, and some of them very good especially the palace of the Duke of Híjar. It has level rather broad, and paved streets a townhouse, prison two endowed primary schools, parish church, a suppressed Capuchin convent, and several hermitages numerous oil mills and presses, a flour-mill and manufactures of some cloths and linens for home use. Pop. (Agricultural) 5415

VILLARUBIA-DE-SANTIAGO a vil Spain, New Castile, prov Toledo, 22 m. S.E. Madrid; with a townhouse and prison, a granary, an hospital with a chapel a college for Castilian and Latin, two elementary schools, and a parish-church. Pop. (Agricultural) 1946

VILLARUBIAHEGO a vil Spain, prov and about 8 m. from Leon, on a height; with a church, courthouses, primary schools and some trade in cattle. Pop. 1877

VILLARVINO (San Desiderio), a tn Spain, Old Castile, prov and 21 m. W Burgos. It has two churches an hospital primary school and ancient tower, woollen and linen manufactures, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1050

VILLARVINO, a tn Spain, Old Castile, prov and about 30 m. from Palencia with a parish church, courthouses, and primary school. Pop. 1098

VILLARVINO, a tn Spain, New Castile, prov and 12 m. N.E. Toledo with a church, courthouses, hospital, endowed school and extensive pottery. P. 1284.

VILLARVINO, a tn and com Italy Piedmont, div Turin, not far from Caravagnola on the Stellone. It was once walled has a modernized castle a church, a free school, and a rich charitable endowment. Pop. 2403

VILLARA a vil and com Italy, Piedmont, div Novara, prov and near Verucchi with a central square, containing two very ancient churches. Pop. 1716.

VILLATOBAR, a vil Spain, New Castile, prov Toledo, 42 m. S.E. Madrid with a townhouse hospital, two elementary schools, a church a magnificent sanctuary six oil-mills, two fulling-mills, and gypsum, brick, and tile kilns. P. 2238.

VILLAVEJA, a tn Leon, prov Salamanca, 18 m. N Ciudad-Rodrigo, with a church courthouses, primary school and manufactures of linen and leather. Pop. 1290.

VILLAVELASCO a vil Spain, prov and 85 m. from Leon on the Valderaduey with a church and a primary school, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth P. 1147

VILLAVICIOSA, several places, Spain—1, A beset of 208 inhabitants, in the prov of Guadalajara, 60 m. N.E. Madrid, where a celebrated battle was gained in the war of succession, in 1710, by Philip V. Stanhope, the English general was taken prisoner—2 A vil Asturias, prov and 27 m. N.E. Oviedo on the Llanes with a custom-house, but the trade is magnificent. Pop. 1841—3, A vil Andalusia, prov and 30 m. W N W Cordova, with a parish church, two schools, townhouse, six flour-mills, two potteries, seven brandy-distilleries, and a few looms for linen fabrics. Pop. 1600.

VILLAVIEJA a vil Spain, Valencia, prov and 10 m. N W Castellon de la Plana with a townhouse, two elementary schools, parish church, and hermitage, but dirty remarkable for its mineral waters. One spring maintains a rather temperature of 84, but others vary from 95° to 116° Fah. Pop. (Agricultural) 1889

VILLE-DE-SUR-AUJOY, tn France. See CHATEAU VILLAIN

VILLEDIEU, or VILLENEUVE-LES-POLIGNES, a tn. France, dep. Manche, 20 m. S. St. L. It is said to derive its name from stilted artificers, settled here by the knights of Malta, who employed them in adorning their churches with copper vases, and similar articles. Their descendants still drive a thriving trade in all kinds of iron and copper ware. P. 8689 VILLEDIEU, a tn. France, dep. Indre, on the Trezouais, near its confluence with the Indre, 8 m. N.W. Chateaufort with manufactures of iron. Pop. 1195.

VILLEFRANCHE-LES-LATZ, a tn. France, dep. Haute-Garonne, on the Lot, 90 m. S.E. Toulouse. It is generally well built of brick, and has manufactures of saddle cloth, hosiery, woollen covers, earthenware, and leather and a trade in corn, saffron, hemp, &c. Pop. 2336

VILLEFRANCHE DE ROUSSILLON [anc. Villafranca Francopolis] a tn. France, dep. Aveyron, at the confluence of the Aude with the Aveyron 25 m. W. Rodez. It is of great antiquity, and has a fine Gothic church with a lofty tower, in a square surrounded by arcades, a communal college, an ancient Carmelite cloister and an hospital, a library of 7000 volumes; important manufactures of plain linen and sack-shedding leather, paper copper and iron ware and a trade in corn, wine, tresses, linen, and cattle. Pop. 7732.

VILLEFRANCHE-SUR-SAÛX a tn. France, dep. Rhone, 15 m. N. Lyons, on the Moron. It is generally well built and has one very long and spacious street, a parish church with a tower, a communal college, courts of first resort and commerce, an agricultural society, manufactures of linen and cotton cloth, bombazines, and prints, tanneries, dye-works, and cotton mills, and an important trade. Pop. 7004.

VILLEL, a tn. Spain, Aragon prov. and 10 m. S.E.W. Teruel, on the Turi, regularly built in the form of an amphitheatre with a church a celebrated sanctuary a primary school and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1061

VILLEMUR, or VILLEMUR-SUR-LE-TARN a tn. France, dep. Haute-Garonne, 20 m. E. Toulouse, 1 bank Tarn, here crossed by a suspension-bridge. It has several foundries, and manufactures of articles in iron. Pop. 2808.

VILLENA a tn. Spain Valencia, prov. and 30 m. N.W. Alicante, 1 bank Vinalopé. Its ancient fortifications have almost entirely disappeared with the exception of the ramparts, which is still a grand object. The streets are in general narrow, irregular and unpaved. There are five squares, a spacious townhouse with prison and granary attached various elementary schools, an hospital, two parish churches, a nursery and a suppressed convent five flour mills, two brandy distilleries and 12 oil-mills, and manufactures of woollen counterpanes and ordinary linens. Lord Calway was besieging this place when he was overthrown fighting the rash battle of Almansa. Pop. (approximate) 8324 VILLFAUXE [anc. Vila Jove] a tn. France, dep. Aude, 10 m. N.E. Nant. It possesses an excellent granary, formed out of its ancient ramparts, is well built, and has a large and handsome church with an elegant spire and a trade in wine and vinegar. Pop. 2553.

VILLENEUVE a tn. and com. France, dep. Aveyron, 25 m. N.W. Rodez with a trade in wine and cattle. P. 3251

VILLENEUVE [German, Noustadt, anc. Pompetius], a tn. Switzerland, com. Vaud near E. and Lake of Geneva. It has an old ruinous wall and a small harbour and is dull, ill built, ill paved and unhealthy. Pop. 1026

VILLENEUVE-DE-BENO, a tn. France, dep. Ardèche, 12 m. S. Privas, in a rich vine-district. The chief employment is making wine. Pop. 3173

VILLENEUVE-LEZ-OR or VILLENEUVE-LEZ-TOURNAI, a tn. France, dep. Yonne, 7 bank Yonne 80 m. N. Avesnes. It consists chiefly of a straight and spacious street, terminated at each extremity by a handsome gate, and continued round the town by handsome alleys and has a richly decorated parish church, coarse woollen and leather manufactures, and a trade in wine, heavy wood, and charcoal. Pop. 3871

VILLENEUVE-LES-AVIGNON a tn. France, dep. Gard, 24 m. N.E. Nîmes, 7 bank Rhone, opposite to Avignon. It has an ancient abbey, an old Carthusian monastery, situated on a rock, and surrounded by walls fenced with towers a church, a public library, manufactures of silk stuffs, linen, cordage, and cattle, and a trade in wine. Pop. 3182.

VILLENEUVE-SUR-LOT or VILLENEUVE-SUR-AUT [anc. Vila Nova] a tn. France, dep. Lot-et-Garonne, on both sides of the Lot, here crossed by a bold bridge. Part of its fortifications still remain, and it is well and regularly built, in spacious streets converging to a central square lined by arcades. It has courts of first resort and commerce, a communal college, and the extensive buildings of an old abbey used as a house of correction for 11 departments, and capable of receiving 1300 convicts manufactures of linen, leather copper ware, and tiles and a trade in flour, prunes, wine, &c. Pop. 4785.

VILLERS, numerous small places, Belgium. Villers was one deserving of notice is a vil and com. prov. Brabant 31 m. S.E.E. Brussels with the magnificent ruins of a Cistercian abbey founded in 1147

VILLERS-BASTONNEUX, a tn. France, dep. Somme, 10m. E.S.E. Amiens with manufactures of woollen hosiery, and flannel and a worsted-mill. Pop. 3136

VILLERS-CORREYER [anc. Villieris] a tn. France, dep. Aisne, in the middle of the forest of Retz, 80 m. S.E.W. Leu with a poorhouse; manufactures of polished steel, hosiery, shawls, bone-combs, tannery, and children's toys, and a considerable trade in corn and wool. Pop. 2656.

VILLERS-GUILLAUM a tn. France, dep. Nord, 10 m. S.W. Cambrai with a large subterranean cavern, used in early times as a place of refuge. Pop. 2051

VILLERS-OUTREAU, a tn. France, dep. Nord, 10 m. S.E. Cambrai. Pop. 2701

VILLETTÉ (La) a tn. France, dep. Seine, and close to the N. walls of Paris, of which it is a suburb. It has much frequented grainettes, manufactures of soap vinegars, and earthenware, sugar-refineries, and extensive cattle and ware-houses for wine, brandy oil, wool, &c. Pop. 12 180

VILLELBANNE, vil. France, dep. Isère, 18 m. N. Vienne; with a silk mill. Pop. 1554.

VILLEVEYRAC, a vil. France, dep. Hérault, 17 m. S.W. Montpellier. Pop. 2137

VILLIMPATA or VILLIMPETA a vil and com. Italy gov. Venice, prov. and 6 m. E. Mantua. In 1796, after a severe contest, a body of French wars here almost out to pieces by the Austrians. Pop. 1400.

VILLINGEN a tn. Baden, Lake circle, among black hills, on the Rhine, 42 m. N.W. Constantz. It has walls with four gates, a square a beautiful minister, formerly belonged to a monastery, four other churches, a nursery, superer, brazier-school a museum a bathing-establishment manufactures of woollen and linen cloth cloths, and chemical products, and numerous mills. Villingen is very ancient, and was once an imperial free-town. Pop. 3870 VILLI MAR, a vil. Nassau, 3 m. E. Sankel 1 bank Lahn with a marble quarry, and extensive marble works. Pop. 1646.

VILMERGEN [formerly Villmarthen] a vil and par. Switzerland cant. Argau, 9 m. E.S.E. Aarau with a large and handsome church. Pop. 1379

VILMOUILME, a vil. Spain, prov. and 4 m. from Leon with a parish church, a primary school, several flour-mills, and a trade in corn, wax, and cattle. Pop. 1201

VILLOSLADA DE CAMERON, a tn. Spain, Old Castile, prov. and about 80 m. from Logroño with a church, distilleries, and primary school manufactures of woollen cloth and worsted, and several flour-mills. Pop. 1386.

VILMANSTRAND, or VILMANSTRAED a tn. Russia, Finland, on a tongue of land in the E. of Lake Selma, 103 m. W. St. Petersburg. It is walked on the land-side, and defended towards the sea by palisades; and has two churches, a school hospital several and some 2000 inhabitants. In 1741 a bloody battle was fought here between the Swedes and Russians. Pop. exclusive of garrison only 600.

VILNA, or WILNA, a gov. Russia, forming part of anc. Lithuania, and bounded, N. by Courland, E. Minsk, S. Grodno, and W. Poland, Prussia, and the Baltic, greatest length, 270 m.; central breadth, about 110 m. area, 13,325 sq. m. The surface is generally flat, the hills nowhere exceeding 300 ft. and has as yet been only partially cleared of its primal forests. Much of it is occupied by moors and marshes, and the soil is generally sandy. The drainage belongs wholly to the basin of the Baltic, which receives it chiefly by the Niemen or Memel, and tributaries the Vilia and Dubissa. The climate is characterized by short but severe winters, wet springs and harvests, and warm sultry summers. In good years the grain raised leaves a surplus for export. Good crops of hemp and flax are grown. Fruit is scarce, and of bad quality, and hops are seen only in gardens. The forests, though extensive, do not furnish much good timber. The principal mineral is iron-ore. Some amber is found on the coast. Both manufactures and trade are very limited. P 886,000.

VILNA, or WILNA, a tn. Russia, cap. above gov., on several hills above the Vist., at the confluence of the Vil. r., 418 m. S W St. Petersburg. It consists of a walled town and two large suburbs, generally with old wooden houses huddled together in dark and narrow streets. The principal objects of interest are the cathedral and several other churches, particularly a marble chapel originally belonging to a now ruinous castle; a Mahometan mosque for the use of the Tartar inhabitants; a synagogue, lyceum, theological seminary, medical academy, observatory townhouse, finely situated on a height, a library museum of natural history with botanical garden; several monasteries, hospitals, and charitable endowments. The manufactures are insignificant but the trade chiefly in agricultural produce sent to Riga, Mamel. Königsberg, and Libau, is considerable. Vilna was founded in the beginning of the 14th century, and became the capital of Lithuania. Many of the nobility still continue to reside in it. Its university was suppressed in 1832. Pop (1849), 62,228.

VILNA FROM THE GREEN TOWER DU FORT
From Voyage en la Comté de Minsk de M. de

VILVA, two rivers, Bavaria.—1 An affluent of the Rh. which it joins 11 m. N W Regensburg after a S.E. course of about 45 m.—2 An affluent of the Danube which it joins at Vilshofen, 55 m. S.E. Regensburg after an E.N.E. course of about 70 m.

VILSHOFEN, a market tn. Lower Bavaria, on the Vils 11 m. S.E. Landshut. It has walls with two gates two churches, a townhouse, infirmary saltpetre-works a wax refinery, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1246.

VILSECK, a tn. Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, on the Vils 11 m. N.W. Amberg, with four churches, a castle, and hospital. Pop. 1218.

VILSHOFEN, a tn. in Lower Bavaria, at the confluence of the Vils with the Danube, here crossed by a bridge, 13 m. W.N.W. Passau. It has walls with three gates many well built houses, two churches, a townhouse, and infirmary, and a trade in corn and linen. Pop. 2156.

VILTERS, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 38 m. S.E. St. Gall with school and some trade in wine. P 1699.

VILVETERE, a tn. Spain, Leon, prov. and 54 m. W S.W. Salamanca, with a parish church, a primary school, and a trade in wine, oil and delicious fruit. Pop. 1273.

VILVORDE (Flemish, Vilvorde, anc. Pylavorde), a tn. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, 6 m. N.E. Brussels, on the railway to Malines, and on the Scme. It has a handsome and interesting Gothic church with fine wood-carvings a vast central prison, capable of receiving 2000 prisoners, who work at all kinds of trades several boarding and primary schools, an almshouse, a musical society, manufactures of hand-loom, printed calicoes, acids, tobacco, vermilion, and glass also breweries, tanneries, bleachfields, and oil and corn mills. Pop. 4909.

Vol. II.

VIMEIRO, a vil. and par. Portugal, prov. Estremadura, 45 m. S.W. Lousa, in a valley watered by the Macoris, and rendered memorable by the victory gained by the British and Portuguese over the French. Pop. 460.

VIMERCATE, a tn. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 14 m. N.E. Milan, at bank Melgosa. It has a beautiful parish church, a gymnasium, and several other schools, an hospital, a paper-mill, and a trade in corn wine, and silk. Pop. 8448.

VIMILHRO two places, Portugal; the one, prov. Alentejo, about 3 m. from Beira, pop. 1570 and the other, prov. Alentejo 11 m. W N.W. Estremosa pop. 1260.

VIMINES, a vil. and com. France, dep. Savoie, 3 m. S.W. Chambéry with quarries of marble and gypsum. Pop. 1866.

VIMIOSO, a tn. Portugal, prov. Trás-os-Montes, 15 m. S.E. Braganza, near the Spanish frontier. P 1000.

VIMMERBY, a tn. Sweden, län and 78 m. N.N.W. Kalmar near the Stång or Sjö. It stands among romantic scenery but is old and unimportant. In its vicinity are the battle of Söder-B. Pop. 1843.

VIMODRONE, or Vico-Mondrone, a vil. and com. Italy, Lombardy prov. and 6 m. from Milan on the canal of Martesana; with fine villas belonging to the inhabitants of Milan, an ancient parish church, and a trade in wine and dairy produce. Pop. 1160.

VIMOUTÈS [anc. Albon Monasterium], a tn. France, dep. Orne, in a well wooded but marshy valley on the Vire, 86 m. N. Alençon, with a court of commerce important manufactures of a kind of white linen called cravates, bleachfields, tanneries, and a trade in linen. Pop. 2498.

VINADIO, a tn. Italy, Piedmont, dep. and 21 m. W.S.W. Cont. L. bank Stura with two churches an elementary school thermal-springs, and mines of aqueous ferrous lead. Pop. 5114.

VINALMONT, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 18 m. W.S.W. Liège, on the Malheur with brick works breweries numerous blacksmiths, quarries of black marble, and mines of iron and coal. Pop. 1144.

VINAROS, a seaport, Spain, Valencia prov. Castellón de la Plana 22 m. S. Tortosa, on the Mediterranean Sea. It is surrounded with a good wall a fosse, and seven forts, has generally lofty houses, provided with fine balconies and some good streets and squares, a spacious townhouse, customhouse, theatre, shambles, hospital handsome parish church, several chapels, an almshouse, and various schools. The bulk of the population is engaged in navigation, fishing and ship-building but there are also oil mills, brandy-distilleries, and cooperages. About 600 coasters and 25 foreign vessels, enter and clear annually. Imports, grain, dried cod, sealions, saeves, &c. exports, wine, brandy, timber &c. Pop. 9341.

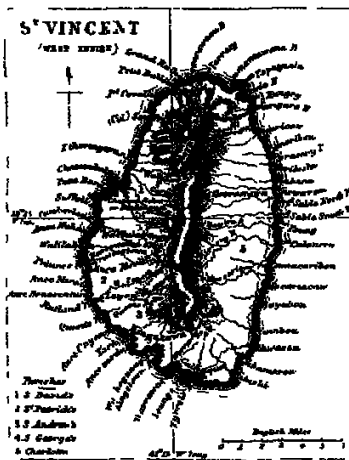

VINGA, a tn. France, dep. Pyrénées-Orientales, 6 m. E.N.E. Prades. It is walled, has numerous fine fountains, a communal college, manufactures of leather, and a trade in corn, fruit, wax, honey, and cattle. Pop. 1660.

VINGENIS [anc. Vienne, a tn. France, dep. Seine, about 2 m. E. Paris close to the Bois-de-Vincennes. Its large old castle, which is surrounded by lofty walls and deep ditches, was once the frequent residence of the French kings and has long been used as a state-prison. More recently it has been converted into an arsenal, where all the munitions of war have been provided together, and a strong garrison is constantly kept. The Duc-d'Enghien, only son of the Prince of Condé was barbarously shot in one of the fosses of this castle. The town is well and regularly built. Pop. 2448.

VINCENNES, a tn. U. States, Indiana, on the Wabash, and on the Evansville and Illinois, and the Ohio and Mississippi railways, 100 m. S.W. Indianapolis. It is regularly built and has several churches, including a spacious R. Catholic cathedral, an ecclesiastical seminary female academy, and two orphan asylums, a handsome townhouse, a good marketplace and some manufactures. Pop. 2070.

VINCENT (Str.) a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, dep. Aosta, 2 m. E. Chablais, above the Dora, here crossed by a remarkable Roman bridge. It has well built houses, fine walks a parish church and several free schools. Pop. 1851.

VINCENT (St.)—1 One of the British W. India Islands, 460 m. W. Barbados, lat. (Kingstown) $12^{\circ} 15' N$; lon. $61^{\circ} 15' W$ (i.e.) 17 m. long, and about 10 m. broad; area, 183 sq. m. A ridge of high volcanic hills, bold and abrupt, but well wooded, stretches through the island N. to S., and sends off subordinate masses, which extend to the sea, and are intersected by beautiful and fertile valleys. In the N. W., where the mountains are highest, is a volcano called the Soufriere, in which a tremendous eruption occurred in 1812. Its height is 3000 ft. above sea-level, and its crater 3 m. in diameter, and 500 ft. deep. On the N. E. where the surface is more level, there is an extensive slope of upwards of 6000 acres of remarkable fertility.

The soil in the valleys is usually a rich tuffaceous, and occasionally a fine black loam. On the higher regions it is more sandy and less productive. The climate is exceedingly humid, having an average annual fall of rain of nearly 80 inches, but is not unhealthy. The principal produce is sugar cane, molasses, arrow-root, and cotton. The exports in 1851 were £218,321 of which £199,899 were to the U. Kingdom, the imports, £198,679 of which £114,796 were from the U. Kingdom. Imports (1865) £108,489 exports, £142,387. The government is vested in a governor, a council of 12, and an assembly of 16 members. The capital Kingstown is near the S. W. extremity. Pop. (1851), 30,128.—2 (Portuguese, São Vicente). One of the Cape Verde Islands, about 10 m. S. E. of St. Antonio lat. (Ponte Grande) $16^{\circ} 54' 48'' N$, lon. $22^{\circ} 15' 15'' W$ (i.e.) length, E. to W., 16 m., breadth, 10 m. It is of volcanic origin, lofty and rugged, like the rest of the group, but surpasses them all in the excellence of its harbor Porto-Grande, which is a free-port, and has become important as a coaling-station for ocean steamers. Pop. 1800—3, [Portuguese, Cabo de São Vicente, and Provincia de S. Vicente]. The most W. point of Portugal and Europe lat. $37^{\circ} 54' N$, lon. $9^{\circ} W$ (i.e.), forms a rocky peninsula, with peaks 800 ft. above the sea, and is famous for the naval victory gained in 1757 over the Spaniards by the British, under Admiral Jarvis, who was rewarded with the title of Earl St. Vincent.—4, A cape on the W. shore of Madagascar, forming the S. entrance of a bay at the mouth of a river of same name in Mozambique Channel; lat. $21^{\circ} 54' 16'' S$, lon. $43^{\circ} 20' 50'' E$ (i.e.)—5, A gulf, S. Australia, entered by Investigator Strait on the N., and Backstairs Passage on the E. of Kangaroo Island, and separated on the W. from Spencer Gulf by Yorke Peninsula. It is about 116 m. long, and about 40 m. wide; and on the S. shore lies Port Adelaide, on a bay at the mouth of the Torrens.—6, [Port.] See New Caledonia.

VINCHIATURO, a tn. Naples, prov. Basilicata, 5 m. S. W. Campobasso; with two churches and a convent. Pop. 3068.

VINCIO, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. Asti. It is an ancient place, with a church, a communal school, and an old castle. Pop. 1078.

VINCI a tn. and com. Tuscany, comp. Florence, on a hill, 3 m. from Certosa-Gaddi with a parish church, a castle, and a trade in corn, wine, and oil. Pop. 5799.

VINDA a tn. America. See Arica.

VINDAU or WINDAU, a seaport tn. Russia, gov. Courland, 100 m. W. N. W. Riga, on the Baltic, at the mouth of the Vindau. It has irregular unpaved streets, ill-built houses, an old castle, a church, a school, and a small harbor; with some trade in corn, hemp, flax, linseed, and hemp-seed. Pop. (1858) 3406.—The river rises in the N. W. of gov. Vilna flows N. N. W. into Courland, passing Goldingen, and after a course of about 170 m. falls into the Baltic at Vindau. Its chief affluent is the Iba. A canal connects it with the Memel.

VINDHYA, a moderate-range, Hindoostan, extending E. to W. across the peninsula of India, from the base of the Ganges to Gujarat. It forms the N. boundary of the valley of the Nerbada, unites the N. extremities of the E. and W. Ghats, and extends from lat. 22° to $25^{\circ} N$. It is of granitic formation, overlain by sandstone. All S. of this range was called the Deccan, under the Moguls, while all N. of it was named Hindoostan.

VINDICARI [anc. Nechora] a seaport tn. Sidly, prov. and 20 m. S. W. Syracuse. It has a small harbor, defended by a tower which mounts four guns.

VINGORLA, a tn. Hindoostan, presid. and 315 m. S. Bombay, lat. $15^{\circ} 50' N$, lon. $69^{\circ} 55' E$, at the mouth of a small river of the same name, about 2 m. off which are the Vingora Rocks rising 30 ft. above high water. It has a good harbor and its bay is well sheltered, except to the S. It was ceded to the E. India Company in 1812. Pop. about 5000.

VINKEVEEN a vil. Holland prov. and 37 m. N. W. Utrecht with two churches and a townhouse. Inhabitants occupied in turf-cutting and dairy-farming. Pop. 903.

VINKOVCE, or VINKOVITZ, a market tn. Austria, Military Slavonia, 21 m. S. E. Essek with two churches, a gymnasium, a high school, and a girls' school. Pop. 3350.

VINNA, a vil. Hungary either Nagy, or Ungvár, on a stream of same name, 5 m. from Nagybikely, with a R. Catholic church, an ancient and a modern castle, several mills and a trade in wine and wool. Pop. 1061.

VINNINGEN, a vil. Bavaria, Palatinat, dist. Friesenau, with a R. Catholic church, and a paper-mill. Pop. 1078.

VINNITZA, or WINNETKA a tn. Russia, gov. Podolsk, r. bank Bug 96 m. N. E. Kamennits. It has ramparts and ditches, a strong castle, a R. Catholic and several Greek churches, a gymnasium, a monastery and school, and has some general trade. Pop. (1842) 9512.

VINOVO, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, near Cavigliasso with a church, and a large castle. P. 8007.

VINTIMILLA, a tn. Italy. See Sarnonno.

VINZAGLIO, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div. Novara prov. Verceil, with a handsome modern church. P. 1128.

VIOLA a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Cune, prov. and about 10 m. S. E. Mondovì, on both sides of the Monca or Monca with two parish churches, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 1865.

VIOLE, a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy, prov. and 66 m. N. E. Bergamo; with two churches, a school, a charitable endowment, and a trade in cattle and wool. Pop. 1163.

VIRE, a river France, rises on the S. W. frontier of dep. Calvados; flows N. W. past St. L., and falls into the English Channel, after a course of about 70 m., of which about 20 m. are navigable with the tide.

VIRE [anc. Castrum Viro] a tn. France, dep. Calvados, r. bank Vire, 23 m. S. E. St. L. It has steep and narrow streets, many houses interesting from their antiquity, remains of a Norman castle, with a placid space around furnishing an excellent promenade, a fine Gothic church, a clock-tower, communal college, public library, general and sundry-hospital; manufactures of fine linen and crumpled-silken, somewhat worsted and paper mills; and a trade in corn, wine, honey, linens, iron, wooden cloth, linen, and paper. Pop. 7614.

VIRGIN ISLANDS, a group of about 100 small islands to the W. Indies; between lat. 18° & $18^{\circ} 55' N$; and lon. 64° 10' and 65° 40' W. occupying a space of about 100 m. long, by 30 m. wide. Not above a fourth are inhabited and cultivated. The chief exports are sugar, molasses, rum, cotton, and salt, ginger, turmeric, tobacco, plantains and indigo. Vegetables and fruits are abundant. The climate is subject to much fluctuation, and slight shocks of earthquakes are occasionally felt. The islands are exposed to a heavy swell, and the obstacles opposed to the tidal wave between them produce some extraordinary phenomena: the waves sometimes breaking against the shore with great violence, without there being any indication of a previous gale. The Virgin Islands of the state are the peaks of Otter in the Blue Ridge, 4280 ft. high, but the most remarkable object is the natural bridge over Cedar Creek, near the centre of the state; it consists of a huge rock spanning the river by an arch 90 ft. long, 60 ft. wide, and 200 ft. above the water and supported by high airy abutments gracefully curved. The principal rivers are the Potomac, Rappahannock, York, James, the Big Sandy and the Great and Little Kanawha. Thermal springs occur in various parts. The climate differs much in different localities and the thermometer has a range from 5° below zero to 95°. Among vegetable products the great staple is tobacco: cotton and flax are also raised in large quantities. The principal grain crops are Indian corn, wheat and oats. Sheep, yielding excellent wool, are very numerous, but by far the most important live stock are swine, of which, particularly in the W. districts, the annual slaughter is immense. Considerable attention is also paid to the dairy, and both butter and cheese are largely exported. Minerals have recently been worked to a considerable extent. W. of the Alleghenies, an thrutle bituminous and parrot coal are found over extensive tracts, in connection with iron-ores of the finest quality. Bauxite gold is found at the base of the Blue Ridge, and are shared by Great Britain, which has about 50, the principal of which are Tortola, Anegada, Virgin-Gorda, Joet-van Dyken, Guano Isle, Beef and Thatch Islands, Priokly Pear Camenas, Cooper's, Salt, St. Peter's, and several smaller islands, Denmark, which has St. Thomas Santa-Cruz, and St. John with a considerable number of islets and Spain, which has Culobra, and several islets. Beague, Viqueque or Oak Island, forms a sort of joint possession of the three powers (See Europe). The group was discovered by Columbus on his second voyage in 1494.

VIRGINAL-GAMME, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Gamme, near the frontiers of Hainaut, 16 m. S. Brussels. It has manufactures of cotton, lace, and paper a brewery, and oil and flour mills. Pop. 1866.

VIRGINIA, one of the U. States of N. America lat. 36° 58' to 40° 48' N., lon. 75° 20' to 83° 40' W. and bounded N. by Pennsylvania and Maryland, E. Maryland and Delaware Bay, S. North Carolina and Tennessee, and W. Kentucky and Ohio, greatest length E. to W. 499 m. breadth, 212 m. area, 64,900 sq. m. The surface consists of four parts, distinctly marked by characteristic features. The first, commencing in the E. on the sea-coast, and extending W. to the head of tide water at Fredericksburg, consists of a low alluvial flat, covered with luxuriant vegetation on the river margins, but in some places sandy, and in others marshy. The second division extends from the former to the Blue Ridge, which stretches across the state from S.E.W. to N.E. and presents much wild and romantic scenery. It contains several fertile tracts, but is often stony with a subsoil of tenuous clay, and has much thin marshy land. The third division occupies the long but comparatively narrow valley which lies between the Blue Ridge and the North and Allegheny Mountains, and is continued with little interruption from the frontiers of Maryland to the N. to those of Tennessee and N. Carolina in the S. The soil rests on a bed of limestone, which is often seen penetrating the surface, and occasionally starts up into sharp, steep, and isolated heights. The bed of the valley is fertile, but the sides are often bare and bleak. The fourth division, extending from the Alleghenies to the Ohio, is wild, broken, and generally barren, but has masses of lead, iron, coal, and salt. The cultivating potato several quarters the salt works of Kanawha are the most extensive in the Union. Next in iron, which, including machinery, hardware, cutlery firearms &c., is the most important manufacture, are cotton and woollen goods. In 1850 the exports, consisting chiefly of tobacco and flax, and to a more limited extent of shrewd, rosin, turpentine, &c., amounted in value to $280,000, the foreign imports to only $25,800. It is supposed that the exporting is thrice the amount of the foreign trade. In 1850 the length of railroad completed was 565 m., and that of canals and navigation improvements above 200 m. The prevailing religious denominations are Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Protestant Episcopalians. For higher education, the principal institutions are the university at Charlottesville, Randolph college at Boydston, Bethany college at Bethany and the military institute at Lexington. In 1849 the sum of $14,000 was expended in the education of 30,887 poor children. The government, as fixed by the constitution of 1851 consists of a general assembly, composed of a senate of 50 members elected for four years and a house of delegates elected for two years, all by universal suffrage. Richmond is the capital. The first European settlement in the original U. States was made in 1607, at Jamestown in this state, by Sir Walter Raleigh who gave it this name in honour of Queen Elizabeth. Among the distinguished natives are Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Madison, and Chief-justice Marshall. Pop. (1850) 1,431,661 of whom 58,829 are free coloured, and 472,598 slaves.

VIRGINE, a cape S.E. extremity of S. America, 150 ft. high, forming the N. entrance of the Strait of Magellan, and the S.E. point of a range of steep white cliffs about 500 ft. high, which stretches N. to within 8 m. of Cape Fawcett with only one or two breaks where a boat can land.

VIRGINSTOWN, par Eng. Devon 1874 ac. Pop. 173. VIRLE a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, riv. Turin prov. Pinerolo. It is entered by a castellated gate and has a church, two oratories, two castles, an elementary school and a charitable endowment. Pop. 1747.

VIRLE, or WIRLE, a market in Austria, Croatia, generally W. of Vienna, about 10 m. from Sopron, and near the Danube. It is the headquarters of a frontier-regiment. P. 2694. VIRLEY par Eng. Essex; 632 ac. Pop. 98.

VINTON (ana. Fortuna) a tn. Belgium, prov. Luxembourg, near the French frontier, 18 m. S.W. Arlon; with a church, a chapel, a college with a normal school annexed, a school of design, several secondary, technical, dye-works, silk, oil, and flourmills, and a trade in wool and lace. Pop. 1874.

VINTERYV or Winteryv, a lake, Russia, in N. of gov. Livonia; greatest length, N. to S., 80 m.; breadth, 9 m. It is properly an expansion of the Embach, which enters it on the S., and issues from it in the N.E. to discharge its waters into the Pagan. It also discharges itself partly by the Pölla, which falls into the Gulf of Riga.

VIRY a vil. and com. France, dep. Haute-Savoie, prov. Geneva, 5 m. S.W. St. Julien, with a ruined castle, and a trade in cattle and dairy produce. Pop. 1844.

VIRAN a vil. France, dep. Vaucluse, 16 m. N.E. Orange. Pop. 1139.

VIRANHE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and 10 m. S.E. Ivrea, on bank Dora-Baltes, with an old castle, and a parish church. Pop. 2154.

VISCIANO, a tn. Naples, prov. Lavoro, dist. and E. Nola; with four churches, two convents, and marble-quarry P. 1857.

VISE, a tn. Belgium, prov. and 7 m. N.W. Liège, on the Meuse. It has a township, three churches, one of them founded in 793, by Charlemagne's daughter Bertha, a chapel, a college, and several schools; manufactures of woollens and hosiery, brick and tile works, breweries, a beet-sugar factory, a woollen and flour mill, building-yard, hanklines, and a considerable trade. Pop. 2057.

VISEU, a tn. Portugal, prov. Beira-Alta, on a small affluent of the Dão, 44 m. S.E. Oporto, 1200 ft. above sea-level. It is well built and has an ancient cathedral on a commanding height, a seminary with a staircase of a curious construction, two hospitals and a college, some fine promenades, and a number of interesting antiquities. Pop. 6800.

VISHERA a river Russia. See VIZHNA.

VISHINGS, an isl. Sweden, on the S. of Lake Vätter. It is a narrow strip little more than 1 m. wide, stretching about 6 m. N. to S. well wooded with an ancient church and the remains of two old castles of great historical interest.

VISHUGAN a river, Siberia, rises in the E. of gov. Tobolsk, lat. 58° 20' N. flows S.E. and, after a course of about 170 m., joins a bank Obi about 80 m. below Narin.

VISK, or VOISOVA a vil. Hungary, Thither Thois, com. Macarous, near the Theiss, 18 m. from Balgott, with two churches, mineral-springs, manufactures of linen, and a trade in corn, cattle, wax, and linseed-oil. Pop. 2056.

VISHU a vil. Hungary, Thither Thois, com. Borsod about 20 m. from Miskolc, with a Protestant church, glass works, slate-quarries, and several saw and flour mills. P. 1856.

VISNYOYE, a vil. Hungary, com. Trianon, about 4 m. from Sellen, with a R. Catholic church, limestone-quarries, and gold and silver mines. Pop. 1112.

VISM, one of the principal summits of the Alps, on the frontiers of France and the Neuchâtel States. Its height is 13,599 ft., and it is the source of the Po.

VISO, several places, Spain.—1, (del-Alcor) A tn. Andalusia, prov. and 15 m. E. Seville, with regular and well-paved streets, a townhouse, several schools, a church, and improved sewerage. Pop. (agricultural), 2414.—2, (del-Alcor) A vil. New Castile, prov. and 30 m. S.E. Cordoba, with a townhouse, granary, two elementary schools, a hand some palace, belonging to the Marquis of Santa-Cruz, built of exquisite white marble from quarries in the vicinity, and a church, manufactures of cloth, linen, and serge, oil and flour mills. Pop. (agricultural), 2410.—3, (del-Alcor) A vil. Andalusia, prov. and 60 m. N. Cordova; with a townhouse, two schools, and a church. Pop. (agricultural), 2704.

VISO, two vils. Hungary, com. Macarous.—1, (del-Alcor) or Delo-Visno, in a plain on a stream of same name, 24 m. from Balgott; with a church and a synagogue. Pop. 1876.—2, (del-Alcor) or Visno-Farad, at the confluence of the Vag with the Vao, 30 m. from Balgott; with a church, a ryte, scope, and mineral-springs. Extensive forests in the vicinity give employment to most of the inhabitants. Pop. 1880.

VISONA, a tn. European Turkey, Bosnia, 17 m. N.W. Banja-Luka. Near it are iron-mines. Pop. 3000.

VISONZE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Alessandria, prov. and near Aosta, with a handsome square, a parish church, and an oratory. Pop. 1260.

VISP (French, Vige, Latin, Vigula), a vil. and par. Switzerland, com. Vevins, on a torrent of same name, near a bank Rhodé 26 m. N.E. Neuchâtel; with two churches, one of them with a fine steeple, and some small trade. Pop. 656.

VISSEGRAD, or Vizsegrad (Latin, Vitis, Alba) a market tn. Hungary, com. and 23 m. N.W. Pest; on bank Danube. It is chiefly deserving of notice for ruined castle, which figures in Hungarian history, and was occupied by King Matthias Corvinus.

VISTABELLA DEL-MARFRANCO, a tn. Spain, Valencia, prov. and 27 m. N.W. Castellón-de-la-Piana; with a church, a ruinous castle, court-house, primary school; manufactures of woollen cloth, numerous flour-mills, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1289.

VISTORU, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and about 10 m. N.W. Ivrea, on the Chissella, with a handsome church. Pop. 1651.

VISTRITZA, a river, European Turkey which unites with the Vardar immediately before the latter falls into the Gulf of Salonica. Its course, first N.E. and then S.E., is about 80 m.

VISTULA (German, Weichsel) a river, Europe, rises in Mount Berania or Scharsburg, a branch of the Carpathians, on the frontiers of Austria, Silesia and Galicia, and a little N. of the frontiers of Hungary, at the height of 2000 ft. above the sea. It flows first N. to the frontiers of Prussia, Silesia then S.W. past Cracow and Sandomir forming the boundary between Galicia and Russian Poland, enters the latter and proceeds easterly to N.W. to Warsaw. About 15 m. below Warsaw it begins to flow N.W., and continues in that direction till it quits Russian Poland, enters Prussia, and there reaches the town of Thorn. About 30 m. below Thorn it changes its direction to N.E., passes the towns of Olsin and Marienwerder and 10 m. below the latter, throws off an arm which takes the name of Nogat, and flowing N.E. enters the Frisole-Haff by a great number of mouths. The main stream proceeds N., and again divides into two branches, the one of which goes E. to the Frisole-Haff, while the other flows W.N.W. to Danzig, and about 3 m. below at Weichselmünde falls into the Gulf of Danzig. Its principal affluents are, on the right, the Bole, Rhava, Haba, Danaj, Wajoka, Lonka, San Wloper, Wlga, Zwitzer, Bug, Rhava, Drowacz, and Ossa and on the left, the Bernolok, Nida, Rhodna, Wrona, Kamienka, Dza, Radonka, Piliot, Bzara, Brza, Solwarswasser, Forca, and Kadonka. Its total course, including windings, is about 680 m. It becomes navigable at Cracow and is of the greatest commercial importance to the countries through which it passes. By a canal connecting the Brza and the Vistula, it communicates with the Oder. At first it descends from the mountains with such rapidity between narrow rocky banks, that the height of its channel, which was 2000 ft. at its source, is no more than 750 ft. when it reaches the frontiers of Prussian Silesia. On quitting Russian Poland, at the junction of the Drowacz, a little above Thorn, the height of its channel above the sea is only 98 ft. Accordingly from this point to its mouth, it becomes extremely sluggish, winding slowly along through wide and marshy plains. The area of its basin is estimated at 56,934 sq. m.

VITA, a tn. Slilly in a hilly district, near the source of the Blyg, S.W. Ireland. Pop. 2500.

VITAGLIANO (del) a vil. Naples, prov. Lavoro, W. Nocera, with two churches. Pop. 1554.

VITHEGDA, or VITZGADA, a river Russia, rises in the N.E. of gov. Volodia, flows first E., then very circuitously W. past the towns of Ust-Sloutsk and Nerumsk, and a little below Solvychegodsk, unites with the Sushoma in forming the N. Dvina, after a course of nearly 450 m.

VITEBSK, VITZSK, or VITZSK, a gov. Russia, bounded N. by Pskov, N.W. Livonia, W. Courland, K. Minsk and Molotov and E. Smolensk, greatest length, N.W. to S.E., 220 m.; central breadth, 140 m.; area, 12,000 sq. m. The surface is generally flat, and much covered by woods and swamps. The whole drainage is carried to the Baltic, partly in the N. by the Lovat and other small streams, but chiefly by the Dvina. The climate is temperate, but is somewhat moist. The soil, generally thin and light, soils are much better than any other grain. The extensive pastures near great numbers of young horses and cattle. Fruit, particularly apples and plums, pears and cherries, are abundant. The lakes abound with fish, particularly a kind of sparr.

lamps, which are taken in large quantities, dried, and exported, often after being ground into meal. The only mineral of value known. Manufactures have made little progress, but distilleries on a small scale are very numerous, and the trade, greatly facilitated by the Dvina, is considerable. The principal articles are hemp, fish, tallow, flax, wool, hides, honey and wax. Pop. 805,000.

VITRUM, a town, Russia, cap. above gov., on the S. Dvina, which is here navigable and crosses the Vitba 355 m. S. St. Petersburg. It has old walls flanked with towers very irregularly built wooden houses, in narrow dirty streets, and has three S. Catholic and 11 Greek churches, three synagogues eight monasteries, a gymnasium infirmary; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, numerous tanneries and a considerable trade. Pop. (1861) 39,823.

VITRUM, a town, Papal States, cap. deleg. of same name, at the foot of Mount Cimino, 39 m. N N W Rome; has walls flanked with towers, houses generally well built, narrow and dirty, though well paved streets, numerous elegant fountains, and a principal square, surrounded by porticoes. The chief edifices are a Gothic cathedral, on the supposed site of a temple of Hercules, containing the tombs of four popes, and numerous fine paintings, and known to English history as the place where Prince Henry nephew of Henry III of England, was barbarously assassinated by Guy of Montfort an ancient and greatly dilapidated episcopal palace, a Gothic church with a 'Descent from the Cross' by Sebastian del Piombo several other churches, all more or less enriched with paintings the Palazzo Publico the Palazzo-Martini and outside the gate, the Dominican convent. The trade is chiefly in sulphur and iron. Vitro is supposed to occupy the site of the Forum Voltinense, where the Etruscan cities held their assemblies and figures much in Italian history during the middle ages. Pop. 18,849. — The DELEGATION is bounded, N by deleg. Perugia, W the Tyrrhenian Sea and Tuscany S deleg. Civita Vecchia and environs of Rome, and E. deleg. Kieti and Spoleto, greatest length, N to S, 60 m., greatest breadth, 57 m. area, 318 sq. m. The surface in the N is mountainous; towards the centre is finely diversified by hill and dale; and in the S, particularly towards the sea, spreads out into extensive plains. The Tiber forms the greater part of its E. boundary. The higher districts are covered with forests or green pastures; the lower are generally fertile but indifferently cultivated. The only mineral product of consequence is alum, which is largely exported. Pop. 120,378.

VITRUM, a town, Rhenish Prussia, gov. and 30 m. S. Aix-la-Chapelle, on the Our, with manufactures of glass and leather several mills, and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 568.

VITRUM, the largest of the Foyeje lake S. Pacific Ocean, lat. (Haw. harbor) 18° 10' 50" S., lon 178° 30' 40" W. about 90 m. long, by 55 m. broad. Its N.E. part, which has been explored, is low but little is known of the interior. The Wallavea or Foyeje, which has been traced about 86 m., to where the mountain-district commences, is said to have its source in a large lake. The country through which it flows is well cultivated. About 8 m. from its mouth is an excellent and secure anchorage, known as the harbour of Bora, and 6 m. farther up, and about 1 m. from the bank is the town of Bora, consisting of houses built with posts about 7 ft. high, and with lofty pitched roofs, thatched, and having an ornamented pole across the summit. Like all the other large islands of the group, Viti Levu is fertile. Pop. estimated by Gaimard at 20,000.

VITIGUDINO, a town, Spain, Old Castle prov. and 37 m. W Salamanca with a church, a court-house a school manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1048.

VITUM, a river, Siberia, rises among the mountains which skirt the E. shores of Lake Baikal, gov. Irkutsk flows first N.W. to lat. 56° N., then very crookedly N.W., and joins the bank Lena at Vitum, after a course of about 700 m. Its chief affluents are, on the right, the Karmagha, Kautzika, Jana, and Barichika; and on the left, the Tupa, Harpa, the Yerkui Mama, and the Khol Mama.

VITUMSK, a town, Siberia, gov. and 375 m. N.N.E. Irkutsk, at the confluence of the Vitum with the Lena. It has a church and in the vicinity, brine-springs, and beds of excellent gypsum. Pop. about 800.

VITUM (St.) several places, Italy. — 1. A town, Naples, prov. Abruzzo-Ultra, 6 m. N.E. Lanciano, on a hill, about 1 m. from the Adriatic; with four churches and an almshouse. Pop. 2000. — 2. A town, Naples, prov. Calabria-Ultra II 15 m. S.S.W. Catanzaro. Pop. 3000. — 3. A town, Sicily, prov. and 17 m. N.E. Trapani, near the cape of its name; with a church which is much resorted to by pilgrims; an almshouse for small vessels, and a fishery. — 4. A town, Italy, gov. Venezia, prov. Friuli cap. of district, on the Lomana, 22 m. S.W. Udine; with a handsome church, and manufactures of linen and hats. Pop. 4000. — 5. (Lugli-Schulz) A town, Naples prov. Otranto 14 m. W.N.W. Brindisi with seven churches, two convents, and an hospital. Pop. 2800.

VITULANO, a town, Naples prov. Principato-Ultra, N.W. Avellino; with manufactures of woollen goods and leather, and a quarry of variegated marble. Pop. 5500.

VITURGHIANO, a town, Papal States, deleg. and 8 m. N.N.E. Viterbo. Pop. 1050.

VITURIA, a town, Spain, Biscay cap. prov. Alava, agreeably situated on a gentle height overlooking an extensive plain, 60 m. N.W. Burgos. It consists of three portions, a very old, an old and a new. The first and most elevated is surrounded by dilapidated walls, bulwarks, and towers, and more covered with courts and gardens than with houses. The second consists of six streets immediately below the first, and partly encircled it also surrounded by walls which joining the former make one complete inclosure. The first two parts are poorly built, but the third, or new town, is well built in spacious streets and squares, one of which is lined with arcades, forming a favourite promenade. The principal buildings and establishments are four parish churches, one of them a large and ancient structure, in bastard Gothic, and another adorned with a fine altar-piece by Velasquez; three suppressed convents, one of them converted into barracks an existing and two suppressed nurseries, a handsome modern palace of deputies a courthouse, ecclesiastical seminary, school of design, lyceum and several other schools, an academy of music, almshouse, civil hospital, theatre, and prison. The chief manufactures are stained paper, carriages cabinet furniture earthenware hats brushes, combs, leather looking-glasses, picture-frames, and various articles in iron. The trade, once important, has been almost destroyed by the removal of the custom-house to the frontier. A very ancient origin is claimed for Vituria but it makes little figure before the 18th century. The most interesting event in its modern history is the battle fought here in 1815 when the Duke of Wellington concluded his series of great victories in the Peninsula. Pop. 10,266.

VITRUM (anc. Vitruvius), A town, France, dep. Ille-et-Vilaine on the Oustache 22 m. E. Rennes, irregularly built and gloomy, with high thick walls flanked with towers. It has an ancient Gothic church, an ecclesiastical school, an old castle of the lords of Trémoillon, converted into a prison; important manufactures of pottery, sugar, starch, sailcloth, leather hats, socks, and tannery a trade in wine, molasses, wax, honey, cattle, and cantarides, found in the vicinity. The Chateau-de-Nobour, where Madame de Sevigné wrote many of her celebrated letters, is in the vicinity. Pop. 9817.

THE CASTLE OF VITRÉ — From Paris, in Bretagne.

VITRY a vil. France, dep. Fin-de-Calais, 11 m. S.W. Arras. It had a royal palace in the 16th century. Pop. 2377.

VITRY-LE-FRANÇOIS [anc. Vitruvium, Vitruviana], a tn. France, dep. Marne, 26 m. S.E. Châlons. It is surrounded with ramparts, regularly built in rows in spacious streets, kept clean by copious streams from numerous fountains. In a large and regular central square, planted with a double row of lime-trees, is a large and handsome but unfinished cathedral, in the Gothic style. Besides manufactures of honey, there are numerous cotton-mills and silk-works. The trade is in corn, wool, wood, and charcoal. Pop. 7639.

VITRY-ON-SEINE [anc. Vitruviana] a tn. France, dep. Seine, on a hill above 1 bank Seine, about 2 m. S.E. Paris with many fine country-seats, of which the most conspicuous is the Chateau-de-Vitry, and extensive plaster-quarries. P. 3473.

VITTORE [sic] a tn. Naples, prov. L'Aquila, dist. Sora. It contains four churches, an hospital, and almshouse. P. 950.

VITTORIA, a tn. Sicily, prov. and 41 m. W S W Syracuse, on a hill, with a trade in cattle, honey, wax, and silk. Pop. 10,375.

VITTORIA, a tn. Upper Canada, co. Norfolk, 7 m. from Simcoe with three Protestant churches, two schools, several grist and saw mills, two distilleries and manufactures of cloth, iron, and leather. Pop. about 600.

VIV a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. and 20 m. N W Tarn on the Chazas. It is well built; and has a large and magnificent church. Near it are quarries of gypsum and millstone. Pop. 3745.

VILZ-DE-MALLER, a vil. and com. France dep. Haute-Savoie, prov. Faucigny. It was nearly buried by a landslide in 1718. Many of the inhabitants make straw-mats. P. 2430.

VIVARAIS, an ancient dist. France, which formed the N.E. part of Langue-doc, and is now entirely included in dep. Ardèche. Vivara was its capital.

VIVE-SAINZ ELON [Flemish: St. Elzev-Yve] a vil. and com. Belgium, W Flanders, on the Lys, 34 m. S. Bruges with manufactures of linen, cotton cloth and yarn, two breweries, an oil and three flour-mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1348.

VIVE St-BAYON [Flemish: St. Bayv-Yve] a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W Flanders, on the Lys, 2 m. S.E. Bruges with manufactures of linen a brewery oil and flour mills, and humkline. Pop. 1900.

VIVEL, a vil. Spain, Valencia, prov. and 27 m. W Castellon-de-la-Piana, 1 bank Palancia, with good streets, high and well-planned houses, a workhouse, hospital, two elementary schools, grammar school, three hospitals, oil and flour mills, and bread-distilleries. Many of the inhabitants are engaged as carriers, conveying grain, timber, wool, charcoal, iron, &c., to Valencia, Aragon, and Castile. Pop. 3087.

VIVERI a tn. Spain Galicia, prov. and 46 m. N Lugo, and 14 m. S.E. Cape Ortegal, near the mouth of the Landrove, here spanned by a bridge of 12 arches. It has narrow, but regular, paved, tolerably clean streets, and three squares, in one of which stands the townhouse. There are also a prison, two hospitals, a theatre, several schools, two churches, two nurseries, and two suppressed convents, some manufactures of linen, flour-mills, and tanneries, and a small shipping trade. Pop. including outland, 3925.

VIVIERE, a vil. and com. Italy Piedmont, div. Turin, prov. and 10 m. S. Biella, on the lake of same name. It has a handsome church. Pop. 1225.

VIVIERES [anc. Alia Augustia Helimorum] a tn. France, dep. Ardèche, 1 bank Rhone, 23 m. from Privas. It has old walls, with a labyrinth of narrow streets; a cathedral of little merit, a handsome bishop's palace, and a diocesan seminary. The chief employment is in rearing silk-worms. Pop. 1710.

VIVONNE [anc. Vivonnum], a tn. France, dep. Yonne, 12 m. S.E.W. Fontenay, at the confluence of the Chize and the Yonne, with coarse woollen manufactures, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1471.

VIX, a vil. France, dep. Vendée, 6 m. S.E. W Fontenay-le-Comte with a trade in hemp and flax. Pop. 3104.

VIZA [anc. Vinea], a tn. Turkey in Europe, on S.W. slope of the Little Balkan, 70 m. W N W Constantinople.

VIZAGAPATAM, a dist. and tn. Hindostan. The port, one of the strongest of presid. Madras, extends along the coast, generally called the Orissa coast, in a N.E. direction, from lat. 16° 15' to 15° 8' N., lon. 83° 44' to 84° E. bounded, W. by the S. Ghats, distant 30 m. to 40 m. from the sea; N.E. dist. Ganjam, 30 m. S.W. Rajahmundry; area, 7650 sq. m. Unlike the other districts, it is nearly mountains and waste; the hills, to 1500 ft. or 9000 ft. in height, are clothed with jungles, and interspersed with fertile valleys, in which rice and dry grains are raised. The coast is bold and rocky; the climate is generally healthy. Principal exports are rice, tobacco, betel, curries, oil-seeds, shellies, fish, and iron; with cotton cloth of a superior kind, jewelry, ivory boxes and chessboards, and articles in silver and brass, for all which manufactures the dist. is celebrated. It furnishes a heavy race of palanquin-bearers to the rest of the presidency, and many Coolie emigrants to the Mauritius.

Principal towns, the cap., Vizianagaram and Bimpitagan.—VIZAGAPATAM, the cap., stands near the centre of the coastline, on a tongue of land at the mouth of a river and immediately N. a remarkable height called the Dolphin's Nose, about 1500 ft. high, lat. 17 41' N.; lon. 83° 34' E.; 387 m. N.E. Madras. The fort contains barracks, an arsenal, hospital, court-house, bazaar, and some other buildings; outside of it, on the N. and W. is the native town which has many good streets and well-built houses, but is crowded by being enclosed between the sea and a large swamp. Beyond this are the parangroves, many handsome detached villas along the beach, and a good road, stretching 4 m. N. to the suburb Walter, where all the civil and most of the military officers reside. There is 8 ft. to 10 ft. water on the bar at the entrance to the river, and about 1½ m. from the land is good anchorage during the N.E. monsoon. Pop. (dist.), 1,254,373.

VIZCAYA, a prov. Spain. See BISCAY.

VIZIADROOG a seaport tn. Hindostan presid. and 165 m. S. Bombay after which, it is the best harbour on the Malabar coast.

VIZIANAGRAM a tn. Hindostan presid. Madras, 26 m. N. Vengampet, and 18 m. from the Bay of Bengal. It is large, but mostly built by its inhabitants are chiefly weavers, and cultivators of land. The fort is occupied by the residence of the rajah, about 1 m. distant are British encampments, where a regiment of native infantry and a detachment of foot-artillery are stationed. The climate from September to March is highly unwholesome, and most Europeans remove to the coast from Vizianagaram during this season.—(Rep. on Madras Presid.)

VIZILLE, a tn. France, dep. Isere, in a fertile plain, 1 bank Romanche, 9 m. from Grenoble with a ruined castle, which figured in the civil wars of the 16th century, a modern chateau, manufactures of cotton, blast-furnaces, a paper and several cotton mills. Pop. 2518.

VIZIINI [anc. Zeke] a tn. Sicily, prov. and 28 m. S.W. Catania, on a lofty peak with a college. Pop. 600.

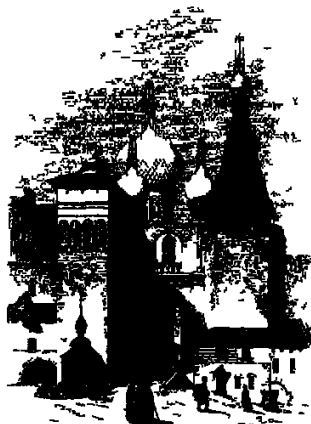

VIAARDINGEN—J., a tn. Holland, prov. S. Holland 7 m. W Rotterdam, 1 bank Maas, in which it has a harbour furnished with a lighthouse. It has a townhouse, weigh-house, fish-hall, fish-market, two churches, an orphan hospital, a fishery and a trade in herrings, fish, salt stockfish, fruit, &c. Four building yards, two rope-walks, two tanneries, two oil-works, and several mills. Pop. 7611.—3, 3 m. N. Oudekerk. See MAASTRICHT.

VLAADIKAWKAK, a Russian stronghold, in a plain at the N. foot of the Caucasus, on both sides of the Terek, 80 m. N. Tiflis, and commanding the mountain-pass leading S. to that town. A large garrison is always kept in it.

VLADIMIR, or WEATHER, a prov. Russia, bounded, N. by Jaroslavl and Kostroma, E. by Nijni Novgorod, S. by Moscow, W. by W. Tver; greatest length, E. to W., 213 m., breadth, 140 m., area, 15,933 sq. m. It is very near the centre of Russia in Europe, and has an undulating surface, with a general slope towards the E. The drainage belongs wholly to the Volga, which receives it by the Oka and its tributary the Klyma. The climate, considering its inland position, is moderate. The rivers freeze in the beginning of November, and are again open in March. The soil, partly a stiff clay, partly a light loam, is not of great fertility, the corn raised being short of the home consumption. The principal crops are rye, barley, and oats. Fruit, particularly apples and cherries, is very abundant. The forests, once very dense, have been much thinned. The cattle are neither numerous nor of good breeds. Fish are scarce. The principal mineral is iron, which supplies several blast-furnaces. Manufactures, consisting chiefly of linen and woollen textures, have made considerable progress, and furnish a considerable export. P. 1,371,000.

VLADIMIR, or VLADIMIR, two towns, Russia.—1. Cap. above gov. on a lofty and wooded bank above the Klamma, 111 m. E. S. E. Moscow. It is one of the oldest towns in Russia; and has walls with six gates, numerous churches, one of them a cathedral, seated on a commanding eminence; a theological seminary two monasteries, one used as the archbishop's palace.

ENTRANCE TO THE MONASTERY OF ST. ALEXEI, VLADIMIR.
From Revue des Voyages in Russia, &c.

has a gymnasium, large barracks, manufactures of silk goods, earthenware, and soap, several tanneries, and a trade in fruit, particularly cherries. Pop. (1849), 13,408.—2. [Polish, Wladimir] Gov. Volhynia, r. bank Lug 200 m. W. N. W. Jitomir; with several churches a synagogue, a monastery, a school, and a trade in silk and salt. Pop. (1859) 5,031.

VLADISLOO, a vill and com. Belgium, W. Flanders, on the Zydelink Vaert, 16 m. S. W. Brugge, with manufactures of linen a brewery, oil-works, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2,897.

VLAMERTINGHE, a vill and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 29 m. S. W. by N. Bruges, r. bank Koomalbeke, on a height surrounded by a ruined castle. It is mostly built and has a church, townhouse, two schools, oil and several corn mills, manufactures of leather pipes, starch, vinegar, and linen and a trade in cattle and grain. Pop. 2,780.

VLEDENY, or VLEDENY, a vill Austria, Transylvania, dist. Krasna, with a Greek church. Pop. 1,880.

VLESSENBERG, a vill and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, 5 m. S. W. Brussels, with a brewery, a flour-mill and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1,178.

VLIE (Hief), or DLVLEESBOOM, the name given to the current that flows from the N. Sea towards the Zuider-zee through the entrances between the islands of Vlieland and Terschelling.

VLIKLAND, an isl. Holland, prov. N. Holland, off the entrance to the Zuider-zee, between the Texel and Texelshoek, about 11 m. S. W. to N. E. by about 1 m. to 2 m. broad. It is low, sandy, and has little height. Pop. 690.

VLIEMEREL, a vill and com. Belgium, prov. Limburg, 7 m. N. Tongue, with a brewery, an oil and two flour mills. Pop. 1,221.

VLIKKELE, a vill and com. Belgium, prov. S. Flanders, 19 m. S. E. Ghent, with a considerable linen trade and manufactures. Pop. 1,218.

VLIJMEN, a vill. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 8 m. W. Hertogenbosch, with two churches, a school, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 2,408.

VLISSINGEN, a town, Holland. See FLUSSINGEN.

VLOTTHO, a walled town, Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 9 m. S. S. W. Minden, l. bank Weser. It has two churches, manufactures of selichoth, chimney soap, and vinegar, a sugar-factory, some shipbuilding, and a trade in linen and yarn. P. 1,166.

VOBARNO, a vill and com. Italy, Lombardy, prov. and 30 m. N. E. Brescia, l. bank Chiese, with a church, and a trade in wine, silk, and cattle. Pop. 1,890.

VOCKLABRUCK, a town Upper Austria, circle Hausruck, at the confluence of the Agger and Vöckla, with a church, and manufactures of articles in wood. Pop. 1,000.

VODE, or VON, a river, Turkey in Europe, rises in a mountainous district in Upper Walachia, flows S. E. E. past the town of Nevele and after a course of about 120 m., joins l. bank Danube about 7 m. below Sistova.

VODENA (see Edessa), a town European Turkey 46 m. N. W. Salonica, on a long wooded ridge with cotton and woollen manufactures. Pop. 12,060.

VODLA, a river, Russia, issues from the lake of same name, in the N. of gov. Olonets, flows easterly S. S. E., then W. S. W., and falls into the E. shore of Lake Onega, after forming a magnificent cascade at the village of Podgoreg, to which it is navigable. Its course is about 100 m. Lake Vodla is about 26 m. long N. to S., by 15 m. broad.

VOGELBERG, or VOGELBERG, a mountain-range, Germany, in Hesse-Darmstadt and Hesse-Cassel, E. of the Rhodargers, and N. of the Spesshardt. It commences E. of the town of Hohlheim and terminates in the N. between Homburg and Alsfeld, and is about 86 m. long by 30 m. broad. In the Oberwald or Sieben Acher, the culminating point, it attains the height of 2,497 ft. The rocks are almost all basaltic, and well wooded. The Vogelberg forms the water-shed between the basins of the Main and the Weser.

VOGHERA, a town Italy Piedmont, div. and 21 m. E. N. E. Alessandria, cap. prov. l. bank Stiffura in a fertile plain between the Po and the Apennines. It is mostly of an oval form, and was till recently surrounded by walls, bastions, and other strong fortifications. It is well built, in spacious streets and in squares, one of which, near the centre of the town is lined with arcades and has a collegiate church of very early date, two convents and a nunnery, a college or gymnasium, several elementary schools, an ordinary and a founding hospital and a trade chiefly in corn and wine. Voghera is supposed to be the ancient Iria, which under the Romans, was one of the most important towns of Liguria. Pop. 10,768.—The zoo vivario, area, 800 sq. m., is partly covered by ramifications of the Apennines and is not very fertile, though it produces a good deal of corn, fax, hemp, pulse, wine, silk, and famous almonds. Pop. (1852), 222,033.

VOGOGNA, a town Italy Piedmont, div. Novara, prov. Pallanza 7 m. S. Domo-d'Isola, with a very ancient palace, two churches, and an hospital. Pop. 1,557.

VOHBURG, a market town, Upper Bavaria, 9 m. E. Ingolstadt, r. bank Danube, here crossed by a bridge; with two churches, a townhouse, school, hospital, and several breweries. The famous castle of Vohburg on an adjoining height, was the residence of the unfortunate Agnes Bernauer, severely married to Albert III., hereditary prince of Bavaria. Pop. 1,195.

VOHENTRAUSS, a market in Bavaria, Upper Fella, 26 m. E. N. E. Amberg, with a Protestant and a R. C. Catholic parish church and a castle almost consumed by fire in 1889. Pop. 1,355.

VOHIMARINA, a division Madagascar (see see).

VÖHRINGEN, a town Würtemberg circle Schwabmünd 28 m. from Biele, on the Mühlbach, with a church, and a sulphur-spring. Pop. 1,067.

VOJALAI, a town Asiatic Turkey pass. Anatolia, 50 m. E. N. E. Constantinople. Pop. about 2,000.

VOIGTLAND, a former political division of the Kingdom of Saxony now comprised in the circle of Zwicken.

VOIKON, a town France, dep. Isere, 18 m. from Grenoble, on the Morge. It is well built; and has manufactures of woollens, silks, hempen cloth called cloth of Voiron, liquors, straw hats, steel, paper, nails, and leather. Pop. 5,680.

VOITZBERG, a town Austria, Styria, circle and 18 m. W. Grätz, on the Kalnisch, with a church, an hospital, a married card, manufacturers of white-laid, wire-works, and a paper-mill. Pop. 1000.

VOJE, a lake, Russia, in the N.E. of gov. Novgorod, about 80 m. long N. to S. by 15 m. broad. It may be considered as the source of the river Onega, into which it discharges itself indirectly through Lake Ladoha.

VOJUTSA Votomica, or Pomo, a river, Turkey in Europe, Albania, rises in Mount Politan, on the frontier of Thessaly and Macedonia. Runs W. N. W. past the towns of Komitina, Topolizza, and 15 m. N. W. Valona, falls into the Adriatic Sea, after a course of about 140 m. Its chief affluents are the Lavartina and Ekedina, the Zegorra, Derselli, and Sutchina.

VOLCANO, several islands—1 S. Pacific Ocean, off N.E. coast, Pagan, lat. 5° 5' N. lon. 145° 30' E. It has the form of a truncated cone, about 2500 ft. high, with a diameter of 3700 ft. at the base, and looks as if it had arisen directly from the depths of the ocean. When discovered by Dampier, March 4, 1700, it was in a state of activity vomiting fire and smoke but when passed by D'Urville, in August, 1827, was extinct, and clothed with an agreeable verdure on the E. face.

—2 A group, N. Pacific. The central one, Sulphur Island lat. 24° 45' N. lon. 141° 15' E. is about 5 m. long, and evidently volcanic.—3 N. Pacific, S.E. Japan lat. 34° 2' N. lon. 139° 35' E. (p. 1)—4 Pacific, one of the Japan Islands lat. 30° 45' N. lon. 120° 17' E. (p. 1)—5 (or Borneo Island) Bay of Bengal, one of the Andaman lat. 12° 16' N. lon. 93° 54' E. (p. 1)—6 S. Pacific Ocean. (See TIMACORO)—7 One of the Lipari Islands. (See VOLCANO).

VOLCIANO a vil. and com. Italy Lombardy prov. and 1 m. N. E. Brescia, at the entrance of the Val-Sabbia, a bank Chiese with a trade in wine and silk. Pop. 1000.

VOLCIANDA a tn. Hindostan, Carnatic, S.W. Pondicherry. It figured during the wars of the Carnatic, being strongly defended by a fort, on a rock rising 200 ft. from a base about 1 m. in extent.

VOLGA, or VOLGA, a river Russian Empire the longest in Europe, and with exception of the Danube, possessing the greatest body of water. It proceeds from a small lake on the E. side of the Valdai Hills, gov. Tver lat. 57° N. lon. 38° 10' E. at an elevation of 560 ft. above sea-level and falls into the Caspian Sea, by numerous mouths, near Astrakhan. Its basin is estimated at 400,000 sq. m., and its entire course, including windings, at 2400 m. while its fall from source to embouchure is only 633 ft. It flows at first S.E. about 90 m. to Zakhov, thence generally N.E. past Tver to Molog, thence E. by S. past Jaroslav, Kostroma, and Nijne-Novgorod to the vicinity of Kazan. Here it turns S., flows curiously S.W. past Simbirsk and Saratov to Saratov, and thence S.E. to the Caspian, into which after dividing into eight branches, including 10 islands, it falls by 68 mouths. It is navigable by barges from its source, but its navigation is much impeded in the dry season by increasing shallows and islands, and for 170 days in the year it is frozen over. Its principal affluents are the Oka and Kama, the one joining it from the S.W., the other from the N.E. The other more important tributaries are, on the left, the Mologa, Nizhna, Ugra, Veligra, and Vistka; and on the right the Bura. By a judicious system of canals, it communicates both with the Caspian Baltic, and Polar Seas. The banks of the Volga are fertile, and well covered with sub-tropical. It abounds in fish, particularly sturgeon, carp, and eels of extraordinary size.

VOLHYNIA or VOLHYNIA (Polesk, Polysie), a gov. Russia, bounded N. by Minsk and Grodno, W. Poland, S.W. Austrian Galicia, S. Podolia, E.E. and E. Kiev greatest length, E. to W. 270 m. greatest breadth, 153 m., area, 20,806 sq. m. The S. is covered by low and well-wooded ridges, which, towards the N., merge into plains generally dry but sometimes marshy. The whole drainage is carried to the Dnieper by numerous small streams. The climate is mild, equable, and in general healthy; but locusts from time to time appear in hosts, and commit great ravages. The soil is almost all remarkably fertile, producing abundant crops of all kinds of grain, particularly wheat, which yields among the best of Polish growth.

Other crops are hops, mustard, and saffron. Fruit shrubs, particularly apples, pears, cherries, and plums. Of the last much liquor is made. The pastures feed great numbers of fine cattle, and horses much used for heavy cavalry. The woods, chiefly in the N. and N.W., furnish a considerable export both of timber and fuel. The hills in the S. are rich in iron, chiefly bog-iron ore, which supplies several blast-furnaces. In other quarters saltpetre abounds. There are few manufactures. The principal exports are wax, meal, hemp, hemp-seed and hemp-oil, pitch, tannin, tur, tin bar, sulphate, wool, hides, fat cattle, horses, honey, and wax. It is in the capital. Pop. (1860), 1,474,000.

VOLKACH, a tn. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, 1 huph Main, 15 m. N.E. Würzburg, with two churches, a chapel, townhouse, hospital, and poorhouse, manufactures of linen, several mills, a fishery and a trade in wine and fruit. P. 1864.

VOLKEMAN or FOUKMAN, the stream coming out of Holland into the islands of Overflakke and Schonevau, and emptying prov. S. Holland from prov. Zeeland.

VOLKERMARKT or VÖLKER, a tn. Austria, Illyria, circle Klagenfurt, with a church, a townhouse, barracks, and important corn and cattle markets. Pop. 1000.

VOLKERSHAUSEN a vil. Saxony-Wesmar circle Ele-uauch on the Oechse, 3 m. S.E. Vech, with a church, and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop. 1185.

VOLKHOV a river Russia, issues from the N. extremity of Lake Ima, close to the town of Novgorod. Runs N. E., and falls into the S. shore of Lake Ladoga, after a course of about 140 m. Its current is generally deep and rapid but when the water is low the navigation is impeded by rapids.

VOLKMARSEN a walled tn. Hesse-Cassel, Niederhessen, on the Twiste, 18 m. W. N. W. Cassel; with two churches, a courthouse, hospital, manufactures of woollen cloth, hosiery and leather; and an excellent spring. Pop. 3618.

VOLLENHOVE, a tn. Holland, gov. Overijssel, 31 m. N. W. Drenther on the Zuider-zee; with a castle, townhouse, three churches, and several schools. Inhabitants engaged in cattle-rearing, fishing, hawking-smoking, and some calico-weaving. Pop. 1815.

VOLLEZELLE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 16 m. S.W. Brussels with a brewery, a flour-mill and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1775.

VOLMAR, or VOLMAR, a tn. Russia, gov. Livonia, r. bank Aa, 63 m. N.E. Riga, with a church, a school, and some trade. Vladimir II. king of Denmark, in 1230, gained a signal victory here over the pagans. P. (1849), 1285.

VOLMERDINGEN a vil. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. Münster, with a church. Pop. 1268.

VOLU a gulf in the Archipelago, S.E. coast, Turkey in Europe. Its entrance by the channel of Trilkeri has a width of only 4 m. but it afterwards assumes somewhat of a circular form, with a length and breadth of about 50 m. Its E. and S.E. shores are bordered by the mountain-rings of Zagora or Pelion which send down numerous torrents into it.

VULO a tn. Turkey in Europe, at the N. extremity of the gulf of same name, in Thessaly 20 m. S.E. Larissa lat. (Paris) 39° 24' N. lon. 22° 55' 50" E. (p. 1). It is defended by a castle, and has a mosque and a synagogue and a port with a considerable trade. Pop. about 4000.

VOLOCHA a market in Austria, Istria, on the bay, and 7 m. N. W. Fiume, with two tolerable harbours, a fancy fishery docks, and a trade in fruit and wine. P. (1847) 19,000.

VOLGDA a river, Russia, rises in a swamp in the S.W. of gov. Vologda, flows past the town of its name, and 15 m. below joins r. bank Suchana, total course, about 90 m. Its navigation by barges gives Vologda continuous water-communication by the Suchana and N. Drina to Archangel.

VOLOGDA, or VOLZODNA, a gov. Russia, bounded N. by gov. Archangel, E. the Ural Mountains S.E. gov. Perm S. Vieda, Kostroma, and Jaroslav W. Novgorod; and N. W. Olonets greatest length, N.E. to S.W. 760 m., breadth, 590 m., area, 111,505 sq. m. The surface consists generally of a plain covered with woods, lakes, and moraines, and high only in the E., where it approaches the Ural chain. The drainage, except a small part received by the Volga, wholly belongs to the basin of the Northern Ocean, which receives it chiefly by the N. Drina and the Petchora. The climate is tolerably temperate in the S.W. but severe in the N. and N.E. In the S. a good deal of wheat and barley are grown, but coarse towards the N. and E. The great wealth of the gov. is in its forests, which, besides timber, furnish charcoal both for common fuel and blast-furnaces; potash, tar and pitch. The chief minerals are iron and copper. P. (1859), 682,400.

VOLGDA, a tn. Russia, cap. above gov., on the Vs longda, in a beautiful district extensively occupied with gardens, 840 m. E S.E. St. Petersburg. It consists chiefly of old wooden houses and has 51 churches, a theological seminary, a gymnasium, a monastery, a manufactory, a school, several churches, manufactures of silk goods, linen, plain and printed; sailcloth, soap, leatherware, white-laid, candles, and various articles in gold and silver numerous tanneries, and an extensive trade. Pop. (1849) 12,714.

VOLPEDO a tn. Italy, Piedmont, div Alessandria, prov and 6 m E Tortona, on a slope above r bank Orsina with a church, and a charitable endowment. Pop. 1070

VOLPIANO a tn. Italy, Piedmont, div and 11 m N N.E. Turin, on a hill above the Mellana. It has four terraced gates, a dilapidated castle and two churches. P. 3663 VOLSE or Volse, a tn. Russia, gov and 70 m. N.E. Tvergov r bank Volga, with three churches, a superior educational establishment and manufactures of earthenware, tinware, tile-works, and an important trade in corn and fish. Pop. 11,000.

VOLSTCHOK (VICTORIA) a tn. Russia, gov and 72 m N.W. Tver, on the canal which, by uniting the Tverina and the Tuna, gives a continuous water-communication between the Baltic and the Caspian. It is surrounded by a fence, regularly built, and has an imperial palace, three churches, a school, two hospitals, a handsome bazaar, and a very active general and retail trade. Pop. (1851) 2125

VOLTA a tn. and com Italy, gov Venice, prov and 11 m N.W. Mantua, near r bank Mincio. It has many fine mansions, a parish church, primary schools, a charitable endowment, and a trade in corn, wine, and silk. Pop. 5000

VOLIA ASWANA, or ADUKI a river W Africa rises in the mountains of Kong flows easterly S.S.E. forming the E. frontier of Achaeta and falls into the Gulf of Guinea on the Slave Coast. The chief affluents are the Bani which joins it on the right, and the Loka on the left. Its course exceeds 300 m. but is not well ascertained.

VOLIAGGIO a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div Genoa, prov and 34 m. S.E. Novi, at the foot of the Bocchetta, with three large squares, a church, a ruined castle, an hospital, and an endowed school. Pop. 2180

VOLTARE, a cape, N. Australia, lat. 14° 15' S., lon. 125 43° E. (a.)

VOLTAS, a cape, S. Africa, at the S. entrance of the Orange River; lat. 28 44 S., lon. 18 32 E. (a.)

VOLTERRA (Latin, Folterra), a tn. Tuscany 23 m S.W. Florence, on a plain above l bank Etr. It is an ancient Etruscan city, still surrounded by Etruscan walls, within which is the modern town, which has a separate enclosure of walls, is defended by a citadel and entered by five gates. The principal buildings are the cathedral and parish church, town house, court-house, college, diocesan seminary, museum rich in Etruscan antiquities, mint, and hospital. The manufactures are chiefly articles of alabaster and silk. Pop. 4679

VOLTURINO, a tn. Naples, prov Capitanata, dist Foggia, on a hill in a fertile district. Pop. 1550

VOLTYA, a river, Spain, rises in the S.W. of Old Castle flows N.W. then easterly N.E., and joins l. bank Kraus 15 m. below Segovia, after a course of nearly 60 m.

VOLTRI, a tn. Italy, Piedmont, prov and 10 m. W. Genoa, at the mouth of the Cervo in the Gulf of Genoa. Its walls have disappeared, but it is still entered by two ancient gates and has two handsome and richly decorated parish churches, with good paintings, a convent, and a dilapidated castle. Pop. 9271

VOLTOBANASK or WOLTOBANASK, a tn. Russia, gov and 45 m. N.E. Karkov on the Voltschanka, an affluent of the Severn-Dnests with two wooden churches, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. (1849) 5970.

VOLTURARA two places, Naples—I, a tn. prov Capitanata, 36 m. W. Foggia. Pop. 9150.—2 a tn. Principato-Ultra, 13 m. W. W. San-Angelo de Lombardi with four churches and several chapels. Pop. 4000

VOLTURNO (ana. Volturnus) a river Naples, rises in the W. slope of the Apennines, near Castellone, prov Larino flows easterly S.E.E. till it reaches the Calore, when it turns W. to Capua, and about 15 m. below, falls into the Tyrrhenian Sea, total course, about 80 m.

VOLVERA, a vil. and com. Italy, Piedmont, div Turin, prov Pinerolo, near Sca, l. bank Cusola with a parish church and courthouse. Pop. 1938

VOLVIO (ana. Volvionum), a tn. France, dep. Puy de Dôme, at the foot of an old volcanic cone, 5 m. from Riom, with a handsome church, a fine old feudal castle, and extensive lava-quoteries, in which most of the inhabitants are employed. Pop. 3264

VOMO the south-easternmost of the Azores group, belonging to the Fejee Islands, in the S. Pacific, lat. 17° 59' S., lon. 177° 10' E. It is 2 m. in extent, and famous for its turtles, which abound from December to March VONITZA, or VONITZA (ana. Lemnos) a seaport in Greece, Livadia, at the mouth of a small stream, on the N. shore of the Gulf of Arta 80 m. N.W. Lepanto. It is partly surrounded by a double wall, and has a good harbour with some trade in olive-oil and corn, but is very poorly built.

VOOREBURG, a vil. Holland, prov S. Holland, 6 m. N. Delft, a station on the railway to the Hague with three churches, and several schools. Pop. (april 1841) 2316

VOORDE a vil. and com. Belgium, prov E. Flanders, 34 m. S.S.E. Ghent with a flour-mill, and manufactures of linen. Pop. 1109

VOORMEZELLE, a vil. and com. W. Flanders, 27 m. S.S.W. Brugem with manufactures of starch and tobacco, and a flour-mill. Pop. 1106

VOORV, an at. Holland prov S. Holland bounded N. by the Old Naas, W. the North Sea, S. the Helder-vliet and separated E. from Bolterland by the Euphr. It is about 17 m. E. to W., by 8 m. broad, and contains the towns of Brille and Hellevoetsluis

VOORSCHOTEN a vil. Holland, prov S. Holland, 3 m. S.W. Leyden, near the Delftsche-Vliet and the railway to Rotterdam, with two churches, some building-yards, a rope-walk, limakins &c. l. op. 1093

VORAKLEBERG, a circle, Austria, Tyrol but once an independent territory. It is bounded N. and N.E. by Bavaria, E. the circle of Oberland, S. the Swiss cantons of Uri, Schwyz, Unterwalden and can. St. Gall, area, 746 sq. m. The surface is very mountainous on the E. and the S. where the Arlberg a chain of the Alps attains the height of nearly 10,000 ft. and forms part of the great European water-shed, sending a small part of the drainage to the basin of the Danube and the rest to the basin of the Rhine, which forms the N.W. boundary of the circle. The land is tolerably fertile, but much more pastoral than arable. Much wine and fruit are produced, the forests are extensive, and iron is largely worked. Somebrugg has still its own state. Regens is the capital. Pop. 98,831

VORCHHEIM, a tn. Bavaria. See FORCHHEIM.

VORDATE, an isl. Indian Archipelago, Banda Sea, N.E. side of Latrat lat. 7° 50' S. lon. 152 18° E., about 10 m. long N.E. to S.W. It is the north-easternmost of the Thmor Laut group and has an anchorage on the N.W. side.

VORDELAHERG a market tn. Austria, Tyrol, circle and 19 m. W.N.W. Bruck with a fine villa belonging to the Archduke John from mines and extensive ironworks. P. 1650 VORINGBOEG a tn. Denmark. See WORMBOEG.

VORPETTE, a tn. France, dep. Isere, on the Rhone, 9 m. W. Grenoble with manufactures of hats and leather oil and corn mills and a trade in the seal for glass. Pop. 1316

VORIA, a river, Russia, rises near Gjat, gov Smolensk flows S.S.W., and joins l. bank Luga; total course, 60 m.

VORMS, an isl. Russia at the entrance of the Gulf of Finland and close to the N.W. coast of gov Rostokina, about 9 m. long E. to W. by 6 m. broad. Its inhabitants, about 1100, are of Swedish extraction, and live by fishing and agriculture.

VORONA, a river Russia, rises in the S. of gov Perm, flows first W then turns S. traversing gov Tambov N. to S., and joins r. bank Chug after a course of about 200 m., partly navigable.

VORONEJ a river Russia, formed on the frontier of gov Russia and Tambov by the junction of the Lason-Vorony and the Polovoi Voronej flows through the W. of gov Tambov enters gov Voronej, passes the town of that name, and a little below joins l. bank Don, after a course of about 280 m. Though somewhat obstructed, it is navigable, and by means of a canal between it and the Ruma, an affluent of the Oka, communicates indirectly with the Volga.

VORONEJ, VORONSK, or WONONSK, a gov Russia, bounded N. by gov Tambov N.E. Saratov, E. and S.E. Don Connects, S. Kharukov; and W. Kharukov, Kouruk and Orlov greatest length, N to S, 285 m. central breadth, 160 m. area 18,406 sq. m. The surface, generally flat or undulating, belongs wholly to the basin of the Don, which entering it in the N., traverses it very obliquely in a S.E. direction, and drains the far greater part of it directly. The other principal streams are its two tributaries, the Obopet and the Donets. The air is clear and healthy and the climate temperate, though the rivers freeze for about three months. The soil, a heavy loam, is remarkably fertile, producing all kinds of grain in the greatest abundance even without the aid of manure. Large quantities of hemp, flax, and tobacco are grown, melons and other fruits are very abundant. The pastures run vast numbers of cattle and sheep, and the forests are covered with magnificent timber. The principal minerals are iron and saltpetre. Manufactures, though of recent origin, have made rapid progress, and considerable quantities of wool and linen cloth are made. Distilleries are very numerous. The principal exports are corn cattle, hides, honey and wax. Pop. (1856), 1,591,000.

VORONJEV a ts. Russia, cap. above gov. on a height above the Voronezh, near its confluence with the Don. 290 m. S.S.E. Moscow. It consists of a high town, a low town, and an extensive suburb, is tolerably well built; and has 18 churches, two monasteries, an episcopal palace, townhouse gymnasium diocesan seminary annual hospital and poorhouse manufactures of woolen and linen cloth, soap, and vitriol, numerous tanneries, a considerable trade in iron and tallow, and a large wool-fair which lasts about a fortnight. On a little sandy island here Peter the Great erected building-docks in which he intended to construct ships of war for the Black Sea, but on the acquisition of new territory on the shores of the sea itself, in better situations for the purpose the idea was abandoned, and not only the docks but the palace which he had caused to be erected have almost entirely disappeared. P. (1842) 43,800.

VORUSMART a vil. Hungary Thither Danube, co. Baranya, near the Danube, 4 m. from Herceg-Stulics with two churches, and a ruinous castle. P. p. 1597.

VÖRÖSPATAK a vil. Austria, Transylvania on both sides of the Torda, 25 m. N.W. Karlsburg. It consists of about 500 well-built houses, almost all inhabited by Walachians and is famous for its gold-mines, which have been wrought from early times, and are still valuable.

VORSELDY a vil. Brunswick, on the Aller 20 m. N.E. Brunswick with a parish church tanneries and distilleries, and three annual fairs. Pop. 1660.

VORSKLA, a river Russia, rises N.W. of Kharukov flows S.W., passing the town of Poltava, and after a course of about 140 m. joins the bank Dnieper.

VORSELELE a vil. and com. Belgium prov. and 24 m. N. Antwerp, on the Aa with manufactures of wax-tapers, two breweries, a malt and a flour mill. Pop. 1767.

VORST a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and S. Antwerp with a brick work, tannery and flour-mill. Pop. 1894.

VORST a vil. Rhénish Prussia, gov. Düsseldorf, circle and 6 m. S.E. Kempen with a R. Catholic church. P. 1079.

VORSES (German, Vogesen, Vogues Latin, Vogues Mosae) a mountain-chain, in the N.E. of France, and Palatinates of Bavaria, stretching S.S.W. to N.E. between the source of the Moselle and that of the Lœsar, for about 150 m. with a breadth varying from 20 m. to 45 m. Its highest summits called from their rounded form bellows, are nearly 4000 ft.; the culminating point, Ballon-de-Guebwiller is 4686 ft. The slopes, particularly the E. are very precipitous, but generally well covered with past-forests the prevailing strata are liassic; the minerals include argillaceous loam, copper loam and above all salt. The principal rivers of the chain are the Ill on the E. and the Moselle, Sarre, and Meurthe on the W. slopes.

VOSGES, an E. dep. France, bounded, N. by dep. Meuse and Meurthe, E. Bas-Rhin and Haut-Rhin, S. Haute-Saône and W. Haute-Marne greatest length, E. to W., 76 m., mean breadth, 28 m., area, 2350 sq. m. It derives its name from the mountain-chain which bounds it on the E. and sends out ramifications over the greater part of its surface. In S. portion it traversed E. to W. by the chain of the Fossiles. Several mountains exceed 4000 ft., and the culminating point, Ballon-de-Guebwiller is 4686 ft. The mountains are generally well wooded. Only a narrow zone on their lower slopes is cultivable. In the lower grounds, on an elevated but tolerably flat tract, grain, hemp, flax, and potatoes are extensively raised. The wine produced is indifferent, but the department has long been famous for its kirsh-water, made from the produce of extensive cherry-plantations. The principal rivers are the Meuse, Moselle, Vaire, Madon, Meunin, Saine, Fave, and Meurthe but none of them are navigable within the department. The minerals include argillaceous loam, copper loam, argillaceous cobalt, marble, willstone, slate, kaolin, and iron pyrites. The chief manufactures are cotton and linen cloth, lace, musical instruments, tannery and wooden shingles, nails, iron, steel and iron ware, paper, leather, pottery and glass. Epinal is the capital. Pop. (1832) 437,409.

VOBKRESEN-SK, a ts. Russia, gov. and 85 m. N.W. Moscow 1 bank Istra, pleasantly situated, and celebrated for its large and handsome monastery, founded in 1556. P. 1008.

VOGMAERISBAAT (Dutch), a bay, Indian Archipelago, E. coast, Mol. Celebes, in the Gulf of Tomali or Tofo, with a small fort on its N. side.

VOSTITZA (anc. Agripina) a seaport in Greece, Moravia, on a height above the S. shore of the Gulf of Lepanto. The harbor though not capacious, has depth of water for the largest vessels and has considerable trade chiefly in cereals and timber. The modern town is struggling and ill built. Of Agripina which was once the head of the Aegean league, few vestiges remain. Pop. about 4000.

VOTKA or VOYKA a ts. Russia, gov. and 180 m. S.E. Valaika, on the Vy, with a church, hospital school and extensive iron works, which employ about 8000 workmen. About 70,000 monks are annually made. Pop. 8000.

VOTTEN a ts. and com. Belgium, prov. and 2 m. N. Lege, on an affluent of the Meuse, with manufactures of all kinds of hardware, including firearms. Pop. 1748.

VOUHA a river Portugal runs in the N.E. of prov. Beira, flows E. and falls into the Atlantic at Aveiro, after a course of about 48 m.

VOULTE or VOVRE (La) (anc. Volsa), a ts. France, dep. Ardèche, 10 m. N.E. Privas, on a steep hill above the Rhone with a large old castle, in which Louis XIII. resided for sometimes and extensive iron-works. Pop. 3079.

VOLZHEN a ts. France dep. Ardennes, 1 bank Aune, 30 m. S. Metz, with manufactures of basket-work, bleaching, and oil and a trade in corn wine, oil and cattle. P. 3638.

VOWELURCH par. Eng. Harford 2690 ac. P. 823.

VRAKENE a vil. and com. Belgium prov. E. Flanders, 23 m. N.E. by E. Ghent. It is well built and has a large church, with some fine tombs, a townhouse, three schools, an hospital eye-works, breweries, and cotton manufactures and a trade in grain, fruits, and cattle. Pop. 5532.

VHAITA or VARAITA a river Italy rises on the E. slope of the Maritime Alps, a little S.W. of Monte-Vio, flows N. to Castiglione, then S.E. and joins the bank Po about 5 m. above the confluence of the Mare.

VEANA, a vil. Austria, Delnata, circle and 19 m. S.E. Zara, with the ruins of a castle, in which the grand master of the Templars once resided.

VEANA, or VIVANAKA, a ts. Turkey in Europe, in the S. of Servia, in an angle formed by the confluence of the E. Morava and Vitar 70 m. E.S.E. Sophia. Pop. 3000.

VHANYUCZ, a vil. Hungary Thither Thiem, co. Krassova, 6 m. from Oravica with a church, and a trade in wheat, maize and cattle. Pop. 1103.

VHFDEN a ts. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 35 m. W. Münster on the Beckel, with three churches; manufactures of linen and chioory and some cattle. Pop. 2393.

VHLEWUJKE a vil. Holland, prov. and 6 m. S. Utrecht, on the Lek, where it has a good harbour. It has a church and a school, and the inhabitants are chiefly occupied in seafaring and the transit trade. Pop. 1142.

VHICEKO, or MCKENWIKER a vil. Hungary, Thither Danube, co. Thurocs, 18 m. from Rudas; with a church, and a trade in dairy produce and cattle. Pop. 1612.

VHIEHNVEKEN, or VHIEHNVEKEN, a vil. Holland, prov. Overijssel, 24 m. N.E. Deventer; with three churches and a school. Pop. (agricultural), 2706.

VHIEHLAND a prov. Belgium, ts. FRIEHLAND.

VUGIT, or VUGIT, a vil. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 2 m. S. Hertenbosch, 1 bank Donmeel; with a townhouse, two churches, two breweries, four tax-pits, and several mills. Pop. (agricultural), 1013.

VUKOVAR, a market in Austria, Olvit Schlamitz, at the confluence of the Vuka with the Donau, 35 m. S.E. Enns. It is well built and has a R. Catholic and two Greek churches, a Franciscan convent, and silk-mills. Pop. 6000.

VULCANO, or VOUGARO [see Vulcano], the most S. of the Lipari isle 5 m. S. Lipari, 12 m. off the N coast of Sicily lat. 38° 51' N; lon. 14° 53' E; length, N to S, 7 m.; breadth, 7 m. Its surface is covered with mountains, the chief of which is Mount Aetna, containing two craters, from which dense whirling clouds of smoke are incessantly sent forth. It has two good roads, but no inhabitants.

VUNA, one of the principal of the Fijee isle S. Pacific, lat. 17° 2' S; lon. 175° 50' E; 31 35 m. long and 5 m. broad. It rises gradually to a central ridge 2052 ft. high, and is fertile. Pop. 7000. On the N.W. side is the principal town, Sova Sova consisting of about 300 houses.

VUOXEN, a river Ruus rises near lat. 64° N., in the N. of Urole Knopis, Finland, and proceeding S.E. through a series of lakes, forms a magnificent cascade, and turning N falls into the W. shore of Lake Ladoga at the town of Kexholm; total course, about 300 m.

W

[For names not found under W, look under V]

WAAG a river, Hungary, formed in the F. part of co. Lipitz by the White Wag and Black Wag which descend from the Carpathians flows W N W to Zolna. S.E. W to Leopoldsdorf, and S.E. to Komorn, where it joins the Danube after a course of about 230 m. It receives on the right the Arva Klutza, and Druwag, and on the left the Thurocs and Neutra. Its upper course is through a narrow valley its lower through wide and level plains.

WAAGO, one of the Flores Islands (about see).

WAAL (Du) [Latin Vahis or Vahalis, French Vahel], a river Holland being the S arm or bifurcation of the Rhine, which branches off about 12 m. S.E. Arnhem flows W by past Nijmegen and Tiel, and joins the Maas at Gornichem about 17 m. above which there is also a connection with the Maas. The Waal is very much obstructed by sandbanks.

WAALWIJK a market in Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 11 m. W. Heterogenbosch with a Reformed and an elegant R. Catholic church. It has water-communication with the Maas, a trade in grain and cattle some shipping, breweries, canneries &c., and six annual fairs. P. (agricultural) 2945.

WABASH, a tr. U. States, Indiana, pleasantly situated on the Wabash river and on the Wabash and Erie canal 73 m. N. by F. Indianapolis, with several churches, a court house, jail, and a large trade. Pop. 1199. —The river rises in the S. W. of Ohio flows W. and S. across Indiana, then nearly S. between Indiana and Illinois, and falls into the Ohio of which it is the largest tributary after a course of about 400 m. It is navigable for steam-boats to La Fayette about two-thirds of its course, and connects Lake Erie with the Ohio by the Wabash and Erie canal.

WABREN, a vil. Hesse Cassel prov. Niederhessen, circle and 4 m. E.S.E. Friedlar, with a church and castle. P. 1085.

WABERWATHE par Eng. Comb., 1901 as 1 212.

WACLAMAW, a river, U. States issues from a lake of same name in the S. of N. Carolina, flows first S.E. then S.W. into S. Carolina, and falls into the estuary of the Great Pee Dee nearly opposite to Georgetown total course, about 80 m.

WACHBACH, a vil. Württemberg, circle Jaxt, 5 m. S. Mergentheim with a church and a castle. Pop. 1201.

WACHENHEIM, a market in Bavaria Palatinate, at the foot of Mount Hardt, 12 m. N. W. Spire. It contains a church, and has a trade in wine. Pop. 920.

WACHTENDONK, a vil. Rhensch Prussia, gov. and 24 m. N. W. Düsseldorf, on an island formed by the Rhine, Neer, and Heesbeek with a church and an hospital, manufactures of ribbons, woollen and flannel cloth, and a bleachfield. P. 1160.

WACHTERBACH, a tr. Hesse-Cassel prov. and S.E. E. Hessa, on the Kassing, with a castle and a Latin school, and several mills. Pop. 1863.

WUPABUCU, a lake, Brazil prov. Minas-Geraes, near the frontier of prov. Bahia, on the top of São-Simão, a mountain-ridge belonging to the Cordillera-de-Almora. It was once celebrated for its gold and minerals, though it does not possess much of either.

WUREN a vil. Holland prov. Gelderland, 24 m. W. S. W. Tiel on the Waal dyke, with a church. P. (agricultural) 965.

VUSITRIN or VITZOURNAXET, a tr. Turkey in Europe, in the S. W. of Servia, in a mountainous district on the Ther an affluent of the Morava, 35 m. S.E. Novi Bazar. P. 3000.

VYNCKT, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. S. Flandre, 12 m. W. Ghent with a church, school, brewery starch-factory, three oil and several flour mills. Pop. 2219.

VYTERA, or WYTERA, a tr. Russia, gov. Olonetz, on the Vytoga which is here navigable, 55 m. S. R. Petrozavodsk. It has two churches, manufactures of candles, brick-works, building-yards, and an important transit trade. Pop. 2500. —The river rises in the S. of gov. Olonetz, flows N.W. and falls into the S.E. shore of Lake Onega. The Marinak canal connects it with the Kojva, and through it with Lake Holo and the Volga. Its course is about 70 m.

WACKEN, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 19 m. S.E. Brugge. It has wide and straight streets a fine square, a church, two schools, four breweries, four distilleries, several corn and oil mills, and manufactures of linen and cotton fabrics, leather, starch blue, and tobacco. P. 2569.

WACKTFFELKE, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. E. Flanders, 10 m. N.E. Ghent, on the canal thence to Moerwaert with a church chapel, townhouse, various schools, three breweries a bleachery, oil and flour mills, manufactures of linen, leather, pottery and mustard, and a trade in grain, cattle, timber &c. Pop. 3947.

WACIOW par Eng. Hereford 1602 ac. Pop. 129.

WACTON (Stosna and FANVA) par Eng. Norfolk, 1044 ac. Pop. 351.

WAD-MEDINA, or OUAD-MEDINA, a tr. Egyptian dominions in the S. of Nubia, 1 bank Blue Nile, about 80 m. S.E. Khartoum. It is of considerable importance, and was once regarded as the capital of E. Sudan, having for that purpose been substituted for Senaar though it was itself afterwards supplanted by Khartoum. Pop. including the garrison nearly 4000.

WADÁY, of OUADAY a country in the interior of Africa, S. of the Great Desert, and E. of Darfur. It is called Wadáy in Persian in Barbary and Morocco; but the natives themselves, though they often use the name Wadáy, or Wadáyá, prefer that of Dar Sakhá while their neighbours in Darfur, Kordofan and Bornu, call it Bérgh, or Bérgh.

The name Wadáy, given to it by some writers, seems to be derived from a particular tribe in Wadáy and to belong properly to a single district, or perhaps to the tract situated along the right or N. bank of the river which flows from Wadáy to Lake Fitra.

WADAY —The geographical position of Wadáy or of its capital Wad, cannot be assigned with even tolerable exactness for that country has not been yet visited by any Europeans and the itinerary distances mentioned in the routes of native pilgrims passing through it between Angolad and Egypt differ so widely, as to render satisfactory inference from them impossible.

If the position assigned by Browne to Kobbé, the chief town of Darfur, be assumed as correct, and also the distance (144 days journey), which he sets between Kobbé and Wad, then the latter place will lie 200 geo. m. at the utmost, or in about 24° 20' E. lon., whereas the true itinerary course in sailing it farther W. and recently, Dr. Barth, with abundant native information, places Wad in lat. 14° N. lon. 22° E. a position which is perhaps rather too far N., but near the true meridian.

Wadai, Nature, &c. —The extent of Wadáy according to the best Arab and native authorities, is about 30 days' journey N. to S., and 24 E. to W. These must be understood as pedestrian journeys of 6 m. or 8 m. Wady is a larger territory than Darfur which it exceeds also in fertility and in abundance of water. The hills which diversify its surface run chiefly in chains E. to W., their flanks two hollows, the more of which is styled Basha—that is, the valley or lowland; the more N., Botyha, the diminutive of Basha. From the Magalyt Arabs, who dwell near the Basha, this river is supposed to take the name of Malika, and to be the Misael of Berosus. Through these valleys flow from the highland on the E. confines of Wady, two streams, so copious in the rainy season as to overflow the adjoining plains, and in the dry season never wholly exhausted. They unite, lower down, to form the river (Bahr-el-Ghazal) which periodically reaches and converts into a lake the hollow plain of Fitte, about 500 m. W. of Wady. Ascending to the Shilluk of Fouta, another river the Bahr-Iro, far exceeding in magnitude those already mentioned, flows N. W. through Wady from the mountains of Marrah, S. of Darfur. But the Bahr-Iro does not figure in the Shilluk's account with the vividness and emphases of detail which seem to belong to the natural importance of a great river in a tropical country. Its name, too, seems borrowed from the rivers of Bagharmal, and, finally it disappears altogether from the information concerning Wady collected with unexampled industry by Dr Barth.

Deserts.—The strip of desert on the E. side of Wady, separating it from Darfur, is by no means utterly inhospitable but lying within the limits of occasional rains, it affords pasture, and has in many places trees; yet it is wholly unmanicured. For, owing to the deep-rooted animosity existing between wandering tribes on the one hand and a settled population on the other, the interval of three or five days' journey (as the width of that tract is variously estimated) would not allow either party to feel secure. On the N., Wady has the mountains and rocky desert of the Tibboos. The plains on the W., towards Fitte and Bagharmal, with an extent of eight or ten days' journey, resemble the desert but not quite as tract on the E., and are occupied by numerous tribes of Arab or Berber race. Towards the S. the country merges occasionally in luxuriant vegetation, copiousness of water and variety of aspect, till at last the forests of habash and ebony and numerous communities of pagan negroes, mark the limits of the horse and camel keeping Mahomedans of Wady.

Production.—In respect of fertility Wady is said to be much superior to Darfur producing in abundance, wheat, dokken, maize, and the other grains as well as fruits of that zone. It has also a better climate, though often visited by violent hurricanes during the rains. The cold N. winds during the winter diminish the evaporation, so that the rivers in general never wholly dry up. The banks of the Basha and Botyha are lined with a broad mass of trees, behind which spread well cultivated plains, annually irrigated, and teeming with abundance. Cattle and horses are reared in great numbers, and the various tribes and races inhabiting the country find such a suitable spot for its peculiar husbandry, whether pastoral or agricultural.

People.—Of the various tribes or nations composing the population of Wady five are considered as primitive and chief, namely the Magalyt, the Myneah, Dajo, Kachmehreh, and Gerdin. These are probably of Tibboos or Berber origin. Then come the Kikah, the Jeklaherah, and the Birghid. The Magalyt, a brown-coloured people of mixed origin, occupy the borders of the country on the N. E. and N. W., and are numerous in Wady as well as in Darfur. The Myneah or Dajo both dwell in the S. parts of the country, and are of the black. The Kachmehreh, of whom they are industrious, docile, and orderly, with comparatively light complexion. They cultivate the valley of Botyha, sowing, besides their grains, onions, coriander, pepper, and other condiments. Their villages are all ranged along the S. border of the valley, and wear an appearance of cheerfulness and plenty. The Gerdin are a pastoral tribe, allocated in some degree from the other tribes of Wady by the fierceness of their complexion. The Kikah, in the E. of Wady are a pastoral people, distinguished for personal beauty, and who, on the present, furnish the solan and the opium chiefs of the N. with female slaves; for the five primitive tribes are alone exempt from servitude. The Jeklaherah negroes and still recruited from the solan's slaves, are distributed in groups throughout the country. The Birghid are the gnomes of Wady, masons and hunters, and in corrigible thieves, they are thrust beyond the pale of civility, and consequently acknowledge no moral restraint. This enervation of the elements of a motley population might be easily lengthened, and all these various nations are distinguishable at once by physical appearance, and by differences of language. They have also their separate chiefs or kings, who, though owing submission to the Sultan of Wady, are not on that account less despotic within their petty domains. Around Wady, again, are numerous tribes of Solima, nearly all affecting a noble Arab descent, and doing homage to the Sultan of Wady with more or less sincerity. The Zohabeh, the Areygat, and the El Bahr (river-tribe) are the chief Arab Bedouin on the W. On the N., the Mahamid feed immense droves of horses and camels. Farther E. the Edeyeh, of negro origin, imitate the manners of their Arab neighbours, and submit on camel's milk. Towards the S., parties of the widely-spread nation of the Follah, or Follay, keep immense herds of cattle wherever the pasturage attracts them.

Outlook.—In manners, dress, and mode of life, the Mahomedan inhabitants of Wady resemble those of Darfur. Their houses, however are said to be superior, being often of good masonry (in Wara probably) whereas in Darfur they are constructed wholly of straw. The people of Wady have the reputation of great generosity and of courage, in which latter quality the Darfurians are almost always deficient. It is remarkable that, anticipating the doctrines of Gall and Spurzheim, they have always held that the organ or seat of courage is a protuberance behind the ear, and consequently, those who have distinguished themselves in battle are authorized to bear, as a badge of merit, large tumours artificially raised behind the ears by cupping. The court ceremonies, elaborate, and for the most part humbling to the subject, never so much of hereditary despots, yet it is said that the inspection of all official accounts, rigidly enforced as a public right, effectually maintains a pure administration. It is said that the sultan's body-guard the Obedia, amounts to 4000 men, and that 1000 of these in slacks and round iron-helmets, and armed with clubs, keep watch every night round his palace in Wara, the people of which town do not exceed 40,000.

Industry.—There is little manufacturing industry in Wady. The people know how to spin and weave cotton, and can dye their webs, which are inferior, however, in texture and colour to those of Bagharmal; they can work iron, and make coarse implements for their own use, but the manufactured articles chiefly in demand, and most prized by them, are imported from Egypt or Barbary. They thus obtain beads and other glassware, cloth caps, printed cottons, woollen and all kinds of guns, swords, and ordnance of all kinds, saddles, paper, copper, tin, and Spanish dollars, on which last the importers always realize a large profit. In return they export gum, ivory, catfish-skins, manchineel, skins, skins to make water-bags and slaves. These last form, in truth the chief merchandise of Wady. Hunted down in the S. countries by private adventurers, who buy a license of the government, the poor captives are driven across the deserts to Barbary and Egypt, the greater number of them perishing on the way. This is the dark stain which defaces the otherwise fair picture of Wady. Richly endowed with the gifts of nature, this country is almost cut off from intercourse with, and glories in a trade condemned by, the civilized world. Under these circumstances, Wady seems destined to be soon impoverished by the social improvements going on around, and to be the last reached by the benefits that flow from their progress.

Rulers.—The origin of the Wadyan dynasty is involved in a cloud of traditional fables, separately plausible, but collectively inconsistent. It is said, among other things, that the Semawry, a noble tribe dwelling on the mountains Ab-Solima, are descendants of the Abbaasid caliphs, or rather, were adopted by a wandering member of that family. The Semawry became afterwards intimately allied with the Malagah, the Madabah, and Madalah, and these now form the four royal tribes of Wady, from one of which the sultan must be derived. Notwithstanding this nobility of descent, it does not appear that the Wadyan dynasty can be traced in history beyond the sixth generation anterior to Abd-el-Karim, who succeeded to the throne in 1803 and whose personal history it, in European eyes, the only interesting portion of the Wadyan chronicles.

Recent History.—Sultan Abd-el-Karim, nicknamed Solima (sweep, a highly-prized luxury in those countries) subdued the mountaineers of El-Tamal, a rocky district N. E. of Wady and leading an army S.W. into Baghdad, he deposed the pro-Syrian sultan of that country. But the success of his arms concerted in less than his strenuous efforts to open communications with Egypt and the shores of the Mediterranean. Sensible of the disadvantages attending his secluded position, the road on one side being commanded by Dair, on the other by Baghdad and Basm, or by the powerful tribes seated round Fitre and Kameh, he resolved on exploring new and more direct routes across the desert. With this view he sent an envoy to Mohammed-Ali, the pasha of Egypt, who met his wishes, and despatched in return a caravan to Waddy. This, however never reached its destination, being seized and plundered by the Darfarians. A caravan sent directly N from Waddy by a new route to Bengasi, was hardly more fortunate. The goods eventually arrived at the seaport, but the people nearly all perished having lost their way, and wandered long in the desert. The experiment, however, has been since repeated frequently, and with tolerable success. Baldwin, naturally disposed in favour of enlightenment, determined that one of his sons should be qualified by education to promote in Waddy the interests of civilization. For this purpose he sent Jafar, a youth of thirteen, to Egypt by way of Bengasi, but the caravan was pilloped, and the prince detained 10 or 12 years a captive in Tripoli, till at length, through the influence of the English consul he obtained his liberty, and reached Cairo in 1827. His story published at the time in an English periodical, was deemed by many a romance, and by none was it the roughly understood. It is now however, ascertained that the young captive was the favourite son of the Sultan Abd-el-Kerim. The latter died about 1815 and has been followed on the throne by a son a grandson and lastly by a brother Jafar, however, of Jafar, had attempted prior to 1846, to drive his uncle from the throne, and, in 1849 he was in a hostile attitude in Darfur, awaiting an opportunity to assert his claims.

(—) Review of Travels Burckhardt's Notes Voyage au Quaiquet par El Cheyk-el Founey etc. 1851 United Service Journal, 1850 France in Dictionnaire des Sciences de Geogr. 1849-50

WADDESDON, par Eng Bucks, 8010 ac. Pop. 1743

WADDINGHAM, par Eng Lancs 8730 ac. P 884

WADDINGTON, par Eng Lancs city Pop. 963

WADDINGTON, par Eng Lancs 928 ac. P 71

WADDESBURY, a market tn. England, co. Cornwall 8 m. S.E. Falmouth 1 bank Canal here crossed by a magnificent ancient bridge of 17 arches. It has two Dissenting places of worship and a Friends meeting-house commodious wharfs quays, and docks, and ships wash granite, copper and iron ore, and corn. Pop. 777

WADENHOLM, par Eng Northampton 1150 ac. P 296

WADENSWELL, or WADENSWELL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 10 m. S.E. Zurich, S. shore, Lake of Zurich. It is well built, and has a handsome parish church, with a fine organ; a schoolhouse, poorhouse, orphan hospital, manufacture of silk and woolen goods, soap, and soda, and several silk and cotton mills. Pop. 6094

WADHURST, a market tn. and par. England co. Sussex 5 m. S.E. Tonbridge Wells. It has a parish church with a tower and lofty spire, and some ancient monuments Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, a corn-market, and two annual fairs. Area of pop. 10,147 ac. Pop. 2802

WADJELIL, or WADJEL, one of the smaller Attra isles; with a village of same name on its W. side. The inhabitants are chiefly Christians, with a smaller number of Mohammedans WADJOE, a native state, Indian Archipelago near the middle of Mol. Celebes, on the bay or gulf of Bond. The inhabitants are peaceful and industrious.

WADOR, or WADER, a tn. in Afghanistan, in the Daryat, 17 m. W. Dera Ghasee-Khan, on the great route thence to Kandahar by the Sakhs-Serwer Pass. Pop. 2000.

WADOWICH, or WADZIE, a tn. Austria Galicia, on an elevated plain, 28 m. S.W. Cracow, with a handsome court-house, barracks, and a considerable trade. Pop. 2844

WADLEY, a vil. and dis. England, co. York, on the Sheffield and Manchester railway, 8 m. N.W. Sheffield. It has a modern parish church, a Wesleyan chapel, two ordinary and two infant schools, several almshouses, and extensive manufactures of steel-knives. Pop. 4633

WADWORTH, par Eng York; 1930 ac. Pop. 734

WADLEEM, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 13 m. S. Antwerp, on the Nothe and the Dyle, with manufactures of linen, an oil and a flour mill and a trade in hay, corn cattle, and poultry. Pop. 1976.

WAEFING, a tn. China, prov. Ching-hang near the frontiers of Kiangnan, on the left bank of the Hwuy-show, and S.W. Hang-show. It is surrounded by walls, and otherwise fortified. Pop. about 150,000.

WAEKESHEM, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. W. Flanders, 9 m. N.E. Courtrai, with extensive linen manufactures. Pop. 6975

WAEKMAERDE, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. W. Flanders, on the Scheldt, 28 m. S.E. E. Bruges with manufactures of linen a brewery a flour and a mustard mill, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1838

WAEKESHOOT, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, on the Liefde, 8 m. N.W. Ghent with extensive linen and cotton manufactures two breweries, a dye-work, two oil and four flour mills. Pop. 6095.

WAEKES (PAVE DE), an anc. dist. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders, nearly included between the Scheldt from Ghent to the village of Doet, a little below Antwerp, and a line drawn from that village to Zolmeke. It is one of the most fertile and best peopled tracts of its extent in Europe, and was formerly called the pleasure-garden of Flanders.

WAEKESUSFER, a tn. and com. Belgium prov. E. Flanders, 16 m. E. by N. Ghent, 1 bank Durme. It has wide and paved streets and a handsome market-place, a richly decorated church, a townhall, convent, almshouse, several primary schools manufactures of linen, cotton, and woollen fabrics hosiery leather, blue starch, vinegar candles, chi cory, &c. and a trade in cattle and grain. Pop. 5395 WAEKESDUSSEL, or WAEKESDUSSEL, a vil. Hungary co. Vesz, dist. and 18 m. S. Lendbach, in a deep mountain-hollow, 1 bank Glintha with important iron-mines. P. 3383.

WAGNFELD, a vil. Hanover S.E. Diphola, with manufactures of linen and a flax-mill. Pop. 2754

WAGHNINGEN, a tn. Holland prov. Gelderland 9 m. W. by S. Arnhem on the railway thence to Utrecht, and near the Rhine. It has a number of fine-looking houses a townhall two churches a Latin and several other schools, a library, and several markets for cattle and sheep, and a trade in the tobacco grown in the vicinity. Pop. 2165

WAGNER RIVER, a large river, Brazil N. America, N.W. of Hudson's Bay, its entrance is about lat. 55° 45' lon. 67° W.

WAGHEN, or WAWN, par Eng York 5085 ac. P 347

WAGRAM, or DRECHEN WAGRAM, a vil. Lower Austria, 1 bank Ruabach 12 m. N.E. Vienna, famous for the victory gained here by the French over the Austrians in 1809

WAGRAD, a tn. Austria, Moravia, circle and 16 m. S.P. Troppau on the Wagbach. It is walled and has a parish church a castle, an hospital; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth and tanneries. Pop. 2400

WAGHREIN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 9 m. S.W. Bern above R. bank Saane. Pop. (agricultural) 4975

WAGHRESHAUBEN, a vil. Hesse-Cassel Niederhessen circle Cassel with two castles, one of them a fine old ruin and three mills. Pop. 1478

WAGHSTATT, a vil. Prussia, prov. Posen, gov. and 10 m. S.W. Iegnau. Near it, in 1241 the Duke of Legnica defeated the Tatars and in 1813 the Prussians defeated the French.

WAGHRIH, a vil. Lower Austria so near Vienna as to be almost one of its suburbs. It has a parish church with a beautiful cemetery in which Heethoven is buried and manufactures of ordinary and morocco leather, refined wax, and Japan ware. Pop. 2600

WAGA, one of the Feejee isles. S. Pacific; lat. (peak) 17° 17' 20" S. lon. 177° 43' E. It is high and rugged (with a peak about 1841 ft. high) Though apparently a craggy rock, it is said to be fertile. Pop. about 3000

WAGHLEIN, a tn. Württemberg, circle Neckar, on the Remt, with a Latin school and manufactures of articles in wood, tapestry, and several mills. Pop. 2700

WAGHSTADT, a tn. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, on the Rodenbach S.E. Mannheim. It was once an important place, and rose to be a free-town. Pop. 1854

WAGHIOFEN, two places, Lower Austria:—1, (under-Abte), 43 m. W. S.W. St. Pölten. It consists of a walled town with five gates, and of two suburbs; and has a church, a stable, extensive iron-works, and manufacture of scythes, wire, and hooks. Pop. 8000.—3 (on-de-Thé) A. M., 81 m. N. W. Kroma with a castle, a parish church; manufacture of ribbons and cloth stuff. Pop. 1460.

WAIKATZ, an Isl. Russia. See the YAKUTS.
WAIKIDU, WAKIDU, or WAKU, an Isl. Indian Archipelago, off N. W. coast, Papua, from which it is separated by Dampier Strait lat. (S.E. point) 0° 31' S. lon. 131° 10' E. (N.) It is about 70 m. long E. to W., by 20 m. broad; and forms two peninsulas, united by a narrow neck of land, formed by an arm of the sea, called Chabrol penetrating N. W., and almost intersecting the island. In the centre the island is high and hilly, and well covered with woods. Many small streams flow towards the coasts, which are well supplied with good harbours and bays, those of Boni and Omba, on the N. side, have anchorage for large vessels. The principal hill is Djohy Monpou, which is visible 50 m. off at sea, and there are three other peaks of a like magnitude. Though on the equator, the climate tempered by sea breezes and the moisture of the land is not particularly hot. The products include sugar-cane, yam, banana, coconuts, sweet-potatoes, cashew, and probably likewise opium; wild swine are plentiful and there are birds of paradise, cockatoos, crows, doves, and wild barn-door fowls. The inhabitants consist of NATIVE OF WAIKATZ.—From Supper. Voyage autour du monde.

Malays on the coast, Alifours in the hills, and Papuans the best built their large houses raised up on bamboo pillars. The lower classes go quite naked, but the upper classes wear jackets and other clothes of Chinese materials, and a turban. Their arms are bow and arrow and pikes with iron points. A considerable barter trade is carried on with China, and sundry Chinese merchants have settled here and trade with Papua. Pop. 160 000.

WAIKATO a river New Zealand, N. M. issues from the N. E. extremity of Lake Taupo flows N. W. to Waikato, then turns suddenly W. and falls into the ocean, forming the harbour of Waikato. Its chief affluent, Manu, joins it on the left. It is navigable for 100 m. by vessels of 80 tons.

WAINFLEET a market in England on and 83 m. E.S.E. Lincoln, on the Steeping which is here navigable. It consists of three principal streets as well built of brick and has three parish churches, Wesleyan and Friends chapels, a grammar and another endowed school. Pop. 2556.

WAINAU a river New Zealand Middle Island, rises in the Snowy Mountains; flows E. N. E. and falls into Cloncy Bay Cook's Strait. It is navigable for several miles.

WAIROA New Zealand. See Hawke Bay.

WAITE, par Eng. Lincoln 700 ac. Pop. 58.

WAITZEN or VACE (Latin, Vacum) a tr. Hungary, on and 31 m. N. West, L. bank Danube, which here forms the island of St. Andrew. It is beautifully situated among vineyards at the foot of the lofty Nagy-Buda and though long and narrow, is regularly built. Its principal buildings are a cathedral, built on the model of St. Peter's at Rome and considered, after that of Gram, the finest in Hungary; three other N. Catholic churches, a Protestant and an Armenian church, a bishop's palace, with fine gardens, two breweries, an episcopal seminary, a fiscal college and gymnasium, with library, a large and well-endowed deaf and dumb institute a high and two normal schools, a convent, and an orphan hospital. The trade is chiefly in wine and cattle. P. 11,371.

WAKEFIELD a town and port New Zealand, W. Riding, and 37 m. S. by W. York, beautifully situated on a slope rising from the Ouders, here crossed by handsome bridges of eight arches, and on the Manchester and Leeds railway. It consists of three principal and several minor streets, not generally either well formed or well kept, though some, chiefly of modern construction, are spacious and regular, and has a fine old church, situated on a height, and conspicuous at a distance by its tower and a spire; four distinct churches, one of them a handsome structure crowned by a dome, Quaker, Baptist, Independent, Methodist, Unitarian, and N. Catholic chapels, a handsome edifice of the Ionic order containing an assembly-room and music-school; mechanics institute, library &c. a courthouse, and houses of correction public baths, a theatre a free grammar-school, in buildings equally handsome and commodious, a gross-enclosure, and several other schools a lunatic asylum for the W. Riding, numerous provident and charitable institutions, and literary and geological societies, the latter with a valuable museum. Woollen cloth and worsted long the staple manufactures of the town, though less important than formerly still employ many hands and there are also large iron-works, establishments, breweries, malting, roping, foundries, machine, copper, and steam works. The market is one of the most important in the kingdom and to accommodate the dealers warehouses capable of containing 200,000 quarters have been erected. The trade in wool is also very extensive and large cattle-markets are held every fortnight. The celebrated classical scholar Dr. Bentley Dr. Potter Archbishop of Canterbury Dr. Hadcliffe, founder of the Bodleian library at Oxford, and Joseph Bingham, author of the Origines Ecclesiasticæ, were natives of Wakefield. It sends a member to Parliament. Pop. (parl. bor.), 22,057. Area of par. 931 ac. Pop. 33,117.

WAKEFIELD two parts, Eng. Essex.—1 (Great), 5481 ac. Pop. 905.—2 (Little), 5683 ac. Pop. 393.

WAKERLEY par Eng. Northampton 2130 ac. P. 232.

WAKES-COLNE, par Eng. Essex 1926 ac. Pop. 490.

WALACHIA or WALLACHIA (German, Walachei, Lat. Valachia, French Valachie or Vallachie, Dutch Walachee) a principality, Turkey in Europe, lat. 43° 40' to 45° 40' N. lon. 24° 30' to 28° E. and bounded, N. and N. W. by the Carpathians, separating it from Transylvania and the Banat of Hungary, W. S. and E. by the Danube, separating it from the first direction from Servia, and the last two from Bulgaria, and N. E. by Moldavia, from which it is chiefly separated by the Seruth and its tributary Milkov. It is thus remarkably well defined by great natural boundaries, and is of an irregular oval form, with a conjugate axis from W. to E. of 260 m. and a transverse of 130 m. area, about 27,000 sq. m. Its surface may be regarded as a vast inclined plane, sloping from the Carpathians towards the Danube. In the W. and lower portion, called Little Walachia, the slope is nearly due S. E.; in the E. and larger portion, called Greater Walachia, it is S. E. Among the mountains of the N. and W. the elevation, which averages from 2000 ft. to 4000 ft., rises in particular summits to 7000 ft. and in Mount Bontaschetsch N. of Kimpolung exceeds 9000 ft.; but this elevation is soon succeeded by a region of hills and undulating plains, and finally sinks down into extensive flats, often swampy and fringed near the banks of the Danube by a chain of shallow lakes. Many of the loftier summits are composed of gneiss and mica-schist; in the hilly region, though the lower part of the secondary formation appears to be wanting, the crinaceous system is largely developed, and is overlain by tertiary conglomerates, clays, marls, and sandstones. In the S. and E. shaly gravel, and alluvial deposits of great depth, form large and fertile plains. The most valuable mineral of Walachia is salt, the mines of which seem almost inexhaustible. Petroleum and asphalt are also abundant, sulphur is found in more limited quantities. The only metal of consequence is copper, which has been worked to some extent, gold is washed from the sands of several streams. The drainage belongs to the basin of the Danube, which receives it on its left bank, both directly and by numerous affluents, particularly the Bolyk, Aluta, united by the Tollerana, Argeish or Argeish, Jalomitsa, and Seruth. The climate, in the more mountainous districts, is severe and cold, in the plains the winter continues long. The Danube and its tributaries are regularly troops over for about six weeks. The soil is remarkable for its fertility, and with few exceptions the whole principally admits of being cultivated like a garden. With very imperfect culture, wheat, barley and maize are everywhere raised in abundance. Tobacco, hops and flax are also extensively grown; the vine thrives well and there is a profusion of all ordinary fruits. Cattle, sheep, and goats are reared in vast numbers. Manufactures are insignificant; the trade is principally in raw produce, exchanged against coffee, sugar, pepper, foreign wines, furs, and various manufactures, chiefly from Germany, Russia, and Great Britain. The inhabitants, chiefly pure Walachians, who are believed to have descended without much intermixture from the ancient Dacians, have lost almost all their better qualities during long misgovernment, and have now few qualities to compensate for their prevailing indolence, sottishness, cunning, and revenge. They belong generally to the Greek church, which provides very imperfectly either for the religious or moral education of its adherents. Walachia, with the adjoining principality of Moldavia, is nominally a dependency of Turkey to which it pays an annual tribute, and till recently was under an indefinite kind of Russian protectorate. The prince, or hospodar, is elected for life by the boyars or nobles, who hold a kind of legislative power, by which the sovereign power is modified. Administratively the principality is divided into 18 districts, 18 in Great and 5 in Little Walachia. Pop. about 2,000,000.

WALAJANAGUR, a large town in Hindoostan, Carnatic on the Palour 65 m W by S. Madras lat. 11° 40' N. lon. 78° 5' E. One of the cleanest and most neatly built towns in India. The houses are large, but are only one story high, and roofed with tiles. It has an extensive trade.

WALBECK, a vil. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 28 m W N W Magdeburg, on the Aller with a church, innkeeping, several mills, tile works and beds of fire-clay. P. 1235.

WALBRERWICK, par. Eng. Suffolk, 1860 ac. P. 857.

WALBERTON, par. Eng. Sussex, 1722 ac. P. 578.

WALCHEREN, an isl. Hol. land, prov. Zealand at the mouth of the Scheldt, forming an irregularly shaped circle of about 11 m in diameter. It is a fine island in some parts well wooded, but generally consisting of fertile meadows, yielding corn and madder in great plenty. Fruit is abundant. There are some breweries, soap-works, salt-works, and saw and corn mills, &c., but the inhabitants are chiefly engaged in agriculture. It contains the towns of Flushing, Middelburg (the capital) and Veere. It is protected from the sea by strong dikes, which have frequently been ruptured. In 1806 the water burst the dikes and committed great damage, the country being in some places laid under water to a depth of above 30 ft. On July 30, 1809, the British expedition under Lord Chatham landed near Veere, and took it, Middelburg and Flushing, but had to retire the December following, after losing 7000 men by fever. Pop. 40,000.

WALCOT, two towns. Eng. — 1. Lincoln, 1747 ac. P. 152 — 2. Somerset, 7186 ac. P. 9489.

WALCOTT, par. Eng. Norfolk, 725 ac. Pop. 187.

WALCOURT, a town, Belgium, prov. and 24 m S. W. Namur on the Eau-de-Heure, with an ancient Gothic church in which an image of the Virgin annually attracts more than 20,000 pilgrims. Pop. 952.

WALCZ, a town, Prussia. See DRUMCKENROSE.

WALD, a town, Rhodan Prussia, gov. Düsseldorf, circle Belling; with a church, and manufactures of woollen, cotton and linen fabrics, umbrellas, iron and steel ware. 1,6278.

WALD, two places Switzerland. — 1. A vil. and par. can. and 18 m E S E Zürich, at the outlet of a picturesque valley it has a handsome church, a commodious schoolhouse, manufactures of linen, several spinning-mills, and an iron work. Pop. 2895. — 2. A vil. and par. can. and 7 m E N E Appenzell. It is well built, and has a parish church and an orphan hospital. Pop. 1489.

WALDACHAUFF, a vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, dist. Rothensb., at the source of the Aachaff, with a parish church, manufactures of stone-ware, and a trade in wood. Pop. 1234.

WALDAL, several places, Prussia, particularly a vil., prov. Rhinea, gov. Lignitz, circle Bunken, with a parish church, a castle, vinegar-works, tile-works, several bleach-works, saw, and other mills. Pop. 2333.

WALDENFELL, a town, Home-Cassel, Niederhessen, on the Werra, 30 m S. E. Cassel. Pop. 1804.

WALDECK, a principality, Germany, forming the 80th state of the Germanic Confederation. It consists of two distinct parts. — Waldeck Proper, so called, and the principality of Pyrmont. Waldeck Proper is bounded N. and W. by the North Rhine, and S. and E. by Home-Cassel. Pyrmont, situated about 30 m. N. on the bank of the Weser, is included by the territories of Prussia, Lippe-Detmold, Hanover and Brunswick. Area of Waldeck Proper, 547 sq. m.; of Pyrmont 24 sq. m. The surface is mountainous, particularly in the S. W. of Waldeck where it is covered by ramifications of the Egegebirge, Rothaar-gebirge, and Habicht-gebirge, some of the summits of which attain a height of about 2500 ft. Some of the mountains are composed of slate, but the greater part of them are sandstone. In several districts basalt occurs. The rivers, of which the Eder in the N., and the Diemel in the S. of Waldeck Proper, are the principal all belong to the basin of the Weser. The climate is rather cold, but healthy. Nearly one-half of the whole surface is available for cultivation, though not remarkably fertile. Much of the remainder is covered with wood. The only minerals now worked are ironstone, lignite, slate, ochre, black marble and alabaster. The chief manufactures are linen, beer and brandy. For all administrative purposes Waldeck Proper is divided into five bailiwicks. — Witte, Diemel, Werra, Eder and Elsbach. Pyrmont forms a single bailiwick of its own name. P. 58,768, almost all Protestants.

WALDEGRAVE, an isl. N. Australia, 8 mds. Anson Bay, Eyre Land, and N. E. Flinders Island, lat. 83° 38' S. lon. 184° 37' E.

WALDEN BARROW, a mun. bor., market town and par. England, co. Essex, 40 m. N. N. E. London, singularly situated on the crown and sides of a narrow neck of land. It has six principal streets and a spacious market-place, in which is a commodious and handsome townhall. It is well paved, and lighted with gas, and has a spacious and elegant parish church, seven dissenting churches, an endowed grammar and several other schools, almshouses, various minor charities and a literary and scientific institution. There is a considerable trade in malt and barley. Area of par. 7416 ac. Pop. 6911.

WALDEN (St. Paul), par. Eng. Herts., 8078 ac. Pop. 1175.

WALDENBUCH, a town, Württemberg, circle Neckar, 7 m S. S. W. Stuttgart, on the Aischbach, with an old castle, glass-works and several mills. Pop. 1660.

WALDENBURG, several places Germany particularly — 1. A town, Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. and 57 m W Breslau on the Polnitz, with a Protestant and a R. Catholic parish church, chapel and courthouses, manufactures of iron and a considerable trade in linen and yarn and several potteries, dye-works, and mills. Pop. (1855) 4244. — 2. A town in Württemberg circle Jaxt, 8 m E Oehringen, with an ancient castle erected on a height. Pop. 1069. — 3. A town, Saxony circle Zwickau, 1 bank Mulde, 10 m W Chemnitz. It is walled, and has a fine castle, with a park, a church, hospital, manufactures of linen, woollen and mixed goods, hosiery, and articles in horn and paper and other mills. Pop. 2325.

WALDENHARE, par. Eng. Kent, 1242 ac. P. 106.

WALDHEIM, a town, Saxony circle and 25 m S. E. Leipzig, a bank Zschoppan, with a castle, used as a house of correction, manufactures of woollen cloth and flannel, two bleachworks, and two mills. Pop. 3872.

WALDITZ, par. Eng. Dorset, 2865 ac. Pop. 176.

WALDITZ (Gross and Kaser) two nearly contiguous vil. Prussia, prov. Sillesia, gov. Lignitz, circle Liegnitz, with a R. Catholic church, tile-works, and two mills. P. 1867.

WALDKIRCH. — 1. A vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and W St. Gall, 1 bank Rittler, with a spacious old church. Pop. 2681. — 2. A town, Baden circle Upper Rhine, 1 bank Elz, 6 m N. E. Freiburg. It is walled and has a parish church, an hospital, manufactures of linen, paper-mill and tanneries. P. 2576.

WALDKIRCHEN, a vil. Saxony circle Zwickau, S. E. Chemnitz, with a church, tile-works, four mills, and a trade in wood and in toys. Pop. 1182.

WALDMICHELBAACH, a vil. Home-Darmstadt, prov. Starkenburg, 25 m S. E. E. Darmstadt, with a parish and two other churches. Pop. 1894.

WALDMOHR, a vil. Bavaria, Palatinat, on the Glan, N. Zweibrücken, with a parish church, the remains of a Roman station, two mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1191.

WALDMUNCHEN, a tn. Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, pleasantly situated on the Schwarzbach, 56 m. N.E. Ratisbon. It has three churches, a chapel, a castle, manufactures of linen and thread glass works, and a trade in wool. Pop. 2182.

WALDNIFL, or ROSENWALDEN, a vil. Rhinisch Prussia, gov. and W. Düsseldorf with two churches; manufactures of ribbons, and three mills. Pop. 1175.

WALDOBOROUGH, a tn. and part of entry, U States Mass., at the mouth of the Massachusetts 55 m. E. Portland. Its most important business is the building of vessels, of which in 1855, the number fitted out was 71 carrying 23,450 tons. The coasting trade and fisheries of cod and mackerel are also very important. Pop. 4159.

WALDRINGFIELD, par Eng. Suffolk 1156aa. P 169.

WALDRON, a vil and par England, co. Sussex, 6 m. E.S.E. Lckfield with a parish church, having an embelished tower, a Methodist chapel, and chalybeate springs. Area of par. 6218 ac. Pop. 1106.

WALDNESSEN, a market to Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, 23 m. E.N.E. Bamberg with an old Cistercian monastery, manufactures of calico and earthenware, and a paper-mill. Pop. 1523.

WALDSEES.—1 A tn. Württemberg circle Donau, 52 m. S.W. Ulm, with a castle of the princes of Waldburg, a Gothic church, old Franciscan monastery, and hospital. P 1570.—2 A vil Bavaria, Palatinate circle Spire with a parish church and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1170.

WALDSHUT, a tn. Baden, circle Upper Rhine, r bank Rhine, 30 m. S.E. Freilburg. It is an old place, surrounded by walls and contains a church, to which pilgrimages are made and a Capuchin monastery. Pop. 1364.

WALDSTATT, a vil and par Switzerland can and 4 m. W. N.W. Appenzell with mineral springs, and a much-visited bath and amusement. Pop. 567.

WALDETALE (Duf. 1) was a name anciently and still sometimes given to the four Swiss cantons—Luz., Schwyz, Unterwalden, and Lucerne, probably from the extensive forests with which they were once covered.

WALDSTATTERSEE (Vier) See LAMERS (LAKE OF) WALEN, a principality in the S.W. of the mt. of Great Britain, which given the title of Prince of Wales to the heir-apparent of the British crown, and consists of a N. and a S. division, each comprising six counties, as follows—

| Counties | Area in square m. | Area in stat. miles. | Pop. 1861. | Pop. 1881. | Principal Towns. |
|---------------|-------------------|----------------------|------------|------------|------------------|
| North | | | | | |
| Anglesey | 271 | 106,433 | 27,227 | 54,545 | Anglesey |
| Carmarthen | 544 | 270,573 | 27,270 | 54,500 | Carmarthen |
| Denbigh | 338 | 361,043 | 31,043 | 100,043 | Denbigh |
| F. mt. | 344 | 184,006 | 60,164 | 60,670 | Flint. |
| Merioneth | 602 | 245,191 | 38,191 | 60,498 | Merioneth |
| Montgomery | 359 | 455,221 | 27,221 | 67,076 | Montgomery |
| South | | | | | |
| Brecon | 734 | 400,128 | 51,474 | 61,227 | Brecon. |
| Cardigan | 675 | 445,287 | 70,287 | 75,734 | Cardigan. |
| Carmarthen | 574 | 608,521 | 110,521 | 111,747 | Carmarthen |
| Glamorgan | 602 | 491,004 | 31,004 | 317,751 | Glamorgan |
| Pembrokeshire | 610 | 671,291 | 91,291 | 84,002 | Pembrokeshire |
| Radnor | 380 | 375,123 | 24,123 | 25,405 | Radnor |
| Total | 7,249 | 4,754,680 | 2,006,791 | 1,118,506 | |

As part of the British Empire, and especially of England. Wales has been generally described under those two titles, but its comparatively isolated position, and its very marked features, both physical and moral, demand for it a short additional notice. It is composed of a peninsula, with the island of Anglesey situated at its N.W. extremity, and separated from it by the Menai Strait, now crossed by two very remarkable bridges, and with a number of smaller islands chiefly at a short distance from the S.W. coast. The peninsula, washed N and W by the Irish Sea, and E. by Bristol Channel, and bounded W by the four English counties, Cheshire, Shropshire, Hereford, and Monmouth, is 185 m. long; where widest 55 m. and where narrowest only 35 m. broad, and has an area of 7289 sq. m. It is very mountainous, particularly in the N. division, where Snowdon, the culminating point of E. Britain, rises to the height of 3571 ft., is intersected by beautiful valleys traversed by numerous streams, including among others the Severn, which has its source within it, and is rich in minerals, particularly copper in the N., and coal and iron partially there also, but much more extensively in the S. The Silurian formation, so called after the Silures, the ancient inhabitants of the principality, covers more than two-thirds of the whole surface, extending continuously from the mouth of the Conway to the vicinity of St. David's Head; but is succeeded in the S. by the old red sandstone, above which lies, first the mountain limestone and then the large and valuable coal field already mentioned.

Besides the Severn already mentioned, the principal rivers are the Dee, which has part of its lower course in Cheshire the Clwyd, in Denbigh and Flint; the Conway forming the boundary between Denbigh and Caernarvon; the Dorey and the united Rhedol and Tyfrith which have their mouths near the centre of Cardigan Bay the Teify separating Cardigan on the N. from Caernarvon and Pembrokeshire on the S. the Cloddy and Cleddon, remarkable chiefly from contributing by their junction to form the splendid estuary Milford Haven, the Towy and Bury, which both fall into Caernarvon Bay, the Elyr and Taf which have a common estuary in Bristol Channel the Roney which forms part of the boundary between Wales and England and the Uak and Wye, which, though rising in the principality, have only the earlier part of their course within it. The lakes are numerous, but the largest, that of Bala, is only 4 m. long and scarcely 1 m. broad. The climate is on the whole moderate and equable, though somewhat keen in the higher districts. In all the counties, but more especially in the maritime, hmi city is in excess, the average fall of rain in the principality being 84 inches, while that in England is only 25. Hence both climate and surface concur in rendering Wales much more adapted for pasture than agriculture. The soil, too, seldom possesses great natural fertility, except in some of the valleys of which those of the Clwyd in the N., and of Glamorgan in the S., are celebrated for productivity. The latter, rather a plain than a vale, is of great extent, and grows excellent wheat. The system of agriculture, however notwithstanding recent improvements, continues on the whole indifferent. The minerals, as already observed, are very valuable, and the S. contains some of the largest coal and iron works in the kingdom, as well as the smelting-works of Swansea, probably the most extensive in the world. Of manufactures, properly so called, by far the most important are woolens. The principal articles are flannels, for which the principality has long been famous, cloth chiefly of a coarse description, and hosiery.

COSTUMES OF WELSH WORKERS.

The inhabitants long struggled manfully, first against the Romans, and afterwards against the Anglo-Saxons. They became tributary to England in the 10th century and after various vicissitudes, in which their attempts to throw off the yoke only riveted it more firmly, were finally and completely incorporated with the English monarchy in the reign of Henry VIII.

Both in language and manners, however, they continue to be a distinct people, and give undeniable evidence of a Celtic origin.

Their dialect bears a marked affinity to the Gaelic or Irish, but is much more closely allied to the ancient Cornish dialect, and which is still exclusively used by the peasantry in the W. of the French prov. Bretagne.

Welsh is one of the most ancient languages now spoken in Europe, and has also a literature, composed chiefly of the poetical effusions of bards, none of whom flourished as early as the 6th century, but partly also of prose, of which the translation of the Bible, completed in 1586, is considered one of the best specimens.

Among the peculiarities which characterize the people, one of the most striking at least to a stranger is the female dress, consisting generally of a plain or checked gown, a muslin or gauze flanneling collar around the neck and shoulders, and a black bonnet, either cylindrical, like that worn elsewhere by men, or broad-brimmed and tapering to the form of a truncated cone.

All classes are distinguished by civility and hospitality, and though among the lower ranks very loose ideas prevail as to the privileges which a declared lover may claim, when once the marriage-knot is tied the duties of married life appear to be faithfully performed.

Many curious superstitious, handed down by immemorial custom, still retain their hold, and even the gross impostures of Necromancy have found many followers particularly in the mining districts, but in the ranks of the established clergy, those of the Methodists have been equally successful in diffusing a knowledge of religion, and the great body of the people belonging to what are called the Calvinistic Methodists, and one of their principal sources of enjoyment either as teachers or taught in the primitive services of their church or in the Sunday-school almost invariably attached to it.

WALES, par Eng. 1850 an. Pop. 268.
WALFORD (New Source) See NEW SOURCE WALES.

WALSLEY two par. Eng.—1 Lincoln 3680 an. Pop. 231.—2 Notts: 1960 an. Pop. 363.

WALSH, a tn. Western Africa, cap. dist. Berroo, 650 m. N. E. Sierra Leone.

WALFORD par Eng. Hereford, 4841 an. Pop. 1217.

WALGRAVE, par Eng. Northampton 2640 an. Pop. 613.

WALHAIN St. Paul. BASTIEN. WALHAIN a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Vil, 22 m. S. E. Brussels with a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1745.

WALINOURT, a vil. France, dep. Nord, 9 m. S. E. Cambrai, with manufactures of cotton and silk stuffs. Pop. 7040.

WALJUKI, a tn. Russia, gov. and 116 m. S. W. Voronez at the confluence of the W. Oluka with the Oukai. It has some general trade. Pop. 1800.

WALKER a vil. and township, England, co. Northumberland, 1 bank Tyne, 2 m. S. Newcastle, and a station on the Newcastle and Walsayn railway, with a district church, Presbyterian and Wesleyan chapels, iron-works, a tannery, distillery, copper-works, &c. The great Roman wall terminates about 1/2 m. E. of the village. Pop. 3863.

WALKERHURHAM, par Eng. Nottingham, 3000 an. Pop. 606.

WALKER par Eng. Hertford, 3924 an. Pop. 788.

WALKERHURTON, par Eng. Devon 10,540 an. Pop. 751.

WALKI, or VANKI, a tn. Russia, gov. and 97 m. W. S. W. Khabarovsk, with five churches, several distilleries, and some general trade and five annual fairs. Pop. 6283.

WALLINGTON par Eng. York 3460 an. Pop. 699.

WALLERENGEN, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 8 m. N. E. Bern. It is well built and most of the inhabitants are Swiss-Germans. Pop. 1866.

WALLABOUT BAY, a bay, U. States, New York, in Long Island, on the E. side of Brooklyn, and containing on its E. side the R. States navy-yard.

WALLABY ISLANDS, two small isls. of the Abrolhos, off S. W. coast, Australia; they are the highest of the group, about 2 m. apart, and are known as the E. and W. Wallaby.

WALLACE-TOWN, a suburb of Ayr (Scotland) on the Clyde.

WALLACHBURG, a tn. and port of entry, Canada West, on Big Bear Creek 26 m. from Chatham with three Protestant churches, three schools, a sack and mill factory, three steam-mills, and a trade in lumber. Pop. about 306.

WALLACHIA, principality Turkey. See WALLACHIA.

WALLAJABAD a tn. Hindoostan, presid. and 68 m. S. W. Madras, 1 bank Palaur; with a military establishment.

WALLAMETTE, a river U. States. See WALLAMETTE.

WALLACHHOON, or WALLACHON a large vil. Eastern Nepal 1 bank Wallachoon or Tambar river, 10,385 ft. above sea-level composed of about 100 large, good painted wooden houses, ornamented with hundreds of long poles and vertical flags. It has some trunk trade with Thibet, through the Wallachoon Pass 16,756 ft. high and about two day's journey to the N. Around it yak, sheep, goats, &c. are fed, and turnips, radishes and potatoes are grown.—(Roche's Himalayan Journals)

WALLASEY par Eng. Chester; 1775 an. Pop. 6389.

WALLDORF, a vil. Saxa Meiningen, N. H. W. Meiningen 1 bank Werra, with a parish church, synagogue, and hospital. Pop. 1622.

WALLDUREN, a tn. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, in a wild and mountainous district of the Odenwald, 36 m. S. W. Weinsberg, with a parish church, a Capucine monastery, and a tile-works. Pop. 3185.

WALLERBRUCK a tn. Rhenish Prussia, gov. Minden with a parish church. Pop. 1078.

WALLENDORF, or OLAWA, a vil. Hungary co. Eger, near 1 bank Harvad 12 m. S. E. Leutchenau, with a Protestant and a R. Catholic church; a high school, a copper-mill and valuable mines of iron and copper. Pop. 2144.

WALLINFIELD, a market tn. Devon, Upper France, on the vil. Rodick, 91 m. N. E. Rodick, with a parish church, a ruined castle, saw and other mills; a trade in wood, and mines of iron. Pop. 1131.

WALLENSTADT —1 A tn. Switzerland, can. and 31 m. S. S. W. St. Gall in a marshy and unhealthy district. 1 bank Reuss, about 1 m. E. Lake Wallenstadt. It is well built and all built, and has a parish church, chapel, and school, and a considerable transit trade, as the chief entrepot between Zürich and Italy. Pop. 1793 —2 (Wallenstadt or Wallen-See), A lake, Switzerland, chiefly in the S. of can. St. Gall but partly also in the N. of can. Glarus. It is of a long but somewhat oval shape, about 12 m. long E. to W., and nowhere above 3 m. wide; 1285 ft. above sea-level, and about 500 ft. deep. Its chief feeder is the Reuss, of which it is only a wide expansion; it discharges itself by the Linth canal. The precipices on the N. side, rising precipitously from its edge vary in height from 2000 ft. to 3000 ft. Owing to sudden gusts of wind, the navigation of the lake is considered dangerous.

WALLERFANGEN, a vil. Rhenish Prussia, gov. Treves, on the Saar, with a synagogue, a weekly market, and manufactures of iron. Pop. 1303.

WALLERN a market tn. Bohemia, circle Prácheň, 26 m. S. S. W. Pláň, with a church chapel, and castle. Pop. 3036.

WALLERS, a vil. France, dep. Nord, 6 m. N. W. Valenciennes. Pop. 2691.

WALLERSTEIN a market tn. Bavaria, circle Swaben, on the Eger 29 m. S. S. W. Anspach with a palace, in which the Prince of Oettingen-Wallerstein resides; a R. Catholic church, a synagogue, Latin school, and ruined castle. Pop. 1960.

WALLINGFORD —1 A port, and can. for market tn. and par. England, co. Berks, 15 m. N. W. Reading. It has two principal streets, a spacious market-place, two churches, both fine edifices several dissenting chapels, a number of schools, a good townhall a mechanic's institute, a horticultural society, and some business in sailing. The borough returns a member to Parliament. Area of par. 631 an. Pop. 123. Pop. (mun. bor.), 2819 (incl. bor.), 6004.—2, A vil., U. States, Connecticut, 11 m. N. by E. New Haven, on the railway to Hartford with four churches a school, and manufactures of tapestry, wooden stuffs, &c. Pop. 3602.

WALLINGTON two par. Eng.—1 par. Hertford 1950 an. Pop. 254.—2, (also Thorpeham, Norfolk), 1460 an. Pop. 36.

WALLIS, a mun. Switzerland. See VALAIS.
WALLIS ISLANDS, a group, S. Pacific Ocean, lat. 18° 24' S. lon. 170° 10' W. (S.). They are also in number, varying in extent from 1 m. to 10 m., and isolated with no extensive reef. The land is in general high. The principal island, Uvea, is the only one inhabited. About 250 of the natives are Protestants, and 7700 R. Catholics.

WALLISCHIRKEN, a mun. Bohemia, circle Prácheň, about 60 m. S. W. Prague; with a parish church, a chapel, a castle, an hospital, a synagogue, and a postoffice; manufacturer of woollen and flannel cloth, potash-works, tile-works, a distillery and saw, walk, and other mills. Pop. 2162.
WALLAP (Kassan) par Eng. Harb. 7301 ac. P. 362.
WALLIS, par Scot. Scotland. Pop. 2442.
WALLIS and Florina, par Scot. Orkney; 7½ m. by 6 m. Pop. 1667.

WALLSEND a vill. and par England co. Northumberland. The village, which is about 1½ m. E. N. E. Newcastle, has a spacious green in the centre, and some good houses. The church, a stone-building with a spire, is situated on the turgate-road, at some distance from the village. Area of par 2787 ac. The pop. 5721 are chiefly engaged in collieries, ironworks, in manufacturing copper and earthenware, and in ship-building. Large quantities of Wallsend coal, which is of a very superior quality, are exported annually to London.

WALLSTADT, two vill. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, hall. Othemburg, 84 m. W. W. Würzburg.—1 (Grove). I bank Mann has a parish church, a chapel, quarries of building-stone, and iron-mine. Pop. 1317.—2 (Klein). On the opposite side of the river has a church, chapel, castle, oil-mills, and a trade in wood. Pop. 1805.

WALLSTOWN par Ire. Cork 8056 ac. Pop. 531.
WALMER, a vill. and par England co. Kent about 3 m. S. East on the road to Dover. It is surrounded with numerous handsome mansions, and much frequented for sea-bathing. The celebrated modern fortress, Walmer castle, a little S. from the village, is now appropriated as a residence for the lord-warden of the Cinque-port. The Duke of Wellington, who held that office, died in it, Sept. 14, 1833. Area of par, 1079 ac. Pop. 2165.

WALMBGATE, par Eng. Lincoln 920 ac. Pop. 79.
WALNEY ISLAND, Irish Sea, Lancashire, N. of the entrance to Morecambe Bay, and separated from the mainland by a narrow strait. Feasible at low-water. lat. (R.) on S. point 54° 2' 54" N. lon. 2° 10' 50" W. (L.). It is 10 m. long, and generally about 1 m. broad, sandy and comparatively barren; and so low that the waves sometimes threaten to roll directly over it, and instances are on record of the sea running across it in one or two places. The isl. of Walney is a chapelry in the parish of Dalton-in-Furness. Pop. 921.

WALPOLE, three par. England.—1 Suffolk 1750 ac. Pop. 563.—2, 32 Andover Norfolk, 2494 ac. Pop. 787.—3, (St. Peter), Norfolk; 6992 ac. Pop. 1591.

WALPOLE—1 An isl. in the N.E. of Lake St. Clair Canada West, about 10 m. long N to S, by 4 m. broad. It contains much fertile land and is occupied by Chippewas, Potawatamies, and Ottawa Indians, who live partly by the chase, and partly by cultivating the land. Pop. about 1040.—2, An isl., S. Pacific Ocean, S. from the S.E. extremity of New Caledonia, lat. 22° 29' S. lon. 168° 16' E. Discovered by Captain Butler in 1774.

WALSALL, a market tn. and parl. and mun. for England, in the E.E. of co. Stafford, 8 m. N. W. Birmingham, on the side and summit of a limestone ridge, above a stream of some name, which joins the Thames a little below, on the Old Bedford, and Watling and Epsom roads, and on the London and North-W. system, and the South Staffordshire railways. The country, presenting much finely diversified scenery, is covered by numerous villas, are very pleasing, and the town itself though not regularly laid out, contains several spacious streets, well paved and well lighted, and superior to most towns of the same magnitude in the suburbs of substantial and handsome dwellings. The more important buildings and establishments are a handsome modern parish church, on a commanding height, with well-proportioned tower terminating in a lofty spire, a district school, in the early English style; a chapel of ease, in modern style; a Wesleyan Methodist, Unitarian and two R. Catholic churches, one of which is handsome; a free grammar, free and charity, national, infant, and other schools, a townhall and jail, a public library and reading-room, adorned with a handsome Doric colonnade; several dining-houses, and other respectable accommodations. The situation of the town, on the E. edge of the S. Staffordshire mineral field, and in the immediate vicinity of that of Warwickshire, gives it great advantages for carrying on the iron manufactures, which accordingly forms its great staple; the chief articles denoting of all kinds of saddles, trumponery, including colts and carriage harness mountings, buckles, chains, snaffles, spurs, locks, keys, screws, files, edge-tools, firearms, gunblades, &c. There are also several brass and iron foundries, machine-shops, large masting-establishments and in the vicinity extensive lime-works, and both coal and iron pits. Walsall is of considerable antiquity, and had at one time a castle, said to have been built in the early part of the 10th century, by Ethelred, Countess of Mercia, and daughter of Alfred the Great but the existing town is almost entirely of modern origin. It is governed by a mayor five aldermen, and 18 councillors and sends a member to Parliament. Area of par, 1812 ac. Pop. 26,222. Pop. town and parl. bor., 25,080.

WALSCHLEBEN a vill. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. Erfurt, with a parish church, and a trade in cattle, and several animal fairs. Pop. 1250.

WALSHEAM two par. Eng. Norfolk.—1, (South S. Laurence) Pop. 246.—2, (South S. Mary) Pop. 443. United area, 3149 ac.

WALSHEAM—a vill. and par England, co. Suffolk in a picturesque valley, 4 m. E. by N. Ipswich. It has a spacious parish church, with a richly-gilded roof and a square embattled tower; Baptist, Independent and Wesleyan chapels, and a national school. Area, 2800 ac. P. 1297.

WALSHAM (NORTH), a market tn. and par England, co. Norfolk. 15 m. N. N. E. Norwich, on an eminence. It consists of three streets, leading to a central square; and has a large and elegant church, free Dissenting chapel, a grammar and a national school. Area, 4233 ac. Pop. 3711.

WALSINGHAM (GUYAR), par Eng. Norfolk; 2170 ac. Pop. 476.

WALSINGHAM (LITTLE), a vill. and par England co. Norfolk in a valley inclosed by lofty heights, 26 m. N. W. Norwich. It has a large parish church, with an embattled tower and lofty spire. Primitive and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, a free grammar-school, a house of correction, and the remains of a colonial monastery. Area, 680 ac. P. 1907.

WALSOKEN, a vill. and par England, co. Norfolk, close to the town of Walsoken with a parish church, in the Norman style, with an embattled tower and lofty spire. Primitive Methodist chapel, and a charitable endowment. Area of par, 4656 ac. Pop. 2740.

WALSRODE, two places, Hanover.—1, A tn., gov. and 46 m. S. W. Lüneburg on the Bümme, with manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, yarn, saltstaple and gunpowder, a paper-mill and dye-works. Pop. 2061.—2 A vill., near the former, with a monastery. Pop. 1623.

WALSTON, par Scot. Leam; 13 m. by 2 m. Pop. 467.
WALTERSDORF, several places, Austria, particularly:—1, A vill. Bohemia, circle Böhmerwald about 50 m. from Glitschin, with two churches, a school, and a mill. Pop. 1037.—2 A vill. Bohemia, circle Chudim, on a small stream, 20 m. from Landekron; with a church. Pop. 1569.—3, A vill. Moravia, circle Prácheň about 34 m. from Olmütz; with a church and a castle. Pop. 1400.

WALTERSDORF, numerous places, Prussia.—1, (Alt), A vill., prov. Rhine, gov. Bredius, circle Hattenscheidt; with churches, a saw and other mills. Pop. 1043.—2, (Wies), Gov. Bredius, circle Wittenberg; with a church, a castle, an infirmary, an orphan asylum, and saw, bark, walk, and flour mills. Pop. 1865.—3, A vill., gov. Liegnitz, with a R. Catholic church, and oil and other mills. Pop. 1695.

WALTERSHOF, a tn. Saxony-Coburg, on the Rodewasser, 15 m. W. S. W. Gotha. It consists of a walled town and four suburbs and has a castle, two churches, two hospitals, two schools; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, silks, tanneries, breweries, and paper-mills. Pop. 5148.

WALTERSHOF, a market tn. Prussia, Upper Silesia, 20 m. E. Bielefeld; with two churches, two chapels, 4660 ac. of land, a castle, a church, a school, a mill, and a bath; a dye-works, brewery and flour mills. Pop. 1266.

WALTERSTONE, par Eng. Hereford; 1261 ac. P. 527.

WALTERSTOWN, par Iral Kaddare; 1508 aa. P 830.
WALTHAM, six pers. Eng. — 1 Kant; 3215 aa. Pop.
576 — 3, Lincolns; 2850 aa. Pop. 782 — 3, (Gross, Kneen, 7225 aa. Pop. 1225. — 4, (Lettie), Koser; 7737 aa. Pop.
531 — 4, (out-of-Walde), Leloutser; 18770 aa. Pop. 732. — 6,
(L. Loutser). Berks; 1468 aa. Pop. 783

WALTHAM, a vil., U. States, Massachusetts 10 m. W by N. Boston, on the Fitchburg railway with several fine churches, and manufactures of cotton and wool. Pop. 4464.

WALTHAM ABBEY, or WALTHAM HOLY-CROSS, a market town and par. England, co. Essex, 12 m N by E. London, 1. bank Lea. It consists chiefly of one irregular main street, and has a spacious Norman church, originally belonging to an abbey. Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, manufactory of gunpowder and plot, and a considerable business in printing silk-hangings. Area of par. 10,875 ac. Pop. 4803.

WALTHAM BISHOP'S (St PETER) a market in and par England, co. Hants, 10 m. ENE Southampton. It is neatly built; on its E. side are the remains of the once magnificent palace of the bishops of Winchester, built in 1135.
Area of par. 7885 ac. Pop. 2365.

WALTHAM Cross, a vil Englad, co. and 9 m. S. by E. Hartford, so called from a beautiful cross erected here, at one of the halting-places of the funeral-procession of Eleanor, Queen of Edward I., on its way to London. The cross is hexangular, and highly enriched with tabernacle work and foliage. There are here an Estababshah and a Dissenting chapel, and almshouses, in the decorated English style.

WALTEAMS230, 1/2 mi. and backside, Englewood style. pleasantly situated near the borders of Cripple Creek, on the Lee, hard by the bridge, on the Kansas Consolation way, 6 mi. N N E. on 2nd. It consists of detached houses, many of them elegant; and has a parish church, partly ancient and partly modern, with a curvular window of stained glass, and several fine monuments; three other churches. In dependent and Unitarian chapels, a free school, several mis-houses, an all, and extensive copper and Sear soils. Area, 4630 ac. Pop 4689

WALTIER, a small vil. Hindoostan, N. Circars, on the Bay of Bengal 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the town of that name.

WALTON, 12 pars. Eng. — 1 Bucks 767 ac. Pop. 95
— 2 Cumberland; 3592 ac. Pop. 455 — 3 Somerset 2503 ac. Pop. 768. — 4, Suffolk 1938 ac. Pop. 897 — 5, York 1070 ac. Pop. 245. — 6, (Garrig), Gloucester 650 ac.
Pop. 68. — 7, (East) Norfolk 2459 ac. Pop. 292. — 8, (West), Norfolk 5219 ac. Pop. 892. — 9, (in-Gordano), Somerset, 1815 ac. Pop. 225. — 10 (on the Wold) Surrey 2592 ac. Pop. 486. — 11 (on the Wolds), Leicester, 1720 ac.
Pop. 260. — 12 (upon Wold) Dorset, 2503 ac. Pop. 465.
WALTON, two pars. Wales, Ffenfrocks: — 1, (East)
1988 ac. Pop. 278. — 2, (West) 1408 ac. Pop. 618.

WALTON LE DALE, a township and chapelry England, Lancashire, about 1 m S.E. Preston, of which it is almost a suburb, on the Preston and Blackburn railway. It has a chapel with a tower, national and other schools, a print-work, an iron foundry, and several large cotton-factories. P 6855

WALTON, is BOKER OF WALTON-OWEN-NAME, a village and par. England, on Essex 6 m. Harwich, on a gentle acclivity sloping to the beach, and visited for sea-bathing has a parish church and a Dissenting chapel. The manufacture of soppens was formerly carried on to a large extent, but the steam navigation trade has superseded it.

WALTON-TRE-HOPE, a township and par. England, co. Lancaster, pleasantly situated on the road to Preston, 8 m. E by R. Liverpool. It contains a great number of handsome mansions and villas and has an elegant parish church, so conspicuously situated as to form an important landmark; two other churches, one of them with a graceful spire; a school, and infant schools. Arms of par., three bars. Pop. 4600.

WALVISCH BAY [Whale Bay], S. Africa, S.W. coast, country of the Damaras. Pelican Point, which forms its S. entrance, is at lat. 23° 58' S.; lon 14° 25' E. It extends along shore for 20 m., is spacious, well sheltered, except from N winds, which seldom blow here, and much frequented by whales. vast flocks of sea-fowl resort to this bay WALWIN'S-Castle, par Wales, Pembroke; 2804 an.

Pop 858

WALWORTH a dist. par. England, co. Surrey, 2 m. S. London, of which it forms a suburb; comprising a condensed line of houses on the road to Camberwell, also W to Kennington, and E to the Kent road. It has a church, three Dissenting chapels, a literary institution, and several schools. Pop. 28,861

WALZENHAUSEN, a vil and par Switzerland, con. Appenzell, on a hill at the extremity of the Rheodthal; with a church so commandingly situated, that the Tyrolean mountains are seen and 92 churches counted from it. The rearing of cattle, raising of fruit, and culture of the vine are the principal employments. Pop. 1804

WAMBLEK, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Durbant, 9 m. W Brussels with a brewery, a distillery, and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1491.

WAMBERG a tn. Bohemia, circle and 24 m. E.S.E. Königsgrütts with a parish church, a chapel, two mills, and manufactures of lace. Pop. 1985

WAMBROOK, par Eng Dorset, 1857 ad. Pop 245
WAMEL, a vil. Holland prov Gelderland. l. bank Weal

WAMPHRAE, near North Humphreys 8 mi by 8 mi. P 522

WANBOROUGH, two pars. Eng.—1, Surrey, 156 ac.
Pop. 208.—9 W. lbs. 4440 oz. Pop. 954.

WANCANLEK a tn. Hindoostani in the Gujarat peninsula, 1 bank Mhya, 20 m NW Baroda. It is long and narrow, and surrounded by a great wall with towers and bastions and has a good bazaar and an elegant mosque. In the rainy season the streets are inundated.

WANCHEOW, or TUWONG-CHING, a large seaport in China, prov. Chekiang, 150 m S. Ningpo, at the mouth of a river of its name lat. 28° 4'. Its streets are intersected by canals, and exposed to frequent inundation, and it is esteemed very unhealthy for Europeans. It has manufactures of silks, shamsoo and soy. Pop. 303,600.

WANDELL and LANINGTOWN, per Scot. Lark, 9 m.
by 4 m. Pon. 868

WANDERSLIEBEN, a market tn. Prussian Saxony gov and 10 m. S W Erfurt. It has a Protestant church. Pop. 914

WANDIPOOR a tn. Bootan, lat. 27° 51' N, lon. 89° 57' E., on the extremity of a rock, formed into a narrow point by the junction of three streams. This is one of the consecrated towns of Bootan where a considerable number of gy lasses or monks are established.

WANDIWASH a tn. Hindoostan, preald and 78 m. S.W. Madras lat 12 30' N., Lon 79 37' E. In September 1759, it was attacked by the British, who were repulsed with great slaughter, but was subsequently taken, with scarcely any loss. In January 1760, the French, under M. Lally, were ignoily defeated here by the British, under Colonel Clive.

WANDORF is in Hungary, so said about 3 m. from Odenburg at the foot of a ridge of well-wooded hills with a Protestant church, and an old Pauline monastery. In the vicinity are the extensive coal mines of Brunsberg.

WANDRE a vil. and com. Belgium prov and 4 m. N.E. Lège, on the Moselle, with a manufacture of plates for firearms, and a millery. Pop. 3712.

WANDEBEEK, a vil. Denmark, duchy Holstein, on the Wanda, 4 m N E. Hamburg. It is well built and has a handsome modern church, a synagogue, a large cotton-factory and a considerable trade. Pop. 4200

WANDSWORTH, a town and par. England, co. Surrey, at the junction of the Wandse with the Thames, about 4 m. S. W. London. It consists chiefly of one street occupying the declivities of two hills; and has a plain brick parish church, with a square tower. There are also a spacious and handsome dissenting church, various dissenting chapels, a national and other schools, manufactures of hats and boiling-colours, print and dye works. On the Wandse are numerous old, new, and other mills. Area of par., 2476 ac. Pop. 9643

WANFELM BE-BAULET, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 8 m. N.E. Charleroi; with three breweries, an oil-press, and several flour-mills, weaving, and some trade in flax. Pop. 2,388.

WANFRIED, a tn. Hesse-Cassel, Niederhessen, r bank Werra, which here becomes navigable, 80 m. N.E. E. Cassel. It has walls and ditches, an ancient castle and courthouse, some shipping, and a trade in wine and tobacco. Pop. 2045.

WANGARI BAY New Zealand North Island E. coast, is formed by the peninsula of which Cape Tawara is the S.E. point, and has excellent anchorage in all parts.

WANGEN two places Württemberg — 1 A tn. circle Danube, on the Argau, 48 m. S. Ulm. It is an ancient place, walled, and well built, with two churches, an hospital, a paper-mill and some general trade. Pop. 1458 — 2 A vil. circle Neckar near Cannstadt, L. bank Neckar, with a parish church. Pop. 1389.

WANGEN, several places Switzerland, particularly — 1, A tn. and par., com. and 22 m. N.N.F. Bern r bank Aar here crossed by a covered bridge. It has a handsome modern church, pictures, and some trade. Pop. 1705 — 2 A vil. and par., com. Schwyz at the S. foot of the Bachberg, with a very ancient church. Pop. 1011.

WANGERIN a tn. Russia, prov. Pomerania gov. Stettin, between the Wangerin and Polchow, with a parish church a trade in horses and cattle and an annual fair. Pop. 1121.

WANGELBOOG an isl. off Ulbinburg in the Kurli Sea, about 6 m. from the coast at the mouth of the Jaiide. It is about 8 m. long E. to W. by 1 m. broad lat. (light W. and) 53° 49' 36" N. lon. 21° 51' 30" E. (r.)

WANGFORD two par. Eng. Suffolk — 1 2603 ac. Po. 814 — 2 2559 ac. Po. 85.

WANGI, a vil. and par. Switzerland, com. Thurgau on the Murz, 5 m. S. E. Frauenfeld, with a parish church, and a Protestant and R. Catholic school. Pop. 1596.

WANLIP par. Eng. Leicestershire 932 ac. Pop. 157.

WANLOCK HEAD, a mountain, W. Scotland co. Dumfries, 51 m. E. N.F. Banquhar. It is nearly 1500 ft. above sea level, and is inhabited chiefly by miners and others connected with the lead-works. It has an Established and a Free church, two or three schools and a subscription library. The chief produce is lead-ore, gold has been found in quantities not sufficient to remunerate. Pop. 87.

WANLOREUX, a tn. com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, on an affluence of the Dendre, 24 m. S. E. M. M. with two mills, a brewery and a trade in corn. Pop. 1094.

WANLEDELS a tn. com. Belgium, 12 m. S.W. Ghent, with two breweries, an oil and two flour mills, and some trade. Pop. 1469.

WANLEH a tn. Russia, prov. Silesia, gov. and 23 m. S.E. Breslau, r bank Ohlau. It is entered by three gates and has a R. Catholic church, and an hospital. Pop. 1656.

WANLIFORD par. Eng. Northampton 469 ac. Pop. 184.

WANSTADT par. Eng. Essex 2004 ac. Pop. 2207.

WANTERLOW par. Eng. Somerset 2064 ac. Pop. 472.

WANTAGE, a market tn. and par. Eng. and W. Herts, 60 m. W. London. It is irregularly built, but has many good houses, a spacious cross-farm church with a square embattled tower, three Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, some houses, manufactures of stocking, twine and a trade in malt and flour. Alfred the Great was born here in 843. Area of par. 7430 ac. Pop. 3860.

WANTISDEN par. Eng. Suffolk, 2156 ac. Pop. 107.

WANTUNG (N. and S.), two islets in the Canton river China, between the two islands Anungyong and Tso-toek, low both of which are fortified, the one by the British, the other by the Chinese.

WANTZENAU (L.) a vil. France, dep. Bas-Rhin, 8 m. N.E. Strasbourg, near r bank Rhine. Pop. 2343.

WANLEBEN a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and 12 m. S.W. Magdeburg. It has walls with four gates a Protestant church and a courthouse and several breweries and mills. Pop. 2002.

WAPLEY COM-CODRINGTON, par. Eng. Gloucestershire 2445 ac. Pop. 305.

WAPATOO or MULTICOMMAN, an isl., U. States, Oregon, formed by two branches of the Columbia, and about 20 m. long, by 10 m. broad. It consists entirely of alluvial deposits. In the interior is a block of basalt, red-rye, channelled in ancient times by the Indians into a column 4 ft. in height by 2 ft. in diameter, and the object of much superstition. The Hudson's Bay Company have a dairy here.

WAPPENBURY par. Eng. Warwick; 1550 ac. Pop. 371.

WAPPENHAM par. Eng. Northampton, 2980 ac. Pop. 669.

WAPPING (St. John), a par. Eng. and co. Middlesex, forming a suburb of London, in the Tower Hamlets, on the banks of the Thames about 2 m. S. St. Paul. The chief business is connected with the shipping and the London docks. Area 80 ac. Pop. 4477.

WARRA, or OUGARA, a tn. to Central Africa, esp. of Wadai; about lat. 13° 30' N. lon. 24° E. It is of elliptical form, and surrounded by mountains, rendering it a sort of natural outlier. It is in general well built, and has a spacious sultan's palace.

WARASDIN, or VANARD, a tn. Austria, Civil Croatia, esp. co. of same name, near W. bank Drava, in a plain bounded by hills, 36 m. N.N.E. Agrum. It consists of an inner town and of suburbs. The former of a square form, is surrounded on the S. side by old walls and fortifications, and has tolerably regular and paved streets, with a number of handsome houses.

Some churches, of which St. Nicholas, the Franciscan, and the old Pauline churches are particularly deserving of notice, a bishop's palace, handsome county buildings, a townhouse, a fine manum belonging to Count Draskovitz, a gymnasium, high school, Ursuline girls school, a philanthropic institute a burgher hospital and poorhouse, manufactures of tobacco, vinegar-works and some trade in silk and wine. Pop. 9151.

The country is bounded, N. by Hungary Proper and Styria W. Styria and Illyria, S. and E. Agrum length, N.E. to S.W. 50 m. mean breadth about 18 m. The surface is mountainous in the W. and the centre, is watered N. by the Drava, and E. by its tributary Delnya. S. by the Krupa, and W. by the Sattel. Much of the surface has fine forests, which yield excellent timber and feed vast numbers of swine. It is generally fertile and produces in abundance corn, maize, tobacco, flax and wine. The minerals include sulphur and a little gold obtained from the sands of the Drava. Pop. 111,000.

WARASDIN also gives its name to a generalship of Military Croatia bounded N. E. by Hungary Proper, from which it is separated by the Drava E. and R.F. Slavonia, and S.W. and W. Civil Croatia. It is divided into the two regimental dists. of Kreutz and St. George. Belovar is the capital. Pop. 110,000.

WARBURG, a seaport, Sweden. See WARSAW.

WARBURTON, par. Eng. Sussex, 1763 ac. Pop. 1500.

WARBURTON, par. Eng. Hunts 8948 ac. Pop. 2293.

WARBOURGH par. Eng. Oxford, 1673 ac. Pop. 728.

WARBYNS par. Eng. Huntingdon 8100 ac. Pop. 1996.

WARBYLOW par. Eng. Cornwall, 4104 ac. Pop. 470.

WARBURO a tn. Rhenish Prussia, gov. and 55 m. S.E. L. Minden 1 bank Driemel. It has walls with six gates two churches, a chapel, gymnasium, Dominican monastery and manufactures of linen and tobacco. Pop. 8404.

WARBURTON par. Eng. Chester, 1747 ac. Pop. 489.

WARBURNO a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 1 bank Scheldt, 23 m. W. N.W. Mores, with a mill-railway, brewery, an oil and a flour mill, and a trade in agricultural produce and charcoal. Pop. 1125.

WARCUP par. Eng. Westmorland, 10,020 ac. Pop. 740.

WARD par. Irel. Dublin, 1343 ac. Pop. 128.

WARDE a tn. Denmark prov. N. Jutland, r bank Warde 64 m. N.W. Flimsburg. It has long been famous for its black pottery, which is largely exported to Germany and Holland. Pop. 1600.

WARDELA (Kincse) a tn. Hungary See GROSSEWARDE.

WARDELA (Currenco) a vil. and par. Eng. and co. 17 m. W. W. Northampton on the Churwell, with a large and handsome parish church. Area. 1087 ac. Pop. 891.

WARDELA or OLD WARDE, two par. Eng. I.—1, Red ford 8330 ac. Pop. 627 — 2, Kent 795 ac. Pop. 59.

WARDELA a vil. and par. Eng. and co. Northumberland, on the Newcastle and Carlisle railway, about 2 m. N.W. Hexham with an ancient tower of church, and finely planted church-yard a school, collieries, quarries, and lead-mines. Area. 5122 ac. Pop. 646.

WARDIN, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Luxembourg, on the Wiltz, 23 m. N. Arlon; with a tannery, numerous flour mills, and a trade in agricultural produce and timber. Pop. 1208.

WARDLEY, par. Eng. Rutland 1550 ac. Pop. 69.

WARDOR, or VANOR, a vil. Norway, prov Finnmark, on ist. of its name, 78 m. E. by S. Hammerfest about lat. 70° 20' N; lon. 81° 10' E. It is protected by the fort of Wardorhus, and has a good harbour but an unimportant trade. Pop. 200.

WARDOUR, par Eng Wilts. Pop. 724.

WARDVILLE, a tn. Canada West, co. Middlesex, 80 m. from London, with two Protestant churches, one R Catholic a public and two private schools, manufactures of cloth, iron, and leather several mills, and a distillery. Pop. about 700.

WARE, a market tn. and par England, co. Hertford 21 m. N London, in a valley, 1 bank Len. It consists of several streets, one of which extends about 1 m. along the London and Cambridge road. It is lighted and well supplied with water and has an ancient cruciform church, several Dissenting chapels, a museum a public library and an assembly-room. The malting-establishments, upwards of 70 supply most of the London breweries. Area of par 4700 ac. P 5088.

WARE a vil U States, Massachusetts, 64 m. W by S Boston, on the Ware with a Congregational church a bank, and various manufactures. Pop. 3735.

WAREHAM, a bor and market tn. England co. Dorset, 15 m. E. by S Dorchester. It has an Established and two Dissenting churches, a national and other schools, manorial tithes of tithes, and a trade in corn and cattle. Very fine clay is worked in the neighbourhood. Pop. 7218.

WAREHAM a vil U States, Massachusetts 40 m. R by S Boston, on Cape Cod railway with two churches, and iron works. Pop. 1168.

WARFHORNE par Eng Kent 3570 ac. Pop. 507.

WARMMEE, a tn. Belgium, prov and 13 m. W W Lige, on the railway between Lige and Trellemont, on the Geer; with a handsome square, and a very old church. Its gingerbread is famous.

WARIN a tn. Meklenburg-Schwerin, circle Meklenburg, on the S shore of the Lake of Murriz, with fine promenades formed out of its ramparts a large central and well planted square two churches, a savings bank, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, some shipping a fishery several mills, and a distillery. Pop. 4811.

WARENDORF a tn. Prussia, prov Westphalia, gov and 16 m. P Munster on the Enns. It was once fortified, is entered by four gates; and has six churches and chapels a synagogue, protestant seminary, inn, inn, orphan hospital, manufactures of linen, woollen, and cotton tissues, tobacco-factories, a bell foundry, dye-works, bleachfields, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. (1853) 4544.

WARENLEFF, par Eng Huntingdon, 1979 ac. P 295.

WARFUM a vil Holland, prov Groningen 14 m. W N W Appingedam with a church. P (agricultural), 1853.

WARFIELD, par Eng Berks 2329 ac. Pop. 1874.

WARCLA a tn Algerian Sahara. See OUAZALA.

WARGRAVE par Eng Berks 4514 ac. Pop. 1773.

WARHAM, two pars. Eng Norfolk—1 (At Salis) 1774 ac. Pop. 348.—2 (St Mary) 8068 ac. Pop. 61.

WARIN, a Meklenburg-Schwerin, esp. dist. of same name, on a small lake, 50 m. S E Schwerin. It has three gates, a church a courthouse manufactures of tobacco a brewery, and a distillery. Pop. 1382.

WARINGSTOWN a tn. Ireland, co. Down, 2 m. S W Lurgan with a very old but handsome parish and a Presbyterian church; manufactures of linen chiefly lawns, diapers, and embroidery handkerchiefs. Pop. 866.

WARK a vil. and par England on Northumberland, on the North Tyne, 12 m. N N W Hexham with a handsome parish church, Presbyterian and Wesleyan chapels, an endowed school, and remains of fortifications and to have been thrown up by Edward III. Area, 32,986 ac. Pop. 865.

WARKLEIGH par Eng Devon, 2461 ac. Pop. 537.

WARKTON, par Eng Northampton, 1810 ac. P 309.

WARKWORTH, a tn. and par England, co. Northumberland, pleasantly situated 7 m. S E Alnwick, on a bend of the Coquet, over which is an ancient bridge. It consists of three spacious streets and generally well built stone-houses and has a fine old parish church, with a handsome square a Dissenting chapel, several schools and a literary society. At the mouth of the river, about 1 m. below, is a harbour at which coals are largely shipped. The ancient baronial castle, an object of great interest, stands upon an elevated mound, with a lofty watch-tower in the centre. Area of par 19,868 ac. Pop. 4439.

WARKWORTH, par Eng Northamp. 2370 ac. P 550.

WARLPGON par Eng Cornwall 2056 ac. P 205.

WARLEY a vil. and township, England, co. York 2 m. W Halifax; with an Independent chapel a subscription school (iron foundries, chemical works, and woollen and worsted mills. Pop. 6408.

WARLEY two pars Eng Essex—1 (Great) 3798 ac. Pop. 952.—2 (Little) 1851 ac. Pop. 344.

WARTINGHAM, par Eng Surrey 1777 ac. P 565.

WARLOY HALLAM a vil France, dep. Somme, 19 m. N F Amiens. Pop. 3092.

WARMBLUNN a watering place Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and 30 m. A W Legnica, in a romantic valley of the Biesegebirge with two churches a castle with garden a very complete bathing-establishment, and fine walks. The waters which have a temperature of 97° to 98° are efficacious in gout, rheumatism &c. Many of the inhabitants cut the beautifully variegated Silesian glass, and the fine pebbles and rock-crystals found in the vicinity. Pop. 2473.

WARMEFIELD or KIRKCONNELL a vil. and par England, co. York, near the Calder and on the Midland railway 3 m. N W Wakefield. It has a neat and substantial church with a square tower an endowed school several almshouses a colliery and steam-works. Area of par 2818 ac. P 950.

WARMINGHAM par Eng Cheshire 4730 ac. P 1971.

WARMINGHURST, par Eng Sussex 1051 ac. P 116.

WARMINGTON, par Eng Warwick 1750 ac. P 627.

WARMINGTON, par Eng Northamp. 31,000 ac. P 671.

WARMINSTER a market tn. and par England co. Wiltshire near the W. margin of Salisbury Plain 19 m. W N W Salisbury. It consists of a principal street, with a few narrow lanes and a spacious market place, and has several well-built though mostly old houses three churches several Dissenting chapels, a town hall, containing assembly and court rooms, &c. a literary institution, a museum, national, infant, and other schools, manufactures of agricultural implements, extensive foundries and breweries and a trade in corn. Area of par, 6870 ac. Pop. 6285.

WARMUND a vil. Holland, prov N Holland, 8 m. N Leyden with two churches and a school. Industries engaged in cattle-rearing agriculture, and nursery gardening. Pop. 1079.

WARMSWORTH par Eng York 1042 ac. Pop. 360.

WARWELL par Eng Dorset 1531 ac. Pop. 140.

WARWBOURGH (SOURN) par Eng Hants 2,09 ac. Pop. 410.

WARADON par Eng Worcester 968 ac. Pop. 193.

WARRENHOLD a seaport, Meklenburg-Schwerin at the mouth of the Warnow in the Baltic, 6 m. N N W Rostock. It is defended by a fort, tolerably well built, and has baths a fishery and a small harbour, at which though neither deep nor very secure, in 1855 260 vessels entered, and 618 cleared. Pop. 1150.

WARRETON (WARRETON) a tn. and co. Belgium, prov Flanders 7 m. S. by E. Ypres, 1 bank Lys. It is neatly built and has a church two chapels, a workhouse, prison, musical society two schools manufactures of linen, eight breweries, a tannery pottery salt-refinery, and several corn and oil mills. Pop. 5970.

WARFORD par Eng Hants 8057 ac. Pop. 414.

WARHAM par Eng Essex 4993 ac. Pop. 1016.

WARROW a river Germany runs S. of Flensburg in Meklenburg-Schwerin flows first W then N E then N and falls into the Baltic at Warnemünde total course, 70 m.

WARSDOKFF—1 (Alt) a vil. Bohemia, circle Leutmeritz, 4 m. S E Lumburg; with a church, extensive manufactures of damask and ordinary linen, several saw and other mills. Pop. 3328.—2 (par Werschnitz) A vil. Moravia, circle Posen, with a church and three mills. Pop. 1180.

WARP two places, Prussia, prov Pomerania—1 (Warp), A villet tn., gov and 25 m. N N W Stettin on a lake of same name. It has a Protestant church, some shipping and a trade in wood and cattle. Pop. 1821.—2 (Alt) A vil. not far from the former, with a church and a mill. Pop. 1084.

WARSGROVE, par Eng Oxford 460 ac. Pop. 80.

WARREFF, a tn. W Africa, on the delta of the Niger, 58 m. S Benue lat. 5° 25' N lon. 5° 28' E.

WARREN, see Wales, Pembrokeshire; 1169 ac. Pop. 194.
WARREN numerous places, U States.—1, A vil. Maine, 83 m. S.E. Augusta, on the St. George, with a courthouse, an academy and considerable manufactures. Pop. 2438.—2 A vil. Massachusetts, on the Chukopee, and on the Western railroad, 73 m. W. Boston, with two churches, and some manufactures. Pop. 1776.—3, A vil. Rhode Island, E. side of Narragansett Bay 10 m. S. by E. Providence with several churches, an academy a harbour for vessels of 300 tons, and building yards. Pop. 5103.—4, A m. Pennsylvania, on the Allegheny, on the Senary and Erie railway, 130 m. N. E. Pittsburgh, with wide straight streets, county buildings, an academy and numerous mills. Pop. 1013.—5, A tn. Ohio, on the Mahoning 100 m. N. E. Columbus, with six churches, two foundries, two machine-shops, an oil a falling, and two flour mills. Iron-stones and coal abound in the vicinity. Pop. (1835) 2000.

WARRENPOINT a seaport and par. Ireland on. Down near the head of Carrington Bay 25 m. S. S. W. Belfast. It is well built, generally of stone, and has an Established church in the early English style, a handsome R. Catholic and several other Dissenting chapels, eight schools, and an excellent harbour with a considerable trade, partly carried on by regular steamers to Liverpool. Pop. (in), 1769. Area of par. 1042 ac. Pop. 2152.

WARRENTON, a tn. U States, Virginia, 100 m. N. by W. Richmond, with a handsome courthouse three churches, and two academies. Pop. 1000.—2 A vil. N. Carolina, 24 m. W. S. W. Gaston, on the railway to Raleigh, with three churches. Pop. 1332.

WARRINGTON, a market tn. man. and port bur., and par. England, co. Lancaster, on bank Mersey here crossed by a bridge, and on the London and North Western railway of which it is an important station 16 m. E. by S. Liverpool. It consists of four principal and several minor streets, generally narrow though tolerably straight and well kept, and lined with houses sometimes of wood and interesting for their antiquity but usually well built of brick, and covered with slate is lighted with gas and well supplied with water, both from springs and by pipes from a distance and has three churches, one of them a spacious cruciform structure, with a central tower a Norman crypt, and a well decorated chancel. Baynes, Independent adjacent M. Methodist, Quaker R. Catholic, and Unitarian chapels, grammar blue-coat national British orphan, infant, and other schools, a townhall, market-hall, tradeswell, assembly rooms, theatre, a library and museum, a mechanics and a church institute, a natural and a mutual society, a savings bank and several churches. The main factories are chiefly cotton goods, sailcloth, glass, pins, coned dried the staple, flax, cordage, leather soap iron castings and iron-steamers. The breweries have long been famous for their ale. Pop. 22,561. Area of par., 12 108 ac.

WARSAW (Polish, Warszawa German, Warschau French Varsovie) the capital city of Russian Poland, partly on a flat and partly on a height rising gradually from the bank Vistula, here crossed by a bridge of boats, 1570 ft. long commencing, with the city or suburb of Praga, 335 m. E. Berlin, with which and with Leszno it is connected by railroad. Lat. 52° 13' 50" N. Lon. 21° 24' E. (L.) It consists of the city proper and several suburbs, enclosed for the most part along with a rampart and fosse, entered by 10 gates, and defended or overgrown by a vast marsh which the Russians have recently drained. In the older parts the streets are narrow, and the houses, generally of very indifferent appearance, are huddled together without any order. In the newer part, and more especially in some of the suburbs, the streets are often spacious, and many ranges of handsome buildings are seen, but the impression produced is by no means favourable, and Warsaw, as a whole is decidedly ill built, badly paved and very dirty. It has, however several large public squares, among which that of Sigismund, adorned with a bronze equestrian statue of the third king of that name, is particularly deserving of notice and the vicinity is well provided with beautiful promenades.

The more remarkable public buildings are the cathedral, a huge structure adorned with a fine altar piece, the church of the Holy Cross more distinguished by magnitude than any more attractive feature the church of the Carmelites, interesting as the spot where the league was sworn between Charles XII of Sweden and Stanislas Leszinski; numerous other churches, among which the Lutheran church stands conspicuous and is justly regarded as one of the finest structures of which the city can boast the Zasek or ancient palace of the Polish kings, still occupied by the court on occasional visits and forming a huge pile, which towers above the other houses, on a height overlooking the Vistula; the palace of Casimir occupied by the university till its suppression, and adorned in front with a statue of Copernicus the Saxon palace with fine gardens attached to it; the Krasiński palace, occupied partly by the superior courts of law and partly by government-offices several other palaces similarly occupied, the townhouse, arsenal, mint, custom-house exchange, barracks several theatres, particularly the national; and the bazaar of Mariaville consisting of a large square lined with arcades, somewhat in the style of the Palais Royal at Paris.

COLONADE OF SIGISMUND III. WARSAW.—From a Lithographic Engraving.

Since the suppression of the university which was on a very complete scale, and had a library of 150,000 volumes, which has been removed to St. Petersburg, the principal educational establishments are a Flakus college, a college for nobility a lyceum and many other superior and elementary schools. Among the benevolent institutions are a town and a military hospital, both very large establishments, a foundling hospital a deaf and dumb, and two lunatic asylums. The manufactures consist of woollen linen and cotton goods, hats, hosiery leather saddlery, carriages, hardware, paper, refined wax, chemical products, and tobacco. There are also numerous breweries, distilleries, tile-works, and mills. The trade is very extensive, Warsaw being by far the most important commercial emporium of Poland, and carrying on a large traffic both with the interior and with Thron and Danzig, by means of the Vistula. Besides a well-frequented weekly market, at which great numbers of cattle are sold, there are two large annual fairs, each of which lasts three weeks. Warsaw though a very ancient town did not become the capital till about the middle of the 16th century. Its history alone, though full of incidents, is properly identical with that of Poland. Pop. (1851), 164,116, of whom above a fifth part are Jews.

WARSAW, a river-port, U States, Illinois, on the Mississippi, at the foot of the lower rapids, 115 m. W. N. W. Springfield. The largest steamers ascend to the port. There is a considerable export and import trade. Pop. (1853), 2000.

WARREN, a vil. and par. England, co. Nottingham, on the Mather, 5 m. N. E. Mansfield; with a substantial parish church an endowed school, and limestone-quarries. Area of par. 6710 ac. Pop. 1298.

WANSTEIN, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 14 m. E. Arnsberg; with a Protestant church, manufacture of copper-ware, and a paper mill. Pop. 1610.

WARTA, a river rises in the S.W. of Russian Poland about 30 m N W Cracow, flows arcuately N N W to Kolo, then generally W into Prussia, passing Posen, till it enters prov Brandenburg and at Gutsin joins r bank Oder after a course of about 400 m. Its principal affluents are, on the right, the Wida, Kora, Welka, and Netza, and on the left, the Prosa and the Odra. It generally traverses low plains, and forms several extensive marshes.

WARTA, a tn Russian Poland, 97 m E Kaluch, on the Warta. It has a Bernardino school and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, hats, and hosiery. Pop. 1181.

WARTAU, a vil and par Switzerland, can. and 23 m S E E. St. Gall. It has two iron-mills, a saw-mill, and the ruins of an ancient castle. Pop. 1787.

WARTBERG, or WARTBERG, a market in Hungary co and 12 m from Freeburg with a synagogue, an orphan hospital, tile-works, and a trade in cattle. P. 1781.

WARTBURG a castle, Baxe Weimar. See EMMACH.

WARTENBERG (Ossa) a tn Bohemia, circle and 22 m N N W Buzlau with a parish church, an hospital and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1804.

WARTENBERG (Pomerania) a tn Prussia, prov Silesia gov and 92 m E N E. Breslau with a Protestant and two R. Catholic churches, two castles with gardens and an hospital, manufactures of linen, and tile-works. Pop. (1867), 3542.

WARTENBURG a tn Prussia, prov E Prussia gov and 61 m S. Königsberg at the confluence of the Pisch and Kirmas, which here form the Weising. It has two R. Catholic churches a Bernardino monastery, several mills and a trade in linen and cattle. Pop. (1862) 3567.

WARTHA par Eng York 7000 ac. P. 488. WARTHA a tn Prussia, prov Silesia gov and 45 m S.W. Breslau. It has a R. Catholic parish church, a town-house, and hospital. The chief employment is in making oranges and similar articles for the numerous pilgrims visiting the church. Pop. (1862) 1038.

WARTHILL par Eng York 860 ac. Pop. 169.

WARTLING par Eng Sussex 4738 ac. Pop. 1070.

WARTON par Eng Lancashire 1141 ac. Pop. 2093.

WARUNGUL, a tn Hindoostan, Nizam's dominions, 96 m N E Hyderabad the ancient cap. of Telugana, of which little now remains but four gateways of the temple of Siva.

WARWICK a central co. England, bounded, N by Stafford, Derby and Leicester, E by Northampton, S. Oxford and Gloucester, and W by Worcester greatest length, N to S 60 m central breadth, 26 m area, 581 sq m. It has a large projection both at its S. and N. extremity, and an indentation on its W. side, but is otherwise of a compact shape. The surface, nowhere elevated, is finely diversified by gentle hills and valleys and is well watered chiefly by the Avon, flowing S. to the Severn and the Tamse, flowing N. to the Trent. A small part of the S. E. belongs to the basin of the Thames. Rocks belonging to the new red sandstone occupy the far larger part of the county, but in the N. and S. those of the olden series prevail, and a coal-field forming a long and narrow trough stretches N N W, from the vicinity of Coventry to that of Tamworth. The climate is mild and salubrious, and the soil with the exception of some cold stiff clays on the higher grounds, is very fertile, consisting chiefly of a strong red or of a sandy loam, the one well adapted for wheat and beans, and the other for barley and turnips. Much land is kept in permanent pasture, chiefly for grazing, and fine timber both in plantations and hedge-groves, is abundant. The most valuable minerals are coal, limestone, sandstone, and blue flagstone. The manufactures, both of hardware and silk goods are very important, the former having their central locality at Birmingham, which, in its peculiar departments, is almost without a rival, and the latter at Coventry which has long been famous for its ribbons. The other leading manufactures are watches, made also at Coventry, gloves, hats, linen, yarn, horn combs, fishhooks, and needles. In carrying on these manufactures and the extensive trade connected with them, the natural deficiency of river-communication has been amply compensated by canals and railways, which traverse the county in all directions, and bring it into close connection with all the great thoroughfares, towns and ports of England. Warwickshire sends 10 members to Parliament—four for the co. and two each for Warwick, Coventry, and Birmingham. P. 475,013.

WARWICK, a bor and market tn. England, cap. above co. r bank Avon 90 m N W London pleasantly situated on an eminence rising somewhat abruptly from the river. Its seven principal streets are spacious, regular, and well kept, and the houses chiefly of brick but partly of stone are generally well built. Its principal buildings and establishments are three churches, one of them elegant several dissenting chapels the townhall county jail bridewell, market-house, and the Earl of Leicester's hospital a very ancient structure endowed grammar-school national British and other schools numerous charities, several libraries, and a scientific institution. The only manufacture is hats, but the trade in cattle, corn and provisions is considerable. The principal object of interest in Warwick is its ancient and magnificent castle, situated on the S. side of the town. It encloses within its walls an area of nearly 3 ac. and the plot surrounded by the moat is upwards of 5½ ac. It is said to have been founded before the Norman conquest and it is still in perfect preservation, and the residence of the Earl of Warwick. Pop. 10,973.

WARWICK CASTLE.—From Graphic Illustrations of Warwickshire.

WARWICK par Eng Cumberland 1845 ac. P. 865. WARBY, a small protected state Hindoostan, in the N W of prov. Gujarat. It is watered by the Betmat, Pop. chiefly Jats, about 30,000. The town of its name is in lat. 23 47' N. lon. 71 29' E.

WARA a tn Russia Finland. See VARA. WARBLONKE, or WARBLONKEIT, a tn. Franco dop Bas Rhin 15 m W N W Strasbourg. It has a large manufactory of woollen hosiery, calicoes, and black soap, paper and worsted mills, bleachfield, and tanneries. Pop. 3635.

WARSH (Tze), a bay of the German Ocean on E coast, England, between co. Norfolk and Lincoln, about 25 m. long by 15 m. broad. It is much encumbered by sandbanks, but drains an area of about 6000 sq m., chiefly by the Witham Welland Nene, and Ouse.

WASHBOURNE (Dorset), par Eng Gloucester, 470 ac. Pop. 317.

WASHBROOK par Eng Suffolk 1445 ac. Pop. 514.

WASHFIELD par Eng Devon 5319 ac. Pop. 453.

WASHFORD par Eng Dorset 1140 ac. P. 192.

WASHINGBOROUGH a vil and par England, co. and 3 m. N E. 1 m. on the Witham which is here navigable. It has a large and handsome church, with a lofty tower a Wesleyan chapel and an endowed school Area of par., 5190 ac. Pop. 1180.

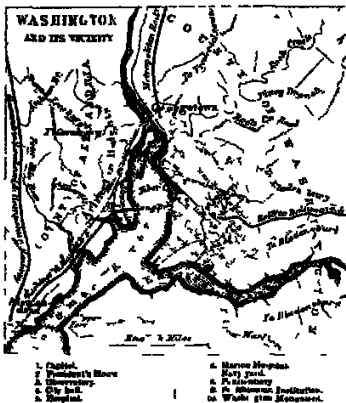

WASHINGLEY, par Eng Huntingdon, 1260 ac. P. 86.

WASHINGTON a vil and par England, co. Durham on irregular broken ground above the Wear, 5 m S E. Gateshead with a neat parish church manufactures of magnets and other chemical products, and fine stone-quarries. The family of the great Washington are said to have come from it Area of par. 5335 ac. Pop. 8455.

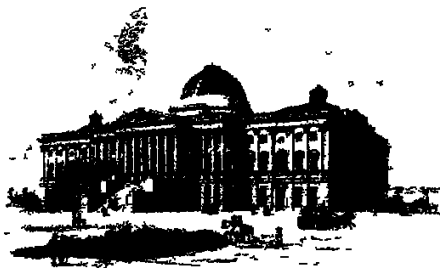

WASHINGTON par Eng Sussex, 5182 ac. Pop. 884.

WASHINGTON the cap. of the U. States of N. America, dist. Columbia, pleasantly situated on a point of land formed by the confluence of the Anacostia with the Potomac, here navigable from the Atlantic by ships of the largest class. lat. (Capital) $38^{\circ}53'24''$ N., lon. $77^{\circ}2'$ W. (a.) It occupies a site which Washington himself selected, but the original plan contemplated has been carried very partially into effect. It extends N. W. to S. E. about $4\frac{1}{2}$ m. and E. to W. about $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. and is laid out in spacious streets, which cross each other at right angles in the direction of the cardinal points. The regularity of this arrangement however is much broken by 15 large avenues from 120 ft. to 160 ft. wide which by a quaint device, bear the names, and point in the directions of the earliest states of the Union. One of the most striking features in the place is the vast quantity of ground which remains blank. Much of this is intended to be sooner or later covered with buildings but much also has been judiciously reserved for parks and other places of recreation. Among the objects deserving of special notice the first place is due to the Capitol where Congress holds its sittings. It stands conspicuously near the centre of the city in a beautiful and highly ornamented space of 22 ac., on an eminence about 70 ft. above the river in built of white freestone, and forms an imposing pile, consisting of an original centre and two wings, and considerable recent additions. A low dome covers each of these wings, while a third dome, of lesser height and greater dimensions rises magnificently from the centre, and forms the roof of the Rotunda, a splendid hall 65 ft. in diameter and 95 ft. high, adorned with bas-reliefs and paintings, and a colossal statue of Washington. The Senate-chamber with the Supreme Court beneath it, and the House of Representatives occupy the N. and S. wings respectively, and immediately W. of the Rotunda is a library of about 60,000 vols. The whole length of the building, 852 ft. exhibits a rusticated basement forming the ground story and two other stories completed in a Corinthian elevation of pilasters and columns and the main entrance is by a splendid pillared portico. The President's house, or White-house about 1 m. W. of the Capitol is a handsome edifice, ornamented in front with a beautiful Ionic portico, and behind facing the garden, with an Ionic circular colonnade on each side of it, but separated from it, are the principal government-offices. The other principal buildings and establishments are numerous churches, among which the fine Gothic Trinity church (Episcopal) stands conspicuous the general post-office, the patent-office, the city hall, the Washington and Jackson monuments, the observatory the Smithsonian Institution the Columbian college, numerous schools and seminaries, the Washington Arsenal the navy yard the national cemetery two orphan asylums, and other benevolent institutions, several theatres, assembly-rooms &c. The manufactures of Washington are unimportant, but it has a considerable trade with the surrounding country and ample means of communication with it by bridges across the Potomac and Anacostia, the Chesapeake and Ohio canal and branch-rail ways leading both N. and S. Pop. (1850), 40,001

THE CAPITOL, WASHINGTON from the West. — From Lithograph, after Augustus Kirtland

WASHINGTON a territory U. States, America, in the N. of Oregon, formed in 1853, and bounded N. by British America and the Straits of San-Juan-de-Fuca, separating it from Vancouver's Island W. the Pacific S. Oregon, from which it is partly separated by the Columbia and the Rocky Mountains, greatest length E. to W. about 600 m. breadth, about 309 m. area 120,000 sq. m. It is nearly in the form of a parallelogram, is drained by the Columbia and its tributaries and with several fertile flats and valleys, has for the most part an elevated and mountainous surface, with summits rising from 8000 ft. to 12,000 ft. and 13,000 ft. Olympia, at the head of Puget Sound, is the capital

WASHINGTON numerous places, U. States, particularly — 1 A flourishing town in Pennsylvania on the Hempfield railway 25 m. W. Pittsburgh with elegant public buildings, including a courthouse, several churches a female seminary and the Washington college, founded in 1800. Pop. 3662 — 2 A vil. N. Carolina, 1 bank Tar 127 m. E. by S. Raleigh Vessels drawing 8 ft. ascend to this village. Pop. 1400. — 3, A vil. Texas r bank Dragon 120 m. E. Austin with an academy and two female schools. It is well situated for trade as the head of the steam navigation. In 1836 the independence of Texas was proclaimed here, this place having been the capital of the republic at the time of its annexation to the U. States.

WASHINGTON or UAMPAS one of the Marquesas Is. S. Pacific lat. $8^{\circ}50'$ S., lon. $139^{\circ}33'$ W. (u) It is about 9 m. long and of striking appearance, the land rising so as to form in the middle a mountain 2450 ft. high. Towards its W. extremity, a cluster of islands and rocks forms the only bay where landing seems practicable

WASHINGTON a river U. States, N. America, rises in the Missouri Mountains, Arkansas, about lat. $34^{\circ}45'$ N. and flowing S., falls into the Red River 40 m. E. Alexandria, after a course of 400 m. It receives the Tenness, Saline, and Bartholemey from the N. E., and the Catahoula and some smaller streams from the W. and N. W.

WASIL, a tn. Russia, gov. and 53 m. E. Nijnei-Novgorod, at the foot of a hill, r. bank Volga, at the confluence of the Sura, with wooden houses, a church and a trade in corn and fruit. Pop. 1400.

WASING, var Eng. Hants 68 m. Pop. 58

WASHEB, a vil. and some Belgians, prov. Hainaut, 6 m. W. Mons, with rich coal mines, employing many of the inhabitants two chalk-quarries, a forge, tannery, three breweries, and three flour-mills. Pop. 6084

WASMES-ANDEMETZ-BRUFFOEL, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Hainaut, 7 m. E.S.E. Tournai with a brewery, a flour-mill, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1080.

WASPINGTON par Eng Warwick, 1619 aa. P 292
WASPEIK, a vil. Holland, prov. N. Brabant, 14 m. W. Mergesbosch with some good houses, and two churches inhabitants engaged in horse and cattle rearing and in hay-culture. Pop. 1667.

WASSEIGES, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 20 m. W. Liège on the Meuse with two breweries, a tannery, a flour-mill and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1020.

WASSENARE, a vil. Holland, prov. S. Holland, 5 m. W. Leyden, and 3 m. from the North Sea, from which it is separated by sand-dunes. It has two churches, and two schools. Pop. (agricultural) 1923.

WASSERBURG a tn. Upper Bavaria, 1 bank Inn here crossed by a bridge, 80 m. E.S.E. Munich. It is walled and has five churches a castle townhouse, hospital, infirmary house of correction, a municipal spring, with bath and a trade in fruit, hemp and hops. Pop. 2383.

WASSERLEBEN a vil. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 12 m. W.E.W. Magdeburg on the Elbe with a church and oil and other mills. Pop. 1150.

WASSUTAH a strong hill fortress Hindoestan, prov. Rajpoot near the W. Ghats, 50 m. S.S.W. Satara, at the end of a narrow valley on a rocky height, two sides of which present precipices from 2000 ft. to 3000 ft. high. The adjacent scenery is of the grandest description.

WAST a lake, England co. Cumberland, in the West-Dele, at the foot of Skelth. It is about 5 m. long by not more than $\frac{1}{2}$ m. broad and discharges itself into the Atlantic by the Irk.

WASUNGEN a tn. Saxo-Muningen, r. bank Warra, at the confluence of the Katzwasser 5 m. N.N.W. Muningen with two churches, a school and an hospital two mills, and a trade in tobacco. Pop. 2497.

WATGHEM a seaport and market in England on Somerset, 15 m. N.W. Taunton on an acclivity near the Bristol Channel with a fine ancient parish church, about $\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the town. A Baptist and a Methodist chapel, several private schools, a considerable coasting trade, building yards, an iron foundry and paper-mill. A sea wall of great strength, forming an esplanade of 600 ft., has been built here.

WATEE an isl. Pacific Ocean one of the Harvey group lat. 19° 68' S. lon 158° 6' W., 8 m. long by about 5 m. broad. It is hilly but fertile.

WATER-NEWTON par Eng Hunts 853 aa. Pop. 193.

WATER-SMARTFORD par Eng Bucks 1095 aa. P. 173.

WATERBACH par Eng Lancashire 555 aa. P. 1440.

WATERBURY a city U. States, Connecticut, on the New-Haven railroad, 28 m. S.W. Hartford. It is remarkably neat, has a fine central square, seven churches some of which are very elegant, a commodious high school and several other educational institutions, a young men's institute and several benevolent societies rolling mills for brass and copper and manufactures of machinery, metal buttons, daguerotypes, pianos, bottles, pen umbrellas, india-rubber pocket-cutlery, porcelain, &c. Pop. 10700.

WATERDEN par Eng. Norfolk, 768 aa. Pop. 39.

WATERDOWN, a vil. and township Canada West Gore district, on a small stream 22 m. S.W. Toronto. It has a woollen factory a tannery, and several saw and flour mills, and in the immediate vicinity are fine quarries of freestone. Pop. about 600.

WATERER, a river, U. States. See CATAWBA.

WATERFALL, par Eng Stafford 1520 aa. Pop. 521.

WATERFORD, a co. Ireland, prov. Munster, bounded N. by Tipperary and Kilkenny, being separated from the greater part of the one and the whole of the other by the Suir, a W. watered, from which it is separated by Waterford Harbour, a W. Cork, and S. the Atlantic length E. to W. 50 m., greatest breadth N. to S., 37 m.; area, 712 sq. m. The coast is in general bold and rocky, but besides the harbours of Waterford and Youghal at its E. and W. extremities respectively, has the deep indentations of Dungarvan Harbour and Tremore Bay. The interior is very rugged and mountainous, being covered by the Comeragh range which in Monaleague rises to 2595 ft., and in Knockmoleadown to 2700 ft. The strata of the latter heights are composed chiefly of slate, Vol. 11 overlain occasionally by rocks of the old red sandstone formation. In the valleys the prevailing rock is carboniferous limestone. The minerals include copper, partially worked; lead and iron, once worked but now abandoned; potter's clay and marble. The principal rivers are the Suir, navigable to Waterford by large and to Carrick-on-Suir by small vessels and the Blackwater by which vessels of 100 tons ascend to the junction of the Suir, and 70 tons to Cappagony. The climate is moist, and the surface partly covered with bog is much better adapted to pasture than agriculture. The principal corn crops are wheat and oats, but the dairy is the most important branch of rural economy and furnishes a large export of butter. The only other large export is haxons. The fisheries on the coast employ about 1500 men and boys. Waterford sends five members to Parliament—two for the county, two for Waterford city and one for Dungarvan. Pop. 158 874.

WATERFORD a city port and seaport, Ireland, cap. above co. 97 m. S.S.W. Dublin, with which it is connected by railway r. bank Suir here crossed by a wooden bridge 833 ft. long opening in one place to allow vessels to pass, and communicating with the suburb of Ferrybank. It stretches along the Suir for about 1 m. contains

| | | |
|----------------------------|------------------|--------------------|
| 1. Cathedral | 2. N. Waterford | 11. Upper Hospital |
| 2. Church | 3. N. Waterford | 12. N. Waterford |
| 3. St. Catherine's Church | 4. N. Waterford | 13. N. Waterford |
| 4. Leinster House and Jail | 5. N. Waterford | 14. N. Waterford |
| 5. Waterford | 6. N. Waterford | 15. N. Waterford |
| 6. Waterford | 7. N. Waterford | 16. N. Waterford |
| 7. Waterford | 8. N. Waterford | 17. N. Waterford |
| 8. Waterford | 9. N. Waterford | 18. N. Waterford |
| 9. Waterford | 10. N. Waterford | 19. N. Waterford |
| 10. Waterford | 11. N. Waterford | 20. N. Waterford |

in the more modern parts of wide and airy streets, and well built houses but in the older quarters, of irregular and narrow streets, ill-arranged dilapidated houses, occupied by the poorest classes. The principal objects of note are two parish churches, a R. Catholic cathedral five other R. Catholic and several Protestant dissenting chapels a blue-coat and other educational schools, a court-house exchange custom house theatre, assembly room barracks, jail, several hospitals and charitable institutions the Waterford institution with a library and museum, and library, scientific, agricultural and horticultural societies. The quay of Waterford, by far the finest in Ireland, extends 1200 yards along the river, with a general width of 40 yards and has sufficient depth of water to allow vessels of 800 tons burden to discharge their cargoes. The exports chiefly to England, are bacon, pork, butter, grain, flour, meal, cattle, sheep, and pigs. In 1861 there entered 1059 sailing vessels, tonnage, 110,556 and cleared 737 vessels tonnage, 80,282. The same year there entered 340 steamers, tonnage, 59,775, and cleared 282 tonnage, 68,818. The manufacture of glass, once celebrated is now very limited but there are brewing, yeast, starch and blue works distilleries, and breweries. Waterford sends two members to Parliament P. 25, 397.

WATERFORD, a vil. U. States, New York, 10 m. N. Albany r. bank Hudson, and on the Champlain canal and Saratoga railway, with four churches, an academy a female seminary, and manufacture of cotton goods, and several spinning mills. Pop. 2000.

WATERFORD, a tn. Canada West, co. Norfolk, 7 m. from Sumner with two Protestant churches, two schools, manufacture of cloth iron, and leather several grist and saw mills and a distillery. Pop. about 750.

WATERGRASSVILLE, a vil. Ireland co. and 9 m. N N E Cork of which it is said to occupy the highest point. It has a parish church, R. Catholic chapel two schools, and police barracks. Pop. 651.

WATERHALL, a vil. and town England, co. Lancaster, on the road from Manchester to Huddersfield 3 m. E. by h. Oldham. The village, which is a large and important place, has grown up within the last 20 years the parish church is a beautiful structure and there is also an Independent chapel. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the quarries, coal mines, and cotton manufacture. Pop. 3818.

WATFORD a vil. and par. England co. Kent, on the Medway and the Maidstone branch of the South Eastern railway with a very ancient church with a square and a trade in fruit, extensively raised for the London market. Area of par. 1420 ac. Pop. 1448.

WATFORDING, a vil. Holland, prov. S. Holland, 12 m. N W Rotterdam. It is a well built place and has two churches a school and some almshouses. a boat building yard, and corn and saw mills. Inhabitants engaged in gardening, agriculture, and cattle-rearing. Pop. 1260.

WATFORD, a vil. and town Belgium prov. Brabant, on the road from Brussels to Namur as it issues from the forest of Solde 10 m. S. Brussels. It has a church in the form of a rotunda, which is rather handsome but the celebrity of the place whose name has become familiar as a house of war throughout Europe, is owing to the great battle fought in its vicinity June 19, 1815 when the allied army composed of 54,000 men, of whom 32,000 were British or of the German legion, commanded by the Duke of Wellington, signally defeated the French army of nearly 75,000 men commanded by Napoleon in person. The inhabitants of Watford are chiefly employed in agriculture and in brewing and in the neighbouring forest. There are also manufactures of beet root sugar and chemical products. On the field with a beautiful cornhouse, arc. church, an academy, an extensive woollen factory, various mills and manufactures of soap and candles, carriages, machinery, boats, and leather. Pop. 3500.

WATERMAEL-DOORWAERT, a vil. and town Belgium prov. Brabant, near the forest of Volme, about 4 m. S.E. Brussels. Pop. (agricultural) 8825.

WATERPERRY, par. Eng. Oxford, 2020 ac. P. 258.

WATERUPPER, par. Eng. Salop 783 ac. Pop. 202.

WATERVOGEL, par. Eng. Oxford 658 ac. Pop. 141.

WATERTOWN several places, U States — 1, a hor. New York 1 bank Black River on the Rome and Watertown railroad 140 m. W N W Albany with a cornhouse, glass-arsenal, numerous churches, and academies and extensive manufactures of woollens cottons, paper, flour, machinery &c. Pop. 7801 — 2, a city Wisconsin, 40 m. E. by N Madison on the Rock River and on the Fond-du-Lac and Rock River railroad, with several churches and schools, saw mills, iron-foundry, and manufactures of agricultural implements, wag. gone, &c. Pop. 4000.

WATERYVILLE, a vil. U States, Maine, 18 m. N by E Augusta, on bank Kennebec, between Falls; with four churches, a Baptist college, an academy, grain, plaster saw and carding mills and manufactures of machinery, agricultural implements, &c. Pop. 3265.

WATERYVILLE, a vil. and town Belgium, prov. E Flanders, on the frontier of Holland 16 m. N Ghent, with manufactures of wooden pumps, a tannery, a brewery, a brick work, and three mills. Pop. 1831.

WATFORD a market to and par. England, co. Hertford 15 m. N W London on the London and North Western railway. It consists of one street, about 1 m. long and has a church with a tower two Dissenting chapels, two free schools, almshouses, manufactures of straw-plait, three silk mills, several malt-houses, and two large breweries. Area of par. 10,792 ac. Pop. 6546.

WATFORD, par. Eng. Northampton 5060 ac. P. 603.

WATH, par. Eng. York, 3568 ac. Pop. 747.

WATH UPON DRAKE, a vil. and par. England, co. York, 11 m. N N E Sheffield on an railway near the Dearne and Dove canal and on the Midland railway with numerous well built houses and handsome shops. Area of par. 10,708 ac. Pop. 9521.

WATINGS ISLAND, an isl. British W Indies one of the Bahamas, lat. (S and) 28° 56' 42" N; lon. 74° 28' W (a.) 180 m. S.E. New Providence, and 18 m. long, by 3 m. broad.

WATLINGTON a market to and par. England, co. and 15 m. S.E. Oxford with narrow streets, mean houses, a very ancient parish church, three Dissenting chapels, several free schools an ancient and substantial townhall, and manufactures of pillow thread &c. Area of par. 2440 ac. Pop. 1884.

WATLINGTON, par. Eng. Norfolk 1709 ac. Pop. 577.

WATOU, a vil. and town Belgium, prov. W Flanders, 35 m. S.W. Bruges with a church, chapel, townhouse, two schools, four breweries, a tannery, six flour mills, several tobacco-factories, and a trade in horses and horned cattle. Pop. 3775.

WATTEY, par. Scot. Caithness, 14 m. by 11 m. P. 1851.

WATTENHEIM, a vil. Bavaria, Falcenstein, on a road 9 m. S.E. Grimsstadt with a church, and manufactures of arms and tobacco-pipes, a foundry, and mill. Pop. 1215.

WATTENSCHMIDT, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, 40 m. W N W Arnsberg, with three churches, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1027.

WATTENWEIL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, can. and 12 m. S.E. Bern with a church, and an old chateau, used as a paragon. Pop. 1916.

WATTIGNIES, a vil. France, dep. Nord, 5 m. S.W. Lille. Pop. 1550.

WATTFIELD, par. Eng. Suffolk, 1617 ac. P. 663.

WATTISHAM, par. Eng. Suffolk, 1296 ac. Pop. 230.

WATTON, a market to, and par. England, co. Norfolk, 21 m. W by N Norwich. It has a church, with a cloister of battle an artificial mound 425 ft. in diameter at its base, and about 150 ft. high, and surmounted by a colossal Belgio lion of cast iron has been raised from which the best view of the scene of the action is obtained. On either side of the road to Genappe and not far from the mound referred to, two other monuments have been erected—one a pillar to the memory of Col. Gordon, and the other an obelisk in honour of the Hanoverian officers of the German legion, who fell on the spot. Pop. 3756.

WATFORD, a vil. and town Belgium prov. Brabant, on the road from Brussels to Namur as it issues from the forest of Solde 10 m. S. Brussels.

WATTLING, a vil. England co. Lancaster on the coast, at the mouth of the Mersey, 6 m. N W Liverpool. It has several ranges of well-built houses and hotels, and is much frequented by the natives of Liverpool for sea-bathing. P. 750.

WATTELON, a vil. U States, New York, at the outlet of Seneca Lake, on the Cayuga and Seneca canal and the Auburn and Rochester railway 163 m. W by N Albany tower and spire, three Dissenting chapels, a transit trade, a brewery and malt-kiln. Area of par., 1807 ac. Pop. 1863

WATTON, par Eng. Hertford, 3469 ac. Pop. 978.

WATTON, par Eng. York, 3720 ac. Pop. 315.

WATTHELOE, a tn. France, dep Nord, 9 m. S.W. E. N. E. Lille, with an hospital, manufactures of cotton stuffs, brown serice, cotton and of mills. Pop. 3070.

WATTHELL, a vil. and par. Switzerland, and 16 m. S.W. St. Gall. It bank Thur, at the foot of the Hencen berg; with a church for both Protestants and R. Catholics, several good schools; and manufactures of cotton goods and other wares. Pop. 4541.

WAUKESHA (formerly PRAINSVILLE), a flourishing vil. U. States, Wisconsin, on the Pishlake or Fox, and on the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad, with a courthouse, jail, six churches, an academy and some manufactures. P. 4000.

WAUREKAURI or WAKE-KAURI the largest of the Chatham Islands (see that art).

WAUTHIER-BRATIS, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on the Dyle, 12 m. S. Brussels with manufactures of paper, a brewery, a cotton and a flour mill. Pop. 1219.

WAVENDON, par Eng. Bucks, 2635 ac. Pop. 935.

WAVENEY, a river England, rises in a swampy tract on the N. frontiers of Suffolk, near the source of the Little Ouse; flows circuitously E.N.E. between Suffolk and Norfolk, and joins a bank Yare about 5 m. above Yarmouth. It is navigable to Bangay.

WAVERTON, par Eng. Chester, 4097 ac. Pop. 788.

WAVE, a tn. Belgium prov. Brabant, on the Dyle, 15 m. S.E. Brussels with a handsome parish church, a com. normal college, seminary several schools, a mutual society; manufactures of beer, gun, leather, oil, salt, soap and a trade in corn, cattle, and tobacco. A sanguinary combat was fought here the day before the battle of Waterloo, between a Prussian corps under Thielmann, and a French division under Grouchy. Pop. 5204.

WAVE-SOETS DAM, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. and 13 m. S.E. Antwerp with two breweries, a flour-mill and a trade in oats. Pop. 3172.

WAVE-SH-LATKEMER, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. and 12 m. S.E. Antwerp with two breweries, two flour mills, and two oil presses, vinegar-works, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 3174.

WAVIN, a tn. France, dep. Nord, 7 m. S.W. Lille, on the Deule. Pop. 1763.

WAWRZENYCE, a market in Russian Poland, woiwood Cracow, obvod and near Suchowin, on the Wislata with a church and an old cloister. Pop. about 1200.

WAXHAM, par Eng. Norfolk, 2087 ac. Pop. 76.

WAXHOLM or VAXHOLM, a tn. Sweden, län and 12 m. E.N.E. Stockholm, on a lake in the channel thence to the Baltic, with a church, and the strong fortress of Waxholm which completely commands the passage. Pop. 862.

WAXWAY, an isl. Indian Archipelago, off W. coast, Isl. Celebes, about 17 m. long and of considerable height, lat. (E. par.) 3° 53' S. lon. 123° 17' E. (a.)

WAY IIA two rivers, Indian Archipelago. See IIA.

WAY (Pile) — 1 The largest of the Acheen isls. 12 m. off N.W. coast, Sumatra, about 12 m. long, lat. (S. par.) 6° 46' N. lon. 50° 30' E. (a.) — 2, A small isl. Gulf of Siam lat. 9° 56' N. lon. 103° 48' E. (a.) — 3, An isl. Indian Archipelago. (See AT.)

WAYFORD, par Eng. Somerset, 1818 ac. Pop. 238.

WAYGROU, an isl. Indian Archipelago. See WAIGROU.

WAYNEBURG, a tn. U. States, Pennsylvania, 45 m. N.W. of Harrisburg, with a handsome courthouse, six churches, a seminary and a college. Pop. 1200.

WAZZIORA, a tn. Prussia. See HERRNSTADT.

WAZEMMES, a tn. France dep Nord properly a suburb of Lille with manufactures of starch glue, vinegar, white-lead, animal-charcoal waxcloth, table-linen, and pipes. Pop. 10,818.

WEALD-BAMERT (North), par Eng. Essex, 3377 ac. Pop. 848.

WEALD (South), par Eng. Essex, 5037 ac. P. 3599. WEALD (The) extensive low-lying tract in the S.E. of England, occupying parts of Kent, Sussex, and Surrey its limits are not very exactly defined but it is generally understood to stretch W. from Romney Marsh to Putworth a distance of about 65 m., with a breadth varying from 8 m. to 15 m., and to have an area of nearly 1000 sq. m. The South Downs bound it on the S., and the chalk-hills of Kent and Surrey on the N. The soil consists for the most part of a stiff heavy clay well adapted for wheat, and particularly favourable to the growth of the oak which is still very abundant and appears at one time to have covered the whole country, giving it the name, which in Saxon means well forested or close. Geologically it consists of middle secondary strata of fresh water origin, and has given its name to what is called the Wealden formation, consisting of Wealden clay Hastings sands, and Purbeck beds, resting on oolite, and overlaid by the lower green sand.

WEAR a river England co. Durham, rises in the W. angle of the county flows E. to Harlow-Auckland, then N.E., nearly encircling the city of Durham and at Sunderland falls into the North Sea tidal course, about 70 m.

WEAR-GROUPOU, par Eng. Devon, 1937 ac. Pop. 551.

WEAR, par Eng. Somerset, 2140 ac. Pop. 715.

WEARWOL III (BRANDOR and MORRIS) See BRANDOR.

WEASENHAM two pars. Eng. Norfolk — 1, (2d. Sancte), 1938 ac. P. 263 — 2, (St. Peter) 1423 ac. P. 376.

WEAVER a river England rises near the frontiers of Salop and Cheshire flows N.W. past Nantwich and Northwich and falls into the S. estuary of the Mersey a little below Frodham. It has been rendered navigable to Westford Bridge, a distance of about 53 m. The whole course is about 85 m. Almost all the valuable salt mines and pits of the shire are in the valley of the Weaver.

WEAVERHAM, par Eng. Chester, 7634 ac. P. 2745.

WEAVERTHORPE, par Eng. York, 5100 ac. P. 1068.

WECHSELBURG a tn. Saxony circle and 30 m. from Leipzig, on the Mulde with a castle and a mill. Pop. 1192.

WECKELSDORF (ONNA and UNTER) two nearly con-terminous vils. Bohemia, circle Königgrätz, on the Mettau with a parish church a chapel, and a bleachfield, silk-works saw and other mills. Pop. 1894.

WECKERSDORF or SKRINNA, a vil. Bohemia, circle Königgrätz dist. and 4 m. from Brannau with the works and mills. 1 op. 1435.

WEDDINGEN (ALTEN) a vil. Prussian Saxony, gov. and 12 m. S.W. Magdeburg with a parish church glass-works and seams of lignite. Pop. 1800.

WEDDINGTON, par Eng. Essex, 1037 ac. P. 164.

WEDDEL a vil. Denmark, Holsten on the Weideler a little above its mouth in the Fibe, 19 m. N.W. Altona. In the market-place is a column erected in memory of Rulerd. Pop. 1800.

WELMURE, a vil. and par. England co. Somerset, 8 m. W. by N. Wells. It has a cruciform church with a massive tower Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, and quarries of building-stone. Area 2986 ac. 1 op. 3005.

WELLSHUBLY a market tn. and par. England, co. and 10 m. S.E. Stafford with a Gothic parish church on the summit of a hill at the N. extremity of the town; two new churches, several Dissenting chapels, a mechanics institute, a benevolent society an almshouse and several schools. The principal manufactures are railway-carriages, patent axle-trees, and general iron-work for railways tubing for gas, water and steam pipes gun locks and barrels, springs for coaches, hinges nails screws, and wrought-iron work of every description. Area of par. 2175 ac. 1 op. 14281.

WELDON or WEDON a vil. and township, England co. Bedford, par and 2 m. S.E. Woburnhampton, on the Easington and Wryley canal, and the London and North-Western railway with a chapel of ease, Wesleyan and Wesleyan Methodist chapels manufactures in iron, collieries and iron mines in a battle fought here in 911, between Edward the Elder and the Danes, the latter were defeated, and two of their kings and nine other chiefs were slain. Pop. 4508.

WELDON or WEDON Bec a vil. and par. England, co. Northampton near the source of the River and on the London and North-Western railway 4 m. S.E. Daventry with a modern parish church Wesleyan and Independent chapels, an endowed school and a magnificent military depot, with workshops, barracks, and hospital attached. Area of par. 1710 ac. Pop. 1936.

WELDON LOTS, par Eng. Northamp. 1050 ac. P. 543.

WELFORD, par Eng. Bedford, 4566 ac. 1 op. 425.

WEEK (St Mary) par Eng Cornwall, 5894aa. P 641
WEEK par Eng Hants 1060a. P. 448
WEEKLEY par Eng. Northampton, 1800 aa. P 265.
WEEKER par Eng. Essex 3090 ac. P. 778.
WELDEN, a vil and town Belgium, prov and 30 m N. L. Antwerp, on the Aa with a brewery and several other mills and a trade in cattle and agricultural produce. Pop. 1174.

WELLEY par Eng. Essex 2067 ac. P. 617
WELM par Belg. Fland. P. 740
WELMAM, a vil. Netherlands. See Veldman.
WELMDE a vil. Hanover, gov. Hildesheim, near Göttingen, on the Lerne with a parish church, and manufactures of cloth and tobacco, and a paper-mill. Pop. 1110

WELNER, a vil. Hanover, gov and 21 m. S.S.W. Aurich, 1 bank Emmer with a Protestant and a N. Catholic church, 1000 yards, some shipping, tile-works, saw-mills, and a trade in horses. Pop. 3800
WELSBURG a vil. Austria, Tyrol circle and near Schwaz with a church. Pop. 1024

WELT a town Holland, prov. Limburg 27 m. N by W. Maastricht. It was formerly fortified and had five gates, of which only one now is in existence. It has a church and several chapels, a neat townhouse an academy and several ordinary schools, and a school for the poor a brewery a distillery a soap-work a salt-work four tanneries, and three dye-works, &c. and flax horse, and other markets. 1281
WELT a. to Holland prov N. Holland 7 m. S. E. Amsterdam separated into two parts by an arm of the Vecht. It is well built has one of the finest townships in Holland four churches and a synagogue numerous schools, and several benevolent institutions a boat building yard, calico print-work, and several other minor branches of manufactures and a considerable transit trade. P. 275

WFFTHILL par Eng. Warwick 638 ac. P. 49.
WELING (ALL SAINTS) par Eng. Norfolk 6187 ac. Pop. 429

WELRINGEN a market in. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov and 28 m. N.W. Magdeburg on the Aller with a N. Catholic church tile works and a trade in cattle. P. 1737

WELSELLEN a. in Prussia, prov. Saxony gov and 29 m. N.W. the Goldbach with a parish church castle, hospital tile-works, oil and other mills. P. 2672

WELTROW a. in Russian Poland, walled Poltschna not far from Stetlin with a Protestant and two E. Catholic churches, and manufactures of linen &c. Pop. 1600.

WEGSTADT EL, or ENER a. in Bohemia, circle and 24 m. W. Bauslau r bank Elbe with a church, a poorhouse, townhouse, and manufactures of honey. Pop. 1042

WEDDEM a vil. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov and 21 m. N.W. Minden with a parish church, and a trade in wool. Pop. 1410.

WEDD a vil. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov Minden with a parish church. Pop. 705

WEHINGEN a vil. Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, S.W. Tübingen with a church and refined castle. P. 1230

WEHLAU a. in Prussia, prov. L. Prussia gov and 29 m. E. Königsberg at the confluence of the Alle with the Pregel here crossed by a long bridge. It has walls with two gates a parish church court-house, mills, tile works, tanneries and a trade in corn and linen. A treaty of peace made here in 1657 secured the independence of Prussia. Pop. 2960

WEIL —1 a. market in Baden circle Upper Rhine, bad. badenagen, 27 m. S. & 8 rothberg with an iron-mill. Pop. 1517 —2 a vil. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov Münster, circle Altmue. Pop. 1000 WEILHEIM a vil. Nassau, 11 m. N. Frankfurt-on-the-Main with two churches and an old convent. Pop. 1429.

WEIHSCH a vil. Saxony circle and not far from Bautzen with saw and other mills. Pop. 1539

WEILHOUT or HOETZHOUS a vil. China, prov. Yuen bok, 140 m. S. Nankin. It has manufactures of China ink and various.

WEILHUT L. a river Europe. See VELLA
WEIKERSHEIM a. to Württemberg, circle Jast, bad. Mergentheim with a church synagogue court-house, Latin school old castle, and a trade in corn and wool. P. 1923

WEIDA a. in Saxony-Wormer at the confluence of the Weida with the Aue 32 m. S.W. E. Weimar with a courthouse an hospital, borough-school, and the old estate of Osterburg seated on a height, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and earthenware dye-works, tile-works, and several mills. Pop. 3765.

WEIDEN a. in Bavaria, Upper Palatinate, on the Wald-sab, 6 m. S.E. Regensburg. It has four churches, a castle, town-house, and Latin school manufactures of serge and satinet, dye-works, and a trade in corn, wax, and cattle. Pop. 3280.

WEIDENAU, a. in Austria, Moravia, circle and 45 m. N.W. Troppau. It is walled; has a church an hospital, manufactures of needles, and a mill. Pop. 1802.

WEIDENBURG a market in Bavaria, Upper Franconia, on the Steinach, 6 m. E. Bamberg, with two churches and a castle. Pop. 1384.

WEIDENTHAL, a vil. Bavaria, Palatinate, on Neu stadt, with a church and a mill. Pop. 1028

WEIGELSDORF several places, Prussia, particularly a vil. prov. Silesia, gov. Breslau, circle Reichenbach with a church, a castle, a saw and two flour mills. Pop. 1217

WEIGHION (MAURY) a market in and par. England, co. and 19 m. S.E. York, at the W. foot of the Wolds. It has an ancient church with a square tower three Dissenting chapels, and a national school. Area of par, 7345 ac. P. 2457

WEIL, or WEL, several places, Switzerland.—1 a. in and par. can. and 15 m. W.S.W. St. Gall, in a fertile wine-district, with a number of handsome buildings a church, monastery, and numerous manufactures of linen and cotton goods, and some transit trade. Pop. 1098 —2 (or Solothurn) A vil. and par. can. and 10 m. E.-E. Bern famous for its castle, which is seated on a height, and has a very ancient tower supposed to be of Roman construction. Pop. 898.

WEIL, a vil. Baden circle Upper Rhine, bad. Lörrach, with a parish church. 1 up 1137

WEIL, several places, Württemberg, circle Neckar —1, (the Stadt, or Waltersdorf) A. to on the Wurm. It is walled, was once an imperial free town and has four churches a Latin school, an hospital manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, tanneries, dye works, and a trade in fruit. Pop. 1775

—2 (in Dorf) A vil., 8 m. from Leimbach with a church, a parish church. Pop. 2234

WEILAR, a vil. Nassau, circle Elsenach on the Felda with a church a paper, saw and other mills. P. 1155.

WEILBAUM a watering-place, Nassau, S.E.E. Wiesbaden with a church and a mineral-spring from which about 70 000 bottles of water are annually exported. Pop. 561

WEILBURG a. to Nassau on the Lahn, here crossed by a chain-bridge among some of the finest scenery of N. Germany 28 m. N.W. Wetzlar. It has a castle on a rock above the river two churches in one of which the dukes of Nassau are buried a gymnasium, an orphan hospital many factories of linen and earthenware, and paper, gypsum, and other mills. Pop. 2476.

WEILB or VELLE, a. in Danubius prov. h. Jülich at the point where the Weils and the Gremmelen unite, and fall into the Weils-ford, 41 m. S.W. Aachen. It is a pretty and cheerful looking town finely situated in a deep valley surrounded by woody hills with a fine sheet of water exposed to frost, and has a church, supposed to date from the time of Canute the Great, and containing in one of its vaults a female body found preserved in a neighbouring bog, and believed to be that of Guineid the Norwegian queen who was murdered here in the 10th century by Harold Blaat and the Danish king. The harbour is small and very shallow. About 2½ m. from the town is the chateau of Kanglehulm, a Gothic pile, with four towers and tapering spires built by the brother and after the design of the celebrated astronomer Tycho Brahe. P. 8000

WEILERBACH a vil. Bavaria, Palatinate can. and near Kaiserslautern with a church and a mill. Pop. 1268

WEILHEIM —1 A walled to Upper Bavaria, near r bank Amper 24 m. S.W. Munich. It has five churches, a castle, townhouse, military, manufactures of satinet and potash, a tannery, brewery numerous mills, and a marble-quarry. Pop. 1840.—2, a. to Württemberg circle Durlach, on the Ludach, at the foot of the Lemberg; with a fine old church, a ruined castle, and manufactures of linen and cotton goods. Pop. 2480

WEILMÜNSTER, a vil. Nassau, bad. and 5 m. S. K. Weilburg on the Weil, an affluent of the Lahn; with a church, manufactures of the earthenware, linens, slate and marble quarries, and three mills. Pop. 1124.

WEIMAR (Latin Veneria), the cap city of the grand duchy of Saxe-Weimar, 1. bank Elm, here crossed by two bridges, and on the Thüringen railway, 18 m W Erfurt. It stands in a beautiful valley surrounded by hills, on ground partly hilly and partly flat, and though no longer walled, is entered by six gates, and defended by several forts. It is not well built, and notwithstanding the presence of the court, has a dull and lifeless appearance. Its public edifices most deserving notice are the ducal palace, a handsome structure seated on a height; the Stadtkirche, or town church, with two towers, a good organ, an altar piece, one of the finest works of Lucas Cranach, in which he has introduced portraits of himself and Luther and Melancthon; the graves of 44 members of the ducal family and a bronze statue of Herder who is also buried here the St. Jacob's or garrison church, in which Cranach and the poet Musäus are buried the Bibliothek, townhouse library of 140,000 vols. museum, gymnasium, theatre, normal and other schools, the blind asylum, deaf and dumb institution, the houses of Goethe and Schiller, infirmary several hospitals, and other benevolent institutions. Weimar has neither trade nor manufactures of any consequence, but, as the capital of the duchy, is the seat of the legislature, and of all the more important courts and public offices, and has long occupied a much more conspicuous rank in Germany than its political importance could have secured in consequence of the enlightened patronage which the Duke Charles Frederic (died 1853) afforded to distinguished literary characters, thus associating the town with the names of Schiller, Goethe, Herder and Wieland, the first two of whom are buried here, and entitling it to be regarded in respect of literary distinction as the German Athens. It is also the birthplace of Kotzebue. P 11 444

WEINFELDEN a vil. and par Switzerland, can. Thur gau r bank Thur here crossed by a handsome bridge 10 m K.N.E. Frauenfeld. It is well built and has a large church, a townhouse, in which the grand council meets every second year and a considerable transit trade. Pop. 2146

WEINGARTEN—1 A vil Baden circle Middle Rhine 19 m N.W. Karlsruhe with two churches. Pop. 5037.—2 A vil Bavaria, Palatinate circle Gernersheim, with a Protestant church. Pop. 1136

WEINHEIM a Baden circle Lower Rhine, on the Waschnitz, and on the Frankfurt railway, 10 m. N.E. Mannheim. It has turreted walls with four gates, three churches, a synagogue and an old castle. The environs are covered with orchards and vineyards in which among other wines, the Heibberger the best of the Bergstrasse, is grown. Pop. 5548

WEINSTEIN a ta. Württemberg, circle Recker 37 m N.N.E. Stuttgart with a handsome church, a Latin and a superior general school two mills, and a trade in wine. In the vicinity is the ruined castle of Weibersheim [woman's fidelity] said to be so called because the women who were in it during a siege, having been allowed, by the capitulation to depart with their most valuable property, walked out, each carrying a husband father, or other friend on her back. Pop. 1675.

WEIPERSDORF or WEIPERSDORF a vil Bohemia about 28 m from Lautemischel. It is a long, straggling place, with a church a school, a flour and a saw mill. Pop. 1990

WEIPERT a village in Bohemia, circle Elbogen on a gentle slope above the Pöchlitz with a church, manufactures of firearms, linen and lace, and several mills. Pop. 8074.

WEISENBACH a ta. Saxony, a vil Bavaria, Palatinate, can. Dürkheim with a Protestant church and a trade in asparagus, fruit and wine. Pop. 1760

WEISSBACH—1, A vil Bohemia, circle Buzlau, with a chapel a saw and three flour mills. Pop. 1550.—2 (for Ober-Weissbach) A vil Schwarzburg-Rudolstadt, bail Rudolstadt with a church and chapel. Pop. 1718

WEISSBAD, a vil and watering-place, Switzerland, can. and 3 m S.E. Appenzel. The bathing establishment, built of wood, but very complete, in a beautiful and sequestered spot, attracts numerous visitors

WEISSENBURG a vil Switzerland, can. and 19 m S.E. Bern, in a mountain-ravine, on the Summe, celebrated for its thermal-springs, which rise in a chasm traversed by a rocky torrent, and are conveyed by pipes to the bathing establishment about $\frac{1}{2}$ m. below. The water, which is sulphureous, has a temperature of 81 & 8 Fah.

WEISSENBURG, a ta. Bavaria, Middle Franconia, in a fertile district, on the Swabian Rhine. It has walls with towers, and four gates; two churches a nursery, Latin school, and ruined castle; manufactures of woollen cloth, needles, lace, articles in gold and silver, &c., and a trade in cattle. Pop. 4194

WEISSENBURG (Oden and Urten), two coes. Austria, Transylvania. Ober-Weissenburg in the S.E. of the country consists of a great number of irregularly shaped and isolated portions of land included by the territories of the Saxons and Szeklers. It is watered chiefly by the Aluta, and contains a good deal of fertile soil. Unter-Weissenburg situated in the S.W. of the country is bounded, N by coes. Thorenburg and Klunenburg, W Hungary B Szardul Hunyad, and the land of the Saxons; and E Kokenburg. It is watered chiefly by the Maros.

WEISSENFELD, a walled ta. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov and 11 m S. Merseburg r bank Saale, here crossed by a long bridge. It is tolerably well built has two churches, in one of which lie the remains of Gustavus Adolphus king of Sweden a courthouse, a R. Catholic chapel, an old castle converted into barracks, a normal school, post-office, and two hospitals manufactures of merino, leather porcelain, tobacco, and articles in gold and silver several worsted mills a fishery, and a trade in corn. Pop. (1852) 9320 WEISSEHORN, a ta. Bavaria circle Swabia, on the Roth, 55 m W Augsburg with three churches, a castle Latin school, infirmary hospital manufactures of linen and a trade in horses and cattle. Pop. 1605.

WEISSENSEE, a ta. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov and 16 m N. Erfurt on the Elbe with two churches, a courthouse and two mills. Pop. 2724

WEISSENSTADT a ta. Bavaria, Upper Franconia, in a weak district, on the Egge, with two churches, manufactures of nails, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1498.

WEISSENTHAL or WISLA a vil Bohemia circle Klattau with a church a castle, a distillery and three mills. Pop. 1449

WEISSKIRCH, or WEISSKIRCH—1, (for Frauen) A ta. Austria, Moravia, cap. circle Freyau on the Betschka, 34 m N.E. Olmütz with a church, a normal school a courthouse and a trade in wool and salt. Pop. 5558.—2 A vil Bohemia, circle Buzlau, near Grafenstein on the Neisse, here crossed by a bridge, with a church. Pop. 1205

WEISSKIRCHEN or WEISSKIRCHNA a ta. Hungary Banat, 44 m E.N.E. Belgrade in a beautiful district among gardens and vineyards with a R. Catholic and a Greek church a high school hospital, large barracks a government silk mill and a trade in wine and silk. Pop. 5382

WEISSMAIN a ta. Bavaria, Upper Franconia, on a small stream of same name 18 m W.W. Bamberg. It has lofty walls flanked with towers two churches, a castle hospital manufactures of cloth, a paper and other mills, and a trade in leather hemp corn, and fruit. Pop. 1014

WEISSFEIN a vil 1 Russia, prov. Siberia, gov. Brest-lit, with an infirmary glass-works, and two smelting furnaces. Pop. 1143

WEISSFELS—1 (for Fide) A ta. Bohemia, circle and 7 m N.W. Buzlau on the Bils, with a church a castle a mines cry and manufactures of hats woollen and linen cloth and paper. Pop. 1824.—2 Two contiguous vills. Austria, Moravia, circle and 60 m W.W. Troppan with a church in a castle, and Pläntz college. Pop. 1805

WEISSLIL a vil. Baden, circle Upper Rhine near r bank Rhine, 16 m N.W. Freiburg, with a church, and tile works. Pop. 1811

WEISSWILLER, a vil Rhine Palatinate, gov and E.N.E. Aix-la-Chapelle, on the Inde; with a church, and manufactures of needles. Pop. 1058.

WELBORENE par Eng. Norfolk 732 ac. Pop. 265.

WELBOURN par Eng. Lincoln 3270 ac. Pop. 692

WELBURY par Eng. York 2569 ac. Pop. 249

WELBY par Eng. Lincoln 2740 ac. Pop. 481

WELCOMBE, par Eng. Devon 1761 ac. Pop. 284.

WELDEN a vil and coes. Belgium, prov. S. Flanders, r bank Scheldt, 15 m S. Ghent; with manufactures of linen and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1618.

WELDON (Gazette), par Eng. Northampton; 8680 ac. Pop. 865

WELFORD, a vil. and par. England, co. and 15 m N N W Northampton, on the Grand Junction canal. It has an ancient church, with a tower, an Independent chapel, and a free school. Welford was formerly a famous posting town. Area of par. 3650 ac. Pop. 2158

WELFORD two pars. Eng. —1 Berks 8178 ac. Pop. 1118.—2 Gloucester and Warwick, 3550 ac. Pop. 659

WELHAKA par. Eng. Lancashire, 1109 ac. Pop. 63.

WELHATIA vil. & tn. Basia, gov. and 127 m. S. R. Pakur on the coast, where he receives the Kolomanka. It consists of the town proper on the left bank with one northern rampart bastion, and palisades, and of a suburb communal camp by a wooden bridge and has four stone and three wooden churches, and a monastery several tanneries, and a trade in hemp, flax and leather. Pop. (1439) 2048.

WELHATIA sta Basia gov. and 50 m. E. N. E. Vitapik, on the Delta, at the confluence of the Welhaka. It is a very early built of wood and has a R. Catholic and eight Greek churches, a synagogue, and a large trade in corn, linseed, and hemp. Pop. (1851) 9562

WELKA a market in Austria, Moravia, circle and 13 m. S. E. E. Bradetz, with a church, and a mill. Pop. 1597

WELKESDORF a vil. Prussia prov. Silesia, gov. Liegnitz, with a castle, two churches, luncheon, and a park and other mills. Pop. 1438

WELL, two pars. Eng. —1 Lincoln 3110 ac. Pop. 80.—2 York 6451 ac. Pop. 1944

WELLAND a river, England, rises near Market Harborough, on the confines of Northamptonshire and Leicestershire. flows N. E. past Rockingham and Stamford, forms the boundary between counties Northampton and Rutland and falls into the Wash at Foston-Bridge near the mouth of the Witham. Its marginal in, practicable naturally to Market Deeping has been continued by a canal to Stamford

WELLAND par. Eng. Worcester, 2027 ac. Pop. 582

WELLAND a river Upper Canada, dist. Niagara Falls, and joins the Niagara above the falls, after a course of 60 m. It forms a part of the Welland canal connecting Lakes Erie and Ontario. The main trunk, from Port Colborne on Lake Erie to 107 m. Welland on Lake Ontario is 24 m. long, having 27 locks with a descent of 330 ft. 81 ft. wide, 6 ft. deep, and admits vessels of 400 tons. It was commenced in 1824 and up to January 1 1851 had cost £564,284 the revenue in 1852 was £28,273 levied upon 64,550 vessels, of 834 145 tons.

WELLE a vil and com Belgium prov. E. Flanders, r. bank Dendre, 17 m. S. E. Ghent with manufactures of linen, a flour-mill and some trade. Pop. 1259.

WELLDINGEN a vil Württemberg circle Soltauwald, near Rottweil with a church and two castles tile-works, and two mills. Pop. 1367

WELLENBOURNE, two pars. Eng. Warwick —1 (Heston) Pop. 797.—2, (Moorford) Pop. 728. United area 4740 ac

WELLSLEY 181 ANDR, a group of isles, N. Australia, at the head of the Gulf of Carpentaria. The largest is called M. Arington Island (check see)

WELLSLEY (PROVINCE), Further India. See PRO VINCE MALAY

WELTINGBOROUGH a market in and par. England co. and 10 m. N. E. by N Northampton. It consists of four principal streets diverging from a central market-place lighted and paved supplied with excellent water and well built of red sandstone and has a fine spacious church with elegant spire several dissenting chapels a free grammar Latin national British, and infant schools and manufactures of boots, shoes, and patent leather for gaiters and overalls. Area of par. 4490 ac. Pop. 5197

WELLINGHAM par. Eng. Norfolk, 1096 ac. P. 163

WELLINGHORE, par. Eng. Lincoln 2400 ac. P. 814

WELLINGTON par. Eng. Hereford 2538 ac. P. 689

WELLINGTON, an island co. New S. Wales 65 m. by 40 m. broad area 1,058 840 ac. It is traversed by a W. by mountain-ridges. The principal river is the Macquarie. It contains part of the Taron diggings; and gold is found along all its S. and W. frontier and along the small stream Mero in its centre.—2 An island dist. New S. Wales, between the rivers Lachlan and Macquarie or between lat. 32 and 33 S., and lon. 147 and 147 E. area, about 10 000,000 ac. It is one of the finest districts in the colony.—3, A settlement co. W. Australia, 50 m. long, and 45 m. broad traversed by the Roe Mountains, a continuation of the Darling range.—4, A settlement, New Zealand, Ulster or North Island, on Cook's Strait, and on the W. shore of Port Nicholson. It contains much rich land, for the most part so densely wooded as to make the clearing of it very laborious and expensive. The houses are picturesque situated in their immediate vicinity, on the margin of the bay. The town, properly so called, occupies two flats on the N. and S. sides of the harbor; and has Episcopal Scotch Wesleyan and R. Catholic churches, a mechanics institute, savings' bank, custom-house, exchange, barracks jail, and hospital a brewery, steam flour and saw sug mills, &c. Pop. (1848) of it and suburbs 2649; of whole district, 4844.—5 A vil and port of entry Canada West, on Prince-Edward about 44 m. S. W. Kingston, on the N. shore of West Lake a bay of Lake Ontario, now nearly separated from it by a long ridge of marshes. It consists of an upper and a lower village, and has a Methodist and a R. Catholic church three schools manufactures of cloth, iron, and leather a brewery, several grain and saw mills, a valuable fishery and a trade in corn grain, and timber. Pop. 700.—6 An isl., S. America, the largest of the chain which stretches along the W. coast of Patagonia, between lat. 47° 30' and 50° 20' N. and in lon. 75° W., greatest length, measured along the coast N. N. W. to S. S. E., 138 m. medium breadth, 56 m. It is separated from the mainland by Mender and White channels, and from Madre de Dios on the E. by the Gulf of Trinidad, and on the N. from the S. side of the Gulf of Perna. Its N. extremity is Capa San Roman.

WELLINGTON (ALZ. BAIRD), a market in and par. England co. Salop, 11 m. E. Shrewsbury in a low situation. The streets are mostly narrow but many of the more modern houses are of very respectable appearance. The principal buildings are two churches, one of them a light and elegant modern edifice of freestone and three dissenting chapels. Iron manufactures, especially nail making, are carried on in the vicinity to a great extent. There are also glass-works, corn-mills and malt-houses and some trade in timber. Area of par. 8787 ac. Pop. 11,544

WELLINGTON (St JOHN THE BAPTIST) a market in and par. England, co. Somerset, 149 m. W. S. W. London. It has a handsome church with an embattled tower three dissenting chapels, almshouses and manufactures of druggists and sergeants. From this place the conqueror of Waterloo took his titles of viscount, earl, marquis, and duke. Area of par. 5105 ac. Pop. 6415

WELLOW, four pars. Eng. —1 Notts 991 ac. Pop. 597.—2 Somerset, 5292 ac. Pop. 1149.—3, (East) Hants 2373 ac. Pop. 289.—4, (West), Wilt 1844 ac. P. 407

WELLS, a city England co. Somerset, 10 m. S. Bristol in a fertile plain at the S. base of the Mendip Hills. It contains chiefly of four principal streets well paved, and amply supplied with water; is substantially built, having some old but also many modern elegant buildings. The cathedral is a magnificent cruciform structure, principally in the early English style, founded by Wifelfine, second bishop of the diocese, and completed in 1239. The parish church is a handsome structure in the later English style, with a lofty square embattled tower and there are three dissenting chapels, a col legiate grammar and a united charity school, an hospital, and several almshouses. The principal manufacture is the knitting of stockings but about 2 m. distant are several paper mills. Pop. 4734

WELLS, par. Irel. Carlow and Kilbenny, 3726 ac. 1 op 1298

WELLS-KEYT the Sea par. Eng. Norfolk, 4510 ac. 1 op 3675

WELLS (St PAVEN) a seaport in England, co. Norfolk, 33 m. N. W. by N Norwich, on a creek of the North Sea. It has a handsome church, in the later English style, with a lofty square embattled tower, four dissenting chapels, a charity-school, buildings, yards, oyster and other fisheries. At the harbour, accessible to vessels of 160 tons, the exports are wool, corn, grain and malt the imports, coal, timber, dross, glass, bark linseed and reposed cakes, and tar. Pop. 4735

WELLBURG a vil., U. States, Virginia, 16 m. N. by E. Whiting, 1 bank Ohio, at the mouth of Buffalo Creek, with a courthouse, five churches, two academies, manufactures of cottons, woolens, glass and stone ware, a paper and several flour mills. In the vicinity are inexhaustible beds of bituminous coal. Pop. (1855), 9000

WELLSVILLE, a vil U States, Ohio, on the Ohio river 59 m. below Pittsburg, with which it is connected by railway. It has a good trade, and several mills. Pop. 1544.
WELS (Latin, Urdale), a tn Upper Austria, 1 bank Traun, 16 m. S W Lunz. It is an ancient place, consisting of a walled town with four gates, and of two suburbs and has a parish church with finely painted glass, a castle in which the emperor Maximilian I died, a high school, a female school a casino, postoffice, and theatre, manufactures of calico, brassware, and machineries; a paper-mill, and a trade in wood and corn. Pop. 4200.

WELSH-DR. DOWRY, par Wales, Glamorgan, 3175 ac. Pop. 291

WELSHPOOL, a bor market in, and par N Wales, co. and 7 m N Montgomery. It consists principally of one long and wide street, intersected by several others as well paved lighted with gas, amply supplied with water, well built of brick and has a parish church a county-hall, manufactures of flannel, some trade in milk, and several large tanneries. Area of par, 6801 ac. Pop. 4391

WELSLEBEN, a vil Prussian Saxony, gov Magdeburg, circle Wittenberg with a church, and several mills. P. 1391

WELTREVLEDEN, a suburb of Batavia (which see)
WELTON, five pars Eng. 1—1 Lincoln 3890 ac 1 op. 604.—2 Northampton 1690 ac Pop. 668 —3, York 3558 ac. Pop. 835.—4, (in the Marsh), Lincoln 2600 ac. Pop. 431 —5 (in the Marsh) Lincoln, 2590 ac. Pop. 868.

WELTURA, or WATIRA, a tn Lower Austria, on a height above a bank Leana, near the Bohemian frontier. It has double massive walls, a public square, adorned with an obelisk, a parish church, a castle, a theatre, and an hospital; manufactures of hosiery, and woollen and linen cloth, iron-works, soap-works, breweries, several mills, and tanneries. 1 op. exclusive of suburb 1005.

WELWAIN a tn Bohemia, circle Rakonitz, on the Rotherbach, 19 m N W Prague. It is walled, has four gates, three churches a chapel, an hospital manufactures of linen, and three mills. Pop. 1449

WELWICK, par Eng York 6774 ac. Pop. 469

WELLYN, a tn and England, co and 3 m W N W Hertford, on the Mimram, an affluent of the Lea with a church, in which Dr Young, author of the Night Thoughts who was long rector is buried, Connexion and Wesleyan Methodist chapel, an endowed school founded by Dr Young, a charitable endowment, and a chalybeate spring. Area, 2087 ac. Pop. 1657 WELZELIM a vil Württemberg circle Jaxt, 21 m N.E. Stuttgart with a church, and a trade in flax and 1 looms. Pop. 1674.

WEM a market in and par England, co Salop, 11 m. N by E Shrewsbury 1 bank Roden. It consists of a spacious street and has a large church with a lofty tower two Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, tanneries, and malt-kilns. The infirmaries of Judge Jeffries was created Baron of Wem in 1685. Area of par 15 841 ac. Pop. 8747

WEMBDON par Eng Somerset 8471 ac 1 op. 810

WEMBURY, par Eng Devon, 2905 ac. Pop. 677

WEMDING, a tn Bavaria, circle Schwab, on the Schwab, 26 m N by W Augsburg. It is well built and has walls flanked with towers, four churches, an old castle a Cyprian monastery numerous mills a trade in cattle and wax, and a mineral spring. Area, 2171

WEMELDINGE, a vil. Holland, prov Zeeland, 6 m E. Goes, with a townhouse church and school. Pop. 810

WEMMEL, a vil and com. Belgium, prov Brabant, on the Molenbeek 4 m N N W Brussels, with a brewery, two mills, and some trade. Pop. 1303.

WEMWORTH, par Eng Devon 8411 ac. P. 444

WEMYER, par Scot Fife, 6 m by 13 m. Pop. 5647

WENDELL, a tn. Rhinisch Prussia, gov and 29 m S.E. Trier, 1 bank Rhine with a court-house, and manufactures of linen and thread. Pop. (1855), 2486

WENDELSFEN, a market in Bavaria, Middle Franconia, near the Ludw. canal, 8 Nürnberg with a parish church, a ruined castle, and manufactures of cutlery, sayings, and roasting. Pop. 1197

WENDEN, or YENDEN, a tn Russia, gov Livonia, near 1 bank Aa, 52 m. N E Riga. It was once important, but having been nearly burned down in 1768, has never recovered its prosperity. It has a church and a school, and some general trade. The Tartar knights had once an establishment here, and several of them are buried in the church. P. 1500

WENDEN-AMBO, par Eng Essex 1230 ac. P. 421

WENDLEBLEY, par Eng Oxford 1060 ac. P. 242

WENDLING, par Eng Norfolk, 1486 ac. Pop. 383

WENDON Lotts, par Eng Essex 1820 ac. Pop. 89

WENDOVER, a market tn. and par England, co Buckingham at the foot of the Chiltern Hills, 28 m S.E. by S. Buckingham. It is well built, and has a church, about 2 m from the town and two Dissenting chapels. Some lace is made Area of par, 5719 ac. Pop. 1987

WENDRON, par Eng Cornwall 19,320 ac. P. 8675.

WENDY par Eng Cambridge 947 ac. Pop. 164

WENER, the largest lake of Sweden, and after that of Ladoga, the largest in Europe, situated centrally between Lina Carlsad, Wenersborg, and Mariestad. It is 147 ft. above sea-level and of very irregular shape. Its greatest length N.E. to S.W. is about 100 m., its breadth may average about 30 m., though at the widest it is not less than 50 m., and in its lower part, where two peninsulas stretch far into it from opposite directions, it is not more than 10 m. This distance is still further narrowed by a group of small islands and hence the part of the lake above these peninsulas is sometimes considered as Wener proper, while the part below is called Lake Dalbo. The area covered by both is estimated at 793 sq. m. The far most important feeder is the Klar, which pours into its N. shore the accumulated water of a course of more than 250 m. By a canal it communicates with Lake Wäster, but its only proper outlet is at Wenersborg at its S.W. extremity, where the superfluous waters are received by the Trollhättan or Götha. In summer numerous other vessels visit regularly upon the lake in winter it is frozen for several months, and crossed by sledges. It abounds with fish, particularly trout, which sometimes weigh 40 lbs

WERNERSBURG a tn. Sweden, cap. lin of same name or Ellsberg (which see), beautifully situated on a tongue of land which projects into Lake Wener from its S. extremity 48 m. N N E. Gothenburg. It was once burned down in 1694, and though previously handsome, has been rebuilt on a more regular and improved plan with many excellent houses of two stories. The only public building of any consequence which escaped the fire was the governor's residence. The trade in iron, deals, and other produce, is considerable. P. 2500

WELLEV, a tn. Russia, gov and 80 m E. N E. Tula, on a river of same name, at its confluence with the Oster in a very fertile district with eight churches, including a cathedral and manufactures of silk goods, sailcloth, soap, and beer. Pop. about 3000

WENHAM two pars. Eng Suffolk.—1 (Great); 1122 ac. Pop. 269.—2 (Little) 981 ac. Pop. 72

WENHAM LAKE, a lake, U States Massachusetts near Boston, surrounded by hills, and fed wholly by subterranean springs. The soil is of great purity and many thousand tons are annually taken chiefly for export.

WENHASTON, par Eng Suffolk 2396 ac. P. 1002

WENLOCK (LITTLE), par Eng Salop 2746 ac. P. 1039

WENLOCK (BURN) a bor, market, co and par England, co Salop 19 m. A.E. Shrewsbury. It consists principally of one long street, is in general well built of brick, and has an ancient church with a square tower and spire a Wesleyan chapel a public subscription-library and the ruins of an ancient priory. Area of par 6845 ac. Pop. 2398.

WENN (Bz) par Eng Cornwall 4548 ac. Pop. 650

WENNINGTON par Eng Essex, 1070 ac. Pop. 177

WENLEY a vil and par England co. York co. It has been crossed by an ancient bridge, 3 m. W N W Middlesbrough. It is well built and has a parish church, with some fine screen-work. Pop. 3100. Area, 14,261 ac.

WENBLUM a river England, rises in the N.W. of Norfolk, near West Rudham, flows easterly to S.E., and joins 1 bank Yare at Norwich

WENTNOR par Eng Salop, 6698 ac. Pop. 646.

WENTWORTH a vil and chapelry, England, co. York 5 m. N.N.W. Rotherham. It has a chapel with many monuments, including one to the Earl of Sandwich executed in 1641 an endowed a girls and an infant school. In the vicinity are the magnificent manor and fine domain of Wentworth house, the residence of the Earl of Fitzwilliam. Pop. 1556. WENTWORTH par Eng. Cambridge; 1487 ac. P 189. WENTWORTH par Wales, Glamorgan; 3565 ac. P 475. WOBLEY, a market tn. and par Eng. Hants, co. and 13 m N.W. Basingstoke. It has a spacious ch. in the late Eng. style, with an excellent tower and lofty spire; a N. Catholic chapel and a free grammar-school. Area of par 3309 ac. Pop. 906.

WERNARDS (St) par Eng. Hereford; 4250 ac. P 643. WERBACH a vil. Baden, circle Lower Rhine, bail. and near Buchsbaum, on the Tauber. Pop. 1157.

WERBEN a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov and 53 m N.N.E. Magdeburg 1 bank Elbe, opposite to the confluence of the Havel. It has dilapidated walls, with three gates, a 1 vicar's church, an hospital, tile-works, several mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. (1857) 1822.

WERKATHE a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, at the confluence of the Dender with the Dyle, 17 m N.E. Brussels; with a brewery a flour-mill and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1993.

WERCKE a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 18 m S.W. Bruges with manufactures of linen and cordage, two oil works a distillery &c. Pop. 1676.

WERDAA a tn. Saxony circle Zeitz, on the Pleiss, 25 m W.S.W. Chemnitz with two churches, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth dye-works and numerous wooded mills. Pop. (1849) 1966.

WERDEN a tn. Rhinish Prussia gov and 15 m N.E. Düsseldorf 1 bank Ruhr with two churches and an abbey used as a house of correction manufactures of woollen and cotton cloth iron and copper ware, leather and alum, dye-works and cotton, walk, and paper mills. Pop. (1832) 5695.

WERDEN a tn. Prussia prov. Brandenburg gov and 5 m W. Potsdam on the Havel with a church, some linen-weaving a brewery a boat-building yard and a fishery. Near it the vine is cultivated, and much fruit is grown. Pop. (1852) 2855.

WERHAM par Eng. Norfolk 2131 ac. Pop. 609. WERHAGEN a tn. Russia gov and 60 m W.S.W. Moscow on the Protva here crossed by a wooden bridge. It has an old castle a handsome cathedral three other churches extensive manufactures of fishing-nets and a trade in corn, hemp, hemp-oil honey was tallow and wool. In 1812 a body of French having attempted to make a stand here, by fortifying the town it was stormed by the Russians. Pop. 7000.

WERKLANDAM a vil. Holland prov. N. Brabant 24 m W.N.W. Middelburg with a neat town-hall, surrounded by a tower; a church, and a considerable trade in willows, for which it is visited by numerous vessels. It has a harbour communicating with the R. Weelde, two boat-building yards, and a corn-mill. Pop. 1514.

WERKHOFURIE a tn. Russia. See WERNHOFURIE.

WERKHOVEN a vil. Holland prov. Utrecht, 11 m W.S.W. Amsterdam with two churches. Pop. (1811) 811.

WERL a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. Arnsberg circle and 9 m W. Bielefeld with six churches and chapels, and a Capuchin monastery in which an image of the Virgin annually attracts great numbers of pilgrims, by whose expenditure the town is materially benefited. Pop. (1852) 4109.

WERMELAKIBOHEN a vil. Rhinish Prussia, gov and E.S.E. Düsseldorf with two churches, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth. Pop. 1126.

WERMERDORF a vil. Austria, Moravia, circle Olmütz, with a church a paper, flour saw and zinc mill and a slate-quarry. P 1206.—2, a vil. Saxony circle and E.S.E. Leipzig near which is the old castle of St. Robertsburg. Pop. 1206.

WERNE a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov and 10 m S. Münster 1 bank Lippe with two N. Catholic churches, 1 chapel a monastery, a spongyware manufactures of linen and yarn and a trade in cattle. Pop. (1863) 1964.

WERNERDORF a vil. Bohemia, circle Kladsko, partly in a valley on the Weichsel, and partly on a height; with a parish church. Pop. 1069.

WERNERSBUTH a vil. Bohemia, circle Elbogen, on the Elster 3 m. from Asch, with a Protestant church, a school, and several mills. Pop. 1644.

WERNIGERODER a tn. Prussia, prov. Saxony gov and 43 m S.W. Magdeburg, on the Havel, at the foot of the Harz Mountains. It has walls with four gates, four churches, a castellated residence of Count Stolberg-Wernigerode, with a library of 40,000 vols. a library, several schools, three hospitals manufactures of woollen goods, paper, tobacco, and chemical products, numerous mills, and dye-works. Pop. (1852) 2591.

WERNITZ, or WERNITZ a river, Bavaria, rises about 12 m. W. Augsburg; flows S.E. then W., then S.E. past Oettingen, and joins a bank Danube above Donauwörth, after a course of about 60 m. It produces excellent crabs.

WERNIGADTEL, or WERNIGADTEL a tn. Bohemia, circle and 15 m N.E. Leitmeritz with a church hospital, numerous factories of calico, and a cotton-mill. Pop. 1453.

WERRA a river, Germany rises in the Thuringerwald, in Saxony; flows N.W. to Hildburghausen, then very gradually N.W. through Saxony-Meiningen, Hesse-Cassel and at Mühlhausen with the Fulda in forming the Weiser after a course of nearly 150 m. of which about 110 m. are navigable. Its chief affluents are the united Ilmsel and Hessa on the right and the Uster on the left.

WERRF, WERR, or WERRA a river Germany, rises in Leppe-Detmold about 8 m. N.E. Horn flows N.W. past Detmold and Herford, then almost due E. and after a course of about 45 m. joins a bank W. Weser.

WERRINGTON par Eng. Devon 5000 ac. Pop. 607.

WERTACH a river Germany rises among the mountains between Bavaria and the Tyrol flows N.W. close to Augsburg and joins a bank Lech, after a course of about 30 m. Its chief affluents are the Gemsech and Binsold.

WERTHIM a tn. Baden circle Lower Rhine, at the confluence of the Tauber with the Main. It has walls with four gates, two parish churches an old and two new castles a gymnasium several schools, an hospital, some shipping and a trade in wine. Pop. 5454.

WERTHIM, a tn. Prussia prov. Westphalia, gov and 25 m S.W. Münster, on the A. with a Protestant church, manufactures of linen, a sandstone-quarry, and a trade in horses. Pop. (1852) 1907.

WERTINGEN a tn. Bavaria, circle Swabia, on the Isar 17 m N.W. Augsburg with two churches a castle, a tobacco-factory and a brewery. Pop. 1590.

WERVICK (anc. FROVACUM) a tn. and com. Belgium, prov. W. Flanders, 8 m. S.E. Ypres 1 bank Iy, on the confluence of France with a Gothic church two chapels, a town-hall, hospital orphan asylum, convent, three schools, breweries various oil, iron, and flour mills manufactures of linen ribbands, ropes, leather awes, starch, candles, tobacco, re-fined salt and a trade in tobacco and grain. Pop. 5657.

WEST L. (NIDER-) an important river port and tn. Rhinish Prussia, gov and 30 m N.N.W. Düsseldorf, at the confluence of the Lippe with the Rhine. It is regularly fortified, and derives much importance both from its position and its great strength, is entered by four gates, and has three Calvaries, a Lutheran, a French and Walloon, an English, and two N. Catholic churches a gymnasium, seminary, handsome town-hall several orphan hospitals, workhouses, and several charitable establishments. The manufactures are woollen goods, carpets, hosiery, upholstery, harnessed, tobacco and chemical products, dye-works, woollen and cotton mills, a sugar-factory and the shipping trade is considerable. It partly occupies the site of a fortified Roman camp, and became an Imperial free-town and a member of the Hanse league. Hapin wrote his History of England and died here, after a residence of 11 years. Pop. (1852) 17,369.

WESSEL (OMER) a tn. Rhinish Prussia gov and 28 m S.E.E. Coblenz, 1 bank Rhine with two old churches, one of them a beautiful edifice, with fine choir interesting mosaics and paintings a raised castle and several mills. Pop. (1852) 2565.

WESSELY.—1 A tn. Bohemia, circle and 19 m. N.E. Budweis, at the confluence of the Lusatitz and Neuschatz with a church, a handsome town-house, and manufactures of silk goods. P 1196.—2, A tn. Bohemia. See HOCH WESSELY.

WESSEMAE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Brabant, on an affluent of the Demer, 4 m N.E. Brussels, with a brewery, and a trade in agricultural produce and timber. P 1993.

WESENBERG a walled tn, Meklenburg Stralia, on Lake Wolbitz, 8 m. S.W. Neu-Stollitz, with a borough school, and manufactures of woollen and linen cloth. P 1370

WESSEL (Latin Weser), a river Germany formed by the junction of the Fulda and Werra at Minden, on the frontiers of Hanover and Hesse Cassel flows very circuitously from N.W. forming part of the boundary between these two territories, then N.W. to between Westphalia and Brunswick past the towns of Hildesheim and Hildesheim and W.H.W. past Hameln and Rinteln before the latter it enters Prussia. W.N.W. flows 7 m. past Minden into Hanover turns W.N.W. traverses the town and the territory of Bremen forms the boundary between Hanover and Oldenburg at Eidfeth turns almost due N. and flows by a wide mouth very much embanked with sandbanks into the German Ocean. Its whole course is about 200 m. Its chief affluents are on the right, the Aller, segmented by the Leine and the Wümme and on the left the Dümme, Netze, Rönne, Werra, Aue, and Hunte. At Minden, where it is formed, it has a width of about 500 ft. and flows through a hilly country till it reaches Minden where it begins to flow through level plains. Between Minden and Bremen it flows 7 miles from 500 ft. to 700 ft., at its mouth it is about 7 m. broad. It forms large alluvial deposits, and in the lower parts of its course requires strong dikes to protect the adjacent country from inundation. The navigation for vessels of large size ceases about 10 m. below Bremen. The basin of the Weser has an area of 12,912 geo. sq. m.

WESJEGONAK or WESJEGONAK a tn, Basen, gov and 128 in N.E. Trer, at the confluence of the Reem with the Mielgo. It has two churches two schools, an hospital extensive manufactures of nails and a trade in wood. P 9000

WESSELL ISLANDS, a group of 4 Australia, at the N.W. entrance to the Gulf of Carpentaria, extending for 50 m. S.W. to N.E. The principal island is 30 m. long by 6 m. or 7 m. broad. lat. (N. point Cape Wesel, 10° 59' S., lon. 136° 45' E.).

WESSELBUREN or WESSELBUREN a vil Denmark dusky Holstein in N. Denmark. It was recently walled and has a considerable trade in grain. P 1900

WESSELL a tn, Austria Moravia, circle and 11 m. S.W. Hradec, on the March with a church a castle with a park and the buildings of an old monastery. P 543

WESSEM, a market in Holland prov. Lumburg 6 m. S. by W. Moorland at the junction of the Itteru with the Maas, over the latter of which there is here a bridge. It has a church and a school. Pop. (agricultural) 876

WEST BROOKFIELD, a vil U. States, New York 16 m. W. Canandaigua, with several churches and mills. P 1693

WEST CUNNINGHAM a bor. U. States, Pennsylvania, beautifully situated 26 m. W. Philadelphia, with which it is connected by railway. It is regularly built, and has an elegant courthouse, in the Corinthian style, several fine churches, and an academy and several other schools of considerable reputation a cabinet of natural sciences &c. Pop. (1847) 4500

WEST CUNNINGHAM a former dist. Holland prov. N. Holland, the sea-board of the Zoldersee, N. of Edam. It comprehended the tns. of Eekhuizen, Hooge, and Medemblik. WEST INDIES. See INDIES (WEST)

WEST KILLBURY, a vil U. States, Connecticut, 32 m. N.E. Norwich, with two churches, a woollen and a plating mill five cotton mills, and a foundry. Pop. 2500

WEST MAZOUZ a vil U. States, Connecticut, 17 m. N. by E. New Haven, on the railway to Hartford. It has a large fine church, high school, manufactures of ivory combs, a foundry, &c. Pop. 1900

WEST PHILADELPHIA a bor. U. States, forming a suburb of Philadelphia. Pop. (1850) 5377

WEST POINT a vil U. States, New York, pleasantly situated, a bank Hudson, 87 m. S. by W. Albany with the U. States military academy, established by Congress in 1802 Fort Patnam, erected here during the Revolution crowns a hill 508 ft. above the level of the river

WESTALRE par Eng. Norfolk, 3400 ac. Pop. 475

WESTBERE par Eng. Kent 1185 ac. Pop. 197

WESTBROUGH par Eng. Lancs, 890 ac. P 222

WESTBURN, par Eng. Essex 5091 ac. P 2175

WESTBURY, a pari bor. and par England co. Wilts on a plain, 31 m. N.W. Salisbury, with a handsome church. Vol. II several Dissenting chapels an endowed British and foreign, infant, national and Sunday schools, several charitable endowments, a scientific and literary institution, manufactures of kerseymeres and broad-cloths, and a considerable trade in malt and leather gloves. It sends a member to Parliament. Area, 11,901 ac. P 7029

WESTBURY, four par. Eng. — 1, Bucks, 2, 47 ac. Pop. 468 — 3, Salop 11,374 ac. P 2485 — 4, Somerset 2968 ac. Pop. 625 — 5, (see General) Gloucester, 8090 ac. P 1249

WESTBURY upon Tarn, a vil and par England co. Gloucester on the Avon, 5 m. N.W. Bristol. It has an ancient church with a square embattled tower two chapels of ease, a Wesleyan chapel and a national school. Near it lies stone in extensively quarried, both for being burned into lime and used in building. In the vicinity is the immense cavern called Pen-Park Hole. Wickliffe the reformer was probably there and is said to have been both born and buried here. Area of par, 5466 ac. Pop. 6728

WESTCALDER, par Scot. Edinburgh 10 m. 1763 m. Pop. 120

WESTCAPPELVY a vil and com. Belgium, par W. Flanders, 8 m. N.W. Brugge. Pop. 1248

WESTCOTE, par Eng. Gloucester 1803 ac. P 242

WESTDEAN par Eng. Sussex 3464 ac. P 139

WESTDORPE a vil Holland prov. Zealand, 15 m. N. Goes. With a neat church a school a mill, a choultry factory and two tan-pits. Pop. (agricultural), 1410

WESTENHOLM, a vil Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. Minden, circle Friesland with a R. Catholic church. P 1303

WESTERLE, or WESTERLE, a tn Sweden cap. of same name, beautifully situated at the mouth of the Ärtar in a bay on the N. side of Lake Malar 55 m. W.N.W. Stockholm. It has a large and beautiful cathedral built of red brick in the Gothic style in the 11th century, but considerably altered since, surmounted by a beautiful spire 238 ft. in height, and containing several good paintings and interesting monuments a very ancient castle an hospital-church a townhouse a gymnasium with a library of 10,000 vols. a botanical garden, building-yards and a large trade chiefly in iron. Pop. 3414

—— The lake, bounded N. by Ärtar and Gefle S. by Upsala, 8 Lake Malar and W. Örebro is 80 m. long by 55 m. broad, area, 2008 geo. sq. m. and has a general slope S. to Lake Mälär. A fertile soil and valuable mines. chiefly iron, but partly of lead and silver. P. 64,850

WESTERBOTHEN (West Bothnia) or UMMÄ a lin Sweden prov. Norrland, founded, 8 by Jan. Pusk. It is a Gulf of Bothnia, b. Hase Östersund and Hörnstrand, and N. Norway, length, N.W. to S.E. 287 m. breadth 160 m. area, 22,133 geo. sq. m. It has a general S.E. slope from the mountains in the frontiers of Norway to the Gulf of Bothnia and is traversed in that direction by numerous straits, of which the Skallflick, Ummä, and Wundel are the chief. It has many considerable lakes, as Uddi Horn-Älven, and Stor Uineä and towards the Norwegian frontier the mountainous Rye and potatoes are grown cattle are reared a considerable quantity of timber is cut, and mines of iron are wrought. P. 30,654

WESTERBURG a tn. Nassau built Hemmerd, with a church a castle, oil saw, and bark mills. P. 1367

WESTERDALE par Eng. York 15,930 ac. P 286

WESTERFIELD par Eng. Suffolk 1071 ac. P 314

WESTERHAM, a market tn and par England, co. Kent 19 m. W. Maidstone with a market-house in its centre, a large and venerable church with a monument to General Wolfe, who was born and whose remains are interred here and a Dissenting chapel. Area of par 5676 ac. Pop. 2118

WESTERHOLM, a vil U. States, prov. Saxony gov. Magdeburg about 8 m. W.N.W. Quedlinburg, with a church and three mills. Pop. 1680

WESTERKIRK par Scot. Dumfries, 10 m. by 6 P. 658

WESTERLEIGH, par Eng. Gloucester 4009 ac. P 1679

WESTERLOO, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. and 24 m. F.S.E. Antwerp, on the Grand Vetha. It has two breweries three distilleries a tannery two flour-mills, and in the vicinity an ancient castle. Pop. 2320

WESTERN AUSTRALIA See WESTERN AUSTRALIA (WESTERN)

WESTERN PORT a large natural harbour, Victoria co. Morrongton about 35 m. S.E. Melbourne, with anchorage for large vessels. It penetrates about 16 m. inland, is somewhat of a circular form with an irregular breadth of about 18 m. Its centre is nearly filled up with French Island, and across its mouth stretches Phillip Island forming a kind of crescent with a chord of 15 m. the N.E. point of which is lat. 38° 20' 47" S. lon. 145° 19' 15" E. (1).

WESTERWIND a mountain-range, Germany between the Lahn the Saag and the Rhine. Detached from the Rothar Mts. it stretches E. to the plateau called the Kalte-Eule a black tract 2000 ft. above the sea where the Sieg and Lahn rise then S.W. across the N. of the duchy of Nassau, and terminates in front of Coblenz, not far from the point where the Lahn joins the Rhine. Its whole length exceeds 70 m. It rises like a table-land rather than a mountain-chain and is composed of a schistus base, intersected by narrow valleys and broken by a number of rounded hills, mostly of basalt, and seldom much above the general level. The chief exception is in the Salsburg-Kopf which has a height of 2851 ft. All the waters of the Westerwald belong to the basin of the Lahn.

WESTFIELD two pars. Eng.—1 Norfolk 509 ac. 1 op. 143.—2 Essex, 4772 ac. 1 op. 900.

WESTFIELD a vil. U. States, Massachusetts on river of its name, 10 m. W.W. Springfield on the Western railway with a fine public square, two churches, a townhouse a normal and other schools, and manufactures of whips, &c. 1 op. 4181.

WESTHALL par Eng. Suffolk 2316 ac. 1 op. 496.

WESTHAM par Eng. Sussex 4718 ac. 1 op. 781.

WESTHOEVE —1 A market town, Hesse Darmstadt 1 hushausen 20 m. S. Mainz with three churches and three schools. Pop. 1838—2 A in Prussia prov. Westphalia gov. Arnberg near Dortmund on the Rhine with a church. 1 op. 1077.

WESTHOFFEN a tn France dep. Bas Rhin, 9 m. W. Strasbourg at the foot of Mount Geisstein with a Gothic church divided into three naves by lofty pillars and many statues of carven stone. Pop. 2104.

WESTHOLM par Eng. Suffolk 1372 ac. 1 op. 240.

WESTHALL a vil. Holland prov. Zealand 7 m. W. W. Middelburg on the most W. point of isl. Walcheren with a townhouse church and school. Inhabitants engaged in agriculture and supplying the shipping. Pop. 1800.

WESTKILBEK a vil. com. Belpum, prov. W. Friesland on the canal of Bourgooyne 10 m. W. Drages with a brewery and a trade in agricultural produce. 1 op. 1228.

WESTLEY par Eng. Suffolk 6193 ac. 1 op. 953.

WESTLEY par Eng. Suffolk 1216 ac. 1 op. 118.

WESTLEY WATERLESS, par Eng. Cambridge 1112 ac. 1 op. 214.

WESTMALLE a vil. com. Belgium prov. and 13 m. S.W. Antwerp, on the Tapelbeck or Havelbeek with a re-mak a brick and tile work two breweries, a flour mill &c. In the vicinity in the midst of a wild heath, is a Trappist monastery. 1 op. 1064.

WESTMANNA a group of 14 islets, off the coast of Iceland lat. 63° 20' S. lon. 20° 30' W. The principal is. is Hólmur has a harbour called Westmanna. The whole group is about 160.

WESTMATH a tn Ireland Leitrim bounded N. by Co. Cavan N.W. Longford W. Roscommon, S. Kings co. and E. and N.E. Meath greatest length, E.N.E. to W.S.W. 43 m. greatest breadth 26 m. area, 678 sq. m. The surface is hilly in the N. where some heights exceed 700 ft. but elsewhere undulates gently. The strata consist entirely of carboniferous limestone, and the rocks accompanying that formation. The drainage is shared between the Shannon and the Fyne. The former with its expansion, Lough Ree, forms the N. boundary of the co. and receives its drainage for the most part directly but to some extent also by a remarkable chain of lakes of which Lough Derragh is the largest. The latter receives its share of the drainage chiefly by the Doel. The climate is mild equable, and healthy. The soil is light and somewhat rich. W. and in the E. usually consists of a heavy loam. The principal grain-crop is oats, but the far larger part of the available surface is devoted to grazing, and rears black cattle which are considered the best in Ireland. Considerable attention is also, paid to the dairy. Important means of communication are furnished by the Shannon, the Royal canal a branch of the Grand canal and the Great Western railway from Dublin to Galway. Westmarch sends two members to Parliament—one for the county, and the other for Athlone. The capital is Mullingar. Pop. 111 409.

WESTMOSTON, par Eng. Sussex 4074 ac. 1 op. 617.

WESTMILL L., par Eng. Hertford 2187 ac. 1 op. 880.

WESTMINSTER a city, England, co. Middlesex, but properly the S.W. part of London, being bounded, N. by Oxford Street, from its junction with Tottenham Court on the E., to Kensington Gardens on the W., W. by an irregular line running S.E. from Kensington Gardens towards Chelsea Hospital S. and E. by the Thames, and N. by the City proper. It communicates across the Thames with the Surrey side by the Suspension, Waterloo, Westminster, and Vauxhall bridges and contains Buckingham Palace St. James Palace, the House of Parliament, Westminster Abbey the Supreme Courts, and most important government offices, the town-residences of the principal nobility and gentry. Chelsea Hospital and Kensington Gardens Hyde Park, the Green Park, and St. James Park. As a city, it sends two members to the House of Commons and is governed by a high-steward with a high bailiff of his appointment, both holding the office for life and by 16 burgesses, each having jurisdiction like an alderman, over a separate ward. Pop. 241 611.

WESTMORELAND a co. England bounded N. and N.W. by co. Cumberland S.W. by Lancaster and Morecambe Bay S. Lancaster E. York and N. Yorkshire greatest length, N.N.E. to S.W. 30 m. greatest breadth, E. to W. 32 m. area 758 sq. m. The surface with the exception of a small portion in the S. sloping to Morecambe Bay is very mountainous. The Pennine chain entering it at Cruse-Fell on its N. frontier stretches across it in the N.E. and then curves round forming the boundary between it and Yorkshire, while the principal chain of the Cumbrian mountains forms its boundary from Helvellyn to Bow Fell and sends a lofty branch nearly across its centre. Much of the celebrated lake-scenery of England is within the limits of the co. on the borders of this co. The streams, which run generally in narrow romantic dales are numerous, but comparatively unimportant. The Eden, the largest flows 30 m. and the Ure, the next in size, 27 m. within the county without becoming navigable. The Kent, though not so long as either, is more important, from forming the broad cataraque which terminates in Morecambe Bay. The strata belong in the W. to the lias and in the centre to the upper silurian formation in the E. mountain limestone is largely developed and forms some of the loftiest summits in the N. granite occurs particularly near Skipton where a low conical mountain is composed of a small group of rocks containing large brilliant crystals of red felspar still farther N. in the vale of the Eden around Appleby the red sand and stone appears in connection with a small troubled coal-field. The minerals include graphite for which Borrowdale was long famous excellent roofing-slate marble, coal, lead, and copper. The arable land is mostly confined to the valleys, where the soil usually consists of a dry gravelly loam well adapted for turnips. For the greater part of the remaining surface is in natural pasture, or under wood. The only manufactures of any consequence are the coarse woollens of Kendal. The principal means of communication are the Lancaster canal and the Preston Lancaster and Carlisle railway with a branch from Kendal to Howes Appleby in the cap. Westmoredale sends two members to Parliament. Pop. 55,387.

WESTMORELAND, an island co. New S. Wales, 57 m. long and about 80 m. in breadth, excepting towards the middle, where it does not exceed 20 m. It is traversed by a portion of the Blue Mountains, which at one point are 4000 ft. high.

WESTON a township and chapelry England co. Dorset forming a salubrious S. of Exeter, and the favourite residence of its wealthy merchants and shopkeepers. P. 18,242.

WESTON, a vil. and par. England, co. Somerset, near the Great Western railway, 2 m. W. W. Bath, with two hand some churches Wesleyan and Congregational Methodist chapels, and limestone-quarries, with many remarkable fossil remains. Area of par. 2650 ac. 1 op. 2068.

WESTON, 29 pars. Eng.—1 Hertford, 4550 ac. 1 op. 1186.—2, Lincoln, 5386 ac. 1 op. 759.—3, Notts 1690 ac. 1 op. 487.—4 Suffolk, 15500 ac. 1 op. 243.—5, York, 4552 ac. 1 op. 492.—6, (Barnfield) Somerset, 681 ac. 1 op. 119.—7, (Barnfield) Hereford, 1804 ac. 1 op. 741.—8, (Barnfield) Leicestershire, 1804 ac. 1 op. 284.—9, (Barnfield) Northampton, 1040 ac. 1 op. 158.—10 (Barnfield), Cambridge 2948 ac. P 574-11, Covey Suffolk, 1841 ac. Pop. 884-12 (Fossil), on and 5½ in E.N.E. Northampton, long the scene of the national battle of the Marston. Her author, the Marston. He is buried in the church Arms, 1500 ac. P 508-13, (no Cardano) Somerset 733 ac. Pop. 203-14, (Longmill) Norfolk 2737 ac. Pop. 466-16 (Marston Suffolk, 1083 ac. Pop. 817-16, (Old) Hants 2012 ac. Pop. 433-17 (on the Green) Oxford 2466 ac. Pop. 517-18, (Patric) Hants 1402 ac. Pop. 215-19, (South) Oxford 600 ac. Pop. 98-20 (sub-Edg) Gloucester 2652 ac. Pop. 859-21 (Turnell) Bucks 2450 ac. Pop. 743-22, (under-Lizard) Bedford 2398 ac. Pop. 246-23, (under-Foyard) Hereford 8143 ac. Pop. 735-24, (under-Wealden) Warwick 1990 ac. P 330-25 (Un-derwood) Bucks 1300 ac. Pop. 410-26 (upon-Aston) Warwick and Gloucester, 1740 ac. Pop. 115-27 (upon-Trent) Derby, 1820 ac. Pop. 890-28 (upon-Trent) Bedford 825 ac. Pop. 570-29 (St. Paul), Somerset 2729 ac. P 1007

WILSTON a vil Canada West pleasantly situated on both sides the Hunter 10 m. W Toronto. It has N. P. canal and a Wesleyan Methodist church a woolen factory a tannery and several mills. Pop. about 500

WESION a vil U. States, Missouri on the Missouri river 200 m WNW Jefferson, with an active trade in cattle, provisions &c. Many emigrants start from this point on their way to California. (1851) 2500

WESTON BOREN MAKE, a seaport in and par England co. Somerset, beautifully situated on the Bristol Channel at the mouth of the St. Ann, near the Bristol and Exeter railway 19 m. S.W. Bristol. It consists of several well built and well kept streets two of them in the form of causeways, strutting round the bay and has two churches one of them a handsome modern structure with a tower. Baptist, Independent, and Quaker chapels, national, British, and several superior private boarding-schools, a mechanics institute a townhall, commodious market-house splendid public baths an extensive pottery brick works, and a valuable fishery. Many of the inhabitants live by keeping lodgings for sea-bathers. Area of par 3770 ac. Pop. 4034

WESTON a vil Eng. Bedford 1716 ac. Pop. 722

WESTON a vil and com Belgium, prov W Fland. on the frontiers of France, 33 m S.S.W. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1228

WESTON a vil Eng. York 2017 ac. Pop. 502

WESTFALSDOWN par Irel Dublin 15,606 ac. 1 167

WESTPHALIA (German Westphalen French, West phalie) a prov in the W division of the Prussian monarchy bounded N by Hanover E by Lippe-Brünswick and Hesse-Cassel S.E. by Nassau and S.W. by Rhine prov. W. Rhine prov. and N.W. by Holland, area 5683 sq. m. The surface in the S. and N.E. is generally mountainous, being traversed by the Westerwald Rothaar Teutoburgerwald and the Weser gorges. The N.W. spreads out into extensive and often marshy plains, and belongs to the basin of the Ems the N.E. and a small part of the E. to the basin of the Weser the remainder constituting the far larger portion of the whole, belongs to the basin of the Rhine. The soil is in general fair for cattle. Live stock are numerous particularly horned cattle and swine, the hams made from the latter have long been famous. The staple manufacture is iron but that of iron is also very extensive Besides iron in abundance, the minerals include copper lead, coal and salt. The province is divided into the three govs of Münster (the capital) Minden, and Arnberg Pop. (1849) 1,464,221

WESTPORT, a seaport and market in Ireland, co. Mayo, beautifully situated in a valley, at the mouth of a salt river in Clew Bay, 10 m. S.W. Castlebar. It is poorly built, and has a parish church a R. Catholic and two Protestant Dissenting chapels, a handsome union fever hospital a large workhouse, a neat courthouse and commodious hotel several schools, a dispensary manufactures of linen, a distillery, brewery and a considerable export trade in grain, oatmeal flour butter pork, and whisky. Pop. 4121

WESTPORT (St. Mary), par Eng Wilt 2086 ac. Pop. 1661

WESTRAY one of the more N Orkney isls. Scotland, about 9 m long N.W. and S.E., and 1 m to 5 m. broad so parated on the S. from Is. Roway and Pomona or Mainland by Westray Firth. Its form has a rude resemblance to a cross. The coast, generally abrupt and rugged is indented with numerous bays the largest and best sheltered of which is Pierwall on the N.E. side of the island. With the adjoining isl of Papa-Westray about 3 m long by 1 m broad, it forms a parish. Pop. 243

WESTRILL and STAMMORT par Eng Leicester, 1620 ac. Pop. 4

WESTROOSBEKEP a vil and com Belgium, prov W Flanders on the Marston 21 m S. Bruges. Most of the inhabitants are linen weavers. In 1862 a great battle was fought here between the united 2 punsh and 3 townings under their count Louis-de-Male, and the revolted men of Ghent under Philip Van Artevelde, whom the latter lost their leader and above 30 000 men. Pop. 1936

WESTRUTHER par Scot. Berw. 7 m by 5 m. P 701

WESTWALL a vil and com Belgium prov W Flanders, on the Vlierbeke, 27 m S.W. Bruges, with many factories of linen two breweries two flour-mills, and a trade in corn, horses, and cattle. Pop. 1473

WESTWALL par Eng Cumberland 18 120 ac. P 1988

WESTWELL, two par Eng 1 Kent 5199 ac. Pop. 1030-2 Oxford 890 ac. Pop. 183

WESTWICH par Eng Norfolk 1043 ac. Pop. 204

WESTWOOD with Irons, par Eng Wilt 813 ac. Pop. 505

WESTYAN, a vil Holland prov V Holland 9 m N.E. Haarlem, on the IJ with three churches, a general and several orphan hospitals and two schools; manufactures of hessian asphalt, cutlery, and iron and four all three yielding three paper and 15 saw mills. Pop. 2753

WETTERAL par Eng Cumberland 11 778 ac. P 8145

WETTEREN a market in England on and 13 m W. of 8 York. It has several well built streets, a handsome church with a square embattled tower two Dissenting chapels and a large brewery. Pop. 1494

WETTEREN par Eng Suffolk 1339 ac. Pop. 541

WETTEREN par Eng Suff 3763 ac. P 1101

WETTEREN par Eng Essex 4214 ac. P 1770

WETTEREN a vil and com Belgium, prov W Fland. on the frontiers of France, 33 m S.S.W. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1228

WETTEREN a vil and com Belgium, prov W Fland. on the frontiers of France, 33 m S.S.W. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1228

WETTEREN a vil and com Belgium, prov W Fland. on the frontiers of France, 33 m S.S.W. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1228

WETTEREN a vil and com Belgium, prov W Fland. on the frontiers of France, 33 m S.S.W. Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, and a trade in agricultural produce. Pop. 1228 soap, glass and earthenware distilleries and breweries. Pop. 8843

WETTERHORN a mountain, Switzerland, in the S.W. of Gen. Bern, between the valleys of Hasli and Grindelwald in the midst of the most magnificent scenery of the Helvetic Alps. It rises in one vast precipitous limestone to the height of 12,842 ft.

WETZIN a walled town, Prussia, prov Saxony gov and 20 m N.W. Merseburg, on the Saale. It has manufactures of tobacco, tile works, limekilns and several mills. P. 3455.

WETZINGEN a vill and par Switzerland, cant Aargau in a beautiful plain 1 m S.E. Baden. It has a church, with a tower and an old Bernese cloister which stands on a high bank above the Limmat, forming a splendid ruin. Pop. 2112.

WETZIN par Eng. Stafford 2000 ac. Pop. 466.

WETZINGEN a city and river-port, L. States, Alabama. It bank Coosa, 113 m. S.E. Tuscaloosa, with a state-prison, four churches, and an academy. The Harrogate springs, 4 m. of the city are much resorted to. It has a good trade in cotton. Pop. (1853) 3500.

WETWANG par Eng. York 5740 ac. Pop. 750.

WETZEL a vill, in Rhens Prussia, gov and 41 m. E.N.E. Cologne, in a valley 1 bank Lahn. It has walls with six gates, 500 houses, two R. Catholic churches, one of them a fine Gothic cathedral with an ancient portal and several curious monuments, three Protestant churches, a synagogue, and gymnasium, manufactures of leather, button gloves, and tobacco, numerous mills, and a trade in iron. Wetzel is the scene of Goethe's Servants of War. It was at last a free imperial town and the seat of the imperial chamberlain from 1608 to 1740. Pop. (1853) 5153.

WETZEL a vill, in Bohemia, circle Bunzlau, 3 m. from Carlsbude. Pop. 124.

WETZELGHEM a vill and com. Belgium, prov W. Flanders 4 m S.W. Courtrai, 1 bank Yver, with a church, chapel, three schools, three breweries, two mills and two corn mills, and manufactures of lace and cotton fabrics, leather, rope, candles, and oil. Pop. 4159.

WETZLINGHOVEN a vill, in Rhens Prussia, gov and 4 m. Dülse, 1 bank Elbe, with two churches, manufactures of linen, breweries, distilleries, vinegar-works, and 4 saw mills. Pop. (1852) 1182.

WEXFORD a maritime on Ireland, prov Leinster bounded N. by Wexford E. and S. by George's Channel and W. by Waterford, Kilkenny and Carlow, greatest length 55 m, breadth 34 m, area, 576,588 ac. The E. coast is dangerous, being without harbours or other shelter, and with a range of sandbanks near the shore. Off the E. coast are the islands of the Saints, Kinnegore and Kinnegore. The surface is hilly rising into a ridge on the N.W. declivity into a level peninsula to the S.E. The strata belong to the clay-slate formation extending along the E. portion of Ireland. The Fort Mountains near Wexford consist principally of quartz-rock granite appears in many places, and greenstone and porphyry also occur. The chief rivers are the Slaney and Barrow, the latter navigable for large vessels to New Ross and the former for barges to Enniscorthy. The climate is very temperate. The prevailing soil is a light or off grey generally well cultivated and produces oats, wheat, barley and potatoes. Livestock are numerous, and much butter is exported. The fisheries also are important. A small quantity of woollen cloths, checks and coarse linens are manufactured. The co. contains 144 parishes and returns four members to Parliament—two for the county and one each for Wexford and New Ross, the two principal towns. Pop. 179,970.

WEXFORD a port and mun. bor and seaport in Ireland, cap above or picturesquely situated, 1 bank Slaney at its mouth, Wexford Harbour, 73 m. S. Dublin. It is generally built but along the quay and in the more modern streets, are many good houses. The public buildings consist of two established churches, three R. Catholic, and several Protestant dissenting chapels, a county-courthouse, townhall, theatre, union workhouse, hospital, infirmary and prison. The harbour is spacious and of very irregular form. The entrance which is between the extremities of two long narrow sandy peninsulas, is rendered extremely inconvenient by a bank of shifting sand that leaves sufficient water for small craft only. The Slaney opposite the town is crossed by a raised causeway, and a movable wooden bridge in the centre.

The exports in cattle, poultry, butter, grain, and other agricultural produce, are considerable, carried on chiefly by steamers to Liverpool. In 1861 there entered 847 sailing vessels, tonnage 33,551, and 45 steamers, tonnage, 10,434 and three cleared 413 vessels, tonnage, 35,140; and 47 steamers, tonnage, 10,892. Wexford was once surrounded with walls, remains of which, as well as of several ancient ecclesiastical edifices, still exist. It was a member to Parliament. P. 12,810.

WEXHAM par Eng. Bucks 670 ac. Pop. 201.

WEXHÖ or WEXHÖ in Sweden, cap. lin. of same name, sometimes called Kronoberg, on the Bodra, and a little S. of Lake Halsa, 208 m. S.W. Stockholm with a small old cathedral a gymnasium, with a library of 10,000 vols. and a cabinet of minerals and natural history, a handsome Episcopate palace, a governor's house and manufactures of carpets, and paper-mills. Pop. 1844. The last also called Kymnolung, area, 7851 sq. ac. is part of the ancient division of Småland. It is bounded N. by Åm Jönköping, R. Kalmar, S. Carlskrona and Christianstad, and W. Halmstad is well watered, contains several lakes, of which Åmmen, 18 m. long, by 1 m. to 10 m. broad is the chief and extensive forests furnishing fuel to numerous iron-forges, supplied by the rich mines of the district. It is fertile, yielding all the ordinary grain-crops and depositories cattle, of which many are exported. Pop. 12,188.

WEXHÖ a river England rises near Alton in Hampshire flows N. E. past Guildford, and joins the bank Thames below Chertsey after a course of about 40 m. It is navigable to Godalming.

WEXHÖRN par Eng. Norfolk, 1090 ac. P. 801.

WEXHÖRN a vill and par England, co. Surrey on the London and S.W. railway and the Way at its junction with the Thames 20 m. W. S.W. London. It has many elegant seats, a neat church and a R. Catholic chapel. Area of par. 1295 ac. Pop. 1226.

WEXHÖRN a market in Upper Austria, circle Traun about 1 m. from Kasten with a church an hospital barracks, manufactures of thence, and steel and iron works. Pop. 1230.—2 (Öber) A market in Lower Austria, circle Traun near 1 bank Enns with a church, iron mines and manufactures of articles in iron. Pop. 1850.—3 A vill Austria, Styria circle Bruck with a castle. Pop. 1200.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

WEXHÖRN a vill, France, dep. Moselle, 16 m. N. Metz. Pop. 2125.

with interesting ruins of a Cluniacian abbey founded in 1296, and a large and very ancient parish church, with a fine chancel, and some good screen-work.—The PARISH is of great extent, including the parishes of Chithern and numerous parochial chapels. Area of par. 104 889 ac. Pop. 134 196.

WALSLEY one of the Shetland Is. Scotland E. of Mainland about 8 m. long by 3 m. broad, with rocky and deeply-indent ed shores and a bleak and hilly surface. P. 679

WALTON par Eng Northumb 5918 ac. 1 461

WHAMPOA [pronounced Wompoa, 'Yellow Anchor-ree'], a tn. and anchorage China, pleasantly situated E. side of an island of same name at the foot of a green and wooded hill in the river and 12 m. E S.E. of the town of Canton. Its most conspicuous object is a stately pagoda 120 ft. high, built of brick, and commanding from its summit fine views of the varied scenery of the adjacent hills and valleys, and of the extensive and animated navigation. The anchorage extending along a rush of the river nearly 4 m. long, affords a safe and commodious station for the European and American ships, whilst the shallowness of the water and the exclusiveness of the Chinese, concert in detaining here, to receive their cargoes from the factories at Whampo, by means chiefly of country boats called sampans.

WHAMPOA, from Dana's Island.—From Adam's View in China.

WHAI LODI par Eng Lincoln 10 164 ac. 1 2564

WHARF or WHAREZ, a river England rises on borders of Yorkshire flows first S.E. then E. & E. through the beautiful vale of same name, to Tadcaster, where it becomes navigable and about 10 m. below joins the bank Ouse, after a course of about 65 m.

WHARHAM LE SKEET par Eng York 2024 ac. Pop. 181

WHARRAM FERRIS, par Eng York 9017 ac. 1 635

WHATCOTE par Eng Warwick 1400 ac. Pop. 177

WHATFIELD par Eng Suffolk 1570 ac. Pop. 280

WHATLEY par Eng Somerset 1259 ac. Pop. 861

WHATLINGTON, par Eng Sussex 125, ac. 1 458

WHATTON two parts. Eng. —1 Notts 3100 ac. 1 op. 764 —2 (Long) Leicester 7000 ac. 1 op. 838.

WHITLACRE (ALX. SAUNDERS), par Eng. Norfolk, 1103 ac. Pop. 180

WHITLANDHURST par Eng Glouster 1247 ac. P. 330

WHITFORD par Eng. Oxford, 778 ac. Pop. 85.

WHYATHAMSTEAD par Eng Herts, 0089 ac. Pop. 1908.

WHYATHILL, two parts. Eng. —1 Salep, 1410 ac. Pop. 143 —2 Somerset 514 ac. 1 op. 86

WHYATLEY two parts Eng. Notts —1 North 2181 ac. Pop. 427 —2 (South), 641 ac. Pop. 34.

WHYELLY, par Eng. See WELLEY

WHEELING, a tn. U States. Virginia, cry. co. and 1 bank river Ohio, here crossed by a magnificent suspension-bridge, and at the terminus of the Baltimore and Ohio railway 360 m. N.W. Richmond. It is divided by Wheeling Creek into two parts, communicating by a fine stone-bridge and has also churches, several of them handsome; a courthouse, two academies, an institute, a theatre, cotton, saw, paper and flour mills glass-works, a silk factory, a steam-engine factory extensive naileries building yards and a large transit trade. Pop. (1850) 11 829

WHIEERY, or KILLAGALLY par Irel King's co. 17,557 ac. Pop. 8841

WHILBRACKY par Eng York; 4921 ac. Pop. 732

WHILSTETIAH two parts. Eng. Suffolk —1 (Green) 1493 ac. Pop. 552 —2 (White) 597 ac. Pop. 178

WHENNY par Eng York 1010 ac. Pop. 123.

WHEPPELHAD par Eng Suffolk 2370 ac. P. 652

WHYRSTAD par Eng Suffolk 2154 ac. P. 238.

WHIRWELL, par Eng Herts 8546 ac. Pop. 639

WHYTHTON, par Eng Gloucester, 1380 ac. P. 686.

WHICHAM par Eng Cumberland 7002 ac. P. 320

WHITCHFORD par Eng Warwick 3100 ac. P. 741

WHICHAM, a vil and par England co. Durham 5 m. W. S.W. Gateshead, with well built houses an ancient but modernized church with a square tower a Wesleyan chapel an endowed school a toll-hery chemical works, and a patent-anchovy factory. Area of par. 3333 ac. 1 op. 5560

WHILDY, —1, A point, S. Australia, N.W. of Spencer Gulf lat. 34 36 S. lon. 130° 4 E. (a). —2 A group of small islets, N. Australia, about 20 m. off the coast. N.W. of Spencer Gulf lat. 34 47' N. lon. 135° E. (a) WHILDY'S ISLAND, a large isl. U States, Washington territory, S.E. of Vancouver's Island 50 m. long, by 8 m. to 10 m. broad, with extensive and fertile prairies. Water is scarce. Near the middle of the island is the thriving settlement of Jann's Cove.

WHILDY an isl. Ireland co. Cork near the head of Rosty Bay about 3½ m. long and 4 m. to 1 m. broad, with a gently undulating and fertile surface. It has several forts protecting the bay.

WHILJOY par Eng. Northampton 1270 ac. 1 op. 307

WHIMILLY, par Eng Devon 3019 ac. Pop. 701

WHIMFRITH par Eng Norfolk 1241 ac. 1 op. 282

WHITTINGHAM par Hants, 5308 ac. Pop. 3100

WHITSHADE par Eng. Radfordshire 1205 ac. P. 183

WHISHAW, par Eng Warwick 1196 ac. Pop. 289

WHITSENDING, par Eng. Rutland 8270 ac. P. 795

WHITSONPTT par Eng Norfolk 1844 ac. P. 608

WHISTON two parts. Eng. —1 Northampton, 809 ac. Pop. 60 —2 York 1190 ac. Pop. 1050

WHITACRE two parts. Eng. Warwick —1 (Votter) 2310 ac. Pop. 517 —2 (Over) 187, ac. 1 op. 316.

WHITBLAK par Eng Cumberland 5372 ac. P. 217

WHITBOLTON par Eng Hereford 314, ac. P. 846

WHITBURN, a vil and par England co. Durham, on a S. slope, on a fine sandy bay 8 m. N. Sunderland. It has a number of respectable lodging-houses occupied during the bathing-season an ancient but modernized parish church with a good tower a Wesleyan chapel a national school limestone-quarries, and a valuable fishery. Area of par. 4594 ac. Pop. 1208

WHITBURN par Scot. Inverclyde 6 m. by 2 m. 1 3799

WHITBY, a seaport, par. bur. market tn. and par Eng. co. and 48 m. N. N.E. York, at the mouth of the Esk, which divides it into two nearly equal parts, connected by a handsome drawbridge lat. 54 29' 45" N. lon. 0° 36' 45" W. (a). It consists of brick or stone houses, ranged on level acclivities, in narrow, steep streets and has an ancient oriel-form church, on the verge of a lofty cliff seven Dissenting chapels a news-room, assembly rooms public baths a subscription library and a literary and philosophical society. The harbour is spacious and commodious, having 15 ft. to 18 ft. water at spring, and 10 ft. to 12 ft. neap tides wet and dry docks, and slips for ship-building. There are also numerous yards for boat-building, manufacture of sailcloth and ropes, and productive fisheries. The imports consist chiefly of timber wooden wares, hemp and flax from British America and the Baltic. The foreign exports trade is inconsiderable, but the coasting trade is extensive, consisting chiefly in the produce of the aluminous in the vicinity and in large quantities of fro-stones, granitoides, whinstones, breccias, and brownstone. The chief articles imported customwise are groceries, salt, bones, and coal. In 1879 the port obtained the privilege of landing, for which spacious warehouses have been erected. Whitby sends a member to Parliament. Area of port 15,918 ac. Pop. 1,575.

WHITBY or PORT-WHITBY a town and port of entry Canada West, cap. co. and on N shore of Lake Ontario, 28 m E Toronto. It is well built, and has four Protestant churches, several schools, a newspaper, a brewery, a tannery and many saw and flouring mills, a harbour, on which government expended about $25,000 and a large and increasing trade in lumber and agricultural produce. Pop. 1750.

WHITBY-HUMPHREYS, seven parishes Eng.—1 Bucks 1580 ac Pop. 915—2 Devon 5979 ac Pop. 1156—3 Hereford 1400 ac Pop. 642—4 Oxford 2070 ac Pop. 898—5 Somerset 2144 ac Pop. 498—6 Warwick 1942 ac Pop. 257—7 Lancashire, Dorset 6115 ac Pop. 1042.

WHITCHILL two parishes Wales.—1 Glamorgan 3190 ac Pop. 1661—2 Pembrokeshire 3138 ac Pop. 1250.

WHITCHILL (HALL-SAINT) a town and parish England co. Hants. 12 m. N Winchester on the Test. It is irregularly built and has a church with a tower three Dissenting chapels and manufacture of silk. W of it the bank-note paper used by the Bank of England is made here. Area of par. 8142 ac Pop. 1911.

WHITCHILL (or AKHENS) a market town and par. England co. Salop 20 m N of Shrewsbury on a height. It consists of some good streets and houses a fine parish church of the 12th cent. with a square unbattled tower and interesting monuments. Four Dissenting places of worship, a free grammar-school and a charity-school an almshouse an extensive house of industry and a trade principally in malt, hops and shoes. Area of par. 1444 ac Pop. 596.

WHITCOMB (MIDLAND) a par. Eng. co. Leics. 9180 ac Pop. 167.

WHITCOMB, par. Eng. Dorset 540 ac Pop. 61.

WHITE ISLAND off New Zealand North Island in the Bay of Plenty lat 37° 33' N lon 177° 14' E. It is an active volcano, at 1515 ft high always burning and sending forth columns of fire from its summit.

WHITE LAKE Ayrshire par. Eng. Worcester 1230 ac Pop. 346.

WHITE MOUNTAINS part of a range, U. States which lie off from the Alleghenies, forming the water-shed between the Connecticut and the Merrimack, and then stretches E beyond the sources of the latter river. It extends about 20 m S W to N E with an average breadth of about 10 m and has its culminating point in Mount Washington 6496 ft. It is composed chiefly of gneiss and mica-schist, with an intermixture of granite and greenstone is remarkable for the grandeur of its scenery, and furnishes the sources of some of the finest rivers of N. England.

WHITE-NOTLEY par. Eng. Essex 2224 ac Pop. 515.

WHITE RIVER, several rivers U. States.—1 Vermont an affluent of the Connecticut.—2 Arkansas formed by three small streams F. of Fayetteville. It flows N E into Missouri makes a considerable circuit and returns S E into Arkansas and empties the Mississippi about 15 m above the mouth of the Arkansas. Total course about 800 m, of which 250 m on the mouth of the Black River its chief affluent are navigable by steamers.—3 Michigan, an affluent of Lake Michigan.—4 Indiana, formed by E. and W. Fork. Flows S W about 50 m. and falls into the Wabash 135 m S W Indianapolis.

WHITE SEA (Latin, Sinus Groenlandicus Russian, Belor-Mor French Mer Glacée German Weisse Meer) a branch of the Arctic or icy Ocean in the N W of the Russian gov. Archangel lat 68° 46' to 69° 50' N lon. 24° 30' to 45° E. It is formed by Cape Vityaz on the W. and Cape Kanna on the E. between which the distance is 100 m. and stretches first due E. and then S W for a total length of about 480 m. It is of very irregular shape, branching off at the large bays of Mezen in the E. Archangel in the N, Onega in the S W, and Kandalaksha in the W. contains in addition to a great number of islands, the considerable group of Solovetsky, in the mouth of the Bay of Onega has in the E bold and rocky and in the W low and marshy shores and receives numerous rivers, of which the most important are the Mezen, N. Dvina Onega Vyg, Kemi and Kamenna. The sea is navigable by the largest ships, and possesses within it the important harbour of Archangel not far from the mouth of the Dvina. It is frozen usually from September to July.

WHITE-SOURCE SPRINGS, a celebrated watering-place, 1 State Virginia, on a branch of the Greenbrier, 206 m W by N Richmond. The springs, in an elevated and picturesque valley bounded in by mountains of the Alleghany chain contain chiefly sulphates and carbonates of lime and magnesia sulphurated hydrogen carbonic acid, nitrogen and oxygen. They are considered very efficacious in liver-complaint, scrofula, rheumatism and nervous affections and annually attract thousands of visitors.

WHITE-WATERMAN par. Eng. Sussex 2576 ac Pop. 983.

WHITE-WOOD an m. U. States, co. Ben-Huron.

WHITBY-HAI FLA. a par. England, Middlesex forming an E. suburb of London. It extends continuously nearly 1 m from Aldgate E. to Mile-End and has, among its principal objects of note London hospital, the Sailor's Home, a famous butcher market, a large distillery of British spirits and compounds extensive cigar-factories, and still more extensive sugar-refineries. Area, 174 ac Pop. 57,845.

WHITEHURCH par. Wales Pemb., 2481 ac Pop. 349.

WHITECHURCH several parishes. Ire.—1 Dublin 2872 ac Pop. 1276—2 Kilbarr., 3160 ac Pop. 269.

3. Kilkeny 2187 ac Pop. 657—4 Wexford 6342 ac Pop. 1186—5 Cork 10,515 ac Pop. 2,457—6, Tipperary 3,222 ac Pop. 1210—7 Waterford 5652 ac Pop. 2672.

WHITECHURCHGLYNN par. Ire. Wexford 7198 ac Pop. 1699.

WHITE-CATP a fishing-vill Ireland co. and about 11 m E. R. E. Cork on the S.E. side of Cork Harbour Pop. 1228.

WHITEGALL par. Eng. Chester 4394 ac Pop. 1529.

WHITEHALL, a town U. States, New York previously situated at the S. end of Lake Champlain 77 m N by E Albany where the Champlain canal from Albany and Troy opens into it, and at the junction of several important lines of railway. It has several churches three academies, and other public buildings numerous warehouses, regulated by the extensive transit and commission trade saw and flour mills, a woolen factory a machine-shop a tannery dry docks and building yards. Whitehall is on the great thoroughfare between New York and Canada, and has splendid steamers plying regularly to the Canadian port of St. John's and thence continued by another line of steamers to Montreal Pop. (1850) 4725.

WHITE-HAVEN a seaport, par. lor and market town, England co. Cumberland on a creek at the mouth of the Sulway Firth lat 54° 53' N lon 2° 30' W 36 m S W. Carls at the junction of the Whitehaven and Maryport, and the Whitehaven and Carlisle railway. It has straight, well kept and some spacious streets four Established and 11 Dissenting churches a civil and savings bank courthouses and brickwell marine, national and other schools, an infirmary fever hospital a mechanics institute, a subscription library manufactures of sailcloth ropes anchors, brassware thread and leather and building yards. There are several iron-works in the vicinity. The staple export is coal but homestead iron ore, cattle and provisions, are now largely shipped. Several large vessels are employed in importing West India American and Baltic produce, but the great bulk of the trade is carried on by coasters. In 1844 20 sailing vessels, of 5936 tons, entered from foreign countries and British colonies, and 51 vessels of 5184 tons cleared for the same and coastwise, 720 sailing vessels of 20,616 tons and 230 steamers, of 47,491 tons entered and 7943 sailing vessels, of 281,870 tons, and 414 steamers, of 101,185 tons, cleared with cargoes. Whitehaven sends a member to Parliament. Pop. 14,190.

WHITEHOF Ayrshire a vill Ireland co. Antrim, on the W. shore of Belfast Lough, and the Belfast railway 4 m N by E. Belfast, with cotton-mills and paintworks. Pop. 9286.

WHITEKIRK and TRININGHAM, par. Scot. Niddington 5 m by 4 m Pop. 1131.

WHITELETS, a vill Scotland co. and about 1½ m E. N. E. Ayr inhabited chiefly by collars. Pop. 754.

WHITEPARISH par. Eng. Wilts; 6284 ac Pop. 1391.

WHITESBOROUGH a vill, U. States, New York, on the Mohawk and on the Central railroad, 4 m. N W Utica with four churches, two academies, and several factories Pop. 2200.

WHITESTAUNTON with EAMSON par Eng. Somer set. 1800 ac. Pop. 861

WHITESOME par Eng. Devon; 4077 ac. Pop. 624
WHITFIELD D. three par. Eng. — 1 Kent 893 ac.
Pop. 210 — 2 Northampton 1210 ac. Pop. 328 — 3, Nor thumberland 12 1/2 ac. Pop. 340

WHITFORD, par Wales Flint 14,065 ac. P. 8894

WHITGIFT, par Eng. York 8928 ac. Pop. 2394.

WHITHORN, a royal burgh and par Scotland co and 10 m S. Wigton. It is well built and has a parish, a Free, and two Dissenting churches, and a R. Catholic chapel, a court-house and jail several schools, and a public subscription library. With Wigton, &c. it sends a member to Parliament.

WHITHORN a small island, Scotland S.E. coast of Wigton 8 m. N.N.E. Burrow Head. It is connected by a causeway with the mainland and has a small harbour with some shipping and trade.

WILLKIRK, a vil. and par. England, co York, 4 m. E. Leeds. It has a spacious church with a lofty embattled and pinnacled tower forming a conspicuous object at a distance, a Wesleyan chapel an endowed school and several cottages. Area of par. 6580 ac. Pop. 3794.

WHITTINGHAM par Eng. Norfolk, 549 ac. Pop. 19

WHITTFORE, par Eng. Stafford 2023 ac. Pop. 377

WHITNASEL par Eng. Warwick 1344 ac. Pop. 346

WHITNEY par Eng. Hereford 1483 ac. Pop. 232

WHITSBURY, par Eng. Wilt 1850 ac. Pop. 170

WHITSMOKE and HILTON par Scot. Berwick 4 m by 3 m Pop. 612

WHITSON, par Eng. Monmouth 1074 ac. Pop. 78.

WHITSTABLE, a vil. and par. England co Kent on a bay, near the entrance to the East Swale, and opposite to the Isle of Sheppey, and on the Whitstable and Canterbury railway 5 m. W. W. Canterbury. It has a parish church, Independent and Wesleyan chapels, extensive oyster fisheries and a large general trade, carried on partly by boys, which ply regularly to London. Area of par. 4070 ac. 1 op. 2746.

WHITSTON, two par. Eng. — 1 Cornwall 2787 ac. Pop. 425 — 2 Devon 4077 ac. 1 op. 624

WHITTSUNDAY ISLAND R. Pacific Ocean, Low Archipelago Isl. (N. W. point) 13° 24' S. 168° 36' W. [n.] It is 14 m long, of coral formation, steep all round and contains a lagoon.

WHITTINGHAM, par Eng. Northumberland 17 484 ac. Pop. 1905

WHITTINGHAM, par Scot. Haddington 11 m by 4 m Pop. 871

WHITTINGTON, a vil. and par. England Shropshire, near the Ellesmere canal 3 m. E. E. Oswestry with an ancient church with a tower a chapel of ease, two Dissenting chapels, and the remains of an ancient border-fortress which figures in early English history Pop. 1827 Area of par. 6256 ac.

WHITTINGTON four par. Eng. — 1 Derby 2640 ac. 1 op. 874. — 2 Gloucester 1424 ac. 1 op. 298 — 3 Lancaster 4332 ac. Pop. 414 — 4, Stafford 2021 ac. Pop. 809

WHITTLESEA-WOODS, a vil. and township, England, co Lancashire, on the Leeds and Liverpool canal in a beautiful and romantic district, with a handsome church Wesleyan and R. Catholic chapels, an endowed school several almshouses, large malting-estab. millments, a cotton mill chemical-works, and extensive quarries which produce excellent graining stones for Sheffield and other districts 1 op. 2310

WHITTELEBY par Eng. Northampton 2870 ac. 1 op. 507

WHITTLSEY a small in England Isle of Ely co Cambridge, 6 m. E. by S. Peterborough. It has three Established churches, four Dissenting chapels, two endowed schools and a public library Pop. 5472

WHITTLSEY (St. Andrew and St. Mary united), par Eng. Cambridge 25,181 ac. Pop. 7687

WHITTLSEYFORD, par Eng. Cambridge 1915 ac. Pop. 712

WHITTON, two par. Eng. — 1 Lincoln, 2440 ac. Pop. 180. — 2 (near Thetford) Suffolk 1459 ac. Pop. 478

WHITTON par Wales, Radnor 1549 ac. Pop. 118

WHITWELL, four par. Eng. — 1 Derby 4880 ac. Pop. 1855 — 2 Hants 1963 ac. Pop. 637 — 3, Norfolk, 1511 ac. Pop. 477. — 4, Rutland 802 ac. Pop. 139

WHITWICK, a m. and par. England, co. Leicester, on the Leicester and Swannington railway 5 m. E.S.E. Ashby with an ancient church with a tower Baptist, Primitive, and Wesleyan chapels, and R. Catholic chapel, a monastery of the monks of La Trappe, an endowed and several Sunday schools, extensive collieries, and lime-works. Area of par. 6220 ac. Pop. 4806

WHITWORTH, par Eng. Durham 1405 ac. Pop. 659
WHIXLEY a vil. and par. England co and 11 m. W. N. W. York. It has a church with a square embattled tower a Wesleyan chapel and a well-endowed hospital. Area of par. 2470 ac. Pop. 1011

WHIXOLE, par Eng. Suffolk 500 ac. Pop. 168

WHITTON par Eng. York, 3690 ac. Pop. 865.

WHYDAH or WHIDAH, a dist. and in W. Africa, Delamere on Right of Benue 80 m. S. Abomey lat. 6° 54' N. lon. 2° 5' E. (n.) The district is extremely fertile, level, and in many places well cultivated. The houses are clean and comfortable, and are often situated in most romantic and picturesque situations. — The town 100 m. W. Lagos, was one of the largest on this part of the coast, but was burned down in 1862. In the ruins were found the charred remains of 150 slaves, who had been chained together by the neck, ready for shipping, and had been unable to escape. I aim oil ivory and salt the last of which is made here are the principal articles of trade. It is one of the most notorious slave ports on the coast of Africa.

WIASMA a tu. Russia. See YAKNA

WIASNIA, a tu. Russia. See VASNIA

WIDLINGWORTH, a vil. Presby. prov. Westphalia, gov. and 22 m. W. S. W. Arnberg with a church, and main factories of hardware Pop. 1239

WIDREBY, or WIDREBY, a m. Denmark prov. N. Jutland cap. haid. and on a lake of same name 24 m. W. Randers. It has a large cathedral first founded in the 12th century with a crypt supported by 18 granite-piers another church a cathedral school an arsenal a building in which the provincial estates meet, a well-endowed hospital and an extensive trade, owing partly to its central position, which also gives it military importance. It is the oldest town in the province, and rich in historical recollections. The Reformation was introduced into it in 1528. Pop. 3800

WIDREBY or WIDREBY (Finnish, Weggew) a tu. Russia, Finland on a bay in the Gulf of Finland 79 m. N. W. St. Petersburg. It is strongly fortified both by nature and art presents from the sea a very imposing appearance is regularly built; spacious streets and has the ruins of a fine old castle situated on an isolated rock in an arm of the sea a R. Catholic, a Greek, and three Protestant churches, a gymnasium hospital and vaccine establishment, and a considerable trade in timber, shell, tar, tallow and fish. The water near the town is very shallow the port harbour, distant about 6 m., at the small island of St. Michael, is of great extent with a natural breakwater formed by two islands. Pop. 2500

WIDRIK, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. Luxembourg, 36 m. N. Arlon with manufacture of leather and flour mills. Pop. 1194

WICHHELEN, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. Flanders, on the Scheldt 11 m. E. by S. Ghent. It is well built, and has a church, chapel, townhouse, primary school two breweries, a distillery manufactures of linen soap, leather and oil, and a trade in cattle and grain. Pop. 4177

WICHEAFORD par Eng. Worcester 2509 ac. P. 336

WICK a royal and par. bor. seaport, and par. Scotland, cap. co Caithness. The town is situated at the head of the Bay of Wick, 1 bank river Wick over which is a handsome bridge, connecting it with its suburb Pulteney-Town. It consists chiefly of two straight and well kept streets, with substantial stone-houses is lighted with gas, but insufficiently supplied with water and has an Established, two Free, and five Dissenting churches, a courthouse, townhall Pulteney Town academy and many other schools, and a large export in herring. The staple employment is the herring fishery employing upwards of 800 boats, and 5000 men and boys. Along with Cromarty &c. it sends a member to Parliament. Pop. 11,881

WICK par Wales, Glamorgan 1870 ac. Pop. 404.
WICK and Anson, par Eng Gloucester, 2315 ac. 1 898.
WICK (St LAWRENCE), par Eng Somerset, 1900 ac.
Pop. 800

WICKEN, three pars Eng 1-1, Cambridge, 8812 ac.
1 op 1054-2 Northampton, 2280 ac. Pop. 437-3.
[Domesd] Essex 841 ac. 1 op. 150.

WICKENDY par Eng Lancs 1907 ac. Pop. 289
WICKENOE, a vil. Home-Land, Netherlands,
10 m. S. E. of the Hague with a church and alum and vitrol works. Pop. 1076.

WICKERSLEY par Eng York 1780 ac. P 700
WICKFORD par Eng Essex 1758 ac. Pop. 490
WICKHAM a vil. and par England co Southampton

4 m. S. E. Bishop's-Waltham It is the birthplace of William of Wykeham, the magnificent founder of Westminster school and an Oxford college. Area of par, 2433 ac 1 op 1043

WICKHAM six pars Kent, —1 (St Paul), Essex
1925 ac. Pop. 47-2 (St Paul), Suffolk, 1770 ac. 1 op 616-3 (Hart), Kent, 8645 ac. Pop. 732-4, (West) Cambridge 2937 ac. 1 op. 570-5 (Buckley) Essex 1531 ac.
1 op. 577-6, (St Paul) Kent 885 ac. 1 op. 668.

WICKHAM (MAREK) a vil. and par England, co. Suff. folk on a slope above the Devon 12 m. N. E. Ipswich. It has a parish church with an octagonal tower and spire forming a conspicuous landmark. An independent chapel an enclosed school and workhouse. Area of par 1174 ac. P 1097
WICKHAMPTON par Eng Kent 3310 ac. 1 461
WICKHAMPTON par Eng Suff, 4348 ac. P 1507
WICKHAMFORD par Eng Wore 1241 ac. P 149
WICKHAMPTON, par Eng Norfolk 1605 ac. P 131

WICKHAMWOOD par Eng, Norfolk 1564 ac. P 891
WICKLOW a maritime co. Ireland, prov. Leinster bounded N. by co. Dublin, E. St. George's Channel S. co. Wexford, W. Carlow and K. Clare greatest length, 40 m. breadth 33 m. area, 781 sq. m. The coast is mostly precipitous and dangerous from sandbanks. The surface is diversified and picturesque in its uneven groups the highest of which is Luganquilla 3039 ft. high and is covered by deep and romantic valleys. The sea cliffs and most of the interior of the county consist of clay-slate the central mountains have a nucleus of granite protruding through the slate. Wicklow is the only Irish county which has no limestone. Its minerals include a little gold in the streams and copper ores and pyrites in considerable quantities. The principal rivers are the Slaney, Varrey and Oveco. The climate is exceedingly mild and agreeable. The principal agricultural products are oats, potatoes, and some wheat. The pastures are extensive but the fisheries are neglected. The peasantry of this county are quiet and industrious, and are said to be generally handsome with human profiles. Wicklow returns two members to Parliament, both for the county. Its chief towns are Wicklow, the cap. Arklow and Ballyglass. Pop.

98,979

WICKLOW, a superb in Ireland cap above co. on a small bay at the mouth of the Varrey, here crossed by a bridge of eight arches, 20 m. S. E. Dublin. It has narrow streets, a county gaol, a jail, infirmary fever hospital parish church, St. Catholic Methodist and Quaker chapels dormitory and parish schools harbour with only 9 ft. water at springs some imports of timber iron, coal and limestone, and exports of copper-ore and corn 1 op. 3141

WICKMILL, par Eng Norfolk 1 op. 302

WICKWARR, a market vil. and par England, co. and 11 m. S. W. Gloucester. It contains chiefly of a main street, with tolerable stone-houses and has a church, two Dissenting chapels, and an endowed grammar-school Area of par, 2307 ac. 1 op. 906

WIDDERN a in Wurttemberg circle Nucker 6 m. N.
Oettingen, with two castles and six-towers. 1 op. 1419

WIDDIA Widen or Viden, a in. Thuley Europe
Bulgaria, cap. camp of same name on a wide plain formed by a sweep of E bank Danube, opposite to Kalofer in Walcuta and 190 m. S. E. Belgrade. It is in the form of an irregular pentagon with a double line of fortifications, and batteries which reach down to the river, and, both from its strength and its admirable position, covering the approaches of Servia, and the road through Nissa and Sophia to Adrianople, and commanding Little Walcuta and the defiles of Transylvania, is regarded as one of the most important military stations in Turkey. Its appearance at a distance is very imposing, but its interior by no means attractive. It consists of a tolerably well-built inner town, inhabited exclusively by Turks and a very indifferent outer or Christian town. Its principal buildings are the pasha's palace, several mosques with tall minarets, and a range of barracks lining the main street. The trade is chiefly in corn, wool, and salt. In 1689 the Turks were signally defeated by the Imperialists before the walls of Widdin and in 1834 under cover of its guns the Ottoman army crossed the Danube, which is here about 1 m. wide, and strongly entrenched themselves on an island close to Kalofer. This town, which may thus be considered as an outwork of Widdin is walled, and consists of about 2000 houses, including three churches, a townhouse, custom house, quarantine and cavalry barracks. On two heights in its plain the Turks created very extensive and formidable redoubts

1 op. of Widdin about 25,000

WIDDINGTON par Eng Essex, 2038 ac. Pop. 447
WIDDE BAY a bay New S. Wales, entering between Great Sandy Island and Double Island, lat. 25° 50' S. It receives the river Mary

WIDECOMBE in THE MOOR, par Eng Devon,
10,614 ac. Pop. 974

WIDFORD three pars Eng. —1 Essex 892 ac. Pop.
181-2 Herts, 1137 ac. P 519-3 Oxford 564 ac. 1 43

WIDLEY par Eng Hants 1890 ac. Pop. 565
WIDMERPOOL, par Eng Notts, 2190 ac. P 147

WIDMAY a vil. and par Switzerland can. St. Gall near the Rhine with a St. Catholic parish church, and a St. Catholic and a Protestant school 1 op. 1052

WIDNES, a vil. and township, England co. Lancaster beautifully situated on the Mersey near the London and N. W. railway 6 m. S. E. W. Warrington with a church, a Wesleyan and a St. Catholic chapel, the latter a very handsome structure and a national school 1 op. 3217

WIDWORTHY par Eng. Devon 1437 ac. Pop. 192
WIDZISLAW a town Prussia prov. Posen, 1079 ac. Pop. 148 at the confluence of the Oderbach with the Wisa. It has a parish church the works, and a mill 1 op. 1277

WIDY a vil. Brunswick circle Blankenburg 4 m.
N. W. W. Walkenried with a church, an iron-furnace, and a saw-mill 1 op. 1129

WIDENBLICK a in Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 40 m. S. W. Minden, on the bank here crossed by four bridges. It has four gates three churches, a burgher-school a Lutheran monastery hospital manufactures of woolen hosiery and tobacco and a trade in yarn 1 2697 WIDENBACH, a vil. Switzerland can. and close to the botanical garden of Zurich. Pop. 1841

WIDEP a in. Prussia prov. Saxony, gov. and 27 m.
S. W. Merseburg in a valley near the Unstrut, with two churches and a castle 1 op. 1948

WIDKOWICZ a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 22 m. E. S. E. Antwerp on the Wippe with manufactures of linen, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1030.

WIELICHOVO a in Prussia, prov. Posen, circle Kos-tow with a St. Catholic church. Pop. 1895.

WIELICZKA a in Austria, Galicia, pleasantly situated,
8 m. S. E. Cracow. It is irregularly but substantially built and has a spacious market-place, a castle a high school, and extensive salt-mines, considered among the richest in the world and employing most of the inhabitants. 1 op. 4616

WIELSKI Kt., a vil. and com. Belgium prov. Flanders, 1 bank 1 ym. 18 m. S. Bruges with manufactures of linen a brewery, and a distillery. Pop. 1954

WIELUN a in Russian Poland, 45 m. N. E. Kalisz, with five churches, a larat college, 3 gymnasiums, monastery, and old monastery Pop. (1841) 4014.

WIELUNO a in Austria, prov. Styria, 1 op. 1419

WIELUNO a in Austria, prov. Styria, 1 op. 1419
WIELUNO, Lower Austria, widely, breaking off from the Styrian Alps near the humming strathes N. N. E. across the valley of the Danube between Vienna and St. Pölten. It is about 70 m. long, by 10 m. broad densely wooded, and 2297 ft. to 2625 ft. high. It gives its name to the Upper and Lower Wienerwald, two circles of Lower Austria

WIFPZ, a river Russian Poland, issues from a lake
8 S. P. of Zamoz, flows N. N. W. past Leszna, then W. past

Kook and Botrowski and after a course of about 140 m. joins R bank Vielda, 60 m. S.E. Warsaw

WIERDE, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 4 m. S.E. Name on a stream of same name. It has limekilns, and some trade, and a bed of pipe-clay. Pop. 1168

WIERDEN a vil. Holland, prov. Overijssel, 18 m. N.E. Deventer with two churches and a school. Pop. (agricultural), 1704

WIERINGEN an isl. Holland, prov. N. Holland in the Friesland-sea, 11 m. S.E. the Halder about 11 m. N.E. to S.W. by 3 m. broad. It is protected from the sea by dikes, strengthened by a sea-grass called mer whence the name of the island. It is fertile, yields all kinds of grain, and has excellent meadows, on which numerous sheep depasture, from whom milk a considerable quantity of cheese is made. Wieringen lambs are much prized. Besides agriculture, a few of the inhabitants are employed in fishing and sea-faring. It contains the villages of Hylpeltshoek which is the chief one, and Oever Oosterland Broed and Waterland. Pop. 1605

WIERZ, a vil. and com. Belgium prov. Malmont, on the canal of Antwerp, 22 m. W. Mous; with two flour-mills and some trade. Pop. 3340

WIERZBOLOW, or WYRZALEN a tn. Russian Poland toward Augustow, near the Prussian frontier, 40 m. N. Suwalki with an old monastery, and a transit trade. P. 1630

WIESSBADEN [anc. Aquis Mattiacae] the esp. city of duchy Nassau, beautifully situated among vineyards and orchards, in the valley of the Balzbach and on the railway to Mainz and Frankfurt, 28 m. W. S. W. Frankfurt. It was once walled and is indifferently built with only one principal street which can be considered handsome in the residences of the duke and the seat of government and annually attracts about 15,000 visitors from all parts of Europe by its baths which were well known to the Romans. The most remarkable edifices is the Kurhaus consisting chiefly of a large and splendid saloon forming the E. side of a square, while the N. and S. sides are lined by colonnades, filled with gay shops, and ending in a promenade and a terrace. The other buildings of note are a very ancient townhouse, an old and a new palace, a Protestant and a R. Catholic church, industry and artillery barracks a library of 50,000 volumes, a museum, mint, mil-

WIESELBURG, or Mosort, a market tn. Hungary esp. co. of same name, R. bank Leitha, 21 m. S.E. Pressburg with manufactures of woollen cloth a saltpetre refinery and important corn markets from which Vienna is chiefly supplied. Pop. 8000.—The com. is about 18 m. E. to W., by 20 m. broad is almost throughout a rich and fertile plain with Lake Neusiedel on the W. and the large morass of Hau sag on its S. boundary. Pop. 35,200

WIESENBROUN a vil. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, near Kitzingen; with a church a ruined castle and a trade in wine, corn, and fruit. Pop. 1080

WIESENSTEIG, a tn. Wurtemberg circle Donau, on the Rh. 20 m. N. W. Ulm, with a church, a castle, manufactures of musical instruments and a paper-mill. Pop. 1596

WIESENTHAL a vil. Bohemia, circle Jung-Bunzlau, about 10 m. from Kolohabar with a school manufactures of glass and glass beads and polishing and other mills. P. 1720

WIESENTHAL, a market tn. Bavaria, Lower Franconia, 20 m. E. N. E. Würzburg with a church chapel and castle and a trade in corn, hops, and fruit. Pop. 1091

WIESELKOPF a tn. Baden circle Lower Rhine, on the Linbach, 16 m. S.E. Mannheim and on the railway to Carlsruhe, with a church and old ducal palace, now used as a state-prison. Pop. 2721

WIEZEL, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. E. Flanders 18 m. E. S. E. Ghent. It has a distillery, a thread mill, a brick-work and some trade. Pop. 1803

WIGAN a market tn. and mun. and pari. bor. England, Lancashire, 17 m. W. N. W. Manchester on the Douglas, which has been made navigable to its junction with the Ribble, on the Leeds and Liverpool canal and on the North Union and other connecting lines of railway. It consists of an old town, built chiefly on the right and the more modern suburb of Scholes on the left bank and communicating with it by a bridge. Both are irregularly and indifferently built, and though many improvements have been made, and even entire streets of good houses have risen up the general appearance of the town continues to be by no means prepossessing. It is lighted with gas, and well supplied with water. The objects most deserving of notice are the original parish church, a stately structure with a handsome square tower and a spacious and handsome interior. St. Catherine's church, on the opposite side of the river, with an elegant spire several other fine trout churches and chapels connected with the Establishment, or belonging to the Presbyterian Wesleyan Methodists Independents, Baptists and R. Catholics grammar blue coat, national, infant, and Sunday schools, a mechanics institute, a library and museum, townhall and jail, dispensary, &c. An extensive and valuable coal field round the town and the easy means of transit by water and railway give peculiar facilities for manufactures, which are carried on to a large extent, and consist chiefly of cottons, flannels and other cotton goods, linens, cloths, cotton twist, &c. In addition to these, are manufactures of spades and edge tools various articles in brass and pewter iron-foundries, chemical works, and corn and paper mills. From the junction of three Roman roads at Wigan, it is supposed to occupy the site of a Roman station but seems rather to owe its origin to a castle built during the Saxon period and said to have tery and ordinary hospitals, a theatre a pedagogical and other schools. The springs, which are alkaline, and among the most powerful of their class are very numerous, and have temperatures varying from 118° to 156° Fah. The last is the tem perature of the Kockbrunnen the principal spring, which seems in violent ebullition, from the vast quantity of carbonic acid gas which is continually rising and escaping in bubbles. Pop. 12,259

WIESSBADEN.—From Lange, Annalen von Deutschland.

WIESS, Wiesner, or WYSS, a river, rises on the Feldberg, in the S. of Baden, and flows about 45 m., first S. W., then W. S. W., and joins R. bank Rhine about 2 m. below Basel.

WIESS (Gaisbach), a vil. Prussia, prov. Silesia, gov. Oppeln, circle Neustadt, on the Prodnika with a castle and two mills. Pop. 1504.

VOL. II

been the scene of some sanguinary struggles between the Saxon and native Britons. It is a borough by prescription. During the great Civil war Wigan as one of the principal stations of the Royalists, suffered from a series of struggles between them and the Parliamentarians. It is governed by a mayor 9 aldermen, and 80 councillors, and sends two members to the House of Commons. Pop. of bor., 51,941 Area of par., 28,493 ac. Pop. 63,887

WIGHOROUGH two par. Eng. Essex.—1 (Great) 2830 ac. Pop. 471.—2 (Little) 1168 ac. Pop. 89

WIGGENHALL, four par. Eng. Norfolk.—1, (St. German's) 1219 ac. Pop. 760.—2 (St. Mary Magdalen) 4948 ac. Pop. 845.—3 (St. Mary the Virgin) 3907 ac. Pop. 325.—4 (St. Peter's) 944 ac. Pop. 163

WIGGINGTON thros para. Eag. — 1 Herts; 1682 no.
Pop. 643. — 2, Oxford 1780 an. Pop. 314 — 3, York
1485 no. Pop. 874.

WIGGONHOLT per Eng Saxx, 841 ac Pop 39.
WIGHILL per Eng York 2588 ac. Pop. 296.

England, and on cypresses to mainland of Hants, being separated from it by the road of Spitham on the E., and by the "Valent on the W." It is of a rhomboidal form about 23 m. long E. to W. by 15 m broad, extent, about 70 m. area, 164 sq m. Some of the coast, particularly of the E. area, is high, and terminate in steep cliffs overhanging a beach covered with vast fragments of rock, where the waves have undermined and thrown down. The whole series of the strata is composed of a soft, yellowish, micaceous, and argillaceous, loam clays, consisting chiefly of chalk in the outer strata, by the immediately ascending strata in the N. and the immediately descending strata in the S. and S.E. The general appearance of the country is exceedingly diversified presenting a constant succession of hills and dale, intermingled with woody tracts and well-cultivated lands. The air is luxuriantly salubrious, and its mildness is evinced by the numerous growth of myrtles and other delicate plants in the open air. The district called a lindisfar has long been much resorted to by pulmonary invalids. Only a small portion of the surface is covered with water, and the numerous islands, which are of excellent br-synkla, separate it into two districts, within their general character contrast with each other and the soil on the N. side being generally a stiff cold clay and on the S. side a fertile sandy loam. On the N. side the prevailing rotation is fallow wheat oats clover for one rarely two years on the S. side the Norfolk or four-course system of turnips, barley clover and wheat. The principal exports are wheaten flour and wheat and some admirably adapted for the mass manufacture of glass and porcelain. The Lake of Wight runs N. and S. for 12 m. and is 1 m. broad, and is bounded by the (the capital) East and West Cottes Wyke, Newton Bradley and Yarmouth. Among its waters, the most interesting WIGRY a lake, Russian Poland, wolved Augustowo, about 6 m S.E. Suwalki, greatest length, N to S. 6 m; mean breadth, rather more than 1 m. On an island in the lake, approached by an embankment is a fine old monastery, now the residence of the Bishop of Lithuania.

WIGSTON MAGNA a vil and par England, co and 8 m S.E. Leicester on the Leicester canal and the Midland railway with a parish church, an Independent chapel a lunatic asylum, an hospital and manufactures of stockings. Area of par 2780 ac. Pop. 2441

WIGLOFT, par Eng Lincoln 8300 sq. Pop 741

WIGTON or WISTONTHORPE, a maritime town Scotland occupying its SW extremity; bounded, W and S, by the Irish Sea, N Argyshire, and E Kirkcubright area, 380 700 sq. m. of which about one-third is occupied arable. The coast is indented by numerous deep and spacious bays of which Wighton Lunc, and Loch Ryan are the most important. The surface is hilly but the heights vary only from 400 ft. to 900 ft. The chief rivers are the Cree and Bladnoch, both partially navigable. Generally the surface is well adapted for pasture and the chief crops are corn, oats, and barley. The town extends from W. Wigton and Port William to the Burrow Head the Rhymys, comprising the peninsula formed by Loch Ryan and the Bay of Lunc terminating in the Moll of Galloway on the S and Corneval Point on the N; and the Moors, or upper district. The soil of the first two is for the most part a luxuriant loam dry and well adapted for the turnip-husbandry, near the town of Wighton there is a considerable extent of rich alluvial land. The Moors are bleak and barren. Oats and barley are the principal crops wheat, alone, and potatoes are largely cultivated. The breezy cattle so-called the "Wigton country" yields a much inferior quality of wool to that of Wighton. Withlithon and Stranraer unite with that of New Galloway in Kirkcubright, in returning a member. Pop. 42,389

WIGTON?, a royal and port bar and seaport, Scotland, on above on a hill above the W side of Wighton Bay 94 m. SW Edinburgh. It has three main streets straight and well kept an Established church, a Free and a P. Presby-terian church a normal and other schools, two libraries, and a clothing-society handsome county buildings with a beautiful spire, a county prison, and an elegant Gothic market-cross of granite. The harbour is distant about 10 miles from the mouth of the Solway Firth. The district is agricultural produce. Along with Withlithon &c, it sends a member to Parliament. Pop. 2131

WIGTON, a market tn. and par. England, co. Cumberland, on a gentle acclivity 10 m. S. E. Carlisle, with which it is connected by railway. It consists of two main streets, with a central market-place; it is well built of stone, and has an elegant parish church, four Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, an hospital for six indigent widows of Protestant soldiers, a mechanics institute, for which a neat Corinthian edifice has been built; extensive manufactures of gunghams and checks, &c.

Excavations near Warton. See p. 11800. s. P. 4292

WILHERIES, a vil and com Belgium, prov Hainaut, 2 m. S.W. Mons, with manufactures of tobacco, two breweries, and a trade in agricultural Eng. 1614

WIJCHEN a vil Holland, prov Gelderland, 6 m. S W Nijmegen, with two churches, two schools, and a fine old quadrangular castle, with an ornamental tower in the centre, and surrounded by a broad ditch. Pop. (agricultural) 336

WIJFF a vil Holland, prov Overijssel, 9 m N De venter, on the IJssel, here crossed by a ferry. It has a church and school considerable manufactures of Bologna sausages and smoked meat, brick-kilns, linseed-oil mills, and a good general trade. Pop. 11,840.

WILK or WILKING HEDENBACH a vil. Holland, prov N Brabant, 11 m W N W Hertogenbosch, with a church and a school. Inhabitants engaged in agriculture, and in horses and cattle rearing. Pop. 1939 — (De Wilk) A vil., prov Drenthe. 80 m S S W Assen. Pop. 640.

WIJK bij Dronkxstede, commonly called simply Wijk, a m. Holland, prov. and 12 m. S.W. Utrecht, on the Rhine, at the point where it takes the name of Lek. It is surrounded by a ditch and old walls, now converted into agreeable promen-

CARRISBROOK CASTLE, FLY OF WIGHT — James MacGill Hamilton

In Carlebrook Castle, which stands a little S.W. of Newport and through which now runs only a heap of picturesque ruins, many of our best-loved historical associations. It is supposed to have originally been the fortress of the Britons, was afterwards repaired and enlarged by the Romans, was considerably strengthened by a general of Cordus, who founded the kingdom of the West Saxons, received many improvements from Pto-Embar, one of the principal knights of William the Conqueror, was rebuilt by Richard de Livers, Earl of Devonshire, in the reign of Henry I., and in the reign of Edward IV., passed to the crown. During the last civil war it became the asylum of Charles I. on his escape from Hampton court, and afterwards his prison. The castle and the grounds around it, forming a beautiful and commanding promenade, cover about 30 acres.

POP. 50,824

WIGHTON par Eng Norfolk 2032 sq. l'on 582

WIGMORE, per Eng. Hereford $441 ac. Page 49

WIGNEHIES a vil Frances, dep. Nord 9 m. N Avenues with blackfields and worsted-mills. Pop. 1455 and has four gates a large elegant market-place, a castle townhouse, two churches, a synagogue, a neat town-school and several other schools, and an hospital. Inhabitants engaged in agriculture and fruit-culture. Pop 2626.

WILNKOOPEBAAL (De) a bay 8 coast, Isl Java, on W side of poor Pranger between the mouth of the Tjiberoek and Point Sedong-parat. Off it is knot of same name WILNABERTON, par Eng Northamp 2800 ac. P 754

WILBERFORD, par Eng York 3870 ac. P 367

WILBERHAM two pars Eng Cambridge—1 (Grand)

2800 ac. Pop 644—2, (Little), 1800 ac. Pop 897

WILBURTON, par Eng Cambridge, 2235 ac. P 562

WILBY three pars. Eng.—1, Norfolk 1400 ac. Pop 104—2 Northampton, 1120 ac. Pop 488—3, Suffolk

1844 ac. Pop 630

WILHINGEN a vil and par Switzerland can Schaff hausen with a hexagonal church. 1 op. (agricultural) 1147

WILKOT par Eng Wilt 2663 ac. Pop 702

WILCOTE, par Eng Oxford 370 ac. P 10

WILCRICK par Eng Monmouth 406 ac. Pop 28

WILDHAD a in Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald in a narrow valley on the Eux, 20 m W S W Stuttgart. It consists of a long and narrow street, terminating in a square, in which are thermal-springs, with well-frequented baths. The situation, in the depths of the Black Forest, is very romantic.

Pop 1162—Two small watering-places in Bavaria, Middle Francia have the same name.

WILDHAD-GASTEN, a watering-place, Austria See

GASTEN

WILDBERG a walled tn. Württemberg circle Schwarzwald, 16 m W N W Tübingen with a Latin school, a house of refuge for children manufacturers of woollen linen, and cotton cloth a paper and other mills. Pop 1787

WILDEN, a vil England co. Worcester picturesque situated on the Stour $\frac{1}{2}$ m N E Stourport near the Staffordshire and Worcester-shire canal, with extensive iron and tin plate works.

WILDEN par Eng Bedford 2100 ac. 1 op. 439

WILDENKILS, a tn Saxony, circle and 6 m from

Zwickau, with a church, a fine castle with chapel and library manufactures of lace, paper, saw and other mills, and lime stone and marble quarries. Pop 2374.

WILDENSHWERT a tn Bohemia, circle Chladun not far from Landekron on the Stihl A Hor, with a church bath, manufactures of woollen linen, and cotton cloth a walk and other mills. Pop 883

WILDERVANK a vil Holland, prov Groningen 9 m

S W Winchoten with three churches two schools, boatbuilding yards some rope, mast, and block making linen-weaving and corn falling and oil mills. P 8890

WILDELSAUBERG, a tn Oldenburg, circle Delmen-horst, 1 bank Hunte, 18 m. S S E Oldenburg with two churches, a pioushouse, deaf and dumb institute, manufactures of leather hats, seal earthenware, and a trade in cattle.

Pop 3008

WILDFORD par Eng Notts 1450 ac. Pop 570

WILDHAUS, a vil and par Switzerland, can. and 16 m

S S E Gell, at the foot of the St. Albans with two churches.

The reformer Zwingli was born here in 1484. Pop 1112

WILDSCHÜTZ, or WILCOX—1 A vil Bohemia circle and 27 m N E Böhmen with a church, a castle an hospital, and several mills. 1 op. 1256—2, A vil Moravia, circle

Troppau, in the valley of Ischnberg with a castle and a church. Pop 1841

WILDUNGEN (NORWAY) a tn. Waldeck, 7 m. S Waldeck, with a church, a lyceum, an orphan hospital a trade in cattle, and mineral-springs, with baths. Pop 1949.

WILHELSBURG, or WILHELSBURG a market to Lower Austria, 1 bank Trauen about 8 m. from St. Pölten, with a fine old church, an hospital manufactures of firearms porcelain wooden ware, and a large trade in plums, chest nuts, and ducks. Pop 8000

WILHEMSDORF, a market in Bavaria, Middle Franconia, W N W Nürnberg on the Eux with two churches, a castle, manufactures of ribbons, and a brewery P 1802

WILKESBARRE, a tn U States, Pennsylvania, beautifully situated in the valley of Wyoming, on the Susquehanna here crossed by a handsome bridge, on the Pennsylvania N

Branch canal, 100 m. N N W Philadelphia, with which it is connected by railway. It consists of four principal streets forming the four sides of a parallelogram, which is intersected obliquely by four other streets so as to leave a central long-angled space bordered by the churches courthouse, and other public buildings. Its position in the Pennsylvania coal field has given it the most extensive rolling-mills in the country, and various other industrial establishments. P 18500, 2778

WILKOWISKI a tn Russian Poland, about 40 m N

Suwalki Pop 1800

WILKSBY, par Eng Lincoln 670 ac. Pop 60

WILLAMETTE, or WARTAMUTZ a river U States in the W of Oregon rises near the foot of Cascade Range flows N N W and after a course of about 200 m joins the bank

Columbia 8 m below Fort Vancouver. It is interrupted by falls 25 m. from its mouth, but is navigable for 15 m by the largest vessel. Its valley is so beautiful and fertile, as to be called the garden of Oregon.

WILLANDY par Eng Devon 939 ac. Pop 398

WILLAMETTA, a small rd S Pacific, off the coast of

New Britain lat. 5 15' E. S. lon 149° 58' 10" E. It is tolerably high in the centre, and wooded from the water-edge to its summit.

WILLEBADESEN a tn Prussia, prov Westphalia

gov and 46 m S Minden on the Nethe. It has some old palatial walls with two gates a church, chapel and pioushouse

Pop 1595

WILBROECK a vil and com Belgium, prov and

11 m S Antwerp, on 1 bank Rupel and the Wilbroeck canal. It is well built and has a church, chapel, three schools, a townhouse, breweries, distilleries, tanneries building-yards and a trade in butter cheese, fax, coal &c. P 5117

WILLEMIAAD—1 A tn Holland prov N Brabant

17 m N W Breda, on the Hollands-diep. It is fortified has two gates a harbour barracks arsenal, infirmary, watch houses an elegant townhouse two churches, and an orphan hospital in the middle of the town is a large square called the Kerhof (church yard). There are also a bast-building yard and some mills. Pop 1154—2 The capital of ul Guruao Dutch W Indies on its S coast. It is a Protestant and a R Catholic church a synagogue, and two schools and is the residence of the governor Pop 7000

WILLFAR par Eng Bucks 450 ac. Pop 86

WILLERBING or WILBERG a tn Prussia, prov

P. Posen, gov and 91 m S S E Köslberg at the confluence of two streams which form the Sebelsky, with a Protestant church, an infirmary, saw, bark, oil, and other mills and a trade in cattle. Pop 1014

WILLEHALL a vil and chapelry England on Stafford on the Wyrky and Easington canal, and the Liverpool and Birmingham railway 3 m. W Walsall with two district churches a chapel of ease, Baptist and Wesleyan chapels national and British schools, extensive manufactures of locks, and large collieries. Pop 11931

WILLILIA, or WILLILIA a vil France dep. Haut-Rhin

25 m N N E Belfort with cotton manufactures and a cotton-mill. Pop 2426

WILLIBY par Eng York, 4180 ac. Pop 433

WILKERSEY par Eng Gloucester 1244 ac. P 372

WILKESLEY par Eng Hereford, 230 ac. Pop 6

WILLESBOROUGH par Eng Kent 1457 ac. P 1022

WILLESDEAN, par Eng Middlesex 4190 ac. P 2869

WILLESLEY, par Eng Derby 910 ac. Pop 48

WILLEY two pars. Eng.—1 Salop, 1890 ac. Pop 144

—2 Warwick 870 ac. Pop 127

WILLIAM—1 A mountain the highest land in South

Sheffield, lat 64° 45' S. lon 63° 51' W.—2 A mountain,

Australia, in the W of Victoria, forming the central nucleus and loftiest summit of the Grampian range height 4500 ft.

lat 37° 16' S., lon 142° 20' E. A promising gold field has been found here.

WILLIAM (PORT) See PALESTINE ISLANDS.

WILLIAMS ISLAND, an isl, A Australia, at the entrance into Spencer's Gulf, off Cape Catastrophe, lat. 35° 5' S., lon 138 E.

WILLIAMSBURG two tns. U States—1, A tn

Long Island on the E side of East River opposite to New York, and immediately N of Brooklyn. It occupies a rather elevated site, rising gradually from the shore is regularly and substantially built, consisting of houses generally not more than two stories, but often handsome and has numerous churches several of them of elegant or imposing appearance various schools, an odeon or principal hall for public entertainments, some of the largest and most important shipyards in the vicinity of New York and very extensive manufactory. It owns its prosperity to its proximity New York in which a large proportion of its residents have places of business. Pop. (1853), nearly 50,000 — 2 A in Virginia on a plain 60 m. E. by S. Richmond. It was the capital of the state before and for some time after the Revolution and has Episcopalian, Baptist, and Methodist churches William and Mary college which after Harvard university is the oldest literary institution in the Union, and a handsome lunatic asylum. Pop. 1600.

WILLIAMSPORT a tn U States, Pennsylvania, beautifully situated 1 bank Susquehanna, W branch, and on the Seneca and Erie railway 140 m. N W Philadelphia, with many handsome houses five churches, a courthouse large academy and trade in lumber and grain. Pop. 2500.

WILLIAMSTOWN — 1 A seaport in Victoria, on a low piece of ground forming the S. shore of Hobson's Bay an inlet of Port Phillip, 6 m. S W Melbourne, of which it is the port. — 2 A in Canada West co. Georgian, on the Aux Rinsles, 70 m from Montreal with two Protestant churches, two schools, manufactory of cloth and leather and numerous sawed and great mills. 1 600 — 2 A vil and township, U States, Massachusetts, 110 m. W by N Boston with a large and well endowed institution called William's college. Pop. 2025.

WILLIAMSVILLE, a vil U States New York, on Fitch's Creek, 9 m N E Buffalo with four churches, a saw mill and several mills. Pop. about 1000.

WILLIAM' par Eng Herts 1854 ac Pop 822

WILLIAMTOWN, a tn U States, Connecticut on river of same name, and at the junction of the Providence, Hartford and Fishkill and the New London, Willimantic, and Palmer railways with four churches and several mills, chiefly cotton-factories, supplied with water power by the Willimantic, which here falls about 100 ft. within the distance of 1 m. Pop. 1853, about 3500.

WILLINGALE two pars. Eng Essex — 1 Dor 1739 ac Pop 518 — 2 (Spauld) 1740 ac Pop 216

WILLINGDON par Eng Sussex 4259 ac. 1 678

WILLINGHAM five pars. Eng — 1 Cambridge 4668 ac Pop 1004 — 2 Lincoln 2710 ac Pop 459 — 3 Suff folk 1023 ac Pop 169 — 4 (Kent) Lincoln 1900 ac

Pop. 961 — 5 (Sussex) Lincoln 1900 ac Pop 841

WILLINGTON a vil and township England, co Northumberland 1 bank Tyne and on the Newcastle and Tynemouth railway 3 m S W North Shields with a Wesleyan chapel a ropey copper-works, a corn-mill a quay, and a dockyard with a patent slip. Pop. 2284

WILLINGTON two pars Eng — 1 Bedford, 1645 ac Pop 293 — 2 Derby 1270 ac Pop 441

WILLIBEAU a tn Switzerland, can and 16 m W N W Lucerne in a valley at the foot of the Wilberg with a large and handsome parish church and a chateau in which the Ober-amtmann resides. Pop. 1158

WILLISHAM par Eng Suffolk 927 ac Pop 213
WILLOUGHBY four pars Eng — 1 Lincoln 4280 ac Pop 748 — 2, Warwick 2290 ac Pop. 373 — 3 (on the N. side), Nottingham 2080 ac Pop 600 — 4 (Wiltshire) Leicestershire 1151 ac Pop. 361

WILLOUGHBY CAPE, the most E. point of Kangaroo Island S Australia lat. 35° 53' S. lon 138° 15' E

WILLOUGHTON, par Eng Lincoln 3460 ac. P 687

WILLSTEDT a market in Baden, circle Middle Rhine, bail and near Kork, on the Rhine and the railway to Carlsruhe. Pop. 1504.

WILMANSTRAAD a tn Russia. See VILMANSTRAAD

WILMINGTON, two pars. Eng — 1 Kent, 1715 ac Pop 215 — 2 Sussex, 1744 ac Pop. 288.

WILMINGTON three tns, U States — 1 A m., N Carolina 1 bank Cape Fear river and on the Wilmington and Raleigh and the Wilmington and Manchester railways, 160 m N E Charleston. It is the largest and most commercial place in the state, with about 15,000 tons of shipping numerous turpentine distilleries, machine-shops, rice, saw and other mills and an extensive trade in lumber 1 op. (1853) about 10,000. — 2 A vil O la, esp. co. Clinton, pleasantly situated on a fork of the Little Miami, and on the Zanesville, Wilmington, and Cincinnati railway, 60 m S W Columbus, with county buildings, and six churches. Pop. 1228 — 3 A tn and port, Delaware 50 m. S W Philadelphia, between Brandywine and Christina creeks, which unite about 1 m. below, and are both navigable. It is regularly built on broad and dry streets and has three Episcopal three Presbyterian, and three Methodist, and some other churches, various schools a city hall an armory, two market-houses, an almshouse, on hospital floor new paper and powder mills, cotton and woolen factories, machine-shops, potteries, tanneries, and breweries an extensive trade, and a number of vessels partly engaged in the whale fishery. Pop. 18,931

WILMSLOW, a vil and par England on Chester, on the Bolton and the railway from Manchester to Crewe, with an old and handsome church with a square tower, Wesleyan, Calvinistic, Quaker and Unitarian chapels a workhouse, a silk and two cotton mills. Arms of par, 8028 ac. P 4032

WILNA, a gov and tn Russia. See VILNA

WILNE, par Eng Derby 8500 ac Pop. 2096.

WILNIS a vil Holland, prov and 15 m. N W Utrecht. Pop. 1041

WILRYK a vil and com Belgium, prov and 4 m. S. Antwerp with several breweries a distillery manufactory of serge, and flour and malt mills. Pop. 2275

WILSHIRE a vil and township England, co York, 5 m N W Bradford with a handsome modern church, Wesleyan and Independent chapels, a mechanics institute, a cotton-wool and woolen factories. Pop. 8454

WILSDRUF a tn Saxony circle and 10 m W Dresden, on the Wilde-Reu with two churches, and a castle. P 2255

WILSHIRE, a vil and com Belgium prov Brabant, on the Dyke, and the canal from Louvain to the Roppel, 15 m N E E Brussels with manufactory of paint, a brewery, and a tannery. Pop. 1063.

WILSFORD three pars Eng — 1 Lincoln 2800 ac Pop. 484 — 2 Wilt, 1,081 ac Pop. 135 — 3 Wilt 4997 ac Pop. 575

WILSHAMSTEAD par Eng Berks 3027 ac P 923.

WILSHACK a tn Russia, prov Brandenburg gov and 57 m. W Potsdam, on the Kärthaus with a church manufactory of woolen and linen cloth and a trade in cattle Pop. 2127

WILSON a series of seven large islands, S. Pacific belonging to the Feejee group lat. (S point) 17° 31' 25" S. lon 178° 57' W. They are enclosed in an extensive reef somewhat in the shape of a triangle, whose sides are 34 m long have safe and easy anchorages and afford abundance of fruit and vegetables. They were first discovered by the missionary ship Duff in 1797 and bear the name of its commander

WILSON'S PROMONTORY the most S. point of Australia, colony of Victoria, on Bass Strait lat 38° 8' S., lon 146° 22' E. It is composed of a lofty mass of granite, 20 m. long, by 5 m to 14 m broad and rises 2000 ft. high WILSTER, a tn Denmark, duchy Holstein, on the Wiltzer-see 35 m. N W Hamburg, with a large and handsome church, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 2900.

WILTEN a vil Austria, Tyrol, circle Schwaz, near Innsbruck with fine villas a parish church, an abbey baths, manufactory of locks, a dye work, &c. Pop. 1295

WILTON, a bor and par England co Wilt, 8 m W by N Salisbury in a fertile valley near the confluence of the Neader and Wilty with a handsome burgh, two Dissenting chapels, a free school, and an hospital. Its exports have long been celebrated. It returns a member to Parliament. Area of par 1791 ac Pop. 1804

WILTON two pars. Eng — 1 Somerset, 700 ac. Pop. 940 — 2 (Hockwold-cum-) Norfolk 7478 ac Pop. 1087

WILTON, par Scot Roxburgh, 5 m by 34 m P 2667

WILTON Burgh, par Eng York (E Riding) 7294 ac Pop. 886.

WILTS, or WILTSHIRE, a co. England, bounded N and N W by co Gloucester S W Somerset, E Dorset, and Hants, E Hants and Berks great length N to S, 60 m., median breadth, 23 m., area, 1852 sq m. It is of a compact and nearly quadrangular form, and is divided by the Upper Avon and Kennet, and the canal between them into N and S. divisions, distinguished from each other by a con-considerable extent by distinct physical features, the N. consisting principally of a fertile flat, with scarcely any perceptible slope, except on the N. frontiers, where it begins to rise in the direction of the Cotswold Hills, and near the centre, where it is broken by a ridge of downs and the S., though presenting at a distance the appearance of an almost uninterrupted plain, having in fact on undulating surface, both broken by downs and intersected by some fertile and well-watered valleys. In this S. division is Salisbury Plain an elevated platform, for the most part uninclosed and uncultivated, covered with a spongy herbage, well adapted for sheepwalks, and presenting as its most remarkable feature the Dracolus remains of Stonehenge, situated about 9 m. N. Salisbury and those of Avebury about 5 m. W. Marlborough. Stonehenge in particular on which much antiquarian research has been not very successfully expended consists of an assemblage of enormous stones, some weighing at least 50 tons, and two of them 70 tons each inclosed within a circular embankment of 300 ft. in diameter and partly arranged in rough hewn masonry pillars, connected by superincumbent slabs, so as to form a kind of double circle. The strata of the country are principally cretaceous, belonging to the great central chalk district of England. The oolitic formation overlies by the chalk is developed in a long and narrow belt, chiefly on the W. and N. The strata belongs to three distinct basins—the Thames which receives a small portion directly and a still larger portion by the Kennet. Bristol Channel, which receives it by the Upper Avon and the English Channel, which receives it by the Lower Avon, and its tributaries Bourne, Wilbyourne, and Nadder. Though the arable land is of considerable extent, and large quantities of turnips, wheat, and barley are grown, a far larger proportion of the surface is kept in natural or artificial pasture, devoted chiefly in the S. division to the rearing of sheep and in the N. to cattle-grazing and the dairy. The staple manufacture is woollen goods for which the principal localities are Salisbury (the capital) Wilton, famous particularly for carpets, Bradford Torreybury &c. Excellent cutlery and steel goods are made at Salisbury and silk have made some progress at Devizes. Ample means of communication are furnished by the Thames and Severn, the Kennet and Avon and the Wilts and Berks canals, and by the main line as well as several branches of the Great Western Railway. Winchester returns 16 members to Parliament—two for each of its divisions, and 14 for boroughs. Pop. 354,921.

STONEHENGE, WILTSHIRE.—From Hignett's Guide Books

WILTZ, a Holland prov. and 21 m. N.W. Luxembourg with a church, a chapel a townhouse an hospital an old castle, and a considerable trade in grain, leather, paper, wood, and cloth. Pop. 2580.

WILLYE, par Eng Wilts 3279 ac. Pop. 510.

WIMBISH, par Eng Essex 4863 ac. Pop. 1004.

WIMBLEDON, a vil. and par England co. Surrey 7 m. S.W. London with well-built and occasionally very handsome houses an elegant parish church an independent chapel, and almshouses. Area, 3700 ac. Pop. 2663.

WIMBORNE MINSTER, a market tn. and par England, co. Dorset, 26 m. E.N.E. Dorchester near the confluence of the Stour and Allen. It has a large cruciform church, once mostly called the Minster, with two towers three Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, two hospitals and manufactures of woollens. Area of par, 11,566 ac. Pop. 4759.

WIMBORNE (St. Giles) par Eng Dorset, 3978 ac. Pop. 497.

WIMBOTHAM, par Eng Norfolk, 3015 ac. P. 606.

WIMBOWLE, par Eng Lancs, 4320 ac. P. 1355.

WIMMIS, a vil. and par Switzerland.

S.E. Barn r bank Summe, here crossed by a bold bridge. It has an old castle in the mouth of a rocky gorge, and a picturesque situated church. Pop. 1169.

WIMPFEN AM DENN, a walled to Mosse-Darmstadt, prov Starkenburg, near l bank Neckar opposite to the confluence of the Jaxt, 51 m. S.E. Darmstadt. It has a R. Catholic and two Protestant churches a courthouse, hospital, poorhouse, several schools, baths, manufactures of tobacco and salt-works. In its vicinity in 1022 a battle was fought between Eilby and the Margrave of Baden. P. 2187.

WIMPOLE, par Eng Cambridge, 2429 ac. Pop. 452.

WINCANTON, a market tn. and par England co. Somerset, on an acclivity above l bank (alt. 24 m. S.E. Bristol. It has five straight and well-built streets, a parish church two Dissenting chapels, a townhall, national British and other schools and manufactures of bad-ticking. Area of par 4130 ac. P. 2488.

WINCHEBY, par Eng Lincoln, 843 ac. Pop. 78.

WINCH (East) par Eng Norfolk 2,30 ac. Pop. 419.

WINCH (West) par Eng Norfolk,

1170 ac. Pop. 477.

WIMBICOMB, a market tn. and par England, co. and 15 m. E.N.E. Gloucester at the foot of the Cotswold Hills, and on the Isthmus. It has an ancient, spacious and handsome parish church with a lofty embellished and pinnacled tower a free grammar and another school and manufactures of paper silk and leather. Area of par 3700 ac. P. 2284.

WINCHELSH, a small tn. and par England, co. Sussex and one of the Cinque-ports, 2 m. S.W. Rye with an elegant parish church in the early and decorated English style a Wesleyan chapel, an ancient church, with a tall belfry. It once returned two members to Parliament, but is now malodious in the bor of Rye. Area of par 1610 ac. Pop. 778.

WINCHESTER, two parts Eng Bucks —1 (Nether) 1590 ac. Pop. 284 —2 (Upper), 1070 ac. Pop. 186.

WINCHESTER (Latin Vindocinensis) an episcopal city England, Hampshire pleasantly situated on a slope rising gradually from r bank (then here crossed by a handsome stone-bridge, and on the London and South Western railway, 14 m. N.N.E. Southampton. It consists of the city proper and of part of the liberty of Soke which nearly incloses it on every side. The former, one of the most ancient places in England was once walled, and entered by four principal gates. Parts of the walls and ditch still remain, and the west gate, completing of a wide gateway with a massive Norman tower over it, though somewhat defaced by modern alterations, is still entire. The High Street which traverses the town centrally from E to W and has in its centre an elegant pyramidal cross, richly ornamented and 49 ft. high, is intersected by several minor streets at right angles, and the houses, many of them of great antiquity are in general substantial and well built. All the streets are well paved and lighted with gas, and the supply of excellent water is abundant. By far the most important public edifice is the cathedral, which occupies a large open space towards the S.E. and is at once one of the largest and most interesting in England. It was first completed in 948, but about 870 suffered so much from the ravages of the Danes, as to have become almost ruinous. The present structure, commenced in 1078 was completed in 1098, but has since received so many additions, and undergone so many alterations, as to have lost much of its original unity of design, and assumed a form which makes it difficult to say whether the early Norman or the later English is predominant. It is in the form of a cross, with a square tower rising from the point of intersection to the height of 138 ft. though not more than 26 ft. above the roof. The whole length, from the W. entrance to the Lady Chapel, at the E. end, is 545 ft. the width of the transept, 180 ft. The most imposing part of the structure in the W front, consisting of three deeply-recessed and highly corbelled piers with an ornamented gallery above, a large and beautiful window with rich mouldings, several massive buttresses and pinnated towers and a gable termination crowned by a canopy statue of William of Wykeham. The interior consists of a nave 54 ft. long and 78 ft. high aisles separated from it by a double range of pillars 13 ft in diameter a choir, 40 ft. wide, occupying the lower part of the central tower and lighted by clear-story windows and transepts, containing several very beautiful chapels and altars. The roof is elaborately groined and enriched with delicate tracery terminal bearings, and other ornaments; the throns, prebendal stalls, and pulpit present excellent specimens of carving over the altar is a painting of the Raising of Lazarus, by West there are numerous monuments, among which those of Hardwicke and William Rufus, Bishops Fox (Gardiner) and Wykeham possess much historical interest. The whole building is in the highest state of repair and a new powerful organ, and several handsome memorial windows, have recently been fixed in. The other edifice and establishments deserving of notice are the ancient church of St. Lawrence, with a lofty tower. St. Maurice's a handsome modern edifice with an ancient tower, several other churches, Baptist, Independent, Wesleyan and St. Catharine chapel the last with a Benedictine monastery in its immediate vicinity the college, founded by William of Wykeham, in 1387 richly endowed, celebrated for the number of eminent scholars which it has produced and accommodated in a large range of buildings, among which the chapel, hall and library are beautiful specimens of architecture, the townhall, with a handsome projecting clock the old castle the chapel of which has been converted into a county hall and contains the celebrated round table fabulously attributed to King Arthur a spacious new county prison military barracks for 2000 infantry in a splendid building intended for a palace by Charles II a county hospital or infirmary said to be the first establishment of the kind in the kingdom St. John's house, which once belonged to the Templars, and is now used partly as a public room for public assemblies and meetings, and partly as almshouses a free public library and museum and a flourishing mechanics institute with a library of 3400 volumes. St. Monica's college or Christ's hospital and the hospital of St. Cross, beautifully situated about 1/2 m. S of the city on the banks of the Itchen. This last hospital which was founded in 1139 occupies an elegant range of buildings, including an ancient and interesting cruciform church was richly endowed and has recently attracted considerable attention in consequence of a parliamentary inquiry as to the alleged abuse of its endowments. There are no manufactures or trade of any consequence but the weekly corn-market, for which a handsome corn-exchange affords excellent accommodation is important and there are four annual fairs, one of which, for sheep, is much frequented.

Windschever originally a British town under the name of Caer-Gwent (White City) became an important Roman station, and continued to flourish till their final departure from Britain in 519. During the Saxon period it was its capital and in 837 when Egbert was crowned in its cathedral as sole monarch of the Saxons he resided here. It became the capital of his whole dominions. Alfred made it his chief residence and in the reign of Edgar the celebrated Winchester bishoep, still preserved in the city museum, was made the legal standard corn-measure. Canute on dividing the kingdom with Edmund Ironside, fixed his residence here and William the Conqueror not only imitated him in this respect, but built a stronger castle which was blown up by Cromwell in 1646. Another castle, built by Henry de Blois, continued to be a place of great strength till the demolition of its fortifications in the reign of Henry II when it was converted into an episcopal palace. Its property was greatly injured by the removal of the court to London and the wars of the subsequent reigns, more especially the last civil war when, after the battle of Naseby it stood a week's siege from Cromwell. It received its first charter of incorporation from Henry II in 1181 and since the 28d Edward I when it first obtained the election franchise, has returned two members to Parliament. It is governed by a mayor, five aldermen and 18 councillors. Pop. 18,704.

WINDCHESTER, two ins in N States.—1 A to Virginia, in a beautiful and fertile district, at the terminus of the Winchester and Potomac railway, 65 m. W by N Washington. It is regularly and substantially built, and has twelve churches a lyceum, an academy, and a large transit trade. Pop. 4500.—2, a vll. Indiana, on White River, and the railway to Indianapolis, from which it is 50 m. N.E. It has several churches, and large flour and saw mills. Pop. (1850), about 1200.

WINDCHESTER, par Eng Hants 1543 ac. Pop. 337
WINDAU a tn. Russia. See WINDAU
WINDBECKEN a tn. Hesse-Cassel, prov and 7 m. N Hanaa, 1 bank Nidda. It is surrounded by walls with three gates, contains a church and an hospital, and has a mill foundry and a manufactory of fire-engines. Pop. 1585

WINDENMEERE.—1, A lake, England, partly in co. Westmoreland but chiefly in Lancashire, 14 m long, by 1 m wide, and from 5 to 37 fathoms deep. It discharges itself by the Laven into Morecambe Bay is well wooded, especially on its W side has a group of islands near its centre and abounds with fish including eel which are potted and sent to London and other places. Its scenery gives it a first place among the English lakes. On its E side is Horwess, and near its N extremity is Ambleside.—2 A par Eng Westmoreland 17 189 ac. Pop. 3290.

WINDISCH [anc. Fiodonasse], a vll and par Switzer land (ad. Aargau near the confluence of the Limmat Reuss, and Aar. It was the most important Roman fortress and establishment in ancient Helvetia, and has among many subterranean traces of its magnificence, an aqueduct which conveyed water from a place 3 m off. Pop. 1094

WINDLESHELM a vll and par England co Surrey, pleasantly situated in a well-wooded country, 10 m N N W Guildford with a chapel of ease, Independent, Wesleyan, and Baptist chapels, a national school and almshouses. Area of par 5974 ac. Pop. 1794.

WINDRUSH par Eng Gloucester 1710 ac P 832
WINDSBACH, a walled in Bavaria Middle Franconia on the Renz, 18 m S W Nürnberg. It has two churches, a Latin school and two mills. Pop. 1196

WINDSHILM a walled tn. Bavaria, Middle Franconia, at the southeast of the Raunach and Aach, 16 m N W Ansbach. It has a Protestant church, a mill, a townhouse, a Latin school, hospital, manufactory of woollen cloth, needles and articles in gold and silver several tanneries, mills, and a saltpetre quarry. Pop. 3345

WINDSOR.—1 A tn. Nova Scotia, cap. co. Hants at the confluence of the St. Croix and the Avon, about 30 m N N W Halifax with the principal college in the colony.—2 A to Canada West, Home dist. on York, N bank Lake Ontario 27 m N E Toronto.—3, A tn. Canada West, co. Essex on the river opposite the town of Detroit and at the terminus of the Great Western railroad. It has a Protestant church and two schools and is admirably situated for trade. Pop. about 500.—4 A tn. New S. Wales, 35 m. N W Sydney on a hill commanding a beautiful view of the surrounding country and in a fertile and well cultivated district.

WINDSOR.—5 A tn U States, Vermont, beautifully situated on bank Connecticut, here crossed by a bridge, and on a branch railway connecting it with several important trunk lines, 105 m. N W Boston. It consists of spacious streets, finely shaded with trees, and lined with handsome dwelling-houses and shops and has three churches, a courthouse a superior academy and other schools, a state-prison, various manufactures and an important trade. Pop. 2390.—6 (Locke) A vll, U States Connecticut, on bank river of that name, and on the New Haven, Hartford, and Springfield railway 18 m. N by E Hartford with iron and steel works, a cotton and extensive paper mills.

WINDSOR (New) a par and mun bor. tn and par England, co. Berks, 23 m S W London, with which it is connected by railway, is pleasantly situated on an acclivity above the bank Thames, here crossed by an iron bridge. It consists of six principal streets, intersected by several smaller well paved lighted with gas amply supplied with water and has well built houses, generally of brick, and a public ground with an obelisk. The principal objects are a spacious and handsome townhall, two handsome churches, one of them in the later English style, with a lofty square embattled tower, and the other a military church, with a beautiful tower and spire; three Dissenting chapels, a public library, and a subscription circulating library several charity and other schools, infirmary barracks, a theatre, an hospital for invalid soldiers, a parish hospital, a general dispensary, and several charitable endowments. The only manufacturing establishments are breweries celebrated for their ale.

The Palace or Castle of Windsor the principal residence of the British Sovereign, situated immediately E from the town, covers more than 12 ac. and is surrounded on all sides except the W by a noble terrace above 2500 ft. In extent, it faced with a strong rampart of heavy stone, and having at convenient intervals easy slopes leading down to the park. This magnificent structure was originally built by William the Conqueror, and has been embellished by most of the succeeding sovereigns. The great park 18 m. in extent abounds with forest scenery of great beauty and is well stocked with deer. W from the park is Windsor forest, 56 m. in circuit. Windsor sends two members to Parliament. Pop. (1931), 9596.

Area of par. 3287 ac. Pop. 6779.
WINDSOR (Ont.) par Eng Bucks 5401 ac. Pop. 1785.
WINEFORD par Eng York 2870 ac. Pop. 181.
WINEFORTH par Eng Norfolk, 2620 ac. P. 691.
WINFORD par Eng Somerset, 2991 ac. Pop. 1022.
WINFORD par Eng Hereford 1089 ac. 1 op 159.
WINFRITH par Eng Dorset, 4436 ac. Pop. 1101.

WING, two par. Eng. —1 Bucks, 6310 ac. Pop. 1378.
—2 Rutland, 1950 ac. Pop. 264.

WINGA, WINGA or WINGA STRONG a commendation roadstead, Sweden in the Kattegat off Gothenburg with good holding-ground between the Bunker and Hottu in 15 to 16 fathoms water but exposed to the S.W. lat. (night) 57° 28' N, lon. 11° 30' 15" E (s). In Rudeford 4 m. E. of Bunker the largest fleet may ride secure from all winds in 8 fathoms water.

WINGATE-GRANGE, a vil and township co. and 6 m. E.S.E. Durham, on the Lark and Newcastle Junction railway with a neat church, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, an iron foundry, brickworks, and an extensive colliery. Pop. 2450.

WINGERWORTH, par Eng Derby 2905 ac. P. 463.
WINGFIELD two par. Eng. —1 Suffolk 2441 ac. Pop. 654.—2 (North) Derby, 7603 ac. Pop. 4361.

WINGFIELD (South) a vil and par England, co. Derby on the Amber and on the Midland railway 2 m. W. Alfreton. It has a parish church with a tower a Wesleyan chapel, an endowed school and manufactures of stockings. In the parish are the remains of a splendid edifice, erected in the reign of Henry VI. and for some months in 1569 the residence of the captive Mary Queen of Scots. Area of par. 3208 ac. Pop. 1093.

WINGHAM, a vil and par England, co. Kent 9 m. S.E. Canterbury, with a parish church partly ancient and partly modern, an Independent chapel, a horticultural society, and two large cattle-fairs Area, 2841 ac. 1 op 1083.

WINGRAVE WITH-NORWICH par Eng Bucks 2000 ac. Pop. 613.

WINKBOURN par Eng Herts 2240 ac. Pop. 139.
WINKFIELD two par. Eng. —1 with Accrington 2968 ac. Pop. 2182.—2, (with-Rosely Wills 1883 ac. Pop. 806.

WINKLEIGH par Eng Devon 0118 ac. Pop. 1554.

WINTALON a vil and par England, co. Durham. The village, on a hill above a bank Tyne, 5 m. W. Newcastle, is irregularly built, and has an Established church four Dissenting chapels, four schools, a subscription library a mechanics institute, and considerable manufactures of ironmongery. Area of par. 9261 ac. Pop. 6085.

WINNALL par Eng Hants 531 ac. Pop. 117.

WINNEBAGO, a lake, U. States, Wisconsin, 73 m. N.E. Madison, about 28 m. long, by 10 m. broad. It is of considerable depth, and is navigated by steamers. Its chief feeder is the Neenah or Fox River its outlet, which retains this name, carries its waters to Green Bay.

WINNENDEN a tn Würtemberg circle Neckar, on a small stream of same name 23 m. N.E. Stuttgart with a castle, a Latin school, deaf and dumb institution, a lunatic asylum and a trade in corn and wood. Pop. 3900.

WINNIKI or WINNICK, a vil Austria, Galicia, 6 m. S.E. Lemberg with handsome houses, a church, an old castle, and a very extensive tobacco factory. 1 op 2280.

WINNINGEY, a tn. Rhénish Prussia, gov. and 8 m. S.W. Coblenz 1 bank Moselle; with a church, and a municipal spring. Pop. 1501.

WINNIPEG, a lake and river, British America, Hudson's Bay territory. The lake, the largest of a remarkable chain between lat. 50° 30' and 58° 45' N, lon. 95° 30' and 99° W., about 850 ft. above sea-level is of very irregular shape particularly in the E. and stretches S.E. to N.W. for about 350 m. with breadth varying from 5 m. to 70 m. Its principal feeder is the Reddishawan, which it receives on the N.W., other important feeders are the united Red and Assiniboine rivers the common outlet of lakes Winnipegosis and Manitoba and the river Winnipeg. It discharges itself at the N.E. by a chain of lakes, which pour their waters into the Nelson. The E. banks are well wooded, but the W. are composed of naked black and grey rock. The river, formed by the outlets of Lake Selkirk and the Lake of the Woods, flows continuously N.W. into the S.E. extremity of the lake at Fort Alexander. It is a large but dangerous stream full of rapids and cascades, one of which, called the Fall of the Moving Waters is of the grandest description.

WINNIPEGUOS, a lake, British America, Hudson's Bay territory about 50 m. W. Lake Winnipeg, into which it discharges itself through Lake Manitoba length N.W. to S.E. about 120 m. medium breadth, 35 m. Its chief feeders are the Swan and Red Deer rivers, which it receives in the N.W. The banks particularly in the S., are well wooded, and frequented by herds of buffalo and deer.

WINNIPISPOOGLA, a lake, U. States, New Hampshire, co. Belknap and Carroll. It is of very irregular shape being divided at its W. end into three large bays, and is bordered by many others, about 25 m. long N.W. to S.E., from 1 m. to 10 m. broad contains a great number of islands, partly cultivated, and remarkably fertile and has much beautiful and romantic scenery which attracts numerous visitors its outlet unites with the Pinnegawasset to form the Merimac it abounds with fish.

WINNITZKA a tn. Russia, St. VIKTORIA.

WINNWEILFK, a tn Bavaria, Palatinat, on the Alsenz 30 m. N.W. Speyer with a Protestant and a Catholic church, a copper-foundry, iron works, several mills, and a trade in corn. Pop. 1284.

WINDUSKI a river, U. States rises in the N.E. of Vermont flows W. and after a course of about 70 m. falls into the E. shore of Lake Champlain 5 m. N. Burlington. It is a wild romantic stream, often rushing, through rocky fissures, and forming natural bridges caverns, and water falls.

WINSCHOLEN a vil Holland prov. and 30 m. S.E. Groningen. It has a substantial townhouse, a jail three churches, one of them a large excellent building in a spacious square a synagogue several schools, including a poor school and several benevolent institutions a considerable trade in grain butter bricks tiles, home, leather &c. Pop. 5095.

WINSOR par Eng Somerset, 4140 ac. P. 1459.

WINSFORD, par Eng Somerset 8668 ac. P. 604.

WINSHAM par Eng Somerset, 2953 ac. P. 1032.

WINSLADE with E. Somerset, par Eng Hants 1236 ac. Pop. 174.

WINSLOW a market tn. and par England, co. and 6½ m. E. Beckingham. It consists principally of three regularly built streets, is of neat appearance, and has a spacious church in the later English style, with a square embellished tower three Dissenting chapels, and an endowed school. Area of par. 1920 ac. 1 op 1869.

WINTER, a market in England co. and 16 m. N.W. Derby with a church two Dissenting chapels, and several schools. Pop. 928.

WINSION, two par. Eng. —1 Durham, 2061 ac. Pop. 301.—2 Suffolk, 1476 ac. Pop. 892.

WISTONE, par Eng Gloucester, 1437 ac. P. 259.
WINTER HARBOR, British N. America, S.E. coast, Melville Island Arctic Ocean lat. 74° 47' N lon. 110° 48' W. Sir E. Perry wintered here in 1810-30.

WINTERBERG, a tn. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. and 20 m. S.E. Arnsberg with a Catholic church, and a trade in cattle. Pop. (1853), 1840.

WINTERBORN, seven par. Eng Dorset —1, (Oles-ton), 1406 ac. Pop. 67.—2, (Houghton), 1923 ac. Pop.

318 —S (Kingston) 2508 ac. Pop. 584.—4, (Strickland) 1340 ac. 1 417 —5, (Thomson) 710 ac P 27—6, (Wicks church) 2641 ac P 595 —7 (Zelstone) 828 ac P 22

3170 no. Pop. 2678. — (Abbas) Wilt. 1500 as. Gloucestre
 5. (Basel) Wilt. 2210 as. Pop. 268. — (Gamm) set 1970 no. Pop. 150. 5. (Densting) Wilt. 1163 as.
 187. — 6. (Maris) Wilt. 1003 no. Pop. 281 7. (Orph)
 Wilt. 1662 no. Pop. 167. 8. (Herrnau) Wilt. 530 no.
 Pop. 62. 9. (Mouchon) Dorset; 631 as. Pop. 87. — 10.
 (Mechton) Wilt. 1840 as. Pop. 245. — 11. (St Martin) Dorset, 3503 as. Pop. 434. — 12. (St Martin) Dorset. 1783 as.
 Pop. 206. — 13. (St John) Wilt. 3413 as. Dor. 288.

WINTERINGHAM par Eng Lincoln 5675 ac. P 824.
WINTERSLAW par Eng Wiltz 4848 ac. P 918.

WINTERSWIJK, a vil Holland, prov Gelderland 37 m. E Arnhem with an elegant townhouse, four churches, a school manufactures of calicoes and bruks, and a considerable general trade. Pop 2437

WINTERTHUR—A town and par Switzerland, can and 33 m N E Zürich, on the Ebnach, in a beautiful plain surrounded by vine slopes. It is remarkably well built with a spacious and elegant church a handsome townhouse an hospital, and excellent walks partly formed by levelling the ancient ramparts. The manufactures are chiefly printed cotton goods, crapes, plain mawlin and chemical products Pop. (1850) 5531.—See Winterthur (Rhod.) For the WINTERTHUR.

WINTERTON a small market tn. and par England co. Lincoln on the E side of one of the Wold Hills, about 2 m. S. from the Humber. It consists of a well built main street and a market place and has a spacious crumiform church, two Dissenting chapels, national and Wesleyan schools, a mechanics institute, and manufactures of agricultural implements. It is of great antiquity and tessellated Roman pavements are common in the vicinity. Area of par. 21.92 sq. Miles 1846

WINTERTON per Eng Norfolk 1515 ac. 1 724
WINTHOLE two parts Eng — 1 Lincoln 2339 ac

Pop. 299 — 2 N. Hs. 680 ac Pop. 243
WINTHROP per Eng York 8480 ac 1 op 50H

WITZENHEIM a tn France, dep Haut-Rhin 4 m.
W. Colmar, with manufactures of cotton goods and soap.

W Colmar with manufactures of cotton prints and soap a foundry and cotton-mills. Pop. 2390.

N. Warrington. It was the favourite residence of Oswald king of Northumbria, who fell in battle in the vicinity in 642. It has an ancient and spacious parish church, with a tower and spire and a free grammar-school. In 1646 the Scots and Royalists were here defeated by Cromwell. P. 469

WINWICK two para. Eng —1 Northampton 2038 ac
 Dec. 1556. 2 Northampton 1210 ac Dec. 1611

Pop. 153.—2 Northampton and Hurts 1710 ac. Pop. 431
WINXLE, a vil. and com Belgium prov Brabant, 16 m. S. N. Brussels, on the railway to Brussels, 1880.

WINYAW BAY an estuary U States S Carolina, formed by the confluence of the Pedee, Black, and Waccamaw rivers, a little above Georgetown length 14 m breadth 3 m. Pop. 20,000.

WILZELN a vil Württemberg, circle Schwarzwald, lat 48° 10' N, lon 8° 10' E, elev 1140.

bail Oberndorf with a parish church Pop 1149

WINZIG a tn Prussia prov Silesia, gov and 24 m NW Breslau. It is walled and defended by a fort and has a Protestant and a Catholic church, an hospital and a school.

WIPBACH or WIPACH a market tn. Austria, Illyria 12 mi. N. W. of Salzburg at the foot of the R. Inn and J. van L. bank Saale, after a course of 36 m.—8, Klessen in Prussia, prov Westphalia, gov Arnsberg, near Hagen flow S.W., and takes a fresh tributary after a course of about 24 m. and joins r bank Saale, after a course of 35 km — 3, Klein n. Prussia, prov. Westphalia, gov. Arnberg, near Hagen flow S W, and joins r bank Rhine after a course of about 80 km.

WIPPERFLUTH a tn. Rhennish Prussia, gov and 22 m N E Cologne, on the Wipper. It is walled; has two churches; manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, leather hats, iron and copper ware, and a smelting-furnace. Pop. (1838), 1945

WIRBALLE in Russian Poland. See WIRBESLOW
WIRKSWORTH a market in and par. England, co. and 13 m. N.W. Derby in a valley nearly surrounded with hills. It has a handsome church in the later English style, five Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, almshouse, manufactures of cotton goods, hats, and hosiery and milk-lins. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the land-manures in the vicinity. See also p. 1454, a. p. 7480

WIRTEMBERG country Germany Ses WIRTEMBERG
WISBEACH or WISSON —1 A market to and par England, in the Isle of Ely co Cambridge, on the hene over which is a handsome stone-bridge. It has five principal streets.

workshops, a grammar two national two British, two infant, and several other schools a literary society with a library of about 5000 volumes, a scientific association and a mechanics about 5000 volumes a scientific association and a mechanics institute. A large cotton-mill an extensive brewery, a foundry, and a trade, chiefly in agricultural products and imports of coals and timber. Owing to the improved navigation of the Neve, vessels of 500 tons have, in spring-tides discharged their cargoes near the town. Among the natives are Clarkson the fellow labourer of Wilberforce, and William Godwin. Area of par 6433 ac Pop 10594—3 (St. Mary) par Cambridge 6646 ac. Pop. 9115

WISBOROUGH—Parish a vi and par England co. Sussex 20 m N W E. Chichester on the Arun It has a parish church with a tower and lofty slunged spire a chapel of ease and an independent chapel Pop. 1740 Area 8484 ac.

WISBY or VISBY is in Sweden cap. and on the W shore of ul Gotland which sometimes takes its name It is one of the oldest towns in the N of Europe, and was once a lead ture member of the Hanseatic League and with his walls and towers almost as entire as in the 13th century, presents a striking appearance. In the building it exhibits a curious combination of ancient and modern architecture. The chief objects of note are the Dome or cathedral, built in 1190 the Helige-Ande-Kirkian [church of the Holy Ghost] built in 1046, and an interesting specimen of early Guelph architecture a gymnasium, a large hospital and workhouse. The manufacturers are chiefly leather and tobacco. The harbour is good, and has an active trade. Steamers ply regularly be-

WISCHAU or WASKOW a tn Austria, Moravia, circle and 19m E. N E Brinn on the Haava. It has three churches and a castle. manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, and five sometimes descending in winter to 40° below zero, and rising in summer to 100°. The air is said to be generally salubrious. About nine-tenths of the inhabitants are employed in farming and grazing. The most important mineral worked is lead which occurs in the S.W. copper is found in the N.E. and from more or less in almost every district. Manufacturers have made very little progress, but the trade is important. To increase its facilities, several important works among others, the Forthage canal, to communicate between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi and the Milwaukee and Galena railroad are now in progress. Madison is the capital. 1 (1850) 505,191

WISLEY par Eng Surrey, 1891 ac. Pop. 187

WISHAW par Eng Warwick 1196 ac. 1 op. 282

WISHAWTOWN a vil Scotland Lanarkshire, par Cambusnethan, on the Caledonian railway 14 m F by 6. Glasgow with a chapel of ease 1 Presbyteran, Reformed Presbyteran, and Baptist churches, a savings bank several schools a mechanics institute a large distillery a flax mill and extensive works. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the coal mines and iron-works of the county. Pop. 8271

WISHFORD (Gazette) par Eng Wilt 1510 ac. P. 278

WISLAKA, two rivers, Austria Galicia. — 1. Rises on the N. slope of the Carpathians flows very circuitously N E and joins r. bank of stule, after a course of about 70 m. — 2. Rises also in the Carpathians a few miles E of the former flows N E, and joins the San near Grodauku

WISMAR, a seaport in Mecklenburg Schwerin at the mouth of a small stream which forms the outlet of the lake, and 17 m N of the town of Schwerin. It is surrounded by walls and ditches, entered by four gates, and is built on an oval form with houses of a curious and picturesque appearance. It has four churches, two of them handsome, and one a fine Gothic structure of the 14th century a townhouse, catholic gymnasium, and other schools, infirmary orphan hospital and numerous charities. The manufactures are in significant, but the trade, favoured by one of the best harbours in the Baltic, is considerable. The principal exports are butter and corn, imports, wine, salt, coals and herring. Wismar lost much of its importance from the rise of Lübeck, and suffers greatly from the competition of Rostock. P. 11,060

WISNICA, or Wisnitzer, a town in Austria, Galicia, circle Galicia on the side of a conical hill crowned by a castle with five towers, 76 m S E Cracow. It has wooden houses a church and an old Carmelite monastery used partly as a courthouse and partly as a house of correction

WISOWITZ, a town in Austria Moravia, circle Fiuman, on the Dravuska, 19 m N E Hradec, with a church a castle, a monastery manufactures of coarse woollens, and a paper mill. Pop. 2713.

WISOWKA, a town in Bohemia. See HONETWATZ

WISTINGFORD par Eng Lincoln 1570 ac. Pop. 83

WISSEF, a town in Russia, gov. Posen, par Bromberg with Protestant and 1 Catholic churches. 1 op. 1145

WISSEKLEKK, a vil Holland prov. Zealand ad N. Beveland 9 m N W Goos with a church and school. Pop. (agricultural) 1871

WISSENBURG (Latin, Alba Litusana, German Wessenberg) a town in Prussia dep. Bat Rhin at the foot of Jolly hill, par Lutzerath 53 m N E Strasbourg. It commands a pass leading to the plains of the Rhine and the Vo ges is walled and churches fortified well built and has a large ancient Gothic church, a Protestant church, a townhouse, a communal college an old tower used as a prison barracks manufactures of honorary straw-bate potash, soap, duff and earthen ware, and a trade in brandy and asphalt. 1 op. 3590

WISSELE par Eng Suffolk, 2258 ac. Pop. 490

WISSELN, or Wessert par Eng Suffolk, 1485 ac. Pop. 258

WISTANSTON par Eng Salop 5160 ac. Pop. 1044

WISTASTON par Eng Chester, 1485 ac. 1 op. 998

WISTENITZ (Gnome) a market town in Austria Moravia, 4 m. E. Olmitz, 1 bank Hydrus with a parish church a castle, a brewery a distillery manufactures of ronegno and spirit of wine, and from raw oil and flour mills. Pop. 1408

WISTITTEN or WISTITTZE a town in Russian Poland on the Prussian frontier 28 m N A W Suwalki, with a considerable general trade. Pop. 1579

WISTON or WITTON a bor and par Wals, co and 11 m N by E Pembroke, with a Norman church, piecercageously situated in a plantation a Calvinistic Methodist chapel, and remains of an ancient castle. Pop. (par) 698

Vol. 11

WISTON, — 1. Par Wals Pembroke 7050 ac. Pop. 683 — 2. Par Eng Sussex 2843 ac. Pop. 801 — 3. (ant. Robertus) Par Scot. Lanark; 6 m by 4 m. Pop. 619

WISTOW, three pars Eng. — 1. (Lincs) 2070 ac. Pop. 553 — 2. 1 close; 2100 ac. 1 261 — 3. York 3670 ac. P. 738

WITTHAM, par Eng Cambridge 3671 ac. Pop. 594

WITTHAMPTON, par Eng Dorset 1461 ac. P. 504

WITTHAMPTON par Eng Cambridge 3776 ac. P. 620

WITTHAMPTON two pars, Eng Norfolk. — 1. (Great) 2245 ac. Pop. 628 — 2. (Little) 738 ac. 1 op. 42

WITTHAMPTON par Eng Kent 1809 ac. Pop. 124

WITTHAM, a gov and in Russia. See Yrta

WITTHAM a river England, rises on the N. confines of Rutlandshire, flows very circuitously first N to Lincoln, then E, then S.E. and falls into the Wash about 5 m below Boston. The Fostyke canal, originally constructed by the Romans, connects it with the Trent, and it is navigable to Lincoln, a distance of about 33 m

WITTHAM, a market town in Eng. England, co. Essex 6 m N.E. by E. Chelmsford pleasantly situated. It consists principally of one long street, and has a spacious and hand some church four Dissenting chapels, a national school and two almshouses. Area of par 3638 ac. 1 op. 3403

WITTHAM four pars Eng. — 1. (Parish) Somerset 4870 ac. Pop. 506 — 2. (North) Lincoln 2573 ac. Pop. 809 — 3. (on the Hill) Lincoln 4210 ac. Pop. 635 — 4. (South) Lincoln 3230 ac. Pop. 544

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Lincoln 2650 ac. Pop. 117

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Leicester 771 ac. Pop. 40

WITTHAM, a town and market in England, co. Devon, 8 m. E. Chumleigh with a parish church and an enclosed school. Area. 3048 ac. Pp. 1309

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Leicester 1570 ac. P. 40

WITTHAM, par Eng Lincoln 2669 ac. 1 op. 603

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng York 2800 ac. P. 518

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTHAM, 1 par Eng Suffolk 2600 ac. P. 159

WITTENBACH a vii Switzerland can St. Gall with a good school and a post-office. Pop. 1884

WITTENBERG a tn Prussia prov Saxony gov and 47 m N W Merseburg a bank Libe, here crossed by a long wooden bridge, and near the railway from Berlin to Leipzig. It consists of the town proper and two suburbs, and is a place of considerable strength, being both surrounded by walls with three gates, and defended by a fort and a strong castle. It is very indifferently built, and is both dirty and ill paved, but possesses high claims to notice, as having been the cradle of the Reformation. It is one celebrated university now renowned to Halle. Luther was professor of philosophy and theology and on the doors of one of its churches he hung up the celebrated theses, by which and the discourses which followed on them, the greatest abuses and impostures of the Papacy were overthrown. The principal buildings and objects of interest in the town are the hollomkirche in which both Luther and Melancthon are buried as well as their faithful friends and protectors the electors Frederick the Wise whose fort-on-the-Oder with two churches a poorhouse, manufactures of linen and hosiery and a trade in cattle, and several mills. Pop. (1853), 2390.

WITTINGAU, WITTINGAU or THORAU a tn Bohemia, circle and 16 m N N E Budweis, on the Goldbach with three churches, a castle, two hospitals, barracks, and an active trade in wood. Pop. 3819

WITTINGEN a tn Hanover gov and 40 m S S E Lüneburg with a church, and manufactures of sail ammunitions Pop. 1225.

WITTLICH a tn Rhineish Prussia gov and 20 m N E Treves, on the Moselle with a R. Catholic church and chapel and a trade in corn, wine, cattle, and tobacco. Pop. (1823) 3103.

WITTMUND a tn Hanover gov and 14 m N E. Arzbe on a canal with a superior burgher school, manufactures of linen and hats and some shipping. Pop. 1800

WITTON five pars Eng. —1 Haunts, 1600 ac. P. 267 —2 Norfolk 587 ac. 1 op. 153 —3 Norfolk 1745 ac. P. 269 —4 (East) York 7750 ac. P. 610 —5 (West) York 3715 ac. 1 op. 350

WITTON-GU a vii and par Eng land, co and 3 m W Durham, pleasantly situated on the Browney. It is well built; and has a church with a tower a national school, and the ruins of a monastic institution and chapel. Area, 2335 ac. Pop. 1706

WITTON LE-WEAR a vii and par Eng land, co Durham on an acclivity above a bank Wear here crossed by a bridge 5 m W N W Bishop-Auckland. It has an ancient church, an endowed school an old castle, crowned with towers and turrets, manufactures of quays, and large collieries. Area, 2505 ac. Pop. 918.

WITTSFUCK, a walled tn Prussia, prov Brandenburg gov Potsdam, 1 bank Dams, 60 m N W Berlin. It has a church, an hospital manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, a tannery brewery distillery, glass-works saw and paper mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. (1832) 6510

WITTLIASSEN a tn Hesse-Cassel, North-western on the Werra, here crossed by a bridge, 15 m E Cassel. It has walls with four gates a parish church, an elegant Gothic chapel with a fine turret, manufactures of leather and tobacco, a large paper and other mills, and dye-works. 1 op. 3235

WITTLISCHIMB a market tn and par England co Somerset, 10 m W by N Taunton. It has a church, two Dissenting chapels, three schools an infirmary a dispensary a brewery and a slate-quarry. Area, 5584 ac. Pop. 2861

WITTLISFIELD par Eng Sussex, 3104 ac. 1 op. 808

WITVENS a tn and par England co Essex, on the Colne, 44 m S E. of Chelmsford, of which it is the port. It has a custom house with a commodious quay an ancient church with a square embattled tower, a Dissenting chapel, and important oyster with other fisheries. 1 op. 1672. Area, 1597 ac.

WYLTON par Eng Norfolk 1043 ac. Pop. 245

WIX par Eng Essex, 8090 ac. Pop. 773.

WIXFORD par Eng Wiltshire 530 ac. Pop. 117

WIZNA a tn Russian island, gov and 60 m S S W Anzoutsev a bank Nerov. Pop. 2100

WKRA or WKA, a river rises in the S W of E Prussia, where it first takes the name of Soldau, flows S W past Soldau between Russia and Prussia then S E E and after a course of about 110 m, joins a bank Bog a little above its confluence with the Vistula at Modlin. Its chief affluents both on the right, are the Luthna and Soma.

WLADIKAWKAS, a tn Caucasus. See WLADIKAWKAS.

WLADIMIR, a tn and gov Russia. See VLADIMIR.

WLABCHIN a tn Bohemia, circle and 20 m S S W Kaurum with a church a fine castle with a park, a court-house and hospital, tile-works, and a saw and a flour mill. Pop. 2236.

WLODAWA a tn Russian Poland, walled and 70 m S E. Budlen, on the Wlodawa, near its confluence with a bank Bog with an active trade across the frontier. Pop. 1400

WOAHOO or OAHU, one of the Sandwich Is., Pacific Ocean, lat. 21 20' N, lon 157 37' W (u), 40 m long, by 20 m broad. It is of volcanic origin, and though exhibiting in monument is a fine work by Peter Vischer and John the Strad at St. Hil. The Stadtkirche where Luther and Melancthon preached and there is a curious altar piece of Crasch with real portraits three other churches, the remains of the Augustine monastery with 10th c apartments the house of Melancthon and Cranach an iron statue of Luther by Schad w in the market place the townhall with portraits of Luther and Melancthon the gymnasium theological seminary orphan and ordinary hospitals. The spot where Luther burned the 100 ps Bull immediately outside one of the town-gates is marked by being ruled round. The manufactures consist of woollen and linen cloth and the trade is in wool and cattle. Wittenberg has suffered much from war especially in 1760 when it was bombarded by the Austrians and a third of the houses were destroyed and in 1814 when after a siege of ten months the Prussians took it from the French by art. Pop. (1802) 9643

THE MARKET PLACE AND TOWN HALL, WITTENBERG. From a sketch by J. Schaefer.

WITTVENBERG a tn Prussia, prov Brandenburg gov and 65 m N W Potsdam, at the confluence of the Spree with the Elbe. It contains a church and has a considerable transit trade, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. (1824) 4576.

WITTVENBERG a tn Mecklenburg-Schwerin at the confluence of a small stream with the Schaale 15 m S W Schwerin. It is entered by two gates has a parish church and manufactures of linen tobacco-pipes, nails twine, and tobacco a tannery and dye-works. Pop. 2706

WITTVENBERG two pars Eng Berks —1 Little 579 ac. Pop. 128 —2, (Leag), 2280 ac. Pop. 648

WITTVENBERG par Eng Dorset 2430 ac. Pop. 965.

WITTVENBERG, three pars Eng —1 Northampton 1090 ac. 1 op. 269 —2 (East) Essex, 1505 ac. Pop. 233

—3 (West) Essex, 3615 ac. Pop. 609

WITTVENBERG par Eng Kent 3601 ac. 1 op. 967

WITTVENBERG a tn Pacific Ocean, Low Archipelago lat. 16° 4' N lon 145° 5' W 52 m long N W by N and 54 m broad N E. by S. discovered in 1819 by Hellinghausen

WITTVENBERG a tn Prussia, prov Silesia gov Legnitz on the Black Elster 67 m S S W Frank few signs of cultivation, is in some parts fertile, producing indigo, cotton sugar &c., and some coffee. In the N there is much fine scenery.

WÖBBELIN, a vil Makenburg between 18 m. S S E. S. E. between. The post Köber, who fell at the battle of Rothenburg is buried under a great oak in front of this village.

WÖBURN a market to and par England co. and 13 m S W Bedford, on a gentle eminence. It consists of four spacious streets, has a singularly picturesque church, nearly covered with ivy, two Dissenting chapels a free school, a handsome market-house and manufactures of straw-plait. In the immediate vicinity is Woburn abbey, with its noble park the seat of the Duke of Bedford. Area of par 3900 ac. P 2049

WODA, a vil Japan, Isl Kiusiu prov Fisen between Uradino and Wukamoto, with a celebrated idol placed in a large camphor-tree at its entrance.

WODKOQ, a vil and com the grum prov Hainaut, 22 m N N W Mons, with manufactures of linen, brewerries, brick works, and a trade in grain and cattle. Pop 2985

WODNIA, or WODNAR a in Bohemia, circle Pragobin on the Elmita. It has walls with three gates two churches, a courthouse, barracks and an hospital. Pop 2241

WODZISLA W a in Russian Poland gov Kas'ow, 34 m N E. Crasow. Pop. about 2000

WOERDEN, a in Holland prov S. Hol and 17 m E. Leyden, on both sides the Rhine. It was once fortified and still has two gates. Its inner walls have been turned into fine planted walks. It has a large old castle, now used as a house of correction a townhall communal house, weighhouse, a large arsenal, storehouses, barracks three churches a synagogue several superior common towns, and orphan schools, two orphan hospitals, and other benevolent institutions some best building yards numerous brick and tile works several mills and a trade in hemp bricks tiles &c. Pop 4293

WOESTEN, a vil and com Belgium prov W Flanders on the Kemmelbeke 26 m S W Brugge with a brewery and some trade. Pop 1204

WOGNOMILS FTZ, a market in Dolomieu 30 m S E Casanin with a church and a chapel. Pop 1084

WOHLAU a in Prussia prov Silesia, gov and 20 m W W Breslau, on the Jilbe, between several lakes. It consists of a walled town with three gates and of three suburbs and has a restaurant and a R Catholic church a townhouse courthouse, several schools, infirmary hospital, and many factories of woollen and linen cloth hosiery and hats. Pop 1862 2228

WOHLEN two places Switzerland—1 A in and par, can Aargau on the Ylis 11 m E E Aarau with a handsome church and manufactures of straw plait. Pop 2124—2 A vil and par, can and 4 m W N W Bern on a well-cultivated slope 1 bank Aar. Pop 2577

WOHRDEN a vil Denmark, Amby Holsten, S Thi marsh about 20 m S W Randburg with a church. P 600

WOJEREZY, a to Prussia. See NOTESAWKA

WOKAN one of the Arru isles with a vil of same name and another called Simpa. Inhabitants mostly Christians.

WOKING a vil and par England co Surrey on the Wey, the Baginbidge canal and the London and South West tern railway 3 m N B W Epsley, with a parish church a district church, Baptist, Independent, and R Catholic chapels an ancient palace a brewery and a paper-mill Area, 7832 ac Pop 2837

WOLDINGHAM a market to and par England co Berks, 7 m S E Reading. It has an ancient townhall a church also ancient two Dissenting churches a free school almshouses manufactures of silk, gauze and shoes nail-staples, and a large fair trade Area of par 6131 ac P 3702

WOLD Kewton, par Eng. York 1960 ac Pop 276

WOLDKROUGH with Kewtown Aasov par Eng Devon 1221 ac Pop 3227

WOLDLAGE, a walled in Makenburg Straltz 21 m N F Neg-Straßburg, with a church a burgher-school, manufacture of mirrors woollen and linen cloth, tanneries, tile-works, and several mills. Pop 2186

WOLDENBERG—1 A in Prussia prov Brandenburg, gov and 66 m N E Frankfurt-on-the-Oder on a height above several lakes, and at the junction of three railways. It is walled, and has a church manufactures of woollen, lace, and leather, and a trade in horses and cattle P 1802, 3688

WOLDINGHAM par Eng Surrey 1570 ac Pop 45
WOLF RIVER two rivers, U States—1 An affluent of the Miami R., rises in the N of the state of that name, flows W N W into Tennessee, and after a course of about 100 m joins the bank Mississippi at Memphis—2 Rises in the N of Wisconsin. Flows S S E and joins the Fox R. a little above the expansion of the latter into White Lake. It is navigated by steamers for about 150 m

WOLACH a tn, Baden circle Middle Rhine, at the junction of the Wolfach and Kinzig 26 m N E. Freiburg with a church a castle, battle and a trade in wood P 1053

WOLACH, (Jban) a vil Baden circle Middle Rhine dist, and near Wolfach with a church and saw mills. P 2128

WOLKGG a vil Württemberg circle Danub., ball, and 9 m S S E. Waldees with a church and a castle, with a picture-gallery and library of 109,000 vols. Pop 1714

WOLFEISDORF a vil Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and S S W Breslau picturesque situated on a slope of the Kilmberg with a church to which numerous pilgrimages are made and a fine cascade. Pop 1530

WOLFEHUTTEL a in Brunswick on the Oker, and on the railway from Brunswick to Magdeburg 8 m S Lüneburg. It consists of a walled town with two gates and of two suburbs is well built in handsome squares and spacious streets and has two Protestant churches one of them large and handsome a R Catholic chapel a synagogue, a castle townhouse arsenal a library of 1,00,000 vols including 13 other a Bible, with his M^{ty} notes a statue of Lessing who was long, librarian to the duke a gymnasium theological seminary, several schools hospitals, and churches, manufactures of linen silk ribbons lacequens, leather, lacequens, and tobacco and a trade in yarn and cattle. Pop 3003

WOLFFENBÜTTEL, a vil and par Switzerland can Unterwalden on the Aa, 7 m E N E. Sarnen with a handsome church and a ruined castle. Pop 1118

WOLFFERLOW par Eng Hereford 1585 ac. P 135

WOIFLAGEN, a in Hesse-Kassel Kassel between on a height 14 m W Ca el. It consists of a walled town with four gates, and a church and has a courthouse hospital, manufacture of linen silk ribbons lacequens, leather, lacequens, and tobacco and a trade in yarn and cattle. Pop 3187

WOILHARDEN, a vil and par Switzerland can Appenzell on the borders of the Rheodan 9 m L N F. H. (old) with a parish church on a mountain-slope manufactures of muslin and some trade in corn. Pop 2194

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOILHARDEN par Eng Warw 3470 ac. P 464

WOLLATON, par Eng. North, 2240 ac. Pop. 531
WOLLERAU, a vil and par Switzerland, can and 13 m N N E Schyrs, on a slope about 1 m. above the lake, and on the frontier of can Zürich, with a handsome church.
 Pop. 237

WOLFSCHNITZ, a vil Bohemia, circle Budweis, near Benitz with a church, and two mills. Pop. 1243.

WOLLAISEN-WISSEN, a vil and par Switzerland, can and 10 m. W. Lessen, on the Esame, here crossed by a bridge connecting it with Wollhausen in Markt.
 The former village has a parish church and parsonage on a height, and pop. 1231. The latter is overhung by a ruined castle.

WOLLIN, a in Prussia, prov. Pomerania, gov. and "9 m. N Stettin on id. of its name, and on the Dierow here crossed by three bridges, connecting it with the mainland. It is walled, has four suburbs, two churches, manufactories of leather, building yards, a fishery and some trade.
 1 sp. (1842) 4501. — The island, one of those on S. side of the Great Haff, between it and the Baltic, is of irregular shape, bounded E. by the Duvow, and W. by the Ost-Swine and measures 20 m. N.E. to S.W. by 8 m. to 10 m. broad.

WOLLSHOFFEN, a vil and par Switz. land, can and 2 m. S.W. Zürich, W. bank of the lake, with a church and school-house. A fierce struggle took place here in 1793, between the French and Russians. Pop. 1047

WOLLODILIY, a river New S. Wales rises in co.
 Argyle, flows N.N.E., and joins the Warragambie 45 m.
 W. W. Sydney

WOLLONGONG, a seaport in New S. Wales co. Camden, 60 m. S.W. Sydney much resorted to by invalids on account of the beauty of its situation.

WOLLSTEIN, or WOLSTEIN, a in Prussia, prov. and 32 m. S.W. Posen between two lakes with a church, a gymnasium, a synagogue, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth and tanneries. Pop. (1832) 2319

WOLMERSFELD, a in Prussia, prov. Saxony, gov. and
 "m. N. Magdeburg 1 bank Ulme. It has walls with three gates, a Protestant church, a town-house, manufactures of linen and leather, numerous bleachfields, distilleries and sugar and liquor factories. Pop. (1857) 3642

WOLNATH, or WOLNATH, a market in Upper Saxony, near the S. E. Pfaffenbush, with two churches, a townhouse and castle, and several breweries. P. 1023

WOLOGDA, a gov. Russia. See VOLOGDA

WOLSDORF, or WELSDORF, a vil Bohemia, circle Koenigsgrätz on a small stream about 2 m. from Jukun. It is a straggling place consisting of two portions an upper and a lower and has a church, a school and several mills. P. 1113

WOLSTINGHAM, a market in and par England co. and 14 m. W.S.W. Darham in the vale of the Wear with an ancient church, various Dissenting chapels, a grammar school, manufactures of linen, woollen cloth, edge tools, and implements of husbandry. Area of par. 20,403 ac. P. 4685

WOLSK, a in Russia. See VOJSK

WOLSTAN, a vil and par England co. Warwick on the Acon and on the London and Birmingham railway 5 m.
 N. E. Coventry. It has a large cruciform church with a very ancient tower, a Baptist chapel, and the remains of a Roman encampment. Area, 2770 ac. Pop. 1209

WOLSTON, a vil and par England, co. Stafford, near the summit level of the Grand Trunk canal about 1 m.
 E. N. E. Newcastle under Lyme, with an ancient parish church, several Dissenting chapels, manufactures of cloth and earthenware brick and tile works, collieries, and several blast-furnaces. Area, 10,739 ac. 1 sp. 2719

WOLUWE, two nearly contiguous places, Belgium, prov.
 Brabant, on the Woluwe 4 m. E. Brussels.—1, (St. Lambert) with a brewery, distillery, two flour-mills, and some trade. Large numbers of peats are cut in the vicinity. Pop.
 1111.—2, (St. Pierre) with a flour-mill and a brewery.
 Pop. 1164

WOLVERHAMPTON, a market in and non and par for England, co. Stafford, 12 m. S.W. by W. Birmingham
 It is here situated on the summit of an eminence commanding a picturesque view and is substantially but very irregularly built. During the last ten years, however it has made extraordinary progress, and many public buildings have been erected as if works of general utility carried on. The more important edifices and objects of note are eight churches, of which the principal is the collegiate church of St. Peter & the stately structure with lofty embattled tower, and many features of great interest, several excellent Dissenting chapels an exchange, a very capacious market-hall, a public subscription library of about 10,000 volumes, a very elegant school of practical art, opened in 1854, a noble hospital, a townhall, a very large and convenient orphanage, mainly founded by Mr. John Lees, an inhabitant and merchant, a theatre, a mechanics institute, a free grammar, blue-coat, ragged, national and other schools, various other charitable institutions, a union workhouse, a cemetery, race-course, cattle-market, subscription-baths, &c.

Situated in the heart of the great midland mining-district, Wolverhampton derives its wealth from the extensive beds of coal and ironstone which abound in its vicinity and the working of which gives abundant occupation to large numbers of its population. The smelting of iron-ore and its conversion into pig, railway sheet, hoop, rod, and nail iron, boiler-plates, iron-castings, &c., constitute its staple manufactures and trade, but it has from an early period obtained a high name for the skill and ingenuity displayed by its artisans in the manufacture of locks and keys. Almost every article produced from steel, brass, and tin is made here to a greater or less extent.
 Among other articles may be principally enumerated kingly, latches, bolts, axes, spades and garden-tools, vices, anvils, coffee and malt mills, fire-iron grates, &c. Paper, mangle and japanned and tin wares are very extensively made, and notice is also due to the manufactures of tin-plates, enamelled ordinary utensils, chemicals, varnishes, &c. All the goods thus produced are justly celebrated for the beauty and sterling character of their workmanship. The facilities enjoyed in carrying on this important trade are very ample. The advantages of canal-communication has long been possessed, and latterly the town has become the focus of the London and North Western, Shrewsbury and Birmingham (Oxford, Worcester and Wolverhampton and other railways, for which two handsome and commodious stations have been provided.
 Besides two weekly markets an annual fair, granted by Henry III. in 1203 is still held during three days.

Wolverhampton is of considerable antiquity although little can be ascertained of its history till 990, when Wulfstan or Wulfstan, master of Edmundo II. and rector of Athel-Duke of Northampton, founded and endowed here the church and college of St. Mary afterwards re-dedicated to St. Peter.
 Originally Hampton afterwards Wulfstan's Hampton, it has long since been corrupted to its present name.

The municipal borough was incorporated in 1847, and is divided into eight wards bearing the names of its eight churches. The parliamentary borough which includes Bilston appoints two members. Area of par. 10,690 ac. Pop.
 12,287. 1 sp. (ann. bor.) 49,985

WOLVELLEY, a vil and par England, co. Worcester pleasantly situated on the Stour and the Staffordshire and Worcester, about 2 m. N. W. Kidderminster with some curious houses cut out of the natural sandstone-rock, a parish and a distinct church, a Wesleyan chapel, and one of the principal depots of the engines and goods of the London and Birmingham railway, consisting of a quadrangular inclosure surrounded by several streets of houses for the numerous workmen. Area 5532 ac. Pop. 2441

WOLVETHIEM, a vil and com Belgium, prov. Brant 5 m. N. E. Brussels, with breweries, a distillery, and two corn mills. P. 8301

WOLVLETON, four pars. Eng. 1.—1, Bucks, 2250 ac.
 Pop. 2070. It contains a station on the London and N. W. railway, at which extensive works have been created for repairing locomotives, &c., the dwellings of the workmen and railway-servants, with a church, school, reading-room, &c., forming a small town.—2, Hants 1395 ac. Pop. 188.—3, Norfolk 5624 ac. Pop. 165.—4, Warwick 1320 ac. Pop. 174

WOLVES-NESTON, par Eng. Monm. 12540 ac. P. 319

WOLVLEY, par Eng. Warwick, 8700 ac. Pop. 923

WOMBURN, par Eng. Stafford, 4690 ac. Pop. 3007

WOMBURIDGE, par Eng. Stafford, 595 ac. Pop. 2168

WOMENSWOLD, par Eng. Kent 1010 ac. P. 356

WOMERSLEY, par Eng. York 7780 ac. Pop. 998

WONNELGHIEM, a vil and com. Belgium, prov. and 6 m. E. Antwerp, on the Grand Schyn, and the canal of Herrnshals, with manufactures of linen, two breweries, and a trade in corn and cattle. Pop. 1834.

WONASTOW, par Eng. Monmouth, 1599 ac. P 141

WONCK, a vil. and com. Belgum, prov Limburg on the Geer or Jaar 18 m. S.E. Hasselt; with manufactures of straw hats, and a quarry of building-stone. Pop. 1525

WONDELGHEM, a vil. and com. Belgum, prov E. Flanders, on the canal of Turnhout, and on the Lysu and the Oude, 2 m. N Ghent, with manufactures of starch, plantations of white mulberries, a brewery and two flour mills. Pop. 1173

WONK, a ruined tn. Hindostan, prov Candelah; with eight large and four small pagodas of hewn granite, and a pyramidal form with numerous carvings, decorations, and colossal statues

WONKESH a vil. and par England, co. Surrey 8 m. S.E. Guildford on the Wey and Arun canal. It has a parish church with a tower picturesque situated in the Park of Lord Grantham two independent chapels, and a mill for dressing leather. Pop. 1390 Area, 4437 ac.

WONGHOWIE, or WASHOWIE, a tn. Prussia prov Posen gov. and 41 m. S.W. Bromberg on the Wistula and a small lake, with a E. Catholic church a monastery and a synagogue. Pop. 1852 274

WONSTON par Eng. Hants 4160 ac. Pop. 715.

WONTERGILF, a vil. and com. Belgum, prov E. Flanders, on the Oude-Wandel an affluent of the Lys, 15 m. W. S.W. Ghent with manufactures of linen and cotton. Pop. 1075.

WOOD-BEAK regarded by the Chinese as one of the most sacred spots of the empire, in the N.W. of prov Fokien, in the Bohai too district, 420 m. N.E. Canton. It consists of a collection of abrupt and almost vertical heights the loftiest about 1000 ft., scattered apparently by some great convulsion of nature over an extensive plain. They are covered with numerous Buddhist temples the largest of which properly itself a collection of temples is beautifully situated on the sloping side of a basin scooped out of the highest summit with a lake in its centre, and sea plantations and dense forests on its sides. The rocks are composed in their lower parts of clay-slate and sandstone conglomerates intersected in all directions by masses or veins of quartz and granite. The latter, of a very dark colour caused by the abundance of fine deep black-black mica which it contains, forms the summit, and hence, probably, also the nucleus of the principal mountains in this part of the country

WOOLEY a vil. and par England co. Bucks. on a small stream 2 m. W. S.W. Beaconsfield with a handsome parish church, independent and Wesleyan chapels manufactures of bone-lace, and paper and flour mills. Area, 2850 ac. Pop. 2036

WOOD-DALTON par Eng. Norfolk, 2444 ac. P 574

WOOD DITTON par Eng. Cambridge 4899 ac. P 1296

WOOD EATON, par Eng. Oxford, 839 ac. P 89

WOOD HANDEY, par Eng. Lincoln 990 ac. Pop. 291

WOOD-NEWTON par Eng. Northampton, 1590 ac. P 503

WOOD NORWICH par Eng. Norfolk, 1720 ac. P 308

WOOD RING, par Eng. Norfolk 1363 ac. Pop. 127

WOODBARTWICK par Eng. Norfolk 2163 ac. P 293

WOODBOROUGH a vil. and par England, co. and 7 m. N. N.E. Nottingham, on the Dovebeck. It has a parish church with a fine Norman doorway Wesleyan and Baptist chapels, a free school, and manufactures of hosiery. William Lee invented the stocking-frame here in 1529. Area, 1940 ac. P 852

WOODBOROUGH, par Eng. Wills, 1016 ac. Pop. 434

WOODBLEDGE a market tn. and par England, co. Suffolk 71 m. E. N.E. Ipswich, on a slope above the Deben here navigable for vessels of 120 tons. It has two main streets, a spacious square, a fine church of dark flint intermixed with freestone, with a magnificent tower, four Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, a handsome courthouse a custom-house bonded warehouses a theatre, and houses of correction. The chief exports are corn, flour and malt and the imports coal, timber, foreign wine, spirits, porter groceries, and ironmongery. Area of par, 1058 ac. Pop. 5151.

WOODBURY a vil. and par England on Devon, on the Exe, 3 m. E. S.E. of Exeter with a parish and a district church, and an ancient earthwork of irregular form called Woodbury castle. Area, 7804 ac. Pop. 2014.

WOODCHESTER, a vil. and par England, co. Gloucester on a height 3 m. S.W. Stroud. It occupies the site of a Roman station and has a parish church with a fine monument, a Baptist chapel, and manufactures of woollen cloth. Area, 1203 ac. Pop. 692.

WOODCHURCH two par. Eng. — 1 Cheshire 5792 ac. Pop. 2927 — 2, Kent 6949 ac. Pop. 1296

WOODCOTT, par Eng. Hants 1250 ac. Pop. 100.

WOODFORD a vil. and par England, co. Essex on the borders of Epping Forest, 6 m. N. N.E. London with an elegant modern church with a square embellished tower; a chapel of ease, Wesleyan and Independent chapels, a Christiana marble pillar about 40 ft. high, erected as a monument in the church yard, and a mineral spring. Area, 2143 ac. Pop. 2774

WOODFORD three par. Eng. — 1 Northampton 2865 ac. Pop. 800. — 2 Northampton, 1750 ac. Pop. 735. — 3, Wilt 2780 ac. Pop. 496

WOODHALL, par Eng. Lincoln 2240 ac. Pop. 375.

WOODHAM three par. Eng. — 1, (Norw.) Essex 4481 ac. Pop. 981 — 2 (Northw.) Essex 1380 ac. Pop. 326 — 3 (Walter) Essex, 2421 ac. Pop. 553.

WOODHAY (East) a par England, consisting chiefly of the vills Woodlly, East End and North End, co. Hants, 5 m. W. S.W. Newbury. It has a parish church and Independent and Wesleyan chapels. Bishops Hooper, Ken and Leath were rectors of this parish. Area, 4968 ac. Pop. 1540.

WOODHAY (West) par Eng. Bucks 1407 ac. P 116

WOODHORN a vil. and par England, co. Northumberland, near the sea, 8 m. F. N.E. Morpeth with a very ancient Norman church with a tower a chapel of ease, and a charitable endowment. Area 3406 ac. Pop. 1558.

WOODHURST, par Eng. Hants 2180 ac. Pop. 533.

WOODLANDS par Eng. Dorset 2561 ac. Pop. 476.

WOODLEIGH par Eng. Devon 2813 ac. Pop. 233

WOODLEIGH (East) a vil. and com. See KILN.

WOODMANSTON par Eng. Essex 2720 ac. P 326.

WOODMANGATE par Eng. Hants, 1836 ac. Pop. 76.

WOODMANSTON, par Eng. Surrey, 1590 ac. Pop. 271

WOODESBOROUGH, par Eng. Kent, 2944 ac. Pop. 813

WOODESFORD par Eng. Dorset 1742 ac. Pop. 183

WOODSTOCK a par. and main bur. England, co. and 8 m. N. W. Oxford on the Glyme with spacious streets, substantial and generally handsome houses a church with a tower two Dissenting chapels, a handsome townhall, a grammar and two endowed free schools almshouses, and considerable manufactures of gloves. Woodstock is of Saxon origin and early had a royal palace which gives the name to one of Sir Walter Scott's novels, and in which Elizabeth was confined for a time during the reign of her sister Mary. The borough which is very ancient, formerly sent two members to Parliament, but was deprived of one by the Reform Act. Pop. 7393.

WOODSTOCK par Eng. Oxford 860 ac. Pop. 1262

WOODSTOCK a tn. in Canada West, cap. on Oxford East Oxford, in the centre of a beautiful and fertile district, on the Great Western railway, with six Protestant churches, several schools, a machine manufactory, manufactures of iron, cloth and leather. Pop. about 8000

WOODSTUNE two vills. 1. Vermont, 51 m. S. by E. Montpelier, with a court house, jail, five churches, woollen factories, tanneries, and mills. Pop. 1500 — 2. Virginia, 160 m. N. W. Richmond, with three churches, and an academy. Pop. 1200

WOODTUNE, par Eng. Hants 1050 ac. Pop. 320

WOODTON par Eng. Norfolk, 2124 ac. Pop. 683.

WOODWALTON, par Eng. Hants 5719 ac. P 380.

WOOKEY a vil. and par England, co. Somerset, on the Mendip Hills, about 2 m. W. Wells with a parish and a district church and a remarkable geological cave, in one of the compartments of which the Avernus. Area 2410 ac. P 1169.

WOOL, par Eng. Dorset 2550 ac. Pop. 545

WOOLINGTON two par. Eng. — 1, Somerset, 1725 ac. Pop. 405 — 2, Somerset 2530 ac. Pop. 462

WOOLBIDING par Eng. Sussex, 2258 ac. P 330.

WOOLENGRANGE, par Irel. Kilkenny 1604 ac. Pop. 285

WOOLER a market tn. and par. England, on Northam bank on an activity 43 m N N W Newcastle. It has one good main street, old houses mostly of stone, a parish church, five dissenting chapels, a national and other schools, a subscription library and a literary and scientific institution. Area, 4638 ac. Pop. 1911

WOOLFARDISWORTHY — 1 A vil and par. Eng. land, on Devon, on the sea-coast 9 m W S W Bideford with quarters of excellent buildings. Pop. 874. Area 5798 ac — 2 A par. Eng. Devon 1815 ac. Pop. 208

WOOLHAMPTON par. Eng. Berks 694 ac. P 602

WOOLHOPE par. Eng. Hereford 4658 ac. Pop. 902

WOOLLAND par. Eng. Dorset, 1098 ac. Pop. 107

WOOLLASTON par. Eng. Gloucester 5416 ac. P 1110

WOOLLEY par. Eng. Somerset, 865 ac. Pop. 91

WOOLLEY par. Eng. Hants 1420 ac. Pop. 90

WOOLLOCH (Fr.) par. Eng. Monmouth 8584 ac. Pop. 2027

WOOLLYA a native settlement, S. America Tierra-del-Fuego on the N W shore of Navarin Island lat. 55 S, lon. 68° W. It is of pleasing appearance rising gently from the water side into moderate hills, clothed with the finest timber in the country is well watered, and has considerable spaces of clear pasture-ground with rich grass and some beautiful flowers. One of the natives who had been in England was taken back by Captain Flacey during the voyage of the Adelphi and people.

WOOLPIT a vil and par. England on Suffolk. 6 m W N W Stow with a parish church with a beautiful porch and light graceful spire manufactures of very fine white bricks and one of the largest horse fairs in England. Pop. 1411. Area 1877 ac.

WOOLSTATION par. Eng. Salop 843 ac. Pop. 72

WOOLTHORPE par. Eng. Lincoln 2600 ac. P 632

WOOLTON par. Eng. Gloucester 787 ac. Pop. 86

WOOLTON two par. Eng. Bucks — 1 (Great), 700 ac. Pop. 72 — 2 (Little) 613 ac. Pop. 102

WOOLTON a vil and chapelry England co. Lancaster 6 m E E Liverpool with a handsome modern chapel of ease with a tower and small dome. A Wesleyan and a R. Catholic chapel and several schools. Pop. 2610 m

WOOLVERCOT par. Eng. Oxfor 1000 ac. P 687

WOOLVERSTONE par. Eng. Suffolk 1256 ac. P 241

WOOLVERTON par. Eng. Somerset 736 ac. P 174

WOOLWICH a market in and par. England on Kent r. bank Thames 9 m below London bridge, on the N Kent railway. It has one main street parallel with the river and intersected by other minor streets many ancient together with a number of handsome modern houses, an old church with a square tower two new churches, Presbyterian Independent, Wesleyan and Association Methodist, Baptist and R. Catholic chapels national British and other schools a mechanics institute a townhall and several charitable endowments. It owes its chief claims to notice however not to these but to its arsenal which occupies an area of above 100 ac. and is one of the most complete and magnificent establishments of the kind in the world. It consists principally of the arsenal proper as called with its extensive cannon foundries gun powder and rocket magazines, saw mills and workshops its model room containing a pattern of every article used in the artillery service and its numerous pyramidal piles of balls and bomb-shells the artillery barracks and storehouses, the repository for models of fortification towers dockyards &c. the marine and sappers and miners' barracks the military academy the dockyard and ordnance hospital. At North Woolwich, in the opposite side of the river where the Woolwich branch of the Eastern Counties railway terminates, many handsome residences have recently sprung up. Area, 1596 ac. Pop. 21267

WOOLWICK, a vil U. States, Rhode Island on the Blackstone, and on the Providence and Worcester railway, 16 m N by W Providence with many handsome buildings, seven churches, a high school cotton and woolen mills, machine shops iron-foundries manufacturers of the plate, stoves, sewing silk and silk fringes, &c. and a rapidly increasing trade. Pop. including several smaller vils., about 8500

WOOLWICH a vil U. States, Ohio, on Kirtland Creek, and on the Ohio and Pennsylvania railway 90 m E E Columbus It is well built and has eight churches, extensive manufactures of carriages, and an active trade. Pop. (1855), about 4000

WOOLUNG a support in China, prov. Kiangsi, 80 m N W Chunan. It was fortified by the Chinese during the late war but taken by the British in 1848

WOOTTON 18 par. Eng. — 1, Bedford; 8711 ac.

Pop. 1204 — 2 Berks. Pop. 870 — 3, Kent, 1010 ac.

Pop. 153 — 4 Lincoln, 2380 ac. Pop. 604 — 5 Hants

1860 ac. Pop. 68 — 6, Northampton, 1420 ac. Pop. 877

— 7 Oxford, 5720 ac. Pop. 1250 — 8, (County) Somerset 3145 ac. Pop. 411 — 9 (Agriculture), Dorset, 1679 ac.

Pop. 861 — 10 (Gloucestershire) Dorset, 1865 ac. Pop. 328

— 11 (North) Norfolk 4968 ac. Pop. 188 — 12, (North)

Somerset, 1536 ac. Pop. 886 — 13 (North), Dorset 6108 ac.

Pop. 75 — 14 (North) Wilts 1179 ac. Pop. 437 — 15

(St. Lawrence) Hants 8987 ac. Pop. 222 — 16 (South)

Norfolk 1874 ac. Pop. 155 — 17 (under Wood) Bucks

3220 ac. P. 23 — 18 (W. Essex), Warwick 8700 ac. P. 2306

WOOTTON a market in and par. England co.

Wilts 6 m W Swindon agreeably situated on a height, with an ancient church a dissenting chapel, and a free school

Area of par. 4779 ac. Pop. 2123

WOBB a vil and par. Switzerland. can and 6 m E

Bern at the foot of a height crowned with an old turreted castle. It has manufactures of linen and stuff corn and saw mills. Pop. 2899

WOBBIS a tn Prussia, prov. Saxony gov. and 42 m

N W Erfurt near the source of the Wipper with a church, an old monastery manufactures of calico, serge and flannel, and several tanneries. Pop. (1853) 2044

WORCESTER an inland co. England, bounded N by

Salop and Stafford W Hereford S Gloucester and E War wick with some separated portions, enclosed by the Salop

Gloucester and Warwick. Area, 7958 sq. m. The surface, generally level or gently undulating has some extensive and beautiful valleys, the principal of which that of the Severn is 20 m long and 3 m to 1 m broad. On the S W are the fine eminences called the Malvern Hills, the loftiest of which is 1315 ft. above sea level. The strata consist for the most part of new red sandstone lias, and oolite. other formations are visible in the chain of the Malvern Hills and some other districts. The soil composed chiefly of clay and loam, is of great fertility. The principal crops are wheat, barley oats, beans, peas, vetches, turnips hops and carrots. The orchards are celebrated for their apples and cider. The value consists of meadows and rich pastures. The sheep are of the Leicester breed. Coal is found in the N, the brine springs at Droit-wich supply immense quantities of salt iron, &c. are manufactured at Dudley carpets at Kidderminster and porcelain,

&c. at Worcester. Worcester sends 13 members to Parliament—four for the county and eight for the boroughs of Worcester (the capital), Evesham, Droitwich, Dudley, Kiddermin-ster and Bewdley. Pop. 276 926.

WORCESTER a tn England cap above on pleasantly situated on a gradual slope above a bank Severn which is here crossed by a handsome bridge communicating with the suburbs of St. John and on the Oxford and Worcester and the Bristol and Birmingham railways, 109 m W N W

London. It is approached through a rich and beautiful country, and is in general well built, consisting of several spacious streets, which intersect at right angles, the houses being chiefly of red brick but at some of the more ancient parts of the city, they are cross timbered and gabled, from two to three centuries old. The principal street, formed by the junction of High Street, Foregate Street, and the Tyndal presents a straight and level line, about 1 m long and remarkable for its picturesque appearance, and many of the houses and shops are both substantial and elegant. The principal edifice is the cathedral a spacious but externally plain structure, in the form of a double cross, with a noble square tower which is enriched with canopied niches and statues, and rises from its centre to the height of 198 feet. The interior has an early English choir with surrounding chapels, much admired for the sharpness and delicacy of their moldings a groined roof and an altar-screen and pulpit, both of stone and finely sculptured. The nave, separated from the aisles by finely clustered columns, is lighted by a range of slender story windows the choir, situated on the S, form a spacious choir; and the chapter-house, externally in the form of a decagon, but chamber within, has a finely grained roof supported by a central column, and contains the cathedral library. The other objects of note include 18 churches, besides chapels attached to hospitals and to the infirmary several of them with handsome spires, among which that of St. Andrew's is particularly admired various dissenting chapels belonging to Independents, Primitive and Wesleyan Methodists, Lady Huntingdon's Connection, Baptists, Quakers, &c. Catholics, &c. the cathedral a handsome classic building with massive Ionic columns; the bazaar, of brick with stone quoins, colonnades, and ornaments; large county and city jails, a museum of the Natural History Society three large market-halls, a collegiate school Queen Elizabeth's grammar-school national, British Sunday infant, and other schools an Athenaeum a government school of design, a music-hall a subscription library, a law-library a theatre, a city and county infirmary with two handsome fronts, good internal arrangements, and a considerable extent of garden and pleasure ground, a dispensary an ophthalmic institution house of industry, a lunatic asylum, St. Oswald's hospital and a great number of almshouses and charities. The manufactures are chiefly porcelain, for which the town and vicinity have long been celebrated, leather gloves, once the most important staple, hair cloth, lace, iron-ware, gin, vinegar and British wine. The trade, which, besides railway-communication and the river has the advantage of the Worcester and Birmingham canal, consists principally in coal iron work, steel, and tinware and in supplying a large surrounding district with many of the ordinary articles of consumption. Besides two weekly markets, one of them for corn there are monthly fairs, of which the most important are for cattle and hops. At Fildesford, the principal place of summer resort there is a race-course, where races are held twice a year. Worcester has three newspapers, and the remarkable taste for music which prevails among the inhabitants is evinced by the fact that there is no town in England of the same size, where musical entertainments are so frequently and successfully given. The date of the foundation of Worcester is traced back to the time of the ancient Britons, from whom it was wrested by the Romans, who made it an important station. In 628 it was taken by Penda, king of Mercia, and in 679 its first bishop was consecrated. After being destroyed by the Danes it was rebuilt in 894 by Ethelred a Mercian prince, to whom Alfred had given his daughter Eilfreda in marriage. Shortly after the Conquest, a commanding height overlooking the Severn became the site of its extensive castle of which a square fortification called Edgar tower upwards of six centuries old, is all that now remains. The first charter of incorporation was given by Henry I. It suffered severely both from intestine feuds and incursions of the Welsh it was also repeatedly ravished by the plague. In the last civil war its strong loyalist feelings made it the scene of several keen contests and repeatedly provoked the vengeance of the Parliament. Its corporation consists of a mayor 12 aldermen and 86 councillors. It returns two members to the House of Commons. Among its distinguished natives are St. Wulfstan the monk, historian Heming and Florence and the great Lord Somers. Pop. 27,528.

WÖRSTEL, a town in Essex, Massachusetts, in a valley on the Blackstone canal, and on several lines of railway. It is considered one of the finest towns in New England, and has a spacious public green, and several elegant streets, one of which about 1½ m long is straight broad and shaded with beautiful trees. The public buildings include seven churches, a fine courthouse, the hall of the American Antiquarian Society forming a handsome edifice with a valuable library and museum, a B. Catholic college, several academies and schools, and the state lunatic asylum beautifully situated on a height E. of the town, amid extensive and highly ornamented grounds, and managed so as to be a model for similar establishments. The manufactures are cotton and woollen fabrics, which are the staples carpets, paper wire cuttings, railroad and other carriages, machinery, brass and tin ware, musical instruments, hats, straw-hats, shoes, harness, &c. The trade has greatly increased since the opening of the railway to Boston. Pop. (1860) 17,059.

WÖRSTEL, a Cape Colony esp. division of the same name, beautifully situated on an extensive plain near the confluence of the Hex and Breeds, 62 m S N E Cape Town. It is regularly laid out in spacious streets, which cross at right angles, and each of which is supplied by a stream of beautiful clear water brought by a main water-course from the Hantshoof River, bounded N by Glenwillough, E. Beaufort, S. E. George, S. Swellendam, and W Stellenbosch and the Cape, is 180 m long E. to W., by 82 m broad, and has an estimated area of 20,000 sq m. The surface generally elevated is covered in the W by the Bokkeveld Mountains, in which the climate is pleasantly cool in summer, and sharp and cold in winter, contains much land well adapted for agriculture, raises in abundance excellent apples, peaches, and cherries and is tolerably well watered by the Doorn the Great Berg and the Dorsel.

WÖRSTINGBORG [Latin, Orthingburg] a town and seaport, Denmark, on the S.E. point of the island of Zealand 52 m S S W Copenhagen. Its winter-haven, of the fifth class, enables it to carry on some trade. A small garrison is kept in it. It is very ancient, with a lofty tower the remnant of a strong castle, in which several of the Danish kings resided and a harbour with some trade. Pop. 1500.

WÖRTH, a town in Bavaria, Lower Franconia, on the Main near Kleinheubach, with a church, two chapels, a mill and a building yard. Pop. 1673.

WÖRTHINGTON a market town and seaport and par. Eng. land, on Cumberland at the mouth of the Derwent at the entrance to the bolwye Firth 5 m S S W Maryport. It is irregularly built but has some spacious streets several handsome houses and shops two churches, one very handsome five Dissenting chapels, a savings bank, national infant, industrial, and other schools a dispensary three libraries, a new-room a mechanics institute an assembly-room extensive building yards employing together between 300 and 400 men an iron chain anchor, and cable factory a tin-plate factory a rope-work and a trade chiefly in exporting coal to Ireland and line to Scotland. A few large vessels are employed in the N. American timber trade. Pop. (1857) 5837. Area 8310 a. Pop. 7159.

WÖRKAMP a market town and par. Eng. land, on 25 m N Nottingham, on the Ryeon laro crossed by the Chesterfield canal in a well-wooded and picturesque district, near the N. extremity of Sherwood Forest. It consists of a long street, with others branching from it; is in general well built, and has a beautiful Norman church, part of which originally belonged to an Augustinian priory of which there are some old remains Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, independent, and B. Catholic churches national schools, an ancient hall called the Moorhall a corn exchange with a large hall or assembly room and a considerable trade in mail. Pop. (1861) 6058. Area of par. 18,320 a. Pop. 7316.

WÖRTHUM formerly WÖRTHUM and WÄLTHUM Latin Forcumum — 1 A town Holland par. Friesland, 10 m S W Sneek, near the North Sea, with which it communicates by a canal. In its centre is a fine market-place, on which stand the townhall, the warehouse, and the principal church. It has also three other churches, several schools, and an orphan hospital. It is the birthplace of the antiquary and Greek scholar Lambert Bae. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in suffering Pop. 2470 — 2 A town in Prussia (see WÖRTHUM).

WÖRWAY one of the Arcturales containing the village of Vieux Affars, Oni Affars, Gooz Longar and Truc. It is noted for the productiveness of its trepanning-fisheries.

WÖRLAHY two par. Eng. Lancashire — 1 2210 a. Pop. 400 — 2 490 a. Pop. 85.

WÖRLINGHAM two par. Eng. Hants — 1 (East), 1697 a. Pop. 258 — 2 (West) 447 a. Pop. 96.

WÖRIE par. Eng. Somerset 1810 a. Pop. 960.

WÖRLINGHAM par. Eng. Suffolk, 1831 a. Pop. 174.

WÖRLINGLOV three par. Eng. — 1, Suffolk 2980 a. Pop. 591 — 2, Acad, Devon 2305 a. Pop. 277 — 3, (West) Devon 2683 a. Pop. 229.

WÖRLINGWÖRTH par. Eng. Suff. — 2444 a. Pop. 611.

WÖRLITZHEKA, a village Bohemia, circle Chrudim, dist. and near Landekron on the Adicksbach, at the foot of the Adicksbach and Buchberg with a church, a saw and two other mills. Pop. 1204.

WÖRLITZ/ a town in Germany, duchy Anhalt-Dessau hall Orlanthenam, on a lake about 1 m. from the Elbe. It has a castle with fine gardens and park, a church, and a normal school. Pop. 1867.

WORMBRIDGE par Eng Hereford 720 ac. P 91
WORMDITT or OMKRA a tn. Fressna, prov E.
 Prussia gov and 44 m. S. S. W. Koenigsberg, on the Drewenz, in Ermeland with two churches a nursery, two hospitals manufactures of linen a saw and a walk mill. Pop 2798.

WORM-GAY par Eng. Norfolk 3788 ac. Pop 440
WORMELDINGEN a vil Holland prov and 13 m. E.
 Luxemburg 1 bank Moselle a large well-built place. Pop (agricultural) 1400.

WORMELH a vil Holland, prov N Holland 16 m.
 S. W. Hoorn with a townhall, three churches, and a school a boat-building yard, and some mills. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in sea-faring, fishing, &c. Pop 1035

WORMELVILL a vil Holland prov N Holland, 12 m. N. W. Haarlem with Reformed Baptist R Catholic, and Jansenist churches, two schools, an old townhall now used as a school and a new communal house, an orphan hospital manufactures of pencils, chocolate, and paper numerous mills, and a trade in cheese grain seeds, &c. Pop 2688.

WORMHOUDT a tn and com France dep Nord, 11 m. from Dunkirk, on the Yser It is well built and has bleach fields, breweries, ironworks, brick fields and oil mills. P 2828.

WORMINGFORD par Eng Essex 231 ac. P 535.
WORMINGHALL par Eng Bucks 1488 ac. P 360

WORMINGTON par Eng Glo ster 560 ac. P 62
WORMRICHTON par Eng Warw 2330 ac. P 194

WORMSLEY par Eng Herts 940 ac. Pop 611

WORMS (anc. Dorbetanagum) a tn. House-Darmstadt, prov Rhineland 1 bank Rhine here crossed by a flying bridge, 28 m. S. E. Mainz. It consists of a walled town, with massive towers and seven gates and of three suburbs and several squares and main streets of which only a few are spacious and well built. The public buildings are a fine massive Dom or cathedral of red sandstone, partly Byzantine leather, lacquerware, best-root sugar and tobacco, and the trade is in corn wine, and oil Worms has long lost the importance which it had when it was a free Imperial city the chosen residence of emperors and the frequent meeting-place of imperial diets. Even at the end of the Thirty Years' war, its pop. was 40,000, but is not now above 9400, chiefly Protestants.

WORMS, a tn Italy See BONOMO
WORMSHILL par Eng Kent 1461 ac. Pop 208
WORMSLEY, par Eng Hereford 1238 ac. Pop 125.
WORMSLEY a gov and tn Russia. See VOZNOVSKY
WORMLESDON, par Eng Surrey, 7140 ac. P 1549
WORMINGFORD (anc. Bormonensis) a vil Rhineland Prussia gov and 10 m. N. W. Cologne, near 1 bank Rhine; with a church, brewery, and distilleries. A battle was fought here in 1288. Pop 1429

WORMSTADT a tn. House-Darmstadt, prov Rhineland hessen 12 m. S. S. W. Mainz; with a church, castle, hospital, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1830.

WORMSLEY a vil and township, England, co. Lancaster on the Worsley canal one of the earliest undertakings of the Duke of Bridgewater 7 m. N. W. Manchester. It is well built and has a beautiful modern church finely situated on a height, and conspicuous by its graceful spire, 105 ft. high. A Wesleyan chapel several schools a reading room and library, savings bank several large cotton mills last building yards, and extensive collieries. Wormsley hall the fine seat of the Earl of Ellesmere is in the immediate vicinity. Pop. 10,189
WORMSTADT par Eng Norfolk 2608 ac. Pop 827
WORMSLEY M a vil and com Belgium prov L. Flan ders 15 m. S. S. W. Ghent with manufactures of linen a brewery a distillery and 11 and four mills. Pop 3106.

WORTH par Eng Kent 7431 ac. Pop 471

WORTH par Eng Sussex 13,240 ac. Pop 2474.

WORTH two places Bavaria.—1. A market to Upper Palatinate, 1 bank Danube 14 m. E. Ratisbon with a church townhouse fine castle and infirmary. Pop. 1115.—3. (now Rheine) A vil Palatinate com Kaubel, with a Protestant church, and a fishery. Pop. 1499

WORTH MATHEMANS par Eng Dorset, 2645 ac. P 396

WORTHAM par Eng Suffolk 2736 ac. Pop. 1086.

WORTHAM a vil and par partly in co. Montgomery, N Wales, but chiefly in Salop, England 9 m. N. E. Montgomery with a church of plain appearance a chapel of ease a Baptist chapel a charitable endowment, and several lead mines. Area of par 4227 ac. Pop 3325

WORTHENBURY par Wales, Flint 3279 ac. P 543
WORTHING a seaport in and watering place England, co. Sussex 12 m. W. Brighton with some good streets and some terraced crescents and villas. Worthing is provided with every requisite to render it a fashionable resort splendid hotels and lodgings baths, smooth roads, a beautiful esplanade, libraries a handsome chapel of ease three dissenting chapels, a literary institution reading rooms, assembly rooms, a dispensary and several other charitable institutions. An extensive mackerel fishery is carried on. Pop. 5376

WORTHING par Eng Norfolk 660 ac. Pop. 170

WORTHY two pars Eng Hants.—1, (Headbourne),
 800 ac. Pop 103.—3 (Kings), 2216 ac. Pop 369

WORTHING par Eng Hants 1139 ac. Pop. 158

WORTLEY a vil and chapelry England, co. York on the Manchester and Sheffield railway in a romantic and finely wooded district with neat cottages and gardens, a chapel, a national school an extensive manufacture of bar, hoop and sheet iron quarries of excellent grindstones and building stones and several collieries. Pop. 7896

WORTHLEY L. par Eng Norfolk. Pop. 541

WORTSCHLITZ (Jena) a tn Bohemia, circle and 11 m.
 N. E. Tabor with a church two chapels, a school, hospital, poorhouse, castle, and three mills. Pop. 1812

WORTSCHNIK, WORTSCHNIK or WORTSCH, a market in Prussia, prov Silesia gov and 48 m. E. Oppeln with a R. Catholic church a castle, vinegar works and iron-works.
 Pop. 1083.

WÖRTHINGEN a market to Baden circle Middle Rhine,
 9 m. E. Carlsruhe, with two churches and a castle. P 1597

WOSTITZ, or WLASATITZ, a market in Austria, Bomoravia, circle and 18 m. S. S. W. Brunn, with a church and a castle. Pop 1812

THE LATINER HALL AND PART OF THE MARKET PLACE, WORMS
 From large wooden on Southend.

and partly G. this, with two towers at each end a magnificent portal with fine sculptures and a very gaudy modernized interior. St. Paul's church with an ancient part, interesting both for its equity and beauty. Trinity church on the site of the royal palace, three other churches, two synagogues, one of them at least 800 years old the episcopal court or his chofstul containing a part of a few red stone walls, but including the spot where Luther made his noble stand at the diet of 1521 the gymnasium and several other schools, the same, and a number of hospitals. The manufactures are moreover WOTAWA, a river, Bohemia, rises on the E. slope of the Böhmerwald flows practically E N. E., and about 10 m. below Pisek joins r. bank Moldau, after a course of about 70 m.

WOTTON, par Eng Surrey; 4176 ac. Pop. 746.
WOTTON-CRUM-ROSE, a market in and par Eng. Lanc., co. and 17 m. S S W Gloucester. It consists of one principal and five or six minor streets and lanes; it built chiefly of brick and partly of timber lath and plaster, and has a church, four Dissenting chapels, a large townhall with a market-place beneath, grammar blue coat, national and British schools, almshouses, and several other charities; manufactures of fine woollen cloth and woollen dyer's works. Pop (in.), 1912 Area of par, 4680 ac. Pop. 4234

WOUBERGUE, a vil Holland, prov S. Holland, 8 m. N E Leyden. It is a neat place with a good seminary school, a church, and an orphan hospital. P (agrivultural), 982
WOUDENBERG, a vil Holland prov and 10 m. E Utrecht with a church and a school. Inhabitants chiefly engaged in growing tobacco. Pop 1723

WOUDRICHEM, or WOMRICH, a fortified in Holland, prov N Brabant, 19 m. N W Hertogenbosch, 1 bank Maas. It is an old place with three gates, a townhouse, two churches, and a school. The fortifications are in a ruinous state. Inhabitants engaged in agriculture, fishing, and sea-faring. P 987
WOUGHTON, or WU-GH-SON, par Eng Bucks 890 ac. Pop. 337

WOLDBAM, par Eng Kent, 612 ac. Pop. 345
WOUMEN, a vil and com. Belgium, prov W Flanders, 20 m. S W Bruges, with a church, two schools, four breweries, a tannery, rope-walk, oil press, and two flour mills. 1 op. 3107

WOUW, a vil Holland prov N Brabant, 6 m. E N E Bergen-op-Zoom with a large square planted market-place in which stands the townhouse. It has also a R. Catholic church, and a school, some breweries, tan pits, brick-works, and mills. 1 op (agricultural), 938

WOW, a tn. Hindoostan prov Gujerat, cap dist F of the Rann, and 167 m. W by S Osjeypoor. It is fortified, but has suffered much by incessant ravages since 1820 when it was placed under British protection, it has somewhat recovered.

WOYNILOW, a vil Austria, Galicia, circle and 80 m. E S E. Stoy on a small affluent of the Danister with extensive manufactures of common earthenware

WOYNILY, a tn. Austria, Galicia, circle Bochnia, near 1. bank Danajce, 41 m. E S E Cracow. Pop 1118

WOYSLAWICE, a tn. Russian Poland, woiwood and 60 m. E S E Lublin. Pop about 1200

WRABENESS, par Eng Essex 1491 ac. Pop. 261
WRAGBY, a market tn. and par Eng. Lanc. co. and 12 m. E N E Lincoln with a church and a Wesleyan chapel, and almshouses. Area of par 1694 ac. Pop. 610

WRAGBY, par Eng York 9944 ac. Pop 782
WRASLAW, a tn. Russian Poland 1 bank Vistula, 96 m. W N W Warsaw with six churches, a Parast school, a brewery and a distillery. Pop 1304

WRAMPLINGHAM, par Eng Norf, 345 ac. 1 245
WRANGEL, or WRANGEL, (GREAT and LITTLE) two small islands Russia, gov Easthonia in the Gulf of Finland, 20 m. N E Revel

WRANGLE, par Eng Lincoln 9730 ac. 1 op 1196
WRATH (GATE), Scotland. See GATE WRATH.

WRATTING, three pars Eng. Lanc.—1 (Great) Suffolk, 1820 ac. Pop. 391 —2, (Little), Suffolk, 926 ac. Pop. 212 —3, (West) Cambridge, 3441 ac. Pop. 866

WRAWBY, par Eng. Lincoln 6070 ac. Pop. 8132
WRAXALL, three pars Eng. Lanc.—1 Dorset, 962 ac. Pop. 67 —2, Somerset, 3778 ac. Pop. 1016 —3, (North) Wilt 2127 ac. Pop. 450.

WRATTSBURY, or WRANDSBURY, par Eng Bucks 1656 ac. Pop. 701

WREAKDALE, par Eng. Leicester 1980 ac. P 114
WREDDEN, a tn. Prussia. See WREDDEN.

WRENBURY, par Eng. Chester 11 665 ac. P 2060
WRENSHAM, par Eng. Norf. 1828 ac. P 452

WREKTHAM, par Eng. Suffolk, 3808 ac. P 1026
WRECHEN, or WRECHEN, a tn. Prussia, prov Silesia, gov and 27 m. E S E Posen, with a Protestant and a

Vol. II.

R. Catholic church, a townhouse, manufactures of woollen cloth and articles in metal, and several breweries and tanneries. Pop (1862), 3182.

WRESELL, par Eng York, 8705 ac. Pop. 878.
WRESTLINGWORTH, par Eng Bedford, 1620 ac. Pop. 588.

WRETHAM, two pars Eng. Norfolk—1 (East) Pop 219 —2 (West) 1 op 106 United area, 6443 ac.

WRETTON, par Eng. Norfolk, 1154 ac. Pop. 538.
WREXHAM, a market tn. and par, and par. W. Wales, co. and 30 m. E S E Denbigh, on an affluent of the Dee. It occupies the centre of a mining and manufacturing district, is well built, in wide and generally regular streets, with many handsome shops and has a handsome church, with a lofty tower and some fine monuments, Wesleyan and Welsh Methodist, Baptist, Independent, Presbyterian and R. Catholic chapels, a free grammar and several other schools, a townhall house of correction for the county a savings bank, infirmary, literary institute, small theatre, manufactures of Daniel hosiery, tanneries, rope-works, &c. It belongs to the Denbigh district of boroughs. Pop (in.), 6714 Area of par, 15 870 ac. Pop. 15,820

WRIELZEN, a tn. Prussia, prov Brandenburg gov Potsdam 1 bank Old Oder 44 m. N N E Berlin. It has walls with four gates, a church, an hospital, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth, hosiery, and leather, breweries and distilleries, numerous mills, and a trade in fish. 1 op. 6183.
WRIGHTSVILLE, a tn. U. S. States, Pennsylvania, r bank Susquehanna, here crossed by the viaduct of a branch railway to York, 75 m. W Philadelphia. It is a very extensive depot for lumber. 1 op 1310

WRIGHTON, a tn. and par Eng. Lanc. co. Somerset, 6 m. N N E Axbridge. It has a spacious and handsome church in the later English style, with a square unembellished tower; and two Dissenting chapels. John Lockhart was born here in 1632. Area of par 5750 ac. 1 op 1820

WRIGHTINGTON, par Eng. Lanc. co. Somerset 772 ac. P 892
WRITILE, a tn. and par Eng. Lanc. co. Essex, on an acclivity about 2 m. W by S Cheshamford. It has three principal streets, with some large and well built houses of red and white brick, a church, an independent chapel, national and British school, and other schools. Area of par, 4675 ac. 1 op 2423.

WREKA, a river Prussia. See WREKA
WRECKYARDINE, a vil and par Eng. Lanc. co. Salop, picturesquely situated, 2 m. W by N Wellington with an ancient church of red stone, manufactures of glass, a corn mill and mineral-springs. Area of par 4608 ac. Pop. 3107

WRUNKE, a tn. Prussia, gov and 30 m. N W Oden on the Wartha with a R. Catholic church, a Dominican monastery a synagogue and manufactures of woollen cloth. Pop (1852), 2538

WROOT, par Eng. Lincoln 9346 ac. Pop. 849
WROTHAM, a vil and par Eng. Lanc. co. Kent 11 m. W N W Maidstone. It consists chiefly of two streets, and has two churches, one ancient and ruinous and the other with a lofty tower, the remains of an Archbishop's palace, manufactures of paper and several cattle-fairs. Pop. 3194 Area of par, 8876 ac.

WROUGHION, par Eng. Wilt 4546 ac. Pop. 1645
WROXETER, par Eng. Salop 4774 ac. 1 op. 643

WROXHAM, par Eng. Warwick 1785 ac. Pop. 479
WROXHAM, par Eng. Norfolk 1489 ac. 1 op. 439

WROXTON, par Eng. Oxford, 2359 ac. Pop. 730
WUCHIRAL, or WUCHIRAL, a tn. Bohemia, circle Pilsen. It has a church, a chapel, three mills and five annual fairs. Pop. 1104.

WSCHOWA, a tn. Prussia. See FRAUSTADT
WSETIV, a tn. Austria, Moravia circle and 81 m. N E Hradisch, with a church and manufactures of coarse woollens and fine annual fairs. 1 op. 8171

WULD, a small vil Beloochistan in a plain of the same name, prov Jalawar. lat. 87° 19' N lon. 66° 81' E. Though a small wretched place, it is the capital of one of the most numerous tribes of Beloochistan and contains the residu of two rulers or chiefs.

WUDWAN, a considerable tn. and fort, Hindoostan, prov Gujerat, lat. 22° 42' N lon. 71° 47' E, with a transit trade in glass, hemp, and leather, brought from Patan-war, and carried hence to Bismarck, on the Gulf of Camlay.

WUKUMOTO a tn Japan prov Fian isl of Kinsai, lat 32° 50' N lon 130° E. At the place there is a coal pit, entered by an easy staircase of 120 steps and containing seams of bituminous coal.

WULFLINGEN a vil and par Switzerland, can and 12 m. N. E. Fribourg. It is overhung by an old castle, and has a church with interesting tombs. Pop. 1950.

WULFRATH a vil Rhinisch Prussia, gov Düsseldorf 6 m W N W Fierfeld with a church and manufactures of woolen and linen goods. Pop (1857) 1098.

WULLFESDOPF a market to Lower Austria, on the Schmelz 24 m W W Hornburg with a church and a castle. Pop. 1600.

WULLER, or WILLER, a lake, Cashmere formed by an expansion of the Jialun 18 m. N. W. Bernagar greatest length W to E, 21 m. breadth, about 0 m. It is much frequented by water-fowl, is well supplied with fish, and produces singars or water snails so abundantly as to yield a rent of about £12,000 to the government, and sustain a large part of the population. These snails the roots of the Tropea hyssopifolia are obtained by dredging between two boats, as for oysters on our coasts. On a small island in the lake, are extensive ruins of a very old Buddhist temple.

WULFELINGHEM a vil and com Belgium, prov W Flanders on the canals from Lou and Bergues to Furnes 3 m S. Furnes with a rope work, a brick work, a brewery, three flour-mills, and some trade. Pop. 1077.

WULFME river Germany runs in the W. of go. Jülichburg Hanover flows W N W then S W then nearly due W., forming part of the boundary between Hanover and the territory of Bremen and unites with the Hanne in forming the Lesum an affluent of the Weser after a course of about 70 m.

WUNNENDEP a walled tn Prussia prov Westphalia, gov and 84 W Menden on the la with a R Catholic church, a chapel, paper mill and other m. Pop. 1058.

WUNNENDEP a vil and com Prussia, prov Posen, gov and 52 m S W Breslau on the Pasa or Lissa It has walls with three gates, a R Catholic church, town house hospital and manufactures of woolen and linen cloth. &c. The chapel of St. Andrew in the vic. attracts thousands of pilgrims. Pop. 1857 1067.

WUNNENDEP a tn Hanover prov prussia on the confluence of the Kasper and Surtin with a church Latin school barracks an old masonry woolen manufactures and tanneries. Pop. 1954.

WUNNENDEP a tn Bavaria (prov Franconia on the Danube, 20 m. E N E. Rainburg. It has walls with four gates, several regular and well built streets, three churches, a castle hospital, Latin industrial, and agricultural schools, many houses of linen and cotton goods, linen works, worsted-tufts iron works, beds of pipe-clay and quarries of limestone and marble. Jean Paul Richter was born here and has a monument here. Pop. 3500.

WUNNENDEP or WUNNENDEP an active volcano Japan isl. Kinsai. It rises 4119 ft. above sea-level nearly in the centre of the peninsula of Sumatra. A terrible eruption from this mountain took place in 1792 when the northern peak of the mountain was blown into the air and a stream of basalt, water issuing from the gap poured down to the sea, which at the same time overflowed its banks. The whole face of the country was changed, and 53,000 persons are said to have perished.

WUNNENDEP a tn Austrian Silesia, circle and 37 m N W Troppan, on the Oppa, with a chapel, a normal school, manufactures of linen, firearms, and iron-wire, smelting furnaces dye works, &c. Pop. 2200.

WUPDA a river, Hindoostan rises in the Sonogor and Nerbud territory near Moowly flows S. S. E. forming the boundary between Nagpore and the Nizam's dominion, and after a course of about 250 m joins the bank Wyn-Ganga. Its chief affluent is the Paye-tunga, which nearly doubles its volume. During the rains it is navigable for 100 m. by moderate-sized boats.

WURMLINGEN a vil and par Switzerland can. Aargau 8 m. N. W Baden with a parish church and a parsonage. Pop. 1008.

WURMLINGEN a vil and par Switzerland can. Aargau 8 m N E Baden, on an impetuous torrent which joins the Lammat, and is here crossed by a handsome bridge. A great number of Roman coins and other antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood. Pop. 768.

WURM 8 m, a lake, in the S. of Bavaria, between the Ammer and the Isar, about 16 m. S. S. W. Mündel, greatest length N to S, 12 m., mean breadth, about 3 m. Its outlet is into the Ammer.

WURMLINGEN two places Würtemberg, circle Schwarzwald.—1. A vil bail and N E Rothenburg. On a neighbouring height is a chapel visited by numerous pilgrims. Pop. 1061.—2. A vil. bail Tutzingen on the Elbe with a church, a castle, and several mills. Pop. 1393.

WURNA, a river Hindoostan, presid Bombay. It rises in the W Ghats, lat. 17° 18' N, lon 75° 46' E, flows S. E. separates Saltara from Kolapur and falls into the Kistnah tidal course, 80 m.

WURNA a tn Central Africa, about 17 m N E Secktoo, on the Ilma. It is the residence of the Follah emperor, and was founded by Belle in 1831. Pop. (1858) 12,000 to 13,000.—(Barth's Letters to Adenauer.)

WÜRTTEMBERG a kingdom in the S W of Germany ranking as the sixth state in the German Confederation and bounded S. E. and N. by Bavaria N. W. and S. W. by Baden, and R. by Baden, Hohenzollern which it nearly encloses and the Lake of Constance, which separates it from Switzerland greatest length N to S 140 m. central breadth 100 m. area 5600 sq. m. For administrative purposes it is divided into four circles, of which the names, area, and population are given in the following table.—

| C. name. | Area sq. m. | Pop. 1858. |
|-------------------------------|-------------|------------|
| Neckar | 998.79 | 801,094 |
| Schwarzwald, or Black Forest. | 1,287.82 | 445,872 |
| Danube | 1,219.04 | 413,444 |
| Jura | 1,498.90 | 574,818 |
| Total | 5,004.55 | 1,735,228 |

Except a few lofty tracts in the S, the surface is throughout hilly and even mountainous. In the W. the Neckarwald or Black Forest, forms part of the boundary with some of its loftiest ridges and sends ramifications far into the interior. In Würtemberg however it is neither so high nor so steep as on the side of Baden and its ridges are generally clothed with forests. Much steeper and more unshapely are the mountains of the centre and the E. where the Alb or Jankhe Alp, forming part of the Franconian Jura, covers an extensive tract. This mountain mass, when at its greatest height spreads out on an elevated desolate plateau. Towards the S. its descent is rapid and abrupt, but towards the S. it slopes down very gradually. Beyond the N. slope others descend begin to rise, and sink at last with outliers of the Odenwald.

The drainage is shared between the basins of the Danube and the Rhine, and hence, part of the great water-shed of the European continent is found in Würtemberg, being evidently formed by the Alb and its plateau, the N. and W. sides of which give rise to several tributaries of the Rhine, while those of the S. and S. E. send a much smaller portion to the Danube, which in the latter direction is the only river of importance. The Rhine carries off part of the S. drainage by the Lake of Constance and receives that of the S. W. W. and N., by a number of important streams, more especially the Neckar and its tributaries, Lanter, Fils, Rems, Murr, Kocher, Jagst, and Enz. Besides these, a small portion of the N. is drained by the Tauber, a tributary of the Main. The Lake of Constance, of which only a small portion belongs to Würtemberg, is the only lake worthy of the name.

Notwithstanding the general ruggedness and elevation of the surface, the climate is decidedly temperate, though it is not equally warm much with locality, and cannot be the same on the ridges of the Schwarzwald and the plateau of the Alb as in the lower valley of the Neckar. In respect of vegetation it has been divided into three regions—from the lowest level up to 1000 ft. from 1000 ft. to 2000 ft., and from 2000 ft. upwards. All of these grow grain but the characteristic products are—in the third, forest-timber, in the second the harder fruits, and in the first, the more delicate fruits and the vine. This last region is almost confined to the northern slopes of the Jura and the Neckar, where the fig and mallow ripen perfectly in the open air, and the vine, cultivated on an extensive scale, produces several first-class wines. Here the soil is generally of great fertility, and both maize and wheat are raised in such quantities as to be extensively employed in making order. In the second region, the largest of the three, the soil is seldom alluvial, but generally contains a considerable proportion of vegetable mould and disintegrated trap and limestone. Consequently, however, it degenerates into clays and sands and gravels, which yield profitable returns only when managed with equal industry and skill. In both these qualities the inhabitants of Württemberg are by no means deficient, and their agriculture, even under unfavorable circumstances, equals that of any other part of Germany. In ordinary seasons the grain produced leaves a considerable surplus for export. Besides grain, potatoes are grown in almost every district, and hemp and flax on the spots best suited for them. Artificial meadows yield luxuriant crops of hay for feeding or dairy purposes, and considerable attention is also paid to the rearing of stock. The third region, though under partial cultivation, derives its chief value from its natural pastures and forests, the latter, both of pine and hardwood, climbing the loftiest ridges of the Schwäbischwald, and giving valuable returns, not only in their timber, but the heads of swine which they feed. In the black mountain districts, bees are often reared on an extensive scale. Of minerals by far the most valuable is salt, obtained chiefly from springs. The other minerals deserving of notice are limestone, gypsum, talc, coal and lignite in very limited quantities slate, millstones, iron-ore, and potter's clay.

Manufactures have made considerable progress in recent years. They consist chiefly of linen and cotton goods, paper, wooden clocks, toys, articles in gold and silver, and chemical products. There are also numerous breweries, distilleries, bleachfields, and cotton-mills. The trade, in addition to the above articles of manufacture, is in cattle, wool, corn, timber, wax, gypsum, and salt. The principal coin in use are, in gold, the ducat or fl. 32, and in silver the gulden or fl. 100, and in 1842, nearly all accounts are kept in gulden, which, for smaller values, are subdivided into 15 schellens or 60 kreutzers. The commercial pound which is double the gold and silver weight, is somewhat larger than the English pound—100 being = 108 1/2 in the avoirdupois. Corn is measured by the schefel = 5.061 bushels. The foot is equal to 11.26 inches English and the ell to 24.08 inches. The markes of land equals 1 acre, 1 rood, and 24 perches.

The government is an hereditary constitutional monarchy. The executive power is lodged in the sovereign, the legislature, jointly in the sovereign and a parliament, composed of an upper and a lower chamber—the former hereditary, the latter representative, consisting of 84 members mostly elected every six years by the principal towns and rural districts. As a member of the German Confederation, Württemberg holds the sixth place, and has four votes in the plenum. Its contingent of men is 13,855 and of money 128,751 thalers. The revenue, obtained in nearly equal proportions by direct and indirect taxation, is 10,693,934 thalers (288,156 thalers) administered by a supreme tribunal, which sits in Stuttgart and has jurisdiction over the whole kingdom, and by inferior courts attached to each circle and district. There is no properly established religion, but the three great bodies of Lutherans, Catholics, and R. Catholics, are recognized and partly paid by the state. The great body of the people are Protestants, and education is so generally diffused, that it is rare to meet with a person who cannot read and write. Crime and pauperism are comparatively rare, the fear of morals is high, and the people generally are in comfortable circumstances. Besides Stuttgart (the capital), the chief towns are Tübingen, Heilbronn, Ellwangen, and Reutlingen.

Württemberg is composed of a number of separate territories, which once belonged to the Alemanni and Franks, and afterwards formed various independent states. The first inhabitants, said to have been Celts, were gradually encroached upon by the Germans, and finally fell with them under the Roman yoke. After the decline and fall of the Roman Empire, the country was incorporated with the kingdom of the Franks who governed it by dukes. The dukedom thus established subsisted till the end of the 11th century when it was broken up, and partitioned among counts, who declared themselves independent. Among these was the Count of Reusselbach-Württemberg, whose family gradually gained the ascendancy. One of its members built a castle at Stuttgart, and another built the castle of Württemberg, which has given its name to the whole kingdom. In this family, towards the end of the 16th century the dukedom was restored. Duke Ulrich succeeded in 1504. At first he gave promise of a wise and peaceful reign, but soon belied it, and in consequence of a rebellion was obliged to flee. The Swabian League purchased his ducal crown, and secured the ascendancy of Austria. The Reformation now began to make rapid progress, but was strenuously opposed by the Austrians. Ulrich who had taken refuge at the court of the Landgrave of Hesse, had embraced the Reformation now returned to his country at the head of a powerful army and became its real sovereign, though Austria retained a nominal supremacy. Ulrich was succeeded, in 1550, by his son Christopher who had been brought up at the court of France and had obtained the principality of Montbéliard. After a very patriotic reign, he died in 1608. The line of Ulrich became extinct in 1633. Frederick, belonging to a collateral branch, succeeded and completely established the independence of Württemberg, by forcing it even from Austria's nominal supremacy. He died in 1698 and was succeeded by his son in whose reign began the Thirty Years war, which often caused great misery in Württemberg. The succession continued uninterrupted and the country had rapidly advanced in prosperity when the French revolution broke out. Württemberg became the theatre of war and was overrun by the French armies. Ultimately however the duke gained the favor of Napoleon and with it a great accession of territory, as well as the title of King. These did not prevent Württemberg from taking an active share in the war of independence, and hence, in the subsequent arrangement of the European states, the territorial accessions were confirmed and the kingly title formally recognized.

WÜRZBURG a town in Württemberg circle Danube, bail and near Leutkirch, on the Aach with a parish church, and a castle. Pop. 1032.

WURZBACH a town in Reuss-Lobenstein circle Erford, bail and near Lobenstein with a parish church, three mills, and a weekly market. Pop. 1400.

WÜRZBURG a town in Bavaria, cap. circle Lower Franconia, pleasantly situated on bank Main, here crossed by a handsome bridge leading to a large suburb 140 m. N. N. W. Munich, on the railway from Erlangen to Bamberg. It is regularly fortified by walls and bastions, and defended by the strong citadel of Marienberg, and when approached from a distance, presents a most imposing and attractive appearance. It is entered by six gates, and though consisting chiefly of narrow streets, with overhanging houses, and pointed gables, is a fine specimen of the municipal architecture of the middle ages. Many modern improvements have been introduced, but the chief interest of the place continues to be derived from its antiquity. Having been for more than 1000 years the capital of a principality ruled by bishops who were princes of the empire, it naturally abounds in ecclesiastical structures. Not fewer than 30 churches are counted but many of these are not in use, and more are devoid of any claim to particular notice. The most important edifices are the cathedral or Dom, erected in the 10th century, with two towers at each end, and containing numerous interesting monuments, the Marienberg, an elegant structure of pointed Gothic, with tall lancet windows, and numerous fine carvings; the royal palace, a large and magnificent building occupied by the emperor the day before their coronation at Frankfurt, the Julius hospital with a range of 63 windows in front having all the appearance of a palace, but furnishing in fact, a noble asylum for the sick and aged poor; the university, possessed of a library of 100,000 vols., and of some celebrity as a school of medicine, but rather in a declining state; the townhouse theatre, gymnasium, theological and other seminaries, several monastic establishments, numerous hospitals and charitable endowments. The manufactures consist chiefly of woollen and linen cloth, leather and lacquerware, surgical instruments, cutlery, glass, hats, musical instruments, and ironmongery, and there are numerous breweries, mills, tobacco factories, &c. The trade, both general and transit, is extensive, and greatly facilitated both by the main and two canals connected with it. The principal articles, besides the manufactures, are wine, oil, cattle, corn, and other agricultural produce. Würzburg dates from the 7th century, when the dukes of Thuringia often made it their residence. It afterwards passed into the hands of bishop-electors, who, in working both the temporal and the spiritual power, carried matters with a high hand, and were often at deadly feud with the citizens. Their rule did not terminate till 1796, when, by the peace of Luneville, the town and territory passed to Bavaria. Pop. 26,811.

THE CATHEDRAL STREET, WÜRZBURG
From the Magazine Monographs of Photographs.

WÜRZBURG, a vil. Saxony circle and 16 m. E Leipzig, r. bank Main, and on the railway from Leipzig to Dresden. It consists of the town proper and four suburbs, and has a Dom or cathedral with two towers, another church, with a lofty spire, an old castle used as a courthouse, several superior schools, manufactures of linen, lace, and tobacco, and some general trade. Pop. (1849) 4668.

WUTERLIN, or MICHU, a mountain-range, Beloochistan, prov. Mekran, stretching E. to W. about lat. 28° N. and between lon. 62° and 64° E. and separating the sandy desert on the N. from the more elevated and fertile part of Mekran. Its name of Much or date, is owing to the great quantities of excellent dates produced in its valleys.

WUSTEN (GUSE and KINDE), two nearly contiguous vil. Lippe-Deinold bail. Schenker, with a parish church. They are occupied chiefly by peasantries. Pop. 2060.

WUSTENACHMUN, a market in Bavaria, Lower Franconia, on the Ulster here crossed by a bridge, 47 m. N Würzburg, with a parish church, saw, oil and other mills, and a trade in cattle. Pop. 1160.

WUSTERHAUSEN, a tr. Prussia, prov. Brandenburg, gov. Potsdam, 45 m. N W. Berlin, on an sd. formed by the Havel and in the vicinity of two lakes. It has walls with three gates, a church, a hospital, manufactures of woollen and linen cloth and a trade in horses, cattle, and swine. Pop. 2355.

WUSTWEZEL, or WESTWEZEL, a vil. and com. Belgium, prov. and 15 m. N. Antwerp, with manufactures of common cloth, linen, and chemical products, breweries, tanneries &c. Pop. 1856.

WUTACH, a river, Baden, rises in the S., in the Feldberg, flows N. E. to Münstadt, then S. E. E. then S. W. W., and joins r. bank Rhine, after a course of about 45 m.

WYBEITON, par. Eng. Lincoln 5361 ac. Pop. 667.

WYTHENBURY, par. Eng. Chesh. 13,414 ac. P. 4389.

WYCOMBE (Hunt or Caversham), a pari. and town bor., market tn. and par. England on Buckingham, 80 m. W N W London. It consists principally of one street, about 1½ m. long with some smaller streets. It is well built, and has a fine church in the early English style, with a square embattled tower, several Dissenting chapels, a grammar and other schools, almshouses, two hospitals, manufactures of lace and chairs, paper and flour mills, and some trade in malt. It sends two members to Parliament. Area of pari. and mun. bor. 6318 ac. Pop. 7179.

WYCOMBE (Warr), par. Eng. Bucks; 6340 ac. P. 2009.

WYDDIAL, par. Eng. Herts 1187 ac. Pop. 245.

WYE, a river England, rises on the S. side of Plinlim mon, about 1 m. S. of the source of the Severn, flows very circuitously S. E. between eos. Radnor and Brecknock across that of Hereford, and between those of Monmouth and Gloucester, and joins r. bank estuary of the Severn a little below Chepstow after a course of about 120 m. Its principal affluents are the Uda, on the right, and the Ibbow and Legg on the left. The memory of the Wye is celebrated for its picturesque beauties. Large vessels cannot ascend beyond Clapston bridge, but barges of from 18 to 30 tons can get up as far as Hereford.

WYE, a vil. and par. England, co. Kent, pleasantly situated near r. bank Stour, here crossed by a stone-bridge of five arches, and on the Ashford and Canterbury branch of the S. E. railway 9 m. from Canterbury. It is well built, and has a beautiful cruciform parish church with a central tower, a Wesleyan chapel, a free grammar school in the building of an ancient college, and a flour-mill. P. 1734. Area, 7395 ac.

WYFORDBY WITH-BAZZINGHAY par. Eng. Leicester, 1350 ac. Pop. 161.

WYKAM-WITH-CADNEY par. Eng. Lincoln 1890 ac. Pop. 128.

WYK, a seaport in Denmark, Schleswig on the N. E. coast of sd. Föhr, with a much-frequented bathing-establishment which has been repeatedly visited by the king, who has a house here, an excellent dock, a small hot good winter haven and a regular ferry to Lügabüll in the mainland. W. is during the bathing season communicated by steam with Helligoland, Cuxhaven, Brunsbüttel, and Hamburg. Pop. 800.

WYK, Holland. See Wijk.

WYKE-RENN, par. Eng. Dorset; 2662 ac. Pop. 1898.

WYKEHAM, two pari. Eng. —1, York 7585 ac. Pop. 643 —2, Lincoln 560 ac. Pop. 26.

WYKIN, par. Eng. Warwick 670 ac. Pop. 141.

WYLA, a vil. and par. Switzerland can. and 15 m. S. N. E. Zürich on the Töss here crossed by a bridge. It contains a parish church, and raises a great deal of fruit. Many of the inhabitants spin and weave cotton. Pop. 1161.

WYLAN, a vil. and township England, co. Northampton, on the Tyne, here crossed by a wooden bridge with a Wesleyan chapel a school, excellent quarries, and extensive collieries. Pop. 1061.

WYLYE, par. Eng. Wilts 2279 ac. Pop. 510.

WYMERING par. Eng. Hunts 4507 ac. Pop. 751.

WYMERWOLD, par. Eng. Leicester; 4220 ac. Pop. 1255.

WYMINGTON par. Eng. Bedford 1710 ac. Pop. 596.

WYMONDHAM, or WYTHAM, a market tn. and par. England, co. Norfolk, 16 m. W. N. W. Norwich. It has many ancient and several well-built modern houses, a handsome church, in various styles, several Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school, an ancient cross, manufactures of bombazine, crapes, &c., and a large brewery and malting-establishment. Area of pari. 10,613 ac. Pop. 6177.

WYMONDHAM, par. Eng. Leicester, 2852 ac. P. 800.

WYMONDLEY, two pari. Eng. Hertford —1, Great, 1120 ac. Pop. 335 —2, Little, 780 ac. Pop. 800.

WYNAAD, BYNADU or PANANBUR-COTTA, a vil. Hindoostan, Malabar, cap. dist., on the E. side of the W. Ghats, 65 m. S. W. Seringapatam. The district, area, 1250 sq. m. forms an elevated plateau of difficult access, almost overrun with jungle, and produces the best cardamoms in India. Pop. about 15,000.

WYNEGHEM a vil and com. Belgium, prov and 6 m E. Antwerp, on the Grand and the Petit Sotyn; with two breweries, a sawmill, an oil, a malt, and a flour mill. P 1046.

WYNEGHEM a vil and com. Belgium, prov and 6 m E. Antwerp, on the Grand and the Petit Sotyn; with two breweries, a sawmill, an oil, a malt, and a flour mill. P 1046.

WYNEGHEM, a vil and com. Belgium, prov W Flanders, 81 m S.E.E. Bruges. The chief employments are hand and domestic weaving. Pop. 7084.

WYNEGHEM, a vil and par. Switzerland can Bern, bail, and 4 m N.E. Bernburg, on the Ouchbach in a narrow valley hemmed in by wooded hills with manufactures of linen. Pop. 3461.

WYNKEL, two places, Belgium.—1 A vil and com, prov E. Flanders, 9 m N.E. Ghent with a church, chapel, brewery, some corn and oil mills, and manufactures of them and woollen fabrics, starch, and pottery. Pop. 2069.—2 (St. Eloi) A vil and com. prov W Flanders, 21 m S. Bruges with a church, school, several oil and flour mills, and manufactures of linens and coarse cloth. Pop. 2950.

WYBAGHUR, a tn Hindoostan territory and 74 m N.E. Nagpur, once celebrated for its diamond-mines. It is a place of some trade. Pop. 2000.

WYB a river, England, co. Lancaster rises in a morass S.W. from the town of Lancaster and falls into the Irish Sea at Fleetwood, forming a large estuary. It flows first S., then W., then S.W.

WYBALK, par Eng. Nets 1860 aa. Pop. 296.
WYBOKK, a tn Bohemia. See HONENKATZ.
WYSEBRAD, market tn. Bohemia. See HONENKATZ.
WYSEBROOD, a tn Russian Poland, volvod and 27 m E.S.E. Plock, r bank Vistula with three churches, an old convent, a chapel a poorhouse, a trade in wool, woollen cloth, and corn. Pop. 1644.

WYTHAM par Eng. Berks; 1670 aa. Pop. 195.
WYTOONER, an is. S. Pacific Ocean, one of the Disappointment group. Low Archipelago, 5 m long; lat. (S.E. point) 14 19' S. lon 141 12' W.

WYTSCHAKI a vil and com. Belgium, prov W Flanders, 6 m S. Ypres with a church two schools a brewery, several corn and oil mills, two brick kilns, and manufactures of tobacco and table-linen. Pop. 3195.

WYTON par Eng. Hants 1650 aa. Pop. 267.

WYTERSTONE, par Eng. Suffolk 1592 aa. Pop. 529.
WYVILLE with HONENKATZ par Eng. Lincoln 1670 aa. Pop. 135.

X.

[For places not found under X, look G, H, and J]

XALAPA a city, Mexico. See JALAPA.

XALISTO, a maritime dep. Mexico. See JALISCO.

XALON a river Spain. See JALON.

XAMILTIFEG, or JAMITZEP, a tn. Mexican Con. Federation state and 70 m S.S.W. Oajaca, up dep. of same name. 1 bank Chicomteque, with a good harbor, and a considerable trade in honey, wax, cotton and salt. P about 4000.

XANTEN, SARTEN or SANCERY, a tn. Rhemish Prussia, gov and 33 m N.W. Düsseldorf on a plain near L. bank Rhine. It has an ancient and beautiful church of pointed Gothic, with two spires, and a fine altar-piece by Barthel-Bryn. Another church and chapel a gymnasium manufactures of woollen and cotton cloth, casemero hats, silk ribbons, homery, soap, vinegar, and leather, and several spinning-mills. Close to the town stood the castle of the Hohenhausen the heroes of the old German epic of that name. Pop. (1852), 8102.

XANTHUS an ancient city Asia Minor on the Elchoncluy (anc. Xanthos), 40 m S.E. Madi; lat. 36 21' N. lon 39 24' E. The remains include Cyclopean walls, Phenician or Etruscan inscriptions, fragments of temples, tombs, triumphal arches, and a theatre.

XANAYES, the name originally given to certain low tracts, Brazil, situated to the S. of the town of Mato-Grosso or Villa-Bella, and annually inundated for three months over a space of about 240 m. Much of the water never returns, but forms extensive lakes, abounding in fish frequented by many species of water-fowl and surrounded by the jaguá, a species of crocodile of less size than that of Egypt. The grounds not reached by the water are inhabited by the Pareute Indians, from whom the plains and lakes sometimes receive the name of Pareute.

XATIVA (SAN-FILIPPE-DE-) a city Spain. See JATIVA.

XAVIER, an isl. Pangoma, S.W. coast, lat. (N.W. point) 47 4' S. lon. 74 27' W. It is 1½ m long 4 m wide, very high and thickly wooded. It is the Montrose Island of Byron's Narrative.

XAVIER (SAN), an Indian tn. Bolivia, dep. Santa-Cruz-de-la-Sierra, 123 m W.S.W. Concepcion, at the confluence of a small river of same name with the Rio-Grande. It was formerly a considerable place, but having been ravaged by small pox about 1823, has very much declined. It has a large church. Pop. about 1500.—(Cortinas, lat. 225.)

XENIA a tn. U. States, Ohio, at the junction of the Little Miami and several other railways, 55 m W.S.W. Columbus. It is well built and has several churches, and an active trade, specially favoured by the central position. Pop. (1850) about 3500.

XENIL, a river Spain. See GENIL.

XEREB, several places Spain. See JEREB.

XEROS, or XAROS (GULF OF) See SARONIC GULF.

XEXUI, or XEJUT, a river, Paraguay, formed by the junction of several streams. It flows W. and falls into the Paraguay, 70 m N. Asuncion, after a course of about 80 m.

XHEVIDELESSE, a vil and com. Balji m. prov and 9 m E. Lofat. Pop. 1408 chiefly sailors.

XILLO-CASTRON (anc. Xipho), a maritime vil Greece, gov and 14 m W. N. Corinthus, at the mouth of the Xillo-Castron, in the Gulf of Corinth with a trade in curia te.

XIMENA See JIMENA.

XIMO, an isl. Japan. See KIMSU.

XINGU a river, Brazil, rises in the mountains which separate the provinces of Goyas and Mato-Grosso, between lat. 14 and 16° S. flows N. receiving the Rio, Traubara, and Xanad, enters prov Para, receiving the Gurin on the left, beneath some cascades makes two large circular ponds, one to the E. and the other to the W. flows N.E. which it continues past Souzel, Pombal, Yauco, and Porto-de-Moia; and after a course of more than 1200 m joins the bank Amazon in lat. 1 42' S. Its channel at certain parts has little depth. Its banks are peopled by numerous Indian tribes.

XOELLA ISLANDS. See XUTLA.

XORUI LO a volcano, Mexico. See JORZALO.

XUANDAI, a fine harbour Amak prov and 30 m N.E. Pin-yen, on the Cochin Chinese coast, lat. 18 22' N. lon. 109 15' E.

XULLA or ZULLA ISLANDS, a group, Indian Archipelago, 70 m E. Celebes the largest are Tullabo and Mangula (which see), and Bonney which is about 35 m long, and populous and well cultivated. Near its S.E. point there are a Dutch fort and a native village, where ships may procure refreshments.

XUPFANIE, a vil, Austria, Steiermark, generalship of Peterwerdsee, on the Save, about 30 m from Vinschnab, with two E. Catholic churches. Pop. 2100.

Y.

[For places not found in Y look Z, F and J]

Y Holland. See IJ

YA ARAGA, one of the Feejee mts., S Pacific, lat. (Tait's Peak) 16° 50' 15" S. lon 177° 23' 30" E. It is the most N. of the Aana group, and forms a narrow belt stretching about 10 m N to S. In the latter direction it rises into the peak of Taa-tha-ka which has a height of 781 ft. At the foot of this peak lies the beautiful little bay of Ya-sa-yi-lan with a picturesque rock on its E. side resembling a ruined castle. This rock is entirely volcanic, and is the object of some superstition among the natives.

YA-LONG-KIAWE, a river Tibet and China. It is formed by several streams, the principal of which the Das-Taitair kana, afterwards the Tutchou-Taitarkana, rises on the S W side of the Ban khara-cola Mountains, Tibet, about lat. 33° 30' N., lon. 96° E. It flows at first S E., then turns nearly due S., forms part of the W boundary of the Chinese province Sochin, which it subsequently enters, and still flowing e r. cutaneously S falls into the Ku-shi-kung near the S. extremity of the province after a course of about 400 m.

YADKIN a river U. States, rises at the foot of the Blue ridge, in the W of N Carolina, flows first E N E, then S E E enters S Carolina, and takes the name of the Great Pee Dee (See Pee Dee). Near the junction of the Ulares, the Yadkin previously 400 to 600 yards wide, enters a mountain gorge, which contracts it to about 30 yards. These narrows present one of the most remarkable natural objects in the state.

YAEPA a steep Asia Turkey. See Javea

YAGUA a vil. New Granada, dep. Candelaria, prov. and 20 m E. Nerve.

YACUACHE a vil. Ecuador dep. and 18 m. N E Guayaquil

YAKUO-SIMA or YAKUO-SIMA an isl Japan, off S end of Kium lat. 30° 23' N lon 130° 30' E. It is 20 m long and 8 m broad is hilly and has a mountain called Mitake.

YAKI TBK a gov. of L. Siberia bounded, N by the Arctic Ocean, E. gov. Okhotsk, S the Chinese Empire K W gov. Irkutsk, and W. L. caucasia. lat. 43° 30' to 74° N. lon. 105° to 163° E. greatest length, E to W about 1700 m. breadth 1100 m. area 1 071,274 sq. sq. m. or about 20-61 hrs of that of Europe. The sea-coast, which stretches for an immense distance E. to W. is generally low lined with shoals deeply indented, and during a great part of the year completely blocked up with ice. The surface runs towards the interior and on the S. and E. frontiers is covered by the chain of the Stanovoi or Jablonoi Mountains, which send forth long branches at right angles to their base. Between these branches, forming the great water-sheds of the gov. are extensive plains or steppes, generally of very barren description not so much from any natural infertility of soil as from the rigorous nature of the climate. In the N these plains are extensively covered with mosses, and called tundra on which large numbers of reindeer are kept but towards the S the pastures become capable of rearing and feeding cattle of which large herds are possessed by several of the wandering tribes; and several kinds of grain among others wheat and rye are sown chiefly by the Kuzassins, mostly in the neighbourhood of towns. Much of the ground thus sown is frozen to the depth of 600 ft., but the temperature begins to rise in April and the last night-frost occurs about the 15th of May. From this period summer continues without interruption till the 17th September and is both long enough and warm enough to thaw the frozen ground to the depth of 3 ft. or 4 ft. and mature all the ordinary cereals which thrive amazingly, yielding near the town of Yakutsk, 15 fold on an average, and occasionally 40 fold. In the same locality the mean warmth of June, July and August is 57° 66 and 61 respectively, and the thermometer often stands at 77 in the shade. In January, on the contrary in the depth of winter the cold has been found constantly, during the first ten days under -40° Reaumur = -50° Fahr. or 52 below the freezing-point. The large mountain-ranges of Yakutsk, and the perpetual snow which covers them, feed a great number of mighty rivers, which generally have a N. elevation and flow in long and narrow basins nearly paral-led to each other. The most important of these rivers is the Lena. Immediately to the W of it is that of the Oleneok, and to the E., in succession, the Iana, Indighirka, and Kolyma. There are few lakes. The rivers teem with fish, particularly salmon, which, dried or smoked, forms one of the principal articles of food, and are also frequented by innumerable flocks of water-fowl. The forests, chiefly of pine and birch, though situated in the N contain much good timber in the S., and are frequented by large numbers of grizzly bears, wolves, foxes and various other fur-animals. This constitutes the principal article of export. The chief imports are tea, sugar, beaver woolen and cotton stuffs, and hardware. Towns and villages, common in the centre of the gov. and along the great road from Irkutsk through Yakutsk to Okhotsk, are inhabited chiefly by Russians and Cossacks. The great body of the inhabitants are nomadic, and consist of Yakuts, Buriats, Tungusians and Koraks.

YAKUTSK, a m., T. Siberia, cap. above gov. on a plain surrounded by lofty heights 1 bank Lena. The streets present a singular aspect, being composed of houses of European structure standing apart, while the intervening spaces are occupied by winter yards or huts of the northern nomades, with walls of cow-dung, earthen roofs, doors covered with heavy hides, and windows of ice. The principal buildings are a large stone-cathedral another church a great stone market-place, and a wooden fort with four half sunk towers. The trade is of great importance. Caravans with Chinese and European goods brought from Irkutsk by the hosts on the Lena, proceed every year over the mountains to Okhotsk, and also collect the produce of the whole line of coast on the Polar Sea between the parallels of 70° and 74° from the mouth of the Lena to the farthest point inhabited by the Tchukchis. One of the principal articles of this latter trade are the skins of the polar fox. The Yakuts and Tchukchis also dispose of the skins of the wild reindeer which they kill in summer. Another important article is the fossil ivory obtained from the enormous miredolourous animals which are found buried in the deep alluvium of the Lena and its tributaries, and along the shores of the Arctic Ocean. Much of the trade is in the hands of the American Trade Company who have here one of their most important factories. Important fairs are held four times a year. Pop. (1849) 2900

YALDING, a vil and par England on Kent, intersected by several branches of the Medway across one of which it is approached by a long narrow bridge 6 m S W Maidstone. It has a parish church in the decorated English style, an endowed school a castle-tower and a considerable trade in coal, corn and timber. Area of par 5904 ac. Pop. 3672

YALI [see Irtuz] a small vil off S E coast, Asiatic Turkey at the entrance to the Gulf of Kos, 7 m S. Kos.

YALTA, a seaport in Russia. See IALTA.

YAMINA a tn Central Africa, state Bambarra, 1 bank Joliba, lat. 12° 40' N lon 6° 50' W

YAMPAREH, a tn. Bolivia, 20 m N W Chiquiza, on the Cochimayo

YAMPOL, a tn Russia. See JAMPOL.

YAMSK JAMSK, or JAMSK, a tn. Siberia, at the mouth of the Iana, in the Gulf of Lapsk on the S. of the Gulf of Gighinsk, lat. 59° N., lon. 154° E. It is surrounded by palisades, and has a church and a good harbour, but is otherwise insignificant, consisting only of a few wooden houses. The entrance is obstructed by sandbanks and hidden rocks.

YANA a river Siberia. See IANA.

YANAON, a vil. and French colonial possession, India, on the Coromandel coast, 22 m N N E Pondicherry. It is situated on the delta of the Godavary, and is accessible by vessels of 800 tons burden.

YANBO, a maritime in Arabia. See YANBO.

YANDABOO, a tn. Burmah, 1 bank Irrawadi, 60 m W by B. Ava. Here a treaty of peace was concluded, Feb 28 1884, by which the coast of Tanuamir, with Aracan and its dependencies, was ceded to the British, and the king of Ava renounced all claims on Aracan, Jyntah, and Monaspoor.

YANG-HO, a river, China, prov. Pechelien, rises in the N W of Mongolia, flows first N E then S E and unites with some other streams in forming the Hoan-ho, which passes 10 m S W of Peking.

YANG-KUANG, a city, China, prov. Kiangsoo cap. dep., on the Imperial canal where it crosses the Yangtze-Kiang, and 50 m N E Nankin. It has an extensive trade in all descriptions of Chinese goods, but particularly in salt, which is made on the spot.

YANGTZE-KIANG, or simply KIANG or TA-KIANG (the River, or Great River, one of the largest rivers of Asia, rises in Tibet, about lat. 33° N, lon. 95° E. in the Chong-kool Mountains, not far from the sources of the Hoang-ho, and flows for about 1300 m S E E. under the name of the Kiu-hu, to the N W frontiers of China, where it is joined by the Yangtze. The united stream, which may now be considered as the Yangtze proper, flows very circuitously, first N E through prov. Szechuan, past the towns Sou-tchou Tehong-king and Koo-tchou; and augmented on the left by the Min-king and Moutseu; and on the right by the Oukang then S E E through prov. Hoopse, past Kiangshou Yeh-shan, Hanyang, Youtching and Hoang-tchou and augmented on the left by the Han-king, skirts the N of prov. Kiangsoo, passing the town of Kieou-king. Flows N E through prov. Nguohai past the towns of Ngankin and Tai-ping and finally entering prov. Kiangsoo, a little above Nankin, flows E past Fohang-king, where it is crossed by the Imperial canal and falls into the ocean in lat. 32° N by an estuary about 80 m wide at Tching-ming Island which divides it into two branches. Its direct course, nearly due E, is estimated at 1850 m. Its indirect at 3000 m and the area of its basin at 700,000 sq m. The tide oses to be felt at Kiang yin about 116 m from its mouth, but it continues to be navigable for the largest vessels to Nankin, a total distance of about 325 m. Its higher course is very imperfectly known but it is said that no river in the world surpasses it in picturesque grandeur.

YANI, or NYANI, a state, W Africa, Senegambia on the F. bank Niger, between lat. 18° and 14° N and lon. 14° and 15° W.

YANINA, a tn European Turkey. See JASTRA.

YAO-AN, a city, China, prov. and 95 m W N W Yun nan. It carries on a large trade in musk, and in salt, obtained from a lake in the vicinity.

YAOORI the cap. of a native kingdom of Central Africa, about 4 m N L from r bank Niger and 60 m N N E. Besses lat. 9° 5' N lon. 6° 15' E. It has a high and strong wall of clay said to be between 20 m and 50 m in circuit, and is entered by eight large gates well fortified after the manner of the country. The inhabitants manufacture a very coarse and inferior sort of gunpowder, very much adulterated with, &c., grow indigo, tobacco onions and various grains and rice of a superior quality and have horses bullocks sheep, and goats. A market is held in the city daily under some modish sheds, but is indifferently attended. — The state or kingdom lies along 1 bank Niger and is traversed in its E. part, E. to W by the Mayaroua an affluent of the Niger.

YAP Gouar, or OCAP, an isl. N Pacific Ocean, lat. 9° 50' N lon. 138° 1' E., the westernmost large island of the Caroline Archipelago. The S. end is low, rising gradually into hills to the N and in many parts it abounds with coconut trees. The island has a pleasing aspect, many well constructed houses are scattered over it, and the natives are stout and well formed.

YAPTON, par Eng. Sussex 1099 a. Pop 609.

YARQUI, a river Mexico. See HUACIL.

YAR, or YARE, a river England, formed in Norfolk by the union of two streams of same name, flows circuitously E. and unites with the Wey river in forming a considerable expanse above Yarmouth where, with the Bure, it falls into the German Ocean. A little below Norwich it receives the Wensum, and is navigable. It forms part of the Lowestoft Navigation, which is about 80 m. long, and admits vessels drawing 8 ft.

YARACUY, a navigable river Venezuela, dep. Caracas, rises in a mountainous region S W the Gulf of Truxa into which it falls at the village of the same name, 30 m N W Valencia. Length of course 80 m to 70 m.

YARBOROUGH, par Eng. Lincoln. 1160 a. P 345.

YARCOMBE, a v. and par England, co. Devon, on the canal from Taunton to Okeard. It has a parish church, with a square embattled tower and spire a Baptist chapel and quarries of blue lias. Area of par. 4689 a. Pop 780.

YARDELEY, a v. and par England, co. Worcester, on the Birmingham and Worcester canal and the London and Birmingham, and the Birmingham and Derby railways with an ancient church, two endowed schools and extensive tub-works. Area of par. 7855 a. Pop 4713.

YARDLEY par Eng. Hertford 2405 a. Pop 630.

YARDI KY ILASTIKOS, a v. and par England co. and 8 m. S E E. Northampton. It has a very ancient Norman church with a square tower, an Independent chapel a school, and manufactures of pillow-lace. Area of par. 8510 a. Pop 1210.

YARENGA a river RUSSIA. See LARNA.

YARKAND, or YARKIANG, a river, which rises in Chinese Turkestan, in the N slope of the Kaxakorum Mountains flows first N N W to the town of Yarkand, and after a course of about 300 m, unites with the Kaulgar, Khoten, and several other streams in forming the Tarim.

YARKAND, a city, in the W of Chinese Turkestan, in a fertile plain, on the river Yarkand, 140 m. S. L. Kashgar, lat. 38° 19' N, lon. 78° 17' 42" E. It is enclosed by an earthen rampart and entered by five gates, outside of which are some very straggling suburbs, and a stone-castle on the S. Another and much larger suburb within the walls is now all but abandoned. Its houses are built of stone and clay and mostly of one story, its streets are intersected by canals and aqueducts. It has two large bazars, besides inferior ones many caravansaries and mosques, and 10 or 12 large Mohammedan colleges. It is said to be more extensive than Kashgar and is now the chief emporium of the trade between the Chinese Empire and the countries beyond its W frontier. The native merchants are not permitted to pass beyond its province, either toward Tibet or Independent Turkestan and strict vigilance is maintained by the Chinese to prevent Europeans from entering the territory but traders from Bokhara, Badukshan, Kokan, &c. pass the mountains to Yarkand with the produce of those countries, slaves, Kirgiz horses, and European goods. There they exchange for tea, silks, and other Chinese produce, fruits, and shawl-wool. Great quantities of which last are sent to the W and S. The inhabitants are chiefly Turks or Lashis, and Mohammedans among them are however, some Kizilbaks or Persians, Calmucks, Armenian Christians and about 200 Chinese traders; the Mohammedans bear the character of being peculiarly tolerant. About 7000 Chinese troops, partly Manchoues and Mongols, under two commanders, garrison Yarkand, which is the principal military post of the Chinese on the W, they are located both in the citadel and in detached encampments outside of the city; and are partially recruited from the Tungans, a race of people in the vicinity who enter the service, while youths, for a period of 14 or 15 years. The civil government is vested in a Malo metan lakun-beg or sang who is always a native Uzbek. Yarkand is a great mart for horses, and horse-flesh is sold in its markets at the same price as mutton. Its vicinity is very fertile, yielding wheat, rice, barley, jowary (Holcus sorghum) oil-plants, fine fruits, and silk in large quantity, and pasturing large herds of goats, sheep and cattle. Pop of city probably 60,000 exclusive of troops. — Ritter's Asia Barnes, &c.

YARKEHILL par Eng. Hereford 1668 a. P 517.

YARLINGTON par Eng. Somerset 1207 a. P 244.

YARM a market in and par England, co. and 44 m. N W York, on a peninsula formed by the Tees, here crossed by an ancient stone-bridge. It has a neat townhall. By the river on the W side of the town is a handsome church, with a beautiful Norman tower and there are several Dissenting chapels, a free grammar-school an hospital, manufactures of tobacco pipes, and some trade in agricultural and mineral produce. Area of par. 1135 a. Pop 1647.

YARMOUTH a township U. States, Massachusetts Cape Cod, on both sides of which it has harbours for fishing and coasting vessels, 70 m S E Boston. It consists of several distinct villages as Yarmouth Proper, Yarmouth Port, S. Yarmouth, and W. Yarmouth and has several churches, extensive salt works, and a number of vessels, employed either as coasters or in the cod and mackerel fisheries. Pop (1850) 3595.

YARMOUTH a seaport in and par England, Hampshire, Isle of Wight, 8 m. W Newport, at the mouth of the Yar. It consists of several neat streets, with well-built freshen houses and has a castle and small fort built by Henry VIII., a neat church, Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, a handsome market-house, public baths, a quay, and some trade, chiefly in fine white sand, used in making flint glass and the fine sorts of British china. Area of par. 143 sq. Pop. 572.

YARMOUTH (Gazette) a port, and town, 607, seaport, in par. English, co. Norfolk, 19 m. E. Norwich, lat. 52° 45' 8" N lon 1° 43' 7" E. on the Norfolk railway, and on a long narrow strip of land between the Yare and the sea. It is irregularly built, consisting of four principal streets, and is connected by a drawbridge with Little Yarmouth, or South Town in Suffolk. It has a very large and ancient parish church, founded in the time of William Rufus and two other handsome churches, several Dissenting chapels, a synagogue, a free school, a spacious custom-house, borough-jail, and theatre—a Nelson monument, in the form of a beautiful column 144 ft. high; two hospitals, charity, free and other schools, building yards, and manufactures of crops and silk goods. The quay, considered one of the finest in Britain stretches along the river upwards of 1 m. The harbour is in the Yare, and is accessible by vessels of about 200 tons. The exports are agricultural produce, malt, herrings, and other fish to the Mediterranean and West Indies. Yarmouth is the great seat of the English herring-fleets, in which about 250 vessels, and 3000 hands belonging to the port, are employed. Many hands are likewise engaged in the deep-sea fishing, the produce of which is forwarded daily to London by railway. In 1851 there were registered at Yarmouth 326 sailing vessels under 50 tons burden, aggregate tonnage 9905 and 825 vessels above 50 tons, aggregate tonnage 35,905 and 13 steamers, tonnage 1920. The same year there entered 2643 coasters, tonnage 198,218, and 192 steamers tonnage 28,091, and cleared 1017 tonnage 64,884 and 199 steamers, tonnage 27 67. In the colonial and foreign trade there entered 209 vessels, tonnage 24 977, and cleared 62 tonnage 6240. Yarmouth sends two members to Parliament. At a recent period, the ground on which Yarmouth stands formed part of the bed of a great estuary, which extended as far as Norwich. It first became firm and habitable ground about the year 1068. The mouth of the Yare has been, within the last five centuries, diverted about 4 m. to the S. Immediately of Yarmouth and parallel to the shore is a great range of mudbanks, the shape of which varies slowly from year to year and often suddenly after great storms. Pop. (1851), 30,879. Area of par. 1510 ac. Pop. 56,880.

YARNSCOMBE, par Eng Devon 2047 ac. P 472.
YARNTON, par Eng Oxford 1613 ac. Pop. 517.
YARPOLE, par Eng Hereford, 8223 ac. Pop. 645.
YARMA YARMA a river, Australia, Victoria, rises in a gully between the Snowy and Goulburn Mountains flows N.W. then N.W. then S.W. and falls into Port-Philip, 4 in N.W. Melbourne, up to which, by a tortuous course, it is navigable for steamboats and vessels of light draught. Its total direct course, nearly due E. is about 100 m.

YARRINA, a kingdom Africa, Upper Guinea, which reaches lat. 10° N. and is bounded, N.E. by the Monima, an affluent of the Niger, E. by the Niger itself, S.E. by the desert, Ansoara, belonging to the kingdom of Senegal, S. by a river which flows parallel to the coast about 20 m. distant from it, and W. by Dahomey. It is traversed E. to W. by the Kong Mountains, and contains a large population, living chiefly in towns or villages, which, as a protection from the incursions of the Fellelains and people of Dahomey, are surrounded with walls and ditches, or situated on lofty precipices, in the heart of impenetrable forests. After the capital, Abbeokuta (which see) the chief towns are Katanga or Eyo, Ada Larro, Janna, Aloce, Boloce, and Itabo. In the capital are many native Christians, who have emigrated from Sierra Leone.

YARRIW, a river, Scotland, rises from St. Mary's Loch, on the borders of co. Fife and Perthshire, flows W.N.W. through the latter, and after a course of about 25 m., joins 1 bank Eddick a little above Sidrick.

YARROW, par Scot. Suffolk 16 m. by 16 m. P 1294.
YARU-ANZA-PO-ENG (Clear River of the West) the principal river of Tibet Proper which country it traverses in nearly its entire length W. to E. It rises about lon. 85° E. and between lat. 30° and 31° N. by several heads in the Horse, Elephant, Fennec, and Lion Mountains, which border on the

E. the region of Kailas, with its sacred lakes, thenceforth it flows mostly E., receiving in Ulterior Tibet five considerable affluents from the N. and as many from the S., on the last of which, near its mouth in the Dzung bo, stands Chashu-tum-bo (which see). Near this it divides into branches, including numerous islands, and over one branch is an iron-bridge of 13 arches the most remarkable public work noticed by travellers in Tibet. Farther on, the Dzung-bo is crossed by an iron suspension-bridge, forming a portion of the route from Bostan to Lams, which city is on one of its tributaries, about 50 m. N. the main stream. Near the town Bagzi, lon. 92° 30' E. the Dzung bo begins to trend to the S.E., and we soon afterwards lose all trace of it in Chinese maps, which are our only authorities for the E. part of its course, and indicate it no farther than the Chinese frontier. It has been supposed continuous with either the Irrawadi, or the Drabm-pootra, on the whole the latter supposition is the more generally believed. In its upper portion it flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARWELL, par Eng Northampton 1880 ac. P 450.

YARI Kot a large vil. Asiatic Turkey, Anatolia, about 90 m. N. Angora, containing 500 houses, of which three fourths are inhabited by Mahometans, and the remainder by Greek Christians. The latter manufacture wine and opium.

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

YARRO, a river, England, flows through a broad and comparatively fertile valley. The horns on its banks increase in number as it proceeds E., the principal is Jiga gonggar, or Shigakonggar, about 80 m. S.W. Lams.—(Hatter, Erdbunde, v, &c.)

but as a parish, ranks as one of the oldest in the country Pop. 1472

YERKUI, a river, Uruguay. See YACUI.

YQA, or San Gonzalo-de-Yqa, a tn Peru, dep and 166 m S.S.E. Lima, r bank Yqa. It is surrounded by sand hills and nearly of triangular form consists of about 20 streets and a spacious market place and has seven churches, three chapels, two colleges, a normal Lancasterian and several other schools, and a considerable trade as an entrepot for the interior. It has suffered severely from earthquakes Pop. about 5000—(Castelnau, r, 1864).

Yk, a tn Further India, presid. Bengal on the Tennessean coast, 88 m S.S.E. Moulmain, cap prov of same name, on the Yk, about 6 m. from its mouth. It is an insignificant place.—The province the smallest of the Tennessean provinces and except a few places, devoted to rice-culture, is covered with dense forests, brushwood or jungle.—The river is much obstructed at its mouth, and not safely navigable by large vessels.

YEADON a vill and townlet in England, co. York, 6 m N.W. Leeds, on an eminence. It has a church with a square embattled tower Wesleyan and Association Methodist chapels and three large woolen factories. Pop. 4109

YEALMPTON a vill and par England co. Devon, on the Yealm here navigable and crossed by a bridge. It has a parish church, the rectory and partly in the later English style and a rule said to have been a palace of the Saxons kings. Area of par., 5537 ac. Pop. 1150

YEBENES, a tn Spain N.W. Castle, prov and 22 m S. Toledo. It has two townhouses, a palace of the comendador of St John, an endowed school, two parish churches and several hermitages flour and oil mills, tanneries, and manufactures of fine woollen stockings which are exported chiefly to Extremadura. Pop. 3169

YELBUT KUL (Green Lake), a lake, Chinese Turkestan, 30 m N. E. Karia, N side of Kouenlung Mountains, 30 m long, N.W. to S.E., and about 10 m. broad lat. 38° 10' N. long. 83° 50' E. It receives several streams both from the N. and from the Kouenlung Mountains, but has no outlet.

YELLA a tn Spain prov and 42 m N. Murcia at the foot of a hill crowned by a ruined castle. The generality of the houses are two stories high and provided with all the requisites accommodation for an agricultural population. There are three squares, one of which has piazas on two sides a townhouse, with prisons and granary in the basement two parish churches, an hospital with twenty revenues a poor-house, a Latin grammar and two elementary endowed schools, and several private schools a suppressed convent six hermitages, a promenade, and a cemetery Agriculture is the chief occupation, but there are also eight manufactories of soft and one of hard soap 80 oil mills, five brandy distilleries and eight flour-mills. Pop. 14,071

YFDDINGHAM, par Eng York 1150 ac. Pop. 104. YEDDI a post or YEDDO a seaport in Japan cap. and on a bay on the S. side of Isl. Yiphon, near the mouth of a river of same name lat. 35° 40' N. lon. 139° 40' E. (p. 10).

It stands on a level plain with a magnificent background of mountains and wooded country. It is built in the form of a crescent, and consists generally of houses of one story more remarkable for their vast numbers, and the large space they cover, than for elegance or imposing appearance. Among the public edifices, which do not seem to be numerous are the imperial residence, occupying the centre of an extensive and somewhat elevated flat, surrounded by numerous canals fed from the river, and adorned with woods and gardens and several other palaces, grouped around this principal one, and including those of the imperial princes, of the eunuchs and the principal wife of the emperor or secondary wives of the great officers of state, &c. The Dutch have long had a commercial mission here and both the Americans and British have recently concluded treaties from which important results may be expected. The Gulf which is of a circular shape, forms a most capacious and admirable harbour with five fathoms water close to the shore, and consequently accessible by the largest ships. On November 11 1850, an earthquake destroyed 100 000 dwellings, 84 temples, and 30 000 inhabitants, and fire broke out in 30 different parts of the city. The population probably greatly overrated has been stated as high as 2,000,000

For II

YEGEN, a vil. Spain Andalusia prov and about 42 m. from Granada, on the S. side of the Sierra Nevada with a parish church, a courthouse, and prison. Many of the inhabitants are miners. Pop. 1018

YELCBH a large commercial tn. Abyssinia, dist. Gofan, Δ from the Abai

YELDFN, par Eng Bedford 1913 ac. Pop. 323

YELDHAM two pars Eng Essex —1 (Great) 1820 ac. Pop. 716—2 (Little) 983 ac. Pop. 206

YELFORD par Eng Oxford 505 ac. Pop. 17

YEL L one of the Shetland isles, Scotland, separated from Mainland by Toll Sound, 17 m. to 20 m. long by 1 m. broad. The coast, except on the E., is bold and rocky and deeply indented with bays and inlets, well adapted for fishing stations. The surface is hilly and generally mossy. The arable land chiefly on the shore, is very limited. Pop. (including that of Fellea), 397

YELI (Mio and Sout's) par Scot. Shetland, 70 m. by 6 m. Pop. 1741

YELI (Nozari) and YELIAR par Scot. Shetl. P. 1066

YELLING par Eng Hunts 1470 ac. Pop. 336

YELLOW RIVER, a larger river China. See HOANG HO

YELLOW SLA (Yichuan, W'ang hai) an extensive inlet of the Pacific Ocean on the Y E coast of China between lat. 33° and 41° N. lon. 117° 22' and 127° 10' E. having W. the Chumse province a Kiangsoo Shantung and Fochien N. Leaocong, and E. the peninsula of Corea. Length about 630 m. greatest breadth about 400 m. N. and W. it terminates in the gulfs of Leaocong and Poohies, into the latter of which pour numerous large and important rivers. Two large peninsulas project into the Yellow Sea, one in the province of Leaocong terminating in the narrow point called the 'Regent's Sword' the other in Shantung terminating in the promontory of the same name. On the E. coast are numerous groups of islets, part of them included in the Korean Archipelago. It is very shallow and obtains its name from the muddy lagoon yellow colour of its water near the land arising from the nature of its bottom, which is often touched by verucula navigata g. l. The large quantity of alluvium continually brought into it by the rivers Hoang ho and Yangtse-kiang causes it gradually to decrease in depth.

YELLOWSTONE a river U States, the largest affluent of the Missouri. It issues from Lake Bollette on the E. slopes of the Rocky Mountains about lat. 43° 40' N. lon. 108° 3' W. and flowing N. E., falls into the Missouri, about lat. 43° N. lon. 104° W. where it is 800 yds. broad after a tortuous course of 1000 m. of which 700 m. or 800 m. are navigable. It flows first through a mountainous but well timbered region then through a fertile country and as it approaches the Missouri through meadowlands and low grounds

YELVERTOFF, par Eng. Northamp. 2080 ac. P. 714.

YELVET or YEDDO a par Eng Norfolk 489 ac. Pop. 64.

YEMBO or YASSO, a tn Arabia, Hijaz, on a low barren sandy crag, near the Red Sea, 120 m. S.W. Mecca of which it is the port. It occupies a large space and has a wall about 12 ft. high, pierced with loop-holes for musketry and often dilapidated houses of coral limestone, and confined dirty streets. The harbour is said to be one of the best on the coast. The inhabitants are mostly Arabs of the Johelsh tribe the other residents are merchants, descendants of Mussulman Indians, who alone engage in trade. Pop. about 2000

YEMLY a principal division of Arabia, occupies the S.W. angle of the peninsula adjacent to the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. The name originally signified the country on the right hand, that is to the S. just as the name Decan in India (in Sanscrit, Dandina) signifies the right-hand or southern country but the same term was also used to convey the idea of luck or good fortune and hence in the prosperous days of this country the secondary sense of its name seems to have been that most generally accepted, and Yemen was known to the Greeks and Romans as Arabia Felix, the Happy or Fortunate Arabia, Yemen in the widest sense, is bounded N. by the Red Sea, S. by the Gulf of Aden N. by Hajar and Najd, and E. by Hadramout. As the chain of mountains which runs along the W. side of the Arabian peninsula, approaches the sea-coast S., till it terminates at the Straits of Bah-el Mandeb. Yemen necessarily comprises two regions physically distinct, namely, a Tihama or lowland between the mountains and sea-shore and an elevated mountainous tract to the eastward of the former. Our knowledge of this country is still very imperfect, and by no means adequate to furnish a comprehensive and accurate account of its physical features. The Tihama of Yemen varies in width from 10 m. to 30 m. and is a narrow strip wherever it is not interrupted by streams from the mountains. These streams are perennial in the high lands but in the low country they flow only during the rains, and it sometimes happens that after a succession of three or four dry seasons, their beds become overgrown with brush wood so as to be nearly obliterated. But a few of them—and these only occasionally—reach the sea, as the Meidan, W. of Aden, the river of Zaid and one or two small streams further N. Banks of coral along the sea-shore afford wherever they leave an opening secure anchorages within owing to the growth of coral, the line of deep water seems to be constantly receding, but the beach or water mark undergoes no change, and the opinion that the Tihama of Yemen has emerged from the sea within the historical period has no good foundation.

The mountains rise abruptly from the desert plain inclining valleys of great luxuriance. The table-land in the interior of Yemen has an estimated elevation of 4000 ft. and some of its mountain groups, as Sâher S. of Taas, is supposed to attain a height of 7000 ft. or 8000 ft. Granite is probably the basis of all the mountains but on the road from Mocha by Zaid to Sana, the rock which first occurs is porphyry fractured so regularly into columns, that the steep cliffs sometimes present the appearance of organ-pipes. trap-rucks with basalt succeed, and at Sana the common building stone is a lava. Mount Adnan, likewise, is an immense mass of trachyte and other volcanic rocks.

Yemen considered in the extent above indicated has no longer a political existence. The country has long ceased to be combined under one government. The frontier-provinces have in several instances become independent and the Yemen proper of the present day or the dominion of the Imam of Sana, does not probably embrace about two thirds of the territory formerly included under the same general title. The Juhâ (mountains) or highland territory of the Imam is divided into 24 districts each under a local magistrate entitled Moia. Of these districts the most worthy of note are Sanhan, on the elevated table-land—it contains Sana the capital of Yemen and in many respects one of the most remarkable cities in the East in Mekharab-el Adas. S. of Sanhan and on the road to Aden is Mekharab distinguished for its college in the district of Yaman, not far from the town of the same name are the ruins of Dhuafar supposed to be the Saphara of Ptolemy Katala, through which the Meidan flows to the southern coast, brings to mind the Catalaena of ancient writers. Taas contains the lofty and productive mountain group of Sâher, supposed to rise to the height of 7000 ft. or 8000 ft. and said by the Arabs to nourish on its slopes all the herbs of the earth. It is clothed with superb forests to the summit. On the almost inaccessible heights of its rocky sides are perched numerous villages, the inhabitants of which enrich themselves by the cultivation of coffee and of Mari. On the highest point of Sâher are the ruins of an ancient stronghold, named Hira el A. ra, or the Bride's Castle. Within the precincts of Sâher are said to be 100 sheikhs or petty chieftains who are virtually independent. In the vicinity of the same mountain the Arabs show what they believe to be the true cave of the Seven Sleepers. At the foot of Sâher on the N, is the town of Taas, well built supplied with water by an aqueduct from the mountains, and enclosed by a brick wall. Proceeding N along the W limit of the mountains we meet with Beled-in Alkias, with the city of Dorabot on the summit of a mountain, and famed for a prices set on the head and especially dropped by the Arabs. The district of Lâdan produces the best coffee, that of Adâb-el-Ala the best tobacco. Kneumma, too is a high mountain covered to its summit with coffee-plantations. In all these mountainous districts there are numerous ancient families, dwelling in their almost inaccessible castles, and scarcely acknowledging a political superior.

The status of Yemen not dependent on the Imam of Sana, are Aden, on the sea-shore to the S, the ruler of which bears the title of Sultan. The capital of this little state is Lahaj, about two days' journey from the peninsula and seaport bearing the name of the principality, and now a British emporium. Khaulân on the S.E. with the town of Taoufîq, is said to have been at one time peopled chiefly by Jews; Maakabla, a mountainous district W. of Sana, the Beled-el Kahâl (country of the blind), called also Hahâb-el Kahâl, extends over the mountains N. of Sana as far as the foot of Amanas. The rocky highland states into which this tract is divided combine in defiance of their common independence, the clans, nevertheless, do not disdain service in arms under the Imam of Sana, who keeps in his pay some regiments of them. N. of this country is the independent district of Bahan, which borders on Hejaz. Its capital is Sada. Three days' journey from this N.E. is Najran, a country abounding in corn, fruit, dates, and horses. The wastes extending from Najran to Hadra, midat, and comprehended under the name of Jaf, are inhabited only by Bedouin or wandering tribes, who are said to have in an eminent degree the gift of poetry or rather perhaps, of extemporaneous versification. Between Kutaba and Hadramât lies Jâfa, the chief town of which is Shehr a seaport on the coast, W. of Makallah.

The Tihama of Yemen bordering on the Red Sea, is divided into the following districts.—Mocha extending to the Straits of Bah-el Mandeb. Adâb-el Anâl (Lower Adâb), to N. of the preceding. The chief place in this district is Hâsa, situate in a valley at the foot of the mountains, and having Maakab for a port. Proceeding N. we meet in succession with the districts of Zaid, Beled-el Fâhî, Hahâla, which has no territory beyond the town and port, and Lobas. Including the islands of Khamra and Firda, which latter derives value from its vicinity to the pearl fishery. The districts of Tihama enumerated above formed part of the dominions of the Imam of Sana, previous to the subjugation of the Wahâbî by Mahomet Ali; but this subtle chief having once carried his victorious arms to the southern borders of Hâsa, easily found a pretence for advancing into Yemen, where the independent mountaineers had generally favoured the Wahâbî, and he seized, almost without opposition, all the commercial towns on the coast. his troops even occupied Taas for a time, but the obstinate hostility of the mountaineers E. of Mocha, have since kept the Turks in check. N. of Lobas, again are two maritime districts always considered as belonging to Yemen though wholly independent of Sana, namely Ahn Arâsh (which see) extending from the confines of Lobeta to about lat. 17° 40' N. and beyond that, for about 50 m., a tract inhabited only by Bedouin, whose peculiarities of language and religious usage seem to prove their affinity to the tribes occupying Asir in the interior. The seaport of Juida or Qasim as it is sometimes called in Ahn Arâsh, has a considerable trade in sunna and coffee. The N limit of Yemen on the sea is generally assumed to be at Hâfî, in 18° 36' N.

Yemen, taken collectively still bears unmistakable traces of its ancient superiority in wealth and civilization, the natural causes of which must be sought in its great extent of elevated table land, with temperate valleys and copious springs, and in its position on the route of the caravans that conveyed the Indian merchandise from the shores of Hadramât to Socatra. Besides its numerous towns which are largely well built it is characterized by the great number of castles, many of them strong and capacious, scattered over its hills and in which petty chiefs with their families and retainers, like the barons of Europe in the middle ages, live in absolute independence. Yemen is the only part of Arabia in which the traveller has nothing to fear from predatory Bedouin. In the towns are many rich merchants, while in the rural districts the peasantry are numerous and in easy circumstances. These have also a physical superiority, for while the Bedouin are ordinarily below the middle size, the peasants on Mount Sâher are said to be all tall, and have been and are justly the subject of the proverb, 'the Sabaeans men of stature.' The dialects spoken by the mountaineers are very numerous and the language of the Tihama is quite unintelligible on the highland. Hamyaritic inscriptions have been found at Dhoal (the Saphara of Ptolemy) 12 m. S.E. of Yem, and at Hira Ghorâb (the site of the ancient Cane) on the sea-coast, at Sana, and at Marib. Yemen has two great schools or universities, one at Zaid for Sunnites, and another at Damar for the Zaidî. The latter is the prevailing sect in Yemen, as well as among the mountains N, the Bedouin round Mecca, and even the Sherif of Mecca himself, belonging to the heretical Zaidi. Our knowledge of this extensive country is too imperfect to justify any attempt at an estimate of its population. — (Vieljeux, Description de l'Arabie, Gruttenheim, Jour de la Soc. Sci., vol. vi.)

YEN-CHOW FOU, a town, China, prov. Chuking, at the confluence of the Hsueh-shan or Green River with the Tchen-tang-king about 75 m S W Hsueh-shan lat. 29° 37' 12" N and lon. 119° 32' 47" E. It has walls fully 4 m. in circuit, and is otherwise fortified after the Chinese manner but does not seem to have much general commerce though a considerable trade is carried on in all the common necessities of life. It has also manufactures of rough lacquered ware, which is sold much cheaper than in places nearer the sea. A little below the town are two landscape pagodas one of them called Kuo-lung-ta situated on a curious conical hill. P. about 300,000

YENDOU, one of the Foyou-wei, S Pacific Ocean, W of Sandwood Bay in Vanua-Léon, lat. 18° 50' S, lon. 178° 14' 41" W. It is about 12 m in circuit and properly forms two islands, with a narrow channel allowing a boat to pass between them. On the S. it is a Porpoise Harbour.

YENGI HEMAS, a town, Chinese Turkistan, 85 m W N W Yarkand, on the route to Kashgar.

YENIDISE, a town, European Turkey Macedonia 64 m S by S. Monastir, near the site of ancient Pella the birth-place of Alexander the Great. Standing among groves of rich foliage, with white minarets, and the domes of one or two mosques rising in the midst, it looks pleasing at a distance, but has narrow streets, lined with wooden houses, apparently occupied by peasants, goats, and buffaloes, as fully as by Turks or Greeks. — (Leary's Journal in Albania and Thessaly.)

YENIKALE JERKALE or ENKALE a town to Hunda, Crimea, on the N W shore of the strait of same name which communicates between the Black Sea and Sea of Azov 165 m S. N. E. Sevastopol lat. 45° 28' 0" N, lon. 36° 09' 16" E. (a). It consists of the town proper which is built along the shore, and has an insignificant appearance, and of a citadel in the form of a very irregular polygon, seated on an abrupt eminence. The chief buildings are a church, once a mosque, the governor's house, and a quarantine. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in the fisheries which are important. There are also in the vicinity naphtha-wells which furnish a considerable export. Pop. about 1600. — The STRAIT called also the Cimmarian Bosphorus, and the Strait of Kerch is about 35 m. long, and from 2½ m. to 3 m. broad but in some places is so shallow as to leave a channel of little more than two fathoms deep.

YENISEI, a river, Asia, formed by numerous streams from the mountain ranges bordering the Chinese and Russian empires enters Siberia, in the latter about lat. 52° N lon. 92° 30' E flows first circuitously and then almost directly N., and forms the long and wide estuary of the same name in the Arctic Ocean, after a course of about 2500 m. The area of its basin which bounds with that of the Lena on the E. and that of the Ob on the W, is estimated at about 1,000,000 sq. m. Its principal affluents, on the right, are the Abikan, Sila Elagui and united Baichua and Turuk, and on the left, the three Tunguska, and the Tchuuska. The principal towns on its banks are Muminak Kramourak, Yenisei, and Turukhanik. It has sufficient depth to the last-named town for large vessels, being from 2 to 8 fathoms deep but owing to the rigour of the climate, and the nature of the countries through which it passes, its navigable capacities remain to be developed. It is well supplied with fish, furnishing the chief subsistence of the tribes dwelling on its banks and in the adjacent districts.

YENISEISK or JENISEISK a gov. E Siberia, between lat. 60° 20' and 78° 25' N, and lon. 77 and 112 E., and bounded N. by the Arctic Ocean, E. gov. Yakutsk and Irkutsk, S. Chinese Empire, and E. gov. Tomsk and Tobolsk; greatest length, N. to S., 1900 m.; breadth, about 800 m.; area, 757,928 sq. m. It lies almost wholly within the valley of the Yenisei, and though covered in the S. by the Altai Mountains slopes gradually N. with the course of the river to the Arctic Ocean where its N. extremity projecting considerably beyond the following governments, forms the most N. point of the Russian continent. Besides the Yenisei and its important tributaries the Upper, Middle, and Lower Tan guks, the only rivers not tributaries of the Yenisei, and deserving of notice, are the Platina and Khantings, in the N. E. which carry their waters directly to the ocean; and the Vakh Tim, Ket and Tchuuska, in the W. belonging to the basin of the Ob. Of a number of lakes, the Platina, situated in the S. E., is the largest. The only part properly mountainous in the S., but lofty hills appear both in the E. and W., and penetrate between the different tributaries of the Yenisei giving to many parts of the gov. a finely diversified appearance. The climate admits of the general cultivation of cereals only in the less elevated parts of the S. Towards the N. the most valuable vegetable product is the licium on which great numbers of reindeer are kept. Towards the centre the pastures become excellent, and maintain large herds of cattle. The rivers abound with sturgeon and various other kinds of fish, and are frequented by vast numbers of water-fowl. game also is abundant, and many of the inhabitants are hunters. The minerals of most value are iron and salt. The former is obtained from a clayey iron-ore, which is found in roundish masses just below the surface, and is melted in small self-contained furnaces, to a very considerable extent. The latter is mostly obtained from rich brine-springs. The Russian population is composed chiefly of convicts, by whom the villages of the gov. are almost exclusively occupied. The annual increase of population by births is 1547 and by new convicts about 3500. Hence, taking the present pop. at 191,500 and assuming the same rate of increase, the population will, a century hence, amount to 956,000 of whom more than a half will consist of exiles and their posterity. The cap. of the gov. is Kramourak.

YENISEISK, or JENISEISK a town E Siberia, gov. of same name in an agreeable and fertile plain, 1 bank Yenisei 180 m N W W Kramourak. It was founded in 1618, is surrounded by an ad. rampart, and has four churches, a monastery, a nursery a custom-house an extensive trade particularly in furs and an annual fair which lasts more than three weeks, and attracts numerous dealers from the most distant quarters. It has extensive low fertile and well cultivated, 1,8000 ba. N. N. (anc. Epomae) a town in Basiliana States div. Ba voy near the confluence of the Fien with the Rhene, 11 m N W Chambers. It has a parish church, one belonging to a Benedictine monastery, a large palace, now subdivided amongst several possessors and a convent. 100 2327

YOMADONG mountains, Burmah. See YOMADONG. YEOU a town and river Central Africa, Rumon. Therowa 1 bank river a little above its mouth in Lake Tchad is of considerable size, well built, and mostly built of mud. — The river flows N. by E. for nearly 300 m. and falls into the W. shore of Lake Tchad. Where seen by Denham and Clapperton it was above 60 yds wide with nearly perpendicular banks a fine sandy bottom and a strong current of 3 m. or 3½ m. per hour.

YEOVIL, a market town and par. England co. Somerset, near 1 bank Yeov. 83 m. S. S. W. Bath. It has several spacious streets, well-built freestone-houses, a fine cruciform church with a tower, Wesleyan Independent, Baptist, Quaker and Unitarian chapels grammar and national schools, a town-hall several almshouses and other charities and a considerable manufacture of leather gloves, of which nearly 5000 dozen pairs are made weekly. Pop. (1841) 6965. Area of par. 4065 ac. Pop. 7744

YEOVII TON par. Eng. Somerset 1768 ac. P. 839 YEPES, a vil. Spain, New Castile, prov. Toledo, 84 m S. Madrid with a townhouse, prison, two endowed elementary schools a parish church perhaps the finest in the province, not only for the beautiful architecture but the excellence of its pictures, two monasteries, and two hospitals with churches. The ruins of Yebes are in much request. This is the site of the ancient Hippo, where the Caligulians defeated the Roman pretors C. Calpurnius and L. Quintinus, who had 5000 men slain. Pop. (agricultural) 2370

YERRESTON, par. Wales, Pembroke 1224 ac. P. 158 YERES, a vill., France rises in the E. of dep. Seine et-Marne near Villers-en-Val de Seine, and joins the Seine at Villeneuve-St-Georges, after a course of nearly 60 m. Another river of same name rises S. of Fontenay-le-François, and flows N. W. into the English Channel. Its course is about 30 m.

YERMA, or GERMA, a market in Asiatic Turkey Anatolia, on an affluent of the Sakarra, 65 m S W Angora. It has numerous remains of antiquity, and some mineral-springs YERMALOFF, an Isl. Pacific. See HOI.

YESHILU, a river Am Minor. See JIKIL-IRMAH.
YESHILU, a river Am Minor. See JIKIL-IRMAH.
